

The Swedenborg Concordance

D-F

Gift of The Zion Research Foundation

THE SWEDENBORG CONCORDANCE.

MORRISON AND GIBB, PRINTERS, EDINBURGH.

THE SWEDENBORG CONCORDANCE.

A COMPLETE WORK OF REFERENCE TO THE THEOLOGICAL WRITINGS

OF

Emanuel Swedenborg.

BASED ON THE ORIGINAL LATIN WRITINGS OF THE AUTHOR.

Compiled, Edited, and Translated by the REV. JOHN FAULKNER POTTS, B.A.

VOLUME II. D TO F.

LONDON:
SWEDENBORG SOCIETY,

(INSTITUTED 1810)

36, BLOOMSBURY STREET.

1890.

8711
A7P6M
V. 2

CONCORDANCE TO SWEDENBORG.

Dagger. Pugio.

A. 814². They sent to me a little child, with a dagger . . . D.1283.

M. 248. (Such married partners) appear like those who are fighting with daggers.

T. 324. Like those who talk in a friendly way . . . but hold a dagger behind them . . .

Dagger. Sica.

D. 4494. Some can kill without the use of a knife, sword's point, or dagger.

Dagon. Dagon.

S. 23². The god of the Philistines at Ashdod was Dagon (1 Sam.v.), who was like a man above and a fish below; which image was devised because a man=intelligence, and a fish knowledge, which make one.

F. 52. Dagon, their idol, was like a man above and a fish below; by which was represented their religion, which, from faith, was as it were spiritual, but from having no charity, was merely natural. P.326¹². T.203².

T. 71³. No more power than Dagon the idol of the Philistines at Ekron. 630². J.(Post.)10.

E. 700²². The reason Dagon the god of the Ashdodites was cast down by the presence of the ark, his head and the palms of his hands being afterwards thrown upon the threshold of his house, was that Dagon=their religiosity, which, being devoid of spiritual good, was also devoid of all intelligence and power . . .

817¹⁰. Their religiosity was represented by their idol, which was called Dagon, set up at Ashdod, and which, according to their description, was fashioned like a man from the head to the navel, and like a fish from the navel downwards. Its being like a man from the head to the navel, represented the understanding from truths; and its being like a fish from the navel downwards, represented the Natural destitute of the good of love; for the lower part of the body down to the knees corresponds to celestial love; and a fish to the natural man, which is destitute of spiritual good.

Dahlborg. D.5031². 5811¹.

Daily. Quotidianus, Quotidie.

A. 2493. The more interior and perfect the Angels are, the less they care for what is past, or think about what is future . . . thus they are free from cares and solitudes.

This is what is meant by the manna being received from Heaven daily, and by the daily portion of bread in the Lord's Prayer.

2838⁴. That 'daily,' and 'to-day'=what is perpetual, is evident from the sacrifice taking place every day. On account of the signification of 'day,' 'daily,' and 'to-day,' it was called 'the continual, or perpetual sacrifice.'

8395. That spiritual good was continually given them by the Lord, without any care or assistance of theirs, is signified by their receiving the manna daily . . .

8418. The reason continually is signified, is that they received the manna daily.

8478. The manna being given every morning, and that if any of it was left it bred worms=that the Lord daily provides necessaries . . . This is also what is meant by 'the daily bread' in the Lord's Prayer. J.(Post.)337.

H. 593. There enter Heaven and Hell . . . to the number of some thousands daily.

D. 361. That we are to supplicate daily concerning the Heavenly Kingdom . . .

— 'Daily,' in the Lord's Prayer, means every moment. Ex. . . Hence it may be concluded that 'daily'=each moment in successive things; but in the simultaneous things (of the Angels) it is turned into a continual glorification of God Messiah, so that the moments are continuous without any break or distinction: hence their perceptions and happiness; and also their [faith] that they constantly receive everything from God Messiah.

Dainties. Cupediae.

A. 3502. 'Make me dainties such as I have loved' (Gen.xxvii.4)=pleasant things thence, because from good. 'Dainties'=pleasant things. . . In the Original Language, 'dainties' are the delights and pleasantnesses of relish; and, in the internal sense, =the delights which are of good and the pleasant things which are of truth; because relish, like all the bodily sensations, corresponds to celestial and spiritual things.

3512. 'Make me dainties' (ver.7)=the longing and delectation from the pleasantness therefrom. 'Dainties'=pleasant things; thus, the longing and delectation from the pleasantness therefrom, namely, from truth. Ex.

3520. 'I will make them dainties for thy father, such as he loveth' (ver.9)=that it will make deliciousness therefrom. 'Dainties'=pleasant things from good.

They are here called deliciousnesses, because the truths are not from genuine, but from domestic good.

[A.] 3589. ' (Esau) made dainties and brought them to his father' (ver. 31) = desirable and delectable things for the Divine Rational. 'Dainties' = the delights which are of good and the pleasurable things which are of truth: the former are desirable, and the latter are delectable . . .

S. 96b. The Word is like a garden . . . in which there are delicacies and deliciousnesses of every kind; delicacies from the fruits, and deliciousnesses from the flowers . . . The man who is in Divine truths from doctrine . . . actually enjoys the delicacies and deliciousnesses therefrom.

T. 361². This state of man may be compared to . . . delicacies . . .

E. 519. Hence what is savoury = the delight and pleasantness of wisdom; and dainties, being savoury, = the truths which are of wisdom.

Damascus. Damascus.

A. 1232^e. 'Damascus has been rejected' (Is. xvii. 1).

1715. 'He pursued them even to Hobah, which is on the left of Damascus' (Gen. xiv. 15) = extension so far. . . Damascus was the chief city of Syria (2 Sam. viii. 5, 6; Is. vii. 8), and it has almost the same signification as Syria. . . The furthest boundary of Canaan, but beyond Dan, is described by 'Damascus' (Amos v. 26, 27). The boundary of the Holy Land, or of the Lord's Kingdom, towards the north, is also called 'the boundary of Damascus' (Ezek. xlvii. 16-18; xlviii. 1). E. 1088.

1796. 'Eliezer of Damascus-Damascenus' (Gen. xv. 2) = the external Church. Damascus was the chief city of Syria, where had been the remains of the Ancient Church . . .

E. 376¹⁹. 'Damascus was thy trader . . .' (Ezek. xxvii. 18) . . . 'Damascus,' being a city of Syria, = a concordant Scientific . . .

911². The Knowledges of truth and good destroyed . . . are here signified by 'Damascus' (Is. xvii. 3), which is treated of in this chapter.

P. P. Is. xvii. On those who place religion in the knowledge of Knowledges only, which is 'Damascus.'

Jer. xlix. On those who pervert the Knowledges of truth, who are 'Damascus.'

Damn. See CONDEMN-damnare.

Damsel. See GIRL.

Dan. Dan.

A. 259. The lowest things of reason, or scientifics, are also meant by what Jacob prophesied about 'Dan' (Gen. xlix. 17).

1710. 'He pursued even to Dan' (Gen. xiv. 14) = a state of purification. . . 'Even to Dan' = to the furthest boundary of the Land of Canaan. . . That 'Dan' = the furthest boundaries, or the outermost borders of Canaan. Ill.

3923. 'Therefore she called his name Dan' (Gen. xxx. 6) = its quality . . . which is in the name 'Dan,' for he was so called from 'judging.' Still, the name involves the things signified by all these words of Rachel, 'God hath judged me, and hath also heard my voice,' that is, the good of life and the Holy of faith; also, in the supreme sense, the Lord's righteousness and mercy. It is this general principle of the Church which is signified by 'Dan,' and which is represented by the tribe named from 'Dan.' This general principle is the first which is to be affirmed or acknowledged, before a man can be regenerated or become the Church. Unless these things are affirmed and acknowledged, all other things of faith and life cannot be received at all . . . Affirmation and also acknowledgment is the first general principle with the man who is being regenerated, but it is the last with the man who has been regenerated; wherefore 'Dan' is the first with him who is to be regenerated, and 'Joseph' is the last; for 'Joseph' is the spiritual man himself: but with him who is regenerate, 'Joseph' is the first, and 'Dan' is the last; because he who is to be regenerated commences from the affirmation that it is so, namely, the Holy of faith and the good of life; whereas the regenerate man, who is spiritual, is in spiritual good itself, and therefore regards as last that it is so . . .

—². That 'Dan' = the affirmative which is to be the first thing when a man is being regenerated. Ill.

—'. 'Dan,' here (Gen. xlix) = the affirmative of truth; of which affirmative it is said that 'he shall be a serpent upon the way, and an asp upon the path' when it reasons about truth from sensuous things . . .

—³. In Moses' prophecy about the twelve tribes: 'To Dan he said, Dan is a lion's whelp, he leapeth forth from Bashan' (Dent. xxxiii. 22). 'A lion' = the truth of the Church . . . hence 'a lion's whelp' = the first of truth, which is affirmation and acknowledgment. It is said 'from Bashan' = because from the good of the Natural.

—'. 'From Dan' (Jer. iv. 15) = the truth which is to be affirmed.

—⁴. 'The snorting of his horses is heard from Dan' (Jer. viii. 16) = ratiocination about truth from a non-affirmative.

—⁵. 'Dan' (Ezek. xxvii. 19) = the first truths which are affirmed.

—⁶. 'God liveth, Dan, and the way of Beersheba liveth' (Amos viii. 14) = that he is in the negative of all things of faith and its doctrine. The reason it = a negative of all things of faith, is that Dan was the last boundary of Canaan, and Beersheba the first, or the inmost of the Land. . . Therefore, when all things in one complex were signified, it was said 'from Dan even to Beersheba.' Ill.

—⁸. The reason 'Dan' = the first boundary, and also the last one, is that the affirmative of truth and good is the first of all things when faith and charity begin with a man, but the last when the man is in charity and thence in faith. Hence, too, it was, that when the Land of Canaan was being allotted as an inheritance, the last lot fell to Dan (Josh. xix. 40).

—⁹. As no lot fell to Dan among the inheritances of the rest of the tribes, but as it fell beyond their boundaries (Judg. xviii. 1), this tribe was passed over in Rev. vii. 5-8 . . . for they who are in only the affirmative of truth and also of good, and do not go further, are not in the Lord's Kingdom, that is, among those who are sealed . . .

—¹⁰. 'Dan' is also mentioned as a boundary in Gen. xiv. 14 . . . and 'Dan,' there, has a similar signification. The city called 'Dan' was indeed not then built by the descendants of Dan (Josh. xix. 47; Judg. xviii. 29), but, relatively to entrance into Canaan, the first boundary, or, relatively to exit from it, the last one, was so called, even at that time.

4117. When the Land of Canaan was presented in one complex, it was said, 'From Gilead even to Dan,' and, in another sense, 'From Beersheba even to Dan;' for Dan, too, was a boundary. Ill.

4608. 'The sons of Billah . . . Dan and Naphtali' (Gen. xxxv. 25) = the things which follow and are of service to interior things. . . In the highest sense, 'Dan' = righteousness and mercy; in the internal sense, what is holy of faith; and in the external sense, the good of life.

6024⁶. 'The sons of Dan; Hushim' (Gen. xlvi. 23) = what is holy of faith, and the good of life, and what is doctrinal belonging thereto.

6396. 'Dan' (Gen. xlix) = those who are in truth and not yet in good. For 'Dan' = the good of life; but here, those who are in some good of life from truth, but not yet from good. Ex. 'Dan' = those who are in the good of life from truth, but not yet from good: the good with them as yet lies hidden in truth, being as yet deeply stored up; and it gives them the affection of truth, and actuates them to live according to truth. They who are such are in the Lord's Kingdom . . . but as they do not act from love, but only from obedience . . . they are among those in the Lord's Kingdom who are in the First Heaven. These are they who are represented by 'Dan,' for in this prophetic utterance of Israel . . . by his twelve sons are described in general . . . all who are in the Lord's Kingdom. That those who are signified by 'Dan' are in the ultimate Heaven . . . because they are in truth and not yet in good, was represented by the lot falling to Dan last . . . and by their having obtained an inheritance at the extremity of that Land . . . wherefore 'Dan' represented those who are at the boundaries of the Lord's Kingdom; for before truth is conjoined with good, it is in the ultimate. If, however, truth is entirely separated from good, it is then not at any boundary of the Lord's Kingdom, but is outside of it. That the inheritance of Dan was the last or ultimate of the Land of Canaan, is evident from the fact, that when the whole extent of that Land is described, it is said, 'From Beersheba even to Dan.'

—⁴. The quality of those who are in truth, and not yet in good, was also represented by the Danites who explored the land where they were dwelling (Judg. xviii); that they carried off a Levite from Micha's house, and took away an ephod, teraphim, and a graven image; by which is signified the worship of those who are in truth and not yet in good, for they adore external things, and do not care for internal ones.

6398. 'Dan shall be a serpent upon the way' = their ratiocination about truth, because good does not yet lead. 'Dan' = those who are in truth and not yet in good.

6399⁶. With those who are represented by 'Dan,' truth is below and good is above.

6401. As 'Dan' = those within the Church such as above described, and who are therefore among the last in the Lord's Kingdom, by 'Dan' are also signified those who hatch falsities from fallacies and scatter them about. The falsities of these persons are also called 'horses;' and their ratiocinations about truth and good, 'serpents,' in Jer. vii. 16, 17.

10258. 'Dan and Javan' (Ezek. xxvii. 19) = those who are in the Knowledges of celestial things.

10335. 'The tribe of Dan' (Ex. xxxi. 6) = those who are in the good and truth of faith.

—². The tribe of Dan was the last of the tribes. Refs. . . In the ultimate Heaven are they who are in the truth of faith from good. Ex.

R. 362. 'Dan' is not mentioned in the enumeration of the tribes (Rev. vii), nor Ephraim; the reason being that Dan was the last of the tribes; and his tribe dwelt the furthest off in the Land of Canaan, and therefore could not signify anything in the Lord's New Heaven and New Church, in which all will be exclusively celestial and spiritual. Therefore, instead of Dan, there is 'Manasseh.' E. 450.

455⁴. As Dan was the last of the tribes, and consequently = the last or ultimate of the Church, which is what is sensuous subjected to interior things, it is said of him, 'Dan shall be a serpent upon the way biting the horse's heels, and his rider shall fall backward' . . .

E. 355⁸. In the prophetic utterance of Israel concerning the tribe of Dan, are signified the ultimates of the Church; consequently, those who are in the ultimates of truth and good, who are called sensuous . . . These do not raise their thought above the sense of the letter, and these are meant by 'Dan' . . . 581¹¹.

—³¹. 'Dan' = truth in its ultimate: this truth in the Church is what is contained in the sense of the letter: they who remain in this only . . . may be carried away into errors of every kind; and those who are carried away into errors or falsities, are here meant by 'Dan' (Jer. viii. 16).

391²⁹. See BETHEL at this ref.

417¹¹. See BEERSHEBA at this ref.

514¹⁹. As the tribe of Dan was not present with Deborah and Barak in the battle against their enemies, it is said, 'Dan, why should he fear the ships' (Judg. v. 17), by which is signified, why did he not repel falsities and the doctrinal things of what is false?

Dance. Chorea.

A. 3081⁴. The affection of truth from good is described by 'timbrels' and 'dances' (Jer. xxxi. 4, 13). E. 863¹².

4779⁵. 'Dancing' (Ps. xxx. 11) is predicated of truths; and 'joy,' of goods.

8337⁵. 'To praise with the timbrel and the dance' (Ps. cl. 4) = from the good and truth of faith.

8339. 'In timbrels and dances' (Ex. xv. 20) = celebration from joy and gladness. . . 'Dance' is predicated of the affection of spiritual truth, and = the pleasantness or gladness thereof. In ancient times, gladness of heart was testified not only by means of musical instruments and singing, but also by dances; for the joys of the heart, or the interior things in the body, broke forth into various acts, as into singing and dances. As, in ancient times, the gladnesses which surpassed all others were spiritual ones, that is, were from the affections of spiritual loves . . . it was then allowable to join dances to their songs and musical harmonies; and so to testify their joy. Hence it is that 'dances' are mentioned in the Word, and by them are signified the gladnesses of the affections of truth or of faith, from good or charity. III.

[A.] 10416². As, in the Word, internal things are described by means of external ones, so also are the joys and gladnesses which are in the interiors of man, by sports and dances. III.

—³. As sports and dances=the joys and gladnesses of the interiors which are from love . . . Miriam went forth with timbrels into dances . . . and David danced—saltabat—before Jehovah (2 Sam. vi. 14).

10459. 'He saw the calf and the dances' (Ex. xxxii. 19) = the infernal worship which was according to the delight of the external loves of that nation, and its consequent interior festivity . . . 'Dances'=interior festivity.

M. 6². There then followed dances of maidens and youths.

256. Dances . . . which in themselves are charming, because they are vivifications.

T. 611². See CONCUPISCENCE at this ref.

D. 4739. There was a crowd outside the temple leaping, and carrying on dances which were not holy.

E. 323¹¹. Musical instruments and dances=the joys and gladnesses which result from the affections.

Dance. Saltare, Saltatio.

Dancer. Saltator.

A. 4658³. Like a dancer who wants to learn to dance from a knowledge of the motor fibres and muscles. D. 3950.

10416². See DANCE—chorea, at this ref.

J. 56⁵. In some of these Societies (of the mock Heaven of the Papists) they dance . . . D. 5213. 6012.

M. 500⁸. The adulterers went down into Hell as it were dancing.

D. 3100. A place where there are dances, etc. 5213. 6012.

3212. They do nothing there but dance, etc.

E. 405¹³. Therefore the joy originating from the good of love is described and meant by 'dancing and skipping.'

—¹⁴. 'The mountains danced like rams' (Ps. cxiv. 3) . . . 'To dance' (being predicated of the good of love) = to do goods from joy.

543¹⁵. Locusts have legs above their feet 'to leap upon the earth' (Lev. xi. 21) . . . It is said to 'leap upon the earth,' because when 'leaping' is predicated of flying creatures, it = to live, as 'walking' does when predicated of animals of the earth; and spiritual life is from the truths which are from good, which are signified by 'leaping with feet above which are legs.'

700²⁸. David's dancing represented the gladness and joy which result from the affection of truth and good from the Lord through the influx of Divine truth, which was signified by the ark.

1029¹⁴. 'To dance' (Is. xiii. 21) = joy from the filthy love which has adulterated the good of love.

C. 189. There are diversions of charity . . . Dances at weddings, and at festive gatherings.

Dance. Saltitare.

E. 355²³. 'To neigh' and 'to dance' (Nah. iii. 2) = to be carried away by desire and delight.

Dane. See DENMARK.

Danger. Periculum.

Dangerous. Periculosus.

A. 3757⁶. How great is the danger from profanation . . .

4031⁶. Unless it is received in freedom it is dangerous.

5387². Such are most timid at the slightest danger, and most courageous when there is no danger.

5863⁶. How dangerous it is for a man to be in living consort with Spirits, unless he is in the good of faith.

9050⁹. 'With the peril of our souls we have brought our bread' (Lam. v. 9). 'The peril of souls' = the peril of the loss of faith, and therefore of spiritual life.

H. 249. To speak with Spirits is now rarely granted, because it is dangerous. Ex. 292². U. 9 (e) E. 1182⁴. —⁵, Ex.

456³. It is dangerous to confirm anything by visions with those who are in falsities. Ex. . . This is the danger which is meant in John xii. 40.

P. 140. No one is reformed in a state of misfortune. . . . By states of misfortune are meant states of despair caused by danger; as in battles, shipwrecks, etc. Ex.

R. 473. These things are not received, until after those who are meant by 'the dragon' . . . have been cast out of the World of Spirits; because there would be danger if they were received before.

878. The internal of the Heaven from Christians was not fully formed . . . earlier than some time before the Last Judgment, and likewise after it . . . There was danger in collecting them into any Heaven before. Ex.

D. 150. The descendants of Jacob . . . succumb in every danger . . . But the moment the state of danger is changed, they return into their nature . . .

3060³. The learned are not permitted to speak with Spirits, except at the peril of their lives . . . It is most dangerous for any learned person, who has been imbued with phantasies, to be able to speak with Spirits, or to be presented with any revelation.

3061. For those who are not in the love of faith, it is as dangerous to come into the angelic Heaven as it is to go into flame. Ex.

4378. Hence it may be known how dangerous it is to instruct others in evils, or to place stumbling-blocks in anyone's way.

4748. See CHARLES XII. at this ref.

E. 730°. 'With peril of souls to bring bread'=the difficulty and danger—discrimen—of procuring the truths of life from the Word.

Danger, To be in. Periclitari.

A. 1033°. They perceive their life, etc. to be in danger.

M. 155. (With such) eternal life is not endangered.

D. 4580. When their reputation is not endangered.

Daniel. Daniel.

A. 1709. This is historically true, but still was representative; as is everything historical of the Word in the book . . . of Daniel, etc.

3652°. 'Spoken of by Daniel the prophet' (Matt. xxiv. 15)=by the prophets; for when any prophet is mentioned in the Word by name, it is not the prophet who is meant, but the prophetic Word itself . . . By 'Daniel,' however, is signified everything prophetic concerning the Lord's Advent, and the state of the Church; here, concerning its last state.

5223°. See MAGICIAN at this ref.

E. 724²⁸. Those who are being reformed by means of truths from the Word and by means of temptations are signified by 'Noah, Daniel, and Job' (Ezek. xv. 14).

Daphne. Daphne. T. 58°.

Dare. Audere.

A. 7541°. Until they dare not do evil to anyone.

Dark. See OBSCURE.

Darken. Obfuscare.

Darkening. Obfuscatio.

A. 1639. (The corporeal memory) darkens the interior one.

2056. The darkening and contamination of a thing. Sig.

2196¹³. Man's Rational . . . thus darkened . . .

T. 404. Resplendent before the eyes of men, but dark—fusci—before those of Angels.

D. 2263°. There thus results nothing but a darkening of the true light.

2264. Thus the light is darkened, as by a rain cloud . . .

5749. Heaven begins to be darkened in them . . .

Darkened. See BLACK—ater.

Darkness. Caligatio.

H. 572°. Thick darkness—caligo—then ensues there, and consequent infatuation and darkness.

Darkness. Caligo.

Dark, To be. Caligare.

Dark. Caliginosus.

A. 7. The first state is that which precedes, both from infancy, and immediately before regeneration, and is called 'emptiness,' 'voidness,' and 'darkness' (Gen. i. 2).

17. Hence comes 'darkness,' or stupidity and ignorance about all things which belong to faith in the Lord, thus to spiritual and celestial life.

21°. All things proper to man are compared to 'night,' because they are of darkness.

232. Men are now able to confirm the unbelief of the senses by scientifics unknown to the ancients; in consequence of which the darkness is so great that it cannot be described: if man were aware how great is the darkness thence resulting, he would be astounded.

1158°. Their ignorance is here representatively expressed by 'a cloud and darkness' (Ps. xvii. 2); but as they are in simplicity and uprightness, it is said, 'round about Him.'

1321. When the worship of self takes the place of the worship of the Lord, all truth is not only perverted, but is abolished; and at last falsity is acknowledged instead of truth, and evil instead of good; for all the light of truth is from the Lord, and all darkness is from man. When, in worship, man takes the Lord's place, the light of truth becomes darkness; and then they regard light as darkness, and darkness as light. Such, also, is their life after death; the life of falsity is to them as light, but the life of truth as darkness. The light of such life is however turned into mere darkness when they approach Heaven.

1839. See DARKNESS—tenebrae, at these refs. —⁵. 7688. E. 526¹¹.

1860. 'Thick darkness took place' (Gen. xv. 17)=when there is hatred in place of charity. 'Darkness—tenebrae'=falsities, but 'thick darkness,' evils. There is 'darkness—tenebrae' when there is falsity in place of truth, and 'thick darkness' when there is evil in place of good, or, what is just the same, when there is hatred in place of charity. When there is hatred in place of charity, the darkness is so great, that the man is utterly unaware that it is evil, still less is he aware that it is evil so great that, in the other life, it thrusts him down to Hell. Ex.

—³. That 'darkness—tenebrae'=falsity, and 'thick darkness' evil. Ill.

—^e. The word, however, in the Original Language, by which 'thick darkness' is expressed in this verse, involves both falsity and evil; or the dense falsity from which is evil, and the dense evil from which is falsity.

2162¹⁵. The same (natural and corporeal things) are signified by . . . 'thick darkness was under His feet' (Ps. xviii. 9).

2405°. The Lord's Advent is called 'a day of darkness and of thick darkness' (Joel ii. 1), because the good are then separated from the evil.

2441°. (To such) the light of Heaven appears as thick darkness. Sig.

2761°. 'Thick darkness' (Ps. xviii. 9), here, = the clouds.

3033°. In the other life . . . in proportion as (such) are in the persuasion that they are in the truth do they induce darkness on others.

[A.] 3224². On the approach of the light of Heaven, this light is at once extinguished, and becomes thick darkness. 4416 5219.

3340. To that light is opposed thick darkness . . . The infernals have this thick darkness from the falsities in which they are . . . and the further they are from truths, the greater is their darkness. When it is granted to look into the Hells where such are, there appears a pitch dark mist, in which they pass their time. . . Sometimes light is given them, but it is a deceptive lumen, and is extinguished for them, and becomes darkness as soon as they look at the light of truth . . . A certain person was let into that pitch dark mist in which the infernals are, in order that he might know how the case is with them. Des.

3342^e. On account of the obscurity, nay, thick darkness-caliginosum, which earthly, corporeal, and worldly things induce. 3413.

3413. They who are in doctrine alone, and not in life, are utterly darkened-caligantur-and stupefied . . .

3425⁴. To the infernals the Lord appears . . . as thick darkness like that of night.

3493. 'Isaac's eyes were dark so that he could not see' (Gen.xxvii.1)=when the Rational wanted to enlighten the Natural with what was Divine . . . When the eyes are said 'to be dark,' it=that there is no longer any apperception; here, no apperception of those things which were in the Natural; and as this is the signification of these words, it=that the Rational wanted to enlighten the Natural with what was Divine. Ex.

3643. In proportion as the infernals are in hatred and thence in falsity, they are in thick darkness and in cold.

3888. They who are solely in corporeal ideas . . . can only think about spiritual and celestial things in a sensuous and corporeal way; consequently, from mere thick darkness about the things of heavenly light . . . This thick darkness . . . so completely extinguishes celestial and spiritual things, that they appear to such persons as nothing.

4075². Unless, by means of some idea, they made that infinite finite . . . it would be like looking into thick darkness.

4751². See AVARICE at this ref.

—³. Unless, by means of avarice, (the Jews) had been so far removed from internal things, and thus kept in dense thick darkness, they would have defiled interior truths and goods . . .

6832². As the Lord appears to everyone according to his quality, He cannot appear to those who are in Hell otherwise than as a dusky cloud and thick darkness; for as soon as the light of Heaven . . . falls into any Hell, darkness-tenebrae-and thick darkness reign there.

6948^e. Hence it is, that when a man is in what is sensuous and its light, he is in thick darkness as to the things of the Spiritual World, that is, as to those things which are in light from the Divine; and hence it is, that sensuous lumen is turned into mere thick darkness when light from Heaven falls upon it: the reason is, that the truths which are of Divine light cannot be together with fallacies and the falsities thence derived, but extinguish them, and so induce thick darkness.

7102¹⁰. 'The pestilence which creepeth in thick darkness' (Ps.xci.6)=the evil which is in concealment.

7171. To Spirits, the light of the sun of the world is like dense darkness. . . That sun . . . is presented in their ideas as a certain thick darkness-caliginosum-at a great distance behind them, and a little above the plane of the head.

7711. 'There shall be thick darkness over the land of Egypt' (Ex.x.21)=the complete privation of truth and good. 'Thick darkness'=the complete privation of truth and good. 'Darkness,' and, at the same time, 'thick darkness,' are mentioned in the Word; and, in such cases, 'darkness' is predicated of falsity, and 'thick darkness' of evil together with it. But the word by which 'thick darkness' is expressed in this verse means the densest darkness=tenebras-of all, by which are signified such falsities as stream forth from evil: such falsities come forth with those who have belonged to the Church, and have lived a life of evil contrary to the precepts of faith which they knew: the evil from which these falsities spring forth is contrary to the Church, to Heaven, and to the Lord; thus is diametrically contrary to good and truth: this state is here described by 'thick darkness.' 7714. E.526¹⁴.

—². That both 'darkness' and 'thick darkness' are mentioned together in the Word, and that in such cases 'darkness'=the privation of truth; and 'thick darkness,' the privation of both truth and good. III.

—^e. 'Darkness,' also,=ignorance of truth, such as there is with the gentiles; and 'thick darkness,' ignorance of good. III.

7712. 'And one will feel about in the thick darkness' (id.)=the density of falsity from evil. 'To feel about in thick darkness'=that the falsity from evil is so dense that nothing of truth and good can be known; but if it is sought after, it is like one feeling about in thick darkness, and stumbling over and knocking against everything; wherefore, in Isaiah, thick darkness is called 'the thick darkness of striking against' (viii.22); and it is thus described in the same: 'We walk in thick darkness, we feel for the wall like the blind, and as no eyes do we feel about; we stumble in noon-day as in twilight; among the living we are as the dead' (lix.9,10).

7870. Hence it is evident that the state of those who are in Hell is called 'night;' not that the thick darkness of night prevails there, for they see one another; but as the state of truth and good in the Heavens is called 'day,' a state of falsity and evil is consequently called 'night:' there also is thick darkness there when any light of Heaven flows in there; for then the light by which they see is dissipated, and becomes thick darkness. Refs.

7950. See CAPTIVE at this ref.

8197². Heavenly light . . . becomes thick darkness with the evil, even if they are in the light itself; and the thick darkness becomes the greater in proportion to the density of the falsity of evil with them: the reason is that the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord appears before the eyes of the Angels as light; but to those who are in falsities from evil it cannot appear as light, but as thick darkness; for falsity is opposite to truth, and extinguishes it. Sig.

8211. 'It came to pass in the morning watch' = the state of thick darkness and destruction of those who are in falsity from evil, and the state of enlightenment and salvation of those who are in truth from good. . . In the state to which 'morning' corresponds, the good begin to be enlightened as to the things of faith . . . but the evil then begin to be overshadowed by falsities . . . Consequently, to these, 'morning' is a state of thick darkness and destruction: to the former, it is one of enlightenment and salvation.

—². From these states in Heaven there come forth states of light and heat, and also states of darkness and cold on earth . . .

8780³. At the presence of heavenly light (sensuous light) becomes mere darkness.

—^c. As these things belong to their doctrine, they see nothing about the Lord; this is to them like thick darkness.

8928. 'Moses drew nigh to the thick darkness where God was' (Ex.xx.21) = the conjunction still of the truth of spiritual good with truth Divine . . . The reason truth Divine is 'thick darkness' to (the Spiritual Church), is that they are not in any light as to Divine truths . . . They who belong to the Spiritual Church . . . believe that they are in the light; but that they are in obscurity, nay, in thick darkness as to truth Divine, is evident from the fact, that they do not know from any internal perception that what the Church says is true, but merely from the fact of the Church's saying so. This they confirm, whether it be true or false; and he who is not in internal perception about truth Divine is in thick darkness; or, what is the same, to him, Divine truth is thick darkness. Examp. . . Hence it is evident, in what obscurity, or in what thick darkness is the Spiritual Church.

—⁴. The other reason why Moses is said to have entered into the thick darkness where God was, when he drew nigh to God, is that Moses as the leader represented the Israelitish and Jewish people, which was in such thick darkness as to internal truths as to be utterly ignorant of them; for they made the whole of worship and everything Divine to consist in external things; hence the Divine was to them thick darkness. For it is known to everybody that the Divine is never in thick darkness, but in light . . . But the Divine appears to everyone according to the quality of his life and faith; thus as light to those who are in light, and as thick darkness to those who are in thick darkness. . . That the Lord appeared upon Sinai to (that people) in smoke, cloud, and thick darkness, according to their quality. Refs.

9256³. Hence it is, that all things of faith and charity, that is, of the doctrine of the Church, or of the Word; in general, all heavenly and Divine things; are to them thick darkness; and worldly and earthly things are light.

9577². The things which are in the light of Heaven are in thick darkness in proportion as man sees from the light of the world; and, conversely, the things which are in the light of the world are in thick darkness when man sees from the light of Heaven . . . Hence it may be known whence it is that at this day man is in thick darkness about heavenly things . . . for, at this day, man is so immersed in the body, thus in corporeal, earthly, and worldly things, and is in such a gross light of the world, that, to him, heavenly things are utter darkness, and therefore the sight of his spirit cannot be enlightened.

9642⁴. 'Darkness' and 'thick darkness' (Is.lviii.10) = ignorance of truth and of good.

9801. See COLD at these refs. 9802.

10061⁴. 'The right eye' = the knowledge of good applied to confirm what is false; of which knowledge, because it is good for nothing, it is said that 'in darkening it shall be dark—caligando caligabit' (Zech.xi.17) . . . 'Thick darkness' = falsity from evil.

10156². They who are solely in natural knowledge . . . if, by their own lumen, which is called natural lumen, they want to enter into the things of Heaven, there meets them as it were a thick darkness—caliginosum—which blinds them, and causes what is heavenly to be as nothing; for that which in the mind appears as thick darkness is of this nature.

10201⁴. They are not in enlightenment from the Lord, but from self and the world, which enlightenmen is mere thick darkness in spiritual things . . .

10227². The ascription of all things to the Lord opens the interiors of man towards Heaven, for he thus acknowledges that there is no truth and good from himself, and in proportion as he acknowledges this, self-love departs, and, with self-love, the thick darkness from falsities and evils . . .

—³. Natural lumen, when separated from the light of Heaven, as to the truths and goods of Heaven, is mere thick darkness. 10551².

10420. Hence it is, that all things of Heaven and the Church are thick darkness to them.

10574³. 'The darkness, and thick darkness which cover the earth and the peoples' (Is.lx.2) = obscure things of faith and of love; for this is said concerning the establishment of the Church among the gentiles.

10694². When heavenly light flows into the light of the world, it induces thick darkness, and consequent stupidity.

H. 122. The sun of the world appears to the Angels as a certain thick darkness—caliginosum—opposite to the Sun of Heaven; and the moon, as a certain darkness—tenebrosum—opposite to the Moon of Heaven, and this constantly. The reason is, that the fire of the world corresponds to self-love; and the light thence to the falsity from that love; and self-love is quite opposite to Divine love; and the falsity from that love is quite opposite to Divine truth; and that which is opposite to Divine love and Divine truth, to the Angels, is thick darkness.

—(d). To those who are in the Hells, the Sun of Heaven is thick darkness.

123. They who are in Hell turn themselves to the thick darkness and the darkness which are in the opposite . . . They who turn themselves to the thick darkness . . . are called Genii; and they who turn themselves to the darkness . . . are called Spirits: hence it is that those who are in the Hells are said to be in darkness—tenebris . . . Darkness—tenebrae = falsity from evil. 151. 552^e. 561.

[H.] 353². Hence they cannot see what is true and good, for, with them, these are in thick darkness; and falsity and evil are in light.

488. All they who are in evil, and have confirmed themselves in falsities against the truths of the Church, especially they who have rejected the Word, shun the light of Heaven and hurry into vaults, the entrances to which appear pitch dark, and into holes in the rocks; and there hide themselves away; and this because they have loved falsities, and have hated truths; for such things correspond to vaults and to holes in the rocks . . . It is their delight to dwell there . . . E.410².

—(s). 'Darkness' = falsities, and dense darkness—densae tenebrae, or 'thick darkness,' falsities of evil. Refs.

518². They with whom Knowledges resided only in the memory . . . on the influx of the light of Heaven their eyes began to be dark—caligare.

553^e. The lumen (of the infernals) is turned into mere thick darkness when any of the light of Heaven flows in thither: hence it is, that the Hells are said to be in thick darkness and in darkness; and that thick darkness and darkness = falsities from evil, such as there are in Hell.

561^e. Thick darkness = what is evil.

584. To the reception of that (infernal) lumen their eyes are accommodated, because, while they lived in the world they had been in thick darkness as to Divine truths, by denying them; and as it were in lumen as to falsities, by affirming them; whence their eye-sight has been so formed. Hence also it is, that the light of Heaven is thick darkness to them; wherefore, when they come out of their caves they see nothing. From this it most clearly appears, that man comes into the light of Heaven in proportion as he acknowledges the Divine and confirms with himself the things of Heaven and the Church; and that he comes into the thick darkness of Hell in proportion as he denies the Divine and confirms with himself the things which are contrary to those of Heaven and the Church.

586. Most of the Hells are triplicate, the higher ones appearing pitch dark within, because there they are in falsities of evil . . . for thick darkness corresponds to the falsities of evil.

N. 37. Hence it is, that with the evil, the things of Heaven are in thick darkness, and those of the world in light.

J. 38². In proportion as man from internal becomes external, spiritual light is dark—caligatur—with him . . .

P. 167². When an Angel looks into Hell, he sees nothing but mere thick darkness there; and when a Spirit of Hell looks into Heaven, he sees nothing but thick darkness there: the reason is, that heavenly wisdom is as thick darkness to those who are in Hell; and, on the other hand, infernal insanity is as thick darkness to those who are in Heaven.

R. 110. 'Thou dwellest where Satan's throne is' = their life in thick darkness. 'Satan' = the Hell of those who are in falsities, and to be in falsities is to be in spiritual thick darkness. Spiritual thick darkness, the shadow of death, and darkness—tenebrae—, are nothing but the states of those in Hell, who are in the falsities of evil; on which account falsities are described by them in the Word. . . . But by 'thick darkness,' here, it is not meant that they are in mere falsities, but that they are in no truths of doctrine; for the truths of doctrine which are from the Word are in light; hence, not to be in truths is not to be in light, consequently it is to be in thick darkness.

—². In many places in the Word, it treats of those who are in 'darkness,' 'the shadow of death,' and 'thick darkness,' whose eyes the Lord will open, and by them are meant the gentiles, who have been in good works, but not in any truths, because they have not known the Lord, nor possessed the Word . . . Hence it may be evident, that by 'thou dwellest where Satan's throne is,' is signified their life of good in thick darkness.

312. See BLACK—niger, at this ref.

423. 'The sun and the air were darkened—obscuratus—by the smoke of the pit' = that thence the light of that truth became thick darkness.

566⁵. They then looked up, and Heaven appeared to them as blood, and afterwards as thick darkness.

M. 233³. (A confirmer tries to prove that light is darkness, and darkness light.)

500⁵. It suddenly became pitch dark—caligo.

B. 79. That, according to the above prediction, there is at this day such thick darkness in Christian Churches . . . is due entirely to the doctrine of justification by faith alone . . .

I. 4⁴. Hence it is evident into what blindness, thick darkness, and stupidity those may fall who know nothing of the Spiritual World and its Sun . . . into thick darkness, because the sight of the mind, while the sight of the eye is flowing into it from within, is bereaved of all spiritual lumen, and becomes like that of an owl.

T. 209². If anyone who is in falsities looks at the Word as it lies in the holy place, thick darkness spreads before his eyes, and consequently the Word appears to him black, and sometimes as if covered with soot.

D. 5464⁵. Some (evil Spirits) envelop others with thick darkness, and transfer them into thick darkness—caliginosum, and thus compel them to think about their own selves.

D. Min. 4682. Thick darkness has insanity in it.

4818. Such (Genii) were there as loved thick darkness.

E. 239¹¹. 'Darkness—tenebrae,' and 'thick darknesses' (Is. lix. 9, 10) = falsities.

386¹³. 'Behold falsity and thick darkness' (Is. viii. 22) = that (goods and truths) are not anywhere to be found, but mere falsities; 'thick darkness' = dense falsity.

—²⁵. 'Then shall thy light rise in the darkness, and thy thick darkness be as the noonday' (Is. lviii. 10). 'Darkness' = the ignorance of the spiritual mind; and 'thick darkness,' the ignorance of the natural mind . . .

410². In the lowest parts (of the Spiritual World) dwell those, who, relatively to the light of those who are above, are in darkness and thick darkness.

— The thick darkness in these gates (of Hell) appears as thick darkness to good Spirits and Angels; but as luminosity to evil Spirits. . . This luminosity, however, is not like that of the world in the daytime, but is like the nocturnal luminosity of owls, moles, and bats, which see nothing in daylight; and, therefore, to them, daylight is thick darkness, while the darkness—tenebrae—of night is their lumen: their sight is of this character, because it is formed by falsities and evils, which, in themselves, are darkness and thick darkness: wherefore, by ‘darkness,’ in the Word, are signified falsities of every kind; and, by ‘thick darkness,’ the falsities of evil.

419¹². ‘Thick darkness under His feet’ (Ps. xviii.9) = falsities of evil in lower things.

526¹¹. ‘Thick darknesses’ (Is. lix.) = falsities of evil.

746⁶. Occurs.

750¹¹. ‘Darkness’ and ‘thick darkness’ (Is. lviii.10) = ignorance of truth and of good.

Darkness. Tenebrae, Obtenebratio.

Darken. Obtenebrare.

Darksomeness. Tenebrositas.

Dark. Tenebrosus, Tenebrosus.

A. 21. ‘God distinguished between the light and the darkness. And God called the light day, and the darkness He called night’ (Gen. i. 4, 5). ‘The darkness’ is what has appeared as light before man is conceived and born anew; because evil appeared as good, and falsity as truth; but they are darkness, and are the things proper to man which remain.

31. ‘I will set darkness upon thy land’ (Ezek. xxxii. 8) = that through sensuous and scientific things they have extinguished love and faith.

— ‘The sun is darkened—obtenebratus—in his going forth’ (Is. xlii. 10). 1805³, Ex. 8902².

— ‘A day of darkness, and of thick darkness’ (Joel ii. 2).

—². In Isaiah, where it treats . . . in particular about individuals who are in darkness, and who receive light, and are regenerated. (lx. 2.)

38. ‘To distinguish between the light and the darkness’ (Gen. i. 18). ‘Darkness’ = falsity.

949. See CHAMBER—camera, at this ref.

1321. ‘To confound’ = not only to darken, but also to obliterate and dissipate.

1521⁶. The noonday light of the world is to the Angels as dense darksomeness. When they are permitted to look into that light, it is as if they were looking at mere darkness.

1528⁶. On the approach of the life of mutual love . . . this dim lumen (of evil Spirits) is turned into darkness; for evil Spirits pass their time in darkness, and, what is wonderful, some even love darkness, and hate light.

1605. ‘The north’ = those who are outside the Church; those, to wit, who are in darkness as to the truths of faith; it also = darkness with man.

1838. ‘A deep sleep fell upon Abram’ = that the Church was then in darkness. ‘A deep sleep’ = a dark state relatively to wakefulness. . . Not that there is ever a dark state with the Lord, but with the Church; as is the case in the other life, where the Lord is always the Sun, and the Light itself; but before the evil He appears as darkness; for the Lord appears according to each person’s state. So, here, it is applied to the Church, when it is a dark state.

1839. ‘Lo, a terror of great darkness falling upon him’ (Gen. xv. 12) = that the darkness was terrible; and that the darkness is falsities, is evident from the signification of ‘darkness’ being falsities. The state of the Church before its consummation, but when the sun was about to set, is described by ‘a terror of great darkness’; but the state when the sun has already set, is described by ‘thick darkness,’ in ver. 17. 1843.

—³. That ‘a terror of great darkness would fall upon him’ = that he would be horrified at such a devastation.

—⁴. That ‘darkness’ = falsities. III.

— ‘Behold darkness, straitness, and the light is darkened’ (Is. v. 30). ‘Darkness’ = falsities; ‘the light is darkened’ = that the truth does not appear.

—⁵. ‘Darkness,’ and ‘thick darkness’ (Zeph. i. 15) = falsities and evils.

—⁶. ‘If thine eye be evil, thy whole body is darkened; if therefore the lumen that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness’ (Matt. vi. 23). ‘Darkness’ = falsities, which have possession of those who are in Knowledges; and how great their darkness is in comparison with that of the gentiles, who have no Knowledges, is what is meant.

—⁷. ‘Outer darkness’ (Matt. viii. 12; xxii. 13) = the more direful falsities of those who are in the Church; for these persons darken the light, and bring forward falsities against truths, which the gentiles cannot do. 4424⁶.

— ‘The light appeareth in darkness, but the darkness comprehended it not’ (John i. 5). ‘The darkness’ = the falsities within the Church.

—⁸. The falsities outside the Church are also called ‘darkness,’ but such darkness as can be illuminated; as in Matthew: ‘the people that sitteth in darkness hath seen a great lumen’ (iv. 16). ‘Darkness’ = the falsities of ignorance, such as exist with the gentiles.

—⁹. ‘This is the judgment, that light has come into the world, but men have loved darkness more than light, for their works are evil’ (John iii. 19). ‘Light’ = truths; and ‘darkness,’ falsities; ‘the Light’ also = the Lord, because all truth is from Him; and ‘the darkness’ = the Hells, because all falsity comes thence.

—¹⁰. ‘Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness lay hold upon you; for he who walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he is going. I have come a light into the world, that everyone who believeth in Me should not abide in darkness’ (John xii. 35, 46) . . . ‘The darkness’ = falsities, which are shaken off by the Lord alone.

—^c. The falsities of the last times, which are here called ‘darkness,’ or of which is predicated ‘the terror of great darkness,’ were represented and signified by ‘the darkness over the whole earth, from the sixth to the ninth hour’ (Matt. xxvii. 45; Mark xv. 33), and also by 'the sun being darkened' on that occasion (Luke xxiii.44), by which was represented and signified that at that time there was no love, or no longer any faith. E.401¹⁵.

[A.] 1860. See DARKNESS-caligo, at these refs. —³. 2405³. 6832. 7711. —². —^c. 9642⁴. 10574⁵. H.122. 123. 488(s). 553^e. R.110. —². E.239¹¹. 386²⁵. 410². —. 750¹¹.

2353. 'Night'=a time of darkness, when the things of light are no longer seen.

2492². With those who have wanted to penetrate into Divine arcana by scientific, and especially by philosophical things, and who would not believe until they were persuaded by these things, (the memory) appears dark, and is of such a nature as to absorb the rays of light, and turn them into darkness.

2973⁵. See BODY at this ref.

—⁶. The case is still worse with those whose interiors are darkness, while their exteriors appear to be lucid . . . They are called 'Babel.' Sig.

3224. To those who are in the light of the world, the light of Heaven is as it were darkness; and to those who are in the light of Heaven, the light of the world is as it were darkness. Ex.

3412². They who are destitute of good cannot understand truth . . . wherefore when such approach Heaven, their light is turned into mere darkness; and their mind into the like, that is, into stupidity.

3693⁴. 'To dispose darkness that it may be night' (Ps.civ.20)=to moderate a state of obscurity. Ex.

3993⁵. Black=what is evil . . . but what is dark-tenebrosusum=what is false; and, specifically, principles of falsity.

4214⁵. They who ascribe all things to their own prudence . . . are in fatuous lumen . . . but when they approach any heavenly Society, this lumen is extinguished, and becomes dark-tenebrosusum . . .

4240². When the Church is established among the gentiles . . . there is light to those who are in darkness. Sig.

4319². Their brain appeared hairy and darksome-tenebrosusum.

—^c. With those who only know . . . heavenly light is not received . . . wherefore, when they approach angelic Societies, that is, heavenly light, this light is with them turned into darkness: hence it is that their brain appeared darksome.

4391². 'Dense darkness under His feet' (2 Sam. xxii. 10) =those things which to man appear to be, relatively, darkness: such is the literal sense of the Word. 9406⁵.

4406. Shade and darkness-obtenebratio (are predicated of the understanding).

4418. They who are in the Hells are said to be in darkness; but they are said to be in darkness because they are in falsities; for as light corresponds to truths, so does darkness to falsities: for they are in a lumen like that of a charcoal fire, of a sulphurous yellow colour . . . This is the light which is meant by darkness; for according to their light . . . is their understanding: it is also called darkness, because their lumens become darkness at the approach of heavenly light.

4531. In Hell there is not indeed darkness, but there is a dim lumen there, like that from a charcoal fire . . . This lumen is what is called 'the shadow of death,' and is compared to 'darkness;' for it is turned into darkness when they approach the light of Heaven; and, when they are in darkness, they are in folly and stupidity. Hence it is evident, that as light corresponds to truth, so does darkness correspond to falsity. 5128^e. E.526⁹.

4532. They who believe that they understand what is good and true of themselves . . . in the other life are sometimes let into a state of darkness, and when they are in it they speak sillily . . .

4658³. Thus philosophical things are with them a means of becoming insane . . . and therefore they have darkness instead of light.

4760⁴. Scientifics are in the light of the world, and, if they are not illuminated by the light of Heaven, they induce darkness . . .

4783⁶. They who are not in the affection of charity are in nothing but external sight . . . and, from this, no one can look at higher things, for they appear to him as darkness . . .

4844⁴. Unless the darkness be enlightened by the light, that is, truth by good, or faith by charity, there is nothing but darkness.

5037². 'To open the blind eyes, and to bring the bound out of the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the house of confinement' (Is.xlii.7)=those who are in ignorance of good and truth, yet long to know and imbue them.

5044¹². 'The prince shall be borne upon the shoulder in the darkness' (Ezek.xii.12)=that with all power it will be brought down among falsities; for 'darkness'=falsities.

5232^e. Such is the state of the man who is in faith alone . . . he is in frost and darkness; in frost, because he is against good; and in darkness, because he is consequently against truth.

5865^e. When Spirits look into the things which are of the light of the world, the things which are therein appear as mere darkness.

6015^e. That thus only falsities will possess the natural mind, is signified by 'I will set darkness upon thy land' (Ezek.xxxii.8). 'Darkness'=falsities. Refs. E.401¹³.

6400. They, therefore, who are in truth, and not yet in good, are in what is shady and darksome-tenebrosusum; because truth has no light from itself . . .

6406. Things devoid of order are darksome and opaque . . .

6588². The enlightening of those who had been in ignorance of the truth and good of faith (is signified by) 'to appear to those who are in darkness and in the shadow of death' (Luke i.79).

6693⁵. 'I will darken the earth in the day of light' (Amos viii.9)=that falsities will possess the Church. 9642⁴. E.401¹⁶.

6829. When man is in temptation he is obsessed around by falsities and evils, which obstruct the influx of light from the Divine, that is, of truth and good; and the man is then as it were in darkness: darkness in the other life is nothing but obsession by falsities . . .

7688. 'The land was darkened' (Ex. x. 15) = that falsity was brought forward where truth had been. 'Darkness' = falsities; thus, 'to be darkened' = to be in falsity; and as it treats of the devastation of those who had been of the Church, and had known truths, but had lived a life of evil, 'the land was darkened' = falsity where truth had been. As truth is signified by 'light,' falsity is signified by darkness; for truth and falsity are opposite, like light and darkness; and there actually is light with those who are in truth, and darkness with those who are in falsity. The lumen wherein are they who are in falsity in the other life becomes thick darkness at the presence of the light of Heaven, and still greater thick darkness with those who have been of the Church, because with them the falsity was contrary to the truth of faith; according to the Lord's words: 'If the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness;' and again: 'The sons of the kingdom shall be cast into outer darkness' (Matt. viii. 12) . . . 'Outer darkness' = the more grievous falsities; it is called 'outer' because falsities in the outermost things are more grievous. 9051².

—³. That falsities are called 'darkness.' Ill.

—^e. 'Darkness' also = ignorance of truth, such as prevails with the gentiles . . .

8197. 'Cloud and darkness' (Ex. xiv. 20) = the condensation of falsity from evil. . . 'Darkness,' too, = falsity. Refs. . . How it was that the pillar brought darkness on the Egyptians, while it enlightened the Sons of Israel. Ex.

8814. (The great darkness in which the Israelites were.) Ex. and Sig.

9186³. Hence it is that they are in darkness who separate good from truth . . .

9406². As the Word in the letter is natural . . . the ultimate of the Word . . . is called, relatively, 'clouds' and 'darkness.' Ill.

10227⁶. 'The treasures of darkness, and the hidden wealth of hiding places' (Is. xlv. 3) = such things as belong to heavenly intelligence and wisdom, which are hidden from the natural man.

132^e. Truths outside the Heavens shine coldly . . . wherefore, on the incidence of the light of Heaven (this cold light) disappears; and if there be evil under it, it is turned into darkness.

J. 15². As this faith (about the resurrection) is a faith of falsity, it induces darkness.

W. 188. It is the end of this little work . . . that the darkness which envelops the man of the Church . . . may be dispelled. . . The Angels are in sorrow on account of the darkness on Earth . . .

243^e. The fire of their love and the light of it have induced darkness . . .

P. 117^e. They see in darkness, and nothing in light; like owls.

231⁴. Most of these (profaners) are hypocrites and Pharisees, from whom, after death, everything good and true is taken away, and then they are sent into outer darkness. Those of this kind who have confirmed themselves against the Divine and the Word . . . sit mute in that darkness . . .

259². When the things of life are not essentials of the Church, man, from the understanding, is in mere darkness.

318³. Let it be confirmed, for example, that light is darkness, and that darkness is light . . .

R. 312. See BLACK-niger, at this ref.

386. A window being made on the right side, I then heard them complaining that they were in darkness; but presently a window was made on the left side, that on the right being closed, and then the darkness was gradually dispelled . . . —^e, Ex.

413. 'The third part of them was darkened' (Rev. viii. 12) = that they did not know what love is, what faith is, or any truth. . . 'To be darkened' = not to be seen and known on account of evils from falsities and falsities from evils. . . The reason 'darkness' = these things, is that 'light' = truth; and when the light is extinguished there ensues darkness. Ill.

—³. That 'darkness' = falsities of various kinds. Ill.

—^e. 'Darkness,' in these places = falsity arising from ignorance of the truth, or from a false principle of religion, or from a life of evil. Of those who are in falsities of religion, and thence in evils of life, the Lord says that 'they are to be cast into outer darkness' (Matt. viii. 12; xxii. 13; xxv. 30). T. 635.

695. 'His kingdom became dark' (Rev. xvi. 10) = that nothing but falsities appeared. Falsities are signified by 'darkness,' because truth is signified by 'light.' . . But in their own sight the falsities of their faith do not appear dark, that is, false, but lucid, that is, true, after they have confirmed them; but still, when they are viewed from the light of Heaven, which discloses all things, they appear dark. Wherefore, when the light of Heaven flows into the chambers of those who are in Hell, it becomes so dark that they do not see one another: wherefore all Hell is closed . . . The reason they do not appear to themselves to be in darkness, but in lumen, although they are in falsities, is that their falsities, after they have confirmed them, appear to them as truths; hence is their lumen; but it is a fatuous lumen, as is the lumen of the confirmation of falsity: this lumen corresponds to the lumen of the sight of owls and bats, to which darkness is lumen and lumen is darkness; nay, to which the sun is nothing but thick darkness. E. 989.

M. 77⁵. If polygamists invade us, they are cast out into the darkness of the north . . . I asked what he meant by the darkness of the north . . . He replied that the darkness of the north is dulness of mind and ignorance of truths.

79⁴. As we entered the city, it became darkness, because the sky did not appear . . . I asked those we met whether they could see . . . They replied . . . We see clearly . . . The Angel said to me, To them darkness is light, and light darkness, as is the case with birds of night; for they look downwards and not upwards.

[M.] 533. See ANGEL at this ref.

D. 1402. On a state of vastation in darkness. . . They who suppose that they understand what is true and good from themselves . . . are vastated by a state of darkness. They are let into darkness. . . (See above, A.4532.)

1403. There are now others higher up . . . who say that they are in clear light; thus some may be in the surrounding space in light, while others are in darkness. . .

1404. These things signify that those who, because they were learned, supposed themselves to be in the greatest light, will be in the greatest darkness; while those who are round about, who do not trust in themselves so much, will be in the greatest clearness: for they who are in darkness were those whom the world believed to be in the greatest light.

1500. What the punishment of the horror of darkness effects. . . When they have been thus let down into the dark hole, and have afterwards come into the day, in case they again lust for revenge, this horror is presented to them; and so they desist.

3077. The life of the body with its ideas is so obscure, as to be relatively darkness. . .

3385. That interior, inmost, and still more supreme things are (to Spirits) as the darkness of the abyss.

3409. The Jews are thus hidden when such Spirits come . . . being wrapped about with darkness-tenebroso. . . that the phantasies of that wicked Spirit may not reach them . . . The dragon supposed that he could resist [him] by involving himself in darkness. . . but he had to confess that he could not, unless the Lord protected him.

3539. The life of the understanding of the evil is like a dim lumen thence . . . but on the approach of celestial love . . . the fiery part first dies away . . . And on the approach of truth, which is intellectual light, their fiery lumen grows dim, and at last becomes darkness, and this according to the distance and quality of the light.

4346. One who had had no conscience was for a long time in a dark-obscura-chamber, and said that he passed his time in darkness and preferred it to light.

4759^e. This lumen of Hell is what is called in the Word 'darkness.'

5698. The mountain then opened and swallowed them up, and they fell or were thrust deep down, and were sent into great darkness; the darkness flowed in which was possessing them; darkness is falsities, which, with them, are in the place of light.

6086. A worldly Spirit who doubted that (spiritual light is Divine wisdom), because he was equally in light with those who were not worldly, was told that he did not see there from his own light, but from theirs; wherefore their light was removed, and he, being left to his own light, was in darkness. He was afterwards sent to a place where worldly Spirits could see although they were not in the light of Heaven. On his arrival there, at first he could see nothing; but afterwards he saw as they did, for their eyes were fitted to darkness, as they are with some birds. . .

E. 72. 'Darkness upon the land' (Ezek.xxxii.8)= falsities in the Church.

151⁴. As men . . . became so external that they no longer acknowledged Divine truth . . . it is said that 'the darkness comprehended not the light.' 294¹⁶.

152¹¹. 'If thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be darkened; if therefore the lumen is darkness, how great is the darkness' . . . 'The darkness'=falsities; 'the whole body'=the whole spirit . . . If the spirit . . . has only the understanding of falsity, it is a spirit of darkness. 274³. 313¹⁵.

167⁵. 'Even the darkness does not make darkness for thee, but the night is as lucid day; as is the darkness so is the light' (Ps.cxxxix.12) . . . 'The darkness'=falsities.

195¹¹. 'To cast him into outermost darkness' (Matt. xxii.13)=among those who are in falsities from evil. 'Outermost darkness'=falsities from evil.

208⁶. 'Treasures of darkness and hidden wealth of hiding places'=interior intelligence and wisdom from Heaven . . .

239⁹. The dissipation of the falsity of ignorance, and enlightenment, are signified by 'I will set their darkness for light' (Is.xlii.16).

274². 'To make the darkness resplendent' (Ps.xviii.28)=to dissipate the falsities of ignorance by the light of truth.

279⁸. 'The terror of great darkness' which fell upon Abram=the state of the Jewish nation, that they were in the greatest darkness as to the truths and goods of the Church . . . 401³⁰.

294¹⁵. That they had before been in dense ignorance and also in falsities, is signified by 'darkness being upon the faces of the abyss' (Gen.i).

357¹². 'Darkness' (Ps.xi.2)=appearances; for they reason from the appearances in the world and from fallacies, applying too the sense of the letter of the Word.

372². That they would divine falsities, is signified by . . . 'darkness shall arise for you instead of divination' (Micah iii.6).

405⁵². 'Before He induces darkness' (Jer.xiii.16)=lest falsities take possession.

481⁸. 'Darkness' (Is.xlix.9)=the falsities of ignorance.

536. 'The third part of them was darkened'=that all these things were turned into falsities of evil and evils of falsity. 'Darkness'=falsities, and consequently 'to be darkened'=to be turned into falsities. The reason it =falsities of evil and evils of falsity, is because it is said that the third part of the sun was darkened, the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars . . .

—². The reason 'darkness'=falsity, is that 'light'=truth; and falsity is opposite to truth, as darkness is to light.

—³. 'Darkness,' in the Word, =falsities of various kinds. III.

—'. 'The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood' (Joel ii.31)=that at the end of the Church there will be the falsity of evil in place of the good of love, and the evil of falsity in place of the truth of faith.

—4. When the Church is in darkness and thick darkness . . . that day is called 'a day of darkness and of thick darkness.' Ill.

—7. That 'darkness'=what is false. Ill.

—8. 'To put darkness for light, and light for darkness' (Is.v.20)=to say that what is false is true, and that what is true is false.

—8. 'Men loved darkness more than light'=infernal falsity, which is the falsity of evil. That it is the falsity of evil which is here signified by 'darkness,' is evident from its being said 'because their works were evil.'

—9. In these places also (John i.4,5; viii.12; xii.35,46) 'darkness'=infernal falsity; because 'the light,' to which the darkness is opposed,=Divine truth . . . and as Divine truth is light in the Heavens, it follows that the falsity of evil, which is the falsity in the Hells, is 'darkness.'

—10. 'He hath made me sit in darkness' (Ps.cxliii.3)=in falsities.

—11. 'We await light, but behold darkness' (Is.lix.9)=the expectation of truth, but behold falsity; 'and splendours, but we walk in thick darknesses'=the expectation of goods through truths, but behold the life of falsity from evils.

—12. The Power of committing this crime, the Lord calls 'the Power of darkness' (Luke xxii.53), because they were in the falsities of evil; in falsities concerning the Lord, and in evils against Him: 'darkness,' here, also=Hell, because there are such falsities of evil there.

—13. That we are to beware that the truth once perceived in the understanding and received in the will, is not turned into falsity, which is done by evil, is meant by 'See, therefore, that the light that is in thee be not darkness' (Luke xi.35); for thus falsities become worse.

—14. 'Sit in silence, and enter into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans' (Is.xlvii.5). 'The daughter of the Chaldeans'=the falsification of truth; hence 'darkness'=the falsity of evil, because evil falsifies truth.

—15. 'Darkness' also=the falsity which is not of evil, such as are the falsities of religion with the upright gentiles, and which arise from ignorance of the truth. Ill.

—16. 'Darkness' also=mere ignorance, and the deprivation of truth. Ill.

—17. 'Darkness' also=natural lumen, for this, relatively to spiritual light, is as darkness; wherefore, when the Angels look down into the natural lumen of man, such as prevails in the natural Knowledge of men, they see it as darkness, and those who are in it, as in darkness. This lumen is signified by 'darkness' in Gen.i.

—18. As the sense of the letter of the Word is natural, it is called 'cloud,' and also 'darkness,' relatively to the internal spiritual sense, which is the light of Heaven, and is called 'glory.'

601¹⁶. 'Behold darkness, anxiety, and the light is darkened-obtenebrescit-in the ruins thereof' (Is.v.30), describes the vastation of the Church; 'darkness'=

falsities; 'anxiety,' evil; 'the darkening-obtenebratio-of the light,' the vanishing away of Divine truth.

618³. 'Putting darkness for light, and light for darkness'=the falsification of truth . . . for truth is falsified when darkness is put for light, and light for darkness; 'darkness'=falsities; and 'light' truths.

624¹⁴. 'Darkness instead of divining'=that there are falsities instead of revealed truths.

650¹⁰. As 'darkness,' and 'night'=the lumen of the natural man . . . it is evident what is signified by 'Thou dispoest darkness that there may be night.'

659⁷. 'Thou hast set me in . . . darkness.' 'In darkness'=as it were in falsities.

864³. 'He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness' (John viii.12)=that he shall not be in falsities.

Dark Sayings. See RIDDLE.

Dart. Jaculum.

Throw. Jaculari, Jactus.

Thrower. Jaculator.

A. 2685. 'By going away about a bow-shot' (Gen. xxi.16)=a state so far as it was distant from the doctrine of truth . . . 'Shot'=that it was as far away as possible, as if it were as far as a dart can be let go from a bow: 'the shot of a bow' is here mentioned, because a bow is predicated of the spiritual man, and because he is 'a shooter-jaculator-of the bow.'

2686². 'A bow'=the doctrine of truth; and this from the missiles-telis, arrows, or darts, which=the doctrinal things from which and with which they combat, especially they who are spiritual, and who were therefore called in ancient times 'shooters of the bow.' Ill.

2709. 'He was a shooter of the bow' (ver.20)=the man of the Spiritual Church; as is evident from the signification of 'a dart,' 'shaft-teli,' or 'arrow,' which is truth . . . or rather doctrinal things. Ill.

—4. As many things in the Word have an opposite sense, so have 'darts,' 'shafts-tela,' 'arrows,' 'a bow,' and 'a shooter;' and they=falsities, the doctrine of falsity, and those who are in falsity. Ill.

—'To shoot in secret at the upright; suddenly will they shoot at him' (Ps.lxiv.4).

—'They make ready the arrow upon the string, to shoot in very darkness those who are right in heart' (Ps.xi.2).

3309². The weapons of hunting, which were quiver, bow, and arrows=the doctrinal things of truth. Refs.

5354⁸. Hence the sons of Ephraim are called 'shooters with the bow' (Ps.lxxviii.9).

6421. 'They shoot' (Gen.xlix.23)=that they combat from (falsities). 'To shoot'=to combat from falsities; for 'a bow'=doctrine, and the darts or missiles-tela, those things which are of doctrine; thus truths of doctrine with those who are in truths, and falsities of doctrine with those who are in falsities: the reason 'to shoot' here=to combat from falsities, is that it here treats of those who are in falsities.

6422. See ARCHER at this ref.

8800. 'Or in shooting he shall be executed with darts'

(Ex. xix. 13)=that spiritual good would also perish. 'To be executed with darts'=to perish as to spiritual good; for 'a shooter of the bow'=the spiritual man.

P. 333³. If a shooter, or marksman, should aim at a target . . . and should err in his aim by a finger's breadth, at the end of a mile the dart-telum-or ball would depart very far from the line.

E. 357. 'Arrows,' 'darts,' and 'shafts-tela'=the truths of doctrine which combat. Ill.

—². Combat against evils and falsities, is described by 'the daughters shall exasperate him, and they shall shoot, and the archers shall hate him': 'daughters'=those who are in evils, and, through falsities, want to destroy goods; those who assault through evils are signified by 'they will shoot'; and those who do so through falsities of evil, by 'the archers who will hate him.' 448⁶.

357¹¹. 'Ephraim'=the understanding of truth, and 'his sons,' truths themselves, wherefore they are called 'shooters of the bow,' that is, fighters against evils and falsities.

—¹². 'To shoot' (Ps. xi. 2)=to deceive. —¹⁴.

Dart. Telum.

A. 2686⁶. See DART-jaculum, at these refs. 2709.

—⁴. 6421. E. 357.

—³. 'The arrows of Jehovah are sharp, and all His bows are bent' (Is. v. 28) . . . 'Arrows'=spiritual truths.

—⁶. 'The bow with the arrows' (Ezek. xxxix. 9)=doctrine and its truths: truths themselves, when separated from goods, in the other life appear . . . as darts.

6000⁸. 'The arrow that flieth by day' (Ps. xci. 5)=the falsity which is openly taught, by which good is destroyed. 7102¹⁰. 9642⁵.

7729². 'Whose arrows are sharp, and all their bows bent.' 'Arrows'=the doctrinal things of falsity from which the combat is waged. 8215³.

8813⁵. 'The arrow which shall go forth as the lightning' (Zech. ix. 14)=the truth Divine which reproves and penetrates.

9141⁴. 'A shield,' and 'the shafts' which belong to a bow=truths of doctrine from the Word, by means of which there is protection from the falsities of evil. Refs.

P. 202³. It is like a shaft let go from a bow, which, if at first it should decline ever so little from the mark, at the distance of a mile would diverge immensely. (See also DART-jaculum, at P. 333.)

T. 86. The Divine truth from the Divine good is . . . as a bow with arrows . . .

E. 257. 'Arrows,' etc. (Ezek. xxxix. 9)=all things which belong to doctrine. 'To kindle fire with them seven years'=to completely consume them all by means of evils.

273². 'The arrows which went abroad' (Ps. lxxvii. 17) mean lightnings, whereby there appear as it were arrows-sagittae-from a bow, which are present when there are thunder and lightning, and by these are signified Divine truths.

336⁶. The falsities which are known to be falsities are meant by 'the arrow that flieth by day.'

355³². 'The arrows which are sharp, and the bows which are bent'=falsities of doctrine prepared for the destruction of truths. 357²¹.

357. Their enlightenment in truths is described by these words, 'His arrow shall go forth as the lightning, and the Lord Jehovah shall sound with the trumpet, and shall march in the storms of the south.' 'The arrow which shall go forth as the lightning'=truth enlightened; thus truth from the good of love.

—⁹. 'A pure shaft' (Is. xlix. 2)=truth dispersing evil.

—¹². See ARROW at this ref.

—'. 'They make ready the arrow upon the string' (Ps. xi. 2)=that they fit falsities into doctrine which appear like truths.

—¹⁴. 'They stretch their arrow with a bitter word, in order to shoot the upright in secret' (Ps. lxiv. 4, 5) . . . As 'an arrow'=falsity of doctrine, it is said, 'they stretch their arrow with a bitter word.'

—¹⁶. 'His arrows as of a strong one, there shall not return anything vain' (Jer. l. 9)=that they will thence be imbued with mere falsities.

—²³. 'He prepares the vessels of death, and makes his arrows burning' (Ps. vii. 13)=that he makes for himself principles of falsity from infernal love, whereby he destroys good and its truths.

—^c. 'The bow with the arrows' (Ezek. xxxix. 9)=doctrine with its falsities.

401⁷. That then genuine truths and goods do not appear to them, but in their place fatuous truths and goods, which in themselves are falsities and evils, is signified by 'For light thine arrows go abroad, for respicence the thunderbolt of thy spear' (Hab. iii. 11). 'Arrows,' or lightnings=fatuous truths which in themselves are falsities.

502⁹. 'The arrow which shall go forth as the lightning'=truth dispersing and destroying.

594¹⁴. 'Thine arrows went abroad' (Ps. lxxvii)=Divine truths thence derived.

684¹⁵. 'Arrows' (Ps. xlv. 5)=truths combating.

724¹⁰. 'Sons of the youth which are like arrows in the hand of a mighty one' (Ps. cxxvii. 4)=the truths of the Ancient Church, which were natural truths from the Spiritual; this Church is meant by 'youth'; and as these truths possess all power against falsities and evils, it is said, 'as arrows in the hand of a mighty one': 'arrows'=truths which destroy falsities.

Dash. Allidere.

A. 8902⁵. 'The little ones shall be dashed in pieces' (Is. xlii. 16)=that they will utterly extinguish innocence.

—⁶. 'To be dashed in pieces,' etc.=the extinction of faith and charity.

E. 652²⁶. 'To be dashed in pieces at the head of all the streets' (Nahum iii. 10)=to be dispersed and to perish.

7102⁴. 'Their bows shall dash the young men in pieces, and they shall have no pity on the fruit of the belly'

(Is.xiii.18)=that falsities of doctrine will destroy all the understanding of truth and all the good of love.

Dates. (Fixing the time.) D.4573. 4620. 5032. 5099. 5239. 5336. 5366. 5600. 5699. 5746. 5841. 5980. 5994. 5997. 6000. 6009. 6019. 6022. 6033⁴. 6082. 6088⁶. 6097. 6107. 6110²⁸. —⁷³. D.Min.4725. 4773. 4831. J.(Post.)104. D.Wis.vii. 1^e.

Daub. Illinere. See BESMEAR.

P. 153^e. It is as if they had daubed faith over all things of the Word, as one who daubs writing with vermilion, so that nothing which is beneath it appears.

T. 134⁵. The Angel said, I have observed that the priests prepare eye-salve from the Word not interiorly understood, which they daub on the eyes blinded by their faith.

797³. (Melancthon) bedaubed the paper with the same error . . .

Daughter. Filia.

A. 54^e. From (the Most Ancient Church) emanated the phrase, which became customary, that, from the affection of good, the Church itself was called 'daughter,' and also 'virgin' . . . and 'wife.'

55². The fruits thence derived, which are of truth, are called 'sons'; and the fruits which are of good, 'daughters.'

253. From the heavenly and angelic proprium, the Church is called in the Word, 'woman,' 'wife,' 'bride,' 'virgin,' 'daughter.'

489. 'Sons and daughters'=the truths and goods which they perceived; 'sons,' truths; and 'daughters,' goods; for the conceptions and births of the Church, in the Word, as of old, are called 'sons and daughters.' III.

—. 'Thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side' (Is.lx.4); 'sons'=truths; and 'daughters,' goods.

—. 'Deliver me and snatch me from the hand of strange sons, whose mouth speaketh vanity; our sons are as great plantations made in their childhood; our daughters as corners, cut out in the form of a temple' (Ps.exliv.11,12): 'strange sons'=spurious or false truths; 'our sons'=the doctrinal things of truth; 'daughters,' the doctrinal things of good. D.4140^e.

—. 'I will say to the north, Give; and to the south wind, Keep not back; bring My sons from far, and My daughters from the extremity of the earth' (Is.xliii.6): 'sons'=truths; 'daughters,' goods. 1458².

—. 'Sons and daughters' (Jer.iii.24)=truths and goods.

490. 'Daughters'=goods many times in the Word; as in David: 'The daughters of kings among thy precious ones . . . The daughter of Tyre for a gift, the king's daughter is all-glorious within' (Ps.xlv.9,12,13); where the good and beauty of love and faith are described by 'daughter': hence Churches are called 'daughters,' and that from goods; as 'the daughter of Sion,' and 'the daughter of Jerusalem.' They are also called 'daughters of the people' (Is.xxii.4); 'the daughter of Tharshish' (Is.xxiii.10); 'the daughter of Sidon' (ver. 12); 'daughters in the field' (Ezek.xxvi.6,8).

491. The same things are signified by 'sons and daughters' in this chapter (Gen.v.4,7,10,13,16,19,26,30); but such as the Church is, such are the sons and daughters, or the goods and truths: here, they = the truths and goods which they distinctly perceived, because they are predicated of the Most Ancient Church, which was the principal and parent of the other and succeeding ones. 532.

555. See CUPIDITY at this ref.

568. 'Daughters' (Gen.vi.1)=the things belonging to the will of that man, thus cupidities. . . 'Daughters,' or goods, belong to the will; but such as the man is, such is the understanding and such the will, thus such are 'the sons and daughters.' It here treats of a corrupt man, who has no will, but mere cupidity instead, which they suppose to be, and also call, will . . .

—². The reason 'daughters'=the things of the will, and, when there is no will, cupidities; and the reason 'sons'=the things of the understanding, and, when there is no understanding of truth, phantasies, is that the female sex is of such a nature, and is so formed, that will or cupidity reigns above understanding; such is the whole disposition of their fibres; such is their nature. But the male sex is so formed, that understanding or reason reigns; such, too, is the disposition of their fibres; such is their nature . . .

569. 'The sons of God saw the daughters of man, that they were good, and took them wives of all whom they chose' (ver.2)=that the doctrinal things of faith conjoined themselves with cupidities; with any whatever.

1336. '(Shem) begat sons and daughters' (Gen.xi.11) =doctrinal things. 1338.

1341. '(Arphaxad) begat sons and daughters' (ver.13) =doctrinal things.

1344. '(Shelah) begat sons and daughters' (ver.15) =doctrinal things.

1346. '(Eber) begat sons and daughters' (ver.17) =doctrinal things which are rituals.

2015⁵. 'They will bring thy sons in the bosom, and thy daughters shall be carried on the shoulder' (Is.xlix.22): 'daughters'=goods; 'sons,' truths.

2362. See AFFECTION OF GOOD at these refs. 3024². 3066. 3067. 3834. 3848. 4134. 4177. 4200. 4215. 4643.

2391. 'Daughters' (Gen.xix.12)=the affections of good and truth; or, what is the same, those who are in these affections. 2400. 2407.

2461. '(Lot's) two daughters with him' (ver.30)=its affections in like manner (impure). 'Daughters'=affections; but such as the good is, such are the affections; even spurious and impure good has its affections . . . 2465.

2464. '(Lot's) two daughters'=the affections thence derived, which are of such good and such falsity: the good from which the affections are, is 'Lot,' and the truth from which they are, was 'Lot's wife.' When this has become 'a statue of salt,' that is, when the good of truth is vastated, then such good exists as is signified by Lot in the cave, and such affections therefrom as are signified by his 'daughters.'

[A.] 2466¹⁰. 'Daughters,' and 'daughters-in-law' (Hos. iv. 13) = such affections.

—¹⁴. As 'whoredom' has such a signification, and 'daughters' = affections, it was so severely forbidden that a priest's daughter should commit whoredom (Lev. xxi. 9).

2567⁵. 'Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy' (Joel ii. 28). . . 'Sons' = truths themselves; 'daughters,' goods themselves. Refs.

—¹⁰. See COOK at this ref.

3024. See AFFECTION at this ref.

—³. Hence it is evident that 'the daughters of the gentiles,' 'the daughters of the Philistines,' 'the daughters of Egypt,' 'the daughters of Tyre and Sidon,' 'the daughters of Elom,' 'the daughters of Moab,' 'the daughters of the Chaldeans, and of Babel,' 'the daughters of Sodom,' = affections of evil and falsity, from which come these religiosities; thus, they = the religiosities themselves. Ill. 4335.

—'. 'The daughters of the magnificent nations' (Ezek. xxxii. 16, 18) = affections of evil.

—⁴. 'The daughter of Egypt' (Jer. xlvi. 11) = the affection of reasoning about the truths of faith, whether it is so, from scientific; thus, she = the religiosity which thence originates. . .

—⁶. It is evident that in these passages 'daughters' do not mean daughters, but affections which disagree with truth; thus, the religiosities thence derived; (and what these are determined by the signification of the various nations mentioned).

3081⁶. 'The king's daughter' (Ps. xlv. 13) = the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom; 'her friends, the virgins after her' = affections of truth. 5044¹³.

3103³. 'The daughters of Zion who uplift themselves' (Is. iii. 16) = affections of evil within the Church.

3110. 'Whose daughter art thou?' (Gen. xxiv. 23) = further exploration concerning innocence. Ex.

3620. 'I loathe my life, on account of the daughters of Heth' (Gen. xxvii. 46) = the adjunction of natural truth from another source. . . 'The daughters of Heth' = affections of truth from what is not genuine; here, of natural truth, because it is said concerning Jacob. 3621.

3621. 'If Jacob takes a woman from the daughters of Heth' (id.) = that natural truth was not to be associated with them.

3622. 'As these, are the daughters of the land' (id.) = because not from this ground, that is, from the truths of the genuine Church. 'Daughters' = Churches; for 'daughters' = the affections of good and truth; and 'the land,' the tract where the Church is, thus, the Church: thus, 'the daughters of the land' = the goods and truths of the Church.

3662. 'Thou shalt not take a woman from the daughters of Canaan' (Gen. xxviii. 1) = that it should not be conjoined with affections of falsity and evil. . . 'Daughters' = affections. Refs. 3665. 3683.

3686. 'Esau saw that the daughters of Canaan were evil in the eyes of Isaac his father' (ver. 8) = the foresight and providence of the Lord that the affections of that truth with which natural good had heretofore been conjoined, would not conduce to conjunction. . . 'The daughters of Canaan,' here, the daughters of Heth = the affections of truth from what is not genuine. Ex.

3703². 'Father' = good; and 'mother,' truth; in fact, that good and truth from which come the lower or derivative goods and truths, which are relatively as daughters and sons; and are therefore called 'daughters and sons' in the Word. —¹⁵, Ill. 3908. 4835³. 4843. H. 382a. E. 166.

—¹². 'The king's daughter' = the love of truth. . . because it treats here of the Lord and His Divine Human. 5954⁷. 9688^o. 9942⁷.

—¹⁵. 'The daughter of a priest' = the affection of good.

3793². 'Laban' represents the good of a common, but collateral stock. . . Hence the daughters from that good, (Rachel and Leah,) represent affections in the Natural; for these are as daughters from that good as a father.

3818. 'The two daughters of Laban' (Gen. xxix. 16) = the affections of truth from the good of a common stock. 'Daughters' = affections; here, the affections of truth from the good represented by Laban.

3824. 'I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter' (ver. 18) = assiduity, and subsequently a holy state in order to be conjoined with internal truth.

3939. 'In my happiness because the daughters will make me happy' (Gen. xxx. 13) = the delight of the affections which corresponds to the happiness of eternal life. . . 'The daughters who will make happy' = Churches.

3963. 'Afterwards she bare a daughter' (ver. 21) = the affection of all (the general truths), and also the Church of a faith in which is good, (that is, the Spiritual Church). Ex.

4139. 'Thou hast not permitted me to kiss my sons and my daughters' (Gen. xxxi. 28) = disjunction in consequence of a free state according to the faith of this good. . . 'Sons' = truths; and 'daughters,' goods.

4185. 'The daughters are my daughters, and the sons are my sons, and the flock is my flock' (ver. 43) = that all the affections of truth, and all the truths and goods were his. 'Daughters,' here those of Rachel and Leah, = the affections of truth. 4215.

4187. 'And to my daughters, what shall I do to them this day, or to their sons whom they have borne?' (id.) = that he dare not claim them. 'Daughters' = affections of truth.

4429. 'To see the daughters of the land' (Gen. xxxiv. 1) = to know the affections of truth and the Churches thence derived.

—^e. 'The daughters of the land' = the Churches among the ancients. Everywhere in the Word, in the internal sense, 'daughters' = Churches.

4434². 'To love and betroth the daughter of a strange God' (Mal. ii. 11) = to conjoin one's self with falsity, in place of truth, which is 'the wife of the youth.'

—⁴. 'Sons' (Ezek. xvi. 20) = truths; and 'daughters,' their affections.

4450. 'Give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you' (Gen.xxxiv.9)=the union of goods and truths. . . 'Daughters'=affections, thus goods. 4483.

4470. 'We will take our daughter and go' (ver.17)=that there is no conjunction. Ex.

4677². As kings represented the Lord as to Divine truth . . . their daughters were clothed in coats of various colours; for by 'daughters' were signified the affections of good and truth, and thence Churches. 9942⁸.

4782. 'And all his daughters' (Gen.xxxvii.35)=those who are in evils. 'Daughters'=goods, and, in the opposite sense, evils; or, those who are in goods or evils. Refs.

4818. 'Judah saw there the daughter of a man, a Canaanite' (Gen.xxxviii.2)=the affection of evil from the falsity of evil. . . 'Daughter'=the affection of good; and, in the opposite sense, the affection of evil.

4843². The life of evil is signified by 'the daughters committing whoredom' (Hos.iv.13); and the doctrine of falsity from which is the life of evil, by 'the daughters-in-law committing adultery.'

—³. 'The daughter rising up against her mother' (Micah vii.6)=that the affection of evil does so against truth; and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law=that the affection of falsity does so against good. —⁵. —⁶.

5332. 'He gave him Aenath the daughter of Potipherah priest of On for a woman' (Gen.xli.45)=the quality of the marriage of truth with good, and of good with truth. . . 'The daughter of the priest of On'=the truth of good; for 'daughter'=the affection of truth; and 'a priest'=good.

6021. 'His daughters and his sons' daughters' (Gen.xlvi.7)=goods in order. 'Daughters'=goods; and so also do 'sons' daughters,' but the goods which are from the former, thus in their order.

6138². 'He that loveth son and daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me' (Matt.x.37). 'Father and mother,' here=those things in general which are of man's proprium from heredity; and 'son and daughter,' those things which are of man's proprium from actuality.

6413⁴. 'The daughter of Zion' (Lam.i.6)=the affection of good, which is of the Celestial Church.

6419. 'Of a daughter, she marcheth upon the wall' (Gen.xlix.22)=to fight against falsity. 'A daughter'=the Church; here, the Spiritual Church, because that is treated of.

6432⁶. 'Daughters' (Is.xxxii.9)=affections.

6677. 'If she be a daughter, even let her live' (Ex.i.16)=not (to be destroyed) if it is good. . . for, when the infernals infest, they are allowed to assault truths, but not goods. Ex.

6729. 'The daughter of Pharaoh went down' (Ex.ii.5)=the religiosity there. 'Daughter'=the affection of truth and of good, and thence the Church; but, in the opposite sense, the affection of falsity and of evil, and thence the religiosity which is from them; here, the religiosity from false scientifics, because it is the daughter of Pharaoh. 6739.

— That 'daughters,' in the Word, = Churches; and also that 'daughters'=the religiosities of many nations, which are false. III.

13

—^e. 'The daughter of Egypt' (Jer.xlvi.11)=the affection of reasoning concerning the truths of faith, whether it is so, from scientifics, when the Negative reigns; thus=the religiosity which thence originates; and which is of such a character that nothing is believed except what is false.

6740^e. 'The daughters which are carried by nurses at thy side' (Is.lx.4)=the goods which are continually being insinuated; for 'daughters'=good; and 'nurses,' those things which insinuate.

6745^e. 'The daughter of My people is cruel' (Lam.iv.3)=the Spiritual Church; here, vastated.

6750. 'She brought him to the daughter of Pharaoh' (Gen.ii.10)=to the affection of scientifics. 'The daughter of Pharaoh'=a religiosity; but here, the affection of scientifics; for it is the third state which is described in this verse, and, in that case, 'daughter'=affection; and 'Pharaoh,' what is scientific in general; thus, 'the daughter of Pharaoh'=the affection of scientifics. Ex.

6775. 'The priest of Midian had seven daughters' (Ex.ii.16)=the holy things of that Church. 'The daughters of a priest'=the things of the Church; 'daughter'=the Church; 'priest,' the good of love; thus, 'the daughters of a priest'=the Church as to good: 'Midian'=those who are in the truths of simple good; and 'seven'=what is holy; thus, 'the priest of Midian had seven daughters'=the holy things of the Church belonging to those who are in the truths of simple good.

6788. 'He said to his daughters' (ver.20)=thought concerning the holy things of the Church. 'Daughters'=the holy things of the Church; the holy things which are here signified by 'daughters' are truths, which, in the Word, are called 'holy'. . .

6793. 'He gave Zipporah his daughter to Moses' (ver.21)=that he adjoined to him the good of his own Church. . . 'Daughter'=good, and also the Church; 'Zipporah'=the quality of the good of that Church.

6919. 'Ye shall put them on your sons and your daughters' (Ex.iii.22)=application to their truths and to their goods. 'Sons'=truths; and 'daughters,' goods.

7662. 'With our sons and with our daughters' (Ex.x.9)=those who are in the affection of truth and in the affection of good. 'Sons'=the truths of the Church, thus affections, because truths without affections are not anything; and 'daughters'=goods, thus, the affections of good.

7729⁶. 'The daughter of Zion' (Micah iv.13)=the Celestial Church. E.176^e.

8890. 'Thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter,' etc. (Ex.xx.10)=Heaven and happiness for each and all things in the internal and external of man. . . 'Thou'=the man himself; 'son,' his Intellectual; 'daughter,' his Voluntary, both in the internal man. . . The reason 'son'=the Intellectual, is that 'son'=truth, for truths constitute the Intellectual; and the reason 'daughter'=the Voluntary, is that 'daughter'=good, for goods constitute the Voluntary.

[A.] 8904⁴. 'Daughters' (Ezek.xvi.20)=goods.

8982. 'If she bear him sons and daughters' (Ex.xxi.4)=truths and goods thence derived. 'Sons'=truths; and 'daughters,' goods.

8993. 'When a man has sold his daughter for a maid-servant' (Ex.xxi.7)=the affection of truth from natural delight. 'The daughter of a man'=the affection of truth; for 'daughter'=affection; and 'man,' truth.

—e. They who are in the genuine affection of truth, in the representative sense, are 'the daughters of the men of the Israelites;' but they who are in an affection of truth which is not genuine, are 'maidservants from the daughters of Israel.'

9001. 'According to the judgment of daughters shall he do to her' (ver.9)=that it shall be as is the genuine affection of truth... 'Daughter'=the affection of truth; here, the genuine affection of truth; for 'a maidservant'=the affection of truth from natural delight; thus not genuine before she is betrothed...

9079. 'Or shall have gored a son or a daughter' (ver.31)=a reviling by the affection of evil against the truths and goods of faith derived from interior things... 'Son'=the truth of faith; and 'daughter,' the good of faith: the reason they=truths and goods derived from interior things, is that interior things are like parents, from which goods and truths are born like sons and daughters. Ex.

9666⁶. 'Sons from afar'=those who are in obscurity as to truths; 'daughters from the extremity of the earth'=those who are in obscurity as to goods, such as are the gentiles. 'Sons'=those who are in truths, and, in the abstract sense, truths; 'daughters,' those who are in goods, and, in the abstract sense, goods. Refs.

10031². 'The daughter of My people' (Lam.ii.11)=the Church.

10109⁴. 'The daughter of a priest married to a strange man shall not eat' (Lev.xxii.12)=that the holy things of the Church cannot be appropriated to the good which is not conjoined with the truths of the Church.

10227¹⁴. 'The daughter of Tyre shall offer thee a gift' (Ps.xlv.12): the Church as to the affection of truth is here described, and is called 'the king's daughter;' for 'daughter'=the Church as to affection; and 'king,' truth. E.236⁶.

10402. 'Pull out the earrings of gold from the ears of your women, of your sons, and of your daughters' (Ex.xxxii.2)=the drawing out of such things from the sense of the letter of the Word as favour external loves, and the principles thence derived... 'Daughters'=the affections of truth and good, and, consequently, in the opposite sense, the affections of falsity and of evil.

10490⁴. 'The daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law' (Matt.x.35)... 'The daughter'=the affection of good and of truth; 'the mother,' the affection of evil and of falsity; 'the daughter-in-law'=the truth of the Church adjoined to its good; and 'the mother-in-law,' falsity adjoined to its evil. —⁵.

10651. 'If thou take of his daughters for thy sons' (Ex.xxiv.16)=the conjunction of the affections of evil with truths... 'Daughters'=the affections of good; and, in the opposite sense, the affections of evil.

10652. 'And his daughters go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods' (id.)=thus the profanation of good and of truth... 'His daughters,' or those of the inhabitant of the land, =the affections of evil. Ex.

H. 382 (r). 'Daughters'=the affections of good, thus goods. Refs.

Life 79². The Israelitish and Jewish Churches are here treated of, which are 'the daughters of one mother' (Ezek.xxiii.2). R.134⁴. E.141⁴. 555⁷.

R. 166³. 'The king's daughter'=the Church as to the affection of truth.

458². 'The daughters of the owl,' etc. (Is.xiii.21)=various concupiscences.

543. 'A daughter,' in the Word,=the good of doctrine, also the will and thence the affection of truth and of good.

748⁶. 'To eat the flesh of sons and daughters' (Jer.xix.9)=to destroy truths and goods with one's self: 'sons'=truths; and 'daughters,' goods. Refs.

M. 120. The offspring from the Lord as a Husband and Father, and from the Church as a wife and mother, are all spiritual; and in the spiritual sense of the Word are meant by 'sons and daughters,' etc. Gen.art.

— Hence 'sons and daughters' in the spiritual sense of the Word, mean truths and goods; 'sons,' truths conceived in the spiritual man and born in the natural man; and 'daughters,' in like manner, goods... As 'daughters'=the goods of the Church, there is so frequently mentioned in the Word 'the daughter of Zion,' 'of Jerusalem,' 'of Israel,' and 'of Judah,' by which are not meant any daughters, but the affection of good which is of the Church.

202. The offspring born from two who are in love truly conjugal derive from their parents the marriage principle of good and truth, whereby they have an inclination and capacity, if sons, to perceive the things of wisdom, and if daughters, to love the things which wisdom teaches. Gen.art.

E. 175⁸. 'Sons and daughters' (Jer.v.17)=the affections of truth and of good.

195⁹. 'The king's daughter'=the spiritual affection of truth, and thence the Church from those who are in that affection. 242²¹. 298⁷. 412²⁶. 684¹⁸.

240⁷. 'The daughters of Zion' (Is.iii.17)=the Celestial Church, and the things of that Church; here, perverted.

357². 'Of a daughter' (Gen.xlix.22)=those who are in evils, and want to destroy goods by means of falsities.

357¹⁹. 'The daughter of Zion' (Jer.vi.23)=the Church.

372⁷. 'The daughter of My people' (Jer.viii.21)=the Church.

395⁸. 'The king's daughters that were virgins' (2 Sam. xiii.18)=the affections of truth, and thence the Church, as may be evident from a thousand places in the Word where are mentioned 'the daughter of a king,' 'the daughter of Zion,' and 'the daughter of Jerusalem'...

wherefore, also, the daughters of a king represented the truths of that affection by their garments, and, in general, by their mantles, which were variegated with pieces.

403¹³. 'Which devoureth thy sons and thy daughters' (Jer. v. 17) = all spiritual affections of truth and of good.

412²⁶. 'The daughter of Tyre' = the affection of the Knowledges of truth and of good.

438³. 'The daughters who will make happy' = the spiritual affections of truth which constitute the Church, and from which comes all internal happiness that is heavenly. Ex.

448⁸. 'Of a daughter, she marcheth upon the wall' = to fight from the truths which are from good against the falsities which are from evil.

453¹⁰. 'The daughters of Judah which shall exult' (Ps. xlviii. 11) = the affections of good and of truth which appertain to those who belong to the Celestial Church.

504³¹. 'The mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother' (Luke xii. 53) = the cupidity of falsity against the affection of truth; and the reverse. 724⁶.

518⁸. 'Dragons and the daughters of the owl' (Is. xliii. 20) = those who know truths and goods only from memory, and do not understand and perceive them; these speak truth without having any idea of it, being entirely dependent upon others.

526¹⁴. 'The daughter of the Chaldeans' (Is. xlvii. 5) = the falsification of truth.

532¹¹. 'The mother' (Luke xii. 53) = the truth of the Church; and 'the daughter,' its good.

555⁷. 'The sons and daughters whom they bare' (Ezek. xxiii. 4) = the falsities and evils of the Church.

586⁴. 'To sacrifice sons and daughters' (Ps. cvi. 37) = to destroy the truths and goods of the Church by evil cupidities; 'sons' = the truths of the Church; and 'daughters,' its goods.

587¹⁰. 'The daughters of the owl' = the affections of falsity.

617³⁰. The consumption of all truth and good is signified by 'they shall eat the flesh of their sons and daughters' (Lev. xxvi. 29). 'Sons' = the truths of the Church, and, in the opposite sense, its falsities; and 'daughters' = the affections of truth and of good, and, in the opposite sense, the cupidities of falsity and of evil; their mutual consumption and extinction is signified by 'eating them.'

624¹⁰. 'Thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword' (Amos vii. 17) = that the truths and goods of the Church will perish by means of the falsities of evil.

637¹¹. 'The daughters of Zion,' and 'the virgins of Jerusalem' (Lam. ii. 10) = those in the Church who are in the affection of good and of truth; and, abstractedly, these affections themselves.

650³⁵. 'The daughters of the owl' = sensuous affections, for the Sensual is affected with and sees truths in the darkness, as an owl sees objects in the night.

653⁴. 'The daughters that were haughty' (Ezek. xvi. 50) = the cupidities which are of (self-love).

654⁴⁴. 'The daughter of Egypt' = the affection of falsity which belongs to such a Church.

—⁶⁸. 'Sons and daughters' (Ezek. xxiii. 25) = the truths and goods of the Church which they will destroy. —⁷⁰.

655⁷. 'To commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab' (Num. xxv. 1) = to adulterate the goods of the Church.

659²¹. 'Sons and daughters' (Jer. xvi. 3) = exterior truths and goods; 'mothers and fathers,' interior truths and goods . . .

687¹¹. 'The daughter of the Chaldeans' = the profanation of truth.

714¹⁸. 'Owls' = those who see falsities as truths; and 'their daughters,' the concupiscences of falsifying truths. —³⁰.

724¹¹. 'Our daughters' (Ps. cxliv. 12) = the affections of truth; which are therefore compared to 'corners cut out in the figure of a palace,' because 'a palace' is the representative of the understanding, in which truths are in their beautiful form, and they are in a beautiful form when they are from the affection of truth.

724²⁰. 'Sons from afar, and daughters from the extremity of the earth': 'sons' = those who are in truths; and 'daughters,' those who are in the affection of them; and, therefore, abstractedly from persons, they = truths and the affections of them.

—²⁵. That all truths together with the affections of them will perish through falsities is signified by 'your sons and your daughters shall fall by the sword' (Ezek. xxiv. 21): 'sons' = truths; 'daughters,' the affections of truth.

734¹⁶. The Church which is in genuine truths is meant by 'the daughter of Zion' (Jer. vi. 2).

811¹⁷. 'Thy sons are carried off into captivity, and thy daughters into captivity' (Jer. xlviii. 46) = that the truths and goods of their Church are shut off by falsities and evils; 'sons' = truths; and 'daughters,' goods.

863³. 'The daughter of Zion' (Lam. ii. 10) = the Church in which the Lord reigns through Divine truth. 1175².

—¹³. See VIRGIN at this ref.

—¹⁵. 'King's daughters' (Ps. xlv.) = the affections of Divine truth . . . 'The daughter of Tyre shall send a gift' = worship by those who are in the Knowledges of truth . . . 'The king's daughter is all glorious within' = the spiritual affection of truth, which is called 'glorious' from the abundance of truth, and 'within' = what is spiritual.

911¹⁴. 'Harvest' and 'bread' (Jer. v. 17) = the truths and goods of the Church nourishing; 'sons and daughters,' the same producing.

919³. 'Careless daughters' (Is. xxxii. 9) = those in the Church who love falsities more than truths.

922². 'The daughter of Judah' (Lam. i. 15) = the Church from the doctrine of truth from the Word.

Daughter-in-law. Nurus.

A. 2466¹⁰. See DAUGHTER at these refs. 4843². —³. 10490⁴.

4818². To lie with a daughter-in-law was a capital offence (Lev.xx.12), and Judah's referring this deed with his daughter-in-law to the levirate law . . . involves this, that his sons by Tamar should be acknowledged as the sons of Er his first-born, who was born of a Canaanite mother . . .

[A.]4843. '(Judah said) to Tamar his daughter-in-law' (Gen.xxxviii.11)=a Church representative of spiritual and celestial things, which is called 'a daughter-in-law' from truth . . . 'A daughter-in-law'=the Spiritual of the Church, or truth. The reason 'a daughter-in-law' has this signification, is that all things of marriage, and all who were from marriage, represented such things as are of the heavenly marriage, thus which are of good and truth . . . Hence, 'a daughter-in-law,' being the wife of a son as a new husband,=the truth of the Church conjoined with good. 9079.

—2. That by 'a daughter-in-law,' in the internal sense of the Word, is signified the truth of the Church adjoined to its good, consequently, in the opposite sense, the falsity of the Church adjoined to its evil. Ill.

4869. 'Because he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law' (ver.16)=that he did not perceive it to be the truth of the Representative Church. 'A daughter-in-law'=the truth of the Church adjoined to its good. The reason it=the truth of the Representative Church, is that by 'Tamar,' who is here 'the daughter-in-law,' is represented the Church representative of spiritual and celestial things.

4903. 'Saying, Tamar thy daughter-in-law hath committed whoredom' (ver.24)=a perception that it is false that there is anything conjugal in the case . . . 'A daughter-in-law'=the truth of the Church.

H. 382a. 'Sons' and 'daughters'=the truths and goods which are procreated; 'sons-in-law,' and 'daughters-in-law,' the conjunctions of these.

—(r). 'A daughter-in-law'=good associated with its truth. Ref.

E. 141¹². 'The daughters-in-law who commit adultery' (Hos.iv.13)=evil conjoined with falsities thence. 324²⁰.

De Conj. 83. They who read the Word without doctrine, as they necessarily fall into many fallacies from the sense of the letter . . . and who have at the same time taken up many falsities and confirmed themselves in them, and who are, consequently, in the conceit of their Own intelligence, produce adultery as of a father with his daughter-in-law.

David. David.

A. 66^e. In the Psalms, under the character of David as a king, in the internal sense, it treats of the Lord.

255^e. 'David' (Ps.lxxxix.3)=the Lord. 2842³. —.

666². 'David' (Is.lv.3)=the Lord.

—⁴. 'David' (Ezek.xxxiv.24)=the Lord. 1038².

—'. 'David' (Ezek.xxxvii.25)=the Lord. 1038³.

1025¹⁰. 'David' (Jer.xxxiii.22)=the Lord.

—'. 'David' (Jer.xxiii.5)=the Lord.

1725³. This is evident in David. 1745².

1888. By 'David' is not meant David, but the Lord. . . . These things were written by the prophets after the time of David, yet it is openly said that he shall be their Prince and King.

2159². 'David' (Is.xxxvii.35)=the Lord, Who, as He was to come, is called 'Servant' as to the Human.

2604. Many of the Jews are there introduced to David, etc.

2649³. 'How, therefore, doth David in spirit call Him Lord?' (Matt.xxii.43): thus as to the flesh He was no longer the Son of David. L.35⁵. T.102².

2761⁵. 'David' (Jer.xvii.25)=the Lord.

2832³. 'David' (Ps.cxxxii.17)=the Lord. 9954¹⁶.

2842¹. 'David' (ver.11)=the Lord. Still, the oath was made to David, because he was of such a character that he believed it to be confirmed concerning himself and his descendants, for David was in the love of himself and his descendants, and therefore believed that (these things) were said about him . . . although they were said about the Lord.

2909⁴. See HEBRON at this ref.

3305⁵. Hence it is manifestly evident, that by 'David,' etc. are not meant these persons, but that, in the supreme sense, they=the Divine spiritual things which are in the Lord, and which are of the Lord in His Kingdom and Church . . . 3881⁴.

3322¹. 'The tent of David' (Amos ix.11)=the Church and worship of the Lord. 4926².

3441⁴. 'David My servant' (Ezek.xxxvii.24) = the Lord as to the Divine Human, and this from Divine truth, which is signified by 'a king,' who here is David.

3881⁷. Truth is signified by 'the house of David' (Zech.xii.7).

4391⁴. 'To set up the fallen tent of David' (Amos ix.11)=to restore the Holy of truth after it has perished; 'David'=the Lord relatively to Divine truth.

4594^e. See BETHLEHEM at these refs. E.449³.

—'. By 'David' is especially represented the Lord as to the Royalty or Divine truth. 5307².

4763⁵. By 'a king,' especially by 'David,' is represented Divine truth.

5044⁸. 'The throne of David'=the Heaven of the Lord.

5313⁴. 'The throne of David' (Luke i.32) is not the kingdom David had . . . but the kingdom in Heaven; wherefore by 'David' is not signified David, but the Lord's Divine Royalty; and by 'throne,' the Divine truth which proceeds, and which constitutes the Lord's Kingdom.

5335^e. As David was to represent the Lord as to the royalty, he did not begin to reign (until he was 'a son of thirty years') (2 Sam.v.4). Ex.

8495⁴. 'To sit upon the throne of David' (Jer.xvii.25) = that these things are from the Lord.

8770^e. They who know the things mentioned above may also know why somewhat of the priesthood was granted to David.

9163^e. 'The house of David,' and 'the tent of David' = the Church of the Lord; for, in the prophetic Word, 'David'=the Lord.

9548^e. David is called 'the lamp of Israel' (2 Sam. xxi.17) . . . because 'a king' = the Divine truth which is from the Lord; and 'David,' the Lord as to Divine truth, from which come faith, intelligence, and wisdom.

9954¹⁵. 'David' (Ps. lxxxix. 20) = the Lord.

—¹⁶. Hence it is evident, that the Lord as to His Divine Human is here (Ps. cxxxii. 10) meant by 'David,' 'the anointed of Jehovah.'

10217³. 'To number' = to arrange in order and dispose, and as it belongs to the Lord alone to arrange in order and dispose the truths and goods of faith and of love with everyone in the Church and in Heaven, therefore, when this is done by man, as it was done by David through Joab, it = the ordering and disposition of such things by man and not by the Lord; which is not to order and dispose, but to destroy. P. 244.

10249⁵. By 'the seed of David' (Ps. lxxxviii. 4) is not meant the posterity from David as a father . . . but by 'David' here, as elsewhere, is meant the Lord as to Divine truth; thus by his 'seed' are meant those who are regenerated by the Lord, and, in the abstract sense, those things which are from the Lord with them . . .

H. 526⁴. The Angels know where David, etc. are: they are held in no higher estimation than others. The reason they are mentioned with honour in the Word, is that by them in the internal sense is meant the Lord . . . by 'David' the Lord as to the Divine Royalty.

L. 43. That the Lord is called 'David.' III.

44. He who knows that the Lord is meant by 'David,' may know why David so frequently wrote about the Lord in his Psalms when he wrote about himself. III.

S. 71. See AARON at this ref.

P. 245. David represented the Lord Who was to come into the world; and Solomon, the Lord after His coming. —^e.

R. 174. 'He that hath the key of David, and openeth and no one shutteth, and shutteth and no one openeth' (Rev. iii. 7) = Who alone has omnipotence to save. 'David' = the Lord as to Divine truth. . . 'The key of David' has a similar signification to the keys of Peter. . . . The key of David given to Eliakim (Is. xxii. 21, 22) has also a similar signification.

266. 'Which is of the tribe of Judah, the root of David' (Rev. v. 5) = (that the Lord subjugated the Hells) through the Divine good united to the Divine truth in His Human. . . By 'David' is meant the Lord as to the Divine truth of the Divine wisdom.

954. 'I am the Root and the offspring of David' (Rev. xxii. 16) = that He is that Lord Who was born in the world, and thus the Lord in His Divine Human. From this He is called 'the Root and the Offspring of David,' and also 'the Branch of David' (Jer. xxiii. 5; xxxiii. 15).

D. 463. On the same side, lower down, is David, who receives nobody that comes to him; but those who come he sends from himself to Jesus; thus he lives in heavenly rest, and in happiness.

2621. On David. . . When I was reading about the adultery of David with Bathsheba, and about his cruelty to the sons of Ammon, there was long presented, for days, one whom they called David, with whom I spoke; and I supposed that he could have been among the upright; but if it is he, or if the one who is with me presents his person . . . then is he such a leader of adulterers and of the cruel as derive from adulteries and cruelty the highest delight; and, moreover, he is acute or pernicious, because his phantasy goes deeper than others. I have heard that during his life by what he wrote in the Psalms he meant himself, and not so much the Messiah, Whom he indeed knew; but whether he believed Him to be Jehovah the God of Israel, I do not yet know. See 2 Sam. xii. 31. 2656.

2638. David learned (this cruelty) from such Spirits, or from his companions who had been in visions . . .

2640. These are the three kinds of instruments which the infernals seem to themselves to use with the greatest delight, whom David taught when he was in his cruelty: hence it may be evident of what quality he was: and as to his Psalms, he did not speak the least word, but the Lord's spirit through him, because he was a king, and of such a character; but he had applied to himself whatever is said there about the Messiah and His Kingdom.

2657. There is no harm in their calling (David) a man of God, and holy. Ex.

3346. (The delight of these inhabitants of Venus in plundering) was communicated to me . . . Hence the cruelty of David.

3656. On David and a Pope. It was shown that David desired to be the highest in Heaven, for such a cupidity cleaves to him from his understanding himself in the Psalms. Sometimes he is permitted to go up on high, and so suppose himself to be in the highest Heaven. Des.

3657. It was also shown how he subjugates those who are in the interior sphere of Spirits, and compels them to worship him as a god. The pope who was lately with me again came among those who are above the head . . . and was then with David, who wanted to reduce him to submission, so that he should worship him as a god; for David had previously declared that he was a god, when he was in the highest, and it was seen and represented . . . that those who would not acknowledge him a god in that highest he threw headlong down. Des. It then came out of his phantasy that he might carry the Lord down to the Lower Earth, to keep Him there. Such is his character when he goes up into the highest, and declares himself to be a god: and as the popes also declare themselves to be god on earth, he of whom I spoke before was united with David. But as the pope was in the persuasion that he was a god, and David also was in the persuasion that he was a god . . . they strove together; but David conquered, because he was not only in persuasion, but was also in cruelty, and thus in the persuasion of subjugating . . . and when the pope refused to yield, David heard or perceived that he would profess Christ . . . and then, being in the persuasion of cruelty, he treated him in his own way, as he had treated the gentiles . . .

3658. When the pope complained of these torments, David said to him that he was David, and that he kept the Lord bound, and that only one was to reign in Heaven . . . On hearing this, the pope said that David was holy ; he therefore denied the Lord and followed David . . . but when he came into the pope's persuasion, that if he denied the Lord whose vicar he was, he would be nobody . . . David noticed it, for in that state he can instantly perceive the persuasions of another, wherefore he turned him into a cloud . . . in which condition he supposed himself to be nothing.

[D.] 3659. After this, as David wanted to be a god, he betook himself among the interior Spirits . . . and subjugated them, because he was in the persuasion that he was a god, and could subjugate everybody by cruelty; such as he had during his life, wherefore he subjugated those interior Spirits who would not acknowledge him as a god. Des.

3660. When he supposed that he had thus subjugated Heaven, he feared to go further . . . where the interior good Spirits begin, because he knew from former experience that he could not endure their sphere ; but still . . . he rushed thither . . . and then began to be tortured, and to be sensible of a cadaverous stench, so that he could no longer endure it ; if he advanced further it seemed to him that he would perish ; wherefore he was cast down thence into the Lower Earth. It was perceived that this had often taken place before, and that he had been thus cast down as soon as he came into the sphere of angelic Spirits. I perceive from this, that he dared go thither while he was in the persuasion that the Lord was bound by him . . . yet from his suffering so miserably while there, he called the Lord's Heaven Hell, because when he came there he came into direful torments, because into a sphere contrary to adultery and cruelty. But when he reached the Lower Earth, he was suddenly projected upwards, from some persuasion . . .

3664. It was observed that above those to whom David strove to come, there are Spirits still more subtle, for from the fact that Spirits spoke through him during the life of the body, David is of such a character that he is able to strive to come to them. (These Spirits described.)

3665. Such Spirits, and David too, although among the evil he seems so acute . . . are yet grosser than all the rest ; for in the sphere of the good they become more excrementitious, nay, more cadaverous than others . . . as was said to David, and thus to them.

3674. On David. I spoke to David, who is now above the head, and who, when there, supposes himself to be more subtle than others, because the Holy Spirit spoke through him. He openly confessed that he did not understand what he wrote ; he had indeed thought that it contained some secrets, but what, he knew not ; also that he knew that a certain one was to come into the world, but had no further knowledge about him. This he . . . as it were attested ; and also that he had applied each and all things to himself and the Jews. He said that as a Spirit spoke through him as he through me, he was of the same character ; but it was permitted to say to him that he had no Knowledge of the Lord, thus no Knowledges of faith, and therefore did not know the interior things of the Word, and so had remained solely in the sense of the letter, which was a very different thing ; and that Spirits had spoken through him things which he did not perceive . . . To this he could make no reply . . .

3679. It was said of (this Spirit) that he was of such a quality as to freely suffer the persons of others to be induced upon him, as that of David, and thus act not only their persons, but also their shameful deeds ; and it was said that he became such from the actuality not only of David, but of any other one. Such Spirits, especially when they suffer infamous persons to be induced upon them, after a while are such that they do not know otherwise than that they are those very persons, and thus persuade not others only but themselves too that they are such.

3682. David, being himself wicked, and the subject of the wicked . . . for he has nothing but adulteries and cruelties in his disposition, strives and plots without conscience. It was evident that he was a subject of the deceitful above the head, as they began to exert their wickedness more openly than before, in order that the blame might be laid on David ; wherefore David was wrapped up in the veil and let down towards the lower regions, but by means of the persuasions and phantasies infused into him by the diabolic crew on high. He struggled for an hour, with indescribable pertinacity. Phantasies were constantly infused into him, which he received with his persuasion, and thus with the veil. With a diminution of the veil, or without the veil, he cast himself in all directions, now below, now midway, now upwards in front, now close above the head, now behind the head ; which was only a phantasy with an obstinate persuasion. 3688.

3683. After a while he attempted to act the python . . . standing on my head . . . Whether this pythonic practice belonged to David during his life, it is not allowable to infer from this . . .

3684. He was afterwards told that he is like a dog, and was treated by others as if he were a dog, because he was their subject, which was confirmed by the deceitful above the head . . . But as this was contrary to his sphere of authority . . . he was indignant, and was thus wrapped up in as it were a misty veil of authority, and let down . . . They who spoke thus to David were those who most greatly boast that they are the Holy Spirit. 3688.

3851. The Spirits above the head formed a design to destroy me . . . I perceived that they wanted to act by means of innocent persons, under whose persons they presented those whom they evoked. They evoked David also, who appeared before me in his own face and body, furnished with his instruments, but immersed in a dark cloud.

4111. Such punishments last long, for years and ages, as with the dragon, with David, which punishments are attended with vastation, yet a last vastation follows. Des.

4462. See SIREN at this ref.

5618. See WORD at this ref.

D. Min. 4603°. It was said that many of the saints are in Hell, being pre-eminently magicians, and there were mentioned Anthony, Francis Xavier, David.

E. 19. 'David'=Divine truth in the Spiritual Kingdom, which is called the Lord's Royalty, therefore, in the supreme sense, he=the Lord as to that truth and as to that Kingdom; on which account it is said of David that he shall come and reign over the Sons of Israel (Ezek.xxxvii.24,25; Hos.iii.5). 62³.

205. 'He that hath the key of David' (Rev.iii.7)=Who has power through Divine truth. . . 'David'=the Lord as to Divine truth. The reason 'David' in the Word means the Lord, is that 'kings' in the Word represent the Lord as to Divine truth . . . and king David especially, because he took great care of the things of the Church, and also wrote the Psalms . . . The reason it is said 'he that hath the key of David,' is that 'David' represented the Lord as to Divine truth, and all power in the Heavens and on earth resides with the Lord from Divine good through Divine truth . . .

—². That 'David' in the Word=the Lord. Ill.

—¹. It is said that 'they shall seek Jehovah their God, and David their king' (Hos.iii.5), because 'Jehovah'=the Lord as to Divine good, which is the Divine being; and 'David the king,' the Lord as to Divine truth, which is the Divine manifesting.

—³. 'The house of David, and the inhabitant of Jerusalem' (Zech.xii.7)=the Spiritual Kingdom, which is constituted of those in Heaven and earth who are in Divine truth. 483¹¹.

—⁴. 'I have sworn to David My servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever; and build up thy throne to all generations' (Ps.lxxxix.4) is not applicable to David, whose seed and throne have not been established for ever . . . but 'the seed of David' means those who from the Lord are in truths from good, and, in the abstract sense, the truths themselves which are from good. . . That it is the Lord as to Divine truth, or that it is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, which is meant by 'David,' is evident, for it is said, 'In the heavens thou shalt confirm thy truth, and the heavens shall confess thy truth in the congregation of the saints.'

—⁶. As David represented the Lord as to Divine truth, the Lord willed to be born from the house of David, and also to be called 'the Son,' 'the Root,' and 'the Offspring of David' . . . but when the Lord put off the human from the mother, and put on the Human from the Father . . . He was no longer that 'Son,' as is meant by His words to the Pharisees (Matt.xxii).

253⁵. 'The throne of David'=Heaven as to Divine truth.

310. 'Of the tribe of Judah, the root of David'=through Divine good united to Divine truth in His Human . . . 'The root of David'=the Divine truth; for 'David'=the Lord as to Divine truth.

—⁸. The Lord as to Divine truth is called 'the root of David' from the fact that all Divine truth is from Him, as also all things come forth and subsist from their root.

316⁸. 'David' (Ps.lxxxix.20)=the Lord as to Divine truth . . . As 'David' means the Lord as to the Divine truth which proceeds from His Divine Human, it is said 'David My servant,' for 'servant' . . . is predicated of truth. 375²⁰.

—⁹. 'David' here, too (Ps.cxxxii.17)=the Lord as to Divine truth; 'to make his horn to bud'=the multiplication of Divine truth in the Heavens and on earth by Him; wherefore it is also said 'I will dispose a lamp for Mine anointed.'

375²⁰. Hence it is evident, that the Lord as to His Divine Human is here meant by 'David the anointed of Jehovah' (Ps.cxxxii.17).

376²⁴. 'The kings that sit upon David's throne' (Jer.xiii.13)=those who would otherwise be in Divine truths.

392¹². These things are said of David (Ps.cxxxii.11), but 'David,' here, means the Lord.

401⁸. These things are said of the Lord, and of Heaven and His Church, for by 'David' (Ps.lxxxix.25), who is here treated of in the sense of the letter, is meant the Lord.

409⁵. As by 'David' in the Word is meant the Lord as to Divine truth, and Divine truth serves, where 'David' means the Lord, he is called 'a servant.' Ill.

444⁶. 'There shall not be cut off from David a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel' (Jer.xxxiii.17)=that then the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord shall perpetually reign in the Church. . . 'Then may also My covenant become of no effect with David My servant, that he should not have a son to reign' (ver.21)=that then they would have no Divine truth . . . 'So will I multiply the seed of David My servant' (ver.22)=the multiplication of Divine truth . . . with those who have conjunction with the Lord.

453¹². 'The house of David'=the Church as to the truths of doctrine.

555¹⁰. 'David' (Zech.xii.12)=the Divine truth.

650⁵¹. 'A shepherd, My servant David, whom Jehovah will stir up' (Ezek.xxxiv.23,24) means the Lord . . .

684¹⁰. By 'David' in the Word is meant the Lord as to Divine truth, or as a King.

—¹³. That by 'David' here (Ps.lxxxviii) is not meant David, but the Lord as to His Royalty, which is the Divine Spiritual, and is called Divine truth, is very evident from the things here said about David . . .

—²⁹. 'David' as 'a servant'=the Lord's Human as to Divine truth; and 'anointed'=this united to Divine good. . . 'In Zion I will make the horn of David to bud' (Ps.cxxxii.17)=the power of Divine truth from Him in Heaven and the Church.

700²⁶. Zion, where David was=the inmost of the Church, which is called its Celestial.

—²⁸. David's dancing (2 Sam.vi.14) represented the gladness and joy which result from the affection of truth and good from the Lord through the influx of Divine truth, which is signified by the ark. . . The dancing of David . . . represented joy of heart from the affection of spiritual and celestial good.

701⁷. By 'David' here (Ps.lxxxix.3,28) is meant the Lord as to the Royalty, Who is called 'chosen' from good, and 'servant' from truth; 'to make a covenant, and to swear to him'=the union of His Divine with His Human . . . 'I will establish thy seed even to eternity'

=the eternity of the Divine truth from Him; 'mercy will I keep for him to eternity'=the eternity of the Divine good from Him . . . This is the sense of these words, when, instead of David, there is understood the Lord as to His Divine Human and His Royalty . . .

[E.701]¹⁸. By 'David who shall pasture them, and who shall be a prince in the midst of them' (Ezek.xxxiv.23) is meant the Lord as to Divine truth, which is called 'a servant' from its serving.

—¹⁹. 'My servant David shall be king over them' (Ezek.xxxvii.24): here, also, by 'David' is meant the Lord; for it is evident that it was not David who was to come and be their king and shepherd . . .

768¹⁸. That this (infernal falsity) shall not have dominion in the Lord's Church, in which there is Divine truth celestial, is signified by 'not anyone of his seed shall sit upon the throne of David, and have dominion any longer in Judah' (Jer.xxii.30).

781¹². The reason power was given to David to smite a lion and a bear, which took a small cattle from the flock (1 Sam.xvii.34), was that by 'David' was represented the Lord as to Divine truth, by means of which they who belong to His Church are instructed. . . 'A lion' here=the power of infernal falsity against Divine truth . . . and 'a bear,' the power of falsity against Divine truth natural; 'a small cattle from the flock'=those who are of the Lord's Church; and as these things are represented, power was given to David to smite the bear and the lion, by which was represented and signified the Lord's power of protecting His own in the Church by means of His Divine truth from the falsities of evil which are from Hell . . . By 'Goliath,' who was a Philistine . . . are signified those who are in truths without good . . . and 'uncircumcised'=those who are in filthy corporeal loves . . . Hence it is evident what the victory of David over Goliath represented.

799⁹. That the Lord will reign (in Heaven and the Church) through Divine truth from His Divine good, is signified by 'he shall sit thereon in truth in the tabernacle of David' (Is.xvi.5); by 'David' is meant the Lord as to the Royalty, which is Divine truth; and by 'his tabernacle' is signified Divine good.

850². The reason 'Mount Zion'=Heaven and the Church where the Lord reigns through His Divine truth, is from the fact that Zion was the city which David built, and in which he afterwards dwelt, and was thence called the city of David; and as by 'David' was represented the Lord as to the Royalty, which is Divine truth, 'Zion'=Heaven and the Church where the Lord reigns through Divine truth.

946. The Lord's Spiritual Kingdom is signified by the 'throne of David' (Is.ix.7).

Davus. Davus. Coro.54^e.

Dawn. Aurora.

A. 920. When (the most ancient people) perceived the morning they did not perceive the actual morning of the day, but the heavenly principle which is an image of the morning and the dawn in minds; hence the Lord is called 'the morning,' 'the east,' and 'the Day-spring.'

1726. In a state of peace, the celestial and spiritual things of the Lord are as in their dawn and spring, for peace is as the dawn in early morning, and as the spring in spring-time; dawn and spring cause everything . . . to be full of joy and gladness; each thing derives an affection from the general nature of dawn and spring . . . 2780.

1807². When he sees the dawn of day, he does not think about the dawn, but about the origin of all things from the Lord, and their advance into the day of wisdom.

1837. The Lord's Church is compared to the times of the day; its first period to sun-rise, or to dawn and morning . . . 2905.

2405. 'As the dawn ascended' (Gen.xix.15)=when the Lord's Kingdom draws nigh . . . Daybreak is here expressed by 'as the dawn ascended,' and it=the time when the upright are separated from the evil . . . This time or state is called 'the dawn,' because then the Lord comes, or, what is the same, His Kingdom then draws nigh. Such is really the case with the good, for there then beams forth with them an appearance of morning daybreak or dawn; hence, in the Word, the Lord's Advent is compared to 'the morning' . . . as in Hosea: 'as the dawn is His going forth' (vi.3) . . . His Advent, or drawing nigh, is here compared to 'the dawn.' 2441.

—³. 'The day of Jehovah cometh . . . as the dawn spread upon the mountains' (Joel ii.1,2): here, also, it treats of the Lord's Advent, and His Kingdom.

—⁴. 'From the womb from the dawn' (Ps.cx.3)=the Lord Himself, thus the Divine love from which He fought.

—⁶. In like manner, the fire upon the altar was to be kindled 'every dawn' (Lev.vi.9,12).

3458. In the supreme sense, 'morning' and 'dawn'=the Lord; in the internal sense, the Celestial of His love; hence also, a state of peace.

3579⁴. By the morning or dawn, when the dew descends, are signified states of innocence and peace.

3696². After combats or temptations, man comes into this state (of peace), which is as the state of spring that follows autumn and winter, or as the state of dawn that follows evening and night: a state of peace in spiritual things is like one of spring and dawn in natural ones.

4275. 'Until the ascending of the dawn' (Gen.xxxii.24)=before the conjunction of the natural good which is signified by Jacob with the Celestial Spiritual or the Divine good of truth. In the supreme sense, 'the dawn'=the Lord; in the representative sense, His Kingdom; and in the universal sense, the Celestial of love; here, the Celestial Spiritual; for, when the dawn ascended, Jacob was named Israel, by which is signified the celestial spiritual man.

4283. 'He said, Let me go, because the dawn ascendeth' (ver.26)=that temptation ceased when conjunction was at hand. . . 'The dawn'=the conjunction of the natural good which is signified by Jacob with the Celestial Spiritual or the Divine good of truth. The reason the wrestling commenced before the dawn ascended, and ceased after it had ascended . . . is that the times of the day . . . signified states; here, states of conjunction through temptations, for when there takes place the conjunction of the internal man with the external, it is then dawn to him, because he then enters into a spiritual or celestial state; and then, too, if he is in such a state that he can perceive it there appears to him a light like that of the dawn: otherwise, his Intellectual is illuminated, and becomes to him as when one awakes from sleep in the early morning while the dawn is first enlightening and beginning the day.

4289. 'Let me go, because the dawn ascendeth' (id.)= that the representative would depart from the descendants of Jacob before they came into the representatives of the Land of Canaan . . . 'Dawn'=when they came into the Land of Canaan, thus into the representative of a Church there. Ex.

4300. 'The dawn ascendeth'=when conjunction is at hand, or is commencing.

5662². Peace in Heaven is like spring on earth, or like the dawn, which do not affect by means of sensible varieties, but by means of a universal pleasantness flowing into each thing that is perceived, and which imbues with pleasantness not only the perception itself, but every single object. 8455.

H. 289. This peace is like the morning or dawn in spring time: the night is past; all things of Earth live anew at the rising of the sun; and the scent of vegetation is diffused by the descending dew of the skies; and the soft breath of spring gives fertility to the soil, and fills all minds with pleasantness. The reason is that the morning or dawn in the spring time corresponds to the state of peace of the Angels in Heaven.

P. 257². 'How art thou fallen from heaven, Lucifer, son of the dawn' (Is. xiv. 12) . . . It is from this primeval state of (the first preachers of the Christian Church) that Lucifer is called 'the son of the dawn.'

M. 382. From the transparence of which comes the dawn and bloom of her life.

T. 112. I fell into meditation respecting the fables of the ancients, that they feigned Aurora with wings of silver feathers, and in her face displaying the lustre of gold.

571². These two states (that is, reformation and regeneration) may be compared to the progression of light and heat in the days of the spring time; the first to daybreak—diluculo—or cock-crowing, the second to the morning and dawn.

D. 2294. This is the reason why the states of Spirits are varied, so that there may be compared to them the changes . . . of the day; dawn, noon, evening, night; and again dawn.

E. 1029¹². Lucifer is called 'the son of the dawn' from the intiamant of the light or of day; for 'the dawn'=the Church at its beginning.

Dawn. See DAYBREAK.

Dawn. Illucescere.

A. 2041². Celestial love . . . begins to appear, nay, to dawn in his interior man.

5740. 'The morning dawned' (Gen. xlv. 3)=a state of enlightenment.

Day. Dies.

See SABBATH, TODAY, and TOMORROW; and also under TIME and THREE.

A. 6. The six days or times, which are so many successive states of man's regeneration, are in general as follows. 62.

16. The most ancient time . . . is called in the Prophets 'the days of antiquity,' and also 'the days of eternity.'

21. All things of the Lord are compared to 'day,' because they belong to the light; and all things proper to man are compared to 'night,' because they belong to darkness.

23. Nothing is more common in the Word than for 'day' to be taken for time itself. III.

— As 'day' is taken for time, it is also taken for the state of that time. III.

24. After the spirit of God . . . has brought forth into day the Knowledges of truth and good . . .

28. Concerning the man who is to be regenerated, in Zechariah: 'That shall be one day known to Jehovah; not day, nor night; at the time of evening there shall be light' (xiv. 7).

30. Love is the great luminary which has dominion 'by day' (Gen. i. 16); faith from love is the lesser luminary which has dominion 'by night.' 32. 709.

34^c. 'The days of affliction' (Mark xiii. 19)=his miserable state in the other life.

37. It is said that the luminaries shall be 'for signs, and for stated times, and for days, and for years' (Gen. i. 14) . . . There are changes of spiritual and celestial things, in the universal, and in the singulars, which are compared to the changes of the days and the years: the changes of the days are from morning to noon, thence to evening, and through night to morning. (See CHANGE—vicis.)

38. 'To have dominion in the day, and in the night' (ver. 18): 'day' means good; 'night,' evil; wherefore goods are called works of the day, and evils, works of the night.

70^c. There scarcely intervene days after the decease of the body before they are in the other life.

74. The celestial man is 'the seventh day, in which the Lord rests.'

221. 'The aura or breath of the day' (Gen. iii. 8)=the time when the Church still had a residue of perception . . . The most ancient people compared the states of the Church to the times of the day and night; to the times of the day while it was still in light . . . The Lord also calls a state of faith 'day,' and a state of no faith 'night'; as in John: 'I must work the works of Him that sent Me while it is day; the night cometh, when no one can work' (ix. 4). The states of man's regeneration are also called 'days' in Gen. i.

267^c. 'All the days of thy life' (Gen. iii. 17)=even to the end of that Church. 271.

347. 'The end of the days' (Gen. iv. 3)=the advance of time.

349^c. 'The days of eternity' (Mal. iii. 4)=the Most Ancient Church; 'the ancient years'=the Ancient Church. 2906⁶.

[A.]487. 'Days'(Gen.v.4)=times and states in general. It is very common in the Word to call all time 'days'; wherefore, also, the states of times in general are also signified by 'days'; and when 'years' are added, by the times of the years are signified the quality of the states, thus states in special.

488. 'Days'=states in general; and 'years,' states in special. Ill.

—³. In the sense of the letter it cannot but seem that 'day'=time; but in the internal sense it=state: the Angels who are in the internal sense of the Word, do not know what time is . . . thus not what a day and a year are; but they know what states are, and their changes. Exampl. 493.

862. 'It came to pass at the end of forty days'(Gen.viii.6)=the duration of the former state, and the beginning of the following one. . . As the state after temptations is here treated of, it is said 'forty days,' but not 'forty nights;' the reason is that charity now begins to appear, which in the Word is compared to day, and is called 'day'; and the faith which precedes, being not yet so closely conjoined with charity, is compared to night, and is called 'night.'

893². Every entire period is marked out in the Word by a day, a week, a month, or a year, even if it were a hundred or a thousand years; as 'the days' mentioned in Gen.i, by which are signified the periods of the regeneration of the man of the Most Ancient Church. In the internal sense 'a day' and 'a year' have no other signification than time, and as they=time, they=state. Ill. 9037.

931. 'Still in all the days of the earth'(Gen.viii.22)=all time; for 'a day'=time . . .

936. 'Day and night'(id.)=the state of a regenerate man as to intellectual things, the alternations of which are those of day and night. Ex.

1250⁶. The Most Ancient Church and the Ancient Churches are 'the days of eternity,' and 'the years of generation and generation'(Deut.xxxii.7).

1335. 'A year' in the Word, as 'a day,' and 'a week'=a whole period, less or greater, of fewer or of more years; nay, abstractedly, a period.

1807². See DAWN at these refs. 1837. 2294.

1825. The last time of the Church is therefore signified by 'the third day,' 'the third week,' etc.

1830⁵. 'The day of Jehovah'(Zeph.i.14)=the last time and state of the Church. 1860³, Ill.

2103. 'In the selfsame day'(Gen.xvii.23)=that state which has been spoken of. 'Day,' in the internal sense, =state.

2111. 'In the selfsame day'(ver.26)=then. 'Day'=time and state. Refs.

2119. As soon as his bodily things grow cold, which takes place after some days, he is resuscitated by the Lord . . .

2199. 'Entering into days'(Gen.xviii.11)=that the time was at hand. 'A day' in the Word, as also 'a year, nay, in general, time,=state; therefore, here, 'to enter into days'=to enter into that state in which He would put off the human; thus, that the time was at hand.

2323. The states of the Church are in the Word compared to the times of the year, and to the times of the day . . . namely, its noon, evening, night, and morning . . .

2353¹. 'I must work the works of Him that sent Me while it is day' . . . 'Day'=the time and state when there are good and truth; 'night,' when there are evil and falsity.

2405³. 'The third day'(Hos.vi.2)=the judgment, or the Advent of the Lord; thus the drawing nigh of His Kingdom. 2788². —³, Ill.

2649. 'In the day when he weaned Isaac'(Gen.xxi.8)=a state of separation. 'Day'=state.

2726. 'Days'=the state of the thing treated of.

2788. 'In the third day'(Gen.xxii.4)=what is complete, and the beginning of sanctification. 'Day' in the Word=state.

2906⁶. 'Seventy years'(Is.xxiii.15)=an entire period, from the beginning of the Church's existence until it expires, which also is 'the days of one king.'

—⁶. 'The days of old' and 'the years of the ages'(Ps.lxxvii.5)=(the Most Ancient and the Ancient) Churches.

3016. 'Abraham being old came to days'(Gen.xxiv.1)=when the state was at hand that the Lord's Human should become Divine. . . 'Day'=state. Refs.

3176. 'A day or ten, afterwards thou shalt go'(Gen.xxiv.55)=a state of departure which appears to them full. 'Day'=state.

3251. 'These are the days of the years of the lives of Abraham which he lived'(Gen.xxv.7)=the representative state of the Lord as to the essential Divine . . . 'Days' and 'years'=states.

3298. 'Her days were fulfilled to bring forth(ver.24) the first state of effect. 'Days'=states.

3325⁸. The reason it should be seven days with its mother(Ex.xxii.30), was that 'the seventh day' signified the celestial man; and the reason why on the eighth day it was to be given to Jehovah, was that 'the eighth day'=what is continuous from a new beginning; namely, what is continuous of love.

3390. 'It came to pass, because the days were prolonged to him'(Gen.xxvi.8)=a state of reception. . . 'Days'=states.

3419. 'The days of Abraham his father'(ver.18)=time and state antecedent as to truths. . . 'Days'=time and state. Refs.

3462. 'It came to pass in that day'(ver.32)=the state (of doctrine).

3467. 'Even to this day'(ver.33)=the perpetuity of the state. 4304. 4316.

3498. 'I know not the day of my death'(Gen.xxvii.2)=life in the Natural. 'Day'=state . . . Thus by 'the day of death' is signified a state of resuscitation to life.

3607. 'The days of mourning'(ver.41)=the inversion of the state.

3613. 'Tarry with him some days' (ver.44)=what is successive. . . 'Days'=times and states.

3703^s. 'Days upon the land' (Ex.xx.12)=states of good thence in the Lord's Kingdom. 'Days'=states.

3755. 'Those days' (Matt.xxv.19) = the states in which the Church would then be.

—^e. 'The days being shortened' (ver.22)=a state of removal.

3785. 'Behold, as yet the day is great' (Gen.xxix.7) that the state was now advancing.

3814. 'He dwelt with him a month of days' (Gen.xxix.14)=a new state of life. . . 'A month of days'=a new state. . . When a year, month, or day is mentioned in the singular, it=a whole state, thus the end of the former and the beginning of the following one.

3827. 'They were in his eyes as some days in his loving her' (ver.20)=a state of love. . . 'Days'=states.

3830. 'Because my days are fulfilled that I may come to her' (ver.21)=that now is the state. 'Days'=states.

3941. 'Reuben went in the days of harvest' (Gen.xxx.14)=faith as to its state of love and charity. 'Days'=states.

4010. 'He put a way of three days between himself and Jacob' (ver.36) = their state quite separated. . . 'Days'=states.

4060. 'Immediately after the affliction of those days' (Matt.xxiv.29)=the state of the Church as to the truth which is of faith. . . 'Days'=states.

4119. 'It was told Laban on the third day' (Gen.xxxi.22)=the end of conjunction. 'The third day'=what is last, and also what is complete, thus the end, and also the beginning; for the end of a state of conjunction is the beginning of the following state, which is one of separation, which state is also here signified by 'the third day.'

4175. 'In the day the heat devoured me, and the cold in the night' (ver.40)=temptations. . . 'Day'=a state of faith or truth, which is then at its height; and 'night' a state of no faith or truth.

4334. 'Of that day and hour knoweth no one' (Matt.xxiv.36)=that the state of the Church at that time would not appear to anyone, either on earth or in Heaven. By 'day and hour' here are not meant day and hour, or time, but the state as to good and truth.

4387. 'Esau returned in that day to his way to Seir' (Gen.xxxiii.16)=the state of Divine natural good at that time to which the goods of truth were adjoined. 'Day'=state.

4495. 'It came to pass on the third day' (Gen.xxxiv.25)=what is continuous even to the end. 'The third day'=what is complete from beginning to end, thus also what is continuous. Ex. and Ill.

4548. 'Who answered me in the day of my straitness' (Gen.xxxv.3)=in a state in which he preferred truth to good. 'Day'=state.

4616. 'And the days of Isaac were' (ver.28)=the state now of the Divine Rational. 'Days'=states.

4620. 'Old and full of days' (ver.29)=what is new of life. . . 'Full of days'=a full state.

4780. 'He mourned over his son many days' (Gen.xxxvii.34)=a state of mourning for destroyed good and truth. . . 'Days'=states; here, states of great mourning, because it is said 'many days.'

4850. 'The days were multiplied' (Gen.xxxviii.12)=a change of state. . . For 'day,' or time, in the internal sense, is state.

4901^s. There are no days and years there, because the Sun there . . . is always rising and never sets.

4926^s. 'To build according to the days of eternity' (Amos ix.11)=according to the state of the Church in ancient times; that state, and that time, in the Word, are called 'the days of eternity,' and 'the days of an age,' and also those 'of generation and generation.'

5000. 'She spake to Joseph day by day' (Gen.xxxix.10)=thought concerning that thing. . . 'Day by day,' or every day=intensely.

5089. 'They were for days in custody' (Gen.xl.4)=that they were a long time in a state of rejection. 'Days'=states; here, therefore, 'for days'=a long time in a state.

5122. 'The three shoots are three days' (ver.12)=continuous derivations even to the last. . . 'Days'=states.

5123. 'Yet within three days' (ver.13)=then what is new. . . 'Days'=states. . . Hence it is evident that 'three days'=a complete state; consequently, 'within three days,' or after three days,=a new state; for after a state is completed a new one commences.

5153. 'Are three days' (ver.18)=even to the last.

5154. 'Yet within three days' (ver.19)=that which is in the last.

5159. 'It came to pass on the third day' (ver.20)=in the last. 'The third day'=the last state; for 'day'=state.

5265. Hence the seventh day was made holy.

5270^e. Wherefore, in the representative Church the days commenced in the evening,

5360^s. This state (of desolation and vastation) is called 'the great day of Jehovah,' 'the day of wrath' and 'of His vengeance,' 'the day of darkness' and 'of thick darkness,' 'of cloud,' and 'of dimness,' 'the day of visitation,' also 'the day when the earth will perish,' thus 'the last day,' and 'the day of judgment;' and as they have not understood the internal sense of the Word they have hitherto supposed that it is the day when the earth will perish. . . not knowing that by 'day' here is signified state, and by 'the earth,' the Church; thus by 'the day when the earth will perish,' the state when the Church will be destroyed.

5458. 'Joseph said to them on the third day' (Gen.xlii.18)=the perception of the Celestial of the Spiritual concerning those truths separated from itself, when fulfilment has taken place. . . 'In the third day'=the last state when there comes a new one, thus when fulfilment has taken place.

5612. 'I shall sin against thee in all days' (Gen.xliii.9)=that the Church will no longer possess any good. . . 'In all days'=in perpetuity, thus no longer.

5798^s. The last time of the Church and its destruction, is called 'the day of Jehovah's anger.'

[A.] 6000³. 'Day' (John ix.4) = truth from good; 'night,' falsity from evil. It is the first time of the Church which is meant by 'day,' for truth is then received because they are in good; and it is the last time which is signified by 'night,' for then nothing of truth is received because they are not in good.

6093. 'How many are the days of the years of thy life?' (Gen.xlvii.8)=concerning the state of the natural life from the spiritual. 'Days,' and also 'years'=states.

6095. 'The days of the years of my sojournings' (ver.9)=concerning what is successive of life. 'Days' and 'years'=states.

6097. 'Few and evil have been the days of the years of my life' (id.)=that the state of the natural life is full of temptations. 'Days' and 'years'=states.

6098. 'And have not attained to the days of the years of the life of my fathers' (id.)=that he was not raised to the state of their life. 'Day' and 'years of life'=states of the spiritual life.

6165. 'Even to this day' (Gen.xlvii.26)=to eternity.

6175. 'The day of Jacob, the years of his life, was seven years and a hundred and forty years' (ver.28)=the general state and its quality.

6176. 'The days of Israel drew near for dying' (ver.29)=the state immediately before regeneration. . . 'Days'=states.

6278. 'From then even to this day' (Gen.xlviii.15)=continually. 'To-day,' and 'to this day'=what is perpetual and eternal. . .

6298. 'He blessed them in this day' (Gen.xlviii.20)=foresight and providence to eternity. . . 'In this day,' or to-day=what is eternal.

6337. 'I will tell you what shall happen at the end of the days' (Gen.xlix.1)=the quality of the state of the Church in that order in which they then were. . . 'The end of the days'=the last of the state, in which they are together; for 'days'=states.

6505. 'Forty days were fulfilled to him' (Gen.l.1,3)=a state of preparation through temptations. . . 'Days'=states.

6508. 'Seventy days' (id.)=a full state.

6573. 'In order to do according to this day' (ver.20)=that it is according to order from eternity. . . 'According to this day'=from eternity.

6699. Some myriads of men flow thither daily-per-niem.

6755. 'It came to pass in those days and Moses grew' (Ex.ii.11)=when these states lasted, and increase in scientific truths. 'Days'=states.

6767². 'The day of killing' (Jer.xii.3)=the time of the vastation of the Church, when there is no longer any faith because no charity. 8902⁶.

6798. 'It came to pass in these many days' (Ex.ii.23)=after many changes of state. 'Days'=states.

7110. 'Pharaoh commanded in that day' (Ex.v.6)=the cupidity of infesting the truths of the Church while in that state. . . 'Day'=state.

7133. 'Fulfil your works, the word of a day in its own day' (ver.13)=that they should serve falsities so called in every state. . . 'The word of a day in its own day'=in every state. 7157.

7240. 'It came to pass in that day Jehovah spake to Moses in the land of Egypt' (Ex.vi.28)=the state of the Church at the time when command was given by the law from the Divine to those who were of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, while still in the vicinity of those in the Hells. 'Day'=state.

7680. 'All that day, and all that night' (Ex.x.13)=everything of perception, both obscure and not obscure, with those who infest, that it was destroyed. 'Day'=a state of perception not obscure; 'night'=a state of obscure perception; for the times of the day. . . correspond to the enlightenments which are of intelligence and wisdom; thus to perceptions; in general, day and night.

7715. 'For three days' (Ex.x.22)=a full state. Ex.

7887. 'Even in the first day ye shall make leaven to cease from your houses' (Ex.xii.15)=that nothing false whatever shall be in good. 'The first day'=the beginning of that state. 7891.

7890. 'From the first day even to the seventh day' (id.)=a holy full state. 'Seven days'=a holy state, and also a full state.

7892. 'In the seventh day there shall be a holy convocation for you' (ver.16)=thus in the end of the state. 'The seventh day,' which was the last one of the feast, =the end thereof.

7905. 'For seven days' (ver.19)=the entire period of this state. 'Seven days'=a holy state, and also an entire period from beginning to end, or a full state: the same as 'a week.'

8017. 'It came to pass in this same day' (ver.51)=a state of the Lord's presence. 'Day'=time and state.

8059. 'In the seventh day a feast to Jehovah' (Ex. xiii.6)=the holy worship of the Lord. 'The seventh day'=a holy state.

8400. 'In the fifteenth day of the second month' (Ex. xvi.1)=the state relatively. . . 'Month'=the end of a former state and the beginning of a following one, thus a new state; 'day'=state in general. Refs.

8418. 'They shall gather the word of a day in its own day' (Ex.xvi.4)=constantly for the necessity. Ex.

8421. 'It shall be in the sixth day' (ver.5)=in the end of each state. 'Day'=state. 8488.

8506. 'Six days shall ye gather it' (ver.26)=the reception of truth before it is conjoined with good. 'Six days'=a state of combat and labour; here, a state of the reception of truth, or the state in which good is acquired through truth, for in this state there are combat and labour. . .

8633. They have no holy-festos-days (in Jupiter).

8752. 'In this day' (Ex.xix.1)=at that time. . . 'Day'=state; wherefore, 'in this day'=at the time when there is fulness of state.

8888. See COMBAT at this ref.

—e. The prior state (of regeneration) is signified by the six days which precede the seventh, and the posterior state by the seventh day. 9431^e.

8898. 'That thy days may be prolonged upon the Land' (ver. 12)=the consequent state of life in Heaven. . . . 'Thy days'=the state of life.

8902³. It treats here of the last time of the Church, when there are no longer any faith and charity, which time is 'the cruel day of Jehovah . . .' (Is. xiii. 9).

8906³. 'The day of Jehovah' (Joel ii. 1)=the last state, or the last time of the Church, when there is no longer any truth, but in the place of truth there is falsity.

9037. 'If he shall continue a day or two' (Ex. xxi. 21) = a state of life remaining even to the full. 'Day'=the state of life; 'two days-biduum'=the succeeding state, thus a full state.

9198³. 'The days of Elias' (Luke iv. 25)=the state of reception of truth Divine from the Word at that time . . . 'Days'=states.

9226. 'Seven days shall it be with its mother' (Ex. xxii. 30)=the first state with truths. 'Seven days'=the first state of those who are being regenerated; for 'days'=states.

9227. 'On the eighth day thou shalt give it Me' (id.)=the beginning of the following state, when the life is from good. . . . 'The eighth day'=the beginning of the following state.

9326. 'The number of thy days I will fulfil' (Ex. xxiii. 26)=even to a full state. 'Days'=states of life. Refs.

9431. 'Six days' (Ex. xxiv. 16)=while in a state of truth. Ex.

9432. 'He called to Moses in the seventh day' (id.)=when truth is conjoined with good. 'The seventh day'=the second state, when truth is conjoined with good, or when man is in good.

10122. 'Daily-in diem,' or every day (Ex. xxix. 36)=continually.

10127. 'Seven days thou shalt propitiate upon the altar' (ver. 37)=what is full as to influx into Heaven and the Church. 'Seven days'=what is full.

10132. 'Daily' (ver. 38)=in every state; for by 'day' is signified state, and by the morning of the day and its evening on which the burnt-offerings of lambs were to be made, is signified every state.

10217³. 'To number our days' (Ps. xc. 12)=to order and dispose the states of life; and the days are said to be numbered when they are ordered and disposed, thus when they are finished; as in Is. xxxviii. 10.

10609¹. It here treats of the Lord's Advent, for this is signified by 'the day of Jehovah' (Joel i. 15).

10771. Relatively to the time of the days in our Earth, the day (in the Fifth Earth) is fifteen hours long.

10834. (The Spirits of the Sixth Earth) said . . . that their day is equal to nine hours of our time, which they were able to ascertain from the length of the days in our Earth as perceived in me.

H. 155³. It is from this correspondence that 'a day,' and 'a year,' in the Word, =the states of life in general. (g). Refs. W. 73³.

. 452. See DIE-obire, at these refs. T. 138.

L. 4. In this first article I shall merely adduce passages from the Word in which it is said 'that day,' 'in that day,' and 'in that time;' in which by 'day' and 'time' are meant the Advent of the Lord. Fully III.

5. In these passages, by 'day' and 'time' is meant the Advent of the Lord; by 'the day' or 'time of darkness,' 'of thick darkness,' 'of dimness,' 'of no light,' 'of devastation,' 'of the end of iniquity,' 'of destruction,' is meant the Advent of the Lord when He was no longer known, and therefore when there was no longer anything of the Church remaining. By 'a day cruel,' 'terrible,' 'of wrath,' 'of anger,' 'of tumult,' 'of visitation,' 'of sacrifice,' 'of retribution,' 'of straitness,' 'of war,' 'of a cry,' is meant the Advent of the Lord to judgment. By 'the day in which Jehovah alone shall be exalted,' 'in which He shall be one and His name one,' 'in which the branch of Jehovah shall be for ornament and glory,' 'in which the righteous shall flourish,' 'in which he shall be vivified,' 'in which he shall seek his flock,' 'in which he shall make a new covenant,' 'in which the mountains shall drop new wine,' 'in which living water shall go forth from Jerusalem,' 'in which they shall look back to the God of Israel,' and many similar expressions, is meant the Advent of the Lord to establish a new Church, which shall acknowledge Him as the Redeemer and Saviour.

S. 14³. By 'the day of Jehovah' (Is. xxiv. 21; Joel ii. 1; iii. 14) is meant the Advent of the Lord, which took place where there was no longer any residue of good and truth in the Church, and not any knowledge of the Lord.

W. 73³. Their Sun is constantly in its Orient . . . hence they have no days, etc.

390⁶. The most, after a period of two days-biduum-out of the body, are in the Spiritual World; in fact, I have spoken with some after two days. H. 312⁴.

R. 4². 'Unless those days should be shortened, no flesh should be saved, but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened' (Matt. xxiv. 22)=that unless the Church were finished before its time it would utterly perish.

—e. Hence also it is, that in the Word an entire period is called 'a day;' its first state 'daybreak' and 'morning,' and its last 'evening' and 'night.'

101. 'Ye shall have affliction ten days' (Rev. ii. 10)=that this is to last the full time, that is, as long as they will to remain in falsities. . . . 'Ten days'=the duration of that state to the full . . . because 'days'=states.

380. 'They serve Him day and night' (Rev. vii. 15)=that they constantly and faithfully live according to the truths, that is, the precepts, which they receive from Him. E. 478. —³, Ex.

414. 'That the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise' (Rev. viii. 12)=that there was no longer with them from the Word any spiritual truth or natural truth serviceable for doctrine and life. By 'the day not shining' is meant that there was no light from the sun, and by 'the night likewise' is meant that there was no light from the moon and stars. By light in general is signified Divine truth . . . Divine truth in the spiritual sense of the Word is as the light of the sun in the day; and Divine truth in its natural sense is as the light of the moon and stars in the night. . . . These things are also meant by 'day' and 'night' in the following passages. Ill. E.527. —¹, Ill.

[R.] 446. 'An hour, a day, a month, and a year' (Rev.ix.15)=continually and perpetually; the same as all time. E.571.

637. 'They shall have no rest day and night' (Rev. xiv.11)=their perpetual state in undelightful things after death. . . . By 'day and night' is signified all time, and in the spiritual sense, in every state, and thus perpetually; for in that sense 'day and night'=states of life.

704. That fighting against the truths of the New Church (is signified), is because it is said 'in that great day of God Almighty' (Rev.xvi.14), and by that day is signified the Advent of the Lord, and then a New Church. —², Ill. 707, Ill.

—³. As it is the consummation of the age . . . when the Advent of the Lord and the beginning of the New Church take place, by 'the day of Jehovah' in many places is signified the end of the former Church . . .

765. 'In one day' (Rev.xviii.8)=the time of the Last Judgment, which is also called 'the day of judgment.' E.1124.

864. 'To be tormented day and night' (Rev.xx.10)=to be interiorly infested constantly.

T. 200^e. 'Day,' mentioned twice (Is.xix.23,24) means the first and the second Advent of the Lord.

Hist. Crea. i. 5. By 'a day' here and in the rest of this chapter is not meant a common day, but the whole space of that time, or that whole time of the creation in which the sun, the globe of the future Earth, and the ethereal atmospheres came forth; for in the Holy Scriptures entire periods of time are called 'days.' Ad.9.

S. 'And there came forth from the evening and the morning the second day,' or the second space of time, within which was made the aerial atmosphere . . . for with God . . . a thousand years, that is, a great length of time, are as a day. Ad.S. 9.

Ad. 3. These 'days' are to be called days of creation, and mean entire spaces of time . . . S.

D. 1973. What is meant by 'the evening and the morning a day' (Gen.i). . . . That 'day'=time in general, may be very well known from the Scriptures, for this word means time.

2680. The heavenly changes and revolutions . . . are represented in the world by days, etc.

5493. On the fourth day after death (Er.Br.) was called to judgment . . . On the same day he was at once cast into Hell . . .

5495. On the fourth day he was taken out thence, and his former life such as he had in the world was granted to him, and on the fifth day he rushed into every kind of wickedness . . . and was also several times most grievously punished; which was on the fifth day after death.

E. 63⁴. 'The days come, when ye shall long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, but ye shall not see it' (Luke xvii.22): 'to long for one of the days of the Son of Man'=to long for truth Divine which is genuine in some respect.

137. 'In the days wherein Antipas was My faithful martyr, who was slain among you' (Rev.ii.13)=in that time and state wherein all are hated who profess the Divine Human of the Lord. 'Day'=time and state. Refs.

199^e. 'Upon Thy book all my days were written, in which they were formed; and not one of them is wanting' (Ps. cxxxix.16)=all the states of life . . .

285. 'They have no rest day and night, saying, Holy, Holy, Holy' (Rev.iv.8)=the Most Holy which proceeds from the Lord. Ex.

298⁸. 'The day of anger' (Ps.cx.5)=a state of combat.

304³. 'The day of Jehovah' (Is.xiii.9)=the last end of the Church, when comes the judgment. 721²⁴.

315¹². 'We are killed every day' (Ps.xliv.22)=that of ourselves we are always falling into falsities and being led astray by them, especially at the time when falsities reign.

—¹⁵. 'The day of the great slaughter' (Is.xxx.25)=the Last Judgment, when the wicked are condemned and perish. 405⁶.

328⁸. The casting down into Hell of those who were insurgent . . . is meant by . . . 'the day of vengeance is in Mine heart' (Is.lxiii.4).

372². That they would know neither good nor truth, is signified by 'the sun shall set upon the prophets, and the day shall become black over them' (Mic.iii.6): 'the sun'=the good of love; and 'the day,' the truth of faith . . .

386²². 'The days of the entire' (Ps.xxxvii.18)=the states of those who are in good and thence in truths, or who are in charity and thence in faith.

391¹³. 'In that day' (Is.xix.18)=the Advent of the Lord, and the states of those at that time who are in scientific truths from the Lord. 548⁸. 654⁷.

401¹². 'The day of Jehovah cruel, of indignation and of wrath of anger' (Is.xiii.9)=the day of the Last Judgment. 413¹.

—²¹. The reason it said that 'the sun was made to rule by day' (Ps.cxxxvi.8), is that 'day'=the light of the spiritual man, for it has enlightenment and perception from the good of love.

405²³. This Judgment is what is meant in the Word of the Old Testament by 'the day of indignation,' 'of anger,' 'of wrath,' 'of the vengeance of Jehovah.'

—³⁵. 'The day of Jehovah Zebaoth' (Is.ii.12)=the Last Judgment . . . 410³. 514⁹.

413. 'For the great day of His wrath is come' (Rev. vi.17)=the Last Judgment upon the evil . . . The Judgment upon the evil is called 'the day of indignation,' 'of wrath,' 'of anger,' and 'of vengeance;' but the Judgment upon the good is called 'the time of the Lord's coming,' etc.

—⁷. By 'the day of Jehovah's vengeance' (Is.xxxiv.

8; lxi.2), as by 'the day of His anger,' and 'of His wrath' is signified the Last Judgment. 850¹⁶.

422¹⁶. 'In that day' (Zech. xiv. 8) = His Advent.

430¹⁶. 'Day' (John xi. 9) = enlightenment in truths from good; and 'the twelve hours of the day,' all things of truth from good.

433²⁵. 'The days come' (Jer. xxxi. 27) = the Advent of the Lord. 768⁴.

438⁵. That the Word shall last to eternity, is signified by 'as thy days so shall thy renown be' (Deut. xxxiii. 25).

444⁷. 'The covenant of the day' (Jer. xxxiii. 20) = conjunction through love; 'the covenant of the night,' conjunction through faith. See 527⁵.

502⁶. 'In that day the great trumpet shall sound' (Is. xxvii. 13) . . . These things are said concerning the Advent of the Lord.

526⁴. The Last Judgment, which then follows, is meant by 'The day of Jehovah great and terrible' (Joel ii. 11). Ill.

—⁵. These things are said of the last time of the Church, when the Lord would come into the world and effect a Judgment: as there are then no longer any good of love or truth of faith, but evil of falsity and falsity of evil, it is called 'that day,' 'a day of darkness and of thick darkness.' Ill.

532⁴. 'On the third day' (Hos. vi. 2) = full reformation and restoration.

540³. 'Behold, the day cometh that burneth as an oven' (Mal. iv. 1): these things are said of the last time of the Church, and of the Last Judgment then.

550. 'In those days' (Rev. ix. 6) = then.

585⁷. 'In that day shall a man look back unto His Maker' (Is. xvii. 7) . . . These things are said of the Advent of the Lord and of a new Church then.

594^e. Hence, the Last Judgment, when they who are in falsities of evil will perish, is called 'a day of cloud and of dimness' (Joel. ii. 2; Zeph. i. 15). 1135².

611. 'The days of the voice of the seventh Angel' (Rev. x. 7) = the last state of the Church.

636. 'A thousand two hundred and sixty days' (Rev. xi. 3) = even to the end of the Old Church and the beginning of the New Church. Ex.

644. This revelation and preaching from revelation at the end of the Church is what is chiefly meant by 'the days of the prophecy of the two witnesses' (Rev. xi. 6).

654²³. 'In that day' (Is. xxvii. 12) = the Advent of the Lord.

—³⁸. 'A day of cloud' (Ezek. xxx. 3) = the state of the Church consequent upon truths not being understood, thus, consequent upon falsities.

658. 'Three days and a half' (Rev. xi. 9) = what is plenary; here, plenary extinction.

664. 'After three days and a half' (ver. 11) = when it was complete; thus, the end of the Old Church and the beginning of the New Church. . . The reason it is said 'three days and a half,' is that 'day' in the Word = states; here, the last state of the Church. Ex.

684²³. 'The days of the heavens' (Ps. lxxxix. 29) = the states of the whole Heaven, which are from His Divine.

706⁶. 'Three days and three nights' (Matt. xii. 40) = to the full.

721⁷. 'While it is yet day' (Jer. xv. 9) = while the Word is still acknowledged.

—¹⁵. That those Kingdoms perish which are not made to be of life, is signified by 'in the midst of his days he forsaketh them' (Jer. xvii. 11).

—²². 'The great day' (Jer. xxx. 7) = the Advent of the Lord, and then the Judgment by Him.

730⁴⁰. 'The days of youth' (Hos. ii. 15) = the times of the Ancient Church.

747. 'Which accuseth them before God day and night' (Rev. xii. 10) = and scolded and disputed with them from the Word continually. . . 'Days and nights' = continually and without intermission: 'days and nights' = all the states of life; 'day,' a state of life when the mind is in a clear idea; and 'night,' when it is in an obscure one. . .

781¹⁶. 'The day of Jehovah' (Amos v. 18) = the Advent of the Lord, Who is the Messiah Whom they awaited. . . But as the Lord did not come for the sake of any kingdom on earth . . . and as the Jewish nation was in the falsities of evil, and these were then made manifest, it is said, 'Woe to those who long for the day of Jehovah; what is the day of Jehovah to you? it is one of darkness and not of light.'

803². I. Man should read the Word every day, one chapter or two. . .

811¹⁷. 'The extremity of the days' (Jer. xlviii. 47) = the Advent of the Lord.

890. 'They shall have no rest day and night' (Rev. xiv. 11) = continual infestation by evils and thence falsities. . . 'Day and night' = continually. . . By 'day' is signified the state of their falsity; and by 'night,' the state of their evil; for as to his thoughts man is in light, thus in day, and as to his affection, in obscurity or in night. . . Hence there was upon the Tent a cloud by day, and a fire by night. . .

900². 'He shall prolong his days' (Is. liii. 10) = the Divine good, which proceeds from Him; for 'long' and 'prolong' is said of good; and 'days' = states.

1004. 'Of that great day of God Almighty' (Rev. xvi. 14) = the last state of the Church, when the Advent of Lord and the Last Judgment take place. . . Often is it said in the Word 'the great day,' 'the day of Jehovah,' 'the day of anger and of wrath,' 'the day of vengeance,' 'the terrible day;' and in these places there is meant the last state of the Church, and then the Advent of the Lord and the Last Judgment.

1100². 'In that day' (Hos. ii. 18) = the Advent of the Lord.

D. Wis. vii. 4². That the separation of the spirit from the body usually takes place on the second day after the last agony, has been given to know from the fact, that I have spoken with some deceased persons, who were then Spirits, on the third day after.

5 M. 4. Man passes into the Spiritual World usually on the third day after he has breathed his last. . .

Day after. Postridie.

A. 10497. 'It came to pass the day after' (Ex. xxxii. 30) = the duration of such worship even to the end of the Church. 'The day after' = what is perpetual and eternal; and, when said of the Jewish nation, = even to the end of the Church. The reason 'the day after' = what is perpetual and eternal, is that 'the morrow,' when said of such things as signify Divine celestial and spiritual things = what is perpetual and eternal.

Day, By. Interdiu.

A. 8106. 'By day in a pillar of cloud' (Ex. xiii. 21) = that when there was a state of enlightenment, it was tempered by what is obscure of truth. 'By day,' or 'in the day' = in a state of enlightenment. . . Hence 'day' = a state of enlightenment or of clear perception. E. 504¹⁰.

9642⁵. 'The arrow that flieth by day' (Ps. xci. 5) = the falsity which is openly taught.

R. 922. 'Its gates shall not be shut by day' (Rev. xxi. 25) = that those will be continually received into the New Jerusalem who are in truths from the good of love from the Lord. . . 'By day' = continually, because there is always light there.

E. 336⁶. 'The falsities which are known to be falsities, are meant by 'the arrow that flieth by day.'

594¹⁵. Protection against injury by too much light . . . is signified by 'a cloud by day' (Is. iv. 5).

Days, Two. Biduum.

A. 2405². 'Two days' (Hos. vi. 2) = the time and state which precedes.

9037. See DAY at these refs. W. 390⁶.

Daybreak. Diluculum.

A. 883. The time of evening is as the daybreak before the morning. Ex. . . As the evening signified the daybreak before the morning, the evening was so often mentioned in the Jewish Church . . . 2323, Ex.

2405. See DAWN at these refs. T. 571².

5579⁹. In the Spiritual World, this hunger . . . is the evening, and after it come the daybreak and the morning.

6073^e. The daybreak and morning, which follow the night, = the first of the Church.

6110⁶. In Heaven there is no night, but only evening, which is succeeded by the daybreak that precedes the morning.

8211. The end and the beginning of these variations (of state) is the morning, and, in special, the daybreak; for then night is ended and day begins.

8426^e. In Heaven there are evening and daybreak before the morning; but not night.

10134³. By 'night,' or 'twilight' is signified a state of love in obscurity.

—^e. That cockrowing and daybreak are the same thing, is evident from Mark xiii. 35.

10135. Morning, noon, evening, night or twilight, and again morning: when the Angels are in a state of . . . love in obscurity or in some cold, it is night with them, or, rather, it is the daybreak before the morning.

H. 155^e. 'Daybreak' = the obscurity which precedes the morning.

(f). 'Daybreak' = a state intermediate between the last and the first.

R. 4^e. See DAY at this ref.

816⁴. The last state of the Church is called 'evening' and 'night,' and its first state 'daybreak' and 'morning.'

T. 335. Once, when I awoke at daybreak . . .

766. When a man receives the Lord, by acknowledging Him as His God, the Creator, Redeemer, and Saviour, it is His first Advent, which is called 'daybreak.'

E. 9². 'Cockrowing,' equally with 'daybreak,' = the last time of the Church.

187². 'The daybreak' before the morning, or 'the cockrowing' = a state of commencing faith and charity.

Day Spring. See under DAWN.

Deacon. Diaconus. D. 5079.

Dead. See HALF DEAD.

Dead. See REPHAIM.

Deadly. See DESTRUCTION—exitium.

Deadly. Funestis. A. 775^e.

Deadly. Internecinus.

A. 818^e. See HATE at these refs. 1032³. 1267. D. 4205, etc.

M. 509^e. This lust (of varieties) is deadly to marriage love; and, as marriage love constitutes the inmost of life with man, it is deadly to that life.

T. 309. Not to bring any deadly evil upon his name and reputation.

Deadly. See DEATH—lctum.

Deaf. Surdus.

A. 196. Such are not only deaf serpents, but are flying serpents . . .

489. 'The deaf that have ears' (Is. xliii. 8) = those who comply with truths.

2417⁸. The Ancient Church . . . referred into classes all the goods of charity; that is, all who were in good . . . and called them 'the deaf,' etc.

4027². It would be like . . . speaking to the deaf.

6989. 'Deaf' (Ex. iv. 11) = no perception of truth, and consequently no obedience. 'The deaf' = those who do not perceive what truth is, and therefore do not obey it. . . The reason 'deaf' has this signification, is that hearing corresponds to both perception and obedience. . . In the Word, by 'the deaf' are also signified the gentiles who do not know the truths of faith, because they have not the Word, and therefore cannot live according to them, and still when they are instructed receive them, and live according to them. III.

—'. 'The deaf' here, (Is. xliii. 8) = those who, through the Advent of the Lord, would come into a state of reception of the truths of faith, that is, of perceiving and obeying them. The same are signified by the deaf whom the Lord healed. 7337.

—^e. As 'the deaf' have this signification, it was forbidden to those with whom the Representative Church was instituted 'to curse the deaf' (Lev. xix. 14).

9209^f. 'The deaf hear' (Luke vii. 22) . . . 'The deaf' = those who are not in the faith of truth, because they are not in the perception of it.

9311⁵. 'He maketh the deaf to hear' (Mark vii. 37) : 'the deaf' = those who do not know the truths of faith, and therefore cannot live according to them.

9397^e. As 'the deaf,' or those who do not hear, are those who are not in the faith of truth, because not in the Knowledge and thence in the apperception of it, when the Lord healed the deaf man, He 'put His finger into his ears, and said, Ephatha, that is, Be thou opened, and immediately his hearings were opened' (Mark vii).

S. 17^f. That the deaf received their hearing signified that those hearkened and obeyed who had before heard nothing about the Lord and the Word.

E. 239⁶. 'The deaf who hear the words of the book' (Is. xxix. 18) = those who want to obey truths, and thereby carry on a life of good, but are not able because they have not the Word.

—⁷. That those who are not in the perception and will of good will then be obedient and live in good, is signified by 'the ears of the deaf shall be opened' (Is. xxxv. 5).

409². 'Who is blind but My Servant, or deaf as My Angel Whom I send?' (Is. xlii. 19) . . . The reason He is called 'blind' and 'deaf,' is that the Lord is as though He does not see and perceive the sins of men; for He leads men gently, bending and not breaking; thus withdrawing them from evils and leading them to good; wherefore He does not chastise and punish like one who sees and perceives. This is meant by 'Who is blind but My Servant, or deaf as My Angel?' 'blind' and 'Servant' being said in respect to Divine truth; and 'deaf' and 'Angel,' in respect to Divine good; for 'blind' relates to the understanding and thence to perception; and 'deaf,' to perception and thence to the will. The meaning therefore is, that He is as though He does not see, although the Divine truth is His from which He understands all things; and does not will according to what He perceives, although the Divine good is His, from which He can do all things.

455²¹. 'The deaf' = those who are not in the understanding of truth and thence not in obedience.

556¹⁷. He is called by the Lord 'deaf and dumb' (Mark ix. 25), because he did not want to perceive and understand truth.

Dear. Charus.

A. 229. The Rational suffered itself to be deceived by the proprium because it was dear to it.

D. 3249. He induced the persuasion that he would take away that which was dearest to me.

4225. They feared death on account of their life in the world and the body, which they held most dear.

Death. See DIE-mori, and DIE-mortificari.

Death. Lethus.

Deadly. Lethalis, Lethiferus.

A. 817. Thus there arose the suspicion that he had perpetrated something deadly during the bodily life. D. 1260.

1035. That such a deadly-lethifera-and suffocative persuasion should no longer come forth. Sig.

1458^f. 'Before . . . He turn it into a deadly shade' (Jer. xiii. 16).

1515. The stench (of a certain woman) was as it were deadly.

7686^e. The falsity which (the Nephilim) infused was attended with a direful Persuasive, and was deadly . . .

P. 112². Gangrenous sores . . . which bring death to the body.

R. 425. 'A scorpion' = a deadly Persuasive . . . For when a scorpion stings a man, it induces a stupor upon the limbs, and, if it is not cured, death.

611². Death floats before their eyes.

M. 5³. This state is the death of your joys.

T. 165². Like one who . . . is struck (by a scorpion) with a deadly wound.

E. 706¹⁴. That 'they should not be hurt if they drank a deadly thing' (Mark xvi. 18) = that the wickedness of the Hells should not infect them.

Debate. See under CONTROVERT.

Debate. Disceptare, Disceptatio.

A. 3677^e. They love only . . . to debate, not what they are, but whether they are; and, so long as they are in this state, they will not know anything whatever about these innumerable things. 3747^e.

9818. They who are in the Celestial Kingdom . . . never have any debate about truths; so much so, that when the conversation turns to the subject of truths, they merely say, It is so, or, It is not so . . .

9942¹¹. 'To sue at the law, and to want to take away the coat' = to debate about truths, and to want to persuade that they are not true.

H. 575. The gnashing of teeth is the continual debate and combat of falsities together, thus of those who are in falsities, conjoined with contempt for others, enmity, mockery, ridicule, reviling . . . These debates and combats are heard outside those Hells as gnashings of teeth; and are also turned into gnashings of teeth when truths from Heaven flow in thither . . . All the fallacies of the senses are truths to them, and it is from these that they debate. This is the reason why their debates are heard as gnashings of teeth . . .

P. 197². The debate was warm.

R. 386. I once heard as it were the gnashing of teeth . . . The Angels said, They are schools . . . where they debate together. These debates are heard thus at a distance; but when near, only as debates. Des. T. 460.

T. 72. (A debate in the Spiritual World on the subject, Why does not God impute the merit of His Son to everybody.)

336. Among the ancients it was . . . debated which of the two must be first, (charity or faith).

E. 405⁴⁰. 'He debates with Israel' (Mic. vi. 2).

Debate. Disputare, Disputatio.

A. 342⁸. They who only debate whether these things exist, and so long as they do so, are outside the doors of wisdom, and are like persons who only knock at the door, without being able to peep into the magnificent palaces of wisdom; and, what is wonderful, people who act in this way think themselves wiser than everybody else . . .

565⁸. He who makes pleasure and wisdom to consist in debating whether it is so or is not so, cannot have the least knowledge about the innumerable things which are correspondences.

901². 'The iron of an axe,' and 'to cut wood' = debate about good from religiosity.

D. 1937. It was debated among Spirits . . . The reasonings and replies were so subtle that men would wonder at the possibility of carrying on a discussion by such skilful arguments. But I observed that after the discussion some were so befogged that they did not know what was truth, as is wont to be the case with truths which are long debated about; they are bedimmed, so that (the disputants) are afterwards blinded in the truth itself.

2695. Against the principles, as against the cupidities of anyone, there should be no disputation from what is opposite, because it would have no effect; but principles, even when false, are bent by the Lord to what is true, as cupidities are into what is good; wherefore the sense of the letter ought not to be broken.

3459. See ANIMAL SPIRIT at this ref.

3493. That the Knowledges of faith may be brought even to denial by disputations.

— (Such) are able to debate with others, and even to be darkened [without suffering].

4676. They do not care about those tangled questions and disputations as to whether faith saves, etc.

5591. See SPEAK-loqui, at this ref.

E. 735⁴. 'He disputed about the body of Moses' (Jude 9).

Deborah. Deborah.

A. 3391³. See BARAK at these refs. E. 447⁴.

8753³. 'Until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel' (Judg. v. 7) . . . In this prophetic song of Deborah and Barak it treats of the perversion of the truth of the Church, and of its restoration. E. 652⁶.

E. 355³³. In the song of Deborah and Barak it treats of the combat of truth against falsity, and of the victory of the former. 422¹³.

434¹³. See SISERA at this ref.

Deborah. Deborah. (Rebekah's nurse.)

A. 4563. 'Deborah the nurse of Rebekah died' (Gen.

xxxv. 8) = that hereditary evil was driven out. . . 'Deborah' as the nurse of Rebekah = hereditary evil. Ex. . . But here, 'Deborah the nurse of Rebekah' = that which was received from the mother and nourished from infancy: this was the hereditary evil from the mother against which the Lord fought . . . and which He drove out.

—³. This is why it is recorded in this verse that 'Deborah the nurse of Rebekah died and was buried under an oak.'

4564. 'She was buried beneath Bethel under an oak' = that it was rejected for ever.

Debt. See OBLIGATION-debitum.

Decalogue. Decalogus.

See COMMAND-præcipere, LAW, and TABLE-tabula.

A. 576⁴. That the Decalogue consisted of ten commandments, or ten words, and that Jehovah wrote them on tables (Deut. x. 4) = remains . . .

1288. As 'words' = all things of doctrine, the commandments of the Decalogue are called 'words.' III.

1798³. Do not all doctrinal things belong to charity . . . To instance only the commandments of the Decalogue . . .

—⁴. These are the commandments of the Decalogue, which are exterior doctrinal things of faith, and which, with those who are in charity and its life, are known, not down to the memory, but are in his heart . . .

1834². See CHARITY at this ref.

2863². It is known that the gentiles . . . had for a law the commandments of the Decalogue. Enum. 4190.

3295^e. He who does not honour his parents, but learns to honour them from the commandment of the Decalogue; when he first honours them it is from the commandment; but this honour, being from the commandment, is not good in itself, because it is not from love, but either from obedience to the law or fear of the law. Still, it is called the good of truth, although at its first coming forth it is truth.

6804⁵. The stipulations or compacts which in the Word are called 'a covenant,' are, on man's part, in a confined sense, the ten commandments or the Decalogue . . .

9211^e. Let them take care they do not believe that the laws of life are abrogated, such as those in the Decalogue, and in other places in the Old Testament; for these laws have been confirmed in both the internal and external form, because they cannot be separated.

Life. Title page. The Doctrine of Life for the New Jerusalem from the Commandments of the Decalogue.

53. The Decalogue teaches what evils are sins. Gen. art.

55^e. All these (miracles, etc.) were from the mere presence of the Lord in His ten words, which are the commandments of the Decalogue.

64. It is a general thing in the whole Christian World for the Decalogue to be taught, and for little children to be initiated through it into the Christian religion, for it is in the hands of all young children: their parents and masters tell them that to do those things is to sin against God . . . Who may not wonder that the same parents and masters, and also the children when they become adults, think that they are not under that law, and that they are not able to do the things of that law? Can there be any other reason than that they love evils, and consequently the falsities which favour them? These, therefore, are they who do not make the commandments of the Decalogue commandments of religion.

65. All nations . . . with whom there is religion, have similar commandments to those in the Decalogue; and all who, from religion, live them, are saved; but all who do not live them from religion are damned . . . See 53. R. 529².

258⁴. Everyone born a Christian knows that evils are to be shunned as sins from the fact that the Decalogue is placed in the hands of every boy and girl, and is taught them by parents and masters; and, further, all citizens of the kingdom, especially the common people, are examined by the priest, from the Decalogue alone, repeated from memory, as to what they know of the Christian religion; and are also counselled to do the things therein commanded. In no case is it then said by any priest that they are not under the yoke of that law, or that they cannot do the things commanded because they cannot do any good from themselves. T. 525.

265³. Again, I have said, Why have you taught your little children the Decalogue? Is it not that they might know what evils are the sins which are to be shunned? Is it that they might only know these things, and believe, and not do? Why, therefore, is it said that this is new? To this they have only been able to reply, that they know and still do not know; and that they never think of the sixth commandment when they are committing adultery, nor of the seventh commandment when they are stealing or committing fraud, and so on . . .

326¹. That these two things are the primary ones of every religion, may be evident from the fact, that these two things are what the Decalogue teaches; and this was the first of the Word, was promulgated by Jehovah from Mount Sinai by a living voice, and was written by the finger of God on two tables of stone; and then, being placed in the ark, was called 'Jehovah,' and constituted the Holy of holies in the tabernacle and in the oracle of the Temple . . . and all the things there were holy from it alone.

329³. What at this day is the Decalogue, but as a little book or writing sealed up, and open only in the hands of little children and youth? Say to anyone somewhat advanced in age, Do not do this because it is contrary to the Decalogue; and who listens? But if you say, Do not do this, because it is contrary to the Divine laws, he may listen to that; when, nevertheless, the commandments of the Decalogue are the Divine laws themselves. The trial was made with many in the Spiritual World, and when the Decalogue or Catechism was mentioned they rejected it with contempt: this was because the Decalogue in its second table, which is man's, teaches that evils are to be shunned; and he who does not shun them . . . hears the Decalogue or Catechism mentioned with some degree of contempt, as if he heard some book for little children named, which is no longer of any use to him.

R. 529. By 'the ark in the temple' (Rev. xi. 19) is meant the Decalogue, for in the ark were the two tables on which the Decalogue was written.

669. 'After these things I saw, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened' (Rev. xv. 5)= that the inmost of Heaven was seen, where the Lord is in His holiness in the Word, and in the Law which is the Decalogue. . . The inmost of the tabernacle was where the ark was, in which were the two tables, upon which the ten words were written by the finger of God, which are the ten commandments of the Decalogue, which are meant by 'the Testimony' . . . Ill.

T. 282. The Catechism or Decalogue explained as to its external and internal sense. Chap.

283. In the Israelitish Church the Decalogue was holiness itself. Gen. art.

— As the commandments of the Decalogue were the first-fruits of the Word, and therefore the first-fruits of the Church that was about to be established with the Israelitish nation, and as they were in a brief summary the complex of all things of religion, by which the conjunction of God with man and of man with God takes place, they were so holy that there is nothing more holy. Ill. 284.

289. The reason the Decalogue in its spiritual and celestial senses contains universally all the precepts of doctrine and of life, thus all things of faith and charity. Ex. E. 1024², Ex.

582. What would the Decalogue, the beginning of reformation, then be, more than the paper sold in low shops, and used to wrap up spices?

D. 6065². It was then replied that truth and life are to live according to the commandments of the Decalogue. Ex.

E. 675⁵. The reason there were ten words or ten commandments, of which the Decalogue consisted, was that 'ten'=all things, and, therefore, by the 'ten words' is signified the Law in the whole complex.

934². See WORK-opus, at this ref.

935². The evils enumerated in the Decalogue contain within them all the evils that can ever exist, wherefore they are called the ten commandments, because 'ten'=all. Ex.

939². The interior of man is no otherwise purified, than as he desists from evils, according to the commandments of the Decalogue. Ex.

948⁴. Religion with man consists in a life according to the Divine commandments, which, in sum, are contained in the Decalogue: with him who does not live according to them there cannot be religion, because he does not fear God, still less love Him; nor does he fear man, still less love him . . . Yet everyone can live according to these commandments, and he who is wise does so live, as a civil man, as a moral man, and as a natural man; but he who does not live according to them as a spiritual man cannot be saved; for to live according to them as a spiritual man is to do so on account of the Divine in them: whereas to live according to them as a civil man is to do so on account of what is just, and to avoid the penalties of the world; and to live according to them as a moral man is to do so on account of what is honest, and to avoid the loss of reputation and honour; but to live according to them as a natural man is to do so on account of what is human, and to avoid the ill report of not being of a sound mind. Ex.

[E.] 1024^c. That the ten commandments of the Decalogue are all things of the Word in sum, can only appear from these commandments as to their three senses.

1026^e. The first three commandments (of the Decalogue) are of love to the Lord, the last six are of love towards the neighbour, and the fourth commandment, which is, 'Honour thy father and thy mother,' is the intermediate commandment . . .

1027. How conjunction is effected through the commandments of the Decalogue. . . The Lord conjoins man with Himself by this, that man knows, understands, wills, and does these commandments: when man does them there is conjunction, but if he does not do them he ceases to will them, and therewith to understand and know them. But . . . as the Lord alone conjoins man with Himself, and not man himself with the Lord, and conjunction is effected through doing, it follows that the Lord with man does these commandments. But (as) conjunction cannot be effected unless there is something reciprocal with man, the Lord has endowed man with the freedom of willing and acting as of himself . . . Wherefore, while man conjoins himself with the Lord by means of the last six commandments as of himself, the Lord conjoins Himself with man by the first three commandments, which are, that man should acknowledge God, believe in the Lord, and hold His name holy. The faith of these is not with man . . . unless he abstains from the sins which are demurred to in the last six commandments.

1028^e. As they who abstain from the evil of one commandment (of the Decalogue), and shun it as a sin against God, and are afterwards averse to it, fear God, they come into communion with the Angels, and are led by the Lord to abstain from the evils of all the other commandments, and to shun them and at last be averse to them, as sins; and if, perchance, they have sinned against them, still they repent, and so by degrees are withdrawn from them.

1167. That man, in proportion as he can be withdrawn from evils, does good from the Lord which is good in itself; and in proportion as he cannot be withdrawn from evils, does good from himself which has evil in it, may be illustrated by the commandments of the Decalogue. Ex.

1179^e. I have seen (those who had no worship on earth), and at first they appeared as if they were not men, but afterwards I saw them as men, and heard them speaking soundly from the commandments of the Decalogue.

J.(Post.) 340. He who is in adultery is in evil and falsity, and adultery is all sin against the Decalogue, for he who is in it is in all the evil of the Decalogue; and contrariwise.

D. Love xvii⁹. The evils man is to shun are all conspicuously written in the Decalogue . . .

D. Wis. ix². The way man must go to come into conjunction with the Lord . . . the Lord teaches in the Word, and in special in the Decalogue, wherefore the two tables of it were written by the finger of the Lord Himself, one of which regards the Lord, and the other man, and both conjunction; wherefore, in order that the way may be known, the Decalogue shall be explained.

De Just. 64. I asked (the priests from the Reformed) what they understand by good works, whether such things as are enjoined by the Roman Catholics, or works according to the second table of the Decalogue. They answered, Both. I asked them whether the works of that table of the Decalogue contribute anything to salvation. They answered, Not anything, but still they are to be done, because they are commanded.

Decant. Decantare.

Decantation. Decantatio.

P. 336^e. The lungs decant the blood.

M. 145². The purification of natural spirits . . . called decantation, etc. (corresponds to the perfecting of wisdom) as by decantations, etc.

D. Wis. iii. 2. The spermatic vessels, in which the seed is cohobated and decanted.

Decease. See DIE.

Deceit. Dolus.

Deceitful. Dolosus.

Deceitfully. Dolose.

See under SERPENT.

A. 358. Simulation and deceit was then [held] abominable.

623^e. 'Deceit in his mouth' (Is. liii. 9) is said of the things of the understanding.

S21. There are some who outwardly present an honest face and life, so that no one would suspect them not to be honest . . . They do not act openly, but through others by deceitful artifices they despoil others of their goods . . . They are hidden robbers, and their kind of hatred is conjoined with conceit, greed for gain, unmercifulness, and deceit. (Their state after death.) D. 2492.

S24. On the Hells of the deceitful and of witches. Gen.art.

S27. See ADULTERY at this ref.

S30. They who deceive-decipiunt-men with sharp deceit, putting on an agreeable face and address, but hiding poisonous deceits within, and thus captivating men with the end of destroying them, have a Hell which is more fearful than that of others, even more so than the Hell of murderers. They seem to themselves to live among serpents; and the more hurtful their deceits have been, the more direful, poisonous, and numerous do the serpents appear which encompass and torture them . . . These are they who exercise deceits with premeditation, feeling therein the delight of life. The punishments of the deceitful are various, each according to the nature of the deceit. . . They are not tolerated in Societies . . . for whatever any Spirit thinks, his neighbours at once see and perceive, thus if there is anything of deceit, and also the nature of the deceit; wherefore, being at last driven out of all Societies, they sit solitary, appearing then to have a broad face, four or five times as broad as those of others . . . sitting in torment like images of death. There are others who are deceitful by nature, but not with premeditation, and not in a clandestine manner with a feigned countenance: they are at once found out, and their thought is manifestly perceived: they boast, too, about it, as if they wanted to seem deep: these have not such a Hell. D.2857, below.

947. They who are deceitful, and who suppose themselves to be able to obtain all things by means of deceitful machinations, and who in the life of the body have confirmed themselves from the fact that such things have succeeded with them, seem to themselves to dwell in a certain tun on the left which is called the infernal tun, over which there is a covering, and outside a small globe on a pyramidal base, which they suppose to be the universe under their inspection and government. This is exactly how it appears to them. Those of them who have deceitfully persecuted the innocent are there for ages; I have been told that some have been there already for twenty centuries—sæcula. When they are let out, they have the phantasy that the universe is a kind of globe which they walk round and tread under foot, believing themselves to be the gods of the universe. I have sometimes seen them and have spoken to them about their phantasy; but having been of such a character in the world, they could not be withdrawn from it. I have also sometimes perceived with what subtle deceit they were able to pervert the thoughts, in a moment bending them away, and substituting others, so that one could hardly tell that they were from them. It is incredible how perfectly natural it is to them to do this. On this account, such are never admitted to men, for they infuse their poison so clandestinely and covertly that it is not possible to perceive it.

950^e. As they are not deceitful, their Hell is not so grievous.

957. They who in the life of the body have contracted the nature of saying one thing and thinking another . . . wander about . . . being driven away with penalties . . . according to the nature of the deceitful simulation which they have contracted. Des.

958^e. Whoever is let into this cone . . . has all his joints miserably torn: it is deceitful dissemblers who are let into it and so punished.

960. There are certain deceitful Spirits, who, while they lived in the body, had practised deceits covertly; and some of whom by baleful arts had pretended to be like Angels, with a view to entrap people. In the other life, they learn how to withdraw into subtler nature, and to snatch themselves away from the sight of others, supposing themselves thus to be safe from every penalty. But these not only undergo the penalties of rending, as the others do, according to the nature and wickedness of their deceit, but are also stuck together; and when this is done, the more they want to be loosed . . . the more closely are they tied. This penalty is attended with a more intense torture, because this answers to their more hidden deceits.

1094². They had attended the Church and the sacraments like other people; as had also the deceitful, and these in fact more than other people.

1118^e. (With the men of the Most Ancient Church), simulation, and still more deceit, was an enormous crime.

1182^e. The more love of the world and of self there is in that external worship, the less life and holiness there are in his worship; the more hatred towards the neighbour there is in the love of self and the world, the more profanity there is in the worship; the more malice there is in the hatred, the more profanity still there is in the worship; and the more deceit there is in the malice, the more profanity still there is in the worship.

1271. There were afterwards some deceitful Spirits who wanted to emerge, and infused into them to say that they were nothing . . . wherefore some were permitted to rise up . . . They supposed that they could do everything . . . but they were thrust down again by a little child . . . The deceitful also were punished, being first almost suffocated by the others, and afterwards stuck together, to cause them to desist from such things; but they were afterwards liberated.

1273. If (the novitiate Spirit) is a dissembler, a hypocrite, or is deceitful . . . he is sometimes received by good Spirits, but after a short time is dissociated, and then wanders about without Angels, begging to be received, and is sometimes punished; and at last is carried down among the infernals.

1380. They who have been deceitful often appear above the head; yet are really in Hell under foot. 2754. 3750.

1395. (As to this kind of perception), I have often listened while the deceitful were speaking, and have perceived not only that there was deceit, but also the nature of the deceit, and what wickedness there was in the deceit: it is as though there were an image of the deceit in each tone of the voice. I could also perceive whether the deceit was the speaker's own, or was that of others who spoke through him.

1640². Of what genius and nature Spirits are, manifestly appears from their speech, as well as from their sphere . . . So that if they are deceitful, although at the moment of speaking they use no deceit, still the genus and species of their deceit are perceived from each word and idea . . .

1691. All hatreds come forth from the love of self and of the world; from hatreds all revenges and cruelties: from the former and the latter all deceits.

1695. Still, licence is not granted to (evil Spirits) to think and speak what is false, except that which is from their evil; but not that which is contrary to their own proper evil; for this is deceit.

1702². (It is in consequence of possessing an interior man that deceit is possible to man.)

1820². Those (evil Genii) who are malignant and deceitful, insinuate themselves into the very loves . . .

1861. See CUPIDITY at this ref.

2219². Hence it is evident, that from self-love spring . . . all infamous simulations and deceits . . .

[A.] 2269°. In the deceitful and in hypocrites (good and evil) are not far from being conjoined, but still the Lord takes care that they are not conjoined; which is the reason why in the other life the deceitful and hypocrites undergo the most direful sufferings of all.

2426°. It is the deceitful and the hypocrites within the Church who are the most exposed to this danger (of mixing evil with good). Sig.

2492°. With those who have been deceitful and hypocrites, this (callosity of the exterior memory) appears as it were bony and of ebony, and reflects the rays of light. H.466.

2590. Such (Gentiles) . . . do not contrive machinations and deceits.

2754. See CHRISTIAN at this ref.

3934°. Something counterfeit, such as there is in hypocrisy and deceit . . .

3957°. He who has acquired a life of deceit, and therein has had the delight of his life, cannot put it off, but is also in that life after death.

3993¹². Simulation and cunning which have evil as their end, are not prudence, but are cunning and deceit, with which good cannot be at all conjoined; for the deceit which is the end of evil induces what is infernal on each and all things with man, and sets evil in the middle, and rejects good to the circumferences, which order is the infernal order itself.

4327. By this was signified that the fibres of the cerebrum have intruded themselves, and exercise command over those of the cerebellum, and that thence what is fictitious, simulated, counterfeited, and deceitful reigns within, and outwardly appears as what is sincere and good.

—². They who at this day relate to (the general involuntary sense) are they who think deceitfully . . . putting on a most friendly expression . . . and speaking sweetly like those who are pre-eminently endowed with charity; yet being the most bitter enemies . . .

4464°. The sphere of one who is in pleasures from deceits, etc. . .

4533. When they are looked into by the Angels . . . the deceitful appear as serpents, and the most deceitful as vipers.

4631. See ASSASSIN at this ref.

4663°. He who in the life of the body has practised deceits against his companions, also practises deceits against his companions in the other life.

5058. There was one who in the world had been [accounted] among the more worthy; he was then known to me, but not his inward character; but, in the other life, after some revolutions of the state of his life, he was shown to have been deceitful. When he had been for some time among the deceitful in the other life, and had there suffered hard things, he wanted to be separated from them. . . He was admitted into a Society consisting of the simple good . . . but he at once began to carry on his life by cunning and deceit. Within an hour, the good began to lament that he had taken from them their perception of good and truth, and consequently their delight . . . Some light from the interior Heaven was then admitted, in which he appeared as a devil and having the upper part of his nose furrowed with a filthy wound. He also began to be inwardly tortured; and as soon as he felt it he cast himself into Hell.

5128°. There are two things which not only close up the way of communication (with the Rational), but also deprive the man of the capacity of ever becoming rational; these are deceit and profanation. Deceit is like a subtle poison which infects the interiors, and profanation is that which commingles falsities with truths, and evils with goods; by these two the Rational utterly perishes. With every man there are goods and truths stored up by the Lord from infancy . . . Deceit infects these, and profanation commingles them.

5394°. A cadaverous stench also exhaled from the caverns; the reason was, that the cruel and deceitful were therein, to whom a cadaverous stench is most delightful.

5559°. With those who have been deceitful, these outermost things (in the cuticles) appear as if they were conglutinations of mere serpents.

5608°. 'Vipers' = those who are the most deceitful.

5989. The most deceitful, who are above the head, once took a Subject and sent him to me, in order that they might be able to flow in with their deceits; but . . . he extricated himself from them. They afterwards took another, but could not reduce him to speak; he was more deceitful than they, which he showed by as it were folding himself up into the form of a spiral . . . D.4097. 4098.

6197. The deceitful who appear right over head, have sometimes flowed into me so subtly that I did not know whence it was, and could scarcely perceive otherwise than that that which flowed in was in me and from me, as is usually the case with others; but as I knew for certain that it was from some other source, the Lord gave me a perception so exquisite, that I perceived each influx of them . . . When they observed this, they were very indignant, especially that I should reflect upon that which was from them . . . The deceitful chiefly insinuated such things as are against the Lord.

6398°. Malice, cunning, and deceit are signified by 'serpents,' but by venomous ones, as 'vipers,' and the like; of which reasoning is the poison.

6914°. Even at this day some who are more deceitful than others . . . are under the view of the celestial (Angels), and, so long as they are so, are withheld from their wicked deceits.

7272°. From these principles he lives in . . . in deceit, etc. . .

7360°. (The inhabitants of Mars) do not know what hypocrisy is, nor fraudulent simulation and deceit.

8622°. Inwardly, they were deceitful tigers.

8870°. Such are dissemblers, hypocrites, and the deceitful: these are they who make an image of the things which are from the Divine. In the other life, evil Spirits make such images . . . dissemblers, hypocrites, and the deceitful there learn this . . .

9013. 'To slay him with guile' (Ex.xxi.14)=malice thence to deprive the neighbour of eternal life. . . 'Guile' =malice from the will with previous thought or premeditation, thus of set purpose. Evils are done either from enmity, hatred, or revenge, and either with deceit or without deceit; but the evils done by deceit are the worst, because deceit is like poison which infects and destroys with infernal corruption and wasting away; for it goes through the whole mind, even to its interiors: the reason is, that he who is in deceit meditates on evil, and therewith nourishes his understanding and delights it, and so destroys everything therein which belongs to man, that is, which is of life from the good of faith and of charity. They who in the world have with deceit ensnared the neighbour as to worldly and earthly things, in the other life with deceit ensnare the neighbour as to spiritual and celestial things; and as they do this in covert they are relegated to the Hells behind the back, deep down according to the malignity and hurtfulness of the deceit. These are called . . . Genii. . . When they are looked at by the Angels, they appear as serpents, for their nature is that of serpents, and that which comes from them is like poison, and also is spiritual poison; wherefore 'poison,' in the Word, =deceit; and poisonous serpents, like asps, cockatrices, and 'vipers,' =the deceitful. III.

—⁴. Deceit is called hypocrisy when there is piety in the mouth and impiety in the heart, or when there is charity in the mouth and hatred in the heart, or when there is innocence in the face and gesture, but cruelty in the soul and breast, consequently when men deceive—fallunt—by innocence, charity, and piety; such are serpents and vipers, in the internal sense, because . . . in the light of Heaven those appear as serpents and vipers who conceal evils under truths, that is, who deceitfully bend truths to the doing of evil, for they as it were hide poison under their teeth, and so kill. But they who are in the faith of truth and the good of life from the Lord cannot be injured by their poisons, because they are in light from the Lord, in which the deceitful appear as serpents, and their deceits as poisons. Sig.

—⁶. They who are interiorly affected with spiritual deceit, that is, hypocrisy, are meant by those who speak against the Holy Spirit, for whom there is no forgiveness . . . for thus falsity lies hidden in the truths they speak, and evil in the goods they do, which is hidden poison; whence they are called 'a generation of vipers' . . . The reason there is no forgiveness for them, is that hypocrisy or deceit in connection with holy things infects the interiors of man, and destroys all spiritual life with him, so that at last there is nothing sound anywhere . . . Such, also, are meant by the man who had not on a wedding garment.

—⁹. 'Deceit,' in the Word, =hypocrisy. III.

H. 481³. The interiors of those who . . . have inwardly been in malignant deceit (appear dimly fiery).

488². They whose delight it has been . . . covertly to plot deceits, are also in these vaults, and enter into chambers so dark that they cannot even see one another, and there they whisper in corners into each other's ears: into this is turned the delight of their love.

491². They who have . . . thus filled their malignity with deceits, and have used goodness as a means of deceit, are at once cast into Hell: I have seen some such cast into Hell immediately after death; one most deceitful person head downwards and feet upwards; and others differently.

578. The worst of all are they who have been in evils from self-love, and have at the same time inwardly acted from deceit, for deceit enters more intimately into the thoughts and intentions, and infects them with poison, and thus destroys the whole spiritual life of man. Most of them are in the Hells at the back, and are called Genii, and there it is their delight to make themselves invisible and fly about others like phantoms, and covertly introduce evils, which they scatter about as vipers do poison. These are more direfully tormented than any. But they who have not been deceitful . . . yet are in evils from self-love, are also in the Hells at the back, but not in such deep ones.

579. See GENII at this ref.

Life 81. See CUNNING at these refs. D.5692.

R. 624. 'And in their mouth was found no guile' (Rev.xiv.5)=that they do not from cunning and purpose speak and persuade to falsity and evil. . . 'Guile'=persuasion to evil by means of falsity; properly, from cunning and purpose. For he who persuades to anything from cunning or deceit persuades from purpose also; for cunning or deceit purposes to itself, conceals its purpose, and effects it when there is an opportunity. 'A lie,' in the Word, =falsity and false speaking, and 'deceit' =each from purpose. III.

—^e. The deceitful are signified in the Word by poisonous serpents, as by 'crocodiles' and 'vipers;' and the deceit is signified by their 'poison.'

M. 79³. Their deceit and cunning are represented by the crocodiles (we saw).

513. The lust of seducing innocencies . . . prevails especially with the deceitful. Des. D.1070.

514². If they had allured by deceit, they are carried down . . . to the Hell of the deceitful, which is in the western quarter deep down at the back, and there they appear as serpents of various kinds, and the most deceitful as vipers . . . Presently, as they sit or stand, they make themselves invisible, and fly about in the cavern like phantoms . . . and after flying they rest themselves; and then, wonderful to say, one does not know another; the reason of which is that they are in deceit, and deceit does not believe another, and therefore withdraws itself.

T. 321^e. In the widest natural sense (the eighth commandment) includes plots, deceits, and evils of purpose against anyone . . .

322. This falsity is meant in the Word by 'a lie;' and the purpose by 'deceit.' III.

324. They who speak falsities from deceit or purpose, and utter them in a tone imitative of spiritual affection, and especially if they mingle with them truths from the Word . . . were called by the ancients enchanters, and also pythons and serpents of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. (Described by comparisons.)

D. 127 (Index). The Spirits who say there is one Creator of the universe, and are unwilling to acknowledge the Lord, are evil and deceitful in proportion as they recede from the acknowledgment of the Lord.

132 (Index). Certain Spirits are most deceitful; Sirens are.

191. There are deceitful Spirits who can put on the appearance of Angels; but they are the worst . . .

225. Some of (the worst Genii, or furies) infested me so deceitfully and acutely that I could never have believed it possible for such poisons to exist . . .

284. They sought for innocencies with all deceit and diligence.

287. The lowest infernal crew consists of those who act the most deceitfully . . .

480. The worst Spirits are those who have been called Christians . . . They are most deceitful, and contrive such deceits together against the Lord . . . and against the faithful (as to excite astonishment).

535. They know that (the Spirits of our Earth) are cunning and deceitful. 594.

639. I was told that (these Spirits who are very high up in Heaven) are Genii, whose influx is malignant and most deceitful . . .

640. On the way, before their deceit or poison came to me, it was taken up by intermediate Spirits, and so tempered.

641. There are Spirits who lie concealed . . . so that their phantasies, and their deceitful arts and wiles do not become so manifest as those of other Spirits: they are in the zenith . . . and suppose that they can betake themselves into subtler nature; wherefore, as they say, they do not fear anything. But still their deceits appear manifestly whenever it is so permitted by the Lord . . . They insert themselves in covert into the manifest deceits of others.

644. The Spirits who were continually plotting deceits . . . were warned by others to desist, but they confessed they could not, even if they were to die . . . 1247.

865. The callosities in which are mixed such things as savour of deceit . . . cannot be so easily softened and resolved; wherefore it is effected by the punishment of rending asunder.

909. Such dwell near the place where are the worst infernal deceitful Spirits . . . for deceits are manifold.

929^e. Everything sharp = deceit, or cunning.

956. No one can judge concerning the life of another from (his intellectual abilities), for the evil can be more acute . . . than the good, as they who are deceitful, yea, the most deceitful, and robbers . . .

1071. On the punishment of a certain Spirit who desired to do everything from himself, as though he were alone, being at the same time deceitful.

1169. This deceitful (way) acquired in the life of the body, is so manifestly obvious to the Angels . . . that they observe it in every word he says. 1824.

1246. (On the deceitful in the dark chamber.)

1257. On a certain cunning and deceitful Spirit; his life; and his punishment in the other life.

1354. Such Spirits come by deceit into the region of the left eye . . . (Their punishment described.)

1356. That those who are inwardly deceitful—subdoli—are unexpectedly cast out of Societies. Des.

1490. The more interiorly (these revengeful Spirits) can enter and thus pervert, the more they desire to do so, and that with various deceits . . .

1808. Sought with art and deceit to exercise command . . .

1863. On those who in their lifetime deceitfully kill men.

1992. Some turn good into evil from deceit.

1993. There are three general causes . . . by which good is turned into evil, namely, from deceit, from art, and from a nature which has been contracted.

1994. Truth, also, is turned into falsity, either from deceit . . . from art . . . or from nature . . . as is the case with the Gentiles, who are much more easily saved than those who act from deceit and art.

2046. Their state can be known from the sound of their voice, as . . . whether they are deceitful, which is manifested in the speech itself, although no deceits are perceived. . . The speech of the deceitful is tacit, there being in every tone an image of the deceit, which is known by those to whom the Lord gives to know it.

2078. Wherefore he cannot desist, as is evident from his acting deceitfully under the pleasantness of another as it were appropriated to himself.

2346. Such are they who are the worst, who entirely profane holy things, and are nothing but hatreds attended with deceits. In the other life these cannot be reformed . . .

2408. Some (personate others) in order to contrive deceits the better.

2492. There are genera and species of those who are serpents, or of those who in the life of the body have been deceitful, and who in the other life are called serpents . . . for the Angels see their interiors, and then their deceits appear before the eyes of Spirits as creeping things . . . because in serpents there are poisons, by which in nature are represented deceits.

2494. At first, I supposed that they were good Spirits, but when I perceived their wiles I knew that they were deceitful, for whatever wiles they were able to plot and at once carry out, they applied themselves to.

2495. But there was a certain kind of deceit in others, not so observable . . . Their deceit was active . . .

2500. Such accustom themselves to the like deceits. Enum.

2503. This kind of deceit may be called the deceit of flatterers . . . being thus distinguished into genera, and these into species.

2525. These are they who in life have been deceitful.

2532. Hence it may be evident how unhappy those become after death who are deceitful, and are accustomed to deceits; for deceits are what occupy this interior sphere . . . These are tormented much longer . . . for before the deceits which have entered their natural disposition . . . are extirpated, there is a long time of torment . . .

2762. In those who are deceitful, when they are looked at by Angels, there appear as it were other confluxes of serpents of various kinds, according to the nature of the deceit.

2848. On the deceitful.

— Spirits who are deceitful are not permitted to be in the World of Spirits, unless their poisons are taken away, or are tempered, so that they cannot injure anyone. Many, indeed, are to be preserved—reservandi—who do what is evil from a nature as it were like this, and that deceitfully, too, but who yet do so from natural instinct. It is they who occasion evil with premeditation, who hide their poisons, and thus do so deceitfully, who are not tolerated. A distinction is to be drawn between deceit as an instinct, and premeditated deceit.

2855. On the Hell of those who act from premeditated deceit, and who have put on such a nature.

— Spirits were shown me who were accustomed to deceive—decipere—men with acute deceit, putting on an agreeable face and address, and concealing poisonous deceits within . . . They were permitted to come into view, and to contrive their deceitful arts . . .

2856. I was told that . . . such were they who contrive subtle deceits, with premeditation, and thus deceive—decipiunt—under the guise of a friendly countenance, thinking of nothing but their neighbour's ruin . . .

2857. Their Hell is more frightful than any other, worse than that of murderers from hatred, and that of those who act without premeditated deceit . . . See A.830, above.

2858. Such are not like those who are deceitful by nature, and who make prudence to consist therein; for when these are present the fact is at once known both from their wanting to speak into the ear, and tacitly, and also from the sound of their speech . . . Such deceitful ones do not receive so frightful a Hell, but a different one . . .

2876. A discourse with a certain deceitful Spirit.

— He said that he could deceive—decipere—the devil, so artfully did he insinuate his deceits; insisting that as all derive their life from the Lord . . . the Lord led him to deceits . . .

2936. That the deceitful send Subjects, through whom they perform their deceits, so that they themselves may lie hidden.

— (The nature of the deceitful shown.)

2963. Sirens are they who insinuate themselves into the cupidities . . . in such a manner . . . that they (themselves) are unaware that evil or deceit is beneath . . . But they who, when they insinuate themselves, meditate concerning deceits . . . are not Sirens, but are the deceitful.

3080. If Heaven merely looks at a deceitful one, he is turned into a ball of serpents.

3186. On those who do not care for interior things; the deceitful.

— Some of them, who were more deceitful, insinuated themselves deceitfully—subdole—into the company of angelic Spirits . . . as was perceived from a kind of inanimate snowiness being perceived around . . .

3206. (In Gehenna) are the most deceitful, especially Sirens, who enter into the dispositions of others by an appearance of piety, and most deceitfully delude and seduce . . .

3214. On a deceitful murderer.

— There exhaled from him so much subtle poison, that it excited the deceitful and the more deceitful Sirens, who so scattered and exercised their poisonous deceits, that it cannot be described.

3215^e. Then the deceitful murderer appeared like an inanimate mass, thus representing himself out of deceit; and then perhaps pouring round his deceits like poisons . . .

3457. There were above the head those who act with clandestine deceit . . . they at once acted from their nature . . .

3601. Such deceitful ones, who persuade to pity . . . keep themselves under the occiput . . .

3605 $\frac{1}{2}$. On the quality of the phantasies of those who are deceitful Genii.

3638. The deceitful are pre-eminently in such (interior) thought . . .

3640^e. (The evil who are in the interior sphere) are entirely removed from the deceitful, and still more from the most deceitful, so that they cannot communicate . . .

3647. There was a certain one among the deceitful or the Sirens above the head. That he was a new one, was observed from the nature of his deceit, which was greater and more intense than their deceit . . . I thus knew that a new deceitful one was in their company . . . He had been a Pontiff . . .

3663. They are more deceitful than others, and by such are the Pontiffs ruled as soon as they are made Pontiffs.

3664. These are they who rule the Spirits above spoken of as being more deceitful than others . . .

3684. This was confirmed by the deceitful above the head, who said that they could treat him like a dog.

3712. Such, above all others, desire to come into the world through others, because they are most deceitful . . .

3713. They do not manifest their deceit . . .

3780. It was observed that (the Quakers) are not so deceitful as others, but that there is a kind of secret deceit . . .

3793. The deceit (of the Quakers) was found to consist in this, that they dare not publish their thoughts . . . wherefore they are deceitful in covert, their nature drawing them back . . . This kind of deceit differs from all others.

3838. There was a subtle Spirit with me who was a Subject of the deceitful above the head . . . and who believed himself to be the Holy Spirit . . .

3841. Those above the head, the deceitful among the more deceitful, who suppose themselves to be the Holy Spirit . . . actuated him . . . 3843^e.

[D.] 3847. As the deceitful who are above the head are devoid of conscience . . . they wanted to induce upon me that what is indifferent ought to be a matter of conscience . . .

3849. Yet, inwardly, they are wolves, as are the deceitful who are above the head.

3851. As I lay in bed, the deceitful Spirits above the head formed a design to destroy me . . .

3923^e. They are not only malignities, but are also filthily deceitful, thus wanting to plot their deceits through the innocent. 3924^e.

3925. Through the noble offspring of the Most Ancient Church, the Lord rules those most deceitful ones of all, who are the highest up above the head. —^e.

3926. On the most deceitful above the head.

— The most deceitful above the head plotted nefarious deceits . . . When it was detected, they sent those deceitful ones whom they lead . . .

3927. They are punished by grievous punishments of doubling up . . . being reduced into a very gross state . . . even contrary to their deceits; and then they are also doubled up, or by doublings up they are broken and torn as to all their members from the breast in succession to the feet . . . Their heads are hard and bony, and, if thus treated, would be broken . . .

3933. The deceitful and the most deceitful are in general such that they take hardly anything from man's ideas but what is innocent and heavenly, and thereby lay an ambush for him, turning it by various methods to destroy the man . . .

3968. Those most deceitful Spirits were then seen (acting) not by bodily circumflexions, but by borings . . . and by spiral turnings, and it was said that such are the worst, because they act so deceitfully in order to extricate themselves from the societies of others . . . As, however, they are devoid of persuasion, and act solely from phantasy, they could be tolerated in the World of Spirits; still, they are cadaverous.

3978. On the most deceitful.

— There were some who, in the middle of the night, when I suddenly awoke, assaulted me with such subtle deceit that it cannot be described. It was scarcely observed by the angelic Spirits . . .

3997. They who are highest above the head . . . who flow into the lower deceitful ones, while I was writing, inflicted a pain in the region of the abdomen, which was their own anguish . . . because they did not want to be exposed, or written about. I spoke to them, and perceived that they could insinuate themselves into my affections and excite my pity . . .

4020. Both the deceitful and the most deceitful above the head joined themselves to (the Sirens), and flowed in through them . . . and when they were told that they should desist, because if they persevered they would be reduced into a miserable state, they said that they could not possibly desist.

4039. The evil who in the life of the body have been but little deceitful, in the other life become very deceitful.

4041. The deceitful Spirits above the head, by mere thought and the leading of it, led the Spirits above me to speak . . . This was shown by others, who led the deceitful, too, to speak . . .

4057. I wondered that the deceitful, Sirens, etc., were possessed of such knowledge in infusing and doing evil . . . I knew that in the life of the body they knew nothing of the kind; as, for instance, that the deceitful should flow in most deceitfully into all things of thought and affection, and pervert them . . . But in proportion as anyone is in the life of cupidities, he is in the knowledge of those things which belong to the cupidities; hence, in the other life, come such deceits and malignities.

4067. When the most deceitful above the head . . . wanted to destroy me, they said that they could not, because there is nothing (of me); but if there were anything, they could do it. . . To be anything, as anything of proprium, would be to be what they can attack and destroy . . . as the most deceitful would then have it within their rights . . . Thus is he safe, who, in the truth of faith, believes himself to be nothing.

4068. When (the noble offspring of the Most Ancient Church) spoke with me, the most deceitful who were highest up above the head fell down over my head, and gravitated upon the head so heavily that I felt it like a weight, insomuch that if they had not been directly over my head, [they would have sunk] into the deep . . .

4069. The noble offspring of the Most Ancient Church said that it was given them to rule the most deceitful, and that when they took from them their lofty disposition or pride, which holds them in their highest station, they fell down . . . and then the most deceitful could not open their mouths.

4085. Such are in Hell . . . in the filthiest excrements; and are vassated to the very bones, because they are most deceitful . . .

4086. Certain evil and deceitful Spirits are really in Hell, although they appear in the World of Spirits, as, for instance, the most deceitful above the head are in Hell under the buttocks . . . So with others who are in Gehenna . . . when the phantasy of magic and deceit comes on them, they seem to be elsewhere . . .

4097. The deceitful above the head knew how to take to themselves (female) Subjects from those who are above the head, whom others had not observed to be present . . . 4098.

4098^e. While the deceitful remained above the head (this Siren) could turn them into monsters . . . wherefore they were not permitted to have such a one for a Subject.

4101. On the most deceitful.

— It is amazing that the most deceitful above the head, who have been Pontiffs and the like, as soon as anything innocent appears, cannot desist from seizing it as a means for laying an ambush. Examp.

4352. On hypocrites and the deceitful.

— Spirits clearly showed that hypocrites and the deceitful are much more foolish and senseless than others who openly speak what is right and true . . . (Bergenstierna) supposed himself to have been very prudent and wise, and that no one had observed him, whereas all could observe his hypocrisy and deceit. It is granted to nearly every man thus to see that there are deceit and hypocrisy, and also the quality of the deceit and hypocrisy, and that, too, in every single thing he says. This dissociates them from others, and no one trusts them, because all are aware of it after slight intercourse. That they should suppose no one can see and know this, is due to their senselessness; so that they apprehend less than others. All the deceitful are of this character, and still more is this the case in the other life . . .

4370. On deceitful and evil Spirits who desire to torment innocent little children . . .

4424. She projected herself through spiral forms, by which is signified something deceitful . . .

4546. To the right, obliquely in front (in the Hells) are the deceitful, deeper and deeper in proportion as they are more deceitful.

4583. On a certain most wicked one, who was deceitful under the appearance of innocence: his Hell.

4589. Hell. On those who inmosty cherish deceits against the neighbour, and outwardly appear sincere.

4681². (On the Jesuits.) The deceitful . . . are at the back of the former, and appear as if standing . . . They take extreme care not to be discovered; when discovered before the eyes of the Angels they appear like conglomerated serpents . . . They reject from themselves . . . those who are not deceitful . . . They cast themselves above the head . . . and look down below, plotting deceits . . . Their deceits cannot be described . . .

5109. The deceitful (are devastated) in a different way, because they think more deeply or interiorly than others . . .

5634². With those who have been deceitful, and have burned with revenge to the very end of life, and have perceived their delight therein, there is nothing whole remaining.

6053. Deceit is heinous because it enters into the interiors of man, even into the Rational . . . and there completely closes the spiritual mind.

— These three evils (adultery, the love of exercising command, and deceit) will be especially shunned by those who will be of the New Jerusalem.

Min. 4774. On revenge attended with deceit.

— (The archbishop James Benzelius) took extreme delight in contriving deceits in his thought . . .

— Hence it is evident that the lust of doing evil to others from interior deceit leads the spirit into such cupidities as it had not exercised before, or as it had not had hereditarily . . . so that the life which is the interior life is diminished . . . It was said that they who are in the lust of revenge, and at the same time in deceit . . . appear like dried up skeletons.

4786^e. When (vengeful devils) speak, there is heard as it were a silent hiss after their speech, and this from interior deceit.

E. 329¹⁸. 'The Lord shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence' (Ps.lxxii.14)=deliverance from the evils and falsities which destroy the goods of love and truths of faith.

—²³. 'The man of bloods and deceits' (Ps.v.6)= those who are in falsities from evil.

866. 'In their mouth was found no guile'=that they are averse to think and to persuade falsities. . . 'Guile'=to deceive-fallere-and seduce from purpose, thus from the intention which is of the will; and thus from the mind to think and persuade falsities, which destroy man to eternity.

—². What else 'deceit'=in the Word. Ill.

—³. 'Deceit' (Zeph.iii.13)=falsity not from ignorance of truth, but from the deliberate purpose of deceiving-fallendi, as is the case with the wicked.

—⁴. 'Deceit' (Ps.v.6)=this from purpose.

— The lips and tongue, with which they speak a lie and deceit (Jer.ix.5,6)=thought with intention to persuade falsities contrary to truths, and to seduce.

— 'Iniquity' (Job.xiii.7)=regards evil; 'deceit,' falsity thence.

— In these places, 'deceit' does not mean deceit in the natural sense, in which it means fraudulent machination, and a lie from malice against others; but deceit in the spiritual sense, in which 'deceit' is thought from the intention of the will, that is, from the purpose or deliberation of speaking and persuading falsities; and thus a mind to destroy.

—⁵. This done from purpose is meant by 'the deceit of their heart' (Jer.xiv.14).

—⁶. That by 'deceit' is meant the falsification of the truths of the Word from purpose, and also from the cupidity of seducing, is evident from Hosea: 'Ephraim hath encompassed me with a lie, and the house of Israel with deceit' (xiii.12) . . . Hence 'a lie' and 'deceit'=to persuade falsities from purpose and cupidity.

—⁷. From this it is evident again that 'deceit' means deceit in the spiritual sense, which is that which is against the truths and goods of the Word and of the Church, thus the mind and cupidity of destroying them.

—⁸. The reason deceit was so grievous a crime is that deliberation and purpose are of the will, and whatever is of the will is of the man himself, and is called the evil of his heart . . .

—⁹. Hence it is evident that 'deceit' in general= all the evil of intention to destroy truths through falsities.

—^e. (Refs. to passages on the subject of deceit.)

908^e. 'The lip of a lie, and the tongue of deceit' (Ps.cxx.2)=falsities from evil.

J.(Post.) 5. In England . . . there is no liberty to use deceit and cunning in order to deceive-fallendum-others . . . But the opposite is the case with the Italians at the present day; there, there is liberty to deceive-fallendi-with cunning and deceit . . .

Deceive. Decipere.

Deception. Deceptio.

A. 830. See DECEIT at these refs. D.2855. 2856. 2876.

949. In that chamber . . . they consult how they may fraudulently deceive others.

1178². 'Hunting'=to deceive by persuasions, and by Knowledges which they pervert.

[A.] 5573. Still, they did not use these pretences in order to deceive by means of lies.

9348. The deception of evils. Sig. . . Why evils deceive. Ex.

D. 2075. A Spirit acted in a more subtle manner than others . . . thus deceiving, which was natural to him . . .

2967. To-day he invents another wife, in order to deceive the innocent . . .

3710^e. They seize truths and goods, but solely with the end of deceiving others.

4321. See PAUL at this ref.

Min. 4706^e. Thus by deception they can bend the minds of others . . .

Deceive. Fallere.

A. 957^e. (They are punished) until they are struck with terror and horror at deceiving by false speeches.

5270^e. He is much mistaken. 5342^d.

7356. The delight of their life to reason from falsities, and thus to deceive and seduce others.

9013. See DECEIT at these refs. E.866. —³. J.(Post.)5.

R. 455. They speak truths with the mouth, but falsify them . . . and thus deceive. Sig.

De Conj. 88. They who speak much about God, but care nothing about deceiving men . . . commit adultery with maid-servants . . .

Decimate. See under TEN.

Decision. Decisio.

A. 1857^d. 'I have heard a consummation and decision' (Is.xxviii.22).

—'. 'Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people' (Dan.ix.24).

—'. 'Even to the consummation and decision' (ver.27).

2905^e. See CONSUMMATE at these refs. R.478^e. T.755^e. E.374⁹.

10456. Suspense as to the combat between falsity and truth, and no decision. Sig.

D. 5545. Without such an Intellectual, he could never come to a decision as to what is true.

E. 397³. 'Consummation' and 'decision' in these passages=the last state of the Church, which exists when there is no longer truth because there is no longer good . . . and then comes the Last Judgment.

De Verbo 12. This will of good, when it is determined to this use, becomes . . . the affection of truth, then the perception of truth, and presently, by means of rational light, the thought of truth, thus decision and conclusion . . .

Declare. See TELL, UTTER—enuntiare, and PRONOUNCE.

Declare. Declarare.

Declaration. Declaratio.

M. 167^e. This would carry with it the declaration and publication of their love.

296³. Hence . . . declaration belongs to the men.

300. After a declaration of consent, pledges are to be given.

—³. They were then declared to be bride and bridegroom.

D. 4650. They then declared that they now know what the internal man is.

E. 785². They declare such to be saved.

Decline. See TURN ASIDE.

Declivity. Declivitas, Declivē.

M. 79^d. We descended by a long declivity.

D. 4896. They appeared as on a height to which there was no slope, when yet there are everywhere slopes by which people ascend.

5244. According to the declivity of the globe . . .

Decorate. Decorare.

Decoration. Decoramentum.

A. 1627. It has also been granted me to see the decorations (in Heaven), as for instance those on the steps and gates; they seemed to move as if they were alive, and to vary themselves with an ever new beauty and symmetry; and I was informed that the variations can go on for ever . . . with a constantly new harmony . . .

1774^e. Adorned with chaplets and heavenly ornaments.

2758^e. Their wings decorated with golden and silver colours . . .

R. 606. Decorated with the laurel of tutorship.

M. 91. To decorate herself, and exalt her beauty.

T. 404². (The love of the world) is less hurtful if it regards as an end the splendid things of the world, such as palaces, decorations . . .

797^e. They adorned (Melancthon's) room with decorations . . .

D. 711. There was only shown me the decoration which followed, only the decoration of a gate . . .

1087. On rainbow decorations.

—'. The varieties of such representations or decorations are as numerous as minds. These are distinct from the decorations of the spiritual.

3381. Men and little children so decorated that they can never be described.

5601^e. On their beds and ceilings there sometimes appear beautiful variegations of many decorations when they live a life of truth and good; otherwise they are changed.

6042. (Melancthon) found out how by a phantastic art to produce appearances of decorations . . .

6088^e. There are also table decorations which cannot be described in natural language.

J.(Post.) 28. In (Melancthon's) chamber there are bare stone walls without decorations . . . When he writes these things about good works, he begins to adorn his chamber with various decorations; but after he has written and left them on the table he cannot see them . . . and then the decorations of his chamber vanish.

229. The truths of faith are compared to the decorations and furniture in palaces . . .

254. The decorations in the houses (of the Jews) are resplendent with silver, gold, and diamonds.

Decorum. See BECOMING.

Decrease. Decrescere, Decrescentia.

A. 494². As the Church decreases . . .

495. As the Most Ancient Church decreased . . .

530. The case with Churches is that they decrease . . . 2909³. 2910⁴. 2913³.

2905³. Good and truth . . . is wont to decrease.

W. 94. Spiritual heat and light decrease in proceeding, and the decrease takes place through degrees.

186. Thus does wisdom decrease down to ignorance, as light decreases to shade.

253². In each Society the light decreases from the middle to the boundaries.

302. The atmospheres . . . decrease in downward progression according to degrees of breadth . . . 303.

Decree. Decernere, Decretum.

A. 3401. A decree from the Lord in the Spiritual Church. Sig. 3402.

473⁸. When it was decreed concerning the Lord's two natures . . .

D. 2876. It was decreed from eternity . . .

Decree. Sancire.

P. 256. A religion which decrees . . . So, too, with some other things decreed of the Christian religion.

317. Many statutes and ordinances—sancita.

322². There hardly exists a nation so barbarous as not to have decreed by laws that murder is not to be committed . . .

R. 798⁴. A religion by which it is decreed that Divine Power belongs to a man.

T. 14². The Decalogue . . . decrees that . . .

16. (The notion that the Father and the Son) decreed—decernant—and decree who are worthy . . .

134². (And that) the rest may remain sons of wrath, as was before decreed.

465. These are the precepts, dogmas, and decrees of the modern Church concerning free-will . . . They have been presented in order that the precepts, dogmas, and decrees of the New Church on these subjects may be more clearly seen.

501³. They have decreed that man can contribute nothing . . .

503. They then poured forth and published their decree.

De Domino. (The work.)

De Dom. 1. Date of the De Domino. Ath.2. 45. 52, etc.

Dedan. Dedan.

Dedanites. Dedanim.

A. 1168. 'Sheba and Dedan' (Gen. x.7) are the nations with whom (these Knowledges of faith) were: in the internal sense by these same nations are signified the Knowledges themselves; but with this difference, that by 'the sons of Cush' are signified the Knowledges of spiritual things; and by 'the sons of Raamah' (that is, Sheba and Dedan), the Knowledges of celestial things. 1171, Ill.

1172. That by 'Dedan' are signified the Knowledges of lower celestial things, which are in rituals. Ill.

—^e. 'Dedan,' here (Jer. xlix.8), in the proper sense = the rituals in which there is no internal worship or adoration of the Lord from the heart . . .

3240. 'Jokshan begat Sheba and Dedan' (Gen. xxv.3) = the derivations from the first lot.

—³. 'Sheba and Dedan' are those who constitute the first class, that is, those who in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom are in the good of faith, and who possess doctrinal things of charity; hence it is that 'Sheba and Dedan' = the Knowledges of celestial things, or, what is the same, those who are in the Knowledges of celestial things, that is, who are in the doctrinal things of charity; for doctrinal things are Knowledges, and charity is the Celestial which belongs to the spiritual man. That 'Sheba and Dedan' have this signification, was shown before; but there 'Sheba and Dedan' are grandsons of Ham, and are called sons of Raamah. The fact is that there never were such persons . . . Yet there were nations which were so called, but which were descended from others, as were 'Sheba and Dedan,' who, as is here evident, were descended from Jokshan the son of Abraham by Keturah. (The signification of Dedan ill.)

—⁶. 'Sheba and Dedan' (Ezek. xxxviii.13) = the internal things of worship, namely, the goods of faith. . . . In the proper sense, 'Sheba' = those who are in the Knowledges of good; 'Dedan,' those who are in the Knowledges of truth from good.

3241. 'The sons of Dedan were Ashurim, and Letushim, and Leummim' (Gen. xxv.3) = the derivations from the second lot. 'Dedan' = those who are in the good of faith, properly, those who are in the truth of faith from good.

3268⁷. 'The troops of the Dedanites' (Is. xxi.13) = those who are in Knowledges.

E. 195⁸. 'Dedan was thy tradress with garments of liberty for the chariot' (Ezek. xxvii.20): 'Dedan' = those who are in the Knowledges of celestial things.

Deduce. See DRAW DOWN.

Deed. See under DO.

Deem. Censere.

A. 10217. The word for number used here in the Original Language means to survey, reckon, etc.

T. 343°. Almost nothing besides this is deemed to be properly theological.

Deep. See under HIGH—altus.

Deep. Abyssus.

A. 18. 'The faces of the deep' (Gen.i.2)=cupidities and thence falsities, from and in which he is wholly. As he has no light, he is like an abyss, or a confused dark something. Such are also called 'the abysses and depths of the sea' in various places in the Word, which are 'dried up' or 'wasted' before man is being regenerated, as in Is. li. 10.

206°. What can be the result but an abyss of darkness?

215. They fall into mere falsities, thus into an abyss of darkness.

756. 'The fountains of the great deep were broken up' (Gen.vii.11)=the extreme of temptation as to voluntary things. . . 'The deep'=cupidities and falsities thence. Ill. 845.

—, 'The deep,' and 'many waters' (Ezek.xxvi.19)=the extreme of temptation.

—, 'Waters,' and 'the deep' (Jon.ii.5)=the extreme of temptation. 1691⁵.

—². In ancient times, the deep meant Hell; and phantasies and false persuasions were likened to the waters and floods and also to the smoke therefrom; and so do some of the Hells appear, to wit, as deeps and as seas. . . That Hell is called 'the deep,' and the filthy things thence, 'floods,' is evident from Ezek.xxxi.15.

845°. The fountains of the deep, which are the Hells.

1664². 'The bottomless pit' (Rev.xi.7)=Hell.

2702¹¹. 'Rivers,' 'waters,' 'fountains,' and 'deeps' (Deut.viii.7)=the truths thence derived.

—¹³. 'Waters,' 'floods,' and 'deeps' (Ps.lxxviii.15)=truths from the Lord.

3579². 'The deep that lieth under' (Deut.xxxiii.13)=natural things.

4197⁴. 'The beast from the bottomless pit,' or Hell, 'shall kill them' (Rev.xi.7)=the vastation of good and truth within the Church.

6431. 'Blessings of the deep that lieth under' (Gen.xlix.25)=the scientifics which are in the Natural. . . 'The deep that lieth under'=the scientifics in the Natural: the Natural is called 'the deep that lieth under' relatively to interior things, which are 'heaven;' and as the Natural is signified by 'the deep that lieth under,' scientifics are also signified, for scientifics together with their delights are in the Natural. . . 'The deep' also=scientific truths in the Natural in the blessing of Joseph (Deut.xxxiii.13).

6726°. 'The deep which was round about' (Jon.ii.5)=the evil of falsity.

7519. 'The pit of the abyss' (Rev.ix.2)=Hell.

7643. 'The abyss out of which the locusts came=Hell.

8099². 'The waters of the great deep,' and 'the depths of the sea' (Is.li.10)=the Hell where are those who are in faith separated from charity, and in a life of evil.

8278. 'The deeps have covered them' (Ex.xv.5)=that falsities from cupidities have overwhelmed them. 'The deeps'=the falsities which are from cupidities. By 'deeps' in the Word are meant waters, and the abundance of waters in the depths; and waters=truths or falsities; and the depths—profunda—the Hells: hence it is that 'the deeps'=falsities from cupidities, and also the Hells.

—, That 'the deeps' in the Word mean waters in the depths, and the abundance of waters, is evident from Ezek.xxxi.4; etc. In these places, 'the deeps' stand for waters in abundance; and waters in abundance, or the deeps, stand for the truths of faith in abundance. 'He made them drink great deeps out of the rock' (Ps.lxxviii.15)=truths of faith without deficiency. 'The deeps going forth out of the valley and out of the mountain' (Deut.viii.7)=the truths of faith from love. . .

—². That 'the deeps'=falsities from cupidities, thus also the Hells. Ill.

—³. As these things are signified by 'the deeps,' temptations are also signified by them; for temptations are effected through the injection of falsities and evils by the Hells. Ill.

8279. 'The depths—profunditates'=the Hells relatively to evils; and 'the deeps,' the Hells relatively to the falsities which come from them. Ill.

8288. 'The deeps were congealed in the heart of the sea' (Ex.xv.8)=that the mere falsities from the evil of the cupidities of self-love could not at all emerge. . . 'The deeps'=falsities from cupidities, and also the Hells.

9433°. 'The deep with which it is covered as with a garment' (Ps.civ.6)=scientific truth for the natural man.

R. 421. 'There was given unto him the key of the pit of the abyss' (Rev.ix.1)=their Hell opened. . . 'The abyss'=the Hell where are those who have confirmed with themselves justification and salvation by faith alone, who are all from the Church of the Reformed; here, however, those who, in their own eyes and thence in the eyes of many others, appear learned and erudite, when yet before the Angels in Heaven they appear bereft of understanding as to the things which are of Heaven and the Church; for they who confirm that faith even to its interiors close the higher things of their understanding, and at last to such a degree, that they can no longer see any spiritual truth in light. Ex. B.87. 89.

—². (This pit, and the abyss below it described.) B.89.

440. 'They had a king over them, the angel of the abyss, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he hath the name Apollyon' (ver.11)=that those are in the Satanic Hell who are in falsities from concupiscences, and have destroyed the Church by the total falsification of the Word. . . 'The abyss'=the Satanic Hell, where these are.

442². They abide in the southern quarter of the abyss.

500. See BEAST at this ref.

566². There then ascended some from the abyss who at first appeared like locusts, but afterwards like dwarfs; they were those who in the world had prayed to God the Father, and had confirmed justification by faith alone ; being the same as those treated of in Rev.ix.2 . . . They said that they saw truths in light ; but they were told that they saw them in fatuous light . . . which is the confirmation of falsity . . . and this was confirmed by the fact that when they looked up to Heaven . . . they saw darkness ; but when they looked down to the abyss . . . they saw light . . . T.162.

—³. They then retired, and let themselves down into their abyss . . .

—⁴. When they came to their own in the abyss . . .

734. 'Is about to come up out of the abyss, and go into perdition' (Rev.xvii.8)=what is sometimes deliberated in the Papal Consistory concerning the reception and reading of the Word by the laity and common people, but it is rejected. . . By 'the abyss out of which it is about to ascend' nothing can be signified but that religiosity, and especially where its throne is, thus the Papal Consistory. It is an abyss, because that which is decreed there regards dominion over the holy things of the Church and over Heaven, and thus over all things of the Lord and His Word.

840. 'Having the key of the abyss' (Rev.xx.1)=the Divine Power of opening and shutting Hell.

843. 'His being cast into the abyss' (Rev.xx.3)=that they were let down towards Hell.

T. 32^o. How singulars emulate universals, and represent the infinity of God, is an abyss, and is an ocean.

110⁷. That Spirit was then sent away into the abyss treated of in Rev.ix.2, where the angels of the dragon discuss the mystical things of their faith.

113^o. Some of them fell into the abyss treated of in Rev.ix.2, which is now in the southern quarter, towards the east, where those are who confirm justification by faith alone.

290^o. The Lord's Divine wisdom they call an abyss. Now as the Word is from this abyss, because from the Lord, it is evident that there is a certain infinity in all things of it.

350. The Lord's Word is an abyss of truths . . .

628². 'The abyss' (Rev.ix.11)=the abode of these falsities.

D. 2679. When the eternal was represented as an abyss without a bottom, some who looked into its depths were struck with intense fear . . .

3385. As the darkness of the abyss.

5372. Being gathered into one they were sent into the abyss ; their abyss is in the southern quarter (towards the east) . . . Hence it is that the dragon is said to have been sent into the abyss, and there kept bound a thousand years.

5467. They were cast into such an abyss as opened in front of that lake, which abyss was dark, and tended deep under the sulphurous lake. In front there also opened a similar abyss, which tended underneath the other one ; into this were cast those who knew about the Divine, and frequented places of worship, and yet had been in like wickedness. 5468, See the figure. De Conj. 93.

5751. On the abyss.

— The abyss treated of in the Revelation, into which the dragon was at length cast, is completely and directly under the genitals ; there appears there a great and wide cavern, black and pitch dark ; thither was cast the dragon himself (Bishop Benzel.) and many who adhered to him . . . It is a vast gulf, and is the receptacle of the filth of the urine, but not of that of the excrement, because all there love falsities, and commingle falsities with truths.

E. 275¹¹. 'The deeps which He bestows in treasures' (Ps.xxxiii.7)=the scientific sensuous things which are the most general and ultimate of the natural man, and simultaneously in which are interior or higher truths. —¹².

283⁸. 'To trust under the deep' (Ps.xci.4)=scientific truth, which is the Divine Spiritual Natural.

340¹⁶. 'The blessings of the deep that lieth under' (Gen.xlix.)=the multiplications of truth from good in the external or natural man.

342¹¹. 'The seas' and 'the deeps' (Ps.cxxxv.)=those who are in the ultimates (of Heaven).

372⁴. 'The deep which was covered over him' (Ezek.xxxi.15)=the Knowledges of truth. . . 'The deep,' or 'the sea'=the Scientific and Cognitive in general which is in the natural man.

374⁷. 'Fountains'=interior truths ; 'deeps' (Deut.viii), exterior truths.

388²⁵. 'Whales' and 'deeps' (Ps.cxlviii.7)=scientifics and Knowledges in general, or in the whole complex.

405²⁰. 'The deep' (Ps.xxxvi.)=truths in general, which are called the truths of faith.

—²¹. 'The deep' (Ps.civ.)=scientifics in general.

—²². 'The deep that lieth under'=spiritual natural things.

448⁷. 'The deep that lieth under'=the natural man where are the Knowledges of truth and good for perception, and scientifics which confirm.

518³. 'The deeps that go forth out of the valley and out of the mountain' (Deut.viii.)=the Knowledges of truth and good in the natural man, and in the Spiritual.

—¹⁵. 'The deep' (Ezek.xxxi.)=the Knowledges of truth which are in the natural man.

535². 'The pit of the abyss' (Rev.ix.)=the Hell where and whence are the falsities of evil.

536. 'There was given unto him the key of the pit of the abyss'=communication and conjunction with the Hells. . . 'The pit of the abyss'=the Hells where and whence are the falsities of evil.

537. 'And he opened the pit of the abyss'=communication and conjunction with the Hells where and whence are such falsities. . . The reason it is called 'the pit of the abyss,' is that 'a pit' (or well)=the Word in the sense of the letter and the truth of doctrine thence, and in the opposite sense the Word falsified and thence falsity of doctrine ; and 'the abyss' and depth of the sea=Hell. The reason it=the Hell where are those who falsified the truths of the Word by applying them to evils of life, is that these Hells appear to those who are above like seas, and those who are there appear in their depths . . . 538.

[E.] 538². That 'seas,' 'depths,' and 'abysses' = the Hells where and whence are the falsities of evil. Ill.

—¹⁴. As 'the abysses' = the Hells where and whence are falsities, so 'the abysses' = the ultimates of Heaven, where and whence are the Knowledges of truth, which are the truths of the natural man. The reason is that the ultimates of Heaven also appear as it were in waters, but thin and clear ones . . . Ill.

—¹⁵. 'Abysses' in these places = the ultimates of Heaven, in which are the spiritual natural Angels.

—^e. Moreover, 'abysses' also = Divine truths in abundance, and the arcana of Divine Wisdom. Ill.

539. 'The pit of the abyss' = the Hell where are they who have falsified the Word.

650. 'The abyss' = Hell.

—¹². 'The deeps' and 'the seas' (Ps. cxlviii.) = the Natural itself where are scientifics.

946³. 'Judgments' are predicated of Divine truths, which are compared to 'a great deep' (Ps. xxxvi. 6); for 'the great deep' = Divine truth.

1055. 'Is about to come up out of the abyss, and go into perdition' = the Word acknowledged as Divine for form's sake, but still rejected. 'To come up out of the abyss,' when predicated of the Word with those who belong to Babylonia, = to be received and acknowledged as Divine for form's sake.

Deep. Profundus.

Depth. Profunditas.

Deeply. Profunde.

A. 904². This would be to have an infernal deep between him and the Lord.

1286³. 'Deep of lip' (Ezek. iii. 5) is said of the gentiles, who, although they are in falsity of doctrine, are still in charity . . .

1307^e. The more the Hells will to lift up their heads to Heaven, the more deeply they depress themselves.

1380. By phantasies Spirits may be carried up on high . . . and at the same moment into the deep.

2057³. In the other life, all who are in self-love are more deeply infernal than others.

2754. The Hell of the most deceitful is deeply under the beel.

4601³. The deepest Hell awaits (profaners).

4750⁴. They who are in self-love, being against all good whatever, are in the deepest and therefore in the most grievous Hells; but they who are in the love of the world . . . are in Hells not so deep . . . S318³.

4936. Magicians . . . are deeply in caverns; those who have been more pernicious are more deeply buried.

4951. Beneath the heel . . . there is a Hell deep down . . . Here are the most wicked . . . They are often punished, and are then let more deeply down . . . Out of that deep is sometimes heard a tumult as of massacre.

5057^e. The more deeply (they cast themselves into Hell) the better it is for them.

5394. These Hells are . . . partly deep down in front.

5715. There appeared a great square opening tending obliquely downwards to a great depth; in the deep was seen a round opening . . .

5721^e. Such are cast into Hell deeply.

5977^e. Genii are in the Hells at the back, deep down . . .

6318. They were seen rising from the deep . . .

6353³. They are more tortured by the evil of their life in Heaven than in the deepest Hell.

6677. When the infernals try to attack goods, they are cast deeply into Hell.

6692². In the deepest (of the Hells of the magicians) are the Egyptians.

8273^e. Whenever (the Hells endeavour to force their way up) a number of them are cast down more deeply.

8278. 'Abysses' mean abundance of water in the deeps . . . and by the deeps are signified the Hells.

8279. 'They went down into the depths like a stone' (Ex. xv. 5) = they sank to lower things as by their weight . . . 'The depths' = lower things where the Hells are.

— . See DEEP-abyssus, at this ref.

—². (The term 'deep' Ill.)

—^e. The reason 'the deep' = Hell relatively to evil, is that it is opposite to 'high,' by which is signified Heaven, and which is predicated of good.

8298. 'They sought the deep like lead' (Ex. xv. 10) = that evil dragged them down to lower things, like weights in the world. 'The deep' = lower things, and the Hells as to evils.

8318². They who are in the evil of self-love are deeply in Hell in proportion to the quality and quantity of that love.

8325. States of truth and good, and, in the opposite sense, states of falsity and evil, are represented in the other life by heights and depths.

9656. Hence deep things = exterior ones, and high things = interior ones.

9937⁹. 'The depth of the sea' (Mic. vii. 19) = Hell.

10181^e. Hell is said to be in the deep, because there are no perfection, intelligence or wisdom, and no good and truth there.

10287³. The Hells of the profanations of truth . . . are deeper than the Hells of all other evils, and are rarely opened.

H. 3. They who have denied the Lord's Divine . . . are let down into the deep, and thus completely separated from the rest from the Christian world.

578. They who are not so deceitful . . . are not in such deep Hells.

586. In the deeper Hells are those who have acted interiorly from evil; in the less deep ones are those who have acted exteriorly, that is, from the falsities of evil.

P. 296³. Of himself, an evil man continually leads himself more deeply into his evils. Ex.

R. 143. 'Who have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak' (Rev.ii.24)=who do not understand their interior things, which are mere falsities . . . Its 'depths' = the interior things of the doctrine separated from charity . . . The deep and interior things of this doctrine are what are delivered in their books, lectures, and preaching.

232^e. Their lot is that they are let down into the deep . . .

T. 159^b. Have you seen Socinus . . . or Arius? . . . They are in the deep beneath you . . .

245. Without the understanding of the Word, as it is in itself, in its bosom, and in its depth . . .

D. 1277. On the deepest Hell. 1278. 1279. 1288, Gen.art. 3358.

1292. On a deep Hell under the feet.

3365. They were let down to some depth.

3800. Being inspected when in the deep . . .

4631³. In all the Hells there are places deeper and deeper, which are worse in the lower parts, and still worse in the still deeper ones; I have seen them cast down from one depth into another; and the deeper they go the denser is the appearance of the mist which encompasses them . . .

4682. The depth (of this Hell) is great.

5204. There are gulfs wide and long, and also deep . . . with depths doubled and trebled.

5496. The depths (of their Hell) are numerous according to the degree of the evil.

E. 171. 'Who have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak'=ensnarement thereby . . . Satan . . . continually inspires the loves of self and of the world, and man receives these loves with delight, because they are in him hereditarily, and thus are his proprium; thus does Hell insinuate itself with man and ensnare him; these things are what are signified by 'the depths of Satan.'

453¹¹. 'A people of depths of lip' (Is.xxxiii.19)=falsities of doctrine confirmed even to the appearance of truth. 455¹³.

455¹². 'Peoples deep of lip' (Ezek.iii.6)=those who are in doctrine which is not intelligible.

514². 'Wonders in the deep' (Ps.cvii.24)=the hidden things of intelligence and wisdom.

537⁹. 'The depths of the waters' (Ps.lxix.14)=falsities from the Hells; 'neither let the deep swallow me up'=let not the Hell do so where are the falsities of evil, or let not the falsities of evil which are from Hell.

538³. This is signified by . . . 'He dried up the sea . . . and set its depths for a way that the redeemed might pass over' (Is.li.io).

—⁵. 'To dry up all the depths of the river' (Zech.x.11)=to dissipate all the falsities of evil, even the deeper ones.

—⁷. 'The depths of the sea' (Mic.vii.19)=the Hells where and whence are the falsities of evil; therefore it is said that 'He will cast all our sins into the depths of the sea.'

—¹¹. 'Into the depth even into the heart of the seas' (Jon.ii.3)=Hell.

—¹³. 'The sea' and its 'depths'=the Hells. Ill.

659⁸. 'In the depths' (Ps.lxxxviii.6)=as it were in evils.

1182². 'To be sunk in the deep of the sea' (Matt.xviii.6)=to be cast into Hell.

Deer. See under HIND.

Defame. Diffamare.

A. 4689². They did so because if they spoke against religion they would be defamed. T.405².

—³. He who believes otherwise is defamed.

5721. If they detected any blemish . . . they defamed them.

T. 321. 'To bear false witness against the neighbour' (means) to traduce and defame the neighbour . . .

D. 5962. (They) could acutely defame others.

Defecate. Defaecare.

Defecation. Defaectio.

A. 349². 'Purge (the sons of Levi)' (Mal.iii.3).

5182. This is represented by the impurities in the blood, from which it is to be defecated; this defecation is effected by means of violent motions . . .

8009. That his truth must be defecated from impure loves. Sig.

9293^e. 'To purify the sons of Levi, and to purge them as gold and silver'=the purification of good and truth from evils and falsities.

W. 419². So far the love is defecated from its impurities, and is purified . . .

M. 145². Defecation, rectification, etc.

E. 1159². 'Lees,' and 'lees well refined' (Is.xxv.6)=truths from that good, with the happiness therefrom.

D. Wis. x. 3. This may be illustrated by the defecation of the blood in the lungs . . .

Defect. See FAIL—deficere.

Defend. Defendere.

Defence. Defensio.

A. 270. See ANGEL at these refs. 737. 751. 761. 1683. 5954⁸.

1683^e. The good are in their veriest life . . . when they can perform the use of defending others from evils.

2709. See BOW at this ref.

2851³. Angels from the Lord, that is, the Lord, defend (the rational mind).

4227. Probity defends itself.

4248^e. Man cannot undergo temptations before, because he is not as yet in the Knowledges whereby to defend himself.

4274. Truth is assaulted by the evil Spirits, and defended by the Angels who are with the man . . .

4599¹. 'Towers'=the interior truths which defend those things which are of love and charity.

5008⁷. (When this ultimate truth is withdrawn) the spiritual man no longer has anything wherewith to defend himself against the natural man. Sig. 5009^e. 5022. 5028².

[A.] 5036². See TEMPTATION at these refs. 6097. 8960. 8975.

6405². As soon as a man who is in truth and not yet in good brings anything into act from a religious principle, he afterwards defends it as if it were the veriest truth.

6419². 'A wall'=the truths of faith which defend. Ill.

6663². He who defends his opinion . . . confirms it.

7297^e. 'Fortifications'=truths, in so far as they defend goods.

7437². What a man loves he confirms and defends, and evils cannot be confirmed and defended except by means of falsities. The reason they who are in evils think to the falsities by which they defend evils, is that evils are the very delights of their life . . .

—^e. Such, after having for some little time defended evils by falsities, persuade themselves that evils are goods, and falsities truths.

9024². 'To plead their suit'=to defend and deliver from falsities. —.

9300⁵. They maintain that the natural man cannot apprehend the things of faith.

M. 365. The zeal of a good love . . . never breaks forth against the other, but only defends itself; and it defends itself against evil as when this rushes into a fire and is burnt up.

D. 1063. It is otherwise when men defend themselves from their enemies . . . for this is to be considered as a just defence . . .

3904. He was of those who have . . . defended (the Knowledges of faith) with zeal . . . but now knew nothing.

3913. The skull . . . which defends (the brain).

4139. The evil Spirits attack, and the good only defend.

4675. Societies of Spirits have their own proper defences—defensionalia.

—^e. Every animal has its own defence—defensionale.

4735. Whatever opinion they take up . . . they defend . . .

4737. When (Swab) defended himself against the evil . . .

E. 734^e. They who are in falsities always make the attack, but they who are in truths only defend.

D. Wis. xi. 2. (2nd series). Hence come . . . the defences of disagreeing dogmas within the Church.

C. 164. He is also the aggressor, when aggression is defence.

Defend. Patrocinari.

A. 7502². To defend falsities and evils . . . 7577². 7766.

10122². He defends evils by his intellectual faculty.

10640². Lest he appropriate some doctrinal thing which defends evil. —^e.

D. 4659. They could defend evils and falsities with such ingenuity . . .

5372. They defended every evil . . .

Deficient. See FAIL—deficere.

Defiguration. Defiguratio.

Coro. 43^e. For the sake of this transfiguration and defiguration of heavenly things . . .

Defile. See under CONTAMINATE, and UN-CLEAN.

Defile. Conspurare.

Defilement. Conspuratio.

See FILTH—sprucus.

A. 2468². Such persons are described in the Word . . . when their good is not as yet so much defiled; then, when it is defiled; and afterwards, when it is altogether defiled. —². —⁶. —¹⁰. 4174.

4050^e. See LYMPH at this ref.

4462². See MOST ANCIENT CHURCH at this ref.

5390^e. They had been endowed with a certain intellectual faculty, which they had abused to defile even the holy things of the Word and of doctrine.

5954⁹. See DEFILE—polluere—at these refs. E. 195².

7091. They would thus defile the Divine. 7290^e.

7902². If there is one falsity . . . the truths themselves remaining are thus defiled . . .

10049. The lowest and natural things are more defiled with evils and falsities than interior ones . . .

10208². The sanctuaries . . . were defiled when the people sinned.

H. 302^e. The good which flows in he defiles with merit.

561. Hence the Divine cannot flow in, because the instant it does so, it is immersed in thoughts about self, and is defiled.

W. 420^e. All the defilement of man is effected through falsities opposed to the truths of wisdom.

421. The love or will is defiled in the understanding, and by it, if they are not elevated together. Gen.art.

424. Love defiled in the understanding, and by it, becomes natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Gen.art.

R. 166. See DEFILE—inquinare, at these refs. 620. W. 419.

729. The Roman Catholic religiosity . . . has defiled and profaned the things of the Word and of the Church. Sig.

Defile. Inquinare.

Defilement. Inquinamentum.

A. 6388. They thus not only defile genuine love or charity, but also pervert it.

7090². These things are darkness and defilements . . .

H. 515. Nor have they defiled their spiritual life by the grossnesses from honours and riches.

W. 419². Through the understanding, the love . . .

sees what the evils are which pollute and defile—conspurcant—the love.

R. 166. 'Who have not defiled their garments' (Rev. iii.4)=who are in truths, and have not defiled—conspurcaverunt—their worship through evils of life and the falsities thence.

620. 'These are they who have not been defiled with women' (Rev. xiv.4)=that they have not adulterated the truths of the Church, and defiled—conspurcaverint—them with falsities of faith.

T. 366². The evil obstruct this influx by . . . spiritual defilements . . .

E. 195. See SARDIS at this ref.

862. 'These are they who have not been defiled with women'=those who have not falsified the truths of the Word.

Defile. Polluere.

Defilement. Pollutio.

A. 4439. 'Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter' (Gen. xxxiv.5)=conjunction not lawful. . . The defilement of marriages=conjunction not lawful.

4460. 'Because he defiled Dinah their sister'=initiation to conjunction.

4503⁹. 'To defile the houses, and fill the courts with the slain' (Ezek. ix.7)=to profane goods and truths.

4504. 'Because they had defiled their sister'=because they had defiled—foedaverunt—the truth of faith.

5954⁹. 'Defiled garments' (Zech. iii.3)=truths defiled—conspurcatis—by the falsities which are from evil. E.740¹⁶.

E. 195³. Thus are Knowledges from the Word polluted and defiled—conspurcantur—by the loves of self and of the world . . .

388¹⁵. 'To defile the temple of holiness' (Ps. lxxix.1)=to profane worship.

Define. Definire.

Definition. Definitio.

Definite. Definitus.

A. 448⁰. They deprive Spirits of all sense by their definitions and suppositions.

2575⁴. As a thousand . . . is a definite number . . .

8533. Goods . . . are determined with every man while he lives in the world; they are determined according to the quantity and quality of the faith and charity in his life.

T. 17³. They said . . . Thus do the chiefs of the Church define the word person. . . I said, Is this a definition of person? . . . You have defined person as being that which properly subsists . . .

28. It cannot define it otherwise . . .

52. Here we will open the subject of order by a general definition of it. . . In this definition . . .

132. The determined damnation . . .

423. Charity may be defined as . . .

D. 2369. Inhering in their significations and definitions of such words . . . in the definitions of certain words . . .

2370. They who have not inherited in the philosophical definitions of words . . .

4627. Cannot be defined . . .

Min. 4578. See PHILOSOPHY at these refs. 4655.

Deflower. Deflorare.

Defloration. Defloratio.

A. 828. (On those who are in the desire to deflower virgins; the enormity and the punishment of this crime.) D.2704. De Conj.126.

M. 319⁰. The lust of defloration . . . has led some to desire repeated marriages.

454. The lust of fornication is more grievous as it verges to the desire of . . . defloration. Gen.art.

501. On the lust of defloration. Gen.art.

— This lust is not only a lust of adultery, but is more grievous than (ordinary adulteries); for the lust of defloration . . . cannot previously exist with anyone.

502². The wives said . . . that this state commenced from the moment of defloration . . .

504. Defloration, without a view to marriage, is the villainy of a robber. Gen.art.

— Some adulterers are possessed of the desire of deflowering virgins, and thus girls . . . and after defloration they leave them, and continually seek for others . . . and this lust grows to be the chief of the delights of their flesh. . . This villainy remains inrooted . . . after death. . . A woman deflowered by such . . . becomes a harlot, which is to be laid at the door of that robber. . . As such are violators of marriage, and despisers of the female sex, and thus are spiritual robbers, it is evident that the Divine Nemesis pursues them.

505. The lot of those who have confirmed themselves in the persuasion that the lust of defloration is not an evil of sin, after death is grievous. Gen.art.

D. 474I. See CHARLES XII. at this ref.

Deformity. See UGLY.

Defraud. See under FRAUD.

Defunct. See DIE—defungere.

Degrade. See under AROGATE.

Degree. Gradus.

Graduate. Graduare.

See under REGION.

A. 62. By degrees (man becomes regenerate).

316^e. Are led by degrees to Heaven.

543. To that degree that they could bear no more . . . Hence it is evident, that not only are there degrees (of heavenly joy) . . .

657. There are three degrees of intellectual things in man; the lowest is the Scientific, the middle is the Rational, the highest is the Intellectual; these are so distinct from each other as never to be confounded. (Sig. by the three stories of the ark.)

658. These three degrees . . . understanding, reason, and knowledge, are also signified by the windows of the three tiers in the Temple (1 Kings vi.); and also by the rivers which went forth from Eden. 655².

[A.] 1555³. The new life is received by degrees.

1627. Decorations of steps, described.

1661^e. By degrees. 1871. 4145². 7186 (occurs five times). H.335.

1820⁵. In the highest degree. (In the sense of superlative.)

2023². Love to the Lord is in a higher degree (than love towards the neighbour).

2504^e. All these are called spiritual things, which are thus distinguished into degrees, and succeed each other in such an order.

3020². The natural mind is a distinct mind from the rational one, and is in a lower degree . . .

3209. The Rational is in a degree above the Natural . . .

3309. Scientifics are of two kinds, or of two degrees, sensuous things and scientific ones. Sig. and Ex.

3404. These appearances or truths are of a higher degree. Tr.

3405². The appearances of truth which are of a higher degree far surpass in abundance and perfection those which are in a lower degree; for myriads of myriads of things which are distinctly perceived by those who are in a higher degree, appear as only a single one to those who are in a lower degree; for lower things are nothing but compounds of higher ones; as may be inferred from the memories of man, the interior of which, being in a higher degree, far surpasses the exterior one, which is in a lower degree.

—^e. The Angels of the Third Heaven are in the fourth degree above man.

3412. The appearances of truth of a lower degree. Tr.

3646. In a like degree and manner.

—². The souls of men are in a higher degree (than those of brutes).

3691. The reason it is said, the good and truth of that degree, is that goods and truths are entirely distinct from each other according to degrees; interior goods and truths are in a higher degree, and exterior ones are in a lower degree; in a higher degree are the goods and truths of the Rational, in a lower one are the goods and truths of the Natural, and in the lowest are the sensuous goods and truths which are of the body. The interior goods and truths, or those in a higher degree, inflow into the exterior goods and truths, or those in a lower degree, and there present their own image . . . Hence it is evident, that the goods and truths . . . which are in a higher degree are entirely separated from those in a lower one, and so separated, that the interior ones, or those in a higher degree, are able to come into existence independently of the exterior ones, or those which are in a lower degree. He who has not a distinct notion of degrees, cannot have a distinct notion of interior and exterior goods; nor how the case is with the soul of man . . . or with the Heavens . . .

—³. These three Heavens are most distinct from each other according to degrees . . .

—⁴. They who are in love to the Lord, so as to have a perception of the love, are in a higher degree of good and truth, and are in the Third Heaven . . . and are called Celestial Angels; but they who are in charity towards the neighbour, so as to have a perception of the charity, but not so much a perception of love to the Lord, are in a lower degree of good and truth, and are in the Second Heaven . . . and are called Spiritual Angels; while they who are in charity towards the neighbour merely from the affection of truth, so as not to have a perception of the charity itself, except from the truth by which they are affected, are in a still lower degree of good and truth, and are in the First Heaven . . . and are called good Spirits. Hence it may in some measure appear how the case is with degrees; namely, that those things which are in a higher degree, present themselves in an image in those which are in the next lower one . . .

—^e. Into these degrees are the three Heavens distinguished, and according to these degrees does the Lord flow in with Divine good and truth, thus with wisdom and intelligence, and with heavenly joy and happiness.

3699^e. There are lowest goods and truths, and highest ones, and between them there are steps as of a ladder.

3747². There are three degrees of life in man, as there are three degrees of life in the Heavens. . . I have been instructed concerning these degrees of life, that the ultimate degree of life is what is called the external or natural man . . . that the second degree is what is called the internal or rational man . . . and that the third degree of life, which is entirely unknown to man, is that through which the Lord flows into the rational mind, whence he has the capacity of thinking as a man, and whence he has conscience, and the perception of good and truth, and also elevation by the Lord to Himself.

3952. The heavenly marriage is not between good and truth of one and the same degree, but between good and truth of a lower degree and of a higher one. Ex.

—². The celestial man is in a higher degree (than the spiritual).

3994⁴. In the Original Language, 'lamb' is expressed by various words, whereby are signified the different degrees of innocence.

4121. All who are in goods and truths are in brotherhood; but still there are degrees according to the quality of the goods and truths; these degrees are signified by 'brothers,' 'sisters,' etc.

4154. The goods and truths of the internal man are of threefold degrees, such as exist in the three Heavens; and the goods and truths of the external man are also of threefold degrees, and correspond to the internal ones; for there are intermediate goods and truths between the internal and the external man . . . there are goods and truths proper to the natural man . . . and there are sensuous goods and truths . . . These goods and truths of threefold degrees pertain to the external man, and correspond to so many goods and truths of the internal man . . . The goods and truths of all the degrees are entirely distinct from each other . . . those which are interior are component, and those which are exterior are composite . . .

4286². The First Heaven is also celestial and spiritual, but not in the same degree as the former ones . . .

4434¹⁰. (Correspondence as the forbidden degrees in marriage.)

4459⁶. He who is spiritual in an interior degree, regards intelligence and wisdom as a mediate end . . .

4482². They who are in a like degree of good, are also in a like degree of truth . . .

4592⁹. All things of the Church, from the first degree to the last. Sig.

5008². (Such) hold everyone to be the neighbour, yet all in a different respect and degree . . . whereas (such) do not allow of degrees and respect.

5114². There are degrees (or steps) as of a ladder between the Intellectual and the Sensuous ; but no one can apprehend these degrees, unless he knows . . . that they are perfectly distinct from each other, and in fact so distinct, that the interior ones can come into existence and subsist without the exterior ones, but not the exterior ones without the interior (5146²) ; as, for example, the spirit of man can subsist without the material body . . . the spirit of man being in an interior degree, and the body in an exterior one. The case is the same with the Spirit of man after death, if he is among the blest : he is in the ultimate degree there when he is in the First Heaven, in the interior degree when in the Second, and in the inmost when in the Third : when he is in this last, he is at the same time in all the rest, but they are quiescent with him, almost as the Corporeal is quiescent during sleep, only with the difference that the interiors with the Angels are then in the highest state of wakefulness. There also exist with man the same number of distinct degrees as there are of Heavens, besides the ultimate, which is the body with its sensuous things. Hence it is evident how the case is with the derivations from first to last (which are signified by the 'three shoots of the vine'), or from the Intellectual to the Sensuous. The life of man, which is from the Divine of the Lord, passes through these degrees from the inmost to the ultimate, and according to its derivation it becomes more and more general, and in the ultimate most general ; the derivations into lower degrees are only compositions, or rather conformations of the singulars and particulars of the higher degrees in succession, with such things added from purer nature, and then from grosser, as may serve for containing vessels ; on the dissolution of which vessels, the singulars and particulars of the interior degrees, which had been conformed therein, return to the degree next higher . . .

5144. 'Three baskets' = the successives of voluntary things . . . for there are degrees (or steps) as of a ladder from inmost things to outermost ones ; into the inmost there flows in good from the Lord, and this flows through the Rational into the interior Natural, and thence into the exterior Natural or Sensuous, distinctly, as it were by the steps of a ladder, and in every degree it is qualified according to the reception. 5147.

5145². The interiors with man are distinguished into degrees, and in each degree there are terminated things, and, by the termination, they are separated from the lower degree ; thus it is from the inmost to the outermost. The interior Rational constitutes the first degree, in which are the Celestial Angels, or the Third Heaven ; the exterior Rational constitutes the second degree, in which are the Spiritual Angels, or the Second Heaven ; the interior Natural constitutes the third degree, in which are good Spirits, or the First Heaven ; the exterior Natural or Sensuous constitutes the fourth degree, in which is man. These degrees with man are perfectly distinct . . . Hence if a man has lived the life of charity and love, he can after death be translated into the Third Heaven ; but, in order for him to be of such a character, it is necessary for all the degrees with him to be well terminated, and thus by terminations to be distinct from each other. When this is the case, each degree is a plane, in which the good that flows in from the Lord rests and is received. Without these degrees as planes, the good is not received, but flows through as through a sieve . . . down to the Sensuous and there . . . is turned into what is filthy.

—⁴. See BOUNDARY-terminatio, at this ref.

5146². What is purer and what is grosser may exist in one and the same degree, according to both extension and compression, and according to determinations, and also according to the insertion of things homogeneous or heterogeneous.

5236². By the 'suckling,' 'little child,' and 'child,' are signified three degrees of innocence . . . and as three degrees of innocence are signified by them, so also are three degrees of love and charity . . .

5605. 'We will arise, and go, and we will live, and not die' = spiritual life according to degrees. Ex.

5934⁸. By such degrees of scientifics, man ascends to intelligence ; for, through these degrees, scientifics open the mind . . .

6310. The interiors of man are distinct according to degrees by means of derivations ; according to these degrees there are also lights . . .

6313². The three Heavens are no otherwise distinct from each other than according to elevation to interior things, thus according to degrees of light.

6326. There was a philosopher . . . who died a few years ago, with whom I spoke about the three degrees of life in man, saying, that man consists of mere forms for the reception of life, and that one form is more interior than another, but that one has come into existence and subsists from the other ; also, that when the lower or exterior form is dissolved, the higher or interior one still lives.

6396. Man . . . is first in truth . . . next, in the good of life from truth . . . then, in the good of life from good . . . these are the degrees (or steps) of regeneration.

6707. The quality of Christian good determines in what degree everyone is the neighbour . . .

6819. These are the four ascending degrees of the neighbour ; a society consisting of many is in a degree prior to that of a single man ; our Country is in a prior degree to a society ; in a still prior degree is the Church ; and in a still prior degree is the Lord's Kingdom ; but in the highest degree is the Lord. These ascending degrees are like the steps of a ladder, at the top of which is the Lord.

[A.] 7014°. These were the steps of the Lord's glorification.

7265. In this chapter it treats of the first three degrees of vastation. Enum.

7295³. (The first, second, and third degrees of the taking away and deprivation of the influx of truth and good.) Sig.

7378. In this chapter it treats of the third and the fourth degree of the vastation of those who are in falsities, and who infest the upright in the other life. Ex.

7502. The degrees of the vastation of those who were infesting, were punishments.

7710°. Hence it is that there are degrees of devastation, until at last they are cast into Hell, which is the last of the degrees of vastation.

7795. 'Prodigies' = so many degrees of their vastation . . . The reason there are so many degrees . . .

8443². Truth Divine is not of one degree, but of many; truth Divine in the first degree and also in the second is that which immediately proceeds from the Lord, and is above the angelic understanding; truth Divine in the third degree is such as there is in the Third Heaven . . . truth Divine in the fourth degree is such as there is in the Second Heaven . . . truth Divine in the fifth degree is such as there is in the First Heaven . . . and truth Divine in the sixth degree is such as there is with man, accommodated to his perception; thus is the sense of the letter of the Word.

8603°. The passings over from one to another in successive order are also called degrees.

8641. Truth in the first degree is represented by 'Moses'; and the truths thence derived in successive order, by 'the princes of thousands,' 'of hundreds,' 'of fifties,' and 'of tens.'

8643. When the son-in-law represents truth, the father-in-law represents good, in a higher degree . . .

8707. 'Way' is predicated of the understanding of truth; here, in an interior degree, because . . .

8712. 'Princes of thousands' = the primary things which are in the first degree under truth immediately from the Divine . . . (these) are in a more dignified degree than they who are over few; here, therefore (it means) those who were in the first degree, for they who were in a lower degree were princes of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens.

8713. Primary things in the second degree. Sig.

8714. Intermediates between those truths from good which are in the second degree, and those which are in the third. Sig.

8715. 'Tens' also = many things, but in a less degree.

8872. These things are such as are in the sensuous Corporeal, as is evident from the successive degrees of the light which is of the Intellectual in man; in the first degree with man are those things which are in spiritual light, signified by 'the things in the heavens above;'; in the second degree are those things which are in natural light, signified by 'the things in the earth beneath;'; and in the third degree are those things which are in the sensuous Corporeal, signified by 'the things in the waters under the earth.'

8945. 'Thou shalt not go up by steps unto Mine altar' (Ex.xx.23) = non-elevation to the interior things which are celestial. . . 'To go up by steps' = to elevate one's self to higher or to interior things.

—². No one in the other life is allowed to be elevated higher into Heaven than to the degree of good in which he is . . .

—⁶. It is said 'to go up by steps,' because, in the World of Spirits, elevation to interior things . . . appears as an ascent by steps; hence it was that Jacob in his sleep saw Angels ascending to the Lord by the steps of a ladder; therefore, too, in the Word, 'steps' = an ascent to higher, that is, to interior things, as in Ezek. xl.6,22,26,31,34; and in Amos; 'The Lord Jehovah Zebaoth builds His steps in the heavens' (ix.6).

9286². The successive steps of deliverance from damnation are circumstanced as are the successive steps of regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

9336. 'By little and little I will drive them out from before thee' = the removal (of evils and falsities) by degrees according to order. Ex.

9435. The degrees of ascent from the people to the Lord are thus described.

—². There are like degrees of ascent from the world to Heaven with those who are being regenerated by the Lord . . .

9489. 'A cubit and a half the height thereof' = what is full as to degrees. 'Height' = degrees as to good and as to truth. —.

—⁶. The reason 'height' = degrees as to good and thence as to truth, is also because what is high = what is internal, and good is perfect according to degrees towards interior things.

9594. The reason there are three Heavens, is that there are three degrees of life with man . . . the inmost degree of his life is for the inmost Heaven; the middle degree of life is for the middle Heaven; and the ultimate one is for the ultimate Heaven . . .

—². These degrees of life with man are opened successively; the first degree by a life according to what is fair and just; the second degree by a life according to the truths of faith from the Word and according to the goods of charity towards the neighbour therefrom; and the third degree according to the good of mutual love and the good of love to the Lord; these are the means by which are successively opened these three degrees of life with man, thus the three Heavens with him. But in proportion as man recedes from the good of life, and accedes to evil of life, these degrees are closed . . .

9659⁶. Truths leading to good and from good to truths are signified by 'the porch,' and by 'the steps' (Ezek.xl).

9773. 'The height five cubits' = degrees of good and truth also as much as is sufficient. 'Height' = degrees as to 'good; and as it is predicated of the ultimate Heaven, it also = degrees as to truth, for that Heaven is in the good and truth of faith.

—⁶. Distances from the inmost are degrees of good and truth from the Lord.

9825. As the Spiritual Kingdom is distinguished into three degrees, into the inmost, middle, and external, 'the robe' = that which is in the middle of this Kingdom. The reason this Kingdom is distinguished into three degrees, is that the inmost there communicates with the Celestial, and the external with the Natural, and therefore the middle draws equally from both. For anything to be perfect, it must be distinguished into three degrees; such is the case with Heaven, and with the goods and truths there. That there are three Heavens is known, thus there are three degrees of goods and truths there. Each Heaven, too, is distinguished into three degrees; for the inmost of it communicates immediately with the higher one, the external with the lower one, and therefore the middle with both; hence its perfection. The case is the same with the interiors of man, which, in general, are distinguished into three degrees, namely, into the Celestial, the Spiritual, and the Natural. In like manner, each of these is distinguished into its own three degrees; for the man who is in the good of faith and of love to the Lord, is a Heaven in the least form corresponding to the Grand one. Such, also, is the case with all things of nature; that the Natural of man is distinguished into three degrees, see 4570. . . The reason it is so, is that everywhere there are end, cause, and effect . . . and hence it is that 'three' = what is complete from beginning to end.

9940. These are the degrees of the influx and the reception of the Divine; but every degree contains innumerable things, which are distinct from those which are in every other degree; and the innumerable things therein are the arcana of Heaven, few of which fall within the human understanding. . . The arcana of permission are few relatively to those of the higher degrees, which are the things which take place from leave, from good-pleasure, and from will.

10132¹². These three degrees of innocence are signified by 'a bullock,' 'a ram,' and 'a lamb' . . .

10181. 'Two cubits the height thereof' = the degrees of good and truth, and their conjunction. . . 'Height' = the degrees of good and thence of truth. By degrees of height are meant degrees from interiors to exteriors, or from inmosts to outermosts.

—². There are two kinds of degrees, degrees in length and breadth, and degrees as to height and depth; the latter degrees differ very greatly from the former ones; the degrees of length and breadth are those which succeed each other from the middle to the circumferences; but the degrees of height proceed from interiors to exteriors; the former degrees, namely, those of length and breadth, are degrees which continually decrease from the middle towards the circumferences, as light decreases from the flame . . . Whereas the degrees of height, which proceed from inmosts to outermosts, or from highests to lowests, are not continuous, but discrete; they are circumstanced as are the inmost things of a seed relatively to its exteriors. . . These degrees are discriminated, thus are distinct, as the thing producing and the thing produced. The things which are in an interior degree, are more perfect than those which are in an exterior degree, and there is no likeness between them, except through correspondences . . .

—⁴. He who does not acquire a perception of these degrees, can know nothing whatever of the differences between the Heavens, and between the interior and the exterior faculties of man, thus between the soul and the body; he is also utterly unable to apprehend what the internal sense of the Word is, and its difference from the external sense; and not even the difference between the Spiritual World and the natural world; being, in fact, not able to understand what and whence are correspondences and representatives, and scarcely what influx is. Sensuous men do not apprehend these differences; for they make increase and decrease according to these degrees continuous, thus they make these degrees like the degrees of length and breadth, wherefore they stand outside, far from intelligence. H. 38³. J.(Post.)309.

H. 31^e. The spiritual natural and celestial natural Angels are distinct from each other, yet constitute only one Heaven, because they are in one degree.

33. There are three degrees of the interiors with everyone, both Angel and Spirit, and also with man; they with whom the third degree is open, are in the inmost Heaven; they with whom the second, or only the first is open, are in the middle or in the ultimate Heaven: the interiors are opened by the reception of Divine good and Divine truth. (See THIRD HEAVEN at this ref.)

(q). There are as many degrees of life in man as there are Heavens, and they are opened after death according to his life. Refs.

34. As, with the Angels of the inmost Heaven, the interiors are opened into the third degree, their perfection vastly surpasses that of the Angels in the middle Heaven, whose interiors are opened into the second degree . . .

38. He who does not know how the case is with Divine order as to degrees, cannot apprehend in what way the Heavens are distinct from each other, nor, in fact, what the internal and the external man are. . . There are two kinds of degrees, there are continuous degrees, and there are degrees not continuous; continuous degrees are circumstanced as are the degrees of the decrease of light from the flame down to darkness, or as the degrees of the decrease of sight from those things which are in light to those which are in shade, or as the degrees of purity of the atmosphere from the bottom of it to the top; it is distances that determine these degrees. Whereas degrees not continuous, but discrete, are discriminated as are the prior and the posterior, as the cause and the effect, and as the thing producing and the thing produced. He who investigates the matter, will see that in each and all things in the universal world, whatsoever they may be, there are such degrees of production and of composition; that is to say, that from one [is formed] a second, and from the second a third, and so on.

39. With every Angel, and also with every man, there is an inmost or highest degree, or an inmost or highest something, into which the Divine of the Lord first or proximately inflows, and from which it disposes the rest of the interiors which succeed each other according to the degrees of order. . . By this inmost or highest man is man, and is distinguished from the brute animals, for they have it not. Hence it is, that man, differently from animals, as to all the interiors of his mind and disposition can be elevated by the Lord to Himself, can believe in Him, be affected with love to Him, and thus see Him, and can also receive intelligence and wisdom, and speak from reason; hence, too, it is, that he lives to eternity. J.25⁵.

[H.] 104. See CORRESPONDENCE at this ref.

120. The Lord as a Sun does not flow in immediately into the Heavens, but the ardour of His love is tempered on the way by means of degrees; the temperings appear as radiant belts round the sun.

146. The distance between the Sun and the Moon there, is thirty degrees; consequently, the distance between the [two sets of] quarters is the same. E.422⁴.

208. In every Angel there are three degrees of life, as there are three degrees of Heaven; with those who are in the inmost Heaven, the third or inmost degree is open, and the second and first are closed; with those who are in the middle Heaven, the second degree is open, and the first and third are closed; and with those who are in the ultimate Heaven, the first degree is open, and the second and third are closed. As soon, therefore, as an Angel of the Third Heaven looks down into a Society of the Second, and speaks with anyone there, his third degree is closed, and then he is bereaved of his wisdom, because his wisdom resides in his third degree, and he has none in the second or first. Sig.

211. In the inmost Heaven (the form of Heaven) is the most perfect of all; in the middle Heaven it is also perfect, but in a lower degree; and in the ultimate Heaven in a still lower one; and the form of one Heaven subsists from that of another Heaven through influx from the Lord. But the nature of communication by influx is not comprehended, unless the nature of degrees of height is known, and what the difference is between these degrees and the degrees of length and breadth.

267. With every Angel there are three degrees of life, which correspond to the three Heavens; those with whom the first degree is open are in the First Heaven; those with whom the second degree is open are in the Second Heaven; and those with whom the third degree is open are in the Third Heaven; according to these degrees is the wisdom of the Angels in the Heavens. . . The reason there are such great differences (in their wisdom), is that those things which are in a higher degree are singulars, and those which are in a lower degree are generals. . .

—². The sensuous Corporeals of man are in the lowest degree.

270. The wisdom of the Angels of the Third Heaven is incomprehensible, even to those who are in the ultimate Heaven; the reason is, that the interiors of the Angels of the Third Heaven are open to the third degree, whereas those of the Angels of the First Heaven are only open to the first degree. . . As the interiors of the Angels of the Third Heaven are open to the third degree, Divine truths are as it were inscribed on them, for the interiors of the third degree are more in the form of Heaven than those of the second and the first degree, and the form of Heaven is from Divine truth. . .

271. Love to the Lord opens the interiors of the mind to the third degree. . .

280. The Heavens are distinguished according to innocence; they who are in the First Heaven are in innocence of the first or ultimate degree; they who are in the Second Heaven are in innocence of the second or middle degree; and they who are in the Third Heaven are in innocence of the third or inmost degree.

288². The Angels of the Third Heaven are in the third or inmost degree of peace, because they are in the third or inmost degree of innocence; and the Angels of the lower Heavens are in a less degree of peace, because they are in a less degree of innocence.

349. Whatever a man acquires in the world, remains and is carried with him after death, when, also, it is increased and becomes full, but within the degree of his affection and desire of truth and its good. . .

410. Hence it is evident, not only that there are degrees of the joys of Heaven, but also that the inmost of one hardly approaches the ultimate or middle of another.

468². There are three degrees of life with every man; the Rational is opened to the first degree by civil truths; to the second degree by moral truths; and to the third degree by spiritual truths. The Rational, however, is not formed and opened by these truths merely by man's knowing them, but by his living according to them. . . When truths are mere servants (to selfish ends) they do not enter into man, and open any degree of his life, even the first. . . Man, therefore, becomes rational to the third degree by the spiritual love of the good and truth which are of Heaven and the Church; to the second degree by the love of what is sincere and right; and to the first degree by the love of what is just and fair.

S. 6². Hence it follows, that the Divine which proceeds from the Lord to its ultimates, descends through three degrees, and is named the Celestial, the Spiritual, and the Natural. The Divine which descends from the Lord to men, descends through these three degrees, and when it has descended, it contains these three degrees within it: everything Divine is of this character; therefore, when it is in its ultimate degree, it is in its fulness. Such is the Word.

7. The difference between these degrees cannot be known unless correspondence is known; for these degrees are entirely distinct from each other, as are the end, the cause, and the effect; or as the prior, the posterior, and the postreme; but they make one through correspondences.

68. In every man from creation there are three degrees of life, celestial, spiritual, and natural; but man is in the natural so long as he is in the world, and so far in the spiritual as he is in genuine truths, and so far in the celestial as he is in a life according to them; but still he does not come into the spiritual itself or the celestial itself until after death. T.239.

W. 65. The uses of all things which are created ascend through degrees from ultimates to man, and through man to God the Creator. Gen.art. . . Ultimates are all things of the mineral kingdom. . . Mediates are all things of the vegetable kingdom. . . Primes are all things of the animal kingdom. . . 170^o.

66. There are three degrees of ascent in the natural world, and there are three degrees of ascent in the Spiritual World. . . The more perfect animals are recipients of the three degrees of life of the natural world ; the less perfect are recipients of the life of two degrees of that world ; and the imperfect ones are recipients of one of its degrees. But man alone is a recipient of the life, not only of the three degrees of the natural world, but also of the three degrees of the Spiritual World. Hence it is, that, unlike any animal, man can be elevated above nature ; can think analytically and rationally . . . But these six degrees . . . will be treated of . . .

67. How man ascends from the ultimate degree to the first. He is born into the ultimate degree of the natural world ; he is then elevated by knowledges into the second degree ; and as he perfects his understanding by knowledges, he is elevated into the third degree, and then becomes rational. The three degrees of ascent in the Spiritual World are in him above the three natural degrees, but they do not appear until he puts off the earthly body. When he puts this off, the first spiritual degree is opened to him, afterwards the second, and at last the third ; but only with those who become Angels of the Third Heaven . . . Those become Angels of the Second and the Ultimate Heaven, with whom the second and the ultimate degree can be opened. Each spiritual degree is opened with man according to the reception of the Divine love and the Divine wisdom from the Lord ; they who receive something thereof come into the first or ultimate spiritual degree ; they who receive more, into the second or middle spiritual degree ; and they who receive much, into the third or highest degree. But they who receive nothing thereof remain in the natural degrees, and from the spiritual degrees draw only this, that they are able to think and thence to speak, and to will and thence to act, but not intelligently.

71². Instead of height (the spiritual man) thinks of the degrees (of good and truth).

94. The decreasing (of spiritual heat and light) is effected through degrees.

104. The Sun . . . appears above the lands on which the Angels dwell, at an elevation of about 45 degrees . . .

179. There are degrees of love and wisdom, and thence degrees of heat and light, also degrees of atmospheres. Gen.art.

— . That there are degrees of love and wisdom may be evident from the Angels of the three Heavens . . . The degrees of love and wisdom distinguish and separate them . . .

180. That there exist degrees of love and wisdom may be still more evident from the love and wisdom of the Angels relatively to the love and wisdom of men . . .

181. As there are degrees of love and wisdom, there are also degrees of (spiritual) heat and light . . .

182. The degrees of spiritual heat cannot be described from experience . . . but the degrees of spiritual light can be described . . . From the degrees of light the degrees of spiritual heat even can be comprehended ; for they are in a like degree . . .

183. As the atmospheres are the receptacles and containants of heat and light, it follows that there are as many degrees of atmospheres as there are degrees of heat and light, and also that there are as many as there are degrees of love and wisdom . . .

184. Degrees are of a twofold kind, degrees of height and degrees of breadth. Gen.art.

— . The knowledge of degrees is like a key for opening the causes of things . . . Without this knowledge, scarcely anything of Cause can be known . . . The interior things which are not open to view can in no way be discovered unless degrees are known. For exterior things pass to interior ones, and through these to inmost ones, through degrees ; not through continuous degrees, but through discrete degrees. The gradual lessening or decreasing from grosser to finer, or from denser to rarer, are called continuous degrees ; or rather [they are] as the gradual additions and increasing from finer to grosser, or from rarer to denser ; exactly as it is with [the gradations] of light to shade, or of heat to cold.

— . But discrete degrees are entirely different ; they are as things prior, posterior, and postreme ; or as end, cause, and effect. These degrees are called discrete, because the prior is by itself, the posterior is by itself, and the postreme is by itself ; yet taken together they make one. The atmospheres . . . from the sun to the earth . . . are discrete in such degrees ; and are as simples, as congregates of these, and again as congregates of these, which taken together are called a composite. These degrees are discrete because they come into existence distinctly, and they are meant by the degrees of height ; whereas the former degrees are continuous, because they increase continuously, and are meant by the degrees of breadth.

185. Each and all things which come into existence in the Spiritual World and in the natural world come into existence conjointly from discrete degrees and at the same time from continuous degrees, that is, from degrees of height and from degrees of breadth. That dimension which consists of discrete degrees is called height, and that which consists of continuous degrees is called breadth : their position relatively to the sight of the eye does not alter the designation. Without a knowledge of these degrees, nothing can be known about the differences between the three Heavens, nor about the differences between the love and wisdom of the Angels there, nor about the differences between the heat and light in which they are, nor about the differences between the atmospheres which environ and hold together. Further, without a knowledge of these degrees, nothing can be known about the differences between the interior faculties of the mind in men, thus nothing about their state as to reformation and regeneration ; nor about the differences between the exterior faculties, which are of the body, with both Angels and men ; and nothing at all about the difference between the Spiritual and the Natural, consequently nothing about correspondence ; nay, nothing about any difference of life between men and beasts, nor about the difference between the more perfect and the more imperfect beasts ; nor about the differences among the forms of the vegetable kingdom, and among the matters of the mineral kingdom. From which it may be evident, that they who are ignorant of these degrees, cannot see causes from any judgment . . .

[W.] 186. In order to comprehend still better what discrete degrees are, what their nature is, and how they differ from continuous degrees, let the angelic Heavens serve for an example. There are three Heavens, and they are distinct by degrees of height . . . They do not communicate with each other except through influx . . . But each Heaven by itself is not distinct by degrees of height, but by degrees of breadth . . . It is the same with men; the interiors of their minds are distinguished into the same number of degrees as the angelic Heavens, and one of their degrees is above another; wherefore the interiors of men belonging to their minds are distinguished by discrete degrees or degrees of height. Hence it is that a man may be in the lowest degree, he may be in the higher, and also in the highest one, according to the degree of his wisdom; and that when he is only in the lowest degree, the higher degree is closed; and that it is opened as he receives wisdom from the Lord. With man, too, as in Heaven, there are continuous degrees, or degrees of breadth.

187. He who does not know anything of discrete degrees . . . cannot know anything of the state of man as to his reformation and regeneration, which take place through the reception of love and wisdom from the Lord, and the consequent opening of the interior degrees of the mind in their order. Nor can he know anything of the influx through the Heavens from the Lord, nor anything of the order into which he is created. For if anyone thinks of these things, not from discrete degrees . . . but from continuous degrees . . . he cannot see anything about them except from effects . . .

188. I am not aware whether anything has been hitherto known about discrete degrees . . . but only about continuous degrees; yet not anything of Cause in its truth can become known without a knowledge of degrees of both kinds.

189. The degrees of height are homogeneous, and the one is from the other in succession, as are the end, the cause, and the effect. Gen.art.

— As the degrees of breadth, or continuous ones, are as those from light to shade, from heat to cold, from hard to soft, from dense to rare, from gross to fine, and so forth; and these degrees are known from sensuous and ocular experience; but not so the degrees of height or discrete degrees; the latter will be especially treated of in this Part; for without Knowledge of these degrees causes cannot be seen. . . Hence it is, that although end, cause, and effect proceed by discrete degrees, little, if anything, is known in the world about these degrees . . .

190. All things . . . of which trinal dimension is predicated, or which are called composite, consist of degrees of height. For example . . . every muscle consists of least fibres, and these compounded fascicularly present the larger fibres which are called motor fibres, and from bundles of these there comes forth the composite which is called a muscle. It is the same with the nerves . . . It is the same in all the other combinations . . . which constitute the organs and viscera; for these are compositions of fibres and vessels variously put together by the like degrees. It is the same in all things of the vegetable and in all things of the mineral kingdom. In woods there are combinations of filaments in a threefold order; in metals and in stones there are conglorations of parts also in a threefold order. Hence is evident the nature of discrete degrees, namely, that the second is from the first, and the third from the second, the third being called the composite; and that each degree is discrete from the others.

191. The case is the same with the organic substances which are the receptacles . . . of the thoughts and affections in the brains; with the atmospheres; with heat and light; and with love and wisdom. For the atmospheres are receptacles of heat and light; and heat and light are receptacles of love and wisdom. Wherefore, as there are degrees of the atmospheres, there are also like degrees of heat and light, and like ones of love and wisdom . . .

192. That these degrees are homogeneous, that is, of the same nature, is evident from what has just been said. The motor fibres of the muscles, least, larger, and largest, are homogeneous. The nervous fibres, least, larger, and largest, are homogeneous. The filaments of woods . . . the parts of stones and metals . . . the organic substances which are the receptacles . . . of the thoughts and affections . . . the atmospheres . . . the degrees of heat and light in series, according to the degrees of the atmospheres . . . and hence also the degrees of love and wisdom, are homogeneous. Things which . . . are heterogeneous do not agree with the homogeneous, thus cannot present discrete degrees together with them, but only with their own . . .

194. Each degree is distinct from the others through coverings of its own, and all the degrees together are distinct by means of a general covering. The general covering communicates with the interior and with the inmost things in their order. Hence comes the conjunction of all, and unanimous action.

195. The first degree is the all in all things of the subsequent degrees. Gen.art. The reason is, that the degrees of each subject and of each thing are homogeneous; and they are homogeneous because produced from the first degree. For the formation of these degrees is such, that the first, by confasculations or conglorations . . . produces the second, and through it the third; and discretizes each from the other by a covering drawn around it. Hence it is evident, that the first degree is the principal and the solely regnant in the subsequent degrees . . .

196. It is said that degrees are such in regard to each other, but the meaning is that the substances are such in their degrees. Speaking by degrees is abstract speaking, which is universal, and therefore applicable to every subject or thing which is in degrees of this kind.

199. All perfections increase and ascend with degrees, and according to them. Gen.art.

— Of (degrees of height) it is said that they ascend or descend, for they are of height; whereas of (degrees of breadth) it is said that they increase or decrease, for they are of breadth. The latter degrees differ so much from the former, that they have nothing in common;

wherefore they must be perceived distinctly, and by no means be confounded.

200. The reason why all perfections increase and ascend with degrees and according to them, is that all predicates follow their subjects . . .

—^e. The forms which are not at the same time forces, are also perfect according to degrees.

201. We shall speak here . . . of the perfections of life, of forces, and of forms, which ascend or descend according to degrees of height, because these degrees are not known in the world. . . As these degrees stand out conspicuously in the Spiritual World, for the whole of that World from highest to lowest is distinctly discreted into them, from that World the Knowledge of these degrees can be drawn ; and afterwards conclusions may be drawn therefrom respecting the perfections of the forces and the forms which are in like degrees in the natural world.

202. In the Spiritual World there are three Heavens arranged according to degrees of height . . . The degrees of their perfections are such, that the Angels of the lowest Heaven cannot ascend to the first threshold of the perfections of the Angels of the middle Heaven, nor these to the first threshold of the perfections of the Angels of the highest Heaven. . . The reason is, that they are consociated according to discrete degrees, and not according to continuous degrees. Ex.

203. These perfections do not appear to any man so long as he lives in the world, because he is then in the lowest degree ; and the higher degrees cannot be known from the lowest degree, but they are Known after death. The man then comes into that degree which corresponds with his love and wisdom . . . There is then an elevation of all things of his mind, not in a simple ratio, but in a triplicate ratio. In the latter ratio are the degrees of height ; in the former are the degrees of breadth. But none ascend into these degrees except those who in the world have been in truths, and have applied them to life.

205. In successive order, the first degree makes the highest, and the third the lowest ; but in simultaneous order, the first degree makes the inmost, and the third the outermost. Gen.art.

—². When the degrees of height are in successive order, they may be compared to a column divided into three steps, by means of which ascent and descent are made. Des.

—³. But simultaneous order, which consists of the like degrees, has another appearance . . . They lie as in a solid consisting of these three degrees ; in the middle of which are the most subtle parts, round about are the parts less subtle, and in the outermost things, which constitute the circuit, are the parts compounded of these, and thence grosser. It is like that column . . . subsiding into a plane . . .

207. In every ultimate there are discrete degrees in simultaneous order. The motor fibres in every muscle, the fibres in every nerve, and the fibres and little vessels in every viscus and organ, are in such an order. Inmost in them are the most simple things, which are the most perfect ; the outermost is the composite of these. There is a like order of these degrees in every seed and in every fruit, and also in every metal and stone . . . The inmost, middle, and outermost things of the parts are in these degrees, for they are successive compositions . . . from simples . . .

208. In short, there are such degrees in every ultimate, thus in every effect. Ex.

—^e. There are the like degrees in each and all things of the Word.

209. The ultimate degree is the complex, the containant, and the basis of the prior degrees. Gen.art.

— . The doctrine of degrees . . . has an extension, not only to natural things, but also to civil, moral, and spiritual things, and to each and all things thereof. Ex.

211. All things civil, moral, and spiritual advance through degrees in like manner as do natural things, not only through continuous degrees, but also through discrete degrees ; and the progressions of discrete degrees are circumscribed as are the progressions of ends to causes, and of causes to effects . . .

212. That the ultimate degree is the complex, the containant, and the basis of the prior degrees, is manifestly evident from the progression of ends and causes to effects. Ex.

214. In a series of like degrees (to love, wisdom, and use) are affection, thought, and action. . . In a series of like degrees are charity, faith, and good work . . . In a series of like degrees are also will, understanding, and exercise . . .

217. The degrees of height in their ultimate are in fulness and in power. Gen.art.

218. Those ascending and descending degrees, which are also called prior and posterior ones, also degrees of height, and discrete ones, are in their power in their ultimate. Ex.

— . As motion is the ultimate degree of endeavour, it thereby exerts its power. Endeavour, force, and motion are no otherwise conjoined than according to degrees of height, the conjunction of which is not by continuity, for they are discrete, but by correspondences. Ex.

219. The interior things which belong to the will and understanding make the first degree ; the interior things which belong to the body the second ; and the whole body, which is their complex, makes the third degree.

220. Such is the evolution and the putting forth of the degrees into power . . .

221. There are three senses in the Word according to the three degrees . . . As these senses are in the Word according to the degrees of height . . .

222. There are degrees of both kinds in the greatest and the least of all things that are created. Gen.art. . . The greatest and the least of all things consist of discrete and of continuous degrees, or of those of height and of breadth . . . 310^e.

223. (The Angels say that) there is nothing so small which has not in it degrees of both kinds ; for instance, there is not the least thing in any animal . . . plant . . . or mineral . . . in the ether and in the air, that has not in it these degrees ; and as the ether and the air are receptacles of heat and light, there is not the least of heat and light ; and as spiritual heat and spiritual light are receptacles of love and wisdom, there is not the least of these, in which there are not degrees of both kinds. (The Angels also say) that the least of affection, and the least of thought, nay, the least of an idea of thought, consists of degrees of both kinds ; and that a least which does not consist of these degrees is nothing ; for it has no form, thus no quality, and no state which can be changed and varied . . . The Angels confirm this by the truth, that the infinite things in God the Creator . . . are distinctly one ; and that there are infinite things in His infinite things ; and that in the infinitely infinite things there are degrees of both kinds, which also in Him are distinctly one ; and as these things are in Him, and all things have been created by Him . . . it follows that there is not the least finite thing in which there are not such degrees. The reason these degrees are equally in the least things and in the greatest, is that the Divine in the greatest and in the least things is the same. 224, Ex.

[W.] 225. The greatest things in which there are degrees of both kinds, are the universe . . . the natural world . . . the Spiritual World . . . each empire . . . each kingdom, in their complex ; also, all the Civil, the Moral, and the Spiritual thereof, in their complex ; the whole animal kingdom, the whole vegetable kingdom, and the whole mineral kingdom, each in its complex ; and all the atmospheres of each world taken together, and also their heats and lights. In like manner things less general, as man in his complex ; every animal in its complex ; every tree and every shrub in its complex ; also every metal and every stone in theirs. The forms of these things are similar in this respect, that they consist of degrees of both kinds. . . The singulars and the most singular things of all these are like the general and the most general things in this, that they are forms of both kinds of degrees.

226. On account of the greatest and the least things being forms of both kinds of degrees, there is a connection of them from primes to ultimates . . . The reason why there is not any least thing in any form, or among any forms, which is the same (as any other), is that there are the like degrees in the greatest things, and the greatest things consist of the least. As there are such degrees in the greatest things, and according to those degrees perpetual differences from top to bottom, and from the centre to the circumferences, it follows that there do not exist any less or least things thereof, in which there are the like degrees, that are the same.

230. There are three infinite and uncreated degrees in the Lord, and there are three finite and created degrees in man. Gen.art. . . The reason there are three infinite and uncreated degrees of height in the Lord, is that the Lord is love itself and wisdom itself . . . and therefore is use itself . . . These three constitute the three degrees of height in the subjects of life. These three are as the first end, the mediate end which is called the cause, and the ultimate end which is called the effect. That the end, the cause, and the effect constitute three degrees of height, has been shown above.

231. That there are these three degrees in man, may be evident from the elevation of his mind even to the degrees of love and wisdom in which are the Angels of the Second and the Third Heavens ; for . . . as to the interior things of his mind, man is Heaven in the least form ; therefore there are from creation as many degrees of height with man as there are Heavens. Man, too, is an image and likeness of God ; wherefore these three degrees are inscribed on man, because they are in . . . the Lord.

232. With the Angels, these three degrees are named celestial, spiritual, and natural ; and with them the celestial degree is the degree of love, the spiritual degree is the degree of wisdom, and the natural degree is the degree of uses. The reason why these degrees are so named, is that the Heavens are distinguished into two Kingdoms, named the Celestial and the Spiritual Kingdoms, to which is added a third Kingdom, in which are men in the world, and which is the Natural Kingdom . . .

233. In the Lord from eternity, before the assumption of the Human in the world, there were the two prior degrees actually, and the third degree in potency, such as they also are with the Angels ; but after the assumption of the Human in the World, He superinduced also the third degree, which is called natural ; and He thereby became a Man like a man in the world, with this difference however, that this degree, like the prior ones, is in Him infinite and uncreate, while in Angel and man these degrees are finite and created. . . Before the assumption of the Human, the Divine influx into the natural degree was mediate through the angelic Heavens, but after the assumption, immediate from Himself. 234, Ex.

235. These are the general statements concerning the threefold ascent of the degrees of height. . . There are such degrees in each and all things of love, and thence such degrees in each and all things of wisdom, and, from these, there are such degrees in each and all things of uses ; but in the Lord all these degrees are infinite, and in Angel and man finite.

236. These three degrees of height are in every man from birth, and they can be successively opened ; and, as they are opened, the man is in the Lord, and the Lord in him. Gen.art.

— So long as these degrees remained hidden, no degrees could be known but continuous degrees ; and when only these degrees are known, it may be believed that love and wisdom with man increase only by continuity. But it is to be known, that with every man from birth there are three degrees of height, or discrete ones, one above or within another ; and that each degree of height . . . has also degrees of breadth . . . according to which it increases by continuity ; for there are degrees of both kinds in the greatest and in the least of all things . . . as no degree of one kind can possibly exist without degrees of the other kind.

237. These three degrees of height are named natural, spiritual, and celestial. . . When man is born he first comes into the natural degree, and this increases with him by continuity, according to knowledges and according to the understanding thereby acquired, up to the highest of the understanding which is called the Rational ; but still he does not thereby open the second degree which is called the spiritual one ; this is opened by the love of uses from intellectual things, that is to say, by the spiritual love of uses, which love is love towards the neighbour. This degree is in like manner able to increase by a continuous degree up to its summit, and it increases by means of the Knowledges of truth and good, that is, by means of spiritual truths. Yet the third degree, which is called the celestial one, is not opened even by these truths, but it is opened by means of the celestial love of use, which love is love to the Lord, and love to the Lord is nothing else than committing to life the precepts of the Word . . . These three degrees are thus successively opened with man.

238. So long as a man lives in the world, he does not know anything about the opening of these degrees in himself. The reason is, that he is then in the natural degree, which is the ultimate, and from it he at that time thinks, wills, speaks, and acts ; and the spiritual degree, which is the interior one, does not communicate with the natural degree by continuity, but by correspondences, and communication by correspondences is not felt. When, however, a man puts off the natural degree, which is the case when he dies, he then comes into that degree which has been opened with him in the world ; into the spiritual one he with whom the spiritual degree has been opened, into the celestial one he with whom the celestial degree has been opened. He who comes into the spiritual degree after death, no longer thinks, wills, speaks, and acts naturally, but spiritually ; and he who comes into the celestial degree, thinks, wills, speaks, and acts according to his own degree. And as communication between the three degrees exists only by correspondences, the differences of love, of wisdom, and of use as to these degrees are such, that they have nothing in common by any continuity between themselves.

239. As there exist with man three degrees of love and wisdom and thence of use, it follows that there also exist with him three degrees of will and understanding and thence of conclusion, and thus of determination to use . . . In a word, the mind of man . . . is of three degrees, so that man has a natural mind, a spiritual mind, and a celestial mind . . .

—³. See COMMAND—praeicipere, at this ref.

240°. The Lord's abode with man is nearer, as by means of these faculties a man opens the higher degrees ; for by the opening of these he comes into the higher degrees of love and wisdom, thus nearer to the Lord. Hence it is evident, that as these degrees are opened, so is the man in the Lord, and the Lord in him.

241. The three degrees of height are as the end, the cause, and the effect, and according to these degrees there succeed love, wisdom, and use.

242. Spiritual light inflows with man through three degrees, but not spiritual heat, except in so far as man shuns evils as sins, and looks to the Lord. Gen.art.

— There are three degrees of light and three degrees of heat, that is, three degrees of wisdom and three degrees of love, and these degrees have been formed with man in order that he may be a receptacle of the Divine love and the Divine wisdom, thus of the Lord.

—^e. Man is able to receive wisdom up to the third degree, but not love, unless he shuns evils as sins, and looks to the Lord . . .

245. The nature of the influx of light into the three degrees of life which are of the mind with man, shall now be told. The forms which are the receptacles of heat and light, or of love and wisdom, with him, and which are in a threefold order, or are of three degrees, are from birth transparent, and transmit spiritual light as crystalline glass transmits natural light. Hence it is that as to wisdom man can be raised up to the third degree. Yet these forms are not opened until spiritual heat conjoins itself with spiritual light . . . By this conjunction these transparent forms are opened according to the degrees.

246. When a man shuns evils from the Lord, the love of evil and its heat is removed, and the love of good and its heat is introduced in its place, by which a higher degree is opened. For the Lord flows in from above, and opens it . . .

247. By the influx of spiritual light into all the three degrees of the mind, man is distinguished from beasts, and . . . is able to think analytically . . .

248. If the higher degree, which is the spiritual one, is not opened with man, he becomes natural and sensuous. Gen.art. It was shown that there are three degrees of the human mind, which are called natural, spiritual, and celestial ; and that these degrees can be successively opened with him : also, that the natural degree is first opened, and afterwards, if he shuns evils as sins, and looks to the Lord, the spiritual degree is opened, and at last the celestial degree. As these degrees are successively opened according to the man's life, it follows that the two higher degrees may also not be opened, and that the man then remains in the natural degree, which is the ultimate one. 260°.

—^e. It is not known that the natural man becomes spiritual by the opening of any higher degree with him . . .

252. The quality of the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is opened. Gen.art. The natural man is a full man when the spiritual degree is opened with him . . . The natural man with whom the spiritual degree is opened does not know that he thinks and acts from his spiritual man . . . Neither does the natural man whose spiritual degree is opened know that by his spiritual man he is in Heaven . . . Moreover, the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is opened does not know that his spiritual mind is filled by the Lord with thousands of the arcana of wisdom and with thousands of the delights of love . . . The reason why the natural man does not know these things, is that communication between the natural man and the spiritual man is effected by correspondences . . .

253. The quality of the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is not opened, but still is not closed up. Gen.art. The spiritual degree is not opened, but still is not closed up, with those who have led some life of charity, and yet have known but little genuine truth. The reason is, that this degree is opened by the conjunction of love and wisdom, or of heat with light . . .

Love (alone, therefore,) does not avail to open that degree, but only keeps it in the potency of being opened; which is meant by its not being closed up . . .

[V.253]². Good through truths opens the spiritual degree . . .

— The lot after death of those with whom the spiritual degree is not opened, and still not closed up, is that as they are still natural and not spiritual, they are in the lowest parts of Heaven . . . or they are in the boundaries in some higher Heaven, where they are as it were in the light of evening . . .

254. The quality of the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is entirely closed up. Gen.art. The spiritual degree is closed up with those who are in evils as to life, and still more with those who from evils are in falsities . . . So the substances or forms of the spiritual degree with man shrink from evils and their falsities, because these are heterogeneous; for, as the spiritual degree is in the form of Heaven, it admits nothing but goods and the truths which are from good; these are homogeneous to it . . .

—². This degree is contracted, and by contraction closed up, with those especially who in the world are in the love of ruling from self-love, because this love is opposed to love to the Lord. It is also closed up with those who from the love of the world are in the mad cupidity of possessing the goods of others, but not to such a degree. The reason why these loves close the spiritual degree, is that they are the origins of evils. The contraction or closing up of this degree is like the retorsion of a spire into the opposite direction; which is the reason why, after this degree has been closed up, it reflects the light of Heaven . . .

—³. With these persons, not only is the spiritual degree itself closed up, but also the higher region of the natural degree, which is called the Rational; until at last the lowest region of the natural degree, which is called the Sensuous, alone stands open . . .

255. The difference (between the life of a merely natural man and that of a beast) is that man has three degrees of the mind, that is, three degrees of the understanding and of the will, and these degrees can be successively opened; and, as they are transparent, man can be raised as to his understanding into the light of Heaven . . . But beasts have not the two higher degrees, but only the natural degrees, which, without the higher degrees, are in no faculty of thinking about any subject; civil, moral, or spiritual. And as their natural degrees are not capable of being opened, and thence of being raised into higher light, they cannot think in successive order, but in simultaneous order, which is not thinking . . . P.324.

256. Regarded in itself, the natural degree of the human mind is continuous, but by correspondence with the two higher degrees, while it is elevated, it appears as if it were discrete. Gen.art.

— But the enlightenment of the natural mind does not ascend by discrete degrees, but it increases by a continuous degree, and, as it increases, so that mind is enlightened from within by the light of the two higher degrees. How this takes place, can be comprehended from a perception of the degrees of height, in that one degree is above another, and that the natural degree, which is the ultimate one, is a kind of general covering to the two higher degrees; and then, as the natural degree is elevated to a degree of higher [light], so the higher from within acts into the exterior Natural, and illuminates it. The illumination is indeed effected from within by the light of the higher degrees, but this light is received by the natural degree which envelops and surrounds them, by continuity, therefore more lucidly and purely according to the height of the ascent; that is to say, the natural degree is enlightened from within from the light of the higher degrees, discretely, but in itself continuously. Hence it is evident that so long as man lives in the world, and is thereby in the natural degree, he cannot be elevated into wisdom itself such as exists with the Angels, but only into higher light up to the Angels, and into receiving enlightenment from their light . . .

257⁴. But still the man with whom the spiritual degree has been opened, comes into that wisdom when he dies, and he can also come into it by a laying asleep of the sensations of the body . . .

258. Every man is born into the faculty of understanding truths even to that inmost degree in which are the Angels of the Third Heaven; for the human understanding, rising up by continuity around the two higher degrees, receives the light of the wisdom of those degrees . . . Hence it is, that man can become rational according to this elevation; if he is elevated to the third degree, he becomes rational from the third degree; if he is elevated to the second degree, he becomes rational from the second degree; and if he is not elevated, he is rational in the first degree. It is said that he becomes rational from these degrees, because the natural degree is the general receptacle of their light.

—². Hence it is, that if a man's love is not elevated at the same time into the spiritual degree, he is still not rational save in the ultimate degree. Hence it is evident, that man's Rational is in appearance as of three degrees . . .

260. As the natural mind is the covering and containant of the higher degrees of the human mind, it is reactive; and if the higher degrees are not opened, it acts against them, but if they are opened, it acts with them. Gen.art.

— As the natural mind is in the ultimate degree, it envelops and encloses the spiritual mind and the celestial mind, which, as to degrees, are higher than it.

—². (In respect to the reaction of the natural mind) it is the same with every ultimate degree of degrees of height . . .

269^e. The malignity of evil increases according to the degree of the closing up of the natural mind . . .

274. The natural mind, which is a form or image of Hell, descends by three degrees. Gen.art. In the greatest and in the least things there are degrees of two kinds . . . and such also is the case with the natural mind in its greatest and in its least things: degrees of height are here meant. From its two faculties, which are called rationality and freedom, the natural mind is in such a state, that it can ascend through three degrees, and it can descend through three degrees . . . when it ascends, the lower degrees which tend to Hell are closed, and when it descends, the higher degrees which tend to Heaven are closed: the reason is, that they are in reaction. These three degrees, higher and lower, are neither opened nor closed in man in early infancy; for he is then in ignorance of good and truth, and of evil and falsity; but as he commits himself to the one or the other, so are the degrees opened or closed on the one side or on the other. When they are opened towards Hell, the reigning love . . . obtains the highest place, the thought of falsity from that love . . . obtains the second place, and the conclusion of the love through the thought . . . obtains the lowest place. It is the same here as with the degrees of height before treated of, namely, that they are in order as the end, the cause, and the effect . . . The descent of these degrees is towards the body; hence, in the descent they become grosser, and become material and corporeal. If truths from the Word in the second degree are taken to it to form it, these truths are falsified from the first degree, which is the love of evil . . .

275. The three degrees of the natural mind, which is a form and image of Hell, are opposite to the three degrees of the spiritual mind, which is a form and image of Heaven. Gen.art. There are three degrees of the mind, which are called natural, spiritual, and celestial; and the human mind consisting of these degrees looks toward Heaven, and bends itself round thither . . . Hence it may be seen, that when the natural mind looks downwards, and bends itself round towards Hell, it consists in like manner of three degrees, and that each degree of it is opposite to a degree of the mind which is a Heaven. . . (For) there are three Heavens, and these are distinct according to degrees of height; and there are three Hells, and these also are distinct according to degrees of height, that is, of depth . . . It is the same with the natural mind, which is in the form of Hell . . .

—³. Love to the Lord, and thence love towards the neighbour, make the inmost degree in the Heavens; but the love of self and the love of the world make the inmost degree in the Hells: wisdom and intelligence from their own loves make the middle degree in the Heavens; but folly and insanity . . . from their own loves make the middle degree in the Hells: and the conclusions from their own two degrees, which are either stored up in the memory as knowledges, or are determined into acts in the body, make the ultimate degree in the Heavens; and the conclusions from their own two degrees, which either become knowledges, or become acts, make the outermost degree in the Hells. (Shown from experience.)

277. All things which are of the three degrees of the natural mind, are included in the works which are done by acts of the body. Gen.art.

— There are forces of the motor fibres of the whole body in concurrence, and there are all the things of the mind which excite and determine these forces, which are of three degrees . . . And as there are all things of the mind, there are all things of the will . . . which make the first degree; there are all things of the understanding . . . which make the second degree; and there are all things of the memory . . . which present the third degree.

278. Each degree is encompassed by a covering, and is thereby distinguished from another degree; wherefore those things which belong to the first degree are not known by the second degree; nor are the things which belong to this degree known by the third. For example: The love of the will, which is the first degree of the mind, is not known in the wisdom of the understanding, which is the second degree of the mind, except by a certain delight in the thought of a thing. The first degree, which, as was said, is the love of the will, is not known in the knowledge of the memory, except by a certain pleasantness in knowing and speaking.

295°. Hence it is evident, that the Natural and the Spiritual differ according to degrees of height . . .

297. Love, wisdom, and use follow in order according to degrees of height, and the ultimate degree is the complex, the containant, and the basis of the prior degrees.

300. The one only substance, which is the Sun, proceeding by means of atmospheres according to continuous degrees, or those of breadth, and at the same time according to discrete degrees, or those of height, presents the varieties of all things in the created universe.

302. There are three atmospheres in each world . . . which are distinct from each other according to degrees of height, and which decrease in their downward progression according to degrees of breadth. . . From this origin of substances and matters, it follows, that these substances and matters are also of three degrees.

313. The first forms of the mineral kingdom are the substances and matters of which earths consist, in their least things; the second forms are congregates of these . . . the third forms arise from plants fallen to dust, and from the remains of animals, and from the continual evaporations and exhalations of these, which mix with earths, and form their soil. These forms of the three degrees of the mineral kingdom . . .

345. The Spiritual flows down from its Sun through three degrees down to the ultimates of nature, and these degrees are called celestial, spiritual, and natural; and these degrees are in man from creation, and thence from birth; and they are opened according to his life. If the celestial degree is opened, which is the highest and inmost one, the man becomes celestial; if the spiritual degree is opened, which is the middle one, he becomes spiritual; and if only the natural degree is opened, which is the lowest and outermost one, the man becomes natural.

346². All animals, great and small, draw their origin from the Spiritual in the ultimate degree, which is called the natural one; man alone from all the degrees, which are three, and are called celestial, spiritual, and natural. As every degree of height . . . decreases by continuity from its perfection to its imperfection . . . so do animals . . . But still, as they live only from the ultimate spiritual degree, which is called natural, they cannot look elsewhere than to the earth . . .

414. See LOVE at this ref.

[W.] 422². The reason love purified by wisdom becomes spiritual and celestial, is that man has three degrees of life, which are called natural, spiritual, and celestial . . . and man can be elevated from one degree to another.

424². Just as natural love can ascend through degrees, and become spiritual and celestial, so also it can descend through degrees, and become sensuous and corporeal . . .

432². There was seen as it were a least image of a brain . . . which in the upper gibbous part was a compages of contiguous globules or spherules, and each spherule was compacted of others still more minute, and each of these in like manner of others most minute : thus it was of three degrees.

—⁴. The Angels said, that the two internal degrees, which were in the order and form of Heaven, were receptacles of love and wisdom from the Lord ; and that the exterior degree, which was in opposition, contrary to the order and form of Heaven, was the receptacle of infernal love and insanity . . . and from this fall there is no recovery, unless the higher degrees are opened.

P. 32. Man is such from creation, that, through degrees, he can be more and more closely conjoined with the Lord. Ex.

—². In every man from creation and thence birth there are three discrete degrees . . . and man comes into the first degree, which is called natural, when he is born, and he can augment this degree with himself by continuity even until he becomes rational ; and he comes into the second degree, which is called spiritual, if he lives according to the spiritual laws of order, which are Divine truths ; and he can also come into the third degree, which is called celestial, if he lives according to the celestial laws of order, which are Divine goods. These degrees are opened with a man by the Lord according to his life in the world, actually ; but not perceptibly and sensibly until after his departure out of the world ; and as they are opened and afterwards perfected, the man is more and more closely conjoined with the Lord.

—³. But still an Angel cannot attain, or even touch, the first degree of the Lord's love and wisdom . . .

34. As there are three degrees of life with man from creation and thence from birth . . . there are especially three degrees of wisdom with him ; these are the degrees which are opened with man according to conjunction ; they are opened according to love . . . But of the ascent of love according to degrees, man has only an obscure perception ; the ascent of wisdom, however, is clearly perceived with those who know and see what wisdom is. The reason why the degrees of wisdom are perceived, is that love enters through affections into the perceptions and thoughts . . .

—². But there are three degrees of wisdom, the natural, the spiritual, and the celestial. Man is in the natural degree of wisdom while he lives in the world. This degree may then be perfected with him to its highest point, and still it cannot enter the spiritual degree, because this degree is not continued from the natural degree by continuity, but is conjoined with it by correspondences. After death, man is in the spiritual degree of wisdom ; and this degree is also such that it may be perfected to the highest point, but still it cannot enter the celestial degree of wisdom, because this degree is not continued from the spiritual one by continuity, but is conjoined with it by correspondences . . .

—^c. The Lord alone opens the spiritual degree and the celestial degree, and with those only who are wise from Him . . .

36. They represent wisdom to themselves as a palace . . . the ascent to which is by twelve steps . . . The twelve steps to the palace of wisdom signify goods conjoined with truths, and truths conjoined with goods.

37. Similar things to those which have been said about the degrees of life and of wisdom according to conjunction with the Lord, may also be said about the degrees of happiness ; for happinesses . . . ascend as the higher degrees of the mind are opened with man, which are called the spiritual and the celestial ones ; and, after his life in the world, these degrees increase to eternity.

75. The human mind is of three degrees . . . wherefore man can be elevated from natural knowledge into spiritual intelligence, and thence into celestial wisdom . . .

166². There are three degrees of light in the Spiritual World ; celestial light, spiritual light, and spiritual natural light . . .

167. The light in Hell also is of three degrees. Des.

324¹⁰. The reason the like does not take place with many in the world, is that they love the first degree of their life, which is called natural . . . and, regarded in itself, the natural degree of life loves nothing but self and the world, for it coheres with the sense of the body . . . ; whereas the spiritual degree of life regarded in itself loves the Lord and Heaven, and also self and the world, but God and Heaven as higher . . .

334. Every Angel is perfected in wisdom to eternity ; but each according to the degree of the affection of good and truth in which he was when he left the world : it is this degree which is perfected to eternity ; what is outside this degree is outside the Angel . . . Sig.

R. 49². As there are (the Divine Celestial, the Divine Spiritual, and the Divine Natural) in the Lord, there are also these three in the angelic Heaven . . . Hence, too, in every man, as he is created to the image of God, there are these three degrees ; and, as they are opened, he becomes an Angel of either the Third, the Second, or the Ultimate Heaven . . .

675^e. Lo, there were steps before our eyes, by which we ascended . . .

744². The reason there are in the Church, external, internal, and inmost things, is that, like Heaven, the Lord's Church is distinguished into three degrees ; in the ultimate degree are they who are in its external things, in the second degree are they who are in its internal things, and in the third degree are they who are in its inmost things. (These three degrees of the Church are signified respectively by 'the called,' 'the chosen,' and 'the faithful' (Rev. xvii. 14).

774². There are three degrees of wisdom and love, and thence three degrees of truth and good ; the first degree is called celestial, the second spiritual, and the third natural ; these degrees are with every man from birth ; and they are also in general in Heaven and in the Church; which is the reason why there are three Heavens . . . entirely distinct from each other according to these degrees; in like manner the Lord's Church on earth . . .

M. 76^o. Steps of alabaster. R. 875².

137⁵. (The Sun's altitude there is 45 degrees.)

185². The reason is, that the internal things of man, by which are meant the things of his mind or spirit, are elevated in a higher degree above the external things; and in those things which are in a higher degree, a thousand things take place in the same instant in which one takes place in external ones.

188^o. See REGION at this ref.

442. It is said that the delights are natural, sensuous, and corporeal, because the Natural is distinguished into three degrees; in the highest degree are those natural men who from rational sight see insanities, and still are carried away by the delights thereof . . . ; in a lower degree are the natural men who see and judge only from the senses of the body . . . ; in the lowest degree are the natural men who without judgment are carried away by the alluring heats of their bodies . . .

478. On adulteries, and their kinds and degrees. Gen.art.

485. There are four degrees of adulteries . . . Gen. art. These degrees are not kinds, but enter into each kind . . .

486. Adulteries of the first degree are adulteries of ignorance . . . Gen.art.

488. Adulteries of the second degree are adulteries of lust . . . Gen.art.

490. Adulteries of the third degree are adulteries of the reason . . . Gen.art.

492. Adulteries of the fourth degree are adulteries of the will . . . Gen.art.

494. Adulteries of the third and fourth degrees are evils of sin according to the quantity and quality of the understanding and will in them . . . Gen.art.

496. There are three degrees of the natural man; in the first are they who love the world only . . . these are properly meant by the natural; in the second degree are they who love the delights of the senses only . . . these are properly meant by the sensuous; in the third degree are they who love themselves only . . . these are properly meant by the corporeal. Ex.

532^o. There are three degrees of life, and thence three Heavens; and the human mind is distinguished into these degrees. The Angels said, Did not they not know this before? I replied, that they knew about degrees between greater and less, but nothing about degrees between prior and posterior.

I. 16. There are three degrees in the Spiritual World, and three degrees in the natural world heretofore unknown, according to which all influx takes place. Gen. art. By the investigation of causes from effects, it is discovered that there are two kinds of degrees; one in which things are prior and posterior, and another in which they are greater and less. The degrees which distinguish things prior and posterior are to be called degrees of height, also discrete degrees; but the degrees by which things greater and less are distinguished from each other, are to be called degrees of breadth, and also continuous degrees. Degrees of height . . . are like the generations and compositions of one thing from another; as for example, of some nerve from its fibres, and of any fibre from its fibrils; or of some piece of wood, stone, or metal from its parts, and of any part from its particles. But degrees of breadth . . . are like the increments and decrements of the same degree of height with respect to breadth, length, height, and depth; as of greater and less volumes of water, air, or ether; and as of large and small masses of wood, stone, or metal. Each and all things in the Spiritual and natural worlds, are by creation in degrees of this twofold kind. The whole animal kingdom . . . is in these degrees in general and in particular; so likewise are the whole vegetable kingdom and the whole mineral kingdom; and also the atmospheric expanse from the sun down to the earth. There are therefore three atmospheres discretely distinct according to degrees of height in both the Spiritual and the natural worlds . . . And as the atmospheres descend from their origins according to these degrees, and are the containants of light and heat . . . it follows that there are three degrees of light and of heat: and as the light in the Spiritual World is in its essence wisdom, and the heat there is in its essence love . . . it follows also that there are three degrees of wisdom and three degrees of love, consequently three degrees of life; for they are graduated by those things through which they pass. Hence it is that there are three angelic Heavens: a highest . . . where are Angels of the highest degree; a middle one . . . where are Angels of the middle degree; and an ultimate one . . . where are Angels of the ultimate degree. These Heavens are also distinguished according to the degrees of wisdom and love. Ex.

—⁶. As the angelic Heavens are distinguished into three degrees, so also is the human mind . . .

— . Hence it is evident that all spiritual influx to a man and into a man descends from the Lord through these three degrees, and that it is received by the man according to the degree of wisdom and love in which he is.

—7. The Knowledge of these degrees is, at the present day, of the greatest utility; for, in consequence of not knowing them, many persons remain and cling in the lowest degree, in which are the senses of their body . . .

17. Ends are in the first degree, causes in the second, and effects in the third. Gen.art.

—³. As all things in the Spiritual World, and all things in the natural world, proceed according to these degrees . . . it is evident that intelligence properly consists in Knowing and distinguishing them, and in seeing them in their order. By means of these degrees, also, every man is Known as to his quality, when his love is Known . . .

T. 32^o. Between the three degrees of height there is a progression to infinity, in that the first degree, which is called natural, cannot be perfected and elevated to the perfection of the second degree, which is called spiritual, nor this to the perfection of the third, which is called celestial . . . This may be illustrated by the atmospheres, of which there are three degrees . . .

[T.] 33. One thing has been formed from another, and thence have been made degrees, three in the Spiritual World, and three corresponding to them in the natural world, and as many in the quiescent things of which the terraqueous globe consists . . . It is by means of these degrees that all posterior things are receptacles of prior things, and these of things still prior, and thus, in order, receptacles of the primitives of which the Sun of the angelic Heaven consists, and thus that finite things are receptacles of the infinite . . .

34. The human mind . . . is formed into three regions, according to three degrees: in the first degree it is celestial . . . ; in the second degree it is spiritual . . . ; and in the third degree it is natural . . . If man prepares the way or opens the door up to the highest or celestial degree, he becomes truly an image of God, and after death he becomes an Angel of the highest Heaven; but if . . . only to the middle or spiritual degree, man does indeed become an image of God, but not in that perfection, and after death he becomes an Angel of the middle Heaven; but if . . . only to the lowest or natural degree, then if man acknowledges God and worships Him with actual piety, he becomes an image of God in the lowest degree, and after death he becomes an Angel of the lowest Heaven. But . . . if man closes up the highest natural degree, which corresponds to the highest celestial one, he becomes as to love like a beast of the earth; if he closes up the middle natural degree, which corresponds to the middle spiritual one, he becomes as to love like a fox, and as to the sight of the understanding like a bird of evening; and if he closes up also the lowest natural degree as to its spiritual part, he becomes as to love like a wild beast, and as to the understanding of truth like a fish. E. 1145¹⁰.

—4. The reception of the Divine life in the highest degree, (may be compared) to the influx of light into a diamond; the reception of the life in the second degree, to the influx of light into a crystal; and the reception of the life in the lowest degree, to the influx of light into glass, or into a transparent membrane: but if this degree as to its spiritual part be entirely closed up, which is done when God is denied and Satan worshipped, the reception of life from God may be compared to the influx of light into opaque things . . .

42. There are three degrees of love and wisdom, and thence three degrees of life, and the human mind is formed as it were into regions according to these degrees; life in the highest region is in the highest degree, in the second region, in a lower degree, and in the ultimate region, in the lowest degree. . . The ultimate region, where life is in the lowest degree, is opened from infancy to youth, and this is done by means of knowledges; the second region, where life is in a higher degree, from youth to adolescence, and this is done by means of thoughts from knowledges; and the highest region, where life is in the highest degree, from adolescence to early manhood and onwards, and this is done by means of perceptions of truths, both moral and spiritual.

69. The human mind is distinguished into three degrees, like the angelic Heaven, and therefore it can be elevated to a degree higher and higher, and may also be let down to a degree lower and lower; but in proportion as it is elevated into the higher degrees, it is elevated into wisdom . . . and in proportion as it is elevated thither, it is man; but in proportion as it is let down into the lower degrees, it is in the delusive light of Hell, and is not man, but a beast.

75⁴. In each world there are three degrees, which are called degrees of height, and thence three regions according to which the angelic Heavens are ordained, and according to which human minds also are ordained . . .

76⁶. As there were three (atmospheres created), and thence three degrees of them, three Heavens were made; one for the Angels who are in the highest degree of love and wisdom, another for the Angels who are in the second degree, and a third for the Angels who are in the lowest degree . . .

214². There are degrees of purity, according to which both these kinds of order take place.

410². It is evident that there are genera and species, and also degrees, of love towards the neighbour.

498. There are three degrees of life with man; the soul, the mind, and the sensuous body; everything that is in a higher degree, is in perfection above that which is in a lower degree.

608. There are three Heavens, which are distinct from each other according to the three degrees of love and wisdom; and man is in communion with Angels from these three Heavens according to his regeneration; and as this is so, the human mind is distinguished into three degrees or regions according to the Heavens. . . These three degrees, according to which the Heavens are distinguished . . . are like the head, body, and feet in man . . .

609. These three degrees are as gold, silver, and copper are in relative nobility, with which metals they are also compared in Nebuchadnezzar's statue. These three degrees are also distinguished from each other as are the ruby, the sapphire, and the agate, in relative purity and goodness; and also as an olive-tree, a vine, and a fig-tree; and so on.

Ad. 633. The second kind of order exists between those things which come forth in one degree simultaneously, and is therefore called simultaneous order.

D. 152⁶. The Angels of the third degree are able to be in this sphere [without injury].

314. It was conceded to them to feel heavenly joy to their inmost degree . . .

835. In each degree there are three Heavens; the Spiritual, that of peace, and that of innocence; no one is admitted into the inmost Heaven of the higher degree, unless he has been in the more internal one.

1828. Wherefore, there are three degrees of life within man, as there are three degrees of life in the Heavens . . . which are distinguished into the interior one, which is of the natural mind; the more interior one, which is of the intellectual mind; and the inmost one, which corresponds to the Third Heaven.

2191. That in the interior Heaven there are degrees of Angels.

— There are three Heavens . . . which are distinguished from each other as to degrees . . . But these degrees are in general. In each Heaven also there exist degrees of happinesses, in fact, as I suppose, three, which however are not so circumstanced in relation to each other as are the degrees of the Heavens in general. From the degrees in the body it may be allowable to suppose that there are three. Ex.

— Hearing, ocular sight, and the sight of imagination, differ from each other by degrees, yet all relate to natural things . . .

2947. On the four degrees of faith. (Scientific faith, intellectual faith, persuasion, and the persuasion which is conjoined with perception.)

4627³. The interior [degrees] of man, which do not die, thus succeed each other: the Sensuous, the Natural, the Spiritual Natural: these are of the external man. Afterwards come the Celestial Spiritual, the Celestial, and the Inmost which wants a name, because it receives immediately the good and truth which proceed from the Lord: these are of the internal man. The medium between the internal and the external man is called the Spiritual Celestial. Ex.

4734. Evil Spirits dwell in caves . . . to which you descend by steps.

5547. On Heaven in general, and on its degrees.

— There are Heavens above Heavens . . . There are seven degrees of them . . . the internal ones are distinguished into three, and the external ones into three, and between the internal and the external ones there exist intermediate ones which are called the celestial spiritual ones: hence it is that there are seven degrees.

5548. The first degree . . . is of the Lord alone, and may be called the very habitation of the Lord in Heaven, for what goes on there an Angel does not know . . . The second degree among the internal ones, is that which does indeed come to their perception, but as the internal of man to his external. The third degree is that in which are those Angels, and is where they have their perception; their human is there, and their soul is in the second one.

5549. The Angels in the Spiritual Heaven are not in internals, but in externals; this external is also tripartite . . . The external which accedes to the sensuous external in the world is quiescent; in the middle they live as to thought and perception; the internal is to them as a soul. They indeed have the internal which is above, but it is closed up. Communication is effected with them through the Celestial Spiritual Heaven, across the Celestial one. Hence it is that the spiritual Angels are in the internal Natural.

5550. Hence it is evident, that there are three degrees of Heavens, that is, of Angels in the Heavens. The same number of degrees exist with men in the world who are Angels; but at that time they do not know what is going on in their internals; these are opened after death.

5551. These degrees are entirely distinct from each other . . .

E. 141¹⁶. To all the forbidden degrees (Lev. xx. 11-21) correspond such spheres (of whoredom), with a difference according to the application of truths to falsities, and according to the conjunction of falsities with evils . . .

253⁷. 'The six steps' (1 Kings x. 19) = all things from primes to ultimates.

275¹⁰. 'The steps which Jehovah builds in the heavens' (Amos ix. 6) = interior truths, which are called spiritual ones.

314³. 'Lamb' = innocence of the inmost degree . . . 'Kid' = innocence of the second degree . . . 'Calf' = innocence of the ultimate degree . . . Innocence of the inmost degree is such as is in the Third Heaven . . . Innocence of the second degree is such as is in the Second Heaven . . . Innocence of the ultimate degree is such as is in the First Heaven.

—⁶. 'Lambs, rams, and he-goats' = the three degrees of the good of innocence; the same as 'lambs, rams, and calves' (See A. 10042. 10132.) —⁸.

342³. There are three Heavens, and each Heaven is distinguished into three degrees; in like manner the Angels who are in them; wherefore, in each Heaven there are higher, middle, and lower ones. These three degrees of the ultimate Heaven are meant by 'those who are in Heaven,' 'those who are in the earth,' and 'those who are in the sea.'

375². The Third Heaven is in inmost goods, or those of the third degree; the Second Heaven is in lower goods and truths, or those of the second degree; and the First Heaven is in ultimate goods and truths, or those of the first degree. Ultimate goods and truths, or those of the first degree, are such as are contained in the sense of the letter of the Word . . .

400⁹. 'Steps' (Ezek. xxxviii. 20) = the truths thence derived.

436. (With those in the Third Heaven) the three degrees of life are opened; the inmost is where love to the Lord resides, the middle where truths from that good, and the ultimate where the good of life.

449². There are with man three degrees of life; inmost, middle, and ultimate; the inmost degree is that in which are they who are in the Third Heaven, the middle degree is that in which are they who are in the Second Heaven, and the ultimate degree is that in which are they who are in the First Heaven; wherefore, they who are in the inmost degree are called celestial, they who are in the middle one are called spiritual, and they who are in ultimate Heaven are called either spiritual natural or celestial natural. The conjunction of these in the ultimate Heaven is signified by 'Benjamin.'

538. Truths there appear as of water. . . The reason is, that there are three degrees of man's life, as there are three Heavens; they with whom the third degree has been opened are as it were in a pure ethereal atmosphere . . . ; they, however, in whom only the second degree has been opened, are as it were in an aerial atmosphere . . . ; but they in whom only the first degree has been opened, are as it were in a watery atmosphere, thin and pure.

[E.] 563². There are three degrees of life with every man; inmost, middle, and ultimate; and man becomes more perfect, that is, wiser, in the proportion that he becomes more interior . . .

625⁵. See MIND at this ref.

627⁵. In its descent, Divine truth proceeds according to degrees from the highest or inmost to the lowest or ultimate; Divine truth in the highest degree is such as is the Divine which proximately proceeds from the Lord, thus such as is the Divine truth above the Heavens; being infinite, this cannot come to the perception of any Angel. Divine truth of the first degree, however, is that which reaches the perception of the Angels of the Third Heaven, and is called Divine truth celestial; from this is the wisdom of these Angels. Divine truth of the second degree is that which reaches the perception of the Angels of the Second Heaven, and makes their wisdom and intelligence, being called Divine truth spiritual. Divine truth of the third degree is that which reaches the perception of the Angels of the First Heaven, and makes their intelligence and knowledge, and is called Divine truth celestial and spiritual natural. Divine truth of the fourth degree is that which reaches the perception of the men of the Church who are living in the world, and makes their intelligence and knowledge; this is called Divine truth natural. The ultimate of this is called Divine truth sensuous. These Divine truths are in order in the Word according to their degrees; and Divine truth in the ultimate degree or in the ultimate of order is such as is the Divine truth in the sense of the letter of the Word for little children and the extremely simple who are sensuous. Sig.

629⁴. Height=both truth and good as to degrees: the degrees of truth and of good are such as are truth and good interiorly . . . and exteriorly.

706¹⁶. 'The degrees of Ahaz' (Is. xxxviii. 8) = the time; here, up to the Lord's Advent. . . The whole time of the duration of the Jewish Church was represented by 'the degrees of Ahaz'; its beginning by the first degree, which is when the sun is rising, and its end by the last degree at sunset.

708⁴. The reason why (the Heavens which are under the Lord as a Moon) are interior ones, middle ones, and exterior ones, is that the Natural is distinguished into three degrees, in the same way as the Spiritual; the exterior Natural communicates with the world, the interior with Heaven, and the middle conjoins . . .

710²⁹. The marriage of the understanding of truth and good with the affection of truth and good is in general from a triple origin, and thence in a triple degree; in the highest degree is the marriage of those who are called celestial, in a lower one is the marriage among those who are spiritual, and in the lowest one among those who are natural; for there are as many degrees of the interiors of man; hence there are three Heavens . . .

—³³. The goods of Heaven and of the Church are of three degrees; the good of the inmost degree . . . is called the good of celestial love; the good of a lower degree . . . is called the good of spiritual love; and the good of the lowest degree . . . is called natural good.

714⁸. (The Solifidians) have excogitated degrees, which they call the progressions of faith alone. Enum. 787⁴, Enum.

739². With men there are three degrees of life; inmost, middle, and ultimate; and these degrees are successively opened with a man, as he becomes wise. Every man is born utterly sensuous . . . He afterwards becomes interiorly sensuous; but in proportion as he procures natural lumen by means of visual experience, knowledges, and especially by means of the uses of moral life, the man becomes interiorly natural: this is the first or ultimate degree of man's life. . . He then imbibes the Knowledges of spiritual good and truth . . . and thus founds the Church in himself; but still, if he does not advance further, he remains natural; but if he does advance further, that is, if he lives according to these Knowledges from the Word, he opens with himself an interior degree, and becomes spiritual, yet not more than as he is affected with truths, understands them, wills them, and does them . . . The reason why the interior degree cannot be otherwise opened, is that the evils and falsities which are in the natural man keep it closed; for the spiritual degree, or the spiritual mind, contracts itself at evil and the falsity of evil, as a fibril of the body at a sting . . . But when homogeneous things, which are Divine truths from the Word that derive their essence from good, approach this mind, it opens itself; yet the opening takes place only by the reception of the good of love which flows in through Heaven from the Lord, and by the conjunction thereof with the truths which the man has committed to memory; this takes place only by means of a life according to the Divine truths in the Word . . . Hence it is evident how the second or middle degree is opened.

—⁴. The third or inmost degree is opened with those who at once apply Divine truths to life, and do not first reason about them from the memory, and thereby get them into doubt: this degree is called celestial. As these three degrees of life exist with every man, but are variously opened, there are three Heavens; in the Third Heaven are they with whom the third degree has been opened; in the Second Heaven are they with whom only the second degree has been opened; and in the First Heaven are they with whom the interior natural man, which is also called the rational man, has been opened . . .

746³⁸. Three degrees of hatred are here described (by 'being angry,' 'calling raka' and 'fool') . . . All these degrees are degrees of hatred against the good of charity . . . ; and three degrees of punishment are signified by 'the judgment,' 'the council,' and 'the Gehenna of fire' . . .

768¹⁷. For there are degrees of Divine truth, as there are degrees of its reception by the Angels in the three Heavens and in the Church. . . But 'the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob,' here mean all who are of the Lord's Church, in every degree.

832⁶. There are three degrees of life with man; the third degree is that in which are the Angels of the Third Heaven; the second degree is that in which are the Angels of the Second Heaven; and the first degree is that in which are the Angels of the First Heaven. There is also a lowest degree, which is corporeal and material, and which exists with man while he lives in the world. These degrees are opened with man according to the reception of Divine truth in his life . . . ; and as love and the life of man make one, it follows that there are as many degrees of love as there are of life. Enum.

—7. They who are in the third degree of love and thence of wisdom, live in an atmosphere as it were purely ethereal ; they who are in the second degree of love and thence of intelligence, live in an atmosphere as it were purely aerial ; and they who are in the first degree of love and thence of knowledge, live in an atmosphere as it were purely aqueous ; and as the purity of their life is in a like degree with their love, it is evident that they who are in the Third Heaven . . . cannot be approached by those who are in the Second and First . . .

846°. 'Egypt' = the natural understanding of the Word, 'Asshur' the rational understanding, 'Israel' the spiritual understanding, and 'Ephraim' the understanding itself of the Word in the Church. But these three degrees of understanding ; natural, rational, and spiritual, must be one, in order for man from enlightenment to see and perceive the genuine truths of the Word . . .

1125°. No idea of the life which is God can be had, unless there is also procured an idea of the degrees through which life descends from inmosts to ultimates. There is an inmost degree of life, and there is an ultimate degree of life, and there are intermediate degrees of life : the distinction is as between things prior and posterior ; for a posterior degree comes forth from a prior one, and so on ; and the difference is as between things less and more general ; for that which is of a prior degree is less general, and that which is of a posterior one is more so. Such degrees of life are in every man from creation, and are opened according to the reception of life from the Lord ; in some there is opened the last degree but one, in some the middle one, and in some the inmost one. The men in whom the inmost degree is opened, after death become Angels of the Third Heaven ; they in whom the middle degree is opened, after death become Angels of the Second Heaven ; but they in whom the last degree but one is opened, after death become Angels of the Ultimate Heaven. These degrees are called degrees of man's life, but they are degrees of his wisdom and of his love, because they are opened according to the reception of wisdom and love, thus of life from the Lord. Such degrees of life also exist in every organ, viscus, and member of the body, and act as one with the degrees of life in the brains by influx ; the skins, cartilages, and bones constitute the ultimate of their degree. The reason there are such degrees in man, is that there are such degrees of the life which proceeds from the Lord ; but in the Lord they are life, whereas in man they are recipients of life. But . . . in the Lord there are degrees still higher, and all, both highest and ultimate, are life ; for the Lord teaches that He is the Life, and also that He has flesh and bones.

1127°. Life itself with him is man, both sensuous and natural, and rational, spiritual, and celestial ; so are called the degrees of life.

1144°. In proportion as he is not wise, he stands still in the first degree, which is to love himself and the world . . .

1145. There are three degrees of life in man, which, regarded in their order, are called celestial, spiritual, and natural ; in the same order there are mentioned in this verse such things as signify goods and truths according to degrees.

1147. The Natural of man is a trine ; rational, natural, and sensuous ; the Rational is the highest there, the Sensuous is the lowest there, and the Natural is the intermediate . . . Men who think, judge, and conclude well from reason, are rational . . . They who are sensuous think from material things and in them . . . And as there exist these two degrees, there also exists an intermediate, which is called natural . . . The same are also Known in the Spiritual World, for there exist the same number of degrees of natural men in the ultimate Heaven . . .

1170. Wisdom is in the third degree, intelligence in the second one, and knowledge in the first or ultimate one. Sig.

1185. Affections are of two kinds, spiritual and celestial . . . but are of three degrees ; inmost, middle, and outermost ; inmost, such as are in the inmost Heaven ; middle, such as are in the middle Heaven ; and outermost, such as are in ultimate Heaven.

1201°. The souls of beasts are not spiritual in that degree in which the souls of men are, but are spiritual in a lower degree, for there are degrees of spiritual things ; and affectionous of a lower degree, although, regarded from their origin, they are spiritual, are still to be called natural : they are so to be called because they are like the affections of the natural man. There are in man three degrees of natural affections, and the same in beasts ; in the lowest degree are insects of various kinds, in a higher one are the flying things of heaven, and in a still higher one are the beasts of the earth, which have been created from the beginning.

1202°. Knowledge belongs to wisdom, and affection to love in the degree which is called natural.

—5. The spiritual mind is such, that it can view and love truths and goods in every degree, both conjointly with the natural mind, and abstractedly from it . . .

1210°. For there are degrees of spiritual things, and each degree is distinct from another, and a prior or higher degree is more perfect than a posterior or lower one . . . For there are degrees of heat, which in Heaven is love, and according to these degrees the Angels have wisdom, intelligence, and knowledge.

—3. The same number of degrees also exist below the Heavens, that is, in nature, which are lower degrees of spiritual things ; as may be evident from the natural mind of man, and from his rationality and sensuousness ; rational men are in its first degree, sensuous men in its ultimate one, and some in the middle one ; and all the thought and affection of the natural mind is spiritual.

— . These three forces, which are the force of acting, the force of creating, and the force of forming, are in the Spiritual in every degree thereof, but with a difference of perfection . . .

[E.] 1212. 'Small and great'=all who are in truths and goods, in every degree.

1224². In every man there are three degrees of life; a lowest one which he has in common with beasts, and two higher ones which he has not in common with them; by these two higher degrees man is man; they are closed with the evil, but opened with the good: but these degrees are not closed with the evil against the light of Heaven, which is the wisdom that proceeds from the Lord as a Sun, but they are closed against its heat, which is the love that proceeds simultaneously thence. This is why even an evil man possesses the faculty of understanding . . .

Ath. 177. The Divine proceeding before the Advent of the Lord, is described by circles and by degrees . . . The degrees are successive . . . Wherefore, while there is reception in every degree, they correspond with each other, and they thus as it were transfer to each other; but when in the ultimate degree there was no longer a reception of the Divine . . . the Divine proceeding could not be extended thither.

178. All things have been so created . . . that the love which is of good, or the good which is of affection and love, induces on itself what is human in every single degree from first to last. . . That there is such a nature in each single degree . . . is because that which proceeds from the Lord proceeds from every single thing of His body, interior and exterior.

J.(Post.) 104. The vision suddenly descended as by steps.

303. On degrees. (A short treatise.)

305. In each Kingdom there are two degrees; in the Natural one two, in the Spiritual one two, in the Celestial one two; thus in the three Kingdoms there are six degrees.

306. All these degrees are discrete, or discontinuous, and are called degrees of height.

307. Discrete degrees are circumstanced as are thought and speech, or as are affection and gesture, or as are the affection of the mind and the expression of the face; also, in the material world, as are the ether and the air; as a nerve and the fibres of which the nerve is composed. All compositions in the universal natural and Spiritual Worlds are of this character, and consist in their order of two or three of this manner of degrees. These degrees are called prior and posterior ones, higher and lower ones, interior and exterior ones; and in general are circumstanced as are the cause and the effect, or as the substance and the substantiate . . . or as the beginning and the derivative . . .

308. There are also continuous or coherent degrees; every discrete degree has a continuous degree; the continuous degree of each discrete degree is circumstanced as light decreasing to shade and finally to the darkness of night; and is also as rational thought, which is in light, decreasing to sensuous thought, and finally to as it were corporeal thought, which is in dense shade according to the descent towards the body. In such a decreasing continuous degree is the human mind . . . In a like degree, but lower, are man's sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch; and so are his speech and song . . . In like manner harmonies among themselves, and beauties among themselves; for they succeed each other by a continuous degree from the most perfect harmony and beauty to the least of harmony and beauty. These degrees are of the cause itself in itself and of the effect itself in itself; they are distinguished from the former kind of degrees, (for) if these are (degrees) of the cause and the effect themselves as related to each other, continuous degrees are called degrees of what is purer and grosser. An idea of these degrees may be especially obtained from light and shade . . .

310. Few have heretofore had any idea of degrees, except an idea of a continuous degree, which is from purer to grosser . . . from which it flows that there is only one degree, and that the natural degree and the spiritual degree are distinct from each other only as what is pure and what is gross . . . when yet they differ according to discrete degrees.

311. There are . . . six discrete degrees; two in the Natural Kingdom, two in the Spiritual Kingdom, and two in the Celestial Kingdom; but these are degrees in which are man and Angel as to thoughts, affections, and thence wisdom; thus are they degrees. Below these six degrees of life there follow like degrees, and material ones down to the ultimate; and above these six degrees there ascend infinite degrees up to the Divine itself; for the Divine itself cannot flow in with any Angel or man from itself except through discrete degrees . . . It would be as if the sun of this world . . . were not to flow in immediately through the atmospheres according to distinct discrete degrees.

312. From these three atmospheres all the corporeal and material things of the Earth are held together, which are compounded in relation to these three degrees.

De Verbo 11. There are three Heavens, one below another, and the world under them; in the highest Heaven there is angelic wisdom in the highest degree, which is called celestial wisdom; in the middle Heaven there is angelic wisdom in the middle degree, which is called spiritual wisdom; in the ultimate Heaven there is angelic wisdom in the ultimate degree, which is called spiritual and celestial natural; and in the world . . . there is wisdom in the lowest degree, which is called natural. All these degrees of wisdom are in the Word . . . but in simultaneous order.

D. Love 119. The substances and matters in man are adapted to the reception of life in its own order and in its own degree.

xi. That there are degrees of affections and of uses.

— There are continuous degrees and discrete degrees: the latter and the former exist in every form in both the Spiritual World and the natural world. All are acquainted with continuous degrees, but few with discrete degrees, and they who are not acquainted with the latter, grope as in darkness when investigating the causes of things. . . Continuous degrees, which all are acquainted with, are as degrees from light to shade, from heat to cold, from rarity to density; there is such a degree of light, heat, wisdom, and love in every Society of Heaven. Ex.

—². But discrete degrees are entirely different: these do not proceed on a surface towards the sides around, but from highest to lowest, wherefore they are called descending degrees; they are discrete as are efficient causes and their effects, which again become efficient down to the ultimate effect; and they are as a producing force to the forces produced, which again become producing forces down to the last force produced; in a word, they are degrees of the formation of one thing from another, thus from the first or highest to the ultimate or lowest, where formation stands still; wherefore, things prior and things posterior . . . are these degrees.

— . All creation has been effected by means of these degrees, and all production is effected by means of them, and all composition in the world of nature in like manner; for if you unfold any compound thing, you will see that one thing therein is from another, even to the outermost, which is the general of all.

—³. The three angelic Heavens are distinguished from each other by such degrees, wherefore one is above another. The interiors of man, which belong to his mind, are also distinguished from each other by such degrees. In like manner the light which is wisdom, and the heat which is love, in the Heavens of the Angels and in the interiors of men. In like manner the light itself which proceeds from the Lord as a Sun, and also the heat itself, which also proceeds thence . . . In like manner wisdom; for, in the Spiritual World, light and wisdom are in an equal degree of perfection. Similar, therefore, are the degrees of affections; and, as there are degrees of affections, there are also degrees of uses, for uses are the subjects of affections.

—^e. In every form, both spiritual and natural, there are degrees both discrete and continuous; without discrete degrees, there is nothing interior in a form to constitute its cause or soul; and without continuous degrees there is no extension or appearance of it.

xiii^e. Every least one of the degrees in man, from its use is a man. Ex.

xx². In the creation of the universe, the Lord has prepared for Himself all means from primes to ultimates, by means of which He may produce uses in every degree . . .

D. Wis. ii. (The will and understanding) are forms within forms, ascending to the third degree. Des.

iii. 4. The receptacles are distinguished with man into three degrees, one within another, and the two higher ones are habitations of the Lord, but not the lowest. Gen.art.

— . This primitive brain in the upper gibbous part was a compages of contiguous globules or spherules, each spherule being conglomerated of similar but minuter ones; and each of these again of most minute ones . . . Such is the primitive of man as it has been shown me; of which the first or lowest degree was the compages first described, the second or middle degree was the compages next described, and the third or highest degree was the compages thirdly described; thus one was within another. I was told that in each spherule there are ineffable contextures, more and more wonderful according to the degrees . . .

—². It was further shown . . . that, as to situation and flux, the mass of the two interior degrees was in the order and form of Heaven, but the mass of the lowest degree as to situation and flux was in the order and form of Hell . . . This pollution of the natural is not wiped away, unless the interior degrees are opened . . .

— . These degrees are called higher, although they are interior; the reason is that there is a successive and also a simultaneous order of degrees . . .

— . As there are three degrees in man, there are three degrees of Heavens . . . According to degrees in successive order, these appear one above another; and according to degrees in simultaneous order, one within another.

— . As in his first origin man is such a habitation of the Lord . . . and at that time these three degrees are opened . . .

—³. So many are the degrees of life with man; but with beasts there are not the two higher degrees, but only the lowest one . . .

iv². Hereby are opened to man the two higher degrees of his life, which have been the habitations of the Lord in his formation; and the lowest degree, which has been inverted and bent backwards, is thus reformed.

v². See BRAIN at this ref.

viii². The reason why man then comes into angelic wisdom, is that the higher degrees of the life of his mind are opened; for every man has three degrees of life: the lowest is natural, in this is man in the world; the second degree is spiritual, in this is every Angel in the lower Heavens; the third degree is celestial, in which is every Angel in the higher Heavens; and man is an Angel in proportion as the two higher degrees are opened with him by wisdom from the Lord and by love to Him. Yet in the world he does not know that these degrees are opened, until he is separated from the first degree which is natural, which is effected by the death of the body.

xii. 4². Between natural and spiritual things there is no ratio, yet there is conjunction through correspondences . . . So are a higher degree and a lower one in relation to each other.

5². These spiritual atmospheres are augmented in density through discrete degrees.

Ang. Idea. The first proceeding was continued down to ultimates through discrete degrees, exactly as an end is through causes into effects, or as the thing producing and the thing produced in a continual series.

Inv. 14. The human mind is of three degrees, which are celestial, spiritual, and natural: in the first degree is the soul, in the second is the spirit or mind, in the third is the body. It is the same whether you say that the mind of man is of three degrees or that man himself is . . . The celestial degree, in which is the soul or inmost man, is specifically of love; the spiritual degree, in which is the mind or spirit, which is the middle man, is specifically of wisdom from love; the third degree, in which is the body, which is the ultimate man, is the containant of both; without the latter, the two prior degrees do not subsist. Ex.

Deign. See WORTHY—dignus.

Deity. Numen.

A. 2009⁴. When they live in charity, and adore the Deity the Creator of the universe . . . 2049.

4658⁴. ('Aristotle's idea of a Supreme Deity.'). D. 3951.

4950. They were examined as to whether they believed in any . . . Supreme Deity . . . They said that they could not have an idea of a living Deity. Min. 4722.

SS69. They suppose that if there be anything of Deity present it is in the order of nature . . .

H. 354². They torment those who do not worship them as Deities.

S. 23. Their descendants . . . began to worship (these representative images) as holy things, and at last as Deities.

P. 215¹⁰. If anyone honours (this love) so far as to say that . . . it is the Deity of the world, it loves him from the heart.

298. From his Own intelligence he believes himself to be a Deity.

I. 11⁶. The horrible fallacy that God has infused Himself into men, whence every man is a sort of Deity that lives of himself.

T. 292. Some of these men they first worshipped as Divinities, and at last as gods.

D. 5213. (The Babylonian Spirits) worshipped these persons as Deities.

Min. 4745. It was given to say to (this African Queen) that she knew there was a Deity who was above her, and that this would be to act against the Deity and His laws; she then was silent: she was profane, because she acknowledged a Deity, yet lived in this way.

Delay, Stay. *Morari.Tarry. *Commorari.Tarrying. Commoratio.

A. 2410. ('Lot) lingered' (Gen. xix. 16) = resistance from the nature of evil. Ex.

2418. 'Stay not in all the plain' = that he should not delay in anything of them.

3613. 'Thou shalt tarry with him some days' (Gen. xxvii. 43) = what is successive; (for) 'to tarry' has a similar signification to 'to dwell'; thus it = to live; but 'to tarry' is predicated of the life of truth with good; and 'to dwell,' of the life of good with truth.

—^c. Concerning this Successive, or the tarrying of Jacob with Laban, it treats in what follows.

4243. 'I have sojourned with Laban, and stayed until now' (Gen. xxxii. 4) = that he had imbed the good signified by 'Laban' . . . 'To stay' or 'tarry' is predicated of the life of truth with good; here, = to imbue.

—². The sojourning and tarrying of Jacob with Laban.

4540. 'And tarry there' (Gen. xxxv. 1) = life. 'To tarry' or 'dwell' = life.

5187. A certain Spirit came to me, inquiring whether I knew where he might stay . . .

7980. 'They were driven out of Egypt, and could not tarry' (Ex. xii. 39) = that they were removed by those who were in falsity from evil. . . 'Not to be able to tarry' = the necessity of removal.

9292. The tarrying of the Sons of Israel in Egypt = the infestation of the spiritual . . .

H. 494². (Married partners there) tarry together a longer or shorter time . . . But if love truly conjugal . . . has not conjoined them, after some tarrying, they are separated.

513². Some (are carried to Heaven) after a short tarrying with good Spirits.

R. 791². They are not allowed, as before, to delay in the World of Spirits . . .

866². Some stay in the World of Spirits a month or a year, and some ten years and up to thirty . . . but at this day, not beyond twenty years.

M. 162. That which is from the body in the spirit does not last long; but the love which is from the spirit in the body does last.

E. 780⁶. 'The wolf shall tarry with the lamb' (Is. xi. 6) = . . . 'It will tarry' = a state of peace . . .

Coro. 29². By tarrying and co-operation (with the Lord) . . .

Delay. Remora.

See SLOW, and under LINGER.

A. 1389. On the removal of such things as act as delays and hindrances . . .

Delay. Remoratio.

A. 8985⁶. Abstract thought can pervade the universal Heaven without delay anywhere.

Deliberate. *Deliberare, Deliberatus.Deliberation. Deliberatio.

A. 1327³. Not imputed to him who has not done it with deliberate intention.

3158. The free state of their deliberation. Sig. . . In both cases there is required a free state of deliberation; in betrothal and marriage . . . and also in the initiation and conjunction of good and truth. Ex.

H. 277². Little children . . . have nothing purposed and deliberate, thus no end of evil.

R. 962⁷. Then followed a deliberation about the Holy Spirit. T. 188⁷.

M. 298. The woman ought to consult her parents . . . and afterwards deliberate with herself, before she consents. Gen. art.

D. 3483. This signified that they were determined by such a phantasy.

4468. Another also deliberated in like manner from herself, and was made like a pendulous ghost.

5161. On the Hell of those who . . . act with deliberation and circumspection.

Delicacy. See DAINTRIES, and under DELICIOUS.Delicacies. Lautitia.

A. 10037⁴. 'They who have eaten delicacies' (Lam.

iv.5)=those who have the Word, and thence Knowledges of truth.

P. 254⁴. A peasant would be oppressed at heart . . . if a table were set before him covered with delicacies . . .

T. 394. Delicacies for the tongue.

810. They select something savoury from their Own intelligence, which they roll over in their mouths as delicacies . . . and so teach.

E. 652¹⁰. 'Delicacies' (Lam.iv.5) = genuine truths from the Word.

Delicate. Delicatus.

Delicately. Delicate.

A. 944. Women who . . . have entirely given themselves up to . . . a delicate and idle life . . . (Their lot.)

4948. They who have lived in pleasures, or in a delicate life conjoined with interior cunning, are under the heel of the right foot . . . D.2773.

H. 358. Man may eat and drink delicately, provided he does not make his life to consist in it.

488⁵. They who have . . . lived delicately, and indulged their appetite, loving these things as the highest goods of life, in the other life love excrements and privies . . .

M. 294⁷. Clusters . . . some of which were of a delicate flavour . . . M.8.

D. 592. On the punishment of women especially, who lead a delicate and idle life.

1746. Such are they who care too much about the cuticle . . . who are otherwise called the delicate . . .

4458. Their Subject could put forth an idea of herself . . . as of a Queen . . . leaning on the arm of a throne, as delicate females are wont to do.

E. 1121². 'Hear this, delicate one' (Is.xlvii.8).

Delicious. Delitiosus.

Deliciousness. Delitiae, Delitium.

Deliciate, To. Deliciari.

Deliciation. Delitiatio.

A. 42^e. 'Delicates' (Jer.li.34) = the Knowledges of faith.

85³. 'Then shalt thou be delicious to Jehovah' (Is.lviii.14).

54. The highest happinesses and deliciousnesses of the Most Ancient Church were marriages.

353². 'That your soul be deliciated in fatness' (Is.lv.2).

—, 'The river of deliciousnesses' (Ps.xxxvi.8) = the spiritual which is of faith thence.

545². This (heavenly) joy and deliciousness came as it were from the heart . . . as if the fibre were nothing but joy and deliciousness. H.413².

949. They call darkness there deliciousnesses.

1123. See DELIGHT-jucundum, at this ref.

1484. The truth which there is in knowledges, the deliciousnesses of which the Lord took during His childhood. Sig. The deliciousnesses of truth are those which come from intellectual truth.

1869. Things still more beautiful and delicious would be presented . . .

2296. The deliciousnesses (of little children there). Des. H.337^e.

3520. See DAINTIES at these refs. S.96b.

5221^e. To think such things is deliciousnesses to them.

6410. 'He shall give the deliciousnesses of a king' (Gen.xlix.20) = pleasantness from truth. 'Deliciousnesses' = what is pleasant. E.438⁴.

8593⁴. Agag went to Samuel 'in delicacies' (1 Sam.xv.32). 'To go in delicacies' = external blandishments, which are characteristic of such in the presence of others.

8851^e. Their deliciousnesses (in Jupiter) are to love their married partners, and to have the care of children; all other deliciousnesses they do indeed call deliciousnesses, but comparatively external ones.

9960^e. 'Sons of deliciousnesses' (Mic.i.16) = Divine truths.

W. 47. The essence of all love consists in conjunction, yea, its life, which is called delight, pleasantness, deliciousness, sweetness, bliss, joyousness, and happiness.

P. 39^e. Make the Angel to be as it were wholly a deliciousness.

R. 47⁴. 'Sons of delights' = the genuine truths of the Church from the Word.

759. 'The powers of her delicacies by which they were made rich' (Rev.xviii.3) = the dogmas by means of which they procure dominion over the souls of men, and thus also over their possessions and wealth.

763. 'As much as she hath lived deliciously' (ver.7) = in the degree of their exultation of mind and body on account of riches, and the delights-jucunditatibus-and pleasures therefrom.

767. 'To be deliciated' (ver.9) = to enjoy the delights of dominion, and at the same time of wealth.

M. Title. The Deliciousnesses of Wisdom concerning Marriage Love.

8⁴. Heavenly joy . . . is not external paradisiacal deliciousnesses, unless together with them there are internal paradisiacal deliciousnesses; external paradisiacal deliciousnesses are only deliciousnesses of the senses of the body; but internal paradisiacal deliciousnesses are deliciousnesses of the affections of the soul . . . Without its corresponding soul, all deliciousness by continuance languishes . . .

—⁵. They then asked, What is the deliciousness of the soul, and what is the source of it? The Angel replied, The deliciousness of the soul is from love and wisdom from the Lord . . . This deliciousness from the Lord inflows into the soul, and descends . . . into all the senses of the body, and fulfils itself in them: thus joy becomes joy . . .

18². They then enumerated the heavenly deliciousnesses proceeding from the love of use, and said that they are myriads of myriads, and that those enter into them who are in Heaven.

[M.] 44⁵. (The chaste love of the sex) is the deliciousness itself of the mind and thence of the heart, and not at the same time of the flesh beneath the heart . . . Within and above the enclosure of the heart, the morality of a young man is deliciated with the beauty of a maiden with the deliciousnesses of the chaste love of the sex . . .

—⁹. They asked whether offspring are born there from the ultimate deliciousnesses of that love, and if not, what is the use of them. The Angelic Spirits replied . . . By means of these ultimate deliciousnesses, two married partners are united more in the marriage of good and truth . . . Hence it is, that after the deliciousnesses, the Angels do not become sad . . . but cheerful . . .

68. In marriage love there are brought together all joys and all deliciousnesses from primes to ultimates. Gen.art.

69. The Angels said, that the inmost deliciousnesses of this love, which are of the soul . . . are imperceptible, because they are those of peace and innocence; but that in their descent they become more and more perceptible . . . and at last they unite themselves in ultimates in the deliciousness of deliciousnesses. . . They added, that the varieties of these deliciousnesses in the souls of married partners, and from these in their minds, and from these in their bosoms, are infinite and eternal; and that they are exalted according to the wisdom with the husbands.

73¹. Genii . . . approaching an Angel who was being deliciated with his consort . . .

75⁷. The deliciousnesses of marriage love as to abundance, degree, and virtue, are excellent and eminent according to the worship of the Lord Jehovih with us . . .

137⁶. With men, there is a perpetual influx of vernal heat from the Lord, wherefore they are able to be deliciated in marriage at all times, even in the middle of winter.

144. All the deliciousnesses of love truly conjugal, even the ultimate ones, are chaste. Gen.art.

— . The deliciousnesses of this love ascend and enter Heaven, and on the way pass through the delights of the heavenly loves in which are the Angels; they also conjoin themselves with the deliciousnesses of the marriage love of the Angels. . . Moreover . . . the Angels perceive these deliciousnesses with themselves to be exalted and infilled, when they ascend from chaste marriages on earth; and . . . on the question being put, whether [this is also the case] as to ultimate deliciousnesses, they assented, and said silently, How could it be otherwise? Are not these the deliciousnesses of love truly conjugal in their fulness?

148². The internal . . . can only be deliciated chastely, and it imparts the same disposition to its external, wherein it is made sensible of its own deliciousnesses.

155a. It was the affection of the deliciousnesses of marriage love which was sung by the wives in Heaven . . .

—². With the husbands (in the Hall of the Golden Shower) there resides wisdom concerning marriage love, and with the wives wisdom concerning its deliciousnesses. I perceive that you are in meditation concerning the deliciousnesses of marriage love, wherefore I will introduce you . . . I said to the wives, Pray tell me something about the deliciousnesses of marriage love . . . They inquired, Who taught you to interrogate us about the deliciousnesses of marriage love? I replied, This Angel told me . . . that wives are their receptacles and sensories, because they are born loves, and all deliciousnesses are of love . . .

—⁴. We have a sixth sense, which is a sense of all the deliciousnesses of the marriage love of the husband. Des.

183. The name of this garden is Adramandoni, which is the deliciousness of marriage love.

—⁶. Whence are the deliciousnesses of marriage love, which are innumerable and ineffable? The Angels replied, that they are from the uses of love and wisdom, (for) in proportion as anyone loves to be wise for the sake of genuine use, he is in the vein and potency of marriage love, and in proportion as he is in these two, he is in the deliciousnesses. Use effects this; because love through and together with wisdom are deliciated. . . These things take place between love and wisdom inwardly in use; but in their beginnings these deliciousnesses are imperceptible, yet become more and more perceptible as they descend through degrees and enter the body . . . These heavenly nuptial sports are not at all perceived by man in his soul, but they thence insinuate themselves into the interiors of the mind under the appearance of peace and innocence, and into the exteriors of the mind under the appearance of bliss, joyousness, and delight; but into the bosom under the appearance of the inmost deliciousnesses of friendship; and into the genital region . . . as the deliciousness of deliciousnesses. In proceeding towards the bosom . . . they become permanent, and there present themselves sensible under an infinite variety of deliciousnesses; and on account of the wonderful communication of the bosom with the genital region, the deliciousnesses there become the deliciousnesses of marriage love, which are exalted above all other deliciousnesses in Heaven and the world, because the use of marriage love is the most excellent of all uses . . .

—⁸. They who are not in the love of being wise from the Lord for the sake of use, do not know anything about the innumerable deliciousnesses which belong to love truly conjugal . . . hence the heavenly nuptial sports of love and wisdom in the soul . . . cease, and together with them marriage love with its vein, potency, and deliciousnesses.

188. The woman feels the deliciousnesses of her heat in the man's light. Gen.art.

189. This means that the woman feels the deliciousnesses of her love in the man's wisdom, because this is the receptacle; and wherever love finds this corresponding, it is in its own delights and deliciousnesses: but it is not meant, that heat with its light is deliciated outside of forms, but within them.

—^e. The delicitation of spiritual heat with spiritual light is still more vividly perceptible in human forms . . .

198. This formation is effected by the reception of the propagations of the husband's soul, with the deliciousnesses arising from the fact, that she wants to be the love of her husband's wisdom. Gen.art. . . Marriage deliciousnesses with wives arise solely from their will to be one with their husbands, as good is one with truth in the spiritual marriage.

208². (The wives said), We are deliciated from (our husbands' love), and we love nothing more than that they should be deliciated from our deliciousnesses, which grow dull with us if they become cheap with them.

211². The spiritual deliciousnesses conjoined with the natural deliciousnesses, which are the portion of those who are in love truly conjugal, constitute amiability, and thence the capacity of being wise.

267². See DELIRIUM at this ref.

293. (The seven wives in the Garden of Roses) said, We are conversing here about the deliciousnesses of marriage love, and from much confirmation we conclude, that these deliciousnesses are also the deliciousnesses of wisdom. . . I asked them, How do you wives know that the deliciousnesses of marriage love are the same as the deliciousnesses of wisdom? They replied, We know this from the correspondence of wisdom in husbands with the deliciousnesses of marriage love in us; for the deliciousnesses of marriage love in us exalt and diminish themselves, and entirely qualify themselves, according to the wisdom in our husbands.

—³. Hence we know what wisdom of theirs is deliciated in us. . . The pleasantnesses of this wisdom are transcribed into the deliciousnesses in our bosoms, and from our bosoms into theirs, and thus return to wisdom their origin.

—⁴. I then asked, Do you know any more about the wisdom of your husbands deliciating in you? They said, We do. . . In proportion (as the wife alone is loved) we feel more distinctly and exquisitely the deliciousnesses in us which correspond to the delights of the affections and the pleasantnesses of the thoughts of our husbands.

—⁵. I asked whether they knew how the communication is effected. They said, In all conjunction by love there must be action, reception, and reaction; the delicious state of our love is acting or action, the state of wisdom of the husbands is receiving or reception, and is also reacting or reaction according to the perception, and this reaction is perceived by us with deliciousnesses in the bosom according to the state. . . Take care that by the deliciousnesses we have mentioned you do not understand the ultimate deliciousnesses of that love: of these we never speak, but of our bosom deliciousnesses, of which there is a perpetual correspondence with the state of wisdom of our husbands.

—⁶. I read these words (on a paper brought by a little boy), Tell the inhabitants of your earth, that there exists a love truly conjugal, the deliciousnesses of which are myriads, hardly any of which are yet known to the world; but they will be known, when the Church betroths herself to her Lord, and is married.

— Then one of the seven wove a garland of roses, and sprinkled it with the water of the fountain, and placed it on the boy's cap. . . and said, Receive the deliciousnesses of intelligence; know that a cap signifies intelligence, and a garland from this rose garden the deliciousnesses.

294. (The seven wives said), Such scenery is created in a moment by the Lord. . . and we divine that it represents the deliciousnesses of marriage love.

—³. On hearing this, I said. . . I told some wives in our country. . . I know that you have bosom deliciousnesses originating from your marriage love. . . and you therefore study to bend and lead the dispositions of your husbands to wisdom, in order that you may secure these deliciousnesses.

—⁴. The wife of such a man has no bosom deliciousnesses. . . but only pleasures. . .

—⁷. (Their husbands said), You have been conversing with this man about love truly conjugal, that its deliciousnesses are the deliciousnesses of wisdom; and also about scortatory love, that its deliciousnesses are the pleasures of insanity. . . They added, that in externals the pleasures of insanity appear like the deliciousnesses of wisdom, but not in internals. . .

—⁸. I read these words (from another paper brought by the little boy), The deliciousnesses of marriage love ascend to the highest Heaven, and both on the way thither and also there conjoin themselves with the deliciousnesses of all heavenly loves, and thus enter into their happiness, which endures to eternity: the reason is, that the deliciousnesses of this love are also the deliciousnesses of wisdom.

355². The husbands (in Heaven) have a perpetual capacity of deliciating.

441. In the same degree it perceives the delights of marriage love as harmless and chaste, and at last as delicious and blessed.

D. 29. (Index; under Jucunditas). By evil Spirits. . . deliciousnesses can be produced, as are the deliciousnesses of a king, or Asher.

307. He cried out that he perceived continual varieties of deliciousnesses. . .

— Again they cried out, saying that there were innumerable varieties of deliciousnesses.

370. Besides health, there is also a peace of the whole body, delicious and perceptible. . .

379. (This deceitful heavenly joy) is effected by the transference of one's own joy or deliciousness into another, from whatever cause that deliciousness may come forth. . . Thence I had a certain deliciousness which took possession of the universal body. . . I was completely dissolved in delicious allurements. . . The causes of the deliciousnesses were not felt in me, that they were from some cruelty that was being carried on, or that they were from deceit; but they were deliciousnesses in which such things were not felt. . .

—². Besides these external corporeal deliciousnesses, there were also interior ones infused, by other Spirits, who wanted to make deliciousnesses for me, on account of a certain veneration. I was not able to recognize who these other Spirits were, nor to explore the source of the deliciousnesses; yet for some time I lay in the sweetness of concurrent deliciousnesses. . . As I perceived no deceit, I supposed that this was indeed a heavenly deliciousness, but that it was external; thus flowing from external causes, and therefore not permanent; and hence I wanted to remove myself from it. . . As to this body of deliciousnesses, I have heard that it is filthy, although I could not feel it to be so.

[D. 379]^e. There exists a more interior or heavenly deliciousness.

399. The worst of Spirits . . . induced on me a delicate sensation, which emulated the sensation of heavenly deliciousnesses, and also the sensation of marriage deliciousness, so that hardly any difference could be discerned ; but on being warned, I learned that all these things were fictitious and counterfeit. . . Thus man can never discern between diabolical and heavenly things, except from God Messiah . . .

403. A new method of making deliciousnesses for Mohammed.

407. They who take thence a delicious sensation . . .

428. There are very many varieties of heavenly delights and deliciousnesses, in which there is happiness. Gen.art. Those things are called heavenly delights—judicatas—which come forth sensitively with Souls. . . . But deliciousnesses are those things; which come from a more interior fountain. In delights there is a species of happiness ; in deliciousnesses there is a species of heavenly marriage joy . . . True delights and true deliciousnesses have happiness in themselves . . . thus true delights and deliciousnesses come solely from God Messiah as their Fount.

438. From the still remaining phantasy or imagination, heavenly pleasantnesses and deliciousnesses seemed to them to be formed, in which heavenly peace reigns. Ex.

465. On first awaking, I again perceived, as often before, a state of quiet from peace, namely, a delicious delight ; but it was not peace.

491. Hence there is such delicious music and singing with the celestials, when the thoughts of man agree with their ideas . . .

592. Thus they sit in deliciousnesses . . . as Queens.

755. On the difference between the deliciousnesses of pleasure, and true happiness.

— . When I was feeling deliciousnesses or pleasantnesses, I knew not whence they were, because it is most difficult for a Soul or Spirit to distinguish between fictitious or counterfeit deliciousnesses, and true or heavenly ones ; because as yet the sensation is so gross. . . . Wherefore, there was a discourse with the Spirits around me about these deliciousnesses, and their source: it was stated that false deliciousnesses or pleasures sometimes so counterfeit true and heavenly ones, that they cannot be distinguished from them ; nay, that unless the Lord inspired a Knowledge of the distinction, a Spirit could by no means know it. By means of the like fictitious deliciousnesses, the worst evil Spirits for the most part delude and fascinate those who are in the other life ; for they suppose that it is what is heavenly itself, whereas it is utterly infernal . . . 756.

904. See SING at these refs. 2108.

1488. There are some who are so delighted with revenge . . . that nothing is more delicious . . . nay, they call this deliciousnesses, so that they scarcely want to express it by any other name.

2079 $\frac{1}{2}$. They insinuate themselves into the pleasures or deliciousnesses of others.

2160. On the deliciousnesses of the good Spirits and Angels of the interior Heaven.

— . Besides the interior, more interior, and inmost deliciousnesses, they have also sensuous deliciousnesses indefinite in number. Des.

2585. (Index). That the states of deliciousnesses and delights in the other life are indefinite, inexpressible, and utterly unknown to man.

2611. On the interior deliciousnesses of some Spirits who are content with a few things.

3097. On paradisiacal deliciousnesses.

3100. On a place where there are corporeal deliciousnesses.

3137. So that they live in deliciousnesses together.

3381. The things they introduced were so delicious . . .

4365. There seemed to be reclining at a table with deliciousnesses those whom his poisonous talk delicated ; when suddenly the table was thrown in their faces, and in place of the deliciousnesses, serpent-slaver flowed into their faces from his talk.

E. 483¹⁰. 'The river of deliciousnesses' = truth from that good.

555⁸. 'Houses of deliciousnesses' (Mic.ii.9) = the pleasant and happy things of Heaven ; for these are the affections of good and truth.

617¹⁰. 'To be delicated in fatness' = to be delighted from good.

622⁶. 'Delicates' (Jer.li.34) = the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word.

724¹². These are called 'sons of deliciousnesses' from their love and thence delights.

992^o. (The Angels) say that the deliciousnesses of the effects (of their marriage love) cannot be described by the words of any language in the natural world, nor be thought with any ideas except spiritual ones.

1029¹⁴. 'Dragons in the palaces of deliciousnesses' (Is.xiii.22) = these things falsified in their doctrines.

1104. 'The powers—facultates—of her delicacies' = those things of the Church which are called Knowledges and are said to be holy, yet which derive everything from the love of dominating both Heaven and the world . . . These powers are called 'the powers of her delicacies' because they are delights.

1118. 'To be delicated' = to take pleasure.

1130. 'To be delicated' = delight from domination . . . thus to love evils. 'To commit whoredom' is predicated of falsities ; 'to be delicated,' of evils ; both, of their delights.

1159². 'To be delicated in fatness' = to be in joyousness and bliss.

— . 'The river of deliciousnesses' = intelligence and thence happiness.

C. 191. The single fibres, and single tissues of fibres, the single capillary vessels, and so all the viscera in general, derive their own deliciousnesses ; which a man then perceives not singly but universally as one general sensation. But just as is the mind of the head within them, such are the deliciousnesses ; pure or impure, spiritual or natural, heavenly or infernal. For within, in every sensation of the body, is the love of the will with its affections; and the understanding makes him perceive their deliciousnesses.

De Conj. 1. When marriage love was being thus represented, I have heard the Angels say, that they were filled with such deliciousness, that they could no otherwise express it, than by saying that it was the deliciousness itself from which as from their origin arise all other deliciousnesses; and this deliciousness was said to be the pure deliciousness of the mind, without any excitation of desire. 2.

Delight. Delectare, Delectatio.

Delightful. Delectabilis.

A. 54. They were delighted solely with internal things . . .

954. (With killing and torturing their companions) they are so delighted, that such things are their highest delights-jucunditates. They who have been blood-thirsty, are delighted to torture spirits . . . At the sight of blood . . . they are intensely delighted. . . They who have been delighted with mere pleasures . . . are in the highest degree delighted to stay in privies, etc.

1629. (Good Spirits behold these objects) always with interior delight.

1680^e. He who when able actually does evil, and is delighted in it, is among the infernals.

1773. Spirits who in the bodily life had been delighted with the Word of the Lord with delight-jucunditate, in the other life have a certain delightful heavenly heat . . . The heat of those who had been somewhat delighted, when communicated to me, was like a vernal warmth . . . The heat of those who had been still more affected with the delight of the Lord's Word . . . was interior. The heat of those who had been still more affected and delighted, was still more interiorly delightful . . .

—³. The heat of those who indeed had been delighted with the Word, but had not been solicitous about the understanding of it, was only in the right arm.

1880³. This delight lasted some months, but now that it has become familiar, they wonder at it no longer.

1950³. The general delight, or regnant affection (of truth separated from good) is to conquer.

2203². In the appearances themselves there is delight; wherefore, if the Rational is deprived of appearances, it supposes that there is nothing more of delight . . . It is admissible for it to have delight in them.

2295^e. Little children in the other life . . . are most highly delighted with (little children on earth).

2593. When I read to them something from the Word, they were in the highest degree delighted; it was granted to perceive their very delight and delight-jucunditatem . . . H. 322².

3536. Delightful things, but not desirable ones. Sig.

3589. Desirable and delightful things for the Divine Rational. Sig. . . . The delights-jucunda—which are of good are desirable, and the pleasant things which are of truth are delightful; for the affection of good is that which desires, and then the affection of truth is that which delights.

3690². It is the heavenly pleasantness of the Angels which flows in and causes the delight of little children (in the Word).

—^e. Thus does he see those things with which he had before been delighted, further and further removed from him.

3913⁵. This good then manifests itself by affection, namely, by this, that the man is affected with truth, or begins to be delighted with it . . .

4027². It is otherwise with those who are in the affection of charity; these are delighted with such arcana . . .

6812. Spirits especially retain those things with which they are delighted . . . for the things which are of delectation and love . . . remain . . .

7392². Nothing delights the infernals except to do what is evil . . .

8725. The truths with which good can be conjoined . . . are such as delight the intellectual sight, thus which enter into the affection . . .

9152^e. The Angels are delighted with such a man . . .

9993³. It would be quite otherwise, if the mind were delighted with heavenly things more than worldly ones, for those things with which man is delighted are apprehended. Examp.

H. 56². Hence it is said that variety delights, and it is known that the delight is according to its quality.

265^e. These things can be comprehended, provided the mind is delighted with them; for delight is attended with light, because it is from love . . .

334. Into the affections (of little children there) are first insinuated such things as . . . are delightful.

347. For the sake of the truth itself, with which they are inmost affected and delighted.

— . As this light enters, it also affects and delights; for whatever flows in and is received from Heaven, is attended with delight-jucundum-and pleasantness.

363². With dirt they are then delighted, in like manner as they had been in the world with riches for the sake of evil uses. Ex.

411². The Angels are not delighted with the external things themselves, but with the things they represent.

424. He who wills good to himself only, is delighted with the evils which take place with others.

429². Evil Spirits are eager (for these stenches), because they are for delight; for as everyone in the world has been delighted with his own evil, so after death he is delighted with the stench to which his evil corresponds.

450². The highest delight (of the Angels) consists in this.

N. 265³. They who have been delighted with the Word, in the other life receive the heat of Heaven, in which is celestial love, according to the quality and quantity of their delight from love. W.H. 17³.

W. 331. Uses for the support of the body, relate to its delectation, etc. Ex.

[W.] 333. Applying nutrition to the goods of love, clothing to the truths of wisdom, habitation to Heaven, recreation and delectation to happiness of life and heavenly joy . . .

334. In proportion as (the Angels) are rational spiritual, the delectation, protection, and preservation of the state are theirs.

T. 238. This delight of the Angels (in the Word) is communicated to the man, and effects consociation, and also a communication of perceptions.

D. 180. The phantasies of evil Spirits are direful and cruel, delighting themselves in cruelly treating men.

181. They who are delighted with mensurations.

268. The delectation of speaking with man after death is nothing . . . But heavenly joy is ineffable, and in comparison with it all earthly and worldly delectations are nothing.

276. On a certain species of abode where they are delighted by this, that they are continually led about.

— They take thence their sole delight.

377. With these (cruelties) they are so delighted, that they are their highest delights.

391. The greater the torment, the greater is their delight, which is so great with them, that they say it surpasses all delights-delectamenta.

403^e. They . . . induced a kind of washing from head to foot, with delight.

710⁵. Some are delighted even to their inmosts, by manifold pleasantnesses, as paradisiacal ones . . .

1488. On the punishment of those who are delighted with revenge.

1963. The harmony is from the custom of the life, by virtue of which they have taken delight.

1964. They have acquired a harmony in contrary things, as in contradicting, in plotting against marriage love . . . and, in fact, with such delight, that they suppose nothing to be more delightful. Their delights have sometimes been communicated to me . . .

2044. These he obtains in abundance, and with delight, so long as he is nothing to himself . . . and with a perception indefinitely fuller than a man has in his own delights-delectamentis . . . When the sensation and perception of the delights-delectamentorum—from their own loves ceased.

2621. On those who are in the delight of adultery and cruelty.

3556. The Lord . . . insinuated into the Angels . . . affection with delight.

3890. (The spirit) is in . . . wisdom and in happiness, that is, in the highest delights originating from the affections of good.

3949. (Aristotle) thought from the delight of the affection, which reigned, and excited him to think; so that it was [characteristic] of him to think from affection, and thence the delight of the act . . . But his followers . . . [would proceed] from mere terms . . . to delight, which cannot exist, except from some affection, which is not [with them] the affection and thence the delight of thinking, but an external cupidity . . .

3950^e. The philosophy of such things is of no use, except for the sake of the delight.

4363^e. His pleasure consisted in this, that he was delighted in writing (books) . . . This was his sole pleasure and delight . . .

4370. Hence it may appear with what sort of delight the most malignant Spirits are possessed.

4416. I perceived the delight (of Cicero) when I read the prophetic Word . . .

4428. The Plutonic Spirits are delighted with immense treasures of gold . . . because they had been such as to place all their delight-delectamentum—in such things apart from use . . .

E. 391¹⁷. Worship from the good of love is signified by 'then shalt thou be delighted with the sacrifices of righteousness, and with burnt-offering' (Ps. li. 19).

696¹³. 'To be delighted greatly with the commandments of Jehovah' (Ps. cxii. 1) = to love them, thus to will and do them.

863¹⁴. That she will then be accepted by the Lord, is signified by 'then shall the King be delighted with thy beauty' (Ps. xlv. 11).

C. 190^e. Every form delights by its varieties. Examp.

Delight. *Jucundum, Jucunditas.

Delightful. Jucundus.

Delightfully. Jucunde.

See under BLESS—bearé, and JOY.

A. 59. The fruits of tranquillity and peace, with their delights and happinesses. Sig.

85^e. With external tranquillity and Delight. Sig.

391. In punishing and tormenting one another consists their highest Delight.

545. It has been granted to perceive the Delights of heavenly joys . . . It is an affection of innumerable Delights and joys . . .

824. In adulteries they had all the Delights of their life.

830. In premeditated deceits they feel the Delight of life.

831. In external decorum they have placed all . . . the Delight of life.

892. The man is then carried away by the delight of cupidities and of pleasures thence, that is, by the delight of his own loves; and because by delight, it appears to him as if it were free . . .

954. See DELIGHT—delectare, at these refs. 1773. 2593. 3589. H. 347.

995. 'To you it shall be for food' = its delight which they would enjoy. . . Pleasure without delight is not pleasure . . . It is from delight that it is, and is called pleasure; such as is the delight, such is the pleasure. In themselves, corporeal and sensuous things are merely material, inanimate, and dead, but they live from the delights which come in order from the interiors. Hence it is evident, that such as is the life of the interiors, such is the Delight of the pleasures, for in delight there is life. The delight in which there is good from the Lord is alone alive . . .

* Jucunditas is distinguished by the use of a capital D.

—³. The interior affections, which are alive, all derive their delight from good and truth, and good and truth derive their delight from charity and faith . . . When pleasures derive their origin from this source, their delight indefinitely surpasses the delight which is not thence derived; this is relatively filthy. Examp. For they who are in true marriage love, are in a certain heavenly Delight and happiness . . . The delight from adulteries, which adulterers feel, was to them so abominable, that they were horrified when they merely thought of it. Hence may be evident what is the nature of the delight which does not descend from the true Fountain of life. (See PLEASURE at this ref.)

996. 'Vegetables'=the lower things of Delights. . . Pleasures, which are in corporeal or outermost things, originate from interior delights in order; the delights which are perceived in outermost or corporeal things, are relatively low; for all delight is such, that it is low or vile in proportion as it passes to external things, and happy in proportion as it passes to internal ones; wherefore, in proportion as external things are unrolled or unswathed in order, delights become more pleasant and happy, as may be sufficiently evident from the fact, that while he lives in the body, the delight of man's pleasures is vile relatively to his delight after the life of the body when he comes into the World of Spirits; so vile, that good Spirits utterly reject the Delights of the body, and do not want to return into them even although all things in the universal world were given them. The delight of these Spirits in like manner becomes vile when they are elevated by the Lord into the Heaven of Angelic Spirits; for they then put off those interior Delights, and put on still more interior ones. In like manner does the delight which they had in their own Heaven become vile to Angelic Spirits, when they are carried up by the Lord into the angelic or Third Heaven.

997. They who are in charity . . . from which love comes the delight of pleasures which is alive, have no regard for the enjoyment of pleasures except for the sake of use . . . He who loves his neighbour as himself, never perceives the delight of charity except in exercise, or use . . . Therefore, all the pleasure which is from charity, has its own delight from use; and the more distinguished the use, the greater the delight . . . This is the case with all pleasure; the more distinguished its use, the greater its delight; as, for example, the delight of marriage love . . . its use being the greatest of all, there is such Delight in it, that it is heavenly happiness.

1096^e. The delight of hatreds and of adulteries, regarded in itself, is never anything but an excrementitious delight; into which, also, it is turned in the other life.

1123. They said, that from that time the greatest delight of their life was to procreate offspring, so that their highest deliciousnesses were to love their married partner for the sake of offspring; they called these most delightful deliciousnesses, and most delicious Delights; adding, that the perception of these Delights and deliciousnesses was from influx from Heaven, because the Lord was to be born.

1267. Their greatest Delight consists in this, that one holds another subject to himself . . .

1316². The sphere of one who regards himself in everything, appropriates to itself, or, as is said there, absorbs . . . all the delight of the Spirits around him . . . But when the people is one . . . one never appropriates to himself the delight of another . . . but, as far as possible, promotes and augments it. D.2505.

1322. As soon as this common [bond] is dissolved . . . their delight consists in this, that they torture their companions.

1392. The Delights and happinesses in the other life are also wont to be communicated by one to many by a real transmission . . . It has also been granted to me so to communicate Delights to others by transmissions.

1470. For all truth which is celestial . . . is happy in the internal man, and delightful in the external . . . There are two happinesses in the internal man, to which correspond two delights in the external man, one is of good, the other is of truth; celestial happiness and delight is of good, spiritual happiness and delight is of truth. It is also known that truth itself is attended with happiness and delight . . .

1563. These organic vessels . . . are opened also by means of pleasures and delights; the things . . . of the will are opened by these.

1742². They are like men . . . who place the whole of life in the delight of such cupidities . . . In the other life . . . they perceive this stench as most delightful.

1763². They draw out the secrets of others . . . by means of insinuations into their delights.

1820². As soon as (evil Genii) . . . perceive as it were by scent that which is delightful and dear to man, they at once assault and endeavour to destroy it . . .

—³. They kindle (cupidity and persuasion) with a delight which they seize from some other delight of the man . . .

1860. They who are in hatred perceive a certain delight . . . in it; this delight . . . causes him scarcely to know but that it is good . . . Such delight is there turned into what is fetidly excrementitious and cadaverous.

1895². No one can become rational, unless some delight or affection of knowledges breathes on him.

1947³. When they are in the life of infernal Spirits, they are also in their loves and cupidities, with an impure and excrementitious delight breathing on them . . .

—^e. Evil is not mastered by the renunciation of the Delights of the body; sometimes another evil is thus raised up, namely, merit on account of the renunciation; besides the man's freedom suffering . . .

2057³. They perceive nothing more delightful than to torture others . . . When such come to a Society where there is mutual love, they are cast down of their own accord, because all the influent delight is terminated in themselves . . . and as they exhale a filthy idea of self, their delight is then turned into a cadaverous fetor . . .

—^e. They are in self-love who . . . take a cruel delight in revenge, and in the deprivation of others of honour, reputation, wealth, and life. They who are in the former are in the latter, and they who are in the latter may know that they are in the former.

[A.] 2184⁷. Natural good is the delight which is perceived from charity, or from the friendship which is of charity, from which delight comes forth the pleasure which is properly of the body. Natural truth is the Scientific which favours this delight, 2204. Human rational good is such that it has in it much from worldly delights, for it is formed not only from truths, but also from the delights of sensuous things, and from many delights which are in the world; in which delights, when the man is being reformed and regenerated, spiritual good is insinuated by the Lord . . .

2216. Celestial good and spiritual good does not laugh, but expresses its delight and cheerfulness in the face, speech, and gesture in another manner.

2261³. Perceive delight in the loss of (their neighbour's) wealth, honour, etc. 2910².

2272. (In temptations) the delights of the life of cupidities and thence of pleasures cease, and then goods from the Lord flow in, and evils are regarded as abominable . . .

2296. How all things are insinuated into (little children there) by means of delightful and pleasant things. Des. H.337.

2354². Feel delight in revenge, yea, in cruelty . . .

2363. Evil Spirits suppose that if the delight of the love of self and of the world, thus of the evils thence, were to be taken away, nothing of life could remain to them; but when it is shown them, that life itself with its blessedness and happiness then commences, they feel a certain sadness from the loss of their own delight . . .

2380³. They do evil to the neighbour, although he is their friend, if he does not favour them, and perceive delight therein. 3701².

2559. When he left the Scientific and the appearances thence, with their delights. Sig. . . 'House,' here, = the good of the delight from the appearances of scientific and rational things; for all delight appears as good.

2588³. They confirm themselves in this, that there cannot be any other love in which there is delight, but the love of self and of the world.

—⁴. The celestial and spiritual good which is from the Lord, is that by which every good which is below is vivified, and thence delight is truly delight.

2657⁶. The second Rational . . . begins to feel delight in good and truth itself; and to be affected with this delight . . . for the sake of good and truth; and when it is carried along by this delight, it rejects merit . . . This delight successively grows with it, and becomes blessedness . . .

2718⁴. All delight, blessedness, and happiness are of love alone; but such as is the love, such are the delight, blessedness, and happiness. 3539⁴.

2743. A guard lest in marriage love a man should pass over from heavenly delight to infernal delight, and the reverse. For they who are in genuine marriage love are in heavenly delight; but they who are in adulteries are also in delight which appears to them as heavenly, but it is infernal. 5051^e.

2744. It was shown me how delights progress from marriage love, on one side towards Heaven, on the other towards Hell. Ex.

2753. They study how to purloin the delights and blessednesses of others . . .

2781². Natural good is the delight flowing forth from charity and faith. 3167^e.

2873^e. Hence in the other life all are distinguished according to freedoms, that is, according to loves and affections, consequently according to the delights of life, which is the same as according to lives; for lives are nothing but delights, and these are nothing but the affections which are of love.

2884. Love, affection, and delight are so called in both senses, although the love of self and the world is nothing less than love . . . consequently the affection and delight therefrom.

2889^e. The veriest life then flows in, and afterwards is immensely increased; and this with delight, blessedness, and happiness, thus with inmost joy; and this with inexpressible variety to eternity.

3114^e. The goods of the natural man are delights, especially such as are of the affection of (scientific) truths.

3293. Good in the Natural is everything which is of natural affection, and is called delight . . . The Scientific by itself, abstractedly from the delight which is of affection, is not anything; from the delight there the Natural has its life, for it is from this that it is able to know anything. Delight, however, which is the good of the Natural devoid of what is scientific, is something, but is only the vital [principle], such as exists with infants . . .

3325³. At which time good cannot be discriminated from the delight of the love of self and of the world, which is at the same time in the affection of truth, and is believed to be good. 3330.

3402². He is in the persuasion that evil is good and falsity truth, and this from the affection and the consequent delight of them.

3417². At this time (the disciples) did not know that heavenly delight is not the delight of greatness and pre-eminence, but the delight of humiliation and of the affection of being of service to others . . .

—³. So they who are in the (mere) knowledge of Knowledges cannot know that any other delight exists than that which results from pre-eminence; and as this delight alone is seated in their minds, and makes everything of their life, heavenly delight, which results from humiliation and the affection of being of service to others, that is, the delight of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour . . . they are utterly ignorant of. (This is why the Lord so spake.)

3502. In the Original Language, 'dainties' are the delights and pleasantnesses of relish; and, in the internal sense, = the delights which are of good, and the pleasantnesses which are of truth.

—². Doctrinal things or Knowledges of good and truth cannot be communicated to the natural man, thus cannot be conjoined and appropriated, except by means of delights and pleasantnesses accommodated to it; for they are insinuated through an external or sensuous way; and whatever does not enter by means of some delight or pleasantness, does not inhere, thus is not permanent.

3512. Truths, like all other scientifics, are allotted a place in the memory which is of the natural man, according to the pleasantnesses and delights which introduced them; as is evident from the fact, that when these pleasantnesses and delights return, the things introduced by them also return; and, conversely, when the things are recalled, the delights or pleasantnesses to which they are adjoined are excited at the same time.

3518². By means of (the good which man receives from his parents), as by pleasure and delight, scientifics are introduced, and afterwards the Knowledges of truth . . . (for) when a child is first instructed, he is affected with the desire of knowing . . . from a certain pleasure and delight, both connate and derived from other sources . . . but when he is to be regenerated, from the delight and pleasantness of truth; and when he is being regenerated . . . from the love of truth . . . and then the ends which had preceded, and their delights, are separated by little and little, and are succeeded by interior good from the Lord . . . Hence it is evident, that the former delights, which had appeared in the external form as goods, had served as means.

3519. The things in the Natural which relate to the will are delights, and those which relate to the understanding there are scientifics; these two must be conjoined for there to be anything.

3570². Foods are introduced by means of the delight of appetite, and by the delight of relish, thus by means of external good.

—⁶. (So) the soul . . . introduces the things of knowledge and of doctrine by means of the delight which is of longing, and the good which is of affection.

3577. Hence it is, that the delights of good and the pleasantnesses of truth, which are perceived in the other life, manifest themselves there also by corresponding odours.

3610. There is then some pleasure and delight from the love of self, or from the love of the world, which adjoins itself to the affection of truth, and which appears as good, when yet it is not good, except relatively to the use, that thus truths can be introduced and learned . . .

3665^e. The affection of the Angels is then communicated, and causes the delight and pleasure which a child feels from these things (in the Word).

3671². Still more when he perceives delight in acting these things . . .

3701². This delight itself (in the ruin of those who injure us) is there manifestly perceived, wherefore he cannot be in any heavenly Society . . . but in some infernal Society, which has a similar delight.

—⁶. At last he perceives delight in doing good to (those who are in good); and as he perceives delight in good, he also perceives pleasantness in those things which confirm . . .

—⁷. In the same degree in which he perceives delight in this good, and pleasantness in these truths, he feels undelight in the evils of the former life, and unpleasantness in its falsities . . .

3709^e. The truths of the good of doctrine are the doctrinal things of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour, which are said to be conjoined with good in the natural man, when there is pleasure and delight in knowing them for the sake of doing them.

3726³. There are purer substances . . . the agreements and harmonies of which, in succession or together, are what affect, and cause that which is called beauty, pleasantness, and delight.

3743. They suppose that if they lived from another, and not from themselves, all the delight of their life would perish; not knowing that it is just the contrary.

—^e. Hence come colours beautiful and delightful, and also unbeautiful and undelightful.

3796³. If anyone wants to know the ends in himself, let him only attend to the delight which he perceives in himself from praise and self-glory, and to the delight which he perceives from use separated from himself; if he perceives the latter delight, he is in genuine affection.

3843². Truth . . . is then no longer sent into act from knowledge or doctrine, but from a certain delight unknown to him . . .

3870. The second life manifests itself by the affection of doing the truth . . . which exists when delight and blessedness are perceived in doing the truth.

3876. When a man is affected with truth, that is, when he perceives delight and blessedness in doing according to the truth, he is in charity.

3928. The external man is such, that of himself he lusts for nothing but corporeal and worldly things, these being the delights of his life; but the internal man, when he is opened towards Heaven, and longs for the things of Heaven . . . has heavenly delights, and the combat is between these two delights, when man is in temptations. This the man is at that time not aware of, because he does not know what heavenly delight is, and what infernal delight, still less that they are so completely opposite to each other. But the Celestial Angels cannot be at all with man in his corporeal and worldly delight, until this is reduced to compliance, that is, until corporeal and worldly delight is no longer as the end, but as a use which is of service to heavenly delight. Then the Angels can be with man in both, but then the delight with him becomes blessedness, and at last happiness in the other life.

—². He who believes that the natural delight with man before regeneration is not infernal, is much mistaken . . . If he does not perceive in himself anything of affection for what is just and fair in his employment, and for what is good and true in company and in life, let him know that he is in such delight as the infernals are in; for in his delight there is no other love, than that of self and the world; and when these cause the delight, there is no charity and no faith therein. After this delight has prevailed, it cannot be blunted and dissipated by any other means, than the affirmation and acknowledgment of the Holy of faith and the good of life, which is the first means signified by 'Dan'; and afterwards by temptation, which is the second means signified by 'Naphthali.' Ex.

[A.] 3938. In the external sense (these words)=the delight of the affections.

—³. The delight of the affections is signified in the external sense (by 'blessedness-beatitudinem').

—⁴. But it is the delight of the affections of truth and good, which corresponds to the happiness of eternal life, that is signified. All affections have their own delights, but such as are the affections, such are the delights; the affections of evil and falsity have also their delights, and before man is being regenerated . . . these delights appear to be the only ones . . . consequently, that if they were deprived of them they would perish altogether. But they who receive from the Lord the delights of the affections of truth and good, by degrees see and perceive the quality of the delights of that life . . . that they are relatively vile, yea, filthy; and in proportion as advance is made into the delights of the affections of truth and good, the man begins to hold cheap those delights of evil and of falsity, and at last to feel aversion for them.

—⁵. I have sometimes spoken with those in the other life who have been in the delights of evil and falsity, and was permitted to tell them, that they have no life until they are deprived of their delights; but they said that if they were deprived of them there would no longer be any life. But I was permitted to reply, that then life first begins . . . The case is the same with all those in the world who are in the love of self and of the world, and thence in no charity; they know the delight of the former loves, but not the delight of the latter . . . wherefore, they are quite ignorant of what charity is, and still more that there is any delight in charity, when yet the delight of charity is that which fills the universal Heaven, and causes there blessedness and happiness . . . and also intelligence and wisdom with their delights; for the Lord inflows into the delights of charity with the light of truth and the flame of good . . . Hence may be evident what is the delight of the affections.

—⁶. When they come into the other life, they at first think . . . that they can come into Heaven, not attending to their past life, that thereby they have put on the delight of the affection of evil and falsity by the loves of self and of the world . . .

— Hence it is evident what is the quality of the one delight, and what is the quality of the other delight; and that they who are in the delight of the affections of evil and falsity, cannot possibly be among those who are in the delight of the affection of good and truth; and that they are opposites, like Heaven and Hell. Refs.

—⁷. As to the happiness of eternal life, the man who is in the affection of good and truth cannot perceive it while he lives in the world, but in place of it a certain delight . . . for it falls among the cares and anxieties there, and becomes a kind of obscure delight; yet still it is a delight in which there is blessedness, and in this happiness.

—⁸. It is this continuity of love which reigns in the life of man, and which causes all delight with him, and which therefore causes his life itself; for the life of man is nothing but the delight which is of his affection . . .

3939. 'Asher' . . . involves . . . the delight of the affections which corresponds to the happiness of eternal life. . . When a man perceives in himself this correspondent delight, his external man begins to be conjoined with his internal man: it is the delights which are of the affections of truth and good which conjoin; for without the delights of the affections nothing is conjoined; for the life of man is in them. . . When a man perceives this delight, or this affection, he begins to become a Church.

3951². The goods of the external man, which are the delights of life while man lives in the world, are so far good as they have of spiritual good in them. Examp.

3952¹. The good of the external man is the pleasure and delight which he perceives in these (scientifics and doctrinal things); the scientifics which are truths, and the delights which are good, are conjoined, but do not make the heavenly marriage with him; for with those who are in the love of self and of the world . . . even scientifics, yea, doctrinal things, are conjoined with delights, but they are the delights of these loves, with which also truths are able to be conjoined. But when the pleasure or delight, which is the good of the external man, is from spiritual love . . . and especially when it is from celestial love . . . and these things flow in from the internal man into the delight of the external man, and make it, then that conjunction . . . makes with him the heavenly marriage.

3956. This is the delight itself, yea, the blessedness, which is with those who are in the affection of charity. Hence may be evident what 'the hire' is which is mentioned in the Word, namely, the delight and blessedness of the affection of charity, or, what is the same, the delight and blessedness of mutual love.

3957³. He who has found in deceit the delight of his life . . . is in that life after death.

— These evils constitute the delights of their life, consequently, the very life itself.

—⁵. He who . . . has acquired the delight of life in these things only, is not fit to be among those whose delight it is to think of heavenly things.

—⁷. This plane can only be acquired by . . . thus acquiring the delight of life in such things . . .

4027². From the Angels, that is, through the Angels from the Lord, there inflows delight and blessedness with the man who is in the affection of charity when he reads these (arcana); and still more so when he believes there is holiness in them; and still more so when he apprehends anything that is contained in the internal sense.

4038². The delight, pleasure, and longing desire (in the Natural) pertain to the will, and are called natural goods; but the scientifics there to the understanding, and are called natural truths.

4054². They are pests . . . although . . . while they were in the world, they appeared as if they were good, delightful, witty, and ingenious . . .

4063². The new man is in the affection of spiritual and celestial things ; these things constitute his delights and blessednesses ; whereas the old man is in the affection of worldly and earthly things, and these constitute his delights and pleasantnesses.

—⁴. Each age (of man) has its own delights, and is successively introduced through them into the things that belong to the age following ; and these delights were of service in bringing him thither, and at last to the delight of intelligence and wisdom in old age . . . This comparison, however, can only serve to show that delights are means, and that they are left behind when the man enters the following state . . .

4067³. He who has delight in revenge (associates to himself) such (Societies) as are in the like delight ; and so in all other cases . . . He is altogether ruled by them . . . although he supposes, from the delight and consequent freedom he enjoys, that he rules himself. He, however . . . who has not delight in revenge, is in a Society of the like Angels . . .

—⁴. Hence may be evident how the case is . . . with the mediate delights and goods by which man is led . . . The mediate goods and delights are nothing but such Societies as are applied to man by the Lord . . .

4110². The Spirits of a middle sort . . . are remitted into the state of their good . . . that they may perceive therein their delight and blessedness . . . until they feel what is undelightful in staying longer . . . and when the man begins to be confirmed . . . they perceive what is undelightful, and perceive delight in separation, and thus are separated by virtue of the freedom which is of their delight.

4136². With those who are not being regenerated, goods are not the things which are changed, but affections and their delights . . .

—³. (This learned leading man in the Church) was in such stupid ignorance about good and freedom, and about the delight and blessedness thence derived, that he did not know of the least difference between infernal delight and freedom, and heavenly delight and freedom . . .

4205². Truths with man, of any and every kind, enter into his memory by means of affection, that is, by means of some delight which is of love ; without affection, or without the delight which is of love, nothing can enter with man, because his life consists in these things. Those things which have entered are reproduced when the like delight recurs . . . ; and also when the same truth is reproduced . . . that affection or delight . . . is excited . . .

4301³. This may be illustrated by a comparison with the sight of the eye, and with the pleasantness and delight perceived by it. When the eye sees objects, it perceives pleasantness and delight thence according to the forms, colours, etc. . . This pleasantness and delight is not of the eye, but is of the disposition and its affection . . . Hence it is evident, that the objects of the outward sight are implanted according to the pleasantness and delight of the affections, and that they are in this pleasantness and delight ; for when the like pleasantness and delight recur, such objects also recur ; in like manner when the like objects recur, so does such pleasantness and delight, with variety according to the states. It is the very same with the understanding . . . the pleasantness and delight of this sight is good . . .

4317⁵. Hereditary evil . . . is Known by the delight when evil befalls another . . . It is from hereditary evil . . . to perceive delight in revenge . . .

4417⁰. The quality of the state of their life was shown by the withdrawal of their delight derived from falsity, which in the other life is effected by the separation of the Spirits in whose Society they are . . .

4459⁷. They who place all the delight of life in possessing (gold and silver), are in the outermost or lowest things.

4464³. But they who are in internal things, to wit, who have had delight in benevolence and charity, and especially they who have had blessedness in love to the Lord, are encompassed with a grateful and pleasant sphere . . .

4538⁵. At last, when a man perceives delight in willing good, and thence in doing it, it is no longer called the good of truth, but good ; for he is then regenerate.

4551². The unregenerate man regards those things as removed from him, which do not agree with the delight of the love in which he is . . .

4609. In the external sense, 'Asher' = the delight of affection.

4612³. As at this time he is in the delights of the love of self and of the world . . . he regards as goods and truths those things which favour his delights. Hence the order of them in the Natural is inverted . . . but still the things which are of light . . . are not in the Natural ; for the delights which are dominant there repel them ; for the delights of the love of self and of the world are in themselves entirely opposite to the delights of the love of the neighbour and thence of love to the Lord . . . He is affected with the things of light only in so far as they . . . favour the delights of the love of self and of the world.

4769. 'A he-goat of the goats' = external truths from delights (for 'he-goats of the goats') = the truths of the natural man from which are the delights of life ; and also external truths from delights. The truths of the external man from which are the delights of life, are truths Divine such as are those of the literal sense of the Word . . . These are properly signified by 'a he-goat,' and the delights thence derived by 'the goats ;' thus 'a he-goat of the goats' = those who are in such truths and the delights thence derived. But in the opposite sense, 'a he-goat of the goats' = those who are in external truths, that is, in the appearances of truth from the sense of the letter which agree with the delights of their life, as those which agree with the delights of the body that are in general called pleasures, and those which agree with the delights of the disposition which in general are honours and gains . . . Such . . . take no other truths from the Word than those which are in agreement with the delights of their life, that is, which favour the loves of self and of the world.

4776². Their delight, joyousness, and happiness, is from this, that they can do good to others from good-will.

[A.] 4804. They who in the life of the body have preferred the delight of social intercourse to every other delight . . . I could observe that such Societies were with me . . . by the deprivation of the delight in which I was . . . for wherever they go they take away the delight from others, and . . . appropriate it to themselves; for they turn to themselves the Spirits who are with others, and thus transfer the delight of another to themselves.

4805. There are also Societies of interior friendship, which do not take away another's external delight . . . but take away his internal delight or blessedness arising from the affection of spiritual things. Ex.

4940. (The Spirits who are in the places beneath the feet), are such as had been in natural delight, and not in spiritual.

4951. In this Hell are the most wicked; they clandestinely explore minds with a purpose of doing harm, and clandestinely lay an ambush in order to destroy; this has been the delight of their life.

4976. The Scientific to the delight of the natural man; or, what is the same, natural truth to its good, is just as is water to bread; (and is necessary to it).

4984^e. The good of faith (as distinguished from the truth of faith), affects . . . the will, and gives it interior delight or blessedness, and, in the other life, the happiness which is called heavenly joy.

5006^b. Hence it is, that it is contrary to the delight of the life of most people, to hear anything more about the things of Heaven than they had known from early childhood.

5057. (I saw a man who seemed to himself to be pounding men in a mortar); this the man did with great Delight; the Delight itself was communicated, that I might know the nature and degree of it with such persons; it was an infernal Delight. I was told . . . that such a delight reigned among the descendants of Jacob, and that they perceived nothing more delightful than treating the nations cruelly . . . D.2615. De Conj. 109.

5058^b. In an hour, the good there began to lament that (this deceitful Spirit) took away from them the perception of good and truth, and consequently their delight, thus destroying their state.

5125^e. When sensuous things are in the last place, there flows in happiness and blessedness from the interior man into the delights of sensuous things, and makes their delights a thousand times surpass the former delights . . . The sensuous man does not believe this; and as he feels no other delight, and does not suppose any higher delight to be possible, he regards as of no account the happiness and blessedness which are within the delights of sensuous things.

5145^b. Without these degrees as planes, good . . . flows through . . . down to the Sensuous, and is there . . . turned . . . into the delight of the love of self and of the world, thus into the delight of hatred, revenge, cruelty, adultery, avarice . . . —

5147^b. Foods without delights are of little use, but with delights they nourish: delights are what open the passages or ducts which convey into the blood; whereas things undelightful close them. With the Angels, these delights are the goods of love and charity, which are spiritual foods . . .

5157^b. By sensuous things are meant those scientifics and those delights which are insinuated through the five bodily senses into the memory and concupiscences of man, and which together constitute the exterior Natural . . . These scientifics are subject to the intellectual part, and the delights to the will part . . . The former are represented by 'the butler,' and were retained; but the latter by 'the baker,' and were rejected.

5159. With those who are being regenerated . . . somewhat inwardly dissuades, to prevent sensuous Delights and corporeal or earthly pleasures from reigning, and drawing intellectual things over to their side. Sig.

5279^e. The delight of the love of self and of the world is removed by means of despair; and in its place is insinuated the delight of the love of good and truth.

5340^e. Truth is conjoined with good, when a man perceives delight in doing good to the neighbour for the sake of truth and good . . .

5354^b. From the new will, he feels delight in doing good to the neighbour from no end of self; and from the new intellectual, he perceives delight in learning what is good and true for their own sake and for the sake of life.

5365^d. Scarcely anyone has said that (the highest good) is that delight, joyousness, blessedness, and happiness, which is perceived from mutual love . . .

5394. (These) stanches are most sweet and most delightful to them, and they prefer them to all other delights, because they correspond. —^e.

5395. (Such) have no delight in offices, but only in being honoured and worshipped . . . and in eating, drinking, playing, and social intercourse . . . Such cannot be with good Spirits and Angels, for with these use makes the delight, and the quantity and quality of their delight is according to uses.

5620. 'A little resin and a little honey' = the truths of good of the exterior Natural, and its delight.

— The reason 'honey' = delight, is that it is sweet, and everything sweet in the natural man corresponds to delight and pleasantness in the spiritual man. The reason it is said the delight of truth from good in the exterior Natural, is that all truth, and still more the truth of good, has its own delight, but delight from the affection and consequently the use of them.

—². That 'honey' = delight. Ill.

—⁵. 'Honey,' here, = the pleasantness and delight from the affections of knowing and learning celestial and spiritual goods and truths.

—⁶. 'To suck honey out of the rock' = delight from scientific truths.

—⁷. 'To be satisfied with honey out of the rock' = delight from the truths of faith.

—⁹. 'Flowing with honey' = the abundance of happiness and of delights (from celestial spiritual things).

—¹⁰. 'Sweeter than honey and the dropping of the combs' = delights from good and pleasantnesses from truth.

—¹¹. The manna as to delight and pleasantness is described by its taste . . . Taste = the delight of good and the pleasantness of truth.

—¹². The delight of the literal sense is signified by 'wild honey.'

—¹³. That divine truth in the external form appears delightful, is signified by 'the flavour of the roll being as sweet as honey;' for . . . the Word in the external form . . . is delightful, because it suffers itself to be explained in everybody's favour, Ex. . . It must be delightful in order that man may receive it.

—¹⁵. Hence it is evident, that 'honey' = the delight which is from good and truth, or from the affection of them; and that, specifically, it = external delight, thus that of the exterior Natural. As this delight is of such a nature, that it comes from the world through sensuous things, and thus contains within it many things from the love of the world, the use of honey was forbidden in the meat-offerings.

5639². When a man feels delight and pleasantness within him, and still more if he feels joyousness and blessedness therefrom, this with him is the Spiritual, which does not come from the natural, but from the Spiritual World . . .

5647. There is also a fear . . . from the loss of freedom, and with freedom the delight of life. —.

5648³. Such things are here mentioned in the internal sense . . . as are pleasant and delightful (to those who are in the Spiritual World); but the more interior such things are, the more remote they are from the understanding of the men to whom the things of the world and the body are alone pleasant and delightful . . . Hence may be evident, what a difference there is between the delights of men and the delights of the Angels.

5660². (When they perceive that everything flows in), they believe that their own proper life would become nothing, and that thus all delight would perish; for this they place in what is their Own.

5670. The good of scientifics is the delight from scientific truths.

5722^o. Their delight in doing evil is so great, that nothing is more delightful.

5724^o. To oppress the conscience had been the delight of their life.

5732^o. This he does . . . who feels delight and blessedness in doing good to others from no cause of self . . .

5864. As the delight and blessedness of Heaven is to do good to man, and contribute to his eternal salvation; so . . . the delight of Hell is to do evil to man, and contribute to his eternal destruction.

5881^o. This commotion . . . manifests itself by the deprivation of the delight there had been in the former state.

5992. The office of the Angels is . . . to observe whether man's delights turn themselves, and, so far as they can from man's freedom, to moderate and bend them to good; they are forbidden to act violently . . .

—^o. They perceive nothing as more delightful and happy than to remove evils from man, and lead him to Heaven.

5993^o. Unless man were led according to the delights of his life, he could never be bent towards Heaven; in the beginning he is bent by means of his delights themselves; by means of these he is also set in freedom, and thus at last in choice.

6024¹. The happiness of eternal life, and the delight of the affections, and their doctrinal things. Sig.

6073². Uses are the very delights of life of the Angels . . .

6084². The delight and good in the objects are what direct the (internal) sight thither.

6192^o. To destroy man both body and soul is the very infernal delight itself.

6203. When man first from consent, then from purpose, and at last from the delight of affection casts himself into evil, the Hell is opened which is in such evil . . . When a man thus comes into evil, it inheres; for the Hell, in the sphere of which he then is, is in its own very delight when it is in its own evil . . .

6388. They who are in genuine mutual love, are in their delight and blessedness when they do good to the neighbour . . . This delight and this blessedness, is what is meant by 'hire;' for the delight or blessedness itself is the hire; and, in the other life, it becomes the joy and happiness which are in Heaven . . .

6391². (Such) cannot know that there is such great happiness in doing good without recompence; the reason is, that they perceive happiness in the delight of self-love; and in proportion as a man perceives delight in this love, he does not perceive delight in heavenly love, for they are opposite. For that delight which flows from self-love, completely extinguishes the delight which is from heavenly love, until it is utterly unknown what heavenly delight is . . . Evil Spirits . . . do not believe that it is possible for any delight to exist in doing goods without an end of recompence; for they suppose . . . that all delight would then cease; and if they are told, that when this delight ceases, heavenly delight begins, they are amazed; and still more so when they hear that this heavenly delight flows in through the inmost of man, and affects his interiors with ineffable happiness . . . for they believe that if they were to lose the delight of self-love, they would be most miserable . . .

6408. See BLESS-beare, at this ref.

6409. 'His bread is fat' = delight from good . . . When 'fat' is joined to 'bread,' which = the good of love, then 'fat' = the delight which is of that love.

6410. The reason both delight from good and pleasantness from truth are mentioned, is on account of the heavenly marriage. (See ACTIVE at this ref.)

6414^o. After temptations, there is gladness and delight. Refs.

6472². Thus does the Lord lead man according to his delights, and also according to his fallacies . . .

6484. Heaven inflowed into his delight, and he then suddenly felt Hell . . .

6495. When a man . . . receives influx from Hell, he feels the life of the love of self and the world delightful, and the life of the love of the neighbour, except for the sake of self, undelightful.

6567². Affection itself and thence reason, dominates, and subjugates in the Natural the delights of the love of self and the world . . .

[A.] 6574². The infernals . . . are then in their own life and the delight of their life.

6631. Then the delights of earthly loves take possession of the whole man, and, with these, all the evils which are delightful to him from these loves . . .

6666². All the delight of life, thus their life itself, consists in doing evil.

6857. 'Flowing with milk and honey'=and thence pleasantness and delight. . . 'Honey'=delight. —^e. 8056.

6907². (To infest those who are in truths) is then the very delight of their life . . . to such a degree are they in the delight of life from falsities . . . 7097². —⁴.

6971². Believed that life ought to be made delightful —jucundanda—by every pleasure . . .

7002. Pleasantness and delight from the affection which is of love. Sig.

—^c. On this account, they attribute to doctrine pleasantness and delight . . . These things are really in doctrine when a man applies it to himself, because in doctrine is Divine truth . . . and in Divine truth love; thus pleasantness and delight.

7032. By these words is signified obstinacy from the will, thus from the delight of doing evil; for what is of the will is delightful, and what is delightful is from love.

—². The reason is, that the delight of their life is to do evil; this delight they derived while they lived in the world, from loving themselves alone . . . Hence they have the delight of doing evil, and in proportion as they are in this delight, they are in obstinacy.

7038². The (five) senses have delights entirely according to the uses which they perform. The most delightful is the sense of marriage love . . . Then follows the delight of taste, which has such delight because it serves for nourishment and health . . . The delight of smell is less delightful, because it only serves for recreation . . . The delight of hearing, and the delight of sight, are in the last place, because they only receive the things which are to serve for uses, and minister to the intellectual part.

7097^e. This delight of life (in infesting) is increased by exhortations to desist . . .

7188. Their only delight of life is to do evil and infest, therefore they cannot abstain . . . for that which is the delight of anyone's life, being of his love and life, carries him away, and cannot be resisted, unless the undelight of punishment prevails over the delight of doing evil.

7280^e. To destroy all who do not favour them is the highest delight of their life . . . for in proportion as anyone is in hatred, he is in the delight of destroying.

7327. When falsity begins to reign, man lives according to the evil innate and acquired, and feels delight in it.

7352². He reasons from mere falsities . . . who believes that man has nothing but the delight of life . . . and therefore that he should enjoy it.

7356. 'Into thy ovens, and into thy kneading-troughs' = into the delights of cupidities. 'Ovens'=exterior goods, which are those in the Natural, and are commonly called delights; for when interior goods . . . flow into the Natural, they are felt there as delights. . . In the opposite, 'oven'=the delights of cupidities, that is, delights from the loves of Hell. . . 'Kneading-troughs,' also = the delights of cupidities in the Natural, but still more exterior ones. Ex.

— . By the statement that reasonings will enter into the delights of cupidities, is meant that the delight of their life will be to reason from falsities . . .

—². That 'an oven'=the delight of the affections of charity and faith; and, in the opposite sense, the delight of the cupidities of the love of self and the world. Ill.

7363. They said that their consociations are delightful . . .

7371. The delight which these feel in such things, is the delight of self-love: this delight with man is infernal delight. Everything which takes place according to the love is delightful, wherefore the nature of the love may be known from the delight.

7392². Nothing delights—delectat—the infernals but to do evil . . . for to do evil is the very delight of their life . . . Infestation by falsities is delightful to them, because thereby they can do evil; and the evil of the lice = the evils which are delightful to them because they are evils. In the other life, all perceive delight in doing evil, who in the world do not do good to the neighbour, etc. . . That they have delight in doing evil, does not shine forth in the world . . . but in the other life . . . this delight manifests itself.

7396. How beautiful and delightful would then be the representation of an empire, kingdom, and society in Heaven . . .

7411. That there was no longer anything undelightful (to the infesters). Sig. . . What is delightful makes a man breathe freely and fully; but what is undelightful not so.

7437². The reason why they who are in evils think to falsities . . . is that evils are the very delights of their life . . .

7501. When evil Spirits attack anyone, they know how to insinuate themselves into his delights which are of cupidities, and also into his pleasantnesses which are of principles; thus into the things of his love; and so long . . . they hold him as one bound . . . for love and the insinuation into the delight of love conjoin. . . In the world (also) he who insinuates himself into another's delight which is of love, holds him bound, and leads him.

7879. The Hells are most fully prepared to introduce evil; for to introduce evil is the very delight of their life.

7967. 'Their kneading-troughs were bound up in their garments'=the delights of the affections adhering to truths. . . (For) all the truths which enter into man, are conjoined with some delight, for without delight truths have no life. From the delights which are conjoined with truths, it is known how it is with the truths in a man : if the delights are of evil affections, it is evil ; but if the delights are of good affections, it is well. Ex.

8033. Charity . . . consists in a man's wanting to do good to the neighbour from the heart, and that this is the delight of his life.

8056. Gladness is predicated of truth, and joy of good ; in like manner, pleasantness and delight.

8293. It is said 'My soul shall be filled,' because the delight itself of those who are in Hell, is to introduce evil into others, with some for no other end than for the sake of the delight. . . That there is such a delight with those in the other life who are in evil of life, hardly anyone can believe. Ex. . . But when reflections upon the loss of life, wealth, etc., are taken away from them . . . then the delight of doing evil, which lay hidden in the will . . . manifests itself. This delight then constitutes their life, which is infernal.

8318². Thus (by self-love) revenge and cruelty become the delight of their life . . . But with those who are in evil from the love of the world . . . to deprive the neighbour of his goods is the delight of their life . . .

8337². Hence it is evident, that musical instruments correspond to the delights and pleasantnesses of spiritual and celestial affections.

—³. 'The joy of timbrels'=the delights of the affections of the good of faith ; 'the joy of the harp'=the delight of the affection of the truth of faith.

8339. 'A timbrel' is predicated of the affection of spiritual good . . . and=its delight or joy.

8349. All the delight of truth comes forth from good.

8352². The delight of life of the spiritual man is to be instructed in truths . . . The affection of good is continually flowing in . . . and exciting in the external things suitable, which had before caused the delight of the affection of truth ; and when they are assaulted by the evils of the love of self and the world, which he had before perceived as delights, there arises a conflict of delights or affections . . .

8356. 'The waters were made sweet'=that truths were made delightful. 'Sweet'=delightful ; for, in the spiritual sense, 'sweetness' is the sweetness of life, which is one with delight. . . Hence it is evident, that good is the sole cause of the delight of the affection of truth . . . Hence it is, that so long as good flows in and is received, truth appears as delightful ; but as soon as good does not flow in . . . at once instead of truth there is felt undelight . . .

8367. After every spiritual temptation there comes enlightenment and affection, thus pleasantness and delight ; pleasantness from enlightenment by truth, and delight from the affection of good. —², Ill.

8369. As 'palm-trees'=goods, they also=the affection of good, and thence delight ; for all delight is from the affection of good.

8378. Hence the insanity of supposing that all the delight of life . . . consists in luxury and pleasure.

8403. It here treats of the third temptation, which is on account of the lack of delight and of good.

—³. There are many kinds of evil which made the delight of the former or old life.

8413. That they were expiring from a lack of delight and of good. Sig. . . 'To kill'=to deprive of life ; here, of that which is from delight and from good, for man's life consists in these things.

—². When the good of charity is to be insinuated . . . the delight of pleasures, which has made the natural life, is removed ; when this delight is removed, the man comes into temptation ; for he believes that if he is deprived of the delight of pleasures he will be deprived of all life ; for his natural life consists in this delight or good, as he calls it. He is not aware that when this delight of life is removed, spiritual delight and good is insinuated by the Lord in its place. This good is what is signified by 'the manna' ; the former good or delight, by 'the flesh and bread in the land of Egypt' ; and its deprivation, by 'hunger.' But it is to be well observed, that the man who is being regenerated is not deprived of the delight of the pleasures of the body and disposition ; for, after regeneration, this delight is fully enjoyed, more fully than before, but in an inverted way : before regeneration, the delight of pleasures was everything of life, but after regeneration the good of charity becomes everything of life ; and then the delight of pleasures serves as a means and as an ultimate plane, in which spiritual good, with its happiness and blessedness, is terminated. When, therefore, the order is to be inverted, first of all the delight of pleasures expires, and becomes nought, and what is new from a spiritual origin is insinuated in its place.

8426². When it is evening, (Spirits) are in obscurity as to truths, and in the delight of natural love ; this delight is what is signified by 'the quails,' which they received in the evening.

8431. 'In the evening flesh to eat'=that in the end of the state, good will be appropriated by means of delight. . . 'Flesh,' here, =the good of the natural man, that is, delight. . . 'Quails'=the good of the natural man, which is called delight. . . That which is given in the evening=natural good, or delight. . . Changes thus succeed . . . that man may appropriate good, which is done in the state of evening by means of delight.

8452. 'The quails came up'=the natural delight through which comes good. 'Quails'=natural delight, (for) a sea bird=what is natural ; and its flesh, which was longed for, delight. . . In the state which corresponds to evening, good Spirits and Angels are let into . . . the delights of their natural man, in order that they may be perfected . . . (for) the Natural must be accommodated . . . This is done by means of delights ; for the goods which are of the natural man are called delights, because they are felt.

—². A sea bird and its flesh = natural delight ; and, in the opposite sense, the delight of concupiscence. Ill.

—³. It is called the delight of concupiscence, when the delight of any corporeal or worldly love is dominant . . . This delight is what is described (in Num. xi). But the natural delight, which is signified in this chapter by 'the quails,' which were given to the people in the evening, is not the delight of concupiscence, but is the delight of the natural man which corresponds to the good of the spiritual man : this delight has spiritual good in it ; but the delight of concupiscence has infernal evil in it. Both are called delight, and both are felt as delight ; but there is the greatest possible difference between them ; for one has Heaven in it, and the other has Hell in it. (Shown by a comparison.)

[A.] 8455. Dew . . . has something sweet and delightful stored up in it . . . Peace is like the dawn . . . which gladdens our minds with a universal delight.

—². This is not peace ; it is the delight and tranquility of cupidities . . . ; but as this delight is opposite to the delight of peace, in the other life it is turned into what is undelightful ; for such lies hidden within it . . . Peace is the inmost in every delight, even in the undelight with the man who is in good.

8462. Before regeneration, he believes that besides the delights of the love of self and of the world, which he calls goods, it is impossible for there to be any good . . . and if anyone should say to him, that there is an interior good which cannot come to perception so long as the delights of the love of self and the world are dominant . . . he is astounded . . . when yet this good immensely surpasses the delights of the love of self and the world. (Such) believe that nothing of joy and life would remain, if they were to be deprived of the delights of these loves, when yet heavenly joy then begins.

8487^a. As every delight of the love of self and the world, which had before made their life, extinguishes this good . . . the pure good of truth cannot long remain with that man, but it is tempered by the Lord by means of the delights of the loves which had before been the delights of his life ; for unless this good were so tempered, it would become undelightful to him . . . In proportion, therefore, as the delights of the loves of self and the world arise, the good of celestial love vanishes . . . and conversely. Hence in Heaven there are changes of state, and by turns they are let down into the delights of natural pleasures ; for (otherwise) the good of celestial love would become dry ; but it is different when it is tempered by natural delights, either at once, or successively. Sig. . . But the concupiscences into which the Angels are let down . . . are the delights of doing good in some abundance . . . they are also the delights of having magnificent houses, etc. . . According to the degree in which a man is being regenerated (such things) become the ultimate planes of celestial good ; and then they are no longer to be called concupiscences, but Delights.

8522. 'Its flavour as of a cake in honey'=that good was delightful, like that which was made good from truth by means of delight. 'Flavour' is predicated of the delights which are of good, because it corresponds to the delight of being wise . . . and 'honey'=natural delight.

—^e. (Spiritual good) can only come forth by means of the delights which are of the natural man ; by means of them the spiritual man is introduced ; and when he has been introduced, he has the sense thereof.

8593. The highest delight of the life (of those signified by 'Amalek') is to meditate such things . . .

8687^e. When they are in the state of evening, they are in natural delight ; but when in the state of morning, they are in spiritual delight.

8701^a. When man acts from the affection of good, he wills good, and it is delight and blessedness to him to do it . . .

8707. In this light the eye sees objects, and is affected with beauty and delight from their agreements with order . . . But the objects seen in (spiritual) light appear beautiful and delightful according to their agreement with a man's good.

8872^e. To the sensuous Corporeal relate the scientifics . . . and also their delights : with the good these are both good, because they are applied to goods ; but with the evil they are evil, because they are applied to evils.

8904^a. Hence, they who take the delight of their life in adulteries, are no longer able to receive anything of faith . . .

8977. 'If he shall come in his body'=truth without delight . . . for 'the woman of a servant'=the delight conjoined with truth. . . The men of the external Church . . . are they who learn truth from no delight . . .

—². But they who are in the truth to which delight is adjoined, are here meant by 'the servants who come with a woman' ; for 'a woman' . . . here, =delight ; because, with the man of the external Church, this is in the place of good : the good which he has is . . . from a natural origin . . . for the sake of self ; this is why it is called delight, and not good . . . As it is natural good, that is, as it derives its origin from the world . . . it is called delight.

8978. 'He shall go forth in his body'=a state of truth without delight also after combat.

8979. 'If he is the lord of a woman'=truth conjoined with delight. . . 'A woman'=good ; but here, delight. . . The reason 'a woman'=delight, is that the woman of a man=good . . . but as he does not do the truth for the sake of the truth, nor good for the sake of good, but that he may be recompensed ; in the truth and good he does there is the idea of self, and this idea is not of good, but of delight ; for, in the spiritual sense, nothing is called good but what is of love to the Lord and towards the neighbour. In the natural man, this good also does indeed appear as delight, but it is the Spiritual within it which makes it good. Ex.

8980. 'His woman shall go forth with him'=a state of truth conjoined with delight also after combat. . . 'Woman'=delight conjoined.

— . 'Servants'=those who are in the faith of the doctrinal things of their Church, and not in the corresponding good, but in the delight which counterfeits it. . . They who are at the entrance to Heaven, by means of the truth of faith communicate with those who are in Heaven, and by means of delight conjoined with truth, with those who are outside of Heaven . . .

8986. The delight of the remembrance of spiritual goods. Sig. . . 'To love,' here, =the delight of remembrance . . . Such persons cannot be affected with truth for the sake of good, but for the sake of delight ; wherefore, as 'to love' is here said of such, it =the Delight of remembrance.

8987. 'I will not go out free'=the delight of obedience.

— . To be reformed (as distinguished from to be regenerated), is said of those who, by the truths of faith, cannot be brought to the good of spiritual life, but only to the delight of natural life. Ex.

8993. The affection of truth from natural delight. Sig. . . Hence 'the daughter of a man sold for a maid-servant' = the affection of truth from the delight of natural affection. By natural delight is meant the delight which flows forth from the love of self and the world . . . Such affections of truth, which do not flow forth from spiritual good, but from natural delight, are represented by 'the daughter of an Israelitish man sold for a maid-servant' . . .

8995. 'If she be evil in the eyes of her lord' = if the affection of truth from natural delight does not agree with spiritual truth. 'Maid-servant' = affection from natural delight.

—². 'Maid-servant' = the affection of truth from the delights of the love of self or the love of the world . . . The affection of truth from natural delight is in the external man . . .

—⁴. (Such a man) may suppose, that the delight of natural loves, which are the love of self and the world, cannot agree with spiritual truth and good, (but the fact is that) man has his head in Hell when he has the delights of the love of self or the world as an end, but he has it in Heaven, when these delights are as means to an end . . .

9049. With him who does good from the heart . . . the affection of love is increased . . . and, with this affection, an ineffable delight, which is heavenly delight. Ex.

— . The case is the same with an evil man who does evil to another from the heart . . . the affection of self-love is increased, and with it the delight of hatred and revenge against those who do not submit. Ex.

9103. Exterior good is charity in the exterior man . . . this good comes to man's sensation as delight; but (interior good) does not come to his sensation (except in the Spiritual World).

—³. The objects which enter through the senses, appear to man at first as pleasure and delight; afterwards, the infant man distinguishes between the delights . . .

9184. Unlawful conjunction . . . is the conjunction of truth with affection from the delight of gain or from the delight of honours; in such affection are they who learn the truths of the Church for the sake of these delights . . . The external man relishes only those things which are of the world and self, which are delights from gains and honours. But when the internal man has been opened . . . the man regards as ends those things which are of the Lord and Heaven . . . and the delights of gain and honours, as means to that end. . . . Means have life solely from the end . . . thus the delights of gain and of honours, when made means, have life from the life out of Heaven.

9206². As it is with good, so it is with every delight, pleasantness, etc.; these things are not such from themselves, but from the things which are in them; the conjunction makes them such . . .

9213. That (scientific truth) is to be restored before a state of shade from the delights of external loves. Sig. . . 'Sunset' = a state of shade from the delights of external loves. . . Sunset in Heaven corresponds to a state of shade as to the truths of faith and of cold as to the good of love . . . for they then come into the delights of external loves, which are attended with shade as to faith . . . But when an Angel or Spirit is in internal things, he is in the delights and blessednesses of heavenly loves, and at the same time in the pleasantnesses of faith.

—². When man is in a state of shade from the delights of external loves, as these delights reject those truths . . . fallacies inhere . . . The reason external delights, or those of the external man, are such, is that they cohere with the world, and are also excited and as it were vivified from its heat. But internal delights or blessednesses, or those of the internal man, cohere with Heaven, and are also excited and vivified from its heat.

9272³. 'To plant plants of delights' (Is. xvii. 10) = such things as favour the affections.

9276. Those with them who are in the delights of external truth. Sig. . . The subject treated of, is the conjunction of the Church . . . with those who are in the delights of external truth. . . 'The wild beast of the field' = those who are in the delights of external truth; (for) 'wild beasts' = such affections as are of truth the most external; for these affections . . . are the affections of sensuous things, which are called pleasures and Delights. The reason they are the Delights of truth, and not so much of good, is that sensuous things . . . derive hardly anything from spiritual good.

—². This verse treats (thirdly) of those who are in the delights of external truth: these three kinds of men constitute the Church . . . they who are in the delights of external truth are the outermost, and make as it were the circuit, and close the Church. . . (Through the first two kinds of men) the Lord is with those who are in the delights of external truth; for these delights with them are for the most part from the loves of self and the world, and derive very little from spiritual good.

—⁴. Through this affection, He flows into the delights of external truth, which are in the extremes.

9278. 'Six days thou shalt do thy works' = a state of labour and combat, when in the external delights which are to be conjoined with internal ones.

9296². In proportion as he is carried away by the delights of the loves of self and the world . . .

9297⁴. All in the other life are reduced to . . . the use of their life . . . which they had loved above all things, and which had therefore been the delight itself of their life.

9335. 'Lest the wild beast of the field be multiplied upon thee' = the afflux of falsities from the delights of the loves of self and the world. . . 'Wild beasts' = the affections of falsity originating from the delights of the loves of self and the world.

—². From these fallacies, when they breathe the delights of the loves of self and the world, he concludes nothing but falsities . . .

[A.]934r. 'From the wilderness to the river' = from the delight of the Sensuous to the good and truth of the Rational. . . As the Sensuous has no celestial good or spiritual truth, but delight and pleasure from the body and the world, 'wilderness' here = this Outermost in the man of the Church.

9348. The loves of self and the world are connate with man, and from them man feels the delight of his life from his birth; yea, from them he has his life.

—². 'The pit' = falsity induced by reasonings from the fallacies of the senses to favour the delights of the loves of self and the world.

—⁴. 'To spread over him a net' = to allure by the delights of earthly loves and reasonings thence.

—⁶. 'A snare' = allurement and deception through the delights of the loves of self and the world . . . and this through reasonings from the fallacies of the senses, which favour these delights . . . The diabolical crew assault nothing with man but these loves, which they delight in every way, until he is taken; (and then the man) also takes delight in ensnaring and alluring others . . .

—⁷. The delights of these loves are what destroy . . . for from self-love streams out contempt for others . . . enmity if they do not favour; at last the delight of hatred, the delight of revenge, thus the delight of fierceness; nay, of cruelty.

9449. The signs that sins are forgiven, are . . . they perceive delight in worshipping God for the sake of God, in serving the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour; thus in doing good for the sake of good, and in believing truth for the sake of truth . . .

9450. The signs that sins are not forgiven, are . . . they perceive delight in evils. Enum.

9585. Everything is called freedom which is . . . of love; hence it is, that freedom manifests itself by the delight of willing and thinking, and thence of doing and speaking; for all delight is of love.

9993². The external (of the Celestial Kingdom) is the delight proceeding from this good . . . this is in the external man with them . . . and is represented by 'the unleavened wafers anointed with oil.'

9996. The ultimate of the Voluntary is called sensuous delight; (this) is drawn in through the senses of taste and touch . . . and is meant by 'a basket;' (for) the ultimate is the containant of all interior things.

10029². Truth in the natural man is what is scientific, and good there is the delight thereof; and both are perceptible to man . . .

10170. The delight of love truly conjugal is internal, being of minds; and is also the external delight thence, which is of bodies: but the delight of love not truly conjugal is a mere external delight without an internal one . . . this delight is earthly . . . and therefore in time perishes; whereas the former is heavenly . . . and therefore permanent.

10236⁷. The good of the Sensuous, signified by 'a base of brass,' is what is called the pleasure and delight which affects the imaginative thought . . . and is distinguished from other delights by this, that it regards no uses but those for the sake of self; for the sensuous man is in the love of self and the world, and his delights are those of these loves.

10402. 'Ear-rings of gold in the ears' = representative insignia of obedience and of perception of the delights which are of external loves; for 'gold' . . . here, = the delight of external loves . . . thus evil.

10407. 'He made it a calf of what is molten' = according to the delight of the loves of that nation . . . for 'a calf,' as an idol, = this delight.

—². When there is no good of innocence and of charity . . . 'a calf' = natural and sensuous delight; which delight is the delight of pleasures, of cupidities, and of the loves of self and the world; this delight is that in which are they who are in externals without what is internal; and they worship it.

10503. 'They have made themselves gods of gold' = they worship infernal delight. . . 'Gold' = the delight of external loves, thus infernal delight.

10530. 'To a land flowing with milk and honey' = pleasantness and delight from the good of faith and of love . . . It is said pleasantness and delight from these, because in the good of faith and of love there is heavenly pleasantness and delight itself; for all good has its own delight; since that is called good which is loved, and all delight is of love. The delight which is meant by heavenly joy and eternal happiness, is from no source but the love of truth and good. That this delight is above every delight of any love in the world, is quite unknown to those who place all delight in worldly, corporeal, and earthly things.

10618². All evil has in it enmity, hatred, revenge, and fierceness; in and from these evil has its delight; and, moreover, evil hates good, because this is opposite to its delights.

10742. These things (hatred, revenge, etc.) at last become the delights of their life, thus the loves. 10745.

H. 56². See BEAUTY at this ref.

112 (q). Every good has its own delight from and according to uses. Refs.

155. When (the Angels) are in the greatest degree of love, they are in the light and heat of their life, that is, in their clearness and delight; but when they are in the least, they are in shade and cold, that is, in their obscurity and undelight.

158. The first (reason why there are changes of state in Heaven) is that the delight of life and of Heaven, which they have from love and wisdom . . . would by degrees become cheap, if they were constantly in it.

—². The third reason is . . . that the perception and sensation of good becomes more exquisite by the alternations of delight and undelight.

249. To speak with Spirits . . . is dangerous . . . for evil Spirits . . . desire nothing more than to destroy man soul and body, which also is done with those who have indulged much in phantasies, until they have removed from themselves the delights which are suitable to the natural man.

266^e. The Angels are gifted with delights and pleasantness according to the reception of wisdom from the Lord.

282^e. When an Angel of the inmost Heaven approaches, he (who feels it) seems . . . to be affected and as it were carried away with such delight, that in comparison with it every delight of the world appears to be nothing.

285. Innocence is that from which is all the good of Heaven, and peace is that from which is all the delight of that good. Every good has its own delight, and good and delight are both of love; for whatever is loved is called good, and is also perceived as delight. . . That peace is the inmost of delight from the good of innocence, shall now be explained. 288².

288. The peace of Heaven . . . does not come to their manifest perception, except by a Delight of heart when they are in the good of their life, and by a pleasantness when they hear truth which agrees with their good, and by a cheerfulness of mind when they perceive their conjunction . . .

—². Innocence and peace are conjoined like good and its delight; for good is felt by its delight, and delight is Known from its good. . . That innocence and peace are together, like good and its delight, may be seen with little children . . .

289. When the conjunction of good and truth comes forth, as is especially the case after temptations, he comes into a state of delight from heavenly peace.

374. I heard an Angel describing love truly conjugal and its heavenly Delights, in this way . . . Hence it is that all things of Heaven are inscribed on this love, and so many blessednesses and Delights as to exceed all number . . . In the spiritual sense, the delight of adulteries is nothing but the delight of the love of falsity conjoined with evil, which delight is infernal delight, because entirely opposite to the delight of Heaven, which is the delight of the love of truth conjoined with good.

379². Even those who are in (genuine marriage love), know nothing whatever about the interior delight which is in this love, but only about the delight of lasciviousness, which delight is turned into undelight after a short cohabitation; whereas the delight of love truly conjugal not only lasts till old age in the world, but also becomes the delight of Heaven after death, and is then infilled with interior delight, which is perfected to eternity.

382. Among married partners who are in love truly conjugal, there are heavenly delights, which are before their minds almost like the sports of innocence . . . for there is nothing that does not delight their minds.

384. This is why when a man commits adultery from delight, Heaven is closed to him.

—². From this it was evident, that the delight which reigns in Hell is the delight of adultery, and that the delight of adultery is also the delight of destroying the conjunction of good and truth . . . Hence it follows, that the delight of adultery is an infernal delight which is entirely opposite to the delight of marriage, which is a heavenly delight.

386. It has been shown me how the delights of marriage love advance towards Heaven, and the delights of adultery towards Hell. Ex.

395. The reason it is not known what heavenly joy is . . . is that they have not known what the internal man is, thus not what is his delight and blessedness . . .

—². Hence it may be known, that heavenly delight is internal and spiritual delight, but not external and natural delight; and because it is internal and spiritual, it is more pure and exquisite, and affects the interiors of man . . . Everyone may hence conclude, that his delight is such as the delight of his spirit has been; and that the delight of the body, which is called the delight of the flesh, is relatively not heavenly; and what is in man's spirit . . . remains after death.

396. All delights flow forth from love; for what a man loves he feels delight; nor has anyone delight from any other source; hence it follows that such as the love is, such is the delight. The delights of the body or flesh all flow forth from the love of self and the love of the world; hence they are concupiscences and their pleasures; but the delights of the soul or spirit all flow forth from love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour; hence also they are affections of good and truth, and are interior joyousnesses. These loves with their delights inflow from the Lord and out of Heaven through an internal way . . . and affect the interiors; whereas the former loves with their delights inflow from the flesh and the world through an external way . . . and affect the exteriors.

—^e. As loves flow in and are received, so at the same time their delights also flow in; into the interiors the delights of Heaven, into the exteriors the delights of the world; since, as was said, all delight is of love.

397. Heaven in itself is such, that it is full of delights; inasmuch that regarded in itself it is nothing but blessedness and delight . . .

398. The delights of Heaven are ineffable, and are also innumerable; but of these innumerable delights not one can be known or believed by him who is in the mere delight of the body or flesh . . . For he who is wholly in the delight of the body or flesh; or, what is the same, in the love of self and the world; feels nothing of delight except in honours, gain, and the pleasures of the body . . . which so extinguish and suffocate the interior delights which are of Heaven, that they are not believed to be. Wherefore he would marvel greatly, if he were told that there are delights existing after the removal of the delights of honours and gain, and still more if told that the delights of Heaven which succeed in their place are innumerable, and such that the delights of the body and flesh, which are chiefly the delights of honours and gain, cannot be compared with them.

399. How great the delight of Heaven is, may be manifest only from this, that it is delight to all there to communicate their own delights and blessednesses to another; (hence) it is evident how immense is the delight of Heaven. . . The loves of Heaven are communicative of their delights . . . hence there is a mutual communication of the delights of the Angels among each other . . . But self-love takes away all delight from others, and draws it into itself . . . Wherefore, these loves are destructive of the delights with others . . . they are not communicative, but destructive, except in so far as the delights of others appertain to themselves.

... Whenever Spirits in these loves ... approached, my delight receded and vanished. . . . If such merely approach any heavenly Society, the delight of those who are in the Society is diminished . . . and those evil Spirits are then in their delight. . . . Hence it is evident that the spirit of such a man . . . covets the delights or goods of another ; and in proportion as he obtains them, he has delight.

[H.] 400. But . . . the delight in which they are who are in the loves of self and the world when they approach any heavenly Society, is the delight of their own concupiscence ; thus is quite opposite to the delight of Heaven ; they come into the delight of their own concupiscence from the deprivation and removal of heavenly delight with those who are in it. . . . But when there is no deprivation . . . they cannot approach . . .

—³. Such (torture) heavenly delight produced upon those who were in delights from the love of self and the world . . . As heavenly delight enters through an internal way, and flows into the contrary delight, it twists backwards the interiors which are in that delight, thus into what is opposite to themselves ; hence such tortures . . .

—⁴. All in Hell have been . . . in the mere delights of the body and flesh from the love of self and the world ; whereas all in Heaven have been . . . in the delights of the soul and spirit from love to the Lord and towards the neighbour.

401. A man in the love of self and the world feels delight from these loves, and also in every pleasure from them, while he lives in the body ; whereas a man in love to God and towards the neighbour, does not manifestly feel delight from them, and from the good affections from them, so long as he lives in the body ; but only a blessedness almost imperceptible . . . But, after death, the states are completely changed ; the delights of the love of self and the world are then turned into what is painful and direful . . . and by turns into what is filthy and squalid . . . which are then delightful to them. But the obscure delight, and almost imperceptible blessedness . . . is then turned into the delight of Heaven, which is in every way perceptible and sensible . . . for they are then in the spirit, and this was the delight of their spirit.

402. All the delights of Heaven are conjoined with and are [in uses . . . wherefore, everyone has delights such as the uses are, and also in such a degree as is the affection of use. That all the delights of Heaven are delights of use, may be evident from a comparison with the five senses . . . To each sense there is given delight according to its use . . . To the sight, delight from beauty and forms ; to the hearing, from harmonies ; to the smell, from things odoriferous ; to the taste, from flavours. . . . The reason sight has such a delight, is from the use it performs to the understanding . . . The reason hearing has such a delight, is from the use it performs to both the understanding and the will. The reason smell has such a delight, is from the use it performs to the brain and also to the lungs. The reason taste has such a delight, is from the use it performs to the stomach and thence to the universal body. . . . The marriage delight, which is a purer and more exquisite delight of touch, is more excellent than all the former, on account of its use, which is the procreation of the human race, and thence of the Angels of Heaven. These delights are in these sensories from the influx of Heaven, where every delight is of use and according to use.

404^e. Heavenly joy . . . is conjoined with ineffable Delight.

405². In no case (in the Heavens) is the use of one exactly the same as that of another ; thus neither is the delight of one exactly the same as that of another . . . The delights of every use are innumerable, and these innumerable delights are in like manner various, but still conjoined together in such order, that they mutually regard each other. Ex.

406². For the delight of those in the Heavens is to do good to another ; and it is not delight to do good to themselves, except that it may become another's . . .

409. Heavenly joy . . . is as if the interiors were fully opened and unloosed to receive delight and blessedness, which is dispersed into every single fibre. Des. Good Spirits who are not yet in this delight . . . when they perceive it from an Angel . . . are filled with such delight, that they go as it were into a sweet swoon.

413. It has often been granted me to perceive the Delights of heavenly joys . . . It is an affection of innumerable Delights and joys. Des.

—^e. When I wanted to transfer all my delight into another, a more interior and fuller delight than the former one continually flowed in in its place ; and in proportion as I wanted this, so it flowed in ; and I perceived that this was from the Lord.

414². Goodness . . . makes the delight and beauty of charity to shine forth from every particle of their faces . . .

485. The delights of everyone's life are after death turned into corresponding ones. Gen. art.

— . By being tuned into corresponding delights, is meant into spiritual ones which correspond to the natural ones . . . 487, Ex. 489, Ex., and Examps. given.

486. All the delights man has, are of his reigning love ; for man feels nothing else delightful but what he loves, thus especially what he loves above all things . . . These delights are various ; they are as many in general as there are reigning loves, consequently, as many as there are men, Spirits, and Angels . . . The specific delights of every man are also of infinite variety ; nor is there a single delight of any man quite like that of another, whether they succeed one after another, or are together one with another . . . But still these specific delights with everyone relate to his reigning love ; for they compose it, and thus make one with it. In like manner all delights in general relate to one universally reigning love ; in Heaven to love to the Lord, and in Hell to self-love.

487^e. These things are said to the end that man may examine himself, and from his delights may know his love . . .

489⁷. (With those who have reputed adulteries as wicked, and have lived in chaste love of marriage . . . the delights of their love are ineffable, and they increase to eternity ; for all the delights and joys of Heaven flow into this love . . . Their external delights are such that they cannot be described in human words.

500. By will, is meant the affection and love, also all the delight and pleasure which are of the affection and love . . . since what a man wills he loves, and feels to be delight and pleasure; and, conversely, what a man loves, and feels to be delight and pleasure, he wills.

517. (a). All good has its delight from and according to uses. Refs.

570. Infernal fire . . . is also Delight; for what a man loves or desires, he feels delight when he obtains it; from no other source has man delight of heart. Infernal fire, therefore, is the cupidity and delight which stream forth from these two (infernal) loves as from their origins.

— . Therefore it is the delight of their life to want to destroy and kill . . .

573². From delight he rages against those who do not submit: this delight is completely conjoined with the delight of command . . . for the delight of doing harm is in enmity, hatred, etc.

574. When this sphere (from Hell) is perceived by him who is in a like cupidity, he is affected at heart, and infilled with delight; for cupidity and its delight make one; for what anyone desires is delight to him. Hence it is, that the Spirit . . . from delight of heart desires to go thither.

N. 58. Everyone has all his delight, joyousness, and happiness from his dominant love, and according to it; for man calls that delight which he loves, because he feels it; but that which he thinks and does not love, he may also call delight, but it is not the delight of his life. The delight of love is that which is good to a man; and undelight is evil to him.

J. 56². (The Papists) there dispose around them a number of Societies, which are in various external delights. Enum. . . But after being there a few hours, they are all wearied, and depart, because these delights are external, and not internal.

S. 108. (African Spirits heard the singing of a Psalm in a church) from which they were affected with such Delight, that they sang along with them. Presently, their ears were closed . . . and then they were affected with a still greater Delight, because a spiritual one . . . The reason of their increased Delight, was that communication was given them with that Society in Heaven, which was in conjunction with those who were singing that Psalm. De Verbo 18².

W. 33. Affection and thought are the fountains of man's life; all the delights and pleasantnesses of his life are from them; the delights from the affection of his love, and the pleasantnesses from the thought thence.

47. The essence of all love consists in conjunction; yea, its life, which is called delight, pleasantness, deliciousness, sweetness, blessedness, joyousness, and happiness. Love consists in this, that its own is another's, and that it feels his delight as delight in its own self . . . but to feel one's own delight in another, and not his in ourselves, is not to love . . .

267. (The reason he does not elevate his understanding higher) is that he is in the delights of the love of his natural mind, and if he rises above it, the delight of his love perishes: if it is elevated higher, and sees truths opposite to the delights of his life . . . he either falsifies them, or passes them by . . .

271². He who loves adulteries, calls it freedom to commit them . . . for in lasciviousness he feels delight, and in chastity undelight. He who is in the love of dominion from self-love, in that love feels a delight of life which exceeds all other delights . . . So with every other evil.

316². Acts and works are the ultimates; from these through the delights of uses a return is made to their primes . . . That the return is made through the delights of uses, is manifestly evident from the perceived delights of acts and works which are of the man's love, in that they flow back to the prime of the love from which they come, and in that conjunction is thereby effected: the delights of acts and works are what are called the delights of use.

—4. The delights of uses do not present ideas in the thought, but only affect, without any distinct perception.

363². There are many things of love which have been allotted other names, because they are derivations; as affections, desires, appetites, and their pleasures and Delights.

—³. From these two are derived sensations . . . with their delights and pleasantnesses.

P. 38. No man who is in the delights of the concupiscences of evil, can know anything of the delights of the affections of good in which is the angelic Heaven; for these delights are quite opposite to each other in internals, and thence interiorly in externals, though in the surface itself there is but little difference. For every love has its own delights. Enum. . . The spring of these delights is the love of dominion from self-love. These delights are from the concupiscences which obsess the interiors of the mind; from these they flow down into the body . . . Hence, from the delight of the mind, according to the concupiscences, there arises the delighting-jucundatio of the body.

—e. These foul Delights, after they have entered Hell, are turned into direful things.

39. The blessednesses, joyousnesses, Delights, and pleasantnesses; in a word, the happinesses of Heaven, cannot be described in words. (See HAPPINESS at this ref.)

40. The Delights of the concupiscences of evil, and the Delights of the affections of good, cannot be compared; because the devil is within the Delights of the concupiscences of evil, and the Lord is within the Delights of the affections of good. If they are to be compared, the Delights of the concupiscences of evil can only be compared to the lascivious Delights of frogs in ponds, and of serpents in stanches; but the Delights of the affections of good may be compared to those of the mind in gardens . . .

73². Every delight which man has, is from his love; from no other source does there exist any delight; and to act from the delight of love is to act from freedom; for delight leads a man as a river does that which is carried along by its current.

—^e. Everyone can come into spiritual freedom, provided he is willing to think . . . that the delight and blessedness of life in time for time, is only as a transient shadow, compared to the delight and blessedness of life in eternity to eternity.

[P.] 83². Man is born into the love of self and the love of the world . . . the delights of these loves are what he is led by, and the delights cause him not to know that he is in evils; for every delight of love is felt no otherwise than as good . . .

—³. After death . . . these cannot have any other delight than that which they had in their spirit while they lived in the world; and this delight is the delight of infernal love, which is turned into what is undelightful, painful, and direful.

—⁴. At first, he thinks (about Heaven) from the delight of self-love; this delight is to him the joy of Heaven; but so long as the delight of this love reigns, together with the delights of the evils which stream forth therefrom, he cannot understand (what it is to go to Heaven) . . . (For) he thinks nothing of the evils in the delights of which he is, and so long as their delights remain, the evils also remain; their delights are from the concupiscence of them, which continually breathes and also produces them, when no fear withholds. So long as evils remain in the concupiscences and thence in the delights of their love, there is no faith, charity, etc., except in mere externals.

85. So long as the delight of the love of evil reigns, man cannot freely will what is good and true . . . therefore cannot appropriate them. . . He first acts from the delight of the love of what is good and true when the delight of the love of what is evil and false has been removed; for two delights of love which are opposite to each other do not exist at the same time. To act from the delight of love, is to act from freedom.

108. There are everywhere three things which make a one, and are called end, cause, and effect; the life's love is the end, the affections with their perceptions are the cause, and the delights of the affections with their thoughts are the effect; for just as the end through the cause comes into the effect, so does the love through its affections come to its delights . . . The effects themselves are in the delights of the mind and their thoughts, when the delights are of the will and the thoughts are of the understanding thence; thus when there is a full consent therein.

111². It is the external understanding which is in delights of concupiscences . . . Everyone can see that concupiscences and their delights make one. . . Concupiscences through their delights produce evils; but when evils are believed to be allowable . . . the delights and the evils make one.

112. The delight which is felt (from concupiscences) is in the body.

—². Concupiscences with their delights may be compared to fire . . . The concupiscences of evil with their delights also appear as fires in the Spiritual World; infernal fire is nothing else.

—³. If evils in the external man are not removed, concupiscences with their delights grow and abound. Examps.

113. Man cannot perceive the concupiscences of his own evil; he does indeed perceive the delights of them, but reflects little about them; for delights delight-obllectent—the thoughts, and take away reflections.

126. When the love of heavenly life is implanted by the Lord in place of the love of infernal life . . . in place of the delights of the concupiscences of evil and falsity, are implanted the delights of the affections of good . . .

136⁵. External delights allure the internal to consent, and also to love. Ex. Delights are of two kinds; delights of the understanding and delights of the will: the delights of the understanding are also the delights of wisdom, and the delights of the will are also the delights of love. . . Now, as the delights of the body and its senses, which are external delights, act as one with the internal delights, which are of the understanding and the will, it follows, that . . . the internal gratefully beholds delight in the external, so much as to turn itself to it; thus is produced consent on the part of the understanding, and love on the part of the will.

—⁶. All little children there are introduced into wisdom . . . by means of delights and pleasantnesses from the Lord . . . thus continually by means of delights in their order; first, by the delights of the love of the understanding and its wisdom; lastly, by the delights of the love of the will . . . under which the other things which have entered through delights, are kept subordinate.

—⁷. When the first understanding and the first will are formed, the internal of thought . . . conjoins itself with them if they are delightful, and separates itself from them if they are not so.

145². As the delights of the concupiscences of evil, which obsess the external of thought, cannot be cast out at the same time, a combat takes place between the internal and the external of thought; the internal wanting to cast out those delights, because they are delights of evil . . . and in place of the delights of evil to introduce the delights of good . . . The delights of good are what are called the goods of charity.

—³. Man compels himself, when he compels the external of his thought . . . to receive the delights of his affections, which are the goods of charity.

146. For example: a man who has perceived delight in frauds . . . sees that they are sins . . . The internal man is then in the affection of sincerity, but the external is still in the delight of defrauding; which delight, because it is quite opposite to the delight of sincerity, does not recede unless it is compelled . . . But when he overcomes, the external man comes into the delight of the love of sincerity, which is charity; afterwards, successively, the delight of defrauding becomes undelight to him. It is the same with all other sins.

147. Man is in the natural mind only, so long as he is in the concupiscences of evil and their delights . . .

—². It is this which appears . . . as temptation with those who have indulged much in the delight of evil. (With others as combat.)

186. Man is in the delight of his own love, and this delight makes his life itself ; wherefore, when man is kept in the delight of his life, he is in his freedom ; for freedom and this delight make one. If, therefore, he were to perceive, that he is being continually drawn away from his delight, he would be exasperated . . .

195. As the life's love has its own delight, and its wisdom its own pleasantness ; and, in like manner, every affection . . . has its own delight, and thence every perception and thought its pleasantness ; it follows, that these delights and pleasantnesses make man's life. What is life without delight and pleasantness ? It is not anything animate, but inanimate. Diminish these, and you grow old or torpid ; take them away, and you will expire and die. From the delights of the affections, and from the pleasantnesses of the perceptions and thoughts, is the vital heat. As every affection has its own delight, and the thought thence its own pleasantness, it may be evident whence are good and truth, and also what they are in their essence. Good is to everyone that which is the delight of his affection, and truth is that which is the pleasantness of the thought thence ; for everyone calls that good which from the love of his will he feels delightful, and that truth which from the wisdom of his understanding he thence perceives as pleasant.

—³. These two, delight and pleasantness, in the mind are spiritual, but in the body are natural ; both make man's life. Hence it is evident . . . that that is evil to man which destroys the delight of his affection, and that falsity which destroys the pleasantness of his thought thence ; and that evil from its delight, and falsity from its pleasantness, may be believed to be good and true. Goods and truths are indeed changes and variations of the state of the forms of the mind, but these are only perceived and live by means of their delights and pleasantnesses.

196. As the mind . . . thinks from the delight of the affection . . . it follows that the spirit is nothing but affection and thence thought. . . All there think from the affections of their life's love, the delight thereof encompassing everyone as his atmosphere.

198. Affection manifests itself only by means of a certain delight of thought, and the pleasure of reasoning about it, and then this pleasure and delight make one with the thought with those who are in the faith of their own prudence . . . and the thought flows in its delight as a ship in a current . . . to which the pilot pays no attention.

199. A man can indeed reflect upon the delight of his external affection when it acts as one with the delight of any bodily sense ; but still he does not reflect upon this, that this delight is from the delight of his affection in the thought. Examps. . . He does not feel the delight of his affection . . . in the thought, except as a certain desire connected with the body. . . That these delights rule his thoughts, and that without them his thoughts are nothing, is evident ; but he supposes that they are only thoughts . . .

200. As the delights of man's affections, from inmost things through interior ones to exterior ones, and at last to the outermost ones which are in the body, carry man along as the waves and winds do a ship, and as nothing of them appears to man, except what takes place in the outermost things of the mind and in the outermost things of the body, how can he claim what is Divine from . . . these few outermost things appearing to him as his own ?

206². So also the delights of concupiscences, which are evils, and their thoughts, which are falsities (have life from self-love).

207. Self-love is the devil ; and concupiscences and their delights are the evils of his kingdom . . .

215⁹. It has been granted me to feel the nature and greatness of the delight of the love of dominion from self-love. . . It surpassed all the delights in the world. It was a delight of the whole mind from its inmost things to its ultimates, but in the body was felt no otherwise than as pleasure and cheerfulness with a swelling bosom. (I felt) that from this delight, as from their fountain, spring forth the delights of all evils. Enum. There is a similar delight in the love of possessing the riches of others . . . and in the concupiscences therefrom . . . but not in the same degree, unless it is conjoined with self-love.

216. As the natural man calls goods the delights of self-love, which are also the delights of the concupiscences of evil . . . he calls honours and riches Divine blessings . . .

279⁵. Such do not know, that evil is the delight of the concupiscence of acting and thinking contrary to Divine order, and that good is the delight of the affection of acting and thinking according to Divine order.

281². The love of the will inflows into the understanding, and there makes its delight felt . . .

—³. What man would be if he were not permitted to think according to the delights of his life's love. Ex. . . . The delights of these evils would so take possession of the interiors of his mind that they would open the door . . . (thus his insanity would openly appear).

296³. As man wills and does evil, he introduces himself more and more interiorly and deeply into infernal Societies ; hence the delight of evil grows, and so takes possession of his thoughts, that at last he feels nothing sweeter. Examps.

—⁹. These evils are not felt as evils, but as delights, to which no one attends : who attends to the delights of his love ? In these his thought swims, as a boat which is carried along in a current . . . He can only feel something from them in his external thought ; but he does not attend to them even there, unless he well knows that they are evils.

—¹⁰. Withdrawal from evil is effected in a thousand ways. . . (The most general are), that the delights of concupiscences, of which man knows nothing, are let out in bundles into the interior thoughts, which are of man's spirit, and thence into his exterior thoughts ; in which they appear under some sense of pleasure, pleasantness, or desire, and are there commingled with his natural and sensuous delights. The means of separation and purification are there . . . which are especially the delights of meditation, of thought, of reflection for the sake of certain ends which are uses . . . These delights, because they are of his love in the external man, are means for the separation, purification, excretion, and withdrawal of the delights of the concupiscences of evil of the internal man. Examp. . . (This unjust judge) does not know that his internal delight consists of cunning, fraud, deceit, etc., and that this delight, composed of so many delights of the concupiscences of evil, has dominion in each and everything of his external thought, in which are the delights of appearing to be just and sincere. The internal delights are let down into these external delights, and are commingled like foods in the stomach; and there they are separated, purified, and withdrawn; but (with an evil man) this is done only with the more grievous delights of the concupiscences of evil. But with a good man there exists a separation, purification, and withdrawal . . . of the less grievous evils also, and this is effected by means of the delights of the affections of good and truth, and of justice and sincerity, into which he comes in proportion as he regards evils as sins, and therefore shuns them, and still more if he fights against them. . . The Lord also purifies them through external means (of honours, gain, etc.); yet in these the Lord inserts the delights of the affections of good and truth, by means of which they are so directed and adapted as to become delights of the love of the neighbour.

—¹³. If anyone were to see the delights of the concupiscences of evil together, in some form . . . he would see them in such a number that they could not be defined . . .

[P.] 29^S. Every evil Spirit . . . calls his own evil good, for he feels it as delight.

303. Instead of the affections of good, take the delights of good, and instead of the concupiscences of evil, take the delights of evil; for there is no affection or concupiscence without its delights, for these make the life of every one of them: these delights are what are so distinguished and conjoined, as was said above concerning the affections of good and the concupiscences of evil. The delight of his affection infils and surrounds every Angel of Heaven; and the general delight also infils and surrounds every Society of Heaven; and the delight of all together, or the most general one, the universal Heaven. In like manner, the delight of his concupiscence infils and surrounds every Spirit of Hell; and the general delight every Society of Hell; and the delight of all or most general delight, the whole Hell. As the affections of Heaven and the concupiscences of Hell are diametrically opposite to each other, it is evident that the delight of Heaven is such undelight in Hell that they cannot endure it, and contrariwise . . .

304. These delights, as they make the life of each one in particular, and of all in general, are not felt by those who are in them; but their opposites are felt when they approach, especially when they are turned into odours; for every delight corresponds to an odour, and in the Spiritual World can be converted into it. Then the general delight in Heaven is smelt as the odour of a garden, with variety according to the fragrance from the flowers and fruits in it; and the general delight in Hell is smelt like stagnant water, into which have been thrown various kinds of filth . . .

324⁶. What is good but delight? . . . All good is called good from its delight or blessedness. All that is given and possessed is indeed called good, but unless there is also delight, it is barren good, which in itself is not good.

—⁷. The reason all do not come into Heaven, is that they imbue the delights of Hell opposite to the blessedness of Heaven . . . He who, when he comes there, is in the delight of Hell, has palpitation of the heart, etc.

—⁸. As they cannot live with any but those who are in a like delight of life, they are sent back to them; consequently, they who are in the delights of evil, to their own; and they who are in the delights of good, to their own. Nay, it is granted to everyone to be in the delight of his evil, provided he does not infest those who are in the delight of good; but as evil cannot do otherwise than infest good . . . they are cast down into their own places in Hell, where their delight is turned into undelight.

335². If there were any end to wisdom with a wise man, the delight of his wisdom would perish . . . and thus the delight of his life; and in its place would succeed the delight of glory . . .

335³. In the spiritual state . . . no one can be anywhere but where his reigning love is; for there is the delight of his life, and everyone wants to be in the delight of his life. A man's spirit cannot be anywhere else, because this makes his life, yea, his very breathing, and the beat of his heart. It is otherwise in the natural world, where the external of man is taught from infancy to simulate other delights . . .

—⁶. Hence . . . no one can be let into the delight of Heaven . . . who is in the delight of Hell; or, what is the same, into the delight of good who is in the delight of evil. (From experience.)

—⁷. Some . . . Spirits wanted their infernal delight, or delight of evil, to be transmuted . . . into heavenly delight, or the delight of good . . . It was permitted that it should be done by Angels, who then removed that infernal delight; but then, because it was the delight of their life's love, thus their life, they lay as if they were dead . . . They were therefore resuscitated by the immission of the delight of their life's love; and they said that in that state they felt interiorly something direful and horrible . . .

340⁶. Certain Spirits from Hell said to me, Write something from us . . . Write that every Spirit, whether good or evil, is in his own delight; the good in the delight of his own good, and the evil in the delight of his own evil. I asked them, What is your delight? They said that it was the delight of committing adultery, stealing, defrauding, and lying. Again I asked, What is the quality of those delights? They said that they were smelt by others as stench from ordures, carcasses, and stagnant urine. I said, Are these delights to you? They said that they were most delightful . . .

—⁷. I said, What more shall I write from you? They said, This, that it is permitted everyone to be in his own delight, even the most unclean, as they call it, provided he does not infest good Spirits and Angels . . .

R. 502². That the love of dominion from self-love, and the love of reigning from the conceit of man's Own intelligence, are the heads of all infernal loves, and thus the heads of all the evils and falsities in the Church, is at this day not known: the delights of these loves, which surpass the delights of all the pleasures of the disposition, make this not known.

507. The delight of the affection of the heart and soul on that account . . . with those who were in faith alone as to doctrine and life. Sig. . . 'To rejoice' and 'to be glad' = to have the delight of the affection of the heart and soul; the delight of the affection of the heart is of the will, and the delight of the affection of the soul is of the understanding.

692. That on account of the delight of self-love originating from grievous concupiscences of evils they did not acknowledge the divinity of the Lord's Human. Sig. . . 'Heat' = the concupiscences of the evils which are in the love of self and its delight . . . therefore, 'to scorch with great heat' = to be in grievous concupiscences, and thus in the delight of love.

—². The delight (of self-love) surpasses every delight in the world; for it is made up of mere concupiscences of evils, and every concupiscence breathes forth its own delight; every man is born into this delight . . . When this delight grows, it causes a man not to be able to think above himself . . .

908. Good is only felt, and it is felt under various kinds of delight: as man does not attend to what he feels in his thought, but to what he sees there, he calls everything good which he feels from delight; and from delight he feels what is evil . . .

M. 5³. Heavenly joy . . . is the delight of doing something that is of use to self and others; and the delight of use derives its essence from love, and its manifestation from wisdom; the delight of use originating from love through wisdom, is the soul and life of all heavenly joys.

16². What are the delights of the bodily senses without the delights of the soul? It is the soul which delights the former. In themselves, the delights of the soul are imperceptible blessednesses; but they become more and more perceptible as they descend into the thoughts of the mind, and from these into the sensations of the body; in the thoughts of the mind they are perceived as joyousnesses, in the sensations of the body as Delights, and in the body itself as pleasures; from the latter and the former together is heavenly happiness . . .

18³. Every love has its own delight; for the love lives thereby; and the delight of the love of uses is heavenly delight, which enters into the succeeding delights in order, and according to the order of succession exalts them, and makes them eternal.

29^e. A spiritual man feels and perceives spiritual delight, which is far before natural delight, because it a thousand times surpasses it.

51^e. The reason the fellowships (of married partners) are then more delightful and blessed, is that when this love becomes of the spirit, it becomes more interior and pure, and therefore more perceptible; and all Delight grows according to the perception, and grows even until its blessedness is discernible in its Delight.

68. All delights felt by man are of his love; the love manifests itself, nay, it comes forth and lives thereby.

It is known that delights exalt themselves in the proportion that love exalts itself, and in the proportion that the incident affections touch the reigning love more nearly; (therefore it follows) that the delights of marriage love surpass the delights of all loves, and that it also delights these according to its presence . . .

—². The reason all delights from primes to ultimates are collected into this love, is on account of the superior excellence of its use . . . It follows that all the blessednesses, joyousnesses, Delights, pleasantnesses, and pleasures, which the Lord Creator could possibly confer on men, are collected into this His love. That delights follow the use, and are in man according to the love of this, is evident from the delights of the five senses . . . Each of these has delights with variations according to its specific uses . . .

69². In the higher principles of the mind (these deliciousnesses of the soul are felt) as blessednesses; in the lower principles of the mind as joyousnesses; in the bosom as Delights therefrom.

137⁷. No one knows the blessed delights of marriage love but he who rejects the horrid delights of adultery; and no one can reject these unless he is wise from the Lord; and no one is wise from the Lord unless he does uses from the love of uses.

272². The reason they conjoin themselves, is that every affection has its own delight, and delights tie dispositions together. . . It would be otherwise . . . if their delights were smelt, as takes place in the Spiritual World.

335. Thus only with one wife can there exist the celestial blessednesses, the spiritual joyousnesses, and the natural Delights, which have been provided . . . for those who are in love truly conjugal. Gen.art. They are called celestial blessednesses, spiritual joyousnesses, and natural Delights, because the human mind is distinguished into three regions . . . and as the pleasantnesses of this love are the most eminent in the highest region, they are perceived as blessednesses; and as in the middle region they are less eminent, they are perceived as joyousnesses; and at last, in the lowest region, as Delights.

427. It is the delights of (scortatory and of marriage) love which are thus opposite; for love without its delights is not anything. That these delights are so opposite, does not at all appear . . . because in externals the delight of the love of evil counterfeits the delight of the love of good; but in internals the delight of the love of evil consists of mere concupiscences of evil . . . whereas the delight of the love of good consists of innumerable affections of good . . . This bundle and that ball are felt by the man only as one delight; and as in externals the delight of evil counterfeits the delight of good . . . the delight of adultery is as the delight of marriage . . .

430. Into such uncleannesses are there turned the delights of scortatory love. Who can believe, that in the Spiritual World, every delight of love is presented to the sight under various appearances, to the smell under various odours, and to the view under various forms of beasts and birds? Enum. and Ex.

[M.] 439. Each sphere bears with it Delights. Gen.art. . . . The reason is, that the ultimate plane, in which the delights of each love cease, and where they infill and complete themselves . . . is the same.

—^e. The Angels discriminate in the extremes what is lascivious from what is not so . . . and this is from the difference of the internal Delights, which enter the external ones and compose them.

440. The Delights of scortatory love begin from the flesh, and are of the flesh in the spirit; but the Delights of marriage love begin in the spirit, and are of the spirit even in the body. Gen.art.

—². The spirit that is not elevated above the sensuous things of the body . . . does not feel any Delights but those which flow in from the flesh and the world through the bodily senses; these it seizes upon . . .

—^e. Wherefore it follows, that the Delights of the flesh, as to the Delights of scortatory love, are nothing but the effervescences of lusts . . .

441. The Delights of marriage love have nothing in common with the feculent Delights of scortatory love: the latter are indeed in the flesh of every man, but they are separated and removed, as the man's spirit is elevated above the sensuous things of the body . . . It then perceives fleshly delights, first as apparent and fallacious delights, and afterwards as libidinous and lascivious ones which are to be shunned . . . and at last it feels them as undelightful, shocking, and nauseous; and in the degree that it thus perceives and feels these delights, it perceives the delights of marriage love as harmless and chaste, and at last as delicious and blessed. The reason the Delights of marriage love also become of the spirit in the flesh, is that after the Delights of scortatory love have been removed, the spirit enters chaste into the body . . .

442. The Delights of scortatory love are pleasures of insanity; but the Delights of marriage love are deliciousnesses of wisdom. Gen.art.

— . The natural man . . . embraces only natural, sensuous, and corporeal Delights. It is said natural, sensuous, and corporeal Delights, because the Natural is distinguished into three degrees . . .

443. The reason the Delights of marriage love are deliciousnesses of wisdom, is that none but spiritual men are in that love, and the spiritual man is in wisdom; hence he embraces no Delights but such as agree with spiritual wisdom.

— . The quality of the Delights of scortatory love, and the quality of those of marriage love (shown by a comparison).

461. You have supplicated to be instructed about Heaven and Hell. Inquire and learn what delight is, and you will know. . . . Accosting those he met, he said, Tell me . . . what delight is. Some said . . . Who does not know what delight is? Is it not joy and gladness? Wherefore delight is delight . . . Others said, that delight is the laughter of the mind . . . Some said, Delight is nothing else but feasting . . . On hearing these answers, the novitiate Spirit said . . . These delights are neither Heaven nor Hell; would that I could meet the wise . . . An Angelic Spirit . . . led him to . . . the company of those who explore ends, and are called Wisdoms. To these he said . . . Teach me what delight is. The Wisdoms replied, Delight is the all of life to all in Heaven, and the all of life to all in Hell; they who are in Heaven have the delight of good and truth, but they who are in Hell have the delight of evil and falsity; for all delight is of love . . . wherefore, as man is man according to the quality of his love, so he is man according to the quality of his delight: the activity of the love makes the sense of delight; its activity in Heaven is with wisdom, and its activity in Hell is with insanity; each in its own objects presents delight: but the Heavens and the Hells are in opposite delights, because in opposite loves; the Heavens in the love and thence in the delight of doing good, but the Hells in the love and thence in the delight of doing evil: if, therefore, you Know what delight is, you Know the nature and quality of Heaven and Hell. But inquire and learn further what delight is from those who investigate causes, and are called Intelligences. . . These, rejoicing at the question, said, It is true that he who Knows what delight is, Knows the nature and quality of Heaven and Hell. The will, from which man is man, cannot move a point except by delight; for, regarded in itself, the will is nothing but the affect and effect of some love, thus of delight . . . and as the will actuates the understanding to think, there is not the least of an idea of thought, except from the influent delight of the will. The reason is, that the Lord, through influx from Himself, actuates all things of the soul and all things of the mind . . . and actuates them through the influx of love and wisdom, and this influx is the activity itself, from which is all the delight which in its origin is called blessedness, joyousness, and happiness; and in its derivation, delight, pleasantness, and pleasure; and in the universal sense, Good. But the Spirits of Hell invert all things . . . good into evil, and truth into falsity, the delight constantly remaining; for without the permanence of delight, they would have neither will nor sensation, thus not life. Hence is evident, what, of what kind, and whence, is the delight of Hell; also what, of what kind, and whence, is the delight of Heaven.

—⁷. There then came up three devils, who appeared on fire from the delight of their love; and they who were consociated with the novitiate Spirit . . . said to them . . . Tell something about your delights. They said, Know that everyone, whether good or evil, is in his own delight; a good person in the delight of his own good, and an evil one in the delight of his own evil. They asked, What is your delight? They said it was the delight of committing whoredom, of stealing, defrauding, blaspheming. They asked again, Of what sort are these delights? They said, that they are smelt by others as stenchens from ordure, carcasses, and from stagnant waters. They asked, Are these delightful to you? They said, Most delightful . . . such things are the deliciousnesses of our nostrils. They asked, What more? They said, Everyone is allowed to be in his own delight, even the most unclean, as they call it, provided he does not infest good Spirits and Angels; but as, from our delight, we cannot do otherwise . . . we have been cast into workhouses, where we suffer direful things:

the restraining of our delights there, is what is called infernal torment, and is also interior pain. T. 570.

524⁴. The delights of the love of evil are averse to the delights of the love of good, and delights exhale from everyone, as odours do from every plant; for they are not absorbed and hidden by the material body as before, but flow out freely from their loves into the spiritual aura . . . Moreover, an evil person chooses companions with whom he may live in his delight; and as he is averse to the delight of good, he spontaneously betakes himself to his own in Hell.

—^e. The imputation of good is effected in like manner . . . These, after they have been prepared, are let into the interior delights of good; and then there is opened to them a way into Heaven, to the Society where its homogeneous delights are. This is done by the Lord.

I. 13². Love itself and wisdom itself are not life, but are the being of life; whereas the delights of love and the pleasantnesses of wisdom, which are affections, make life . . . The influx of life from God carries with it these delights and pleasures . . . For the delights of love and the pleasantnesses of wisdom expand the dispositions, and adapt them to reception . . .

T. 38. The delight by which love manifest itself, is to each person good . . .

— The delights of love, which are also the delights of charity, cause delights to be called goods; and the pleasantnesses of wisdom, which are also the pleasantnesses of faith, cause truths to be called truths; for delights and pleasantnesses make their life; without life from these, goods and truths are as if they were inanimate things, and are also barren ones.

—². But the delights of love are of two kinds; in like manner the pleasantnesses which appear as of wisdom; namely, the delights of the love of good, and the delights of the love of evil; and thence the pleasantnesses of the faith of truth, and the pleasantnesses of the faith of falsity. In the subjects in which they are, these two delights of love, from their sensation, are called goods; and these two pleasantnesses of faith, from their perception, are also called goods; but as they are in the understanding, they are nothing but truths . . . But the love, whose delight is essentially good, is like the heat of the sun fructifying . . . and the pleasantness of its truth is as the light of the sun in the spring time . . . Whereas the delight of the love of evil, is like the heat of the sun parching . . . and the pleasantness of its falsity is as the light of the sun in winter time . . .

—^e. The mind whose delights of love are good, consists inwardly of spiritual substances such as are in Heaven; but the mind whose delights are evil . . . of such as are in Hell.

79⁸. They said, We have been insane . . . (But) they came to a way where the delights of their loves blew on them, and they said, Let us go this way; and they went and descended, and at last came to those who were in the delights of the like loves, and further; and as their delight was the delight of doing evil . . . they were imprisoned, and became demons; and then their delight was converted into undelight; because by means of penalties and the fear of them, they were restrained from their former delight, which made their nature.

361². In proportion as faith and charity become spiritual with man . . . he does not regard himself . . . but only the delight of perceiving the truths of faith, and of doing the goods of love; and in proportion as this spirituality is augmented, this delight becomes blessedness.

440. With these, the delight of doing good to the neighbour is a reward; the Angels . . . have this delight, and it is a spiritual delight which is eternal, and immensely surpasses every natural delight: they who are in this delight do not want to hear of merit . . .

442². At last he perceives the spiritual delight of charity; and then he begins to be averse to merit . . .

490². When (man turns the influent good into evil) the delight of good remains, and this then becomes the delight of evil; for without the delight remaining as it were similar, the man would not live, for delight makes the life of his love. Still, these delights are diametrically opposite to each other, but man does not know this so long as he lives in the world: whereas . . . after death the delight of the love of good is turned into heavenly blessedness, while the delight of the love of evil is turned into infernal horrors.

532². If he . . . thinks that he does not will them, because they are sins, he performs true and interior repentance; and still more if when he is in the delight of these evils, and is at the same time free to do them, he then resists and abstains. He who practises this repeatedly, perceives the delights of evils, when they return, as undelightful. Sig.

569. Every love with man breathes out delight, by which it makes itself felt; proximately it breathes it into the spirit, and thence into the body; and the delight of his love, together with the pleasantness of the thought, makes his life. These delights and pleasantnesses are not felt by man, except obscurely, while he lives in the natural body, because this body absorbs and blunts them; but after death . . . the delights of his love and the pleasantnesses of his thought are fully felt and perceived . . . sometimes as odours. Enum.

Ad. 950². To these succeed infra-celestial Goodnesses, which are intermediate between the spiritual and the natural ones, and properly affect the natural mind, or disposition, which men have in common with the animals; these are the Delights themselves of life, which are also called pleasures; with men, however, they are entirely different from what they are with brute animals, according to the state of each person, or according to the order of life which each one lives.

D. 87 (Index). Heavenly delight perceived by me . . . with solicitudes that the delights might be perceived more distinctly.

128 (Index). How miserable the state would be if all in the universe were not ruled, by the Lord, may be evident from the fact that they have delight in tormenting all others.

181^e. Some Spirits are only affections, who affect man with a certain delicious Delight; if they are evil, they are to be called Sirens.

[D.] 186. There is a correspondence of all things, which can be turned into Delights . . . The most distinct delightful representations can be drawn out . . . For while the mind inheres in its delights in general, every object is turned into the form of that Delight.

188. The most delightful ideas of the Angels . . .

218. Unless these Spirits enjoyed freedom, the human race . . . could not live in such corporeal and earthly Delight.

219. That it has been granted me to communicate as it were heavenly Delight to upright Souls in captivity.

— For many years it has been granted me manifestly to feel heavenly Delights in various ways; so many and such that I cannot possibly describe them . . . This very day . . . heavenly Delights have been granted to me, not expressible, and which I was permitted . . . to transfer to the Souls in captivity; which Delights they said they could feel, and thus they received comfort.

221. Little children, who are said to live in such . . . Delight.

230°. They no longer know what Delight is, such as there is in the other life.

231. That from sadnesses and insanities there are Delights of intelligence in the other life.

— I could have been greatly affected, in fact with a new Delight . . . From the influx of similar ones such Delights could be effected as flow into innocencies . . . By the Divine omnipotence . . . Delights may hence be produced . . . Thus from insanities . . . which are in the highest degree undelightful, gladnesses and Delights . . . may be brought out . . . I felt a kind of gladness . . . that such things as in themselves are unhappinesses and undelightfulnesses were also for utility; with the hope that such of these (female Spirits) as are illuminated in the things of faith in God Messiah, might be able to perceive Delights from some other source, composed as it were from opposites . . .

275. They there enjoy a blessed and delightful life of imagination.

301. That in the more interior Heaven there is ineffable Delight and happiness.

307. I felt a certain delightful panting from him.

329. All things set before the eyes . . . are vivified by God Messiah into Delights and pleasant series of Delights. While I was walking in the street beholding many diverse objects, which, on account of their diversity, no one could ever suppose could be transferred and thus vivified into a continuous series of Delights, I heard from the Angels that they thence perceived a continuous variety of Delights, thus from objects of which they perceived nothing.

336. Knowledge . . . can delightfully affect the whole Heaven of Angels.

— Hence is the Delight, yea, the happiness of the Angels . . . who are delighted—delectantur—with the happiness of all . . . This is of . . . love, and this is of Delight and happiness . . . I have been taught these things by those who have perceived that heavenly Delight . . . They thus acquired a perception of their Delight.

357°. It could not be with a Delight like that of the others . . .

359. That in the harmony of a number the Delight and happiness of all is communicated to each.

381. That some who are enemies of the faith enjoy a certain external Delight, which they call heavenly.

— But their Delight is only external, such as is that of the unfaithful in the world, and, in fact, still more exalted; but as it is only external, and fights against internal or true Delight, like the Delights of the unfaithful in the world it comes to an end, and is turned into Undelights and pains.

387. Instigate their cupidities or pleasures, in which they perceive the greatest Delight; they thus mingle the Delights with the like things as strike horror . . . For in proportion as they have a sense of Delight of such pleasures, there comes forth pain and horror . . .

395. That Delights can be transmitted from one into a number. In the other life, not only can the Delights of one be communicated with a number of others by means of speech and expressions . . . but Delights can also affect others by means of a real transmission into them . . .

396. The flavour relates to the Delight.

403. They were instructed in a new method of making deliciousnesses for Mohammed, or of inducing Delights, which he said he wanted to transmit to me; but it was not permitted.

428. That there are very many varieties of heavenly Delights and deliciousnesses, in which there is happiness. Those are called heavenly Delights which come forth sensibly with Souls, as if they were living in the body. There are Delights which affect the wicked so pleasantly that they can hardly bear them. But deliciousnesses are those which come from a still more interior fountain. In Delights there are species of happiness; in deliciousnesses there are species of heavenly marriage joy. In a word, there are very many degrees of Delights and deliciousnesses, both as to differences, and also as to intensity; and these Delights are communicable, without any diminution to those who communicate. True Delights and true deliciousnesses have happiness in them; this has peace in it, and this has innocence. Thus true Delights and deliciousnesses come solely from God Messiah as their only Fount.

429. All other Delights are spurious, fallacious; such as they are in the world, such they are in the other life; they can be infused even by devils.

744. They who love Delight in a perverted order of life . . .

1112. On the Delight of the celestials.

— The joy of the celestials is a certain Delight, which cannot be described . . . for it fills the whole body with such Delight . . . not unlike the highest degree of Delight of married partners in their joy, but diffused from each single least thing to the more composite ones. But it should be well distinguished whether it comes from the inmost things, or whether it subsists only in external ones.

1862. They could counterfeit something, as before Delights; but only from the external . . .

1926. When it is granted . . . to the Angels to flow into ideas, there is such a Delight of all things, and such a fulness of Delights, as can never be told . . .

1963. Whence are the diversities of Delights.

— I spoke with Spirits concerning the origin and nature of such diverse Delights, which are so various as to be indefinite; nay, some feel Delights in things contrary; and it was said that . . . it results from harmony . . . Hence whatever results from an acquired harmony is a Delight . . .

1964. It was shown . . . how Spirits, from their life in the body, have acquired a harmony and thence a Delight in contrary things, as in contradicting . . . Thus evincing . . . that their life is in acquired Delights.

1965. As to heavenly joys and Delights from things truly good and true, they come from the Lord alone . . .

—^e. The Angels are kept in this heavenly Delight and persuasion, which was communicated to me.

2461. On beauty and Delight.

— I spoke with Spirits about beauty and Delight; that beauty is the form in which and thence from which there is Delight; and that Delights . . . reduced into a form are beauty; and thus in these and therefore from them are Delights in an interior degree . . .

2504. They snatch from them all Delight . . .

2505. Such as live for themselves were with me for some days . . . and they took from me all the Delight of life. Ex.

2506. In the bodily life, such want to have Delight; nay, to take away the Delight of life from others who perform use . . .

— It was granted to say something about the Delight of life; that Delight is the life of man, and that they have been so created by the Lord, that they should create uses of Delight . . . Therefore Delights are added to their use, which Delights are augmented entirely according to use . . . But they who seek for Delights, without their flowing from use . . . then indeed Delights are felt, although gross ones; but as they are not from use, nor from the Lord through use, they are like these filthy and hurtful insects; and are such things as destroy societies, and such as destroy themselves, because there is no spiritual and celestial life in their Delights; therefore they become unhappy . . .

2622, 2623. Their delight—oblectatio—is such that they feel the mere Delight, and suppose that there is nothing more delightful (than adulteries). At this day such Delight is so general, that it extends itself to little children, who in the bodily life have not by actuality acquired Delight from such things, but still have received it hereditarily. Thus also (it has extended itself) to those who are in their first early manhood and womanhood; who, when affected by this Delight, also suppose it to be delightful; some, that it is most delightful; for in the other life Delights are communicated: there are as it were exhalations of them. Yet if mankind had not been so infected from heredity, not only would they have felt no Delight thence, but they would have felt undelight and nausea.

2624. But their Delight is now turned into a stench . . .

2627. The bread set before me, being cut into little squares and cubes as it were with knives, signified the filthy Delights, of which I have spoken before, which are supposed by such as are in the filthy Delights to be heavenly, when yet they are infernal.

2644. As such Delight (in adulteries and cruelty), being contrary to Divine order, consumes itself, it becomes at last so rotten and stinking, that they are kept living in a deadly stink . . . they sit in torment, deformed, like ugly skeletons. 2660.

2841. As when the delights of the body and of nature are separated from their spiritual and celestial principles.

2888. Keeping me in my more delightful thing . . . 2889.

2897. Thus caused titillation and Delight, as is usually the case; then he began to feel his delights, with such Delight from the titillation, that he said he had never in his life perceived such Delight; nor could he have believed it to be possible.

3097. Delights and happinesses shine forth from each single thing.

3100^e. Such also wither and become abominations, like other external Delights, which become putrid after a short time.

3117. He knows nothing but what tends to his Delight . . . wherefore the Delight was represented by as it were a yellow colour . . . Thus he no longer desires to fall into his delights . . .

3197. They place their delight and freedom in things contrary . . . I perceived how, by this Delight and persuasive freedom, they remove themselves more and more from Heaven . . .

— He said he would show them the quality of their love. At first, what was most delightful came to them . . . but at last it ceased in such horror, that they could have borne it no longer.

3206^e. They prefer death to losing the Delight of this (infernal) atmosphere.

3346. Their Delight from spoils was communicated to me.

3620. When I saw boys fighting, I perceived the highest degree of Delight flowing in from certain Spirits.

3623. The Delights and pleasures are by no means denied to man.

— Such Delights of life and happinesses have been granted to me . . .

3661. When in the persuasion that they are gods (they have) a delightful feeling especially about the left breast . . . For the persuasion that one is a god . . . is attended with such Delight.

3755^e. From which it is evident that evil Spirits are employed to strengthen delights, and to appropriate them to man.

3782^e. Spirits are then in their Delight or in their life; for nothing is more delightful to them.

4243. When these Spirits came above me, as soon as I was reading something . . . in Genesis, all the Delight and life therefrom was taken away from me . . . When I perceived that all the Delight was filched from me while I was reading, it was granted to speak to those angelic Spirits . . . They said . . . that they did not know I was there . . . but as soon as they perceive anything delightful, they seize it.

[D.] 4244. They are above man, and do not know what comes forth with him, but by means of friendship of this kind they snatch his delights from him, and thus cause undelights; for the delights with man which are innocent are the ultimates in which the delights of the Angels terminate; wherefore, when angelic Spirits favour themselves above others, they draw away the delights from the man to themselves.

4270. That Spirits take away delights.

— I had been in delights, as in the delights of writing, but they were taken away, and I was in undelight, and it was said that there were Spirits in front above, who were taking away these delights, and yet were not aware that they were doing so . . . They willed well only to their companions, with whom they communicated delight; and they are such, that wherever there is any natural delight, they take it away; but they are not so well able to take away heavenly delight . . .

— They who are in hatreds draw to themselves the delights of another by this, that they feel delight from the fact that the other is deprived of it. They who are such . . . that they want only to enjoy the delight of another, are not tolerated with man . . . But everyone appropriates to himself the delight of another according to his own nature; they who do not do it according to their own nature, but want to put on the nature of him who has the delight, in order that so they may have it, are cast out, for this is infamous.

4439. High above the head there are Societies which are to be called Societies of Friendship. They live . . . in the delight of friendship; not in the delight and blessedness of mutual love. They have . . . very many delights . . . with other delicious things. . . It was granted to perceive whence was their delight. Wherever they come, they draw to themselves the delights of others, and they whom they deprive are then in what is obscure and miserable . . . They thus took my delight away from me, and I was then in what was obscure and sad, which was augmented in proportion to the delight with them. . . I was informed, that such is the delight of friendship when it is not the delight of mutual love. Hence it may be evident how the case is in the other life with those who love their companions . . . for the sake of delight . . .

4440. On infernal and heavenly delight.

— A certain doctor . . . in the other life could not at all understand what is infernal delight and what is heavenly delight, although he was instructed . . . In his idea he made infernal delight and heavenly delight entirely as one; he was an interior hypocrite . . .

4471. When they go beyond the delight of their own life, they are punished . . .

—² They are then remitted among themselves (in Hell) into the delights . . .

4494^e. The delight he had in the deed was communicated to me; his delight was devoid of any symptom of horror.

4532. With the evil there is only the delight of cupidities, and with the good the delight of affection, which carries them away. Unless the delight of the evil is broken, although they may have the best gift of understanding, it effects nothing; their delight is their life.

4538. There are other magical arts . . . by entering into the delights of others, keeping the disposition in them, and thus driving to these things.

4548. All their delight is in company, etc.

— In the other life, everyone receives delight and blessedness according to use . . .

4552. There were some of the worst sort of Sirens, who came while I was writing, because they could thus draw the delight to themselves, and deprive me of it . . .

4582. They appear friends, but their inmost delight is to do harm . . .

—^e Such great delight is there in doing evil, that although they see a gulf of Hell before them, and know that they can never emerge thence, still the delight of evil so carries them away, that they do not desist; for the delight of doing evil is their life.

5759². Afterwards, they were cast out who perceived delight in the fact that others were suffering . . . —^e.

5791⁴. A great part of them ran about, wherever they could find delight . . . like the Societies of Friendship, and drew it to themselves, whence others who had delight from uses and in their duties were reduced into a miserable state.

5792⁴. They almost all had delight in domineering and getting rich, and none of them in use . . .

— They who are delighted—delectantur—with good use . . . are in spiritual delight, which delight infinitely transcends the other . . .

5830^e. It was found that they had no delight but in doing harm to everyone whom they saw . . .

5849. Their delight from ratiocination was communicated to a Celestial Angel, and he then said, that their delight was so absurd that he could not describe it; but it was said, that this is their delight, and that everyone is left to his own delight.

5873. Their delight is to be one with the infesters, and to do harm to the good; this delight is in them; wherefore they perceive delight as soon as they are above them, a delight they do not know the source of, but it is the delight of doing harm . . .

D. Min. 4610. Principles of truth change and break the cupidities or delights of evil . . . When I was in an affection of evil, and principles of truth were inwardly insinuated, these delights began to cease; thus, also, they were known to be evils.

4614. Better still when he has contracted a habit, and has begun to shun the delights of evil, and to be averse to them; but it is a work of time . . . Thus to alter the delights is a work of much time . . .

4637. When what is holy and good from the Lord . . . falls into (man's) delight of life, it is like hidden seed in the ground; if the delight is pride or self-love, it falls into evil ground . . . But if it falls into the delight of charity . . . it falls into good ground . . . The affection itself is the ground, the quality of which is only perceived from the man's delight.

4716. How the Societies of Friendship withdraw the delights from others. Gen.art.

4749. (These two Genii) took away all my delight and pleasantness; this was their intention . . . Their delight was contrary to that of Heaven; they said that if this were the case they did not want to come thither. It was afterwards granted to speak with them about their lot, that such delight is taken away from them, and then they become most stupid, because their delight inwardly gives them that skill and clearightedness; and that afterwards, when they will sit in torment, until that delight is extinguished, if they have anything of good in the residue, this will remain . . .

4750. It is thus given from contraries to perceive more delight and pleasantness . . .

—¹. They said that they wanted to abstain, but it was answered that they could not, because when they are in their delight they are lulled; thus they are not able to will and think except from that delight; delight is attended with lulling.

4774. As he thus went beyond the limits of his delight, he was grievously punished . . . Being again left, he first began cautiously to think of revenge, then more and more, until at last he came into the delight of revenge . . .

E. 15. 'The things which are written therein' = from the love of truth, or from the delight of that love; for that which takes place from love takes place from delight; from no other source is there delight.

22. 'Grace be unto you and peace' = the delight of truth and good. 'Grace' = the delight of truth; and 'peace' = the delight of the good of innocence and of love. Ex.

—². Whether you say the affection of truth, or the delight of truth, it is the same; for affection without delight does not exist.

122. The falsities which take captive rise up from the Hell in the natural man, when the delights of the love of self and the world have dominion there; for these delights are the origins of all evils and thence falsities.

—². Hell . . . thus affects all who are in the delights of these loves . . .

146. To those who overcome in temptations will be given the delight of celestial love from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—³. It is called 'the hidden manna' because the delight of celestial love . . . is quite unknown to those who are in love not celestial; and no one can receive this delight, except he who acknowledges the Lord's Divine Human; for from this it proceeds. As this delight was unknown to the Sons of Israel in the wilderness, they called it 'manna.' . . The reason this delight, meant by 'manna,' was unknown to the Sons of Israel, was that they were in corporeal delight above all nations; and they who are in this delight, are quite unable to know anything of heavenly delight. It is said delight, and there is meant the delight of love; for all the delight of life is of love.

—³. This delight is also described by correspondences in Ex.xvi.31; Num.xi.7,8 . . . 'honey' = its external delight; 'oil,' that love itself; and its 'juice,' whence was the flavour, its internal delight; and the rain with the dew, in which the manna was, the influx of Divine truth in which is that delight.

159. 'That woman Jezebel' = the delight of the love of self and the world. Ex.

—². Something shall be said about the delight of man's loves . . . All the delight of his life is from his love; for whatever favours his love he perceives delightful, and whatever is averse to his love he perceives undelightful; therefore, whether it is said that man is such as his love, or that he is such as the delight of his life, it is the same. They, therefore, who are in the loves of self and the world . . . have no other delight of life, or no other life, than infernal life; for these loves, or the delights of life from them, which are perpetual, turn all their thoughts and intentions to themselves and the world . . . Hence it is, that after being loosed from the body, man's Spirit . . . is actually turned to its love, because this makes the delight of his life, that is, his life.

162². They who falsify truths by applying them to the delight of self-love, do not afterwards turn to truths . . . If man suffers the natural delight to predominate, which is the delight of the love of self and the world, he then sees all things from this delight.

229². A sense which has no relation to sight, but to another Sensitive which is called the Sensitive of delight. This delight, being spiritual, and above the sense of natural delight, man does not perceive, except when . . . regenerated.

—³. When the delight of affection passes from the will into the thought, it forms itself, and in various forms presents itself to view.

336³. One delight of affection may be presented by means of a number of ideas of thought, and be expressed by various things in speech; the delight of affection is what is called good.

411. They have rest in their evils and falsities, because these have been their delights; and the delights of everyone's life remain after death: the delights of life are the delights of their loves; for every delight of life is of the love.

—². They do not want to recede from the delights of their loves; they thence have anguish and torment, which cease when they come into the Hells where similar delights or similar loves reign.

619. 'In thy mouth sweet as honey' = exterior delight. . . 'Sweet as honey' = the delight of natural good.

660. Delights from infernal love with those who are against the goods and truths of the Church. Sig.

661. Nothing is more delightful to the wicked than to destroy the goods of love and the truths of doctrine, wherever they are; and to do evil to those with whom they are . . . Whenever it is permitted to do evil they are in the delight of their heart.

695. 'Reward' properly means that delight, joyous-ness, and blessedness which is in the love of good and truth . . .

[E.] 75^S. All the delights of life are delights of the loves; the delights of the loves of self and the world are delights of hatred of various kinds; whereas the delights of love to the Lord and towards the neighbour are delights of charity of various kinds; and these are diametrically opposed to each other; and all they who are in the Hells, do all that they do from the delights of their loves . . . This hatred is deadly, and is the delight itself of the life of evil Spirits. But such delight is turned into infernal horrors.

981². The delight of adultery is Hell with man, and the delight of marriage is Heaven with him; consequently, in proportion as a man is in the one delight, he is not in the other.

990². The difference between the love of marriage and the love of adultery is as that between Heaven and Hell; similar is the difference between the delights of these loves; for delights draw all that they have from the loves from which they are. The delights of the love of adultery draw all that they have from the delights of doing evil uses . . . and the delights of the love of marriage from the delights of doing good uses . . . Such, therefore, as is the delight which the evil have in doing harm, such is the delight of their love of adultery . . . Hence it is evident, that the delight of adultery ascends from the lowest Hell. But the delight of the love of marriage, being from the love of the conjunction of good and truth, and from the love of doing good, is heavenly delight, and descends from the inmost Heaven. . . It is, however, believed that the delight of marriage and the delight of adultery are similar . . . but no one can feel the difference except him who is in the delight of marriage love: he who is in this delight, most clearly feels that in the delight of marriage there is not anything impure or unchaste . . . and that in the delight of adultery there is nothing but what is impure, unchaste, and lascivious . . . But he who is in the delight of adultery, cannot feel these things . . .

—³. As, outwardly, the delights of both loves appear similar . . . it is provided by the Lord, that the delights of adultery should not ascend into Heaven, and that the delights of marriage should not descend into Hell. There is some correspondence of Heaven with profligation in adulteries, but not with the Delight itself in them.

991². The love of profligating, in which is all Delight and pleasure . . . The love of profligation in adulteries, in which is all Delight and pleasure. The reason why there is all Delight and pleasure in the love of profligating, is that all delight, pleasure, blessedness, happiness, in the universal Heaven and in the universal world, is collected into the . . . act of producing uses . . . Hence, also, is the pleasure and Delight of adultery; but since profligation by it corresponds to the production of evil by falsity and of falsity from evil, that pleasure and delight by degrees decreases . . . until at last it is turned into loathing. . . The delight of adultery is from some impure fire which while it lasts counterfeits the delight of the love of good; but in itself is the delight of the love of evil, which in its essence is the delight of hatred . . .

—⁵. By turns . . . they feel the delight of hatred as the delight of love; but this from the itch of the flesh.

—⁶. The nature of the delight of hatred, and thence of doing harm, with those who are in Hell, cannot be described, nor believed . . . Their delight of doing harm derives all it has from hatred and revenge against what is good and true . . . It is therefore the delight of hatred which in the extremes has become fiery, injected into the lascivious flesh, which in a moment becomes the delight of adultery . . .

992². This fire is kindled . . . from the delight of doing good . . . This fire is full of innumerable delights, as many as are the Delights and blessednesses of Heaven . . . The origin of these Delights is from this, that married partners want to be united into one. 993².

993². As marriage love is the fundamental of all the loves of Heaven, it is also the fundamental of all the delights and joys of Heaven; for all delight and joy is of love.

1010⁴. The delights of varieties . . . are also delights of adultery; for the delight of variety destroys the delight of marriage. The delight of defloration . . . is also the delight of adultery . . .

1189³. This love (of exercising command) is Known from its delight; for it surpasses every delight of the life of men; it continually exhales from Hell . . .

J.(Post.) 245. The delight of the love of exercising command has a sweetness in it which is ineffable . . . This delight is turned into horrors. It is the same with the love of doing harm, with the love of hatred and revenge, of theft, and with the love of adultery and their delights. Man does not know that when, by reformation from the Lord, these delights recede, there first enter the delights of Heaven, which infinitely transcend them; nor that then the delights of these evils are undelightful and sting. 246.

350. On the delight from the glory of being wise, and on the delight of exercising command.

D. Love xii². According to these (activities) there flow in with (the Angels) the necessary, useful, and delightful things of life. —.

—³. The delightful things of life are those with the married partner, with friends . . .

C. 189. There are diversions of charity, which are the various Delights and pleasantnesses of the bodily senses, useful for mental recreation. Gen.art.

191. Hence . . . have they their Delights and pleasantnesses.

193. Sweetness, by which is meant spiritual delight. Pleasantness is said of wisdom . . . and delight of love . . .

194. They may also feel a delight in the work of their calling; but it is an infernal delight. To their eyes it may counterfeit heavenly delight; for they are both alike outwardly. But their delight is full of what is undelightful . . .

195. The uses they perform . . . are pleasant and delightful to them, as ordure is to swine, or mice to cats. . . There is an infernal delight and pleasantness in their diversions . . .

De Conj. 104. When anyone passes from marriage love into its opposite, the delight appearing almost the same, such a dog is presented, guarding lest the opposite Delights should communicate.

105. Peace in the Heavens is like Spring in the world, which delights and vivifies all things; it is heavenly delight itself in its own essence.

Can. God.vii. 10a. Eternal blessedness, happinesses, and Delights are the ends of creation; because they are of love.

Delight. Oblectare, Oblectamentum.

A. 1492^b. Grief that the scientifics should be destroyed which he had imbibed with delight and deliciousnesses.

2702¹⁵. 'The living soul that creepeth' = their delights.

H. 87. Worldly things . . . delight the genius; spiritual things . . . delight the mind.

185^e. These things delight their minds more than their eyes. 186^e.

S. 40^r. 'To delight himself splendidly every day' (Luke xvi. 19) = their delight-obelectatio-that they had and read the Word.

P. 113. Delights delight the thoughts, and take away reflections.

M. 5⁴. Occasions of social intercourse, which exhilarate the minds of the Angels, delight their dispositions, delight-jucundant-their bosoms, and recreate their bodies. . . From these (uses) is the soul and life in all their gladnesses and delights.

267⁴. They delight themselves foolishly as with the possession of the universe.

268³. Our visionary delight comes on us by alternations . . .

D. 2438. Their greatest delight is to punish; wherefore from the general company of the malignant there flows such a delight from cupidity into fever; and thus into those who treat him badly . . .

2450. They said that it was on account of their delight at the sight of money . . .

2572. Should they die before their eyes, they hence derive delight.

2622. Their delight is such, that they feel the mere delight-jucunditatem.

2712. With such delight are they affected, that their delight from such things surpasses every other delight.

Delineate. Deliniare.

Delineation. Delineamentum, Delineatio.

A. 5726. It is allowable to call the delineations of the first stamina vessels . . .

W. 432². With a subtle delineation of somewhat of a face in front . . . Something delineated for a face appeared. D. Wis.iii.4.

D. 574. Sees the things delineated.

E. 331⁵. 'A nation meted out and trodden down' (Is.xviii.2) = those with whom goods have been (taken away, changed, or perverted).

Delirium. Delirium, Deliratio.

Rave. Delirare.

A. 1880². They would have thought them deliriums of the disposition . . .

2796². They who are in the deliriums of wisdom . . .

9278⁵. Hence it may be known . . . who are foolish and delirious . . . Such are more delirious and foolish than the rest . . .

C. J. 62. They have a delirium like that of those in a malignant fever . . .

63^e. Lest they should be carried away into fantastic deliriums, such as prevailed in the above-mentioned Hell. In such deliriums are they who had sought to be made saints . . .

W. 427². They . . . say, This man raves.

P. 185^e. They then come into such a delirium as to acknowledge the more powerful devils for their gods . . .

190^e. Find arguments of their delirium in favour of nature . . .

227⁵. They are like mere fantastic deliriums.

M. 48a^e. A good man . . . who from the allurements of the world has sometimes raved in the external . . .

212. By insanity is meant a delirium-deliratio-of the mind from falsities; and a pre-eminent delirium-deliratio -is the delirium-deliratio-of the mind from truths falsified until they are believed to be wisdom.

267³. They are thus kept in a state of intelligence in externals, however they may interiorly rave and craze.

—⁴. Into this delirium every man is let after death, who has abstracted his spirit from the body, and has not wanted to recede from the deliciousness of the delirium by thinking something from religion . . .

T. 4². It is said a frenzy, because the minds of men have been driven by it into such a delirium, that they do not know whether there is one God or three.

23. Spiritual things . . . the natural man calls deliriums. 381.

31². If he should persist in penetrating into these things, he might easily fall into a delirium . . .

56². How they rave who think . . . that God can condemn anyone . . .

57^e. If both wills should act at once, delirium or dizziness would invade his mind.

90. Thus they may fill the Church with deliriums and trifles.

183³. Such things are deliriums of the mind concerning God.

482^e. The Angels . . . call the denial of (free-will) delirium upon delirium.

D. 244. If heavenly estates were expounded to man . . . they would draw him away into deliriums . . .

3486^e. He took away all their understanding of truth and good, they as it were raving . . .

[D.] 3625. Hence come the deliriums of many; also insanity . . .

4572. (How the delirium of fevers is caused.)

5936. They begin to rave as to the thoughts . . .

E. 1158³. These (profaners) are altogether deliriums of phantasy.

D. Love xv². Lest they should wander into the deliriums of their cupidities . . .

Deliver. See BEAR-parere; and PRONOUNCE.

Deliver. Liberare.

Deliverance. Liberatio.

Deliverer. Liberator.

See under RESCUE.

See also FREE-liber.

A. 905². When he is delivered, that is, regenerated . . .

1655. That the rational man . . . liberated-vindicavit and delivered him. Tr.

1713. All things in the external man, before he is delivered and liberated, are called servants.

1851. Deliverance. Sig. . . 'To go out' = to be delivered.

2025⁰. He liberated-vindicavit-the World of Spirits from infernal Genii and Spirits, and thus delivered the human race from destruction . . . therefore He is called 'the Deliverer,' and 'the Redeemer' . . .

2242⁴. 'Visitation' . . . signifies either vastation . . . or deliverance, thus exploration.

2768. God tempts no man, [but] is continually delivering from temptations, so far . . . as deliverance does not cause evil.

2769⁰. He is here called 'Jehovah,' because it treats of deliverance; for from truth is all temptation and condemnation, but from good is all deliverance and alvation.

2825. Deliverance (after temptation). Sig.

2833. 'Abraham went and took the ram' = their deliverance by virtue of the Lord's Divine Human. . . He took the ram that was held back in the thicket by its horns = the deliverance of the spiritual by virtue of the Lord's Divine Human.

2954. Redemption is reformation and regeneration, and thence deliverance from Hell, and salvation.

3603. 'To break his yoke from off thy neck' = deliverance . . . from shutting up and interception . . .

4299. 'I have seen God faces to faces, and my soul is delivered' (Gen. xxxii. 30) = that He endured the most grievous temptations, as if they were from the Divine.

4732. 'He rescued (Joseph) out of their hand' = deliverance.

5134. 'Bring me out of this house' = deliverance from evils. 'To bring out' = deliverance.

— The interior Natural . . . is then delivered from the evils by which the Celestial . . . was estranged.

5249. How Joseph was delivered from the pit (i.e. the prison) . . . His being called out of the pit to Pharaoh = a state of deliverance from temptations.

5398². Man is such evil, that to eternity he cannot be fully delivered, even from one sin . . .

5899. 'To a great going out' = deliverance from damnation . . . which deliverance is effected by means of remains.

6279. The Lord's Divine Human by which there is deliverance from Hell. Sig. . . 'To redeem' = to deliver.

6280. He redeemed man, that is, delivered him from Hell.

—². This deliverance is what is called Redemption; and the Divine Human itself, which delivered or redeemed, is called 'the Angel that redeems.'

6368. 'From the prey my son thou hast gone up' = that by the Lord through the Celestial is the deliverance of many from Hell. 'To go up from the prey' = deliverance from Hell. Ex. . . This plucking away and deliverance is what is called 'the prey;' and as this is effected from the Lord's Divine Good, it is said, that by the Lord through the Celestial is the deliverance of many from Hell.

—². But no one can be plucked away and delivered from Hell, unless in the bodily life he has been in spiritual good . . . Hence such cannot be plucked away or delivered from Hell . . .

6413. Deliverance from a state of temptations is what is compared to 'a hind let loose' . . .

6441. 'A wolf' = the avidity of releasing and delivering the good.

6442. When the Lord is present, there is the release and deliverance of the good.

6588². 'To be visited' . . . here stands for the deliverance of the Sons of Israel.

—⁴. 'To visit' = to deliver.

6753. 'Because I have drawn him out of the waters' = deliverance from falsities. . . 'To draw out' = deliverance. . . In these words is signified . . . that the Lord, in order that He might become the Divine Law as to the Human, delivered it from all the falsity which adhered to His Human from the mother.

6784. 'An Egyptian man hath delivered us from the hands of the shepherds' (Ex. ii. 19) = that the scientific truth which is adjoined to the Church prevailed over the power of the doctrine of falsity from evil. . . 'To deliver' = to prevail; for he who delivers from the hand of others, prevails over them.

6825. In this chapter it treats of the deliverance (of those who are of the Church); and then they are instructed who the God is that has delivered them, that it is the Lord.

6854. 'I have come down to deliver him from the hand of the Egyptians' (Ex. iii. 8) = that He let Himself down to them to release them from the power of false scientifics. . . 'To deliver' = to release . . . for he who releases from falsities, delivers.

6864². In what follows, it treats of the deliverance of the Sons of Israel, that is, of those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Church, from falsities; from which they cannot possibly be delivered, except by the Holy which proceeds from the Lord.

6865. 'Bring forth my people the Sons of Israel out of Egypt' = the deliverance thereby of those who are of the Spiritual Church 'from the falsities which are infesting them. 'To bring forth' = deliverance. 6868. 7235. 7932 $\frac{1}{2}$.

6897. 'I will make you ascend from the affliction of Egypt' = elevation and deliverance from infestation by false scientific. 'To make to ascend' = elevation towards interior things . . . Hence, also, it = deliverance.

6912. 'Afterwards he will let you go' = the driving away of those who are in falsities, and the deliverance of those who are in truths. . . 'To let go' = driving away, and thence deliverance.

6939. Continuation in this chapter (Ex. iv.) concerning the deliverance of those who are of the Spiritual Church.

6945. It here treats in the spiritual sense of the deliverance of those who are of the Spiritual Church, who were delivered by means of the Advent of the Lord into the world. Refs. 7445.

6988 $\frac{3}{4}$. All the miracles performed by the Lord signify . . . that those were then delivered from Hell who received the faith of charity.

7032. Stubbornness, and thus no deliverance as yet. Sig.

7066. 'Jehovah hath visited the Sons of Israel' = that those of the Spiritual Church were delivered and saved by means of the Advent of the Lord. 'To visit' = deliverance by means of the Advent of the Lord into the world; thus also salvation.

7093 $\frac{3}{4}$. He who is delivered from falsities, and from the straitness in which he then is, thanks God from a glad disposition. . . The feasts . . . are also said to have been instituted in memory of the deliverance from slavery in Egypt, that is, . . . in memory of the deliverance from infestation by falsities, by means of the Advent of the Lord into the world.

—⁶. (This) is manifest from the feast of the Passover, which was to be celebrated yearly on the day they went out of Egypt, on account of the deliverance of the Sons of Israel from slavery, that is, on account of the deliverance of those who are of the Spiritual Church from falsities, thus from damnation; and as the Lord delivered them by means of His Advent, and elevated them into Heaven with Himself when He rose again; this, too, was done at the Passover.

7169. 'And delivering Thou hast not delivered Thy people' (Ex. v. 23) = that they have not been released from a state of infestations by falsities.

7183. They are now cheered with hope, and with a promise that they are certainly to be delivered. Tr.

7186. It was believed that they . . . would be delivered from infestations at once; when yet it is according to order that the evil who infest should be removed by degrees, and that they who are of the Spiritual Church should be delivered by degrees. . . They are now instructed about this law, and that it is by virtue of it that they will certainly be delivered, when, according to order, the time and state are come. . . That Moses, by whom is here represented the Law Divine . . . believed that they would be at once delivered from infestations, is evident from what he said . . . 'Delivering

Thou hast not delivered Thy people;' by which is signified that they are being too much infested by falsities.

—³. The reason why they who are of the Spiritual Church, and are in the Lower Earth, are delivered from infestations successively, and not at once, is that the inhering evils and falsities cannot be otherwise removed, and goods and truths insinuated in their place; this is effected by means of many changes of state.

7277. 'Bring forth My army, My people, the Sons of Israel' = that they are to be delivered who are in goods and truths. 'To bring forth' = to deliver. 7282.

7822. It treats in this chapter (Ex. xii.) concerning the deliverance of those who are of the Spiritual Church, and the damnation of those who are in faith separated from charity; the damnation of the latter, and the deliverance of the former is represented by the Passover; and the states as to charity and faith of those who have been delivered, by the things which were to be observed during the days of the Passover.

7823. In the supreme sense, by the Passover is represented the damnation of the unfaithful, and the deliverance of the faithful by the Lord, when He has been glorified.

7828. By this month is signified the beginning of the deliverance of those who are of the Spiritual Church . . . detained in the Lower Earth . . . Their first state, when delivered, was the principal of all, and the beginning from which proceed all that follow . . . because they who were there were delivered by means of the Advent of the Lord into the world . . . and because they were delivered when the Lord rose again.

7844. 'Between the evenings' = the state of the deliverance of those who are in truth from good, and the state of the damnation of those who are in falsity from evil . . .

7849. When (those who were in the Lower Earth) were being delivered, they were to be prepared to receive the influx of good and truth from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

7882. The worship of the Lord on account of deliverance from damnation. Sig.

7917. 'Kill the Passover' = preparation for the presence of the Lord, and thence deliverance. The Passover = the presence of the Lord, and the deliverance of those who are of the Spiritual Church.

7933. In the internal sense, both in the books of Moses, and in the Prophets, it treats of the deliverance of those who . . . were detained in the Lower Earth . . . and of their elevation into Heaven.

7938. 'This is the sacrifice of the Passover to Jehovah' = the worship of the Lord on account of deliverance.

7942. 'He hath delivered our houses' (Ex. xii. 27) = that nothing damnable reached them, because they were in goods from the Lord.

7990. 'To bring them forth from the land of Egypt' = deliverance from spiritual captivity. 'To bring forth' = to deliver.

8018. 'Jehovah hath brought forth the Sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt' = that the Lord delivered from damnation those who were in the good of truth and the truth of good. 'To bring forth' = to deliver.

[A. 8018]°. Their deliverance by the Lord, when He rose again, is signified by the Lord's descent to those beneath ; and was manifested by the resuscitation of the dead out of the monuments . . . Ill.

8038. It treats in this chapter (Ex.xiii.) . . . of the perpetual remembrance, that by Him they have been delivered from damnation. The perpetual remembrance of the deliverance by the Lord is signified by the celebration of the Passover.

8050. That they were delivered by virtue of the Divine power of the Lord. Sig. . . 'To bring forth' = to deliver.

8052. Deliverance to eternity. Sig. . . 'To go forth' = to be delivered.

8057. Unceasing worship of the Lord on account of deliverance. Sig.

8099. 'When they were delivered (from the Lower Earth) they were not immediately taken up into Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

8103. The second state after they were delivered. Sig. . . The journeyings and encampments of the Sons of Israel . . . signify the spiritual states of those who have been delivered by the Lord.

8179. 'To cry to Jehovah' = to intercede, namely, for deliverance from temptation.

8199. They who are delivered from temptations, first come into an obscure state before they come into a clear one ; for the falsities and evils which are injected by the Hells inhere for some time, and are only successively dissipated. Sig.

8261. Glorification of the Lord by those who are of the Spiritual Church on account of deliverance. Sig.

8426. In the end of the former state there shall be a revelation that they have been delivered. Sig.

8528. 'In my bringing you forth out of the land of Egypt' = after they have been delivered from infestations. 'To bring forth' = to deliver.

8653. 'Hath delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh' (Ex.xviii.4) = deliverance from the falsity of those who infested.

8671. 'Jehovah rescued them' = deliverance by the Lord's Divine aid. 'To rescue' = deliverance. 8676.

8866. 'Who brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of servants' = deliverance from Hell by Him. 'To bring forth' = deliverance.

—^e. They of the Spiritual Church . . . were delivered from Hell by the Lord, by means of His Advent into the world, and His making the Human in Himself Divine. Refs.

9024°. 'To plead the cause' = to defend truths against falsities, and deliver.

— . 'To plead the cause of the soul' = to defend and deliver from falsities. —.

9077. 'Redemption' = to give something else in its place, that there may be deliverance. . . For it here treats of deliverance from damnation, and man can only be delivered from damnation by means of the removal of evil . . . The deliverance from damnation, or, what is the same, deliverance from sins, is the removal of evil, which is effected through repentance of life. Refs.

9278°. But the Lord continually protects and delivers.

9286. 'Three times thou shalt keep a feast to Me in the year' = the worship of the Lord and permanent thanksgiving on account of deliverance from damnation. . . . 'Three times' . . . = plenary and entire deliverance.

—². The successive steps of deliverance from damnation are circumstanced as are the successive steps of regeneration ; for regeneration is deliverance from Hell and introduction into Heaven by the Lord . . .

9292. Deliverance from infestation by falsities. Sig.

9294°. The three feasts were instituted on account of the deliverance of man from damnation, thus on account of regeneration ; for by means of regeneration man is delivered from Hell and introduced into Heaven . . .

9295°. The second state of deliverance from damnation, which was a state of the implantation of truth in good, was signified (by this second feast).

9296. Worship from a grateful disposition on account of the implantation of good thence, thus on account of regeneration and plenary deliverance from damnation. (Signified by the third feast.)

9333°. He who does not know how the case is with the deliverance of man from evils and falsities . . .

9444. The sins which a man does are inrooted in his very life, and make it ; wherefore no one is delivered from them, unless he receives new life from the Lord, which is effected by means of regeneration.

9937°. Deliverance from sins, or the remission of them, is nothing else than removal ; for they remain with the man . . .

10057°. Purification from the evils and falsities with man, is not deliverance from them, but is the removal of them. Refs. But with the Lord there was not the removal, but the casting out of those things which He derived from the mother, thus plenary deliverance from them . . .

10218. Purification or deliverance from evil through acknowledgment and faith that all the truths and goods of faith and love, and their ordination and disposition, are from the Lord, and nothing from man. Sig.

10219°. As soon as man believes that goods flow in from the Lord . . . goods affect him . . . and in proportion as goods affect man, evils are removed, thus he is purified and delivered from them. (If he cannot feel the influx of goods from the Lord) still he ought to acknowledge and believe that they are from the Lord ; for when this is done, he is also delivered from evils, but, in order that he may be delivered from evils, this acknowledgment must be . . . of the very heart.

10228. 'To expiate upon their souls' = to be purified or delivered from evils by means of the truth of faith ; and as purification or deliverance from evils is nothing but their removal, this, too, is signified.

10655. 'Thou shalt keep the feast of things unleavened' = worship of the Lord and thanksgiving on account of deliverance from evil and the falsities of evil . . . This feast properly = the glorification of the Lord's Human, thus remembrance and thanksgiving on account of it ; for by means of it and of the subjugation of the Hells by the Lord, man has deliverance from evils, and salvation. —⁴. 10659.

P. 19. The temptations . . . by means of which the good can be delivered from their evils.

D. 220. On the torment of the unhappy, and at last deliverance.

244. The deliverance of the bound from the pit; it is circumstanced like one who is in travail, when the child comes to the mouth of the matrix. Gen.art. 261.

404. So that he wants to be delivered and loosed from them; for it is impossible for him to deliver himself.

409. Among the multitude who are delivered from the pit there are a number who are not yet devastated . . .

415^e. Contrive that the suspicion may fall upon another, that they may be thus delivered.

417^e. Being delivered from these torments . . .

487. He was sent to the lake . . . but was thence delivered. This day he was sent to a certain place of the damned . . . being delivered thence, he is now horrified . . .

E. 328¹⁹. By Redemption the Angels understand liberation—vindicationem—from evils, and deliverance from falsities in the following passages. Ill.

— . 'Redemption' = deliverance from damnation.

— . That the Lord redeemed mankind = that He liberated and delivered them from Hell, and from the evils and falsities which constantly rise up thence . . . and that He continually liberates and delivers them: that He liberated and delivered them was effected by His subjugating the Hells; and that He continually liberates and delivers, by His glorifying His Human.

624⁴. 'To cast out demons' = to deliver from the falsities of religion.

Deliver. Tradere.

See TRADITION.

A. 2547^e. The things of Heaven are delivered by means of such things as are on earth.

3488². 'Then shall they deliver you into tribulation, and shall kill you' (Matt.xxiv.9) = that good and truth shall perish . . .

3982³. These arcana . . . are historically delivered . . .

H. 332. Little children . . . are delivered to Angels of the female sex.

519. They are delivered to the Angel guards there.

W. 229. It is asserted by some . . .

T. 343. The things delivered in this chapter concerning . . .

463. To deliver the doctrinal of the New Church concerning free-will.

503⁵. Concerning justification, etc. (they said), We give forth nothing spiritual.

512. In the Reformed Christian world they tell of a species of anxiety . . . which they call contrition.

516. Concerning this oral confession, the Reformed . . . thus deliver [themselves].

520. It has been delivered by the Councils . . .

E. 405⁴⁶. 'He hath delivered them to the slaughter' (Is.xxxiv.2) = that they will perish who are in these things. 573⁹.

655¹⁰. 'To condemn the Son of Man and deliver Him to the nations' (Matt.xx.19) = to adjudicate the Divine truth and Divine good to Hell, and to deliver them to the evils and falsities which are thence.

(659²². 'He shall deliver the wicked to the sword' (Jer.xxv.31) = that the unfaithful will perish through their own falsities.

813². The temptations which the faithful will undergo for the sake of truths, are described by 'Ye shall be betrayed by parents, and brothers . . . (Luke xxi.16).

Delude. Deludere.

D. 3206. They most deceitfully delude and seduce . . .

J.(Post.) 19^e. The Dutch cannot be deluded, as others.

Demand. Reposcere. D.2964.

Democritus. Democritus. M.182^e.

Demon. Daemon.

A. 1664. 'They are the Spirits of demons' (Rev.xvi.14). 7351².

1742³. (Why the demons wanted to enter the swine.)

7317². 'Through Thy name we have cast out demons' (Matt.vii.22).

10019⁴. 'The demons' (Luke x.17) = those who are in the Hells.

R. 458. 'That they should not adore demons' (Rev. ix.20.) = that thus they are in the evils of their concupiscences, and make one with their like in Hell. 'Demons' = the concupiscences of evil which originate from the love of the world: the reason is, that in Hell those are called demons who are in these concupiscences; and men, too, who are in the same, become demons after death. . . Hence it is evident, that 'to adore demons' = to make an offering to these concupiscences from the love of them. . . It follows, that he who does not search out any evil in himself, and shun it as a sin against God . . . becomes a demon after death. Nothing but such concupiscences are signified by 'demons-daemones,' and 'demons-daemonia' in the following passages. Ill.

—². 'The forest demons' (Is.xiii.21) = concupiscences such as those of Priapi and Satyrs.

—^e. The demons which the Lord cast out were such concupiscences while they lived in the world. Refs.

655². I replied, Hence demon . . . T.388.

703. 'They are the Spirits of demons' = that they were cupidities of falsifying truths and of reasoning from falsities. 'Demons' = the cupidities of falsifying truths.

756. 'Has become the habitation of demons' (Rev. xviii.2) = that their Hells are the Hells of the concupiscences of domineering from the heat of self-love, and of the concupiscences of profaning the truths of Heaven from the spurious zeal of that love. 'Demons' = the concupiscences of evil, and also the concupiscences of falsifying truths ; but demons, like concupiscences, are of many kinds, and the worst are those who are concupiscences of domineering over the holy things of the Church and over Heaven from the heat of self-love . . .

M. 431^e. When a new demon entered . . .

432². Adulterers . . . there, are demons. Des.

T. 79^e. They are therefore imprisoned, and become demons.

381^e. To the Angels they appear like those . . . who cry out to demons, and kiss them . . .

614^e. They may be compared to the demons sent into the swine.

D. 774. To the left there is a Hell where there are demons, so called, who act from mere instinct . . .

1934^e. He would have supposed that he was possessed by demons.

2278. They who, in the Lord's time, were obsessed by demons, were not differently circumstanced.

4086. Others in Gehenna, in the abode of demons . . .

E. 455²². 'To cast out demons' (Mark xvi. 17)=to remove and reject the falsities of evil.

586. 'That they should not adore demons' = that they should not worship their own cupidities. . . 'Demons' = evil cupidities ; because by 'demons' are meant infernal Spirits ; and all Spirits who are in the Hells are nothing but evil cupidities.

—². What is meant by worshipping demons. Ex.

—³. This worship is also meant by 'sacrificing to demons' in Deut. xxxii. 17 ; Lev. xvii. 7.

—⁴. 'To sacrifice sons and daughters to demons' (Ps. cvi. 37)=to destroy the truths and goods of the Church through evil cupidities.

—⁵. These corporeal and merely natural concupiscences are signified by . . . 'the forest demon,' or 'satyr' (Is. xxxiv. 14).

—⁶. 'Forest demons' or 'satyrs' (Is. xiii. 21)=merely corporeal cupidities.

—^e. 'The demons' cast out by the Lord, by which many were then obsessed, = falsities of every kind with which the Church was infested, and from which she was delivered by the Lord. Refs.

624⁴. 'To cast out demons' (Matt. vii. 22)=to deliver from the falsities of religion ; 'demons' = the falsities of religion.

659^e. Hence it is evident whence it was that 'those who were obsessed by demons were in the sepulchres' (Matt. viii. Mark v. Luke viii.) namely, that those who obsessed them, while they had lived in the world, were in falsities from evil ; that is, in Knowledges from the Word, which they made dead by applying them to confirm evils, and also to destroy the genuine truths of the Church, especially the truths concerning the Lord, the Word, and the life after death, which dead Knowledges are called 'traditions.' Hence it was, that they who were obsessed by such who had become demons were in the sepulchres, and the demons themselves were afterwards cast out into the swine, which precipitated themselves into the sea. The reason they were cast into the swine, was that while they lived in the world they had been in sordid avarice . . . The reason they precipitated themselves into the sea, was that 'the sea' there = Hell.

706¹⁴. 'In My name they shall cast out demons' (Mark xvi.) . . . 'Demons' = falsities of every kind, which are thus cast out, that is, removed, by the Lord through doctrine from the Word.

740¹⁰. The Pharisees said of Jesus, that 'He cast out demons by Beelzebub the prince of the demons.' Jesus said to them . . . 'If I in the Spirit of God cast out demons, surely the Kingdom of God hath come to you' (Matt. xii. 24, 28).

—¹⁶. In these passages in the Old Testament, only 'Satan' is mentioned, and not 'the devil ;' but instead of him there is said 'the enemy,' 'the hater,' 'the adversary,' 'the accuser,' 'demon,' also 'death,' and 'Hell.'

815⁵. 'The Canaanitish woman, whose daughter was agitated by a demon. . .' (Matt. xv. 22).

1001. 'They are the Spirits of demons' (Rev. xvi.) = false reasonings from Hell. . . 'Demons' = those things which are from Hell ; for in the Word those are called 'demons' who are in the cupidity of falsifying truths, which is especially done by means of reasonings. Hence, in the abstract sense, 'demons-daemones' and 'demons-daemonia' = cupidities and falsities. Ill. 1003³.

1098. ('Babylon) has become the habitation of demons' = where there are direful falsities from the truths and goods of the Church profaned. . . 'Demons' = those who are in direful falsities from truths and goods profaned. Ex.

Demonophonia. Daemonophonia. Coro. 45.

Demonstrate. Demonstrare.

Demonstration. Demonstratio.

A. 146^e. However plainly they may be demonstrated,

6015³. If it were demonstrated they would not believe.

W. 208. As has been demonstrated above. 209². 225^e. 230. 231. 242. —. 282. 304. 359. P. 54. 210. T. 37².

222. It is not allowable to demonstrate this matter, except by means of universals.

242². Here, it is to be demonstrated. 260.

298. This will be fully demonstrated in what follows. P. 218, etc. T. 329². 336. 395. —^e. 603.

311^e. Time fails to demonstrate these things more at large.

412⁴. To demonstrate or confirm anything by means of things unknown places a subject in obscurity.

R. 1^e. These things are to be demonstrated by like things elsewhere in the Word. 285.

D. 166². That envy and pain thence arising . . . might be effectively demonstrated.

350. That each and all things may, in Heaven, be demonstrated to the light.

426^e. This can demonstrate nothing, except that such a man cannot enter the other life . . .

1291. Faith without sight . . . spurns and rejects all demonstration ; just as one who sees an object refuses to have it demonstrated to him that he sees it . . . For an object that is demonstrated to be seen which is already seen is called into doubt, for such demonstration is attended with this. Therefore demonstrations are only for those who want to believe nothing unless they see it. Lest such should remain in their blindness, and be further blinded, things are to be demonstrated which ought not to be demonstrated ; as, for example, that there is a God, which everyone ought to believe without demonstrating arguments ; whereas it is usually the case that when this is demonstrated, in every argument there is contained something of doubt.

1718^e. Nor can this phantasy be taken away from them, except by means of living demonstrations.

1719. A thousand proofs of experience have demonstrated this to me to the very sense.

Demosthenes. Demosthenes. M.182. T.693.

Demur. See PRESCRIBE.

Den. Bestiarium. T.57. 296^a. 511. 798^a.

Den. Cavea. T.604. 611.

Den. Lustrum. H.586. Coro.28^a.

Den. Specus. D.4910. E.526^a.

Denial. Infitiæ. Coro.40.

Denmark. Danemarkia, Dania.

Dane. Danus.

J. 48. (At the Last Judgment the Danes were stationed in the west.)

C. J. 20. In the World of Spirits . . . the Danes are in the west. D.5395.

Life 4. This is evident from the prayer which is read before the people in . . . Denmark, etc.

R. 484. All the books treated of justifying faith ; profoundly, those from Sweden and Denmark ; more profoundly, those from Germany ; still more profoundly, those from Britain ; and most profoundly, those from Holland. T.161.

M. 111. (Opinions of the Danes concerning the origin of marriage love and its potency.)

D. 5396. (The visitation of the Danes, etc.)

5791^{1/2}. (Character of those in Denmark.)

Inv. 24. The Lord . . . stirred up Denmark, etc. to receive (the Word at the time of the Reformation).

Denounce. Denuntiare.

Denunciation. Denuntiatio.

A. 7810^e. The denunciation of death.

8542. After they have denounced death to them. 10382. D.622^a.

E. 884. Exhortation and denunciation. Sig.

Density. Densitas.

Dense. Densus.

A. 1044^t. All the density of its cloud is thence.

1860^e. The dense falsity from which is evil, and the dense evil from which is falsity.

1861. The densest falsity. Sig.

4865^e. In dense thick darkness.

6612. This may be evident from the density of the sphere in which sensuous Spirits are, and from the purity of the sphere in which are the Angels of Heaven.

7712. The density of falsity from evil. Sig.

8369. 'The branch of a thick tree' (Lev.xxiii.40)= scientific truth. 9296^a.

8443^e. The speech of the Angels of the lower Heaven appears as a bright cloud . . . in density and tenuity according to the quality of the truths.

8781. 'Lo, I come to thee in the density of a cloud' (Ex.xix.9)=that it shall take place in a form in the highest degree natural. . . 'Density'=what is obscure . . . What is Divine can only appear to such . . . as the density of a cloud. 8814.

8814^a. The Lord must appear to such in a dense and heavy cloud. In the other life they are circumfused with a dense and black cloud, according to the quality and quantity of the falsities.

H. 557 (g). The proprium of man . . . is nothing but dense evil. Refs.

D. 4202. How great is the density of the sphere . . .

E. 537¹⁴. 'Through a land of . . . dense shadow' (Jer.ii.6)=a state of falsity.

Denude. Denudare.

Denudation. Denudatio.

See also under NAKED.

A. 4015. 'The making bare of the white which was upon the rods' (Gen.xxx.37)=the disposition of the power of interior truth.

6432^b. 'To be made bare' (Is.xxxii.11)=to be deprived of truth.

T. 41^t. Whence (the stripping and making bald of the trees in winter).

E. 240^t. 'Thou wast naked and bare' (Ezek.xvi.7).

357^t. 'With denuding Thy bow shall be denuded' (Hab.iii.9)=that the doctrine of truth will be opened.

403^b. Stripping He hath stripped it, and cast it forth' (Joel i.7)=that there is no longer any good and truth which is not destroyed ; 'to strip,' namely, of fruits and leaves=of goods and truths ; and 'to cast out'=to utterly destroy.

650⁶⁶. 'He shall make bare its cedar' (Zeph.ii.14)=the Rational destroyed.

1153^t. 'Make thyself bare' (Is.xlvii.2)=to adulterate the goods of the Word.

Deny. Abnegare.

A. 4599^b. That they cannot at all overcome from themselves and from what is their own, but from the Lord, is signified by 'he who does not deny all his faculties (or 'all that he hath'), cannot be my disciple' (Luke xiv.33).

[A.] 6000⁵. That Peter in that night denied the Lord three times, represented also the last time of the Church, when the truth of faith is indeed taught, but is not believed; which time is 'night,' because then the Lord is utterly denied in the hearts of men. 6073^e. 10134^e.

9207⁴. 'Who does not deny all his faculties,' that is, who does not love the Lord above all things.

10227¹⁸. 'To deny all the faculties'=to attribute nothing of intelligence and wisdom to self. E.236⁸.

10300³. 'To deny all his faculties'=to love the Lord above all things; 'faculties' are those things which are proper to man.

E. 122⁴. 'To deny himself' (Matt.xvi.24; Mark viii. 34)=to reject the evils which are from proprium.

864⁵. 'To deny himself'=not to be led by himself, but by the Lord; and he denies himself who shuns and is averse to evils because they are sins . . .

Deny. Negare.

Denial. Negatio.

Negative. Negativus.

A. 196². All who reason from sensuous, scientific, and philosophical things, deny that there is spirit . . .

233². They who consult sensuous and scientific things concerning matters of belief, precipitate themselves not only into doubt, but also into denial, that is, into thick darkness, (and thus) into all cupidities . . .

301. Because (they reason) from self . . . they cannot do otherwise than deny, and when they deny, they also blaspheme and profane.

1072^e. They who care nothing for the Word . . . thus denying principles, are called 'drunkards without wine.'

1886. Pref. Still, at heart they deny (the resurrection.)

—³. The Sadducees openly denied the resurrection; but did better than those at this day who say that they do not deny . . . and yet deny at heart.

2049⁴. Hence it is evident, that the truths of faith can never be acknowledged as truths . . . unless they are implanted in charity; for interiorly they are denied at heart.

2215. 'Sarah denied . . .' (Gen.xviii.15)=that human rational truth wanted to excuse itself.

2338. See AFFIRM at these refs. 2568⁴. 2689³. 3221. 3913. 3923⁴. 4096⁶. 4459². 4638⁴. 4760. H.356. D.3614. 4536. D. Min.4580.

2352. The denial of the Divine Human and of the Holy proceeding of the Lord. Sig.

2354². This all they deny at heart who are in the life of evil . . . Better did the Pharisees, who openly denied the Divine of the Lord . . .

2357. Lest they should . . . deny the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord. Sig.

2373². The reason they who are in evil within the Church reject charity more than they deny the Lord, is . . .

2380³. Such within the Church deny the Lord in secret.

2568². When the doctrine of faith is regarded from rational things . . . it not only becomes none, but whatever is therein is denied.

—⁴. The principle which leads to all folly and insanity is to deny all things . . . until one is convinced by those things which he can apprehend or feel . . . this is to be called the negative principle . . . They who think from the negative principle . . . at last deny all things.

—⁶. There are some in doubt before they deny, and some before they affirm; they who are in doubt before they deny, are they who incline to a life of evil; and when this life carries them away, the more they think about these things the more they deny them.

3420. That they who are in the mere knowledge of Knowledges would deny these things. Sig. 'To stop up' =not to want to know, and, what is the same, to deny; thus to obliterate.

—^e. He, therefore, who teaches what is to be done, and does not do it, does not want to know truths; for they are against his life, and the things which are against his life he denies.

3427. Denial on account of these things. Sig. . . 'To quarrel, or contend'=to deny. . . 'Ezek' or 'contention'=the denial of the internal sense of the Word; the causes of the denial are also in the same word.

—². They who are in the mere knowledge of Knowledges . . . cannot do otherwise than deny that there is an internal sense of the Word. Ex.

3429. 'Sitnah'=opposition, which is a further degree of denial.

3452. That their doctrinal things of faith regarded in themselves should not be denied, namely, so far as they are from the literal sense of the Word. Sig. and Ex.

3472^e. The Christian world denies at heart that the Word is so Divine.

3488². 'They shall kill you,' that is, by denial.

3913⁵. This good cannot inflow into what is negative . . .

3923⁶. That they were in the Negative of all the things which are of faith and its doctrine. Sig.

4031³. He first acknowledges and believes . . . and then denies . . . They who once acknowledge at heart, and afterwards deny, are they who profane.

4110². Evil Spirits . . . are adjoined in order to induce the negative things which are to be dispelled, so that the man may be the better confirmed in truths and goods.

4197. Christians who have not lived in charity, have closed Heaven against themselves, very many so that it cannot be opened; for they know truths and deny them . . .

4214⁴. They who deny or despise the Lord (are in fatuous lumen).

4302⁶. That on account of the disagreement of the natural man, it is better to be in simple good, although in the denial of truth, is signified by 'to enter halt into life.'

4321. Although these things appear incredible, still they are not to be denied, because experience itself dictates them. If all things of which the causes are not known were to be denied, innumerable things which come forth in nature would be denied, the causes of which are known scarcely as to the one ten thousandth part . . . How much more is this the case with the arcana which come forth in the sphere above nature ! Examp.

4493⁴. That there is any internal sense . . . he denies.

4503⁷. Fallacies from sensuous things, by means of which the truths of the Church cannot be seen ; concerning which, therefore, they are in negative doubt. Sig.

4622. He does indeed wish to know how the case is with Heaven, etc., but when he is told, he yet believes nothing, because at heart he denies their existence . . .

4689². Many of those who come from the Christian world, who also have preached the Lord in the world, there utterly deny Him . . .

4731². This supreme or inmost truth, that the Human of the Lord is Divine, is denied by those in the Church who are in faith alone.

4760². Hence it is evident, that those who are in the Negative, if they consult scientifics, cast themselves more into falsities . . .

—⁴. The learned consult scientifics . . . from the Negative, and thereby destroy in themselves all insight from above or within . . .

5057³. Heaven is never denied to anyone by the Lord . . .

5135². If he then denies them, it is a sign that he is in evil . . .

5159³. The things which are higher or more interior, he at heart denies.

5164^e. There are very many within the Church who deny the Lord, and say that they acknowledge a Supreme Being.

5179. Because they deny all that which is called spiritual . . . There thence come forth many things which the man who attributes all things to nature either denies, or ascribes to a more occult nature.

5700². Thus it happens that when they have inverted heavenly order in this way, they at last deny Divine things, those which are of Heaven, and consequently those which are of charity and faith . . .

6015³. If it were demonstrated, they would not believe, because the Negative universally reigns.

6383. They who do not believe unless scientific and sensuous things dictate, and who are in the Negative to begin with, never believe ; the reason is, that the Negative universally reigns, and when this universally reigns, the scientifics which deny flow in and are gathered together, but those which confirm . . . are rejected to the sides, or are explained in favour of the denying scientifics, and thus the Negative is strengthened.

6479. With those who are in the Negative, that is, those with whom the Negative universally reigns, doubts can never be removed, for with them one scruple avails more than a thousand confirmations.

—^e. But these Spirits attended but little to these things, because they were in the Negative.

6729^e. See DAUGHTER at this ref.

6959². See PROFANE at these refs. 6963^e.

7290². If the internal man afterwards denies that which miracles have confirmed, there takes place an opposition and collision of the internal and external man . . . thus profanation.

—⁴. Miracles would effect still less at this day . . . when everything (spiritual) is denied ; for there universally reigns a Negative against the Divine influx and government . . .

7351. Hence it is, that after a man has falsified truths, he at last utterly denies them . . .

7492. With those in whom they are extinguished, the good which is of love and the truth which is of faith are denied, and the evils and falsities which are contrary are affirmed.

8567. See TEMPTATION at this ref.

8868. The Lord is not in the truths with man, when he denies Him and His Divine.

8971. Living experience from those in the other life, who in their heart have denied that the Word is inspired from the Divine . . . It was observed that they had lived at their pleasure, and that therefore in their hearts they had denied the Divine, Heaven and Hell, the life after death, and all other matters of faith.

9021. Denial in every way of the Lord and His Kingdom by those who are of the Church, and thus the profanation of the good and truth of the Church. Sig. . . . 'To curse' = aversion and disjunction, thus also denial in every way ; for he who averts and disjoins himself from the Lord, denies Him at heart.

—^e. Hence it is, that the denial of the Lord is not profanation with those who are outside the Church.

9033. It is here said of God that 'He is to be feared, because He is able to destroy soul and body in Gehenna,' when yet He destroys no one ; but still it is true ; therefore, it is not to be extinguished, that is, denied ; for if it is denied, faith in the Word perishes . . .

—^e. This is attributed to the Lord in the sense of the letter, because it so appears ; therefore, as it is an apparent truth, it is not to be denied, that is, extinguished ; for thus faith for the Word would be extinguished, which faith is with the simple. Refs.

9222. Truth Divine is the Word and is doctrine from the Word ; they who deny these at heart, blaspheme, even if they praise and preach it ; blasphemy lies concealed in the denial . . .

—². They who blaspheme or deny the Word, cannot receive anything of the truth and good of faith . . . Wherefore, they who deny the Word cannot receive anything that the Word teaches ; for when they read or hear it, there occurs what is negative, which either extinguishes the truth or turns it into falsity.

9264. When the Divine truth and good which is from the Lord is denied, it is extinguished with the man, thus so is the Lord Himself . . . This truth and good is extinguished, when the Divine of the Lord is denied, and also when the Word is ; for this is Divine truth from the Lord and concerning the Lord ; to deny this, when it has been first acknowledged and received in faith, and thus to extinguish it, is 'the sin against the Holy Spirit,' which is not remitted.

9324^e. When the truths of faith and the goods of love are denied at heart, the man spiritually dies.

[A.] 9325⁴. 'What is abortive and barren' = vastations and denials of good and truth.

9755⁷. 'Its waves' = ratiocinations therefrom, and thence denials.

9818⁷. 'To speak against' Divine truth, or to deny it, when once it has been acknowledged, is profanation.

10033⁸. Let everyone within the Church therefore beware lest he deny the Lord, and also lest he deny His Divine; for to this denial Heaven is closed and Hell is open . . .

10112². Hence may be evident, what is the nature of the lot in the other life of those who are born within the Church, and still at heart deny the Lord, whatever may be their character in moral life; by much experience it has been given to know, that they cannot be saved. Sig.

10134¹³. The triple denial (of the Lord by Peter) = the plenary denial of the Lord at the end of the Church.

— . These words to Peter signified the denial of the Lord in the Church, when its end comes: for the Lord is denied when there is no longer any faith, and faith is not where there is no longer any charity.

10156². Hence it is, that the merely natural man . . . at heart denies Divine and heavenly things . . .

10175. Hence it is, that those who have taken delight in adulteries, afterwards hold cheap and also at heart deny those things which are of the Church and Heaven.

10287. He who denies the Lord is in evils and falsities; for good and truth come from no other Source than He.

10319. That the evils of the love of self and the world induce such ignorance . . . is very manifest from those within the Church, who, although they know from revelation that there is a God, etc., still fall into denial concerning these things; as well the learned as the unlearned.

10412². They who are in externals without an internal . . . in their heart deny the Divine.

10492⁴. With those who deny (the truths of faith from the Word), the internal is entirely closed . . .

10731⁹. Such are they who deny these universals (of the Church).

10744. As (those with whom the love of self and the love of the world make the life) receive nothing from Heaven, in their heart they deny God and the life after death . . .

H. 354. They who at heart have denied the Divine, however they may have confessed it with the mouth, become so stupid, that they can scarcely comprehend any civil truth, still less any spiritual one . . . The interiors of their minds are so closed up that they appear black . . .

452⁹. For the most part they are tied to some infernal Society, because such have also denied the Divine . . .

506². Quite contrary is the state of those who in the world have lived in evil, and who have no conscience, and thence have denied the Divine; for all who live in evil, interiorly in themselves deny the Divine . . .

532². Hence it is that as with those who love themselves and the world above all things the higher things of the mind are closed, at heart they deny Divine truths . . .

575. In these Hells are all those who have acknowledged nature and have denied the Divine . . .

W. 13⁹. The denial of God makes Hell; and, in Christendom, the denial of the Lord's Divinity.

P. 182. If man manifestly saw the Divine Providence, he would either deny God, or make himself God. Gen. art. 183, Ex.

185⁹. As they then manifestly see the Divine Providence . . . which is that they are to come into Hell, they not only deny God, but also blaspheme Him.

189⁹. When such are elevated into Heaven . . . they do not see anything; as I have seen done with many who have denied the Divine Providence of the Lord.

227³. But this cannot be done, if a man first acknowledges the truths of faith, and lives according to them, and afterwards recedes from and denies them. Ex.

228. He who does not know holy things, cannot acknowledge them, and afterwards deny them. . . It would be otherwise if (the Jews) were to receive and acknowledge it, and afterwards were to deny it, which, however, is rarely done; many of them acknowledge it exteriorly, and deny it interiorly, and are like hypocrites. But those profane holy things by a commingling of them with profane ones, who first receive and acknowledge, and afterwards depart and deny.

—². If as a man grows up he acknowledges truths and lives according to them, and afterwards denies them, he commingles holy with profane things.

231⁶. The sixth kind of profanation is from those who acknowledge the Word, yet deny the Divine of the Lord. Ex.

—⁷. The seventh kind of profanation is from those who first acknowledge Divine truths, and live according to them, and afterwards recede from and deny them. This is the worst kind of profanation. Ex.

236⁹. Wherefore, he can use these things as arguments to deny (the Divine Providence).

326. The acknowledgment of God makes the conjunction of God with man and of man with God, and the denial of God makes the separation. Gen. art.

—⁵. They who deny God in the world, deny Him after death.

R. 180. 'Thou hast not denied My name' (Rev. iii. 8) = that they are in the worship of the Lord.

202. 'Thou art neither cold nor hot' = that those who are such now deny that the Word is Divine and holy, and now acknowledge that it is so.

— . Such are the same in relation to God, now they deny and now they acknowledge Him; in like manner in relation to all things of the Church.

476. At this day that there is one God is not denied, but that the Lord is He, is denied. That the Church is from Him who is the Saviour and Redeemer is not denied; but that He is to be immediately approached as the Saviour and Redeemer, is denied . . .

872. These cannot do otherwise than interiorly in themselves deny God; for this lies stored up in a life of evil confirmed by falsities.

T. 14¹. Then, on account of his denial of God, he is damned.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that he who denies God is already among the damned, and, after death, he is gathered to his own.

147³. The minds of all men who deny the holiness of the Word and the Divinity of the Lord, think in the lowest region (of the mind).

382. All they are evil who deny the creation of the world by God, and thus deny God; for they are naturalistic atheists. . . Wherefore, they who deny God do not will and therefore are not able to receive any good from any source than their own proprium. . .

D. 2088. There were some Spirits who denied; but it was perceived by others, that they said this from malignity. . . which they also confessed, saying, that they wanted to be potent with the licence of saying and denying.

2651. As this is the truth, there should be no ratiocination about the truth of the thing from causes; and if no causes are found, the truth is not to be invalidated or denied, as is usually the case; but being the truth it ought to be believed; if they want to investigate the causes, they may do so. . . provided that if they do not find the cause. . . the truth be not therefore denied; it is as with almost all things in nature. . . if all things were denied because the causes are not found, there would be no natural truth.

2663^e. In the ideas (of the simple at heart), there is no such doubt and Negative, as there is in the ideas of those who suppose that they are wise from themselves.

3105. It has sometimes happened, that they who in life have preached heavenly truths. . . denied them when they were demonstrated in the other life, because they had been in a state of ratiocination concerning them. Examp.

3493. That by means of disputations the Knowledges of faith may be brought to denial.

— Those things which in themselves are manifest, and are in light, if they come into discussion, come into obscurity or ignorance, and from ignorance or obscurity into doubt, and from doubt into denial.

— Those with whom the Lord has rooted and confirmed the Knowledges of faith, although from the sphere of persuasions they seem to themselves to be driven as it were into denial, still it is dispelled. . . and the denial is driven away, then the doubt, and then the obscurity. . .

3569^e. If those who do not believe were taken into Heaven, and were to acknowledge and confess; when let back, they at once deny as before that Heaven exists.

3623. That delights and pleasures are never denied to man.

— They have never been denied to me. . .

5150. On those who deny God confirmatively. . .

5669. They from whom this sphere (of violation) exhales, are they who in their heart deny the Divine, and those things which are of the Church; but outwardly appear civil, bland, moral.

6029. On those who do not think anything about the Divine, but still do not deny these things.

E. 136. 'Thou hast not denied the faith' (Rev.ii.13) = constancy in truths. 'Not to deny,' when predicated of faith = to be constant; for he who is constant, does not deny.

209. 'Thou hast not denied My name' = that they acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human.

670. Love draws. . . the thoughts into its own side; wherefore, when they think in solitude they entirely deny the things they confess with the mouth before the world.

Ath. 84. The sin against the Holy Spirit is the denial of the Lord in the Word; for they who deny this, tacitly and at heart deny all things of Heaven and the Church, because all these are from the Word; and they deny that the Lord is Divine.

95. To deny the Divine of the Lord, and thus the Word, is the sin against the Holy Spirit.

147. Everything of love and faith depends thereon; wherefore, they who deny God, because there is disjunction from Him, are in Hell.

Depart. Decedere.

Departure. Decensus.

A. 1637. Little children who have departed before they have learned any language. . .

8029. All men after their departure are first below Heaven among Spirits. . .

T. 160². All who depart from the natural world. . .

D. 406. Not long departed from the life of the body. 758^e.

2030. On a certain person newly departed.

3546. An Angel who had departed in infancy. . .

Depart. Discedere.

Departure. Discessus.

See under JOURNEY, and MOVE AWAY.

A. 2559. 'When God made me depart from my father's house' (Gen.xx.13) = when He left behind what is scientific and the appearances thence, with their delights. . . 'To depart' = to leave behind.

7972. The first state of departure, and its quality. Sig.

D. 192. The approach and the departure (of Spirits).

313. Some had departed [this life] a few years before.

E. 617¹⁸. 'Depart from Me, workers of iniquity' (Luke xiii.27). Ex.

Depart. Excedere.

Departure. Excessus.

See also EXCEED.

P. 69. After his departure out of the world. 101². M.2².

T. 607². When man departs out of the natural world. . .

Depend. Dependere.

Dependence. Dependentia.

A. 2026°. On the Heaven of Angels depends the Heaven of Angelic Spirits . . .

6465. The posterior depends upon the prior . . .

8728. Perpetual dependence thence. Sig. . . 'To judge,' here, =subordinate disposition, which is dependence.

— . The Angels and the angelic Societies are in such subordination and dependence . . .

M. 216a. Their love depends upon their husbands.

D. 486. Unless they depended on a single love, which is Divine . . .

Depopulate. See RAVAGE.

Deportation. Deportatio. E.403¹⁸.

Deposit. See LAY UP—reponere.

Deposit. Positio. A.8455. 8456.

Depravity. Pravitas, Depravare.

A. 1260. In a depraved Church.

4317⁵. The interior form itself . . . is depraved . . .

5185°. Not so much from evil of life, as from natural depravity. D.893.

8622°. They pervert and utterly deprave the affections of truth and good.

Deprecate. See under ENTREAT.

Deprive. Privare, Deprivare.

Deprivation. Privatio, Deprivatio.

A. 2689. Such do not know what it is to grieve on this account, that they are deprived of truths; they believe that anxiety is possible only because one is deprived of the goods of the body and the world. But they who are able to be reformed . . . come into anxiety when they are deprived (of good and truth).

—². All anxiety and grief is from this source, that one is deprived of those things which he loves . . .

2889. They believe that if they were deprived (of cupidities and persuasions), nothing of life would be left. 3938⁴.

3607. The inversion and privation of the life of truth from self. Sig.

— . 'To kill Jacob his brother' = to deprive truth of life from self. 3610.

3610. When they who are in such affection of truth are deprived of this life, they then first receive life . . . But they who are in the affection of self and the world, believe . . . that if they were deprived of that life, they would not live at all . . . When yet the case is, that when they are deprived of that life, namely, of the affection of self and of the world, life flows in from the Lord . . .

—³. That good had the disposition of inverting the state, and of depriving truth of life from itself. Sig. and Ex.

4054². I perceived from the . . . privation of affection, that such Societies were present.

4220°. They are deprived of all intelligence . . .

5270. 'There shall be seven years of famine' = the apparent lack and privation of truth.

5376. How the case is with the desolation of the Natural, or with the privation of truth there. Ex.

6914³. They are kept in the fear . . . of the deprivation of possessions in that region of Heaven . . .

7097³. Lest they should abuse the truths of faith, they are deprived of them . . .

7217. 'Straitness of spirit' = anxiety on account of the deprivation of the truth which is of faith, and of the good which is of charity, and a consequent state near to despair.

—². When they suppose themselves to be deprived of the truth and goods of faith and charity, such are affected as with the death agony . . .

7295³. The three degrees of the taking away and deprivation of the influx of truth and good. Sig.

—^e. By such degrees, the evil in the other life are deprived of the understanding of truth and good.

9189. 'Thou shalt not vivify' = the deprivation of spiritual life.

— . Those deprive themselves of spiritual life who conjoin to the truths of faith falsities from the evil of self-love.

9205. 'I will kill you with the sword' = that they will deprive themselves of good and truth by means of falsities.

9960°. When nakedness regards the head, which is baldness, it = the deprivation of intelligence of truth and wisdom of good; when it regards the whole body, it = the deprivation of the truths which are of faith; and when it regards the loins and genitals, it = the deprivation of the good of love. Ex.

H. 155°. 'Night' = the deprivation of love and wisdom.

208. As soon as this is done, the Angel is deprived of his intelligence and wisdom.

400. They come into the delight of their concupiscence from the deprivation and removal of heavenly delight with those who are in it. —

D. 4439°. They deprive all others of their delight . . .

E. 384. The deprivation of all the good and thence of all the truth from the Word, and thence in their doctrine of the Church from the Word. Sig.

— . 'To kill' = to deprive of good and truth.

— . They who are in evils and falsities, deprive themselves of all the perception of good and of the understanding of truth from the Word, and thence in their doctrine of the Church. Ex.

386. 'Hunger' = the privation of the Knowledges of truth and good, also the lack and ignorance of them.

— . It is said that 'hunger' = the deprivation of the Knowledges of truth and good, also the lack and ignorance of them, because deprivation exists with those who are in evils and thence falsities, lack with those who are not able to know them, and ignorance with those who know there are such things and therefore long for them.

—³. The deprivation of all truth and thence of all good. Sig.

—⁵. 'Famine' = the deprivation of the Knowledges of good . . . 'the sword,' the deprivation of the Knowledges of truth . . .

—⁷. 'The sword' = the deprivation of truth by means of falsities; 'famine,' the deprivation of good by means of evils; and 'pestilence,' the deprivation of spiritual life. —⁸.

591^o. Spiritual life is extinguished by means of perversions of good and falsifications of truth; also by means of deprivations of the Knowledges of truth and good . . .

654⁵⁵. The deprivation of all truth on account of recession. Sig.

677³. The signs of the presence of such are . . . the deprivation of the perception of good . . .

Deride. See MOCK.

Derive. Derivare.

Derivation. Derivatio.

Derivative. Derivativus.

See PRINCIPIATE, and under LEAD-ducere.

A. 1214. 'The sons of Ham' = the derivations of doctrinal things and worships from corrupt internal worship.

1330. 'These are the nativities of Shem' = the derivations of the second Ancient Church. 'Nativities' = the origin and derivation of doctrinal things and worships.

1339. 'Begat Shelah' = derivation thence.

2762⁴. From the Ancient Church, the signification of a horse . . . was derived to the wise round about, also into Greece.

2847. 'In multiplying I will multiply' = the derivations of truth from affection.

2973². Represented the celestial and spiritual things flowing forth and derived thence in order.

3116. The derivations thence as from their root, or as from their seed, derive-trahunt-their form . . .

3240. The derivations from the first lot. Sig.

— By these are signified the states and derivations of the Lord's Spiritual Church.

—². Hence, now, are the derivations; namely, the derivations of good and the derivations of truth; the derivations of good in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, which are represented by 'the sons of Jokshan'; and the derivations of truth there, which are represented by 'the sons of Midian.'

3242. Derivations from the third lot. Sig.

— 'Sons' = the derivations thence.

3263. The derivations of the Spiritual Church represented by 'Ishmael.' Sig.

— 'Nativities' = the derivations of faith, thus of the Church. Refs. 3267.

3267. The interior qualities according to the derivations of faith. Sig.

—². These varieties are the derivations which are signified by 'nativities.'

3279. 'Nativities' = derivations; namely, the derivations of faith when faith is treated of, and the derivations of the Church when the Church is treated of.

3469³. This is derived into the children . . .

3562. The things beneath are nothing but derivations and compositions thence.

3579. This good . . . again produces good; and, through this good, truths again, which are derivations.

4174^o. When good flows in, they derive it into themselves, and into their own proprium . . .

4642. In what follows, the Lord's Divine natural good is treated of, but its derivations are described by names . . . because the derivations of this good exceed the understanding of any man or Angel. . . But still, when this chapter is read, the derivations which are contained in the names, are represented to the Angels in a general way . . .

4643^o. The first derivations thence . . . and the second. Sig.

4646. Derivations in Divine natural good. Sig.

— The quality of the derivations. Sig.

— The first derivation of good. Sig.

—^o. The third derivation. Sig.

5114. 'In the vine three shoots' = the derivations thence even to the ultimate one. . . 'Shoots' = derivations; for as 'the vine' = the Intellectual, 'the shoots' are nothing but the derivations thence. 5122.

6310. The interiors of man are distinct according to degrees by means of derivations.

6583. The establishment of the Church as to the Intellectual and the derivatives thereof. Sig.

— 'The tertian sons' = the derivatives; for as sons and son's sons descend from a parent, they = the derivatives of that thing which is represented by the parent.

6584. And as to the Voluntary and its derivatives. Sig.

— The derivatives of the Voluntary of the Church, which are signified by 'the sons of Machir,' are goods conjoined with truths, thus also truths from good; for the truths which are derived from good are the forms of good.

6647. 'To be produced' = further derivation; for when the Church has been established with a man, good continually grows and is derived, both in the internal and also towards the external, and therein.

6648. 'To become numerous' = further derivation, thus continual increase of truth.

7004². Order has been so instituted, that the First being may be in the things derived mediately and immediately . . . Divine truth itself is the only substantial thing; the things derived are nothing but successive forms thence.

7230³. The first class of the derivations of good and truth thence. Sig.

— The second class of the derivations of good and truth thence. Sig.

— The third class of the derivations of good and truth. Sig.

[A. 7230³]. The conjunction of derived good with related truth. Sig.

—⁴. A successive derivation from the second class, which is good and thence truth. Sig.

— . A second successive derivation from the same class, as to good in truth. Sig.

— . The derivations of faith and charity, their quality. Sig.

—⁵. A repeated derivation from the second class. Sig.

—^e. Derivation (from the conjunction of good and truth in these doctrinal things). Sig.

7318². Truth is falsified, when it is said that the Lord derived all sins into Himself . . .

7374. They are in the love of the world, who desire to derive into themselves the goods of others.

7966^e. There are such productions and derivations of truth with those who are of the Spiritual Church. Rep.

8550. All the evil which by means of habit has taken on nature, is derived into the offspring . . . The derivation of evil from this source at last becomes so great, that everything of man's proper life is nothing but evil. This derived Continuous is not broken and altered, except by means of a life of faith and charity from the Lord. N. 175.

8603². The derivations and thence the successions in general, as to their quality, may be presented to the idea by means of fruits. Ex.

8719. To derive also to others. Sig.

8982. 'Sons and daughters' = the truths and goods derived thence.

—^c. 'Nativities' = derivations.

9079. Insult by the affection of evil against the truths and goods of faith derived from interior things. Sig.

— . The reason they are truths and goods derived from interior things, is that interior things are as parents, from which goods and truths are born as sons and daughters.

9141². This is the derivation of this word. 9303.

9325³. Goods and truths and their derivations. Sig.

9568. Good is that from which are truths, and truths from good are the things from which are scientifics; thus is derived and produced the one from the other; but still good is in all the things produced and derived, because they are from good.

—³. Hence it may be evident, how the one is produced and derived from the other, and that the first is everything in the things produced and derived . . .

10011. What is inmost in the Heavens inflows into the Heavens which are below, and produces and derives them . . . That which is inmost is the only thing which essentially lives in the things derived.

H. 286^e. From peace by derivation the Angels have all blessedness . . .

399. Self-love abstracts all delight from others, and derives it into itself . . . 400⁴.

424. He wants to derive into himself the goods of all others . . .

553². As from a plane of derivation . . .

W. 363². See DESIRE—cupire, at this ref.

—³. From these two are ultimately derived sensations . . .

P. 28³. Affections are derivations from the love of each person.

33. The derivations which are the affections of this love, are as many as are the evils into which it determines itself.

106². The love of each person cannot exist without derivations, which are called affections; the derivations of infernal love are affections of evil and falsity, properly concupiscences; and the derivations of heavenly love are affections of good and truth, properly dilections.

206². The concupiscences of evil, which are derivations of it, have life in them from it.

875². The derivations of love are called affections . . . M. 197. I. 8⁴.

461⁶. In derivation it is called delight . . . and in the universal sense, Good.

D. 4439. Wherever they go they derive to themselves the delights of others.

—^e. They who are in self-love deprive all others of their delight, and derive it into themselves.

4608^e. The singles by derivation from principles make one.

4627⁴. In universal nature there are perpetual compositions and derivations . . .

4864. The derivations were similar, as it were of children . . .

—^e. The examination of derivation as of families . . .

E. 775³. The organs (of sense and motion) are derivations thence, just as streams are from their springs, or as principiates from their principles, or as substantiates from their substances; and these derivations are of such a nature, that the brains are present everywhere . . .

828². They are the derivations and productions of the uses before mentioned . . .

Derogate. Derogare.

A. 1813². He derogates from the Lord that which is His.

8478⁴. They take away providence from the Divine, and claim it for themselves. T. 439.

H. 587². One rages against another who derogates from his divine Power.

Descartes. Cartesius.

I. 19. See ARISTOTLE at this ref.

Inv. 13. The hypothesis of the learned concerning the soul, especially of Descartes and others, that it is a substance separate from the body, in some place or other.

Descend. Descendere.

Descent. Descensus.

See FLOW DOWN.

A. 1311. 'Jehovah came down' (Gen. xi. 5) = judgment upon them. . . 'To come down,' relatively to Jehovah, is predicated when judgment takes place . . .

—³. 'To come down' is predicated of Jehovah, because 'most high' is predicated of Him . . . Ill.

1320. 'Come, let us go down' (ver.7)=judgment so done.

2242. 'I will go down I pray, and I will see' (Gen. xviii.21)=visitation. 'To go down to see'=judgment; thus, it=visitation . . .

— . To descend cannot be predicated of the Lord, because He is always in the highest . . .

2299². Afterwards, I saw represented by them the descent of the Lord to the bound . . . H.335².

2454². 'Let him not come down to take them away' (Luke xvii.31)=to turn himself away from good to truth.

2702¹⁵. 'To go down into the plain' (Ezek.xlvii.8)=the doctrinal things which are of the Rational.

3084. Hence it is that 'to ascend' is predicated towards Jerusalem, but 'to descend' from Jerusalem.

—². Therefore it is here first said that the affection of truth, which is represented by 'Rebekah,' 'went down to the fountain,' and presently, that it 'went up' (Gen.xxiv.16); for Divine love inflows into the affection of good, and thence into the affection of truth, and vivifies and enlightens those things which are in the natural man, and then disposes them into order; this is signified by 'to descend.'

3701. See ASCEND at these refs. 3702. 3882². 4009. 4042. 5406. 5492^o. H.35. L.35¹¹. W.199. 218. M.302.

3721. The natural mind is that through which . . . the things of the Lord inflow and descend into nature, and through the same mind those things which are of nature ascend.

3882². Descent is nothing else than from good to behold truth, as from a mountain . . .

4279. As the Word is from the Lord, and descends from Him through Heaven to man, it is Divine as to every single thing; and, as it has descended from the Lord, so it ascends, that is, is elevated to Him, and this through the Heavens . . . Wherefore, when the Word ascends as it descends, in the Lord it is Divine, in the Third Heaven it is celestial . . .

4785. 'I will go down to the grave to my son mourning' (Gen.xxxvii.35)=that the Ancient Church would perish.

4815. Therefore it was said 'to descend' from Zion and Jerusalem towards the boundaries, but from the boundaries to Jerusalem and Zion, 'to ascend.' Hence it is, that 'to ascend' involves elevation to truth and good, and 'to descend,' casting down to falsity and evil . . . Hence it is here said, that 'Judah went down from his brethren' (Gen.xxxviii.1). 4816.

4964. '(Joseph) was made to go down to Egypt' (Gen. xxxix.1)=to the scientifics which are of the Church. Ex.

4969. 'Who made him go down thither' (id.)=from that good to these scientifics. . . It is said 'to go down,' because it treats of scientifics, which are exterior things; for in the Word to go from interior to exterior things is called 'going down,' but from exterior to interior things, 'going up.'

5406. 'Go down thither, and buy for us from thence'

(Gen.xlii.2)=appropriation thereby; (for) 'to go down' is predicated of going towards exterior things.

5546. 'My son shall not go down with you' (ver.38) =that he will not let himself down to lower things. 'To go down' is predicated of going towards lower things; here, to the scientific truths which are in the interior Natural.

5602. That this truth of good should be conjoined with him, is signified by their 'causing him (Benjamin) to go down' (Gen.xliii.7).

5637. 'They rose up and went down to Egypt' (ver. 15)=elevation to procure themselves life from the interior things of scientifics . . . 'To go down'=to procure themselves life. Ex.

5655. 'Coming down we came down at the beginning to buy food' (ver.20)=the disposition of procuring good for truths. . . 'To come down'=the disposition or intention; for he who comes down, or betakes himself anywhere, does it with a disposition.

5660. 'Other silver we cause to come down in our hand' (ver.22)=that there is a disposition to procure good elsewhere by means of truth. . . 'To cause to come down'=a disposition to procure.

5809. 'Cause him to come down unto me' (Gen.xliv. 21)=that this new truth should be subjected to internal good. Ex.

5832. 'Ye will make my grey hair to go down in evil to the grave' (ver.29)=that spiritual good would perish, and thus the internal of the Church. . . 'To go down in good into the grave'=to rise again, and to be regenerated; therefore 'to go down in evil into the grave,' is the opposite, thus to perish.

5897⁹. Lest they descend from good, and look backwards . . . is signified by 'he who is upon the house, let him not go down to take anything out of the house . . .'

5909. 'Come down unto me, tarry not' (Gen.xlv.9)=sure conjunction. 'To come down,' or, to come to me, =conjunction.

6004. 'Fear not to go down into Egypt' (Gen.xlvi.3)=that natural truth, with all things belonging to it, must be initiated into the scientifics of the Church. . . 'To go down'=to be initiated; for, in order that this initiation might be represented, Jacob with all that belonged to him went down into Egypt.

6023. 'To go down into Egypt'=to initiate truth, and to gather them into the scientifics of the Church.

6075. They are called 'fathers,' because from them the Church has descended . . .

6221^e. As to each and all things, the Word has descended from the Lord . . . In its descent it has clothed itself with forms adapted to apprehension in the three Heavens, and at last with a form for the apprehension of man . . .

6854. See DELIVER at this ref.

— . With the Lord's descending, the case is this . . .

—². This is what is meant by the descent of the Lord to the inhabitants of the infernal regions—ad inferos. 8018.

7787. 'All thy servants shall come down unto me' (Ex.xi.8)=those who are subordinate.

[A.] 7985. From the (time of the) descent of Jacob into Egypt . . .

8279. 'They went down into the deeps as a stone' (Ex.xv.5)=that they fell to lower things as by their weight.

8792. 'Jehovah will come down to the eyes of all the people' (Ex.xix.11)=the Advent of the Lord, and then enlightenment. 'To come down,' when said of Jehovah, that is, the Lord,=His presence by means of influx, thus His Advent. Here the Advent of the Lord is meant by the descent of Jehovah to the eyes of all the people . . .

8805. 'Moses came down from the mountain to the people' (ver.14)=application and preparation by means of truth from the Divine to receive truths in good. 'To come down,' when said of Moses,=application, and also preparation thereby.

—². The descent of Jehovah upon Mount Sinai=His presence in Heaven. 8826.

8840. 'Away and go down' (ver.24)=influx.

8920². When truth Divine descends through the Heavens to men, as the Word has descended, it is accommodated on the way to all in Heaven and on earth.

8931^e. In order that they might know that the Word was from the Divine through Heaven, the Lord Himself willed to descend, and promulgate the ten commandments with a living voice . . .

9110. Then the spiritual man descends, that is, thinks in the natural.

9806⁴. 'That went down upon the mouth of his garments' (Ps.cxxxiii.2) . . . 'To go down'=influx.

9905⁵. All things which are of light from the Divine descend even to the ultimate ends . . .

10184². 'To go down to take something out of the house'=a return to the former state.

10396. 'To delay to come down' (Ex.cxxxii.1), when said of the apperception of Divine truth from the Word, =not to flow in; for the Divine truth which inflows with man is said to descend from Heaven.

10413. The difference between the elevation to a state of loves with the good, and with the evil, is that the good then ascend, and the evil descend. Ex.

10419. 'Go, get thee down' (Ex.cxxxii.7)=a looking into their external. 'To go down from Mount Sinai'=to look into, review, and examine; for 'Mount Sinai'=Heaven, from which is Divine truth; and 'to descend thence,' in the spiritual sense, is not to descend with the body, but with the mind, thus it is to look into and review.

10450. 'And Moses looked back and went down from the Mount' (ver.15)=the Word let down from Heaven. 'To look back and go down,' when said of the Word, =to be let down.

10540. 'Make thine ornament to descend from upon thee' (Ex.cxxxiii.5)=the quality of their external without the Divine. . . 'To make it descend from upon them'=to put it off, thus to be without it.

10689. 'It came to pass as Moses descended from Mount Sinai' (Ex.cxxxiv.29)=the influx of the internal into the external of the Word, of the Church, and of worship.

10814. This love increases in descending . . .

H. 307². 'The holy city descending from God out of Heaven'=its heavenly doctrine revealed by the Lord. R.879.

373. It thence descends into the body . . .

— . Whatever descends from the spiritual man into the body, presents itself there under a different appearance.

W. 218. These ascending and descending degrees . . . 274.

275⁴. This truth on the way in its descent was by degrees turned into falsity . . . (T.135).

R. 195. 'Which cometh down out of Heaven from my God' (Rev.iii.12)=which will be of the Lord's Divine truth, such as it is in Heaven.

465. 'I saw another mighty Angel coming down from Heaven' (Rev.x.1)=the Lord in Divine majesty and power.

558. 'Because the devil hath come down to you, having great anger' (Rev.xii.12)=to those who are in the World of Spirits; and as these are in conjunction with the men of the Earth, it also=to such in the Earth.

754. 'An Angel coming down from Heaven' (Rev.xviii.1)=the influx of the Lord out of Heaven.

875. I saw two Angels descending from Heaven . . . T.386.

879^e. It is said (of the holy city) 'coming down from God out of Heaven,' because from the Lord through the New Christian Heaven.

M. 4. The Angels said, Let us descend . . .

183³. In the descent into the body . . .

402. The love for little children descends, and does not ascend. Gen.art.

B. 117. Jehovah descended and assumed the Human . . . T.3. S2. 83S.

T. 24². Man thus prepares the way by which God descends and elevates him.

77^e. They then descended; and as they descended the love of evil returned . . .

80^e. As he descended, forgetfulness expelled recollection . . . and he became as insane as ever.

85. That Jehovah God descended as Divine truth . . . S6. SS. Can. Redeemer ii.

89. As God descended . . .

92. By being sent into the world is meant to descend . . .

135³. Then, by command of the Lord, there descended three Angels from Heaven . . .

193. The Word in its bosom is spiritual, because it descended from Jehovah, and passed through the angelic Heavens . . .

691². The Lord Himself does not descend, but an Angel . . .

716. 'He came down from Heaven' with the Divine. Ill.

784. As this New Heaven . . . grows, so from that Heaven descends the New Jerusalem . . .

851^e. Now, when the New Church is commencing, or when the New Jerusalem is descending from Heaven.

E. 375^{2b}. Its 'descending upon the mouth of his garments'=that thence is all the good and delight of Heaven from inmosts to ultimates. . . By 'to descend upon the mouth of the garments' is signified the influx and conjunction of celestial good and spiritual good.

—'. 'As the dew of Hermon which descended upon the mountains of Zion'=the conjunction of truth and good.

405⁴². The Last Judgment is meant by 'Jehovah . . . cometh down' (Micah i. 3).

Descendant. See POSTERITY.

Describe. Describere.

Description. Descriptio.

A. 801. Are here described . . . —.

—². When man is described in the Word, he is described distinctly, as to the one part, and as to the other. . . Thus there is a full description of everything.

2183³. These things can hardly be described to the common apprehension . . .

2618^e. By description from such things they are more obscured.

2795. If they were described, even most clearly, they would still appear obscure. 4302².

4645^e. That all things cannot be described. Sig.

5228. This does not enter the sense, however it is described.

6486. Few of these things can be described . . .

7131^e. The singular truths, which are the interiors of faith, can never be described . . .

8625^e. Their malignity cannot be described.

H. 409. Heavenly joy itself, such as it is in its essence, cannot be described . . .

413. Because from living experience, I can know it, but never describe it.

J. 27³. Hence it is that the Spiritual World cannot be described . . . D. 1086.

—^e. There are very few things there which are described.

W. 202³. These distinctions cannot be expressed in natural language, thus not described . . . They can only be expressed and described by the Angels themselves, by means of their own languages, words, and writings.

D. 218. According to their description . . .

E. 850⁸. 'Jehovah shall count in describing the peoples' (Ps. lxxxvii. 6).

De Verbo 3⁸. How the spiritual operate cannot be described before the Natural; and how the celestial operate cannot be described before the Spiritual.

—¹¹. Nor can these things be described, except imperfectly . . .

Desert. See WILDERNESS.

Desert. Deserere.

Desertion. Desertio.

M. 468. Malicious desertion (a cause of divorce).

D. 5663a. This Mohammed . . . was entirely deserted.

E. 555⁵. 'A woman forsaken, and afflicted in spirit' (Is. liv. 6)=the Church which is not in truths, but is still in the affection or longing for them. 'A woman'=the Church, which is said to be 'forsaken' when not in truths. . . That it is to be established by the Lord, and delivered from spiritual captivity, is meant by, 'For a small moment have I forsaken thee, but with great compassions will I gather thee together again' (ver. 7).

617⁸. The desertion and vastation of the Church is meant by 'the land being deserted and loathed' (Is. vii. 16).

654³⁶. That all the truths of the Church are driven away, is signified by '. . . they have left him' (Ezek. xxxi. 12).

—⁶⁰. 'Thou hast forsaken Jehovah' (Jer. ii. 17)=aversion to being reformed by the Lord.

Designate. Designare.

A. 1884^e. To the designated place. H. 441^e. D. 2336.

E. 374⁹. 'The appointed barley' (Is. xxviii. 25).

413. The man is then at once designated either to Heaven or to Hell.

Designer. See CONTRIVE.

Design. See under COUNSEL.

Designs. Technica.

M. 76⁶. Many designs upon the walls.

Desirable. Appetibilis.

A. 207. 'Desirable to the eyes' (Gen. iii. 6)=phantasy.

209. 'Desirable to the eyes, desirable=desiderabilis—to give intelligencce'=such things as were applicable to their nature . . . In special, they regard the will.

Desire. Cupire, Cupido.

See CUPIDITY.

A. 815. They desire to destroy the soul also.

—'. They are kept in the desire of revenge . . .

951. They are kept in the strongest desire of ascending into Heaven . . . Their desire is increased, and is more and more turned into anxiety . . .

957. From innate desire they regard all things with longing.

963. When the desire of breaking out thence is kindled . . .

1188. From the predominant desire of innovating . . .

1472. Originates from the desire which is of the external man.

1480^e. Appetite and taste correspond to the desire for knowledges.

1917. Diabolical Spirits desire nothing more than . . .

[A.] 403^S. The delight, pleasure, and desire-cupidum—there, belong to the will, and are called natural goods.

4049. They constantly had the desire and longing to come into Heaven. Such are they who relate to the ventricles of the brain . . . This endeavour (of the lymph) corresponds to this desire and longing.

5006^S. They frequented places of worship, not from any longing to know the things of Heaven, but from another desire drawn from the time of early childhood.

6481^S. The evil want to be eminent, to be enriched, and therefore to seem upright and zealous, and from this desire, as from a fire, are excited to do such things more than the upright.

6495^S. As the man who is in this state desires nothing but evils . . . lest he should act as he desires . . . he is kept in bonds . . .

7541^E. The desire always remaining.

8906^S. 'The fire which burns before Him' = the desire of evil; 'the flame which burns after Him' = the desire of falsity thence.

H. 283. They are kindled with a cruel desire of injuring.

343. Such a desire is innate to Spirits.

400^S. They desired the communication (of heavenly joy) to themselves, which was done; for what a Spirit who is not yet in Heaven or Hell desires, is granted to him, if it is advantageous . . .

N. 33. For will they have desire. M. 291.

W. 363^S. There are many things of love, to which other names have been allotted, because they are derivations; as affections, desires, appetites, and their pleasures and delights.

P. 96⁴. Natural affection, which in itself is desire . . . is what alone leads and moves beasts . . .

183². This desire lies inmosty concealed in hereditary evil . . .

199. Except some desire-cupidum—connected with the body.

R. 133. They are in the lust of the adultery of a son with his mother.

M. 454. As it verges towards the desire of varieties, and to the desire of defloration.

T. 459. The desire seized me . . .

D. 780. They still inwardly desired honour in the world . . . which desire it was granted me to perceive . . . That which is heavenly desires nothing of the kind . . .

817. Spirits desire, and induce their cupidity on man. Examp.

3394. There is still resistance from his desire of glory in life, which was such as almost to surpass the desires of all others.

3529. That Spirits . . . perceive what man desires.

5967. They had no affection for truth, justice and right, except from their own proper desire, which desire not only excited them, but also enlightened them; for such can enlighten their cupidity in civil things . . .

E. 551. 'They desire to die' (Rev. ix. 6) = that they want to destroy the faculty of perceiving good.

556^S. 'From him that would borrow of thee' (Matt. v. 42).

J. (Post.) 19. They inspire into them the desire of going out . . .

Desire. Desiderare, Desiderium.

Desirable. Desiderabilis.

A. 85³. 'So that thou doest not thy desire in the day of My holiness . . . nor findest thy desire' (Is. lviii. 13) . . . The celestial man is such that he does not act from his own desire, but from what is well-pleasing to the Lord, which is his desire.

102. 'A tree desirable in aspect' (Gen. ii. 9) = the perception of truth.

207. 'Desirable to give intelligence' (Gen. iii. 6) = pleasure. 209.

273^S. 'The fields of desire' (Is. xxxii. 12).

314. The Spiritual Angels . . . perform for him every office which he can desire in that state. H. 450^S.

361. 'To thee is his desire, and thou shalt rule over him' (Gen. iv. 7) = that charity wants to be with faith . . . 365.

543. Some longed to know what heavenly joy is . . .

1197⁴. 'Ye have carried into your temples My desirable things' (Joel iii. 5) = the Knowledges of these things.

1392. They desire nothing more than to transfer their own happiness into others.

1904². As the Intellectual desired the Rational, as offspring, and as it is the part of the desire or affection which is speaking . . .

1925^S. 'The Angel of the covenant, whom ye have desired' (Mal. iii. 1).

1949⁴. 'He shall spoil the treasure of all the vessels of desire' (Hos. xiii. 15).

1982. Certain Souls . . . who longed to see the glory of the Lord . . .

2119. As everyone's desires follow him . . .

3537. 'Garments of desires' (Gen. xxvii. 15) = genuine truths. . . 'Of desires' = genuine.

3570⁶. To appetite and relish correspond the desire and affection of knowing truth.

— The soul, which is the good of the Rational, gives to desire and to be affected with them; thus the things which are of knowledge and doctrine it introduces by means of the delight which is of desire, and the good which is of affection.

3589. Desirable and delectable things for the Divine Rational. Sig.

— 'Dainties' = the delights which are of good and the pleasantnesses which are of truth; the delights which are of good are desirable things, and the pleasantnesses which are of truth are delectable ones; for the affection of good is what desires, and then the affection of truth is what delectates.

3928. When he desires the things of Heaven . . .

3944. The longing for interior truth. Sig.

3945. The affection and longing for the things which are of marriage love. Sig.

3946. That there is conjugal longing. Sig.

3950. Longing on the part of the affection of external truth . . . that it may be conjoined. Sig.

4017². 'Thirst' = appetite and longing, thus the affection of knowing and imbibing truth . . . 'Hunger' = the appetite, the longing, thus the affection of imbuing good.

4049. They had a constant desire—cupido—and longing to come into Heaven.

—^e. This endeavour (on the part of the lymph) corresponds to this desire and longing.

4136². Man has no desire to have Knowledges of this.

4145. 'Because desiring thou hast desired to the house of thy father' (Gen. xxxi. 30) = the desire of conjunction with the Divine good which flows in directly.

4449. 'His soul longeth for your daughter' (Gen. xxxiv. 8) = a longing for conjunction with this new Church.

4976². Good has an appetite and longs for truth.

5056. From intense longing he importuned to be admitted into Heaven . . .

—². In such a substance there is the endeavour and as it were the longing to perform use.

—^e. Thus was represented the nature of the desires of those who are in the province of the seminal vessels.

5147³. These goods in act . . . serve for their recreation; for they are their desires; and it is known that when desires are obtained in act, they are for recreation and life.

5202^e. Affects those who, from good, are in the desire of knowing truths from the Word.

5215². Spiritual heat . . . gives to desire, to love, also to be affected; therefore desires, loves, and affections are spiritual heats . . . When the desires and affections, that is, the loves, increase, the body grows warm in the same degree.

5363³. Good longs for truth, and truth for good; and according to the longing and its quality, they are conjoined together. 8313⁴. 8772².

— . With affection, longing, delight, or a holy sigh.

5576². The Angels continually long for those things which are of intelligence and wisdom.

—³. He who is in the desire of imbuing his disposition with such things as are of knowledge, intelligence and wisdom, begins to be in sorrow and suffering when he is withheld from such things, and, like one who is in famine, begins to long to return to his spiritual food.

5579^e. They come into this (state of evening) . . . in order that they may have an appetite and long for truths and goods . . .

5623². This comes from the pleasure and thence the desire. They who are in good, feel pleasure in perfecting good by means of truths . . . wherefore they long for truths; but they who are in evil, have pleasure in evil and in confirming this by means of falsities, wherefore they long for falsities; and as they long for falsities they are averse to truths.

5977. Genii . . . scent in a moment what man desires . . . They were permitted to act into my desires . . . and unless the Lord had guarded me by means of Angels, they would have perverted them into concupiscences of evil . . .

6078. 'Pasture' = what supports the spiritual life, which is chiefly scientific truth; this the soul of man longs for, as the body for food. . . That scientifics and truths support the soul, is evident from the desires of knowing with man.

— . Good Spirits and Angels are in the continual desire of knowing and of being wise . . . nor are they recreated, and elevated into the blessedness of their life, until their desires are satisfied.

6178. Longing. Sig.

—^e. This is a formula by which the affection, thus the longing of the will is expressed.

6221². The man who, when he lives in the body, longs for Heaven . . .

6222³. This enlightenment falls only into such as long to know truths . . . for the sake of life and use.

6388. They are in their delight and blessedness when they are doing good to the neighbour, for they long for nothing more.

6435. 'Even to the desire of the hills of an age' (Gen. xlix. 26) = to mutual celestial love.

7017^e. (The origin of desires.)

7666. That in the desire there is not good. Sig.

— . As 'faces' = affections, they also = desires.

8368^e. If he desires truth from affection, he has pleasantness.

8495³. The proprium from which the Angels do not act, is signified by . . . their 'not finding their own desire,' etc.

8562. He who is in spiritual life, desires his support from such things as are called heavenly meats and drinks.

—². When man is gifted with good by the Lord, he comes into the desire for truth, and this desire is kindled according to the lack of it.

—^e. Temptation attacks that which man loves and desires.

8564. The ardent longing for truth. Sig.

8568. Increase of the longing for truth. Sig.

— . 'To thirst' = to have an appetite for and to desire, namely, truth.

— . The desire of knowing truth is here described by 'to thirst;' the desire for truth is signified by 'I will not send thirst for waters, but for hearing the words of Jehovah.'

8847. From an intense longing he importuned to be admitted into Heaven.

—². As it were a blazing longing to put itself off . . .

—^e. By this was represented the nature of the longings of those who are in province to which the seminal vesicles correspond.

8869⁵. Of this it is said that 'their most desirable things shall not profit' (Is. xlv. 9). E. 587⁷, Ex.

[A.] 8910. That which an evil love breathes is called concupiscence ; but that which a good love breathes is called longing . . . Concupiscence belongs to both the will and the understanding, but is properly of the will in the understanding.

9104. Conjunction is effected by means of the state of desire of speaking with another ; hence, in the other life they come together . . . when they desire it.

91827. The Lord's 'mercy' is predicated towards those who are in the deficiency and yet in the desire of good ; and his 'compassions' towards those who are in ignorance and yet in the desire of truth.

9198. 'Any widow' = those who are in good without truth, and still long for truth. —. 9206.

—. 'An orphan' in the celestial sense, = those who are in good and long for truth. 9207.

92062. They who are in good and do not long for truth are not in good . . . Hence good is Known from the fact that it longs for truth . . . The longing itself, that is, the affection itself of truth for the sake of life, regarded in itself, is the affection of conjunction ; the case with this is as with food or bread, which long for water or wine.

9207. 'Orphans' = those who are in truth and not yet in good, yet long for good ; here, those who are in truth but do not long for good . . . That truths perish with those who do not long for good . . .

—. The truths which are conjoined with good, in themselves always have the desire of doing good, and are at the same time thereby more closely conjoined with good ; or, what is the same, they who are in truths always long to do good, and thus conjoin it with their truths ; wherefore, they who believe themselves to be in truths, and do not long to do good, are not in truths . . .

—2. 'The salt of the earth' = the truth of the Church which longs for good ; 'the infatuated salt' = truth without the longing for good . . . To long for good is to long to do what is good, and thus to be conjoined with good.

—3. 'To be salted with fire' = the longing of good for truth ; and 'to be salted with salt' = the longing of truth for good ; 'salt without savour' = truth without the longing for good ; 'to have salt in themselves' = that longing.

—4. 'Salt' = truth longing for good ; and 'infatuated salt' = the truth which is without the longing for good.

—5. That 'in every offering there was to be salt' = that there was to be in all worship the longing of truth for good, and of good for truth.

—. 'Salt' = the longing for conjunction.

—6. When the one longs to be reciprocally conjoined with the other, that is, good with truth and truth with good, they mutually regard each other.

—7. The reason 'salt' = the longing for truth. Ex.

9209. The instruction of those who are in ignorance of truth, and still are in the longing to learn. Sig.

—. 'The needy' = those who are in ignorance of truth, and still are in the longing to learn.

9269. Their longing and life. Sig.

—. 'Soul,' when predicated of those who long to be instructed in the truths of faith, who are signified by 'sojourners,' = longing and life ; for 'soul' = life from faith ; and longing is the activity itself of life ; for it is from the affection of good, and the truth of faith lives from the affection of good.

93259. 'Salt' = the longing of truth for good ; 'the going forth of the waters' = the Natural of man which receives the Knowledges of truth and good, and which is amended by means of the longing of truth for good . . . This amendment takes place, when, from such a longing, the Natural of man receives truths from the Word.

102902. This (enlightenment) takes place according to the quality of the longing for truth with man ; and the longing for truth with him is according to his love.

10300. 'Salted' = the longing of truth for good ; (for) 'salt' = the longing which is of the love of truth for good . . . The reason there ought to be the longing of truth for good, is that this longing is conjunctive of both ; for in proportion as truth longs for good, it is conjoined with it . . . Wherefore, when there is the longing for this conjunction in Divine worship and in each and all things of it, there is Heaven in each and all things therein. Sig.

—2. When it is known that 'salt' = the longing for the conjunction of truth and good, it may be known that . . . 'everything must be salted with fire' = that everyone must long from genuine love ; 'every sacrifice must be salted with salt' = that the longing from genuine love must be in all worship ; 'salt without savour' = a longing from some other than a genuine love ; and 'to have salt in themselves' = the longing of truth for good.

—3. 'Infatuated salt' = a longing from proprium, thus from the love of self and the world ; such a longing is 'the infatuated salt, not fit for anything.'

—4. That in all worship there must be the longing of truth for good. Sig.

—. Longing is the very ardour itself of love, thus its Continuous, and love is spiritual conjunction.

—5. As the longing of truth for good conjoins, so the longing of falsity for evil disjoins, and that which disjoins also destroys. Sig.

10362. 'To find his desire' (Is. lviii. 13) = to live according to the delights of their loves.

H. 71e. Wherefore the Angels long for nothing more, than that new Angel guests may come to them.

194. It is for this reason that in the Spiritual World one is made present with another, provided he longs intensely for his presence.

195. When anyone is going from one place to another . . . he comes there more quickly when he longs, and more tardily when he does not long ; the very way itself is lengthened and shortened according to the longing, although it is the same. W. 74.

274. As wisdom perfects the Angels . . . all there long for it . . .

279. He longs and has an appetite for these things solely because it is truth and because it is good.

332. Each has as many little children as she yearns for from spiritual storge.

349. It is there increased . . . but within the degree of the affection and longing for truth and its good, and not beyond it; they who have had but little affection and longing receive little . . . but they who have had much affection and longing receive much; the degree itself of affection and longing is as the measure . . . The reason is, that the love, to which belong the affection and the longing, receives all that agrees with itself. Sig.

352². They long for truth, and, from the longing, seek it . . .

365. 'The poor'=those with whom these Knowledges are deficient, and yet they long for them. 420.

—'. 'The poor man who . . . desired to be filled with the crumbs . . .' (Luke xvi.)=the gentiles, who had not the Knowledges of good and truth, and yet longed for them.

393. They are in ecclesiastical things in Heaven who in the world had loved the Word, and from longing had sought for the truths therein . . . for the sake of the use of life; these, according to the love and longing for use there, are in enlightenment and in the light of wisdom . . .

—². In proportion as these, from the longing of love, investigated the laws of what is just . . . they are in the capacity of administering offices in Heaven . . .

400³. When such have longed to know what heavenly joy is . . . 409³.

427. All in that World meet, and converse together, when they long to do so . . .

450². The Angels . . . long for nothing more than to perform offices, to instruct, and to convey into Heaven.

479. There is constantly . . . the affection of the longing to return to his like, thus to his reigning love.

—⁵. This conversation the good who were present heard with longing.

495. They then come into the longing to know what Heaven is like . . .

525. They are told . . . that they can be admitted (into Heaven) if they long for it . . .

N. 121⁶. Good is in the perpetual longing and thence endeavour to conjoin itself with truths. Refs.

J. 32. He then goes hither and thither, wherever the longings of his disposition carry him.

W. 267. The natural man can elevate his understanding . . . to what extent he desires.

P. 179. The desire of foreknowing future things is connate with very many, but this desire derives its origin from the love of evil.

321³. A few who from the heart long for this influx, sometimes receive some answer . . .

326³. Presence there is from the recollection of another with the longing to see him.

R. 782. 'The fruits of the desire of the soul' (Rev. xviii. 14)=the blessednesses and happinesses of Heaven. . . . These are the desires of men when they are dying, and are also their desires when they newly arrive in the Spiritual World.

955. 'The spirit and the bride say, Come'=that Heaven and the Church long for the Advent of the Lord. —^e. These long for the light . . .

M. 37. It follows, that the one longs for and breathes conjunction with the other. Regarded in itself, love is nothing but a longing and thence an effort for conjunction, and marriage love, for conjunction into one.

—^e. As this capacity and longing for conjunction into one is in every single thing . . .

180. The states of this love are . . . a mutual longing of the disposition and the heart to do everything good to the other. Gen.art.

—^e. This mutual longing . . . is of the body from these things.

228. Especially by accommodations to desires . . .

229. For those who long for love truly conjugal, the Lord provides similitudes . . .

T. 439. They immerse the interior desires of their mind in their proprium.

611². New desires which are of good and truth in place of cupidities . . .

Ad. 949. The very desires themselves are continuations of such loves; also cupidities, which are desires in the natural mind, from which this mind is called the disposition.

D. 1568. Appetite is said of the body; to desire-cupere, or cupidity, is of the disposition; to long, or longing, is of the interior or rational mind . . .

2037. Whatever it was given him to long for in thought, they gave him . . .

2044. They would then have all that they had ever desired . . . for it is given by the Lord to desire those things which are suitable.

D. Min. 4732. He then began to long . . . to come into Heaven. It was said to him that if he longed for this, it is permitted; for whatever anyone longs for is granted; and that all consociation is according to the affections, thus according to the desires, for these are affections. . . He said that he longed to be loosed from the Society in which he was . . . Then he was loosed, according to his desire . . . He said that he longed for a good Society . . . this also was conceded . . . but he could not remain there . . . Hence it may be evident . . . that a Society is allotted according to the desires of a man's life which he has acquired in the world . . .

E. 63. 'Ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of Man' (Luke xvii. 22).

117. 'Affliction'=anxiety from a longing to know truths . . . The reason is, that they are conjoined with the Angels of Heaven, and these continually long for truths, because they long for intelligence and wisdom; they long for these as a starving man does for food . . . This longing is also in man from early childhood, because he is then conjoined with Heaven, and this longing comes from Heaven; but it perishes with those who turn themselves to the world.

—^e. Such are they who are only in natural affection and thence longing.

[E.] 242¹². Desirable things of goods' (Joel iii.5)=the derived truths and goods, which are Knowledges from the sense of the letter.

357²⁴. 'Desirable things of the eyes' (Lam.ii.4)=all things which are of intelligence and wisdom.

386¹⁸. 'To vivify in famine'=to give spiritual life according to the desire; the desire for the Knowledges of truth and good is the spiritual affection of truth . . .

391¹¹. 'My soul longeth . . . towards the courts of Jehovah' (Ps.lxxxiv.2). 1082⁴.

405¹³. 'God desireth to dwell in it' (Ps.lxviii.16).

439⁵. 'He scattereth the peoples, they long for wars' (Ps.lxviii.30)=the subjugation of the Hells.

504²⁵. 'All our desirable things are become a waste' (Is.lxiv.11). . . 'Desirable things,' in the Word,=the truths of the Church.

619¹⁴. 'More desirable are they than gold' (Ps.xix.10). . . 'What is desirable'=that which is of affection and of love.

624⁷. 'Many just ones and prophets have desired to see what ye have seen' (Matt.xiii.17).

627¹³. 'To long for wars'=ratiocinations against truths.

654²⁶. Occurs. 781¹⁶.

717¹². 'Thyservants have desired her stones' (Ps.cii.14).

739⁸. 'Desirable in aspect' (Gen.ii.9)=that which the understanding desired.

741⁹. 'The desires of your father ye will do' (John viii.44)=that they wanted to be in the evils of their cupidities.

781¹⁶. 'Woe to those who desire the day of Jehovah' (Amos v.18). As they believed that He would deliver them from their earthly enemies, and carry them into glory . . . they desired Him . . .

790⁹. The goods which are in the natural mind from the spiritual, are called affections and desires for these things.

799¹⁷. 'Desirable things,' in the Word, are said of truths.

850⁸. 'He hath desired it . . . Here will I dwell, because I have desired it' (Ps.cxxxii.13).

918⁵. 'My soul desired the earliest' (Micah vii.1). Ex.

946². 'They desire the approach of God' (Is.lviii.2).

1082⁴. 'My flesh longeth for Thee' (Ps.lxiii.1)=man as to the good of the will.

1158. 'The fruits of the desire of the soul'=the gladnesses and joys which have been awaited from worship and life according to the traditions of the Babylonish religion.

Desist. Desistere.

See under EVIL.

A. 957^e. They are so delighted to punish, that they do not want to desist, even if it were to eternity.

6203^e. Afterwards, he is not able to desist from these evils. P.112².

7032². They never desist, except through grievous punishments . . .

7295². This sign signifies the first admonition with those who are infesting, that they should desist.

8700³. It is impossible for man to be saved, unless he who is in evil is allowed to do evil and to desist from evil: when he desists from evil of himself in this freedom, the affection of good and truth is insinuated by the Lord . . .

8880. All good flows in from the Lord, and they love who desist from evil . . .

8881^e. This is effected by the Lord when man desists from evils.

9009. The man sees that they are evils, and therefore is able to desist from them, but will not, and therefore confirms them with himself . . .

9014³. Sins are not remitted, unless the man . . . desists from evils . . .

9296³. This influx is so far operative with man in proportion as he desists from evils . . .

9378². This (conjunction with the Lord) takes place when man desists from evils; for to desist from evils is left to the determination or freedom of man . . . 10067⁸.

9399². Every man . . . is in the capacity of understanding Divine truth, and thence in the capacity of receiving, in proportion as he desists from evils.

9937². The Lord removes the Hells, in proportion as man desists from evils.

10143². Purification from evils and falsities is to desist from them . . .

P. 145². When he desists the door is opened, and then the concupiscences of evil are cast out by the Lord . . .

146. When the man desists (from these evils), there arises a combat of the internal man with the external.

151. When man goes further, and wills to desist from evils, he is in the second step of reformation, and is then out of Hell, but not yet in Heaven . . .

296⁴. A thief feels such delight in thefts that he cannot desist . . .

T. 73². God cannot remit sins according to His laws, except in proportion as man desists from them according to His laws.

461⁵. Man is an organ recipient of life from God, consequently is a recipient of good, in proportion as he desists from evil: the ability to desist from evil the Lord gives to every man . . .

535. They also perform repentance, who do not examine themselves, but still desist from evils because they are sins. Gen.art.

539². Sins are . . . removed as man afterwards desists from them, and enters on a new life.

D. 153. Evil Spirits never desist . . .

644. They were warned by others to desist, but confessed that they were not able . . .

662. See ABLE at these refs. 4020.

795. Their nature is such that they can never desist . . .

2872. That evil Spirits cannot desist from attacking the good.

4091. He said that he could never desist . . .

4742. They never desist from a purpose once taken . . .

5897. That a Spirit cannot desist from doing what his love leads.

6054. If he is not able to desist . . .

E. 803. III. When a man begins to think . . . that he should desist from doing evils, because they are sins . . . But in order to desist from them . . . he must supplicate the Lord for aid. The sins from which he must desist. Enum.

936^e. In proportion as a man thinks that he will shun evils, because they are sins, and supplicates the Lord for aid, the Lord removes them, and gives the man to desist from them as of himself, and afterwards to shun them.

938^e. It follows that man cannot at all desist from evils of himself; for this would be of his own life to desist from his own life; wherefore it is provided that he may be able to desist from them from the Lord. Ex.

939^e. The interior of man is no otherwise purified, than as he desists from evils according to the precepts of the Decalogue: in proportion as he has not desisted from these evils . . . they make his interior . . .

940^e. When the interior of man is purified from evils, by his desisting from them . . . the internal which is above it is opened . . .

Desk. Chartaphylacium. T.797.

Desolate. Desolare.

Desolation. Desolatio.

A. 153. 'They shall build the wastes of eternity, and they shall erect the olden desolations, and they shall renew the cities of the waste, the desolations of generation and of generation' (Is.lxi.4). 'Wastes'=evils; 'desolations,' falsities.

411. In the Prophets, that is called 'wasting' (or 'vastation') which regards the celestial things of faith; and 'desolation,' that which regards the spiritual things of faith. Ill.

427^e. 'Wound'=that faith is desolated; 'bruise,' that charity is devastated.

623. 'The waters which they shall drink in desolation' (Ezek.xii.19)=the spiritual things to which they have done violence, or which they have profaned.

705. By 'the Flood' is also signified the desolation of those who were not able to be regenerated. Both temptations and desolations are compared in the Word to floods or inundations of waters. (Ill. as to both temptations and desolations.)

—^e. The reason both temptations and desolations are compared to 'floods' . . . is that the case is similar. It is evil Spirits who flow in with their persuasions and principles of falsity . . . But with the man who is being regenerated there are temptations; and with the man who is not being regenerated there are desolations.

790. Desolations and temptations are nothing but inundations of the falsities which are excited by evil Spirits.

793. 'Desolation' is an expression which relates to spiritual things; 'vastation,' to celestial things.

1917. In temptations there are vastations and desolations . . .

2240. In the Prophets, when it treats of vastation and desolation, it is said that 'they wail and cry.'

—². The desolation of faith, which is effected by means of falsities. Tr.

2454³. 'The abomination of desolation' (Matt.xxiv.15)=the state of the Church when there is no love and no charity. When these are desolated, there reign abominable things.

2455³. That there is vastation is evident, for it is said, 'a desolation to eternity' (Zeph.ii.9).

2681. '(Hagar's) water consumed' (Gen.xxi.15)=the desolation of truth (with the spiritual). 2689, Ex. 2694.

2682. The desolation of truth treated of in Job xxx. 3,4,6,7; Is.vii.19.

2684. These words (concerning Hagar) involve the state of thought of those who are in the desolation of truth and in consequent despair.

2694². They who are being reformed are reduced into ignorance of truth, or desolation, even to grief and despair, and then first they have comfort and help from the Lord . . . They who are such that they can be reformed, if not in the bodily life, in the other life, are brought into this state, which in the other life is very well known, and is called vastation or desolation. They who are in such vastation or desolation, are reduced to despair, and when they are in this state, they receive comfort and help from the Lord, and are at last carried thence into Heaven. . . The cause of this vastation and desolation is chiefly that the Persuasive may be broken which they have taken from proprium; also that they may receive the perception of good and truth, which they cannot do, until that Persuasive is softened . . . Examps.

2699. The first state after desolation is described in the preceding verse, which was a state of consolation and of the hope of aid. Their second state after desolation is described in this verse, which is a state of enlightenment and of recreation thence. Ex.

2702⁴. The desolation of truth; and afterwards the consolation, recreation, and instruction after desolation, are treated of in Is.xli.17,18.

—⁸. 'The land of the north' (Jer.xxxi.8)=ignorance or desolation of truth; 'weeping' and 'prayers,' their state of grief and despair; 'to be brought to fountains of waters,' recreation and instruction in truths.

—⁹. 'Wilderness' (Is.xxxv.1-7)=the desolation of truth; 'waters,' etc.,=the truths which were for recreation and joy with those who have been in vastation.

2708⁵. 'Wilderness' . . . =those who are in vastation as to good, and in desolation as to truth. This 'wilderness' is predicated in a twofold sense, namely, of those who are afterwards reformed, and of those who cannot be reformed. Ill.

—⁶. The journeyings and wanderings of the Israelitish people in the wilderness, represented nothing else than the vastation and desolation of the faithful before reformation, thus their temptation; since when they are in spiritual temptations, they are in vastation and desolation. III.

[A.] 28517. 'The gladness which is desolated' (Is. xxiv. 11)=is predicated of truth . . . Hence it is evident what is signified by 'what is left in the city is a desolation' (ver. 12).

—⁸. 'All the gates (of Zion) are desolated' (Lam. i. 4)=that all the approaches are beset by falsities.

2928². 'The inhabited cities shall be laid waste, and the Land shall be desolated' (Ezek. xii. 20). 'The Land'=the Church itself, which is said to be 'laid waste' as to good; and 'desolated,' as to truth.

3240⁴. 'To pass the night in the forest'=to be desolated as to good. . . 'To pass the night in the forests there'=to be no longer in goods, whence comes desolation, which is also described by 'wandering before the swords, before the outstretched sword.'

—⁵. 'To make them a desolation' (Jer. xxv. 18) . . . Here, the desolation of the Spiritual Church is treated of.

3391². 'A voice shall sing in the window'=the desolation of truth, thus of the intellectual faculty as to truth.

3652. 'When ye shall see the abomination of desolation'=the vastation of the Church. Ex. . . When these things are in the Church, or rather in the tract where the Word is; that is, in the thought of the heart, although not in the doctrine of the lips, then there is desolation; and these things here mentioned are its 'abomination.'

3655^e. Here, now, it is the third state which is treated of, which is that of the desolation of the Church as to good and truth.

3901^e. 'An eagle hastening to devour'=to desolate man as to truths; for the desolation of the Church is here treated of.

4060. The desolation of truth is called 'affliction' in the Word throughout.

5270^e. The state when man is apparently deprived of truths, is called 'desolation.'

5279. There is here described (by the seven years of famine) a state of desolation through the privation of truth; the last of this state is despair. Ex. 5280.

5349. A state of the multiplication of truth from good . . . before the state of desolation which is signified by 'the years of famine.' Sig.

5360. 'The seven years of famine began to come'=the following states of desolation. . . 'Famine'=the lack of the Knowledges of truth and good, thus desolation. The reason 'famine'=this lack, or desolation, is that there is no other celestial and spiritual food but good and truth . . . When, therefore, such things are lacking, there is famine, and in the Word it is called 'desolation' and 'vastation'; 'desolation,' when truths are lacking; and 'vastation,' when goods are lacking. In many places in the Word this desolation and vastation are treated of, and are there described by 'the desolation of the land,' 'of kingdoms,' of 'cities,' 'of nations,' 'of peoples;' and it is also called 'exinanition,' 'excision,' 'consummation,' 'wilderness,' 'emptiness;' and the very state itself is called 'the great day of Jehovah,' etc. (See DAY at this ref.)

—^e. This last state of the Church, which precedes the state of the New Church, is what is properly meant and described in the Word by 'vastation' and 'desolation.' By 'desolation' and 'vastation' in the Word there is also described the state which precedes the regeneration of man; which state is here signified by 'the seven years of famine.'

5362. 'The famine was in all lands'=desolation everywhere in the Natural.

5369. 'The famine was upon all the faces of the land'=when there was desolation even to despair.

—^e. The height and the last of desolation is despair.

5372. 'The famine prevailed in the land of Egypt'=the increasing grievousness of the desolation in the Natural.

5376. 'The famine prevailed in every land'=that everywhere but there, there was desolation in the Natural.

— . How the case is with the desolation of the Natural, or with the privation of truth there. Ex.

—². When they come nearer to the very act of regeneration, they are as it were deprived of these truths, for they are drawn inwards, and then the man appears to be in desolation; but still these truths are successively remitted into the Natural. . . . But with those who are not being regenerated. . . . These truths are cast out. . . . This state is also called 'desolation' or 'vastation;' but it differs from the former in that the desolation of the former state is only apparent, whereas the desolation of this state is absolute; for in the former state the man is not deprived of truths, whereas in this state he is utterly deprived of them. Concerning the desolation of the former state, it has treated in this chapter, and it treats further in the following one; and this is what is signified by 'the seven years of famine.' The same desolation is frequently treated of elsewhere in the Word. III.

—⁵. How the case is with desolation, is manifest from those who are in desolation in the other life. They who are in desolation there, are harassed by evil Spirits and Genii; for these infuse persuasions of evil and falsity, so that they are almost inundated; hence truths do not appear; but as the time of desolation is ended, they are enlightened by light from Heaven. Sig.

—⁶. In this whole chapter (Is. xlix.) it treats of the desolation of those who are being regenerated; and of regeneration and fructification after desolation; and at last of the punishment of those who have oppressed. Further ill.

—⁷. Desolation is for the sake of the end that man may be regenerated, that is, that after evils and falsities have been separated, truths may be conjoined with goods, and goods with truths.

—⁸. The vastation and desolation of the man of the Church, or of the Church with man, was represented by the captivity of the Jewish people in Babylon. . . for desolation is captivity, as man is then kept as it were bound; wherefore by those 'bound,' 'in prison,' 'in the pit,' are signified those who are in desolation.

—⁹. The state of desolation and vastation with those who are not being regenerated, is also treated of in the Word throughout. In this state are those who altogether deny truths, or turn them into falsities. This is the state of the Church about the end. III.

5415. 'Because the famine was in the Land of Canaan' = that there was desolation as to those things which are of the Church in the Natural. 'Famine' = the lack of Knowledges, and consequent desolation.

5576. 'And the famine grew heavier' = the desolation from the need of spiritual things.

6000⁸. The desolation of truth is treated of in Lam. i. 2.

6078. When spiritual food is wanting to Good Spirits and Angels, they are in desolation . . .

6110. 'The famine was very grievous' = desolation.

—. As to desolation, it is to be known, that truths and goods, and the Knowledges of them, make the spiritual life of those who are in Heaven; they are their celestial and spiritual food, with which they are nourished . . . but when it is evening, they are lacking . . . This state is signified by 'famine,' and it is a species of desolation, but not such as is with those in the Lower Earth.

6116. That a true Scientific was no longer visible in the Natural and within the Church on account of the desolation. Sig.

6122. Truth is said not to be visible, because in a state of desolation truth appears to have fled away; yet it is present . . . But in a state of desolation it is obscured by proprium . . .

6130. 'This year was ended' = desolation after the period of this state.

6134. The good of truth . . . in like manner no longer visible on account of the desolation. Sig.

6135. That the receptacles of good and truth were altogether desolated. Sig.

6136. That if they were desolated, there would no longer be spiritual life under the Internal. Sig.

—e. 'To die' = desolation, that is, the privation of good and truth, which make the spiritual life.

6138. The man who is being regenerated, is at last so reduced by repeated desolations and supports, that he no longer wants to be his own . . .

6144. 'The famine prevailed over them' = desolation even to despair . . .

—. By desolations and temptations, also, states contrary to heavenly life are perceived, and thus a sense and perception of the happiness of heavenly life is implanted . . . Therefore desolations and temptations are brought to their height, that is, to despair, in order that full relations may be had.

6508⁸. 'The whole Land shall be in desolation, in devastation, and these nations shall serve the king of Babel seventy years' (Jer. xxv. 11). 'Seventy years' = a full state of desolation and devastation.

6726^e. In Jonah ii. 5, there is described a state of temptations; 'the waters' = falsities . . . 'the deep' = the evil of falsity; 'the weeds wrapped around the head' = that false scientifics were obsessing truth and good: so the case is in a state of desolations.

9139. 'When a man shall desolate a field or a vineyard' (Ex. xxii. 4) = the deprivation of the good and truth of the Church through cupidities. 'To desolate' = to deprive through cupidities.

9141. 'And shall desolate in the field of another' (id.) = the consumption of cohering goods. 'To desolate' = to deprive through cupidities, thus to consume. . . The reason 'to desolate' (has this signification) is that the word by which 'to desolate' is expressed in the Original Language, properly means to kindle and burn, thus also to eat up and consume; and as this is the derivation of this word, 'to desolate' here = the consumption which takes place through cupidities; for the cupidities with man are fires which consume.

—³. Thus is described (in Ezek. xxxix. 9, 10) the consumption and desolation of good and truth through cupidities.

9334. 'Lest peradventure the Land be desolate' (Ex. xxiii. 29) = deficiency in such a case, and little of spiritual life . . . For 'desolate,' when said concerning the Church in man, = the lack of truth and good, thus also the lack of spiritual life. E. 650⁸⁹.

9348⁴. 'To desolate the earth and the fulness thereof' (Ezek. xix. 7) = to destroy all things of the Church.

10582⁴. It here treats (Is. vii. 19) of the Advent of the Lord and of the state of the Church then, that there will be a desolation of all things of spiritual truth and good. . . 'The rivers of desolations' = the truths of doctrine utterly desolated.

R. 478². Which state of the Church is called 'consummation,' 'devastation,' 'desolation,' and 'decision.'

747. 'They shall make her desolate and naked' (Rev. xvii. 16) = that they will divest themselves of her falsities and evils. . . 'Desolation' in the Word is predicated of truths and falsities; and 'nakedness' of goods and evils.

M. 80³. 'The abomination of desolation' = the falsification and deprivation of all truth.

T. 180. The infestation of truth by falsities, even until there is no truth remaining which is not falsified and consummated . . . is meant by 'the abomination of desolation' there: this is meant also by 'the desolation upon the bird of abominations,' in Daniel. 755.

391. The desolation of truth and the theological leanness in the Christian world at this day. Des.

634. From that time there commenced and increased the desolation foretold in Daniel and Matthew.

755^e. 'Vastation,' 'desolation,' 'decision,' have a similar signification to 'consummation;' but 'desolation' = the consummation of truth; 'vastation,' the consummation of good; and 'decision,' the plenary consummation of both.

E. 405⁸⁷. 'I will give the Land a desolation and a waste' (Ezek. xxxiii. 28) . . . 'The desolation and vastation of this' = the last state of the Spiritual Church, which was when there was no longer any truth because there was no good, or when there was no faith because there was no charity; 'desolation' is said of the truth which is of faith; and 'vastation,' of the good which is of charity.

417¹⁰. The destruction of all the goods of the Church, is signified by 'I will cut off the nations,' and by 'their corners shall be desolated' (Zeph. iii. 6) . . . The destruction of the truths of doctrine is signified by 'I will desolate their streets,' and by 'their cities shall be desolated.'

[E.] 601. Great grief on account of the desolation of Divine truth in the Church. Sig.

— In the following things of this chapter (Rev.x.) it treats of the desolation of Divine truth in the Church.

617⁷. 'A man and his brother shall be desolated' (Ezek.iv.17)=faith and charity. . . 'To be desolated'=the plenary extinction of both.

650³⁸. 'The flocks of small cattle are desolated' (Joel i.18)=the lack of the spiritual truth and good which are of faith and charity.

654³⁹. That all things of the Church and all things of the doctrine of the Church will perish, is signified by 'they shall be devastated in the midst of the devastated lands, and her cities in the midst of the desolate cities' (Ezek.xxx.7).

—⁷⁰. See Cup-calis—at this ref.

684³⁹. 'Unto the end of the war the desolations are determined' (Dan.ix.26)=the falsification of truth until there is no longer any combat between truth and falsity. . . 'Desolation'=the last time of the Church, when there is no longer any truth, but mere falsity.

721⁹. 'More are the sons of the desolate one than the sons of the married one' (Is.liv.1). It here treats of a new Church to be established with the gentiles; the latter are signified by . . . 'the desolate one who shall have many sons.'

730⁷. 'The cities which are desolate' (Jer.iv.26)=doctrinal things without truths.

768⁷. 'To make the desolate cities inhabited' (Is.liv.3)=the life according to Divine truths of those things which heretofore had been destroyed. . . 'Desolate cities'=these truths heretofore destroyed; namely, with the Jewish nation.

781¹⁵. A lamentation by God concerning the desolation of truth in the Church (Lam.iii.8,9,10,11).

960⁴. 'Devastation' is predicated of good; 'desolation,' of truth.

1100¹³. 'The cities which are desolated' (Jer.iv.26)=that there are no longer doctrinal things of truth.

5 M. 21. On the abomination of desolation. Gen.art.

22. The Novitiates asked, How can these things be called 'the abomination of desolation'? The Angels replied, All these are in falsities as to faith and in evils as to life; the interiors of their minds are infernal . . . and as they are in the midst between the Heavens where the Angels are and the earth where men are, no Divine truth can pass from the Lord through the Heavens to the men of the Earth . . .

Can. Redemp.iv.1. The successive decrease of good and truth and increase of evil and falsity in the Church is called 'vastation' and 'desolation.'

Trin.ix. Hence is that affliction and that desolation in the Christian Church, foretold by the Lord in the Evangelists and in Daniel.

Inv. 27. No one can see the desolation of truth in the Church until truths from the Word come into light . . .

Coro.xvii. This state of the Church is described by 'vastation,' 'desolation,' and 'consummation.'

34⁴. 'Desolation'=this falsification.

Despair. Desperare, Desperatio.

A. 383. 'My iniquity is greater than I can bear'=the consequent despair.

699^e. (Those in the Lower Earth) were in despair . . .

840. During temptation . . . he is sometimes in such despair, that he scarcely believes in the existence of any God . . .

1787. All temptation is attended with some appearance of despair; otherwise it is not temptation . . . They who are being tempted are brought into anxieties, which induce a state of despair concerning the end: the very combat of temptation is nothing else . . . As the Lord endured the most direful and cruel temptations of all, He, also, could not but be driven into despairs, which He dispelled and overcame by His Own power. Ill. 1917. 2334.

1796. In these words there is something of despair . . .

2682. '(Hagar) cast the boy under one of the shrubs'=despair that he would perceive nothing of truth and good. . . The affection in this action is despair. . . (This signifies) to be desolated as to truth and good even to despair.

—². In this verse it treats of the second state of those who are being reformed, which is, that they are reduced to ignorance, so that they know nothing of truth, and this even to despair. Ex. 2684^e. 2694^e.

2694. 'Fear not'=not to despair.

—². A state of anxiety and of grief even to despair effects this (softening). Ex.

—³. When anxiety and grief are induced on them from the fact that they can do nothing at all of themselves, and this even to despair, the Persuasive is broken, and the state is changed . . .

—⁴. But when they are reduced to such a state that they perceive Hell in themselves, and this to such an extent that they despair that they can ever be saved, then for the first time is this Persuasive broken, and with it pride, and contempt for others in comparison with themselves . . .

2698. They who are in internal grief, and in despair from the privation of truth, are elevated and supported solely by means of truth, because it is concerning this that they have grief and despair.

2702⁸. 'Weeping' and 'prayers'=their state of grief and despair.

5036⁵. (Evil spirits) enter into the affections . . . and excite them, and also the falsities and evils which he had thought and done, and thus lead into anxiety, and frequently into doubt even to despair . . . 5246².

5279. 'The famine shall consume the land'=even to despair. . . The reason it is even to despair, is because it is said 'the famine shall consume the land;' for when 'the land'=the natural mind, and 'famine' the privation of truth, nothing else is signified but despair; for then consumption takes place in a spiritual manner. There is here described a state of desolation through the privation of truth; the last of this state is despair. The reason the last of this state is despair, is that thereby is removed the delight of the love of self and of the world, and in its stead there is insinuated the delight of the love of good and truth; for the despair with those who are to be regenerated is concerning the spiritual life, thus concerning the privation of truth and good; for when they are deprived of truth and good they despair concerning the spiritual life; hence they have delight and blessedness when they emerge from despair.

5280^o. In this verse it treats of the last state of desolation, with despair, which immediately precedes regeneration. Ex. —^e.

5369. 'The famine was upon all the faces of the land' = with desolation even to despair.

—^e. The deepest and last of desolation is despair. 6144.

5662. 'He said, Peace be to you; fear not' = it is well; do not despair.

— . As they supposed that thus they would lose their proprium, thus their freedom, consequently all the delight of life, they were in despair.

6144. 'Because the famine prevailed upon them' = desolation even to despair.

—^e. The sense and perception of happiness only comes from the relation to things contrary; in order, therefore, that they may have full proportions, desolations and temptations are brought to the highest, that is, to despair.

6828. Evil Spirits are also then present, who introduce grief and despair concerning salvation.

7090^d. If in this world he is brought into something of despair, as they who are in combats are wont to be, he at once bursts these bonds (of conscience).

7147. Near the end they are infested more hardly than before; for then truths are withdrawn from them, and mere falsities are permitted to infest them, and this even to despair; for it is of Divine order, that the last of infestation and of temptation is despair. Refs. —^e.

7155^e. For they who are in despair, as they suppose that they can no longer endure the attacks, they think that they can do no otherwise than surrender themselves as captives to falsities; for such is the state of despair; but they then begin to be raised up.

7166. It is a law of order concerning those who are being infested by falsities, that they are to be infested even to despair; and unless they are infested to despair, the last use from infestation is wanting. That temptation is augmented even to despair, is manifestly evident from the Lord's temptation in Gethsemane . . . and upon the cross . . . that He was then brought even to a state of despair; and the temptation of the Lord is the pattern of the temptations of the faithful. Sig.

7217. 'For straitness of spirit' = on account of a state near despair . . . 'That straitness of spirit' = a state near despair, is evident from the fact, that they who are in a state near despair, are in inward anxiety, and are then actually in straitness of spirit (or of breath). Ex.

7250. Those (of the giants of the planet Venus) who are such that they can be saved, are in a place of vastation, and are there reduced to the last of despair; for the evils and falsities of that kind cannot otherwise be removed. When they are in a state of despair, they cry out that they are beasts, abominations, etc. . . Some of them cry out against Heaven when they are in such a state; but this is excused, because it is done from despair.

8164. 'They said to Moses' = the deepest of temptation and also despair . . . It is said despair, because this is for the most part the end or for the end of spiritual temptations . . .

8165^o. That these words are words of despair, is evident. With those who are in despair, which is the last of temptation, such things are thought . . .

— . Thus is he delivered from despair . . .

8170. 'Moses said to the people' = elevation from a state of despair by means of truth Divine.

8171. 'Fear not' = despair not . . . for the spiritual fear in temptations is at first horror, and at last is despair.

8313. Despair of enlarging dominion felt by those who are in faith separated from good. Sig.

—². The reason 'pain,' here, = despair, is that the highest degree of pain is meant, such as is that of child-birth. Ill.

—³. 'Pain as of one in travail' = despair that good is being injured.

8351. Spiritual temptations are usually carried to despair. Refs. 8567, Refs.

8567. 'Why tempt ye Jehovah?' = that it is against the Divine, of whose aid they despaired.

— . Temptations are continual despairs concerning salvation, at first slight.

— . In temptations the spiritual life is for the most part brought to this extremity, for thus the natural life is extinguished; because in the midst of despair the inmost is kept by the Lord in combat against what is false; wherefore this despair is presently dissipated by means of the comforts which are afterwards insinuated by the Lord.

N. 196. Hence the despair which is at the end (of temptations).

197^o. That temptations are for the most part carried to despair, which is the last of them. Refs.

— . That in the temptation itself there are also despairs, but that they cease in a general one. Ref.

— . That in despair a man says bitter things, but that the Lord does not attend to them. Ref.

R. 98. 'Fear nothing which thou shalt suffer' = despair ye not when ye are infested by evils and assailed by falsities, because with those who are in goods as to life, and in falsities as to doctrine, it cannot be otherwise.

D. 170. The punishment . . . of self-confidence. . . It was an interior pain with lamentation, attended almost with despair of all salvation . . .

220. Their anxiety was doubled, so that they fell into despair.

261. Certain of those who are bound in the pit, are not delivered until they arrive at the last degree of despair . . .

[D.] 515. (In the punishment of discerption) his indignation . . . is turned into despair, or the thought of his own unhappiness, or fall.

699. They rejoiced from their inmost heart, because they had been in despair . . . 702.

1042. They who are being introduced into Heaven, are sometimes brought to the last degree of despair, which despair is the inmost of spiritual pains.

1449. While they are in such vastation, they have damnable expressions against Heaven . . . because they are in despair . . . But this is excused . . .

3135. A vision concerning those who are rashly desperate.

3368. Yet he was not evil, because there was such a sound and speech of despair . . .

5568. They are present for the most part when man is in . . . despairs . . .

5569². They insinuate such things as drive him to despair.

D. Min. 4821. He came to those who are skilled to lead others into despairs, to wit, that no one is ever saved . . . In order that I might know the nature of it, they came into the anxiety of despair.

E. 519⁴. This involves despair concerning victory, such as the Lord experienced on the cross, when He said, 'I thirst,' and they gave Him vinegar.

911¹². 'Desperate grief' (Is. xvii. 11). Ex.

Desperately. Perdite.

A. 1742. The life which evil Spirits . . . desperately love . . .

Despise. See CONTEMN.

Despond. Despondere.

D. 149. They at once despond in disposition . . .

Despotic. Despoticus.

See under COMMAND.

R. 799^e. Their former despotic domination . . .

Dessau. Prince von Dessau. D.4396. 4397.

Destined. Destinare.

A. 3072. 'Her thou hast appointed for thy son Isaac' (Gen. xxiv. 14)=the conjunction of truth Divine with Divine good in the Rational. 'To appoint' for a woman = to conjoin by a covenant of marriage.

L. 18². (The notion) that He took away the foreseen or destined damnation.

D. 3383. Such was his purpose-destinatus.

4452. To what Hell these Sirens are destined.

4459. Until they come to their proper and destined place.

Destitute. Destitutus.

A. 1506. Being deserted by his associates . . .

D. 426^e. Being destitute of phantasies . . .

476. They are entirely destitute of understanding.

507^e. If he were destitute of adorers . . .

970a. They were then deprived of their spiritual food.

2485^e. Brute animals, being destitute of such a faculty . . .

Destroy. See under BLOT OUT.

Destroy. Destruere.

Destroyer. Destructor.

Destruction. Destructio.

Destructive. Destructivus.

A. 59. This would be to destroy the whole man.

1587. The external man destroyed by cupidities of evil and persuasions of falsity. Sig. . . For these two are what destroy the external man . . . and these two were what destroyed the Most Ancient Church . . . When these two reign, the whole external man is destroyed, and when it is destroyed it is also separated from the internal.

1820². Nothing is more delightful to them than thus to destroy man.

—4. They are most delighted to destroy the conscience.

2057³. Nothing but self-love endeavours to destroy this form and this order . . . Thus they destroy everything unanimous and sociable; hence disunion, and consequently, destruction.

—4. Hence it is evident that self-love is not only destructive of the human race, but also that it is destructive of heavenly order.

2910⁴. (The causes of the destruction of Churches.)

3614⁴. 'I have destroyed them in my wrath' (Is. lxiii. 3)=victories over falsities.

4251. 'To smite' = to destroy.

4503. 'To spoil' = to destroy.

5713. Hell, being in the opposite, destroys all things.

6758. An estranged Scientific endeavouring to destroy the truth of the Church. Sig.

—'. 'To smite' = to endeavour to destroy.

6858^e. The infernals continually burn to destroy the things of Heaven . . .

7293^e. The endeavour to destroy the Church. Sig.

7554. Such destruction not with others in the natural mind. Sig.

7607. The reason they cannot destroy these things . . .

7679. The east wind = a means of destruction.

8283. 'To destroy' (Ex. xv. 7) = to reject as nothing.

8295. That from power Heaven is destroyed. Sig.

—'. 'To drive out' = to cast down, and thus to destroy.

—'. They suppose themselves able to destroy Heaven itself; for all in the Hells . . . are thence in the continual cupidity of destroying it.

—2. The will to destroy Heaven . . . is not effected by a hostile invasion . . . but by the destruction of the truth of faith and the good of love.

8867². Such things as are to be avoided, because they destroy and deprive. Sig and Ex.

8970. It treats in this chapter of those things which injure or destroy the truth of faith or the good of charity with one's self or with others. 8971^e.

9256⁸. To destroy falsities with such is to destroy the life itself. Ex.

9320. 'Destroying thou wilt destroy them' (Ex. xxiii. 24)=that evils are to be entirely removed. . . The reason 'to destroy'=to remove, is that they who are in good and truth never destroy those who are in evil and falsity, but only remove them; the reason being that they act from good and not from evil, and good is from the Lord, Who never destroys anyone: whereas they who are in evil and thence in falsity endeavour to destroy, and so far as they can, do destroy those who are in good; the reason being that they act from evil. But as they then rush against the good which is from the Lord, thus against the Divine, they destroy themselves, that is, precipitate themselves into condemnation and into Hell.

—². The reason the Israelites and Jews destroyed the nations of the Land of Canaan. Ex.

9336⁶. Hence it is evident, that the former life, which is of Hell, is to be entirely destroyed, that is, evils and falsities are to be removed. . .

— . Hence it is evident, that the life of Hell with man cannot be suddenly destroyed. . .

9492. For the Hells continually breathe what is evil, and endeavour to destroy Heaven. —.

10300⁵. That which disjoins also destroys; hence, in the opposite sense, 'salt'=the destruction and devastation of truth and good. III.

—⁶. As it destroys truth and good, it is called 'a waste to eternity.'

—⁸. Hence it is evident that by 'salt'. . . in the opposite sense is signified the longing of falsity for evil, thus what is destructive.

10510. 'To smite'=to destroy; and in the spiritual sense 'to destroy' is to deprive some one of the truths and goods of faith and love, which in the Word is called 'desolation' and 'vastation.'

H. 312³. Such things with many destroy faith in the life after death. . . That they have destroyed it is evident. . .

399. These loves are destructive of the delights with others.

570. Wherefore, the delight of their life is to will to destroy and kill them. . .

595. The sphere issuing from the Hells is entirely a sphere of endeavours to destroy the Divine of the Lord, and thus Heaven. The ebullitions of some of the Hells were perceived, which were endeavours to emerge and to destroy.

J. Title. On the Last Judgment, and on the Babylon destroyed.

60. How they were destroyed, and their habitations made a desert. Des.

S. 92. To confirm falsities even to the destruction of genuine truth condemns. 96.

227⁵. Such a man is therefore destroyed as to all that is truly human. Ex.

R. 541. That they have utterly destroyed (the truths of the Word) by applications to falsities. Sig.

M. 267^e. The unbridled love of self. . . is destructive of love to the Lord; and the unbridled love of the world. . . is destructive of love towards the neighbour.

T. 247⁴. The Church with the Israelitish nation was utterly destroyed through falsifications of the Word. Sig.

—^e. The Church is such as is the understanding of the Word in it. . . destroyed, yea, filthy, if the understanding is from truths falsified.

772. That the Second Advent is not to destroy anything. . .

D. 5207. On the destruction of Babel. 5229. 5249. 5269.

5322. On the total destruction of Babylonia.

5377. On the destruction of the Old Heaven.

5598. Then began their destruction. . .

5742. On the destruction of the Old Heaven and earth.

5856. On the destruction of the subtle Spirits from the Mohammedans, Babylonians, and Reformed.

E. 131⁵. 'Sword' in these passages=truth combating and destroying: this destruction appears especially in the Spiritual World. Ex.

316¹⁴. The total vastation of the Church is described by 'the Lord hath destroyed the strongholds of the daughter of Judah' (Lam. ii. 5).

391²⁶. 'To destroy-perdere-the high places, to destroy the altars' (Ezek. vi. 3, 4)=to destroy all things of idolatrous worship through falsities and evils; for idolatrous worship destroys itself thereby; for 'sword'=falsities destroying.

651. The destruction thereby of all the good and truth of the Church. Sig.

— . 'To overcome and kill the two witnesses'=to destroy the things signified by the two witnesses. . .

697. See DESTROY-perdere, at this ref.

724²¹. 'Destroyers' and 'devastators' (Is. xlix. 17)=the falsities of evil.

741¹⁹. 'To destroy the cities thereof' (Is. xiv. 17)=to destroy all things of the Church. 730⁵. 1029¹³.

— . The destruction of the falsities which originate from their evils. Sig.

796. Destruction even until there was nothing of truth and good remaining. Sig.

— . 'The Power of doing'=the act of destroying goods and truths.

797. 'Blasphemy'=the falsification of the Word even to the destruction of Divine truth.

880. Devastation and destruction as to all things of doctrine with them. Sig.

Destroy. Interire.

Destruction. Interitus.

A. 1886, Pref.². (Believe) that then all things will be destroyed. 3353.

2117. They suppose that then the destruction of the world will come. . . 4535. 5078⁸.

[A.] 2118. The destruction of the Most Ancient Church is described by the Flood.

2135. Pref. The Last Judgment is not the destruction of the world . . . 4059.

6907². This is represented by the destruction of Pharaoh and the Egyptians in the Red Sea.

8211. The state of thick darkness and destruction of those who are in falsity from evil. Sig.

9400². If there were no conjunction, the human race on this earth would entirely perish.

H. 312. The opinion that all visible things will then be destroyed . . .

J. 1. That the destruction of the world is not meant by the day of the Last Judgment. Gen.art. D.4391. 5202^e.

R. 734. 'To go into destruction' (Rev.xvii.8)=to be rejected. E.1055.

876. The dogma concerning the destruction of the world . . .

5 M. 8. On the destruction of the world, etc.

Destroy. Labefactare.

Weakening. Labefactatio.

H. 101^e. Man has overthrown and destroyed—destruxit order.

P. 180⁵. The external of the thought and will become vitiated and destroyed.

M. 352. All the Heavens would be so severely shaken that the Angels could not subsist.

361. From the privation of this love, that whole form would be ruined.

373. Fear lest the domestic affairs should be destroyed.

T. 119². At last the internal man is destroyed.

321. His honour, name, and reputation . . . are destroyed.

D. 5993a. As the affection of their life and its delight began thus to be destroyed . . .

E. 413². Then the Lord directs His love . . . to restore the state which labours and begins to be destroyed.

702⁴. As thereby the ultimate Heaven . . . began to be shaken. . .

Ath. 122. That Heaven was shaken by conjunction with the Hells in its ultimates, may be illustrated by the extreme weakening of a man, from which at last he dies.

Can. God vii. 13a. In proportion as ends opposite to love do not obstruct and destroy . . .

14a. Provides lest ends from opposite loves . . . do not ruin the work of creation even to utter destruction—interneconem.

Destroy. Perdere, Deperdere.

Destroyer. Perditor.

Destruction, Perdition. Perditio.

See DESPERATELY—perditte.

A. 637. 'I will destroy them with the earth' (Gen.vi.

13)=that the human race would perish with the Church. Ex.

929. That man could no longer so destroy himself. Sig. 933³. For the will of man is utterly destroyed . . . —. 8806².

2395. 'Because we destroy this place' (Gen.xix.13)=that the state of evil in which they were would damn them. 'To destroy,' when predicated of the Lord, =to perish by evil, that is, to be damned. It is frequently said in the Word that Jehovah destroys, but in the internal sense is meant that the man destroys himself; for Jehovah or the Lord destroys no one. Ex.

2397. 'Jehovah hath sent us to destroy it' (id.)=that they cannot but perish. . . By this the good were saved, and the wicked perished; but the latter perished by this law, that the evil itself destroyed them . . . 2402.

3021. The Knowledge of such things . . . is at this day entirely destroyed . . .

3701². Hence, man is entirely destroyed as to both understanding and will.

4314. That goods and truths were entirely destroyed with that posterity. Sig.

5863. Evil Spirits . . . would then endeavour to destroy man in a thousand ways . . . They were in the continual endeavour to destroy me; not only as to the body, but especially as to the soul; for to destroy man and any Spirit is the very delight of life with those who are in Hell. 5864. H.249. 292².

7280^e. They desire nothing more than . . . to destroy those who do not favour them . . . for in the proportion that anyone is in hatred, he is in the delight of destroying; but in the world this is hidden.

7449. 'The land was destroyed from before the hurtful flying thing' (Ex.viii.24)=that the natural mind was corrupted as to all truth. 'To be destroyed'=to be corrupted.

7879. 'The destroyer' (Ex.xii.13)=Hell, which inflicts damnation. 7929.

9159. 'Upon everything that is lost' (Ex.xxii.9)=everything ambiguous. 'Lost'=everything to which there is injury or loss—factura.

9348⁷. 'Snare,' 'net,' etc., =the destruction—destructionem—of spiritual life, and thus perdition; and the delights of these loves are what destroy—destruunt, and are what destroy . . .

9726². This (Sensuous) with man is entirely destroyed . . .

H. 115². The Knowledge of correspondences has been entirely destroyed, and, with it, the Knowledge of Heaven.

312⁴. (After death) they do not know that they have lost anything.

506^e. (Thus) they would wholly destroy themselves . . .

S. 101. Before this Word . . . there was a Word which has been destroyed. Gen.art.

P. 328⁶. The image of God and the likeness of God are not destroyed with man, but are as it were destroyed . . .

R. 440. See ABADDON at this ref.

440^e. By 'Abaddon' in the Hebrew text is meant perdition in the following places. Ill.

528. 'To destroy them that destroy the earth' (Rev. xi.18)=the casting into Hell of those who have destroyed-destruxerunt-the Church. E.697.

D. 179. How easy it is for Jehovah God to destroy the universal human race . . .

189. They grieved because the universe was not destroyed . . .

1063. Without conscience they want to destroy the human race . . .

2171. That certain Spirits continually endeavour to destroy man.

2989. Wherefore, men lose nothing but the flesh and bones, and the use of that memory.

4323. (He had) only the ends of destroying good and truth . . .

4481. Man loses nothing (by death) of all his states . . .

E. 270⁵. 'To kill to destruction' (Ezek.ix.6)=devastation.

304⁹. 'The lion,' and 'the destroyer of the nations' (Jer.iv.7)=falsity and evil laying waste.

388². The vastation of the Church is meant by 'they have destroyed and trampled My vineyard' (Jer.xii.10).

563. Hence it may be evident, whence it is that this Sensuous is called 'Perdition,' or 'Abaddon,' and 'Apollyon.'

622⁹. Here, also (Ps.v.9), to the belly are attributed 'destructions,' i.e. evil thoughts.

632⁸. 'To destroy, etc.' (Jer.xii.10)=so to destroy-destruere-that . . .

637⁸. 'The destroyer of the nations' (Jer.iv.)=the evil of falsity destroying-destruens-the good of the Church.

659⁸. 'The grave' (Ps.lxxxviii.11)=the Hell where and whence are evils; and 'destruction,' the Hell where and whence are falsities.

Destroy. Pessundare.

M. 285. Thus the health of their mind and body would be destroyed.

423. Scortatory love overthrows and destroys-destruit marriage love.

T. 527. Would destroy faith . . . 582.

Destroyer. Eversor. See OVERTURN.

Destruction. Excidium.

A. 1458³. 'Not to be afraid of the destruction that wasteth at noonday' (Ps.xci.6)=not to be afraid of the damnation which arises with those who are in Knowledge, and pervert them.

Destruction. Exitium.

Destructive, Deadly. Exitialis, Exitiabilis.

A. 816². Thus to kill . . . by means of something deadly from behind.

5798³. The last time of the Church and its destruction, is called 'the day of the anger of Jehovah.'

C. J. 28. The Lord does not inflict destruction on anyone, but merely protects His own . . .

D. 3680. Plotted a deadly crime . . .

E. 417⁷. 'To disperse' and to bring 'destruction' (Jer.xlix.32)=devastation.

627¹¹. 'The dread of the destruction of God' (Job xxxi.23)=the loss of all understanding of truth.

1029⁹. Their destruction is described by . . .

—¹³. Signify their destruction to eternity . . .

Destruction. Internecio. Can. God vii. 14a.

Detain. See WITHHOLD.

Detect. See under DISCLOSE.

Deter. Absterrere.

A. 1983. By most grievous punishments they are at last deterred.

9982. Man is deterred from evil by regarding the punishment.

D. Min. 4774. When they can no longer be deterred by punishments . . . 4791.

Deter. Deterere.

H. 543². By fears of punishments they are deterred from doing evils. 550.

Determine. See under DEFINE.

Determine. Determinare.

Determination. Determinatio.

Determinately. Determinate.

A. 681. According to the form, disposition, and determination of the parts, they turn the light . . . into colours.

1392^e. See HAPPINESS at this ref.

1763. Their speech . . . flowed into the brain with a varied determination.

1866. They know the determinations and terminations of their states.

1937². These are . . . devoid of proprium, so that they are of no determination; wherefore they are among the less useful ones . . .

3776. That which in the sense of the letter is determined to persons, in the internal sense falls into an idea indeterminate to anyone.

4206^e. It is the form of each according to which the action is determined.

4875. By these are signified the determinations of such truth . . . By this is signified that there must be nothing indeterminate; for that which is indeterminate is open: there are also outermost truths to which interior truths are determined, and in which they are terminated.

5146². See DEGREE at this ref.

5173³. In endeavour there is everything of determination.

[A.] 665³. The determination of the thought to any people in special, as also to any person, limits and bounds the ideas . . .

680⁴. The Angels in Heaven never determine their thoughts to single persons . . .

687⁶. They thought as of the Divine Human, into which they could determine their thought.

756⁸. In the Spiritual World all approach is effected by a determination of the thought.

760⁷. When a man looks to the world, he does not look to Heaven . . . for they are opposite determinations.

861³. Still more in the Spiritual World, where the determinations of spaces are circumstanced quite differently.

870⁵. They think of Him determinately, that is . . .

915⁴. The spirit receives its determinations, thus its form, through the fibres; in like manner the blood through the vessels.

973⁰. There are two determinations of the intellectual and voluntary things with man; one determination is outwardly towards the world, the other is inwardly towards Heaven. With natural and sensuous men, there is a determination of the intellectual and voluntary things . . . towards the world; but with spiritual and celestial men there is a determination of them towards Heaven, and also alternately towards the world. The hinge of the determinations is turned inwardly when the man is being regenerated . . .

997². They replied . . . that otherwise the ideas of their thought cannot be fixed and determined to an invisible God. It was then given to say to them, that the ideas of their thought can be fixed and determined to an invisible God when they are determined to the Lord, Who is a visible God.

1018⁹. The Lord turns them to Himself; for He enters through the way of the east into them, and keeps them constantly in determination to Himself; hence their external sight, being determined by the internal sight . . . looks whither the love carries it.

H. 17². The spaces and quarters there . . . are not determined (i.e. fixed and stated) as they are in the world, but they are determined according to the direction in which their faces are turned. 123². 142⁶, Ex.

85. In the world there is a determined and thus a measurable extense; but in Heaven there is an extense not determined, and therefore not measurable.

124. Therefore the Lord is the common Centre, from which is all direction and determination.

141. Thus in the world all the quarters are determined from the south . . .

143. The regnant love is the origin; from this are all the determinations with Angels and Spirits . . . 151².

199. All things appear near or remote according to His presence; for thence are determined all things which are in the Heavens.

263⁶. See NUMBER at this ref.

481². As the loves thus determine the life of each . . .

532³. The intention of man, by which his internal sight or thought is determined, is his will . . . Wherefore, if he strives after Heaven, his thought is determined thither, and with this his whole mind . . .

557^e. They who are skilled in the art of letting good Spirits into their proprium . . . by determinations of their affections to themselves . . .

J. 48^e. In the Spiritual World, the ways in which each one walks are the actual determinations of the thoughts of the mind.

W. 7^e. Spaces there . . . cannot be determined by measure . . .

120. In the natural world, these four quarters are constant, determined by the sun in the south . . . which quarters are determined by the meridian of each place . . . In the Spiritual World . . . the quarters are determined by the Sun there . . . Wherefore, the determination of the quarters in that World is not . . . from the south . . .

219^e. At such times, the determinations of endeavours and forces are into the general motor organs . . .

220. As the . . . body has determined its powers chiefly into the arms and hands . . .

239. See DEGREE at this ref.

259^e. The life . . . acts according to ultimate determinations, though not from them.

279. According to the determinations (of the love) into affections, and thence into thoughts.

363². There are a number common to both love and wisdom; as consent, conclusion, and determination to act.

389. All the determinations of love and wisdom are in it . . . If any part that exists in man were absent, somewhat corresponding to it of determination by love and wisdom would be absent . . .

410³. Has not as yet determined itself to uses . . .

—^e. All from some determination of the love, which is called affection.

412. See HEART at this ref.

P. 33. The evils to which it has determined itself . . .

71. Man cannot pass from one to the other, except by determinations. This determination may be compared to a door . . . Whoever attends . . . will notice that such a determination comes in . . .

88. For all ability there must be means . . . and thus determination from what is more internal than itself. The eye has not the power to see . . . the means and determination must be from the mind. Nor has the mind the power . . . without something more internal to determine . . .

116. Without this appearance, there would be . . . no determination towards doing good.

R. 224⁷. The idea of an invisible God is not determined into anyone . . .

M. 98³. The determinations to marriage are protracted from various causes . . .

146. It is like a door with a hinge, which is opened by determination . . .

179. As all things of the soul and mind are determined into the body . . .

188. By determination it becomes this love.

221. Determinations are at the good pleasure of the husband. Gen.art. (See D.6110⁴⁴. —⁴⁹.)

296. With women there is not the quick-sightedness of this light, and therefore the determinations to marriage with them would be only from the inclinations of their love . . . It is those who have the love of the sex with whom there is determination.

400⁹. Determination alone intervenes . . . Intuition is as an act before determination.

T. 36. Cohering, determining, forming . . .

52. See ORDER at this ref.

374². How it is to determine itself to acts . . .

—³. Where there is opportunity for determination, the tree blossoms . . .

—⁴. Finally, there takes place a determination into uses . . .

375. See CHARITY at this ref.

504. He could also determine intellectual things as he pleased, and voluntary ones as he liked . . .

577². Considered, concluded upon, and determined into act . . .

600⁶. For it has no determination to do what is good.

Ad. 990. Determination itself is effected by a species of movement in the organic beginnings of the brain . . .

D. 885. On the determination of Souls to certain and fixed ends.

1026. In natural things, wherein only determinations effect forms . . . 1028⁹.

1703¹/₂. Such situation appears without any determination . . .

1706. For the ideas are determined into the universe, and are thus as it were dissipated, without determination into me. Determination in itself effects this . . .

1707. Hence . . . whatever Spirits may appear to themselves to be, they have from the determination of ideas in themselves . . . and without such determination and reflection neither Spirit nor man appears to himself to be anything.

1728. In the bodily life they had been such as trusted but little to their own thought, and thus had not much determined themselves . . .

2438⁹. Thus evil returns to him by a wonderful circuit and flux of determination . . .

3024¹/₂. With him who is in faith, the less the ideas are determined to one thing . . . the better it is.

3464. There are many kinds (of breathing) . . . as to the regions in the body and the determinations thence.

3907. The Lord's mercy . . . is what determines all things . . .

3970. See SPIRIT at this ref.

4042. The vessels of the memory are the planes into which ideas are determined . . .

4852. See SWEDENBORG at this ref.

5172. They act determinately . . .

5941¹/₂. That they who acknowledge only the Father . . . are determined to the loves of the body and the world.

— . In the other life, all are determined to their own loves . . .

D. Min. 4647. Occurs.

E. 112². Such as is the determination of the interiors of a man's mind, such does he remain after death to eternity . . .

283¹⁴. As by the wings of the cherubs and their determinations, are signified . . .

889⁴. As the eye takes the quality of its sight from objects in the natural world, according to its determinations, so the understanding takes the quality of its thought from truths . . . also according to its determinations; and thus man . . . thinks according to the determination of the affections which are of his love; for in determination resides his freedom.

Ath. 82. They who when they think of God think of the Lord, have a determinate idea; but many who think of God the Father have an indeterminate idea . . .

Coro. 28. Without such free-will . . . man's will would be without determination . . .

Determination. See FREE-WILL.

Detest. Detestari.

Detestation. Detestatio.

Detestable. Detestabilis.

A. 916⁶. Nowhere is there a more detestable life than in the Christian world.

8148⁸. This kind of evil and falsity . . . is more detestable than all the rest . . .

R. 753. What is more detestable? (Repeated many times.)

M. 464. Concubinage conjointly with a wife . . . is detestable. Gen.art.

T. 484. That detestable saying . . .

485. Predestination, which is detestable. 628.

509. Which make man detestable before God . . .

D. 453. They detest the blackness of their bodies.

1866. Their faces were detestable . . .

3946. They detest wives and females . . .

E. 827³. 'Images of the abominations of detestations' (Ezek.vii.20)=all things of it, thus doctrinal things, whose goods and truths are profaned: 'abominations'=goods profaned; and 'detestations,' truths profaned.

Detractor. Obtrectator.

T. 518⁹. A deceitful detractor . . .

526⁹. A hinderer or slanderer of His Word . . .

Detrimental. Detrimentosus.

T. 446. After death is detrimental.

Coro. 34. Falsities . . . are signified by all hurtful and pestilential waters.

Deucalion. Deucalion. T.58^o.

Devastate. Devastare.

Devastation. Devastatio.

See VASTATE, and under DESOLATE.

A. 427^e. 'Wound'=that faith is desolated; 'bruise,' that charity is devastated.

5135⁷. That this evil consumes the remains of good and truth, is signified by . . . 'his seed is devastated' (Jer.xlix.10).

6508³. See DESOLATE at this ref.

7039. The extinction of faith without charity, and thus the devastation of truth with them. Sig.

7264. The process of their devastation is described by the eleven plagues inflicted on the Egyptians.

7546. Thus total devastation. Sig.

—'. 'Pestilence'=the vastation of truth and good; here, total devastation. . . Before, by 'pestilence' is not signified total devastation, but vastation in general as to those things which are of the truth and good of the Church, and which are outside.

7643³. Thus (infernal Spirits) vastate themselves; and this does not cease with them until they have completely devastated themselves.

7645². Hence, too, it is, that when infernal Spirits have been devastated, they are in the extremes of the Natural . . .

7681. The evil are devastated as the Lord ordains Heaven; for the influx of good and truth from Heaven effects devastation with the evil . . .

7699. For they who infest have been devastated as to these truths . . .

7704^e. (The wicked who infest are successively conjoined with many Hells) before they are fully devastated.

7710². This ordination effects that the evil are by degrees devastated. Ex. . . Hence it is, that there are degrees of devastation, even until they are at last cast into Hell, which is the last of the degrees of vastation.

7721. When the evil are being devastated in the other life, it is often given them to perceive whence come the evils of punishment with them, in order that they may know that . . . they themselves are the cause. Sig.

7776. 'About the middle of the night'=when there is total devastation. Ex. 7947.

7879. The devastation of the evil in the other life . . . does not come immediately from the Spirit who is in evil, but it comes from the Hells . . .

8210². When the evil have been devastated as to all truth and good, and have been left to the evil and thence the falsity of their own life, the Hells with which they have communicated through the evils of their life are opened . . .

8285. Devastation and damnation thence from themselves. Sig.

9330². Thus they devastate themselves. Ex.

R. 441. Further lamentations over the devastation of the Church. Sig.

478². See CONSUMMATION at these refs. 658. —². 674a. 676³. T.755^e. 758².

789. 'Devastated in one hour' (Rev.xviii.19)=that on account of the destruction of that religiosity, no one can hereafter buy their holy things.

D. 824^e. (The use of devastations.)

1107^e. At last he comes into a state of devastation.

2346. Such cannot be amended . . . but are wholly devastated . . .

4752^e. The keen-sightedness of the evil before they are fully devastated.

5506. On devastations in general.

5509. He is then devastated . . . and thus falls into his own Hell, and is wholly in evil and falsity.

E. 376^e. 'The devastated cities which they will build' (Amos ix.14)=doctrinal things . . . hitherto destroyed, and then to be restored.

386⁵. 'Devastation' (Is.li.19)=that there is good no longer; 'breaking,' that there is truth no longer.

388⁵. Vastation . . . is signified by 'I will devastate' (Hos.ii.12).

405³⁴. 'When ye shall see the abomination of devastation'=when they will see the Church to be devastated, which is when there is no longer any truth because there is no good.

514⁵. 'Devastated'=no perception of it.

650⁶⁴. 'The devastation of beasts' (Hab.ii.17)=the destruction of truths through cupidities of evil.

654⁵⁶. 'They are gone because of devastation' (Hos. ix.6)=turning away from the Lord through the falsification of truth.

—⁷⁰. See CUP-calix—at this ref.

665⁵. See PIT at this ref.

675¹¹. Occurs.

701⁶. 'Devastated'=destroyed.

724²¹. See DESTROY=destruere—at this ref.

879. On the devastation of the Church in general and in especial. Ex.

880. Devastation and destruction as to all things of doctrine with them. Sig.

915. Manifestation by the Lord concerning the devastation of the Church as to the good of love and of charity. Sig.

928. 'The seven plagues'=evils and falsities in the whole complex, which completely devastate the Church.

—^e. Thus is the Church devastated. Ex.

960⁴. 'Devastation' is predicated of good; 'desolation,' of truth.

Deviation. Devatio.

A. 5125². If he . . . sees the deviations thereof into falsities . . .

Devil. Diabolus.

Diabolical. Diabolicus.

See EVIL SPIRIT.

A. 251^e. Here (Rev.xii.9; xx.2), and elsewhere, by 'the devil' is never meant any devil as the prince of others, but all the crew of evil Spirits, and evil itself.

364. Sin in general is taken for the devil.

—e. The only thing that can drive the devil and his crew from the door, is love to the Lord and towards the neighbour.

694. So, on the other hand, from proprium, through the love of self and of the world, that is, through hatred, Hell constitutes one devil . . .

695. The diabolical crew perceive such pleasure in (inflicting these torments) . . .

696. (By doing evil and maintaining falsity) he runs upon the diabolical crew (and thus brings punishment upon himself). }

697^e. Thus the man who does not live in the good of charity . . . is one of the infernals, and after death also becomes a devil.

817^e. What a devil !

968. Some had taken with them there the idea that the devil is not to be spoken to, but shunned . . . It was given to say that not only does this not at all injure me, but also that these devils in the other life have been men, who when they lived in the world had passed their life in hatreds, revenges, and adulteries . . . and that the devil signifies nothing else than such a crew of Hell . . . Thus it is false . . . that there has been any devil from the beginning of creation, other than those which have been such men. H. 311. J. 14. D. 406^e.

1573⁴. He alone, by His own power, conquered evil, that is, the devil and all Hell.

1607^e. When He conquered the devil and Hell . . .

1659³. Temptations are nothing but combats with the evils in ourselves, thus with the diabolical crew who excite the evils . . .

1788. Weapons=defence against evils and falsities, that is, against the diabolical crew which induces the temptation . . .

1860. Still less does he believe that he himself will become a devil . . .

2447³. One devil punishes and torments another.

2603. Such (Gentiles) in the other life are at first hardly treated by some whom they call devils.

2890^e. It is slavery to be led by the devil.

3402². In proportion as he is in evil and falsity . . . the diabolical Spirits who are from Hell approach the man.

3425⁵. It is what is Divine that the evil turn into what is diabolical.

3696². At last (the regenerating man) is thrown into temptations and vexations by the diabolical crew . . .

3987^e. They can counterfeit Angels of light, when yet within they are devils.

4151⁵. It is according to doctrinal things from the Word that the devil is continually endeavouring to lead man astray, and that he continually breathes evil in ; hence when anyone has committed a great crime, it is said that he has suffered himself to be led astray by the devil ; and this is true, although few if any believe it

. . . (for) all evil and falsity is from Hell, that is, from the devil ; for Hell is the devil.

4352³. The trust or confidence which is said to be of faith (may be) such as is possible with diabolical Spirits . . .

4444⁴. (Idolaters) evoked from Hell some devil whom they worshipped . . .

4674^e. In the light (of Heaven) they appear as devils . . . 5057^e. 5058². 6571^e.

5032³. The diabolical crew at once take away (whatever flows in from Heaven) . . .

5120³. Hence, as to the external man they appear as Angels, but as to the internal they are devils. 6872². 6914³. 7046.

5165^e. There is then what is diabolical in their faces.

5721³. In the other life they want to be called devils, provided they are allowed to command the Hells, and thus from command, as they believe, to act against the Divine.

5786^e. Hence it is evident, that when in (proprium), man is a devil under a human form.

5990². At this day there are external obsessions, even by the infernal and diabolical crew.

—e. In the other life, where external bonds are taken away, such are devils . . .

6605^e. If there is communication with infernal Societies, the form is ugly and diabolical . . .

7479. They said that of themselves they are devils.

8273⁴. Spiritual war against falsities and evils, or, what is the same, against the devil, that is, the Hells.

8545. They said that such are their devils . . .

8765². If they are asked whether the devil could become an Angel of Heaven, they affirm it . . .

8904^e. From Hell, that is, from the devil.

8908³. 'The devil' (John viii.44)=what is false ; and 'their father'=what is evil ; for falsity is from evil as a son from a father. The falsity which is of the devil is the falsity of faith ; and the evil is the evil of the love of self and the love of the world.

9295⁴. 'The devil,' who is the enemy, and sows the tares (Matt. xiii. 39) is Hell.

9348⁶. The diabolical crew attack nothing with man but his loves . . .

9589. Infernal freedom is to be led by the devil . . .

9937⁷. 'The prince of the world' is the devil, thus all Hell.

9993⁶. To worship the devil from the good of celestial love . . . and Satan from the truths of faith. Sig.

10383. They call the punishing Spirit the devil. D. 1687.

10655³. Hell in the whole complex is what is called 'the prince of the world,' 'the devil.'

H. 311². Nor in Hell any devil who was created an Angel of light . . .

—e. Hell in the whole complex is what is called the devil and Satan ; that Hell which is at the back, where are they who are called evil Genii, the devil ; and that Hell which is in front, where are they who are called evil Spirits, Satan. 544.

[H.] 311 (f). The Hells taken together, or the infernals taken together, are called the devil and Satan. Ref.

553³. Thus, the universal Hell in one complex relates to one devil, and may also be presented in the effigy of one devil.

562^e. He desired to be the devil himself . . .

574^e. That they may afford aid to some new devil to subjugate the others . . .

C. J. 61^e. In Hell, the love of commanding is the devil.

L. 17. After the Lord had taken away all power from the devil, that is, from Hell . . .

— . The devil, whose power had been the stronger . . .

61². The devil, that is, Hell . . .

Life 19. Man stands between the Lord and the devil . . .

68^e. What a devil he would be unless he were reformed.

W. 140. He who is cast down into Hell is called a satan, or a devil.

162^e. These two faculties are possessed equally by devils as by Angels; but devils apply them to growing insane and to doing evil.

243. Many from the diabolical crew (fully understood the arcana of angelic wisdom, almost as the Angels do); but only while they heard them; not when they were thinking by themselves. Ex.

266². Those diabolical Spirits also said, that they could will and do according to those (arcana); but they would not. Ex.

273². The reigning love with its concupiscences . . . is as the devil in Hell; and the thoughts of falsity . . . are as the crew of the devil. . . The love of dominion from the love of self in Hell . . . is called the devil . . . 424².

—³. Those in the former Hell are generically called devils; and such of them as do not act clandestinely, do not refuse their name. Hence it is that the Hells in the composite are called the devil and Satan.

—⁴. The diabolical Hell as an opposite corresponds to the Celestial Kingdom . . .

P. 33³. In proportion as anyone shuns evils as diabolical . . . He who abominates them as so many dusky and fiery devils; for evil and the devil are one; and the falsity of evil and Satan are one . . .

185. They conjoin themselves with the devils there . . . and at last acknowledge the more powerful of the devils as their gods.

190³. Evil affections and the thoughts thence (make) one devil which is Hell.

204. The devil, by whom is meant Hell in the whole complex . . .

206. A devil is such; for he is self-love itself . . . Another devil like himself he hates . . .

—^e. Consequently, the love of the proprium is the devil.

207. The love of self is the devil; and concupiscences and their delights are the evils of his kingdom, which is Hell. 217². 250⁴.

215⁸. Man contracts this nature because the devil himself, with whom he has become conjoined, and by whom he is led, is nothing else than the love of dominion from the love of self; and he who is led by the devil, that is, by Hell, is led into all these evils . . .

—¹³. Man knows not whether anyone is led by the devil, or by the Lord. He who is led by the devil, performs uses for the sake of himself and the world . . . They who do not shun evils as sins perform uses from the devil; for evil is the devil.

216². When (honours and wealth) are curses, they are from the devil. That honours and wealth are given by the devil also, is known; for from this he is called the prince of the world.

223. I have seen fiery devils, who, while they heard arcana of wisdom, not only understood them, but also spoke them from their rationality; but as soon as they returned to their diabolical love, they did not understand them; but instead of them, contrary things . . . I have heard them, when in a state of wisdom, laughing at their insanity; and when in a state of insanity, laughing at wisdom.

—^e. These are they who are meant by the devils who make themselves Angels of light . . .

233³. In (man's interiors) there must be either the Lord or the devil; the Lord is there after reformation, and the devil is there before it; in proportion, therefore, as man suffers himself to be reformed, the devil is cast out; but in proportion as he does not suffer himself to be reformed, the devil remains. Who cannot see that the Lord cannot enter so long as the devil is there? And he is there so long as man keeps the door closed . . .

— . Whether it is said evil or the devil, it is the same . . . for the devil is within all evil.

263³. If this had been seen before, the devil, that is, Hell, would have snatched it out of men's hearts.

302^e. In its form, Hell is like a monstrous man, whose soul is the love of self and Own intelligence, thus the devil: for there is not any devil who is sole lord there; but the love of self is so called.

310³. As they favour the delights of concupiscences, they are satans and devils; those are called satans who confirm the concupiscences of evil with themselves; and those devils, who live them.

337. It fights for them against the devil, that is, against the evils of Hell.

R. 97. Hell is called the devil and Satan; and by the Hell which is called the devil is meant those who are in evils, properly who are in the love of self; and by the Hell which is called Satan are meant those there who are in falsities, properly, who are in the pride of their Own intelligence. The reason these Hells are called the devil and Satan, is that all who are in them are called devils and satans.

99. 'The devil shall cast some of you into custody' (Rev. ii. 10) = that their good of life will be infested by the evils which are Hell. . . By 'the devil' is meant the Hell where are those who are in evils; and thus, abstractedly, the evils which are there and thence.

153^e. Satans are those who have been in falsities and thence in evils; and devils, those who have been in evils and thence falsities. In the light of Heaven, satans appear like corpses, and some black like mummies; and devils appear duskily fiery, and some black like soot. They all appear monstrous in face and body: but in their own light . . . they appear like men. This is granted them in order that they may consociate together. T.281^e.

312. See BLACK-niger-at this ref.

387. As Heaven is distinguished into two Kingdoms, so is Hell into two kingdoms opposite to them; a Diabolical Kingdom and a Satanic Kingdom. The Diabolical Kingdom consists of those who are in the love of dominion from the love of self, and are thence in folly; for this love is opposite to celestial love, and its folly is opposite to celestial wisdom; whereas the Satanic Kingdom consists of those who are in the love of dominion from the pride of their Own intelligence, and are thence in insanity; for this love is opposite to spiritual love, and its insanity is opposite to spiritual intelligence.

—². See CELESTIAL KINGDOM at this ref.

—^e. In the Word, both 'the devil' and 'Satan' are mentioned, and by both is meant Hell. They are so named, because all in the one Hell are called devils, and all in the other, satans.

484². Wherefore, on the part of God, grace endures to eternity . . . also towards the devil himself.

550. 'Called the devil and Satan' (Rev.xii.9)=those who cannot but be in the evils and thence in the falsities of their concupiscences; and who, through separation from the Lord, become devils and satans. Ex. E.740, III.

558. 'The devil has come down to you, having great anger' (ver.12) . . . The dragon is here called 'the devil,' because those are meant who, from this heresy, are in evils of life.

655⁷. Every devil can understand truth when he hears it; but he cannot retain it, because, when the affection of evil returns, it casts out the thought of truth. T.388.

797. This conjunction, with those who are in the love of dominion from the love of self over the holy Divine things of the Lord, and over the Lord, is like conjunction with the devil, who . . . is this love; and to approach the devil, in order through him to come to God, is detestable. So2.

798⁴. There are many devils in the world . . .

So2. This love, which is the devil. (Repeated many times.)

841. 'He laid hold of that ancient dragon serpent, which is the devil and Satan' (Rev.xx.2) . . . As they are in evils as to life, they are called 'the devil,' and as they are in falsities as to doctrine, they are called 'Satan.'

864. 'The devil that seduceth them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone' (ver.10)=those who were in evils as to life and in falsities as to doctrine . . . By 'the devil that seduceth them' is meant the dragon . . .

890. Those who overcome evils with themselves, that is, the devil. Sig. . . That to overcome evils with themselves is also to overcome the devil, is because by the devil is meant all evil.

937. This man becomes a devil and a satan . . .

—². Everyone who is in these things is in company with the devils who are in Hell.

940². I have seen and heard many complete devils, who understood the arcana of angelic wisdom, when they heard and read them, as the Angels themselves do; but the moment they returned to their own love and their consequent pride, they not only understood nothing of them, but also saw things contrary from the light of the confirmation of falsity with them.

M. 153a. He said, Unfold this arcanum: How man created in the form of God could be changed into the form of a devil? (Answered by a Platonist.)

263. A devil seen ascending from Hell. Des.

264. The earth now opened to the right, and I saw another devil rising up. Des. On seeing him the former devil threw himself on his knees and adored him . . .

—². When this devil lived in the world . . .

266⁴. Suppose a society composed of mere devils . . .

269⁴. I saw a devil rising up with a bright circle round his head . . . He said, I am Lucifer the son of the morning . . . There, I am a devil, but here I am an Angel of light . . . I am able to preach, and I have preached . . . against defrauders, adulterers, and all infernal loves; nay, I have then called Lucifer a devil . . . and when in the pulpit I thought no otherwise . . . But the reason is, that I was then in externals, and these were then separated from my internals . . . But still I could not change myself, because I have not looked to God above my conceit . . . In the body I am an Angel, but in the spirit a devil; for in the body I am in understanding, but in the spirit I am in will . . . He afterwards spoke about his twofold state . . . more rationally than anyone; but suddenly, when he saw the Angels with me . . . he became black . . . and sank down into Hell.

—⁶. I then asked the Angels, Whence have devils such rationality? They said, It is from the glory of the love of self . . .

380². All Hell consists of such . . . called satans and devils; satans, those who have confirmed themselves for nature, and so denied God; devils, those who have lived criminally, and so have rejected all acknowledgment of God from their hearts. T.35².

461⁷. Through the opening, three devils ascended, appearing on fire from the delight of their love. (They tell what their delights are, and that all are permitted to be in their delights provided they do not infest the good, but that they cannot help doing so, because when they see an Angel and feel the Lord's sphere, it is as if they were seized with fury.)

492². They who are evil from the understanding, dwell in front, and are called satans; but they who are evil from the will, dwell behind, and are called devils. On account of this universal distinction; 'Satan' and 'the devil' are mentioned in the Word. With those evil ones, and also adulterers, who are called satans, the understanding acts as principal; but with those who are called devils, the will acts as principal.

B. 43. Because they are of the devil and from the devil. 117³. T.3. Scia.10.

T. 13⁴. They open the lower things of their mind for the devil . . .

32⁶. So that the universal Hell represents one monstrous devil . . . 74⁵.

80^e. They are called satans who have confirmed falsities even to faith ; devils, they who have confirmed evils in themselves by life.

84^e. Jehovah cannot touch any devil in Hell, nor any devil on earth . . . except in ultimates . . .

87^e. (Such men) have power over whole phalanxes of devils ; who, regarded in their essence, are nothing but evils and falsities.

224³. Devils and satans cast themselves into the deep the moment they scent Divine truth . . .

312. Devils and satans have a constant purpose to kill the Lord ; and as they cannot do this, they endeavour to kill those who are attached to the Lord . . . They make every effort to destroy their souls, that is, to destroy faith and charity in them. Des.

428^e. All bread in the hand of a devil is poison . . .

455. With the evil, the internal man is conjoined with devils in Hell.

476^e. When the devil is mentioned, Hell is meant.

481². The power to understand and will truth is given . . . also to devils, and is never taken away. (Shown by experiment.) D.4754, Examp.

569⁴. (A devil seen like a leopard who had got among the Angels in the ultimate Heaven ; his torture.)

589. The faculty of elevating the understanding even to the intelligence in which are the Angels, is from creation in . . . every devil in Hell . . . The reason they are not in intelligence . . . is that they do not will good . . . consequently, they are averse to know and understand truths.

596². The devil or Hell attacks man . . .

713. There are three things opposite to these universals, which are, the devil, evil, and falsity. The devil, by which is meant Hell, is opposite to the Lord . . .

Ad. 637. Falsity, wickedness, and injustice ; that is, the devil himself . . .

647. He who is over these (Genii) is called the devil.

941. Their leader, who is the devil . . .

956. The worst or deepest evil, namely, the devil . . .

985. Such loves are in the devil himself, and in his evil Genii.

1000. Why evil Genii are compared to fires, and the devil himself to a certain fountain of such fires.

2/136. As to the devil himself, it is well known that in the beginning he was created good . . .

2/207^e. Evil Spirits, who, taken together, are also called the devil . . . D.(Index).

D. 202. On the extreme wickedness of the devil.

—e. Only his crew are let out, who are thus meant by the devil, as he is called.

291. That the power of the devil is a mere phantasy . . .

318. On the cunning of the devil in perverting truths and goods.

325. See CROWD at these refs. 617. 5925. D.Min. 4774.

326. In this state Souls are devils . . . 372.

327. The curse of the devil . . . cannot injure (such).

371. (Such) become devils. 4746.

406. On the cold of those who are from the devil's crew.

414. That the diabolical crew want to abide in privies, etc.

1246. I replied, that it is granted me to speak with the worst devils, because they cannot harm me . . . That I might know the nature of their life . . . Moreover, by conversing with them they themselves can know their quality . . . Besides, they are rather to be pitied . . . If I were not to speak to them, or were to speak harshly, their torments would be added to, which would be contrary to mercy and charity ; for to will well, even to them, is Christian. Moreover, some of them had been known to me, and I had not believed that they would become infernals. 3489.

1913. That such insects signify the more insane devils.

2619. So is it permitted the devil, because of such a nature, to torment men.

3217. When it was granted to speak about certain things written and published by me, concerning the devil, that he was created before the creation of the world, as a couple between heavenly and corporeal things . . . They could not have been written differently, because the universal Christian world believes no otherwise . . .

3407. He constantly called the devil . . .

3485. I called him the worst devil . . .

3999. There was sent to them the devil of the cloud . . .

4056. (The punishment of one who had a habit of naming the devil.)

4321. A certain one said he led (Paul) . . . but he was a certain devil, who supposed he was the very devil that deceived Adam . . .

4323. On the devil himself. (He cared nothing for hatreds, adulteries, etc., but only to destroy what is good and true.)

4623. This would be to supplicate to the devil . . .

4626. When any devil appears from Hell, he appears monstrous according to . . . Des.

4708. (A devil whom I at first thought was an Angel, and who could almost deceive the interior Angels.) 4714.

4743. See CHARLES XII. at these refs. 4748. 4764. 4873.

4784. See ADULTERY at this ref.

4817. That the Lord can be honoured by the worst devils, if Power be promised them. E.1029³, Examp. J.(Post.)238.

4872. Thus in a dream I was led by devils, and then three devils approached me . . .

4875. Who had revealed such things to these devils . . .

5011. Thus they all together made one devil . . .

5015. He associated himself with the most wicked devils . . .

5207. They set up some devil, whom they call Christ . . .

— Another devil entered . . .

5208^e. They adored the devil, and the devil gave them command . . .

5460¹/₂. They set up a certain devil . . . whom they called God the Father . . . There were many such, one after another . . .

5638. On devils who make themselves Angels of light.

5655. That they were worshippers of the devil was also disclosed. Des. J.(Post.)113.

D. Min. 4717. On an honest hypocrite, a devil. Des.

E. 120. The Hell in which are they who are in evils, is called in one word 'the devil;' and the Hell in which are they who are in the falsities of evil, is called in one word 'Satan.' 122. 740². —⁴, III.

433³². 'The devil' (John viii.44)=the extinction of all good.

655². They who are in that Kingdom of Hell which is opposite to the Celestial Kingdom are called Genii; this kingdom is what is meant by 'the devil,' and consists of devils who are in self-love. 740². 1043².

740. 'Called the devil and Satan' = because interiorly they are in the evils and falsities which are from Hell.

—⁵. 'The enemy that sowed them is the devil;' = that evil produces these falsities.

758^e. By 'the devil' is meant all the evil that is from Hell; and by 'Satan,' all the falsity thence.

956². (Such) in their spirit do not see the Lord as the God of Heaven and earth, but some of them . . . some devil, whom they fear because he can do them harm.

985³. The love of adultery . . . induces the form of Hell, which is the image of the devil; wherefore the man who loves adultery, and is averse to marriage, is a devil in form.

1014^e. Hence the devil, by whom is meant Hell in the whole complex, is called 'a murderer from the beginning.'

1043². Thus goods and truths from a celestial origin have for their opposites the evils and falsities which are called diabolical; in like manner goods and truths from a spiritual origin have for their opposites the evils and falsities which are called infernal.

1055^e. These are among the worst, and are called devils; but the rest satans.

1059^e. Such in Hell are black devils.

1145¹⁰. There are in the world men Angels and men devils. (A man Angel contrasted with a man devil.)

1158². I have seen devils reduced into such a state, that they spoke truths from understanding and faith, and did goods from will and love. Ex.

J. (Post.) 276. On one side was represented the devil with Hell, and on the other the Lord with Heaven; and then it was said, that the devil or Hell dwells in the evils with man . . . Also, that the Lord through Heaven continually drives away the devil with Hell . . .

C. 171. The devil is evil itself.

180. Into the external man . . . evil Spirits from Hell are admitted, who are called the devil.

Inv. 23. This was witnessed with a certain devil . . . The Lord's presence was taken away from him, and the devil lay dead, just like a corpse.

Coro. 16^e. Hell is as one devil sitting on a seat twisted out of vipers, fire-serpents, and poisonous worms.

35². All evil is conceived from the devil as a father, and is born from atheistical faith as a mother . . . The generations of all evils . . . are from the marriage of the devil with the profane congregation.

Devise. See under CONTRIVE.

Devoid. Expers.

A. 8941². Being devoid of heavenly life . . .

8943. Man's Own intelligence is in itself devoid of life.

9076. That he may be free from damnation. Sig.

H. 341³. The nature of the innocence of little children was represented to me by what is woody, almost devoid of life.

432². The natural world, in which all things are material, and in themselves devoid of life.

W. 204. With substances and matters devoid of life . . .

D. 547^e. They consider the face as being devoid of muscles and fibres.

Devolve. Devolvere.

Devolution. Devolutio.

A. 3789. 'To roll down the stone from the well's mouth' (Gen.xxix.8)=to uncover the Word as to its interiors. 3798.

5650. 'To roll down upon us' (Gen.xliiii.18)=to present them in fault.

8719. 'Devolve from upon thee, and let them bear with thee' (Ex.xviii.22)=to derive it also to others . . .

Ath. 190. The radiant circles are devolutions of the Infinite . . .

Devotion. Devotio.

Devout. Devotus.

Devoutly. Devote.

See also under ACCURSED.

A. 9. In the third state, he speaks piously and devoutly . . .

724^e. With such an appearance of devotion . . .

1010². However honest, wise, and devout they may have appeared . . .

1438^e. They cannot but be devoted to Hell . . .

H. 531. The merely natural man (also) . . . composes his face to devotion . . .

P. 191². When the Christian is in devotion . . .
283^e. He then condemns and devotes them to Hell . . .

D. 732. When this robber was in such devotion . . .
— In devotion on account of the fear of death . . .

1501. That those who desire revenge can also pray devoutly.

— Thus was I allowed to perceive, with what faith and with what devotion they are and have been in their prayers . . .

4261^e. While in such anxiety, confession and devotion is concordant . . .

4262. Moreover, there is a certain affection of devotion . . .

4940. She could be in a devout external . . . and thus excite to what is devout and holy . . . But it is rare that such are inwardly devout.

5074². Among the Catholics, the worst of all are they who have been devout in the external form . . .

5113. When musicians . . . mark out anything devout concerning God . . . they use the bass.

5424. They were collected who had indeed lived morally, and had frequented places of worship and the Holy Supper, and had then been in devotion, yet cared nothing whatever about the doctrinal things of the Church . . .

5794^e. Nor has he any need to appear devout . . .

5815². They who have believed that salvation consists in prayers and mere devotion . . . and had also lived well, were collected into one. . . They said . . . that they could never find any joy except being in their devotion and prayers; wherefore it was granted them to be among the good in that city . . . so that they were in their devotion . . .

5890. He said he had not applied himself to learn the Knowledges of truth and good, but that still he had been in external devotion . . . He inflowed into the left breast, and I there felt something painful, almost as from those who are in a devout external.

6038. They shaped the countenance and eyes to much devotion . . . and at last they blew into the affection of devotion and piety of priests.

E. 1061². Sometimes reading books of devotion . . .

Devour. See EAT-comedere, and under SWALLOW-deglutire.

Devour. Devorare.

Devouring. Devoratio.

A. 3941³. 'The sword devouring Jer.xii.12)=the vastation of truth.

9348⁴. 'To catch the prey, and to devour men' (Ezek. xix.6)=to destroy truths and goods.

R. 481. 'To devour the little book' (Rev.x.9)=to acknowledge it.

542. 'To devour (the child of the woman)' (Rev.xii.4)=to extinguish it.

D. Min. 4786. The one seemed to devour the other . . .
4814. It appeared as if they devoured it . . .

E. 614. 'The devouring (of the little book)'=exploration.

617. 'To devour' or eat up=comedere=to conjoin and appropriate to one's self; and as the Word is conjoined with man through reading and perception, 'to devour' or eat up=to read and perceive. The reason 'to devour,' here, also=to explore, is because (of what follows).

619. 'The devouring'=perception and exploration.

620. 'I devoured it'=exploration. . . 'To devour' or eat it=to receive, perceive, and appropriate to one's self; thus, also, to explore.

642. 'To devour their enemies' (Rev.xi.5)=that they will perish through the falsities of evil.

722. 'To devour (the child of the woman)'=to destroy. Ex.

— That 'to devour' and 'to eat up'=to destroy, when they are said of wild beasts. Ill.

724³⁰. 'To sacrifice sons and daughters to be devoured' (Ezek.xvi.20)=to destroy and consume all the truths and goods of the Church.

730⁸. 'The sword of Jehovah devouring' (Jer.xii.12)=falsity destroying.

Dew. Ros.

A. 3579. 'God give thee of the dew of heaven' (Gen. xxvii.28)=from Divine truth. . . 'The dew of heaven'=truth. 3600².

—². That 'dew'=truth, is also evident from the Word elsewhere. Ill.

—³. 'The dew of birth' (Ps.cx.3)=the Celestial of love.

—⁴. In the genuine sense, 'dew'=the truth of good which comes from a state of innocence and peace; for the morning, or dawn, when the dew descends,=these states; hence the manna came when the dew descended in the early morning . . . The dew in which and with which the manna descended=Divine truth in the supreme sense; and, in the relative sense,=spiritual truth with men. 3600.

—⁵. As 'dew'=the truth which is from good, or, what is the same, the Spiritual which is from the Celestial, in the Word spiritual truth is compared to 'dew.' Ill.

—^e. 'Dew,' here (Deut.xxxii.2)=the multiplication of truth from good, and the fructification of good through truth; and as the dew is what every morning renders the field and the vineyard fruitful, good and truth itself are signified by 'corn' and 'must.'

8455. 'There was a deposit of dew about the camp' (Ex.xvi.13)=the truth of peace adjoining itself. 'Dew'=the truth of peace . . . because it descends from heaven in the morning, and appears upon plants like fine rain, and also has stored up in it something sweet and delightful more than rain has, whereby the grass and standing corn are gladdened; and morning=a state of peace. Ex.

8456. 'And the deposit of dew went up' (ver.14)=the insinuation of truth. . . 'Dew'=the truth of peace. The depositing of this upon the manna=the insinuation of truth; for the truth of peace is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord in Heaven, which, as it is the inmost, insinuates itself into the truth which is beneath, and vivifies it, as the dew is wont to do the grass or standing corn on which it falls in the morning . . .

M. 155a. There appeared a golden shower; it was the early morning dew descending in such abundance . . .

E. 146^b. The rain with the dew, in which was the manna = the influx of Divine truth in which was this delight.

278^b. 'The dew from Jehovah' (Micah v.7) = spiritual truth.

340⁴. The marriage of good and truth, and their fructification and multiplication, are signified by 'the dew of Hermon which descended upon the mountains of Zion' (Ps.cxxxiii).

375^{2b}. 'The dew of Hermon' = Divine truth.

376¹⁰. 'His heavens shall drop dew' (Deut.cxxxiii.28) = influx from Heaven.

405²¹. 'Dew' (ver. 13) = spiritual things communicating.

448⁷. 'Dew' = influx thence.

594¹⁵. 'A cloud of dew' (Is.xviii.4) = truth from good fructifying.

638¹¹. 'To be to him as the dew' (Hos.xiv.5) = his spiritual coming forth and rebirth.

644⁵. 'The dew' (Deut.cxxii.2) = good; and as this is also signified by 'word,' it is said, 'My word shall distil as the dew.'

695¹³. 'The heavens shall give dew' (Zech.viii.12) = these things by virtue of influx from the Lord.

5 M. 18. Then from the cloud there dropped as it were dew, which was scattered about and condensed into manna . . . This represented the heavenly affections of the thoughts in their speech.

Coro. 20². As the dew of the dawn falling from heaven into the earth . . .

Dexterity. Dexteritas.

Dexterous. Dexterus.

Dexterously. Dextre.

P. 318⁸. There are most dexterous confirmers . . .

D. 512. He had acted with such dexterity . . .

4277. Some induce the persons of others so dexterously . . .

Diabolical. See under DEVIL.

Diadem. Diadema.

See under MITRE.

A. 2760². 'Upon His head many diadems' (Rev.xix. 12) = all the things of faith.

W. H. I. 'Upon His head many diadems' = all the goods and truths of faith.

S. 44⁵. That precious stones and diadems = Divine truths in their ultimates, has been manifestly evident to me from the precious stones and diadems in the Spiritual World . . .

P. 259^e. As various diadems make beauty in a king's crown.

310^e. 'Seven diadems' = the holy things of the Word and Church profaned.

R. 66. These varieties may be compared to the various diadems (or jewels) in a king's crown. 73. (Compare T.763^e.)

540. 'Upon his heads seven diadems' (Rev.xii.3) = all the truths of the Word falsified and profaned.

— By 'diadems' or precious stones are signified the truths of the Word; in special, the truths of the sense of the letter; but here, these falsified and profaned, because they were seen upon the seven heads of the dragon . . .

—². The reason the truths of the Word also falsified and profaned are called 'diadems,' is that they shine of themselves, with whomsoever they are, as diadems do on earth in whose ever hand they are . . . Adulterous women seen adorned with diadems; and also Jews selling diadems, which they had procured from Heaven. E.717².

570. 'Upon his horns ten diadems' (Rev.xiii.1) = the power of falsifying many truths of the Word.

823. 'Upon His head many diadems' (Rev.xix.12) = the Divine truths of the Word from Him.

—^e. Hence it is, that 'diadems' = the Divine truths of the Word in the sense of its letter.

M. 42⁴. In her hair were inserted flowers of diadems.

E. 717. 'Upon his heads seven diadems' = Divine truths in the ultimate of order, which are the truths of the sense of the letter of the Word; here, adulterated and profaned.

—⁴. That the truths of the sense of the letter of the Word appears as diadems, may be evident from the diadems in the Spiritual World . . . Hence also it is that the noble women below the Heavens adorn themselves with diadems . . . These diadems in Heaven, and thence in the lower places, are from the Lord, and from the spiritual light which is from Him; they are the ultimates of that light, which are called effects, and are representative forms of affections of truth from good; thus are Divine truths in the ultimate of order . . . As this is the origin of precious stones, some in the World of Spirits are allowed to form diadems by means of the ingraftings of certain truths from the sense of the letter of the Word; but these diadems are not genuine; in hardness they are like crystals, because they are made by art.

—⁵. Hence it is evident what is signified by diadems or precious stones. III.

777. 'Upon his horns ten diadems' = power from the appearances of truth in abundance. Ex.

825⁴. Like harlots adorned over the forehead and beneath the ears with diadems.

Diameter. Diametros.

A. 2196^e. How they who dwell diametrically opposite stand on their feet . . .

2219³. Self-love is diametrically opposite to the celestial things of love.

5291¹⁰. This number of the circumference does not indeed answer geometrically to the diameter . . .

[A.] 7376. Diametrically contrary to Heaven . . .

H. 554°. These two loves . . . are diametrically opposite to each other.

P. 300. Wherefore Hell is under Heaven, diametrically opposite to it; that is, diametrically opposite like two men lying in opposite ways . . .

M. 261³. The universals of Hell are diametrically opposite to the universals of Heaven . . .

262°. Evil itself is diametrically contrary to the Lord.

T. 405°. Hereditary evil is diametrically opposite to the Lord of Heaven.

D. 5929. They love the places there which are diametrically underneath.

Diamond. Adamas.

Adamantine. Adamantinus.

A. 154°. They appear like little children . . . living and sporting in an adamantine aura.

165°. Such are clad in shining garments, so that you would say it was adamantine silk.

1116. See AURA at these refs. H. 382°.

1526. There appeared a red glow of adamantine light . . .

1621. There are adamantine atmospheres, which flash in all their least parts as with diamond-diamantinis-spherules.

2735. The affections and thoughts (of marriage love) are represented by adamantine auras which sparkle as it were with rubies . . .

4413. I was raised into a light which sparkled as light radiant with diamonds.

9868. 'A chrysopease, a sapphire, and a diamond' (Ex. xxviii. 18) = the celestial love of truth.

—². The stones of this order partake of the blue which is from red . . .

—⁵. But the reason 'the diamond,' which is the third stone of this order, = the truth of celestial love, is from its translucence, which approaches to interior blueness; for thus the colours of the stones of this order, and also of the former one, are translucent through it, because it is the last, and they are communicated to those in the following order; in like manner as is the case with the good and truths in the inmost Heaven, in relation to the good and truths in the following ones.

H. 489°. The things which appear in their houses are as it were adamantine . . .

S. 42. Hence the Word in its ultimate bosom . . . is like a ruby and a diamond; from celestial flame like a ruby, and from spiritual light like a diamond.

M. 15. Of refulgent gold set round with diamonds.

136°. To those at the south he gave hats, of which . . . the elevations of the left side were diamonds cut in the forms of flowers.

T. 34°. The reception of life in the highest degree may be compared to the influx of light into a diamond . . .

527³. They have adamantine hearts (Zech. vii. 12). 536°.

642. Like a diamond dropped into a marsh.

D. 600. As it were adamantine light.

3213. An aura pearly, then crystalline, and then adamantine.

4156. Marriage love is there represented by . . . adamantine auras, sparkling as with rubies . . .

— . Such an adamantine life . . .

E. 391²⁴. Its being so inroated that it cannot be taken away, is signified by, 'The sin of Judah is written with . . . the point-scalprum-of a diamond' (Jer. xvii. 1).

Diana. Diana. T. 58°. 159°. D. 440.

Diaphanous. See TRANSPARENT.

Diaphragm. Diaphragma.

W. 384. The distinction is made by the diaphragm. 402°.

408°. The heart reclines upon the diaphragm.

D. 983. See LIGAMENT at this ref.

1241. They induce anxiety in the region of the diaphragm.

3245. The fulcrum of the muscles of the diaphragm in front.

Diary. The Work called the Spiritual Diary.

D. 2894. All things I have written in this book, are no otherwise written than from living experience; from conversation with Spirits and Angels; from thought communicated like tacit speech; also, while I was writing, from things insinuated by those who were then [present] together as for the most part they were experienced, and with their direction as to the things thought, and written, also as to the hand; so that all things written in these three books and in some other way, although throughout not coherent, are still of experience, and each in its own way from Spirits or Angels. This is in like manner directed by the Spirits nearest my head; for I have as often perceived their presence.

4139a. The signs of the Zodiac first used to indicate the days of the week.

4389. The last consecutive date.

4422. See ARCANA COELESTIA at this ref.

4550. Occasional dates given. 4573. 4618°. 5239. 5336. 5366. 5699. 5746. 5841. 5980. 5994. 6000. 6009. 6019. 6022°. 6097. 6107. 6110⁷³. D. Min. 4725. 4773. 4831.

4620. Refers to numbers of the Arcana Coelestia. 5032. 5192.

4988. Speaks as if the things in the diary were to be published. 5619. 5633.

5099. Refers to the execution of Count Brahe, which took place July 23rd 1756.

5600. Refers to the heavenly doctrine concerning the Lord.

5997. Refers to the explication upon the Apocalypse. 6110²⁸. Refers to the Apocalypse Revealed.

Dibon. Dibon.

E. 727⁴. 'The daughter of Dibon' (Jer.xlviii.18)=the external of the Church, and thence the external of the Word, which is the sense of its letter.

Dice. Alea.

See under ANKLE.

A. 6494. Once when I was playing the game of dice . . .

Dictate. *Dictare, Dictamen.Dictation. *Dictatio.Dictator. Dictator.

A. 211. 'Their eyes were opened'=that they Knew and acknowledged from an interior dictate . . . 212. Ill.

218. 'The voice of Jehovah God . . . in the garden'=a dictate which they feared. The dictate is the residue of perception which they had. . . 'To hide themselves from the face of Jehovah God'=to fear the dictate, as they are wont to do who are conscious of evil. 222.

220^e. As with the regenerate, who have a dictate.

224. Mercy, peace, all good, or 'the faces of Jehovah,' are what cause the dictate with those who have perception; even with those who have conscience . . .

227. Whence come perception, dictate, and conscience. Ex. . . It is this combat which is felt through perception, dictate, and conscience . . .

359. 'Jehovah said to Cain'=that conscience dictated.

371. There then succeeded conscience, which also dictates, but in a different manner. When conscience dictates, it is in like manner said that 'Jehovah speaks' . . . for when the Word says or dictates, it is the Lord Who says it.

393^e. Conscience . . . dictates, not what is the truth, but that it is the truth . . .

573^e. 'A reproof by the Spirit of Jehovah'=an internal dictate, perception or conscience.

607. The Ancient Church had not perception, but in its stead a certain other dictate, which may be called conscience.

608. Man could no longer have a like perception, but in place of perception a certain other dictate, which may be called conscience; for it was similar to conscience, although it was a kind of intermediate between perception and the conscience known to some at this day.

895^e. They who have conscience, from conscience have a certain dictate; but no other than that it is true because they have so heard and learned . . .

1308. There is something within which dictates; for such (a dictate) flows in from the Lord through the Angels who are with every man.

1378². When manifest experience dictates.

1442^e. They who become spiritual men . . . have an analogue of perception, or else a dictate of conscience, more or less . . .

1822. Every internal dictate is nothing else (than internal speech).

1831^e. 'Between the parts'=that with man which is called perception, internal dictate, and conscience; the things which are above perception, internal dictate, and conscience are the Lord's; those which are below, are with man.

1898. The Lord's perception . . . dictated to Him how the case was . . . With the celestial man (too), who has perception, there is a certain truth adjoined to good which dictates . . .

1919². Conscience is a certain general dictate, thus an obscure one, of those things which flow in through the Heavens from the Lord . . .

2215. That which is dictated to them by the Lord through conscience . . .

2862^e. In themselves, reflection and perception are internal indication and dictation.

3039. Everything that is said in the Word through the prophets and others, the Angels dictating, is from the Lord.

3057⁴. There flows in through the Rational as it were a dictate that this is true, and that this is not true . . .

4658. To the interiors of the ear belong those who . . . obey what its Spirit dictates there, and bring forth his dictates fittingly.

4715. He who teaches faith and not charity . . . has not anything which leads, and which dictates whether this is of faith, or whether this is true; whereas if he teaches charity, he then has good, and this is a dictate to him . . .

4788^e. External men . . . have no dictate within.

5121³. He supposes that it is implanted in him, and that it flows from the connection of the things; whereas it is a dictate through Heaven from the Lord into the interiors of the thought, which flows in concerning such things as are above what is natural and sensuous . . .

5472. When a man recedes from good, and feels any anxiety, it is not from any innate dictate, but from the faith he has imbibed from infancy; this then dictates and causes that anxiety.

6597^e. The internal sense . . . has been dictated to me from Heaven.

7055³. The prophets, through whom the Word was written, wrote as the Spirit from the Divine dictated; the very words which they wrote were uttered in their ears.

8692^e. To consult as to what the Divine dictates. Sig.

9094^e. Inspiration is not dictation, but is influx from the Divine . . .

9824⁵. Divine answers are presented in ultimates; for they pass through all interior things in succession, and are there dictated, because there they cease.

9905⁴. A like explendescence is inwardly presented with those who are in truths from good, which dictates and as it were gives answers, when truth is inquired into from the affection of the heart, and is loved as good.

H. 254. The Lord spoke to the prophets through Spirits who were sent to them, whom the Lord filled with His aspect, and thus inspired the words which they dictated to the prophets; so that there was not influx, but dictate.

[H.] 259. The Word . . . has been dictated by the Lord; and that which is dictated by the Lord passes through all the Heavens in order, and is terminated with man.

N. 139³. Conscience is an internal dictate . . . Refs.

C. J. 76^e. The things in the Doctrine of the New Jerusalem . . . are orally dictated by angelic Spirits to the (Africans).

F. 5. There is a spiritual idea . . . which flows in with those who are in the affection of truth, and interiorly dictates . . .

P. 317. Every man as to his spirit . . . is in spiritual light, which enlightens the interiors of his understanding, and as it were dictates.

R. 959. The Word, which has been dictated by the Lord . . .

M. 24. This holy Book has been dictated by Jehovah the Lord . . .

229². They think from as it were a certain dictate inwardly in them . . . It is said from dictate, etc., and it is meant, from the Divine Providence.

T. 6. The whole of the Holy Scripture . . . was dictated by God.

9. From the Divine influx into the souls of men . . . it follows, that there is an internal dictate with every man that there is a God, and that He is one.

42². Because it has been asserted by a man of authority . . .

85. For the Word was dictated by Jehovah Himself, and what is dictated by Jehovah is purely the Divine truth.

112³. Among whom was that dictator . . . Then that dictator . . .

722. Reason itself . . . dictates.

815². The students write down from the lips of the teachers in the seminaries their dicta.

Ad. 2/1485. These things have been more clearly delivered from Heaven, although not dictated, as I could clearly perceive.

3/337^e. I have not been allowed to insert anything whatever that was dictated by them viva voce.

3/866. This state came to me, when I could not write anything with clearness except those things which were as it were tacitly dictated to me.

3/5394. The things above written were inspired to me by an Angel . . . the words came spontaneously into the paper, but without dictation.

3/7167. It was dictated, but in a wonderful way, into the thought.

— These papers (written by means of the hand being led) were destroyed . . . nor is it permitted to dictate anything viva voce.

D. 315. Occurs.

1221a. If Angels were to dictate words . . .

1335. There was one who continually asserted . . .

6062^e. The prophets, to whom the several words were dictated.

E. 825³. The man is led and taught, not immediately, through any dictate . . .

1054³. The holiness of the dictates of the Pope . . .

J. (Post.) 28. Some things were then dictated to (Melancthon) by Angels from Heaven . . .

Dictum. See SAYING.

Dictionary. Dictionarium.

D. 805. They who have loved only to compile dictionaries . . .

Dideron. Dideron. D.4558.

Diduction. Diductio, Diducere. P.319. T.16⁴. 31^e.

Die. Defungi.

Dead. Defunctus.

H. 312⁴. It has been granted me to speak with all I had ever known . . . after they had died . . .

J. 23. All who . . . have died are either in Heaven or Hell. Gen.art.

P. 50⁴. No one has thought of any distance in space when I have told him that I had spoken with some one who had died in Asia, Africa, or Europe . . .

134. No one is reformed through visions and speech with the dead, because they force. Gen.art.

M. 321⁷. Two (such married partners) are not separated by the death of one of them, for the spirit of the departed one constantly dwells with the spirit of the one who has not yet departed.

461. By novitiate Spirits are meant men newly deceased . . .

T. 292. This commandment means . . . that no man, dead or living, shall be worshipped as a god.

D. Wis. vii. 1^e. It has pleased the Lord . . . to grant me to speak face to face with Angels and deceased men; to survey them, touch them, and tell them many things about the incredulity and fallacy of men now living . . .

4^e. I have spoken with some deceased persons, who were then Spirits, on the third day after (their death).

5 M. 5. The reason there appears so strong a likeness with those who are recently deceased, is that their mind remains the same . . .

Die. Mori.

Death. Mors.

Dead. Mortuus.

See AFTER DEATH.

A. 34^e. 'Flight' = the last time; also that of each man when he dies.

39. As man of himself is dead . . .

73. When from being dead, man is made spiritual. Tr. Si.

81. A dead man does not acknowledge any truth and good except that which is of the body and the world; this he adores.

—². The ends of a dead man regard only the life of the body and of the world, nor does he know what eternal life is, and what the Lord is; and if he does know he does not believe.

—³. A dead man, when in combat, almost always yields; and when in no combat, evils and falsities have dominion with him, and he is a servant. His bonds are external ones. . . .

104°. A dead man has not even conscience; and many do not know what conscience is, still less perception.

168. On the resuscitation of man from the dead. Gen.art. H.449. D.300. 1092. 1115.

169. I was brought into a state of insensibility as to the bodily senses, thus almost into the state of the dying. . . . so that I might perceive. . . . the things which happen to those who have died, and are being resuscitated. . . .

173. When the Angels perceive that their faces are received, they know that the man is dead.

177. They who are dying, for the most part think about eternal life, rarely about salvation and happiness; wherefore the Angels keep them in thought about eternal life.

198. 'Lest ye die' (Gen.iii.3). . . . The reason why they would thus die, is that faith would thus perish, that is, all wisdom and intelligence.

270. The reason dead men rarely feel such misery and anxiety, is that they are no longer men, although they suppose themselves to be men more than others; for they do not know what the Spiritual and Celestial are, and what eternal life, any more than the brutes; and like them they look downwards to earthly things. . . . They favour only the proprium, and indulge their genius and senses, with the consent of the whole Rational; and, being dead, they do not endure any combat or temptation; for, if it were to supervene, it would be more grievous than they could stand (vivere), and thus they would curse themselves still more, and would precipitate themselves still more deeply into infernal damnation; wherefore they are spared until they have passed into the other life, where they cannot any longer die from any temptation or misery; they then endure most grievous things. Sig.

272°. The Lord's life with such a one is perverted, and becomes the life of evil, which is death; hence he is called dead.

290°. On the other hand, they who are not in faith are called 'dead'. . . . as in Isaiah: 'The dead shall not live; the Rephaim shall not rise again, to this, that thou hast visited and extinguished them' (xxvi.14); for those who are swollen with self-love. . . . And Hell is called 'death,' Is.xxv.8; xxviii.15. They are also called 'the dead' by the Lord, Matt.iv.16; John v.24; viii.21, 24, 51, 52.

304. The man who is dead is not called dead because he will die after the life of the body, but because he will live the life of death; for death is damnation and Hell.

492. 'And he died' (Gen.v.5)=that there was not such perception. 494, Ex.

494. The word 'die'=everything that ceases to be such as it has been. Ill.

680. He who is destitute (of goods and truths) has not life, but is dead; the foods on which his soul is pastured when he is dead are delights from evils and pleasantnesses from falsities, which are the foods of death; also from corporeal, worldly, and natural things, which have nothing of life in them.

901°. 'He that toucheth the dead shall be unclean seven days' (Num.xix.11,13). . . . in the internal sense =what is proper to man, which is dead and profane.

978°. Hence it is that some. . . believe that when the body dies they will entirely die: but when they die, they then first begin to live.

1112. Immediately after death they are elevated into Heaven. . . .

1114. After death they can meet all whom they have known in the world, and of whom they have heard. . . .

1143. When his body dies, his soul lives.

1153°. Humiliation consists in the acknowledgment of self, that with self there is nothing alive, and nothing good, but that with self all is dead, nay, cadaverous.

1326. With such, whose worship is called 'Babel,' there does not exist internal worship, but there is a certain dead, in fact cadaverous thing interiorly, which is worshipped.

1366. 'Haran died' (Gen.xi.28)=that interior worship was obliterated.

1382°. The Angels never have any idea of death, but only an idea of life.

1408. As soon as he recedes from corporeal things, those which are of the soul and of life open, which also is the reason, not only that corporeal things must die before man can be born anew or regenerated, but also that the body must die, in order that he may come into Heaven, and see heavenly things. This is the case with the Word of the Lord; its corporeal things are those which are of the sense of the letter, and when the mind is kept in these things, internal ones are never seen, but when they have as it were died, they are first presented to view. . . .

1409. The Most Ancient Church regarded all earthly and worldly and also corporeal things. . . . no otherwise than as dead things; but (by regarding them as representative) dead things lived with them.

1628. The Angels said. . . . that what is of stone, mortar, and wood, to them is dead; but that which is from the Lord, and from life and light itself, is alive. . . .

1673°. 'The dead' (Is.xxvi.14; Ps.lxxxviii.10) do not mean the dead, but the damned.

1850. They do not believe that the dead will rise again until that time. . . .

—⁵. It is the Last Judgment to everyone immediately when he dies; for he then passes into the other life. . . . and is judged either to death or to life. . . . 4527°. 4663.

1853°. No death, or transition to his fathers by death, is here signified.

1854. They who die and are buried, do not die, but pass from a dim life to a clear one; for the death of the body is only the continuation, and also the perfection, of life ; and then for the first time they who are of the Lord come into the enjoyment of all goods, which enjoyment is signified by 'a good old age.'

[A.] 1886 (Pref.)³. It has been granted me . . . to speak there . . . with almost all those whom I have known in the life of the body and have died.

2198^e. In the internal sense, death such as that of the body, is never perceived . . . for in the other life they are ignorant what death is.

2256. 'To make the just die with the impious' (Gen. xviii.25)=that what is good cannot die, because evil can be separated therefrom. Ex.

2289. All little children who die . . . D.3542.

2332. Formerly, when they saw an Angel of Jehovah, they believed they were about to die. Refs. and Ex.

2426. 'Lest, perchance, some evil cleave to me, and I die' (Gen.xix.19)=that then it could not be otherwise than that he would be in evil, and thus would be damned.

2516. 'Behold, thou shalt die on account of the woman' (Gen.xx.3)=that the doctrine of faith would become none, if the Rational were to be consulted as to the things which are there.

2538. 'Know that dying thou shalt die' (ver.7)=that there would be no doctrine of truth and good.

2687. 'Lest I see the death of the child' (Gen.xxi.16)=grief because thus it would perish. 'To see death'=to perish.

2689². They who are being desolated as to goods and truths . . . in the privation of good and truth do not regard the death of the body, which they do not care for, but eternal death. Tr.

2776². Provided they will think . . . in the last hour of death . . . 3938⁶. 4171³.

2818. 'To slay his son'=even until whatever is from what is merely human is dead.

2851³. Hence it is that they are called dead men . . .

2908. 'Sarah died' (Gen.xxiii.2)=night as to the truths of faith. 'To die,' 'the dead,' and 'death,' when predicated of the Church,=its last time, when all faith, that is, charity, has expired ; which time is called in the Word 'night.' It is 'to die' because it ceases to be such.

2912. 'From upon the faces of the dead' (ver.3)=in that night.

2916. In the opposite sense, 'sepulchre'=death, or Hell.

— He then dies as to the former man, and rises again as to the new one: through regeneration, man, from dead, becomes alive.

2917. 'I will bury my dead from before me' (ver.4)=that thus he would emerge and rise again from the night which was with them. . . 'The dead'=a state of shade or night, that is, of ignorance. 2923. 2925. 2931. 2948. 2961.

2923. 'The dead'=night as to the goods and truths of faith.

3016^e. Human life is nothing but a progression from the world to Heaven ; and the last, which is death, is the passage itself.

3253. 'Abraham expired and died' (Gen.xxv.8)=the end of the representation by Abraham. 'To expire and die'=to cease, or have an end ; here, the end of the representation. Ex. 3259. 3276.

3256^e. The representatives in the Word are continuous, although they appear to be interrupted by the deaths of those who represented ; whereas their deaths do not signify any interruption, but continuation.

3293^e. Man cannot think spiritually immediately after death, except from those things which are of his Natural : the communication which man has while he lives in the body is exterior, but this ceases by the death of the body.

3326. 'Esau said, Behold, I am going to die' (Gen. xxv.32)=that he would afterwards rise again. . . 'To die'=the last of a state, when anything ceases to be. Refs. And as the end of a former state is the beginning of the following one, here, by 'going to die,' is signified to rise again afterwards.

3384². 'They who dwell in the shadow of death' (Is.ix.1)=the state of those who are in ignorance of good and truth.

3402. 'He that toucheth this man and his woman, dying he shall die' (Gen.xxvi.11)=that Divine truth and Divine good is not to be opened, and is even not to be approached in faith, on peril of eternal damnation, if it is profaned. . . 'Dying to die'=eternal damnation, which is spiritual death.

3498. 'I do not know the day of my death' (Gen. xxvii.2)=life in the Natural . . . 'Death'=to rise again, that is, to be resuscitated into life ; thus by 'the day of death' is signified the state of the resuscitation of life, or, what is the same, life. The reason it is in the Natural, is that life there is here treated of.

3505. 'Before I die' (ver.4)=the first state of resuscitation in the Natural. 'To die'=to rise again or be resuscitated into life. 3515. 3523.

3812². That the Word . . . vivifies the dead, was represented by the man living again . . . who touched the bones of Elisha.

3813. In the opposite sense, 'flesh'=the voluntary proprium of man, which in itself is nothing but evil, and because not vivified by the Lord it is called dead, and hence this man is called dead.

3849². Hence everyone can judge . . . that the truths of faith without the good of charity are dead . . . The reason truths still appear to be animated, although there is not the good of charity, is from the affections of the love of self and of the world, which have no other life than that which in the spiritual sense is called death, and is infernal life.

3884². The breathing of Heaven . . . flows in by a wonderful correspondence into man's breathing, which is . . . of the body ; and if man were deprived of this influx, he would fall down dead in a moment.

3900¹⁰. When the Church is devoid of the good and thence of the truth of faith . . . it is said to be dead . . . Hence, when dead, it is compared to 'a carcase.'

3908. 'And if not, I am dead' (Gen.xxx.1)=that thus it would not rise again. 'To die'=not to rise again into life. In ancient times, wives called themselves dead, when they did not bear a son or daughter, and also believed themselves to be such . . .

—e. He who has not these births, namely, the truths of faith and the goods of charity, is as it were dead ; that is, is among the dead who do not rise again, to wit, to life or Heaven.

3913. When from a dead man he is becoming a living one ; that is, from a corporeal a celestial one, he is led through many states . . .

3915. Such a ritual was accepted when the wife was barren, lest she should represent the dead who do not rise again to life.

—e. So long as natural affection is dominant, the man is called dead . . .

3934². Unless works correspond to the good of faith . . . they are dead works, in which there is no good, nor truth.

3957². Hence they could know that the state after death is much more clear and bright than the state before death ; and that when a man dies, he passes comparatively from shade to light . . .

—³. The life which a man has acquired in the world follows him, that is, he is in such life after death ; for . . . no one can put off the life acquired from infancy, unless he were to die altogether . . .

3969. The interior man is as it were dead as to good and truth, if the exterior or natural man does not correspond to him as to goods and truths.

4067². If the Societies of Spirits and Angels in which man is were taken away . . . that moment he would fall down quite dead.

4104². Wherefore, the man who is regenerate comes into a like thought (to that of the Angels) when he dies . . .

4171². Hence . . . it was forbidden to eat that which had died of itself . . .

4175. The privation (of spiritual and celestial love) is what is called spiritual death.

4320^e. But this life is not life, but is, as it is called, spiritual death.

4352². There is no spiritual confidence, except that which flows in through the good of love and of charity . . . thus not at the point of death.

4364². He who can be conjoined with the Divine cannot die to eternity.

4368⁵. They do not know that the good will of the internal man remains after death, and that the works of the external man separated from him are dead, and perish.

4417. It was granted to reply, that the life of the evil does indeed appear to them as life, but still it is the life which is called spiritual death . . .

—e. So that they may be called effigies of death.

4423². The man himself does not perceive this inundation while he lives in the body, but he comes into it after death . . .

4464. Unless a man is in Heaven as to the thoughts and affections . . . he cannot come thither after death ; for there is nothing of communication . . . for after death his mind cannot be opened towards the interiors . . .

—². This sphere, the man who has carried on such a life bears with him after death.

4525^e. They who are able to be thus conjoined with the Divine do not die when the corporeal things which are of the world are separated ; for the interiors remain conjoined.

4527². When a man dies (they say he is happy, etc.). 5078⁵.

4563. 'Deborah the nurse of Rebekah died' (Gen. xxxv.8)=that hereditary evil was expelled. 'To die'=an end, or to cease to be such ; here, therefore, expelled, because it treats of hereditary evil.

4565^e. Hence it was customary to weep for the dead when they were being buried.

4588. As the tree falls so it lies, or as a man dies so he becomes . . . 6368^e,Ex.

4590. 'In the going forth of her soul that she was about to die' (ver.18)=a state of temptations. 'The going forth of the soul,' and 'to die'=the last of temptation, which is when the old man dies and the new one receives life.

4593. 'Rachel died, and was buried in the way of Ephrath' (ver.19)=the end of the former affection of interior truth. 'To die'=to cease to be such. 6243.

4618. 'Isaac expired and died' (ver.29)=exsuscitation in the Divine Natural. 'To expire and die'=exsuscitation. Refs. For when it is mentioned in the Word of anyone that he is dead, in the internal sense is signified the last of him and what is new in another, thus continuation : as when it is related of the kings of Judah and Israel that they are dead, or of the chief priests, in the internal sense it is the end of the representation by them, and the continuation in another, thus exsuscitation. They, too, who are in the other life, and are with man while he is reading these things, do not apprehend any death, because they are utterly ignorant of what it is to die ; hence, in place thereof they perceive what is continuous in another. Moreover, when a man dies, he does not die, except as to the Corporeal which has served him for uses on earth ; but he continues life as to his spirit in the World where corporeal things are no longer of any use.

4621². For, when the body is dead, the soul rises again.

—e. Hence all things which are of death in the natural world, signify such things as are of life in the Spiritual World.

4622⁴. With the Sensitive of man immediately after death, the case is this. As soon as a man dies, and the corporeal things with him grow cold, he is exsuscitated into life, and is then in the state of all sensations, so much so, that at first he scarcely knows otherwise than that he is still in the body. The sensations in which he is, lead him to believe so ; but when he perceives that he has more exquisite sensations, and this especially when he begins to speak with other Spirits, he notices that he is in the other life, and that the death of his body has been the continuation of the life of his spirit. Examp.

[A.] 4652. Hence many . . . know no otherwise, than that all sense is in the organs of the body, and therefore when these organs fall to pieces by death, they suppose that no sense survives; when yet the man, that is, his spirit, then comes into his veriest sensitive life.

4658^e. (Aristotle) said, that he knew his spirit would live after death, because it was his interior essence, which cannot die, because it can think . . .

4676. They who are in Heaven are brought by the Lord into a more perfect life, and at last even into the flower of their youth; so, also, they who have died in a good old age.

—². See BODY at these refs. 5078³.

—^e. Still, this influx manifests itself by this, that most are solicitous about their burial and about eulogiums after death . . . for without this influx, they would have utterly despised all memory of themselves after they had died.

4724. 'They conspired against (Joseph) to make him die' (Gen. xxxvii. 18) = that they wanted to extinguish the Divine Spiritual which is from the Lord's Divine Human . . . 'To make to die' = to extinguish.

4760². (How the proposition that man lives after death may be confirmed both negatively and affirmatively.)

4809. When the Divine truth will appear in its own light, as takes place with every man when he dies. Sig.

4833. 'Jehovah made (Er) die' (Gen. xxxviii. 7) = that there was no representative of the Church. 'To die' = to cease to be such; also the end of the representation; here, therefore, that there was no representative of the Church with any posterity from him.

4847. 'Lest perchance (Shelah) die also, as his brothers' (ver. 11) = fear lest he should perish, namely, the representative of the Church which was with the posterity from Jacob.

4851. 'The daughter of Shuah died' (ver. 12) = as to evil from falsity. 'To die' = to cease to be such. . . Here, therefore, by 'the daughter of Shuah died after many days,' is signified a change of state as to evil from falsity, that it was not such as it had been before.

4868⁴. His own life, without difference, remains with everyone after death.

4989². When man comes into the other life, which takes place immediately after death . . .

5006⁴. Man's life in the world is scarcely as a moment relatively to his life after death; but there are few who believe that they will live after death . . . But this I can assert, that man is in the other life immediately after death, and that there his life in the world is just continued . . .

5025^e. This pleasure is dead, because it is from Hell.

5070. They who are in evil appear, especially to themselves, as if they have life, but it is such life as in the Word is called 'death,' and it also is spiritual death; for they taste nothing of good, and understand nothing of truth . . .

5078⁴. Hence it is that men after death mutually see each other, and are in society together according to the interiors . . .

5079². These things, namely, the exterior things of the Natural, man leaves behind when he dies; but the former ones, namely, the interior things of the Natural, he takes with him into the other life, where they serve as a plane to spiritual and celestial things. For man, when he dies, loses nothing, except the bones and the flesh . . .

5094². Man, when he dies, has all the Natural with him; and such as it has been formed with him in the world, such it also remains . . .

5114⁴. As with man there is a connection with the Divine, and his inmost is such that it can receive the Divine, and not only receive it, but also appropriate it to himself through acknowledgment and affection, thus through what is reciprocal; therefore man, because he is thus implanted with the Divine, can never die . . .

5146^e. Many of the learned believe that life is in the body, and thus that when the body dies they will also die as to the interiors on account of the coherence; when yet it is only the exterior degree which dies . . .

5175. When man dies, and enters into the other life, his life is circumstanced as is the food, which is softly received by the lips . . .

5407. 'That we may live, and not die' (Gen. xlii. 2) = spiritual life . . . In the other life . . . by death is signified in general Hell, and in special eternal unhappiness there . . . and as in Hell there is . . . evil in place of good and falsity in place of truth, and thus spiritual life is extinguished, therefore relatively there is death there; for spiritual death is evil and falsity; and with man it is to will evil and thence to think falsity. Evil Genii and Spirits do not want to hear that it is said of them that they do not live, or that they are dead; for they say that they have life because they are able to will and to think; but it is said to them, that as there is life in good and truth, there cannot possibly be in evil and falsity, for they are contrary.

5465. 'Ye shall not die' (ver. 20) = that thus there is life in truths.

5547. 'Because his brother is dead' (ver. 38) = as the Internal is not present. . . 'To be dead,' here, = not to be present; for he was among the living, but was not present.

5605. 'We will arise, and go, and live, and not die' (Gen. xliii. 8) = spiritual life according to degrees. . . 'Not to die' = to be damned no longer, but to be outside of a state of damnation; for in the internal sense of the Word no other death is meant than spiritual death which is damnation. Hence it is evident that . . . removal from those things which are not of life is signified by 'not to die.'

5680^e. For all things in the Natural of themselves are dead, but are vivified by influx from the Spiritual World . . .

5712^e. That man has death from evils, or on account of sin, is known in the Church; thus, also, he has diseases, for these are of death. 5726, Ex.

5759. 'With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, let him die' (Gen.xliv.9)=that he is damned who does such a thing. 'To die'=to be damned; for spiritual death is nothing else but damnation.

5805. 'And his brother is dead' (ver.20)=that there is no internal good. . . 'To be dead'=to be no longer.

5813. 'If he should leave his father, he would die' (ver.22)=that if it were separated the Church would perish . . . 'To die'=to be no longer, thus to perish. 5836.

5826³. If confidence appears with the evil when . . . death is at the doors, that confidence is spurious or false . . .

5828. This is circumstanced as is death and the things of death. In the spiritual sense, these do not signify natural death, but spiritual death, which is damnation; for there is no other death in the Spiritual World.

5849. The two Spirits who are adjoined to man, cause that there is communication with Hell, and the two Angels cause that there is communication with Heaven . . . If these communications were taken away, man would fall down as dead as a stock; for there would then be taken away the connection with the First Being . . . From experience.

5975. 'I will go and see him before I die' (Gen.xlv.28) = a longing for conjunction before there is what is new. . . . 'Before I die'=before what is new, namely, what is new of representation; for in the Word representatives so succeed each other, that when one dies, there follows a representative either similar by means of some one else, or another one, thus what is new; as when Abraham died, there succeeded the representative by Isaac; and when he died, there succeeded the representative by Jacob; and when he died, there succeeded the representative by his descendants. 6302².

6000⁹. 'The death which wastes in noon-day' (Ps.xci.6)=the evil which is openly lived, by which truth is destroyed. 7102¹⁰. 8505. 9642⁵.

6008. 'To place the hand upon the eyes' means that the external Sensuous, or that of the body, is closed, and the internal Sensuous opened. . . This takes place when they die, because by death is signified resuscitation into life; for when man dies, he does not die; but only lays down the body which had served him for use in the world, and passes into the other life in a body which serves him for use there.

6036. 'This time let me die' (Gen.xlvi.30)=new life. 'To die'=resurrection into life, thus new life. The reason 'to die'=what is new of life . . . is that when man dies, what is new of his life at once begins; he is exsuscitated into life when the material body is rejected which had served him for use in the world. New life is here signified by 'to die,' because this comes by virtue of influx from the Internal . . .

6077⁸. This is especially evident from the state of man after death; he is then able to think and speak rationally about the truths and goods of faith, and this much more perspicaciously than in the life of the body, but he cannot take any scientifics out of the memory . . .

6119. 'Why should we die near thee because the silver faileth?' (Gen.xlvii.15)=that otherwise there is spiritual death on account of the lack of truth. 'To die'=spiritual death . . . or damnation. Ex. and Ill.

6136. 'Wherefore shall we die at thine eyes, both we and our ground?' (ver.19)=that if they were desolated there would no longer be spiritual life under the Internal . . . These receptacles (of spiritual life) are said to die, when inwardly there is not anything of spiritual life; for by 'to die' is signified desolation; that is, the privation of good and truth, which make spiritual life.

6140. 'That we may live, and not die' (id.)=spiritual life thence, and no longer the fear of damnation. . . 'To die'=damnation; here, the fear of damnation; because, in a state of desolation, when man is being regenerated, there is not damnation, but the fear of damnation.

6176. 'And the time drew near for Israel to die' (ver.29)=the state just before regeneration. . . 'To die'=to rise again, and to be excited into spiritual life, thus to be regenerated; for he who is being regenerated, rises again from spiritual death, and is excited into new life. 6221.

6221. That 'to die'=regeneration, and that 'to be sick'=what is successive of regeneration, must appear far-fetched. (But) the Angels know nothing about death, nor about sickness, wherefore they have no idea about them, and therefore, in their place, when this is being read by man, they have the idea of continuation of life and resurrection; for this reason, that when man dies, he only puts off that which had served him for use in the world, and enters into the life in which he had been with his spirit: this idea comes to the Angels when 'dying' and 'sickness' are being read of: in like manner the idea of regeneration, for this is resurrection into life; as before man was spiritually dead; but when he is regenerated he becomes alive, and a son of the resurrection. The man himself, who while he lives in the body, longs for Heaven, thinks no otherwise about death and the sickness which precedes it, than that it is resurrection into life; for when he is thinking about Heaven, he abstracts himself from an idea about the body, especially when he is sick and comes near to death. Hence it is evident, that a spiritual idea about the death of the body is that of what is new of life . . .

6281. When 'to redeem' is predicated of death, those are meant who are in damnation.

6302. 'Israel said to Joseph, Behold, I die' (Gen.xlviii.21)=the perception of spiritual good from the Celestial Internal concerning new life, and concerning the end of the representation. . . 'To die'=resuscitation into life; and also the end of the former representation . . . Refs.

6385⁴. 'The third part of the creatures that are in the sea, that had souls, died' (Rev.viii.9) . . . That 'they died'=that they had not spiritual life.

6464. 'To expire,' or die=new life. Refs.

6465². He who conceives exterior and interior things as continually purer, and thus coherent by continuity . . . cannot apprehend otherwise, than that when the external dies the internal dies too . . .

6499⁶. The reason this Church is described by Israel now dead . . . is that in the internal sense by death is not signified death . . . but new life; and by 'burial,' regeneration. Refs.

[A.] 6515. 'Behold, I die' (Gen.1.5)=that the Church ceased to be. 'To die'=no longer to be; and also the last time of the Church, when it expires. Refs.

6557. 'And Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead' (ver.15)=things alienated from truth and good, and the apperception that the Church is to be exsuscitated. . . 'To be dead'=to be resuscitated, namely, the Church. Refs.

6561. 'Thy father commanded before he died' (ver.16)=that it was by command of the Church. . . 'Before he died'=while the Church still was.

6587. 'And Joseph said to his brethren, Behold, I die' (ver.24)=a prediction that the Internal of the Church would cease. . . 'To die'=to cease to be such, thus to cease. 'To die,' also,=the last time of the Church. Refs.

6593. 'And Joseph died' (ver.26)=that the Internal of the Church ceased to be.

6645. 'Joseph was dead' (Ex.i.6)=when the Internal of the Church was now circumstanced otherwise. 'To die'=the end of the former state, and the beginning of a new one, thus that the state of the Church was now circumstanced otherwise. That 'to die'=to cease to be such. Refs. And that it=the end of the former representation. Refs.

— The state of the Church, such as it is now, is described in what follows; also its external states, which is signified by 'his brethren being dead, and all that generation.'

6685^e. In subjects which disagree with good, there is presented a life contrary to spiritual life, which in the Word is called 'death.'

6767. For he who takes away faith, takes away spiritual life; the life which remains is the life which is called death.

6799. 'And the king of Egypt died' (Ex.ii.23)=the end of the former falsity. 'To die'=to cease to be, thus the end.

7021. 'All the men are dead that seek thy soul' (Ex. iv.19)=the removal of the falsities which endeavour to destroy the life of truth and good. 'To be dead'=to be removed; for they who are dead are also removed.

7122. For there adheres to man, and is in his memories, after death, everything of his thought in the world, of intention, of will, of speech, and of his action. . .

7136. As 'to die,' in the spiritual sense, is not to die, but to be deprived of truth and good, and to be in falsity and evil, and therefore to be damned.

7217^e. Therefore when they suppose themselves to be deprived of the truths and goods of faith and charity, they are affected with an agony like those who are in the death agony, for they see spiritual death before them, that is, damnation.

7318. 'The fish that is in the river shall die' (Ex.vii.18)=that scientific truth will be extinguished. . . 'To die'=to be extinguished.

7407. 'The frogs died out of the houses, etc.' (Ex.viii.13)=that with them there ceased reasonings from mere falsities everywhere in the Natural. 'To die'=to cease.

7494. This contrary of life is Hell, and is called 'death;' and they are called 'the dead.' Ill.

7507. 'There shall nothing die of all that is the Sons of Israel's' (Ex.ix.4)=that they shall not be consumed. Ex.

— That which is conjoined with life itself and what is eternal cannot die, that is, be consumed; it remains to eternity, and is continually being perfected. But those things which are of faith with those who are of the Church and are being damned, as they are not conjoined with the Divine, and thence have no life in themselves, do die. . . In the other life they are consumed, that is, taken away.

7561. 'The hail shall descend upon them, and they shall die' (ver.19)=that what is of the Church will be entirely destroyed by falsity. . . 'To die'=to cease to be; and as it is said of the vastation of good and truth, it=to be destroyed.

7699. 'That he may remove from upon me this death only' (Ex.x.17)=that this falsity may not torment. . . For by 'death' is signified damnation and Hell, thus also torment.

7738. 'For in the day thou seest my faces thou shalt die' (ver.28)=if it should enter into the animus, it would be extirpated. . . 'To die'=to be extirpated.

7766. By 'the death (of the first-born)' is signified the damnation itself.

7954. 'For there was no house where there was not one dead' (Ex.xii.30)=because there was none not damned.

7965. 'We all die' (ver.33)=Hell with them. 'To die'=Hell. Refs.

8113^e. The inhabitants of Jupiter said to me, that they do not fear death, except a little on account of the loss of their married partner and children; because they know for certain that the death of the body is the continuation of life, and that they afterwards become more happy. SS50.

8165. 'Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us to die in the wilderness?' (Ex.xiv.11)=that if there were damnation, it would be all the same whether it came through the falsities of the infesters, or through a state of temptations in which they yielded. . . 'Graves'=damnation. . . 'To die' also=damnation.

8169. 'It would be better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness' (ver.12)=that damnation through the violence of falsity in a state of infestations would be preferable to the damnation consequent upon yielding in a state of temptations. Ex.

8237. 'Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the sea-shore' (ver.30)=the aspect of the damned dispersed here and there. Ex.

8265. At the presence of the Divine, the evil. . . conduct themselves as do those who are in the agony of death. . .

8364². These (evils) bring the spiritual life to the death which is called spiritual death, and is damnation, as diseases bring the natural life to its death.

8392. Repentance. . . in a compulsory state avails not: a compulsory state is . . . a state of imminent death, etc.

8407. 'To have died by the hand of Jehovah' (Ex.xvi. 3)=that they are left by the Lord. 'To be dead'=to be in evils and consequent falsities, thus in damnation; and when it is said 'to die by the hand of Jehovah,' it =to be left by the Lord; for they who are left by Him, that is, who leave Him, rush into evils and consequent falsities, and thus into damnation.

8409^o. 'Flesh'=what is dead; 'spirit,' what is alive . . . Dead is said of what is evil; for from evil comes spiritual death . . .

8542^o. If they do not repent, death is denounced against them.

8571. 'To make me to die, and my sons, and my cattle, of thirst' (Ex.xvii.3)=that from the lack of truth, everything of spiritual life would expire. 'To die'=to expire; here, as to the spiritual life.

8797. 'Everyone that toucheth the mount, dying he shall die' (Ex.xix.12)=that the man of the Spiritual Church who infuses himself even to the celestial will perish.

8850. Those (of the inhabitants of Jupiter) see such (a bald head) as will die within a year.

— . Wherefore, they do not call dying dying, but being heaven-made. Those in that Earth who have lived happy in marriage love . . . do not die by diseases, but tranquilly as in sleep, and thus transmigrate out of the world into Heaven.

8851. (Why they die so young in Jupiter.)

8911. Man is such as is his will, and such he remains after death; because death is not the end of life, but its continuation. 8939. C.J.32.

8922. 'Lest we die' (Ex.xx.19)=that thus the life of Heaven will perish with them. 'To die'=to die spiritually, thus to perish as to the life of Heaven.

8939^o. I can assert that man, as soon as he dies, is in the other life, and lives a Spirit among Spirits; and that he then appears to himself and all others precisely as a man in the world, endowed with every sense, both internal and external; thus that the death of the body is only the casting away of such things as had served for use and function in the world; and, moreover, that death itself is a continuation of life, but in another World . . . I speak yet and have spoken with almost all whom I have known in the world, and are dead; with some, after two or three days from death—obitu. Most of them are highly indignant that they had not believed that any life would remain after death . . .

8943. That which is from Own intelligence is in itself devoid of life, nay, spiritually is dead . . .

8950. (The Spirits of Saturn) then say that they want to die . . . When asked why they do so, they say that they would rather die, than be withdrawn from the Lord. D.1517.

8991^o. In the other life they can never be brought to a state of good, that is, so as to act from good; for the life remains with everyone after death: such as a man is when he dies, such he remains . . . Not such as he is about the hour of death; but such as he is when he dies from the whole course of his life . . .

9007. 'He that smiteth a man and he dies' (Ex.xxi. 12)=injury of the truth of faith, and the consequent loss of spiritual life. . . 'To die'=the loss of spiritual life.

9008. 'Dying he shall die' (id.)=damnation. . . The reason 'death'=damnation, is that with those who are damned the truths of faith and the goods of love are extinguished; for these are what constitute the veriest life of man . . . When these are extinguished, falsities and evils succeed in their place, which, being opposite . . . are of death; but of spiritual death, which is damnation, Hell, eternal unhappiness . . .

9014. 'Thou shalt take him from Mine altar to die' (Ex.xxi.14)=damnation even if he flees to the worship of the Lord, and supplicates for forgiveness, and promises repentance.

9016. 'Dying he shall die'=damnation. 9020. 9022. 9191.

9026. 'And he die not' (ver.18)=and is not extinguished. 'To die'=to cease to be such, thus to be extinguished.

9035. 'And he die under his hand' (ver.20)=so that it be extinguished under his view.

9066. 'And he die' (ver.28)=even so as to destroy it.

9075. 'And his lord also shall die' (ver.29)=the damnation of the internal man.

—e. The natural life without the spiritual life is dead.

9089. 'And the dead one shall be his' (ver.34)=that evil or falsity will remain with him. E.537^o. . . 'The dead one,' when said concerning good or truth in the Natural, which is signified by 'an ox' or 'an ass,'=evil or falsity; for when good dies evil succeeds (in its place), and when truth dies falsity succeeds. As what is dead =evil and falsity, those are called 'the dead' who will evil and believe falsity.

9091. 'And he die' (ver.35)=so that the good affection perishes. 'To die'=to perish.

9094. 'They shall also divide the dead one' (id.)=also the affection that does the injury. 'The dead one'=evil and falsity; hence by the dead ox is signified the affection of evil and falsity in the Natural, thus the affection that does the injury; for evil injures through falsity.

9097^o. 'And the dead one shall be his' (ver.36)=for the affection that does the injury. . . 'The dead one'=evil and falsity.

9126. 'To die'=to be extinguished. 9175.

9163. 'To die'=extinction and loss.

9281^o. When a man dies the external breathing ceases, but the internal breathing . . . remains . . .

9311^o. 'The dead' (John v.25)=those who, from ignorance of the truth of faith, as yet have not spiritual life.

9324^o. When the truths of faith and the goods of love are falsified and perverted, the man is sick; but when they are denied at heart, the man spiritually dies.

[A.]9809^o. 'He hath filled with carcases' = thus spiritual death, which is the total deprivation of truth and good.

9928. 'That he die not' (Ex.xxviii.35)=lest the representative perish, and thus conjunction with the Heavens.

9965. 'Lest they bear their iniquity and die' (ver.43) = the annihilation of all worship . . . for representative worship died . . .

10135^o. All things from the sun of the world are dead.

10236^o. By the Sensuous which is the ultimate of the Natural, is properly meant that which is called 'flesh,' and perishes when man dies. (See SENSUOUS at this and other refs.)

10243^o. For such as is the Natural of man when he dies, such it remains . . . for it is the plane into which interior things flow . . .

10244. 'That they die not' (Ex.xxx.20)=that the representative perish not. 'To die,' when said of the ministrator of Aaron and his sons, = the cessation of the representatives, and thence of conjunction with Heaven. Ex.

10272. All goods and truths . . . without life from the Lord in them, are dead things; nay, are even evil ones . . .

10283^o. 'To die' (Zech.xi.9) = to perish as to the spiritual life.

10363. 'Dying he shall die' (Ex.xxxi.14)=separation from Heaven and spiritual death. 'To die,' when said in relation to the Sabbath, by which is signified the Lord and the acknowledgment of Him, = no conjunction with Heaven, thus separation from it; and separation from Heaven is spiritual death.

10382. If anyone (in the Third Earth) thinks and does evil, he is reproved by a certain Spirit, who denounces death against him, if he persists therein; and, moreover, if he does persist he dies by a swoon. D.1682.

10591. Man has been so created, that as to his Internal he cannot die . . . N.224.

10652^o. 'The death' (of those who died in the plague) (Num.xxv.10)=the extinction of all truths. This takes place with those who profane.

10731. 'Everyone that doeth work in it shall die' (Ex.xxxv.2)=spiritual death with those who are led by themselves and their own loves, and not by the Lord. . . 'To die' = damnation, or spiritual death.

H. 80^e. Wherefore, their life is not called life, but spiritual death.

312^d. They wanted me to tell them that they are not dead . . .

330. Little children who die . . .

345. The nature of the difference between those who die as little children, and those who die as adults . . .

391. Some Societies of Angels are present with those who are being exsuscitated from the dead.

433. When the body is separated from its spirit, it is said to die: the man still remains a man, and lives. I have heard from Heaven, that some who die, while they lie on the bier, before they are resuscitated, think in their cold body . . .

445. On the resuscitation of man from the dead. Gen.art.

— . When the body can no longer perform its functions . . . man is said to die. This takes place when the respiratory motions of the lungs and the systolic ones of the heart cease. But still, the man does not die; but is only separated from the Corporeal which had been of use to him in the world . . . Hence it is evident, that man, when he dies, only passes from one world into the other. Hence it is, that in the Word, in the internal sense, 'death' = resurrection, and the continuation of life. (a), Refs.

461. That man after death is in all the sense, memory, thought, affection, in which he is in the world; and that he leaves nothing behind except his earthly body. Gen.art.

473(m). As man's understanding can receive faith in God, and his will love to God, man can be conjoined with God in faith and love, and he who can be conjoined with God in love and faith, cannot die to eternity. Refs.

474^e. This appearing of life is what is called spiritual death.

491. On the first state of man after death. Gen.art.

— . Some do not undergo these states; but immediately after death are either carried [into] Heaven, or cast into Hell . . . I have seen some carried up an hour after death.

493^e. Thus is the one life continued into the other, and death is only the passage.

518^e. At last they drew their breath as if they were moribund, or dying.

582^e. For this reason they also call death only a translation from one world into another like one.

N. 38^e. The natural man is he who is called 'dead.'

115. The confidence of faith separated is dead.

197^d. Dead men, that is, they who are not in faith and love to God and in love towards the neighbour, are not admitted into temptations, because they would yield. Refs.

J. 9^o. When man passes from the natural world into the Spiritual, which takes place when he dies . . .

19^e. About the time of death, when they are no longer in worldly and corporeal things, they believe that they will come into Heaven (at once).

25. The state of man cannot be changed after death.

— . That which can be thus conjoined with the Divine, cannot die to eternity; for the Divine is with him and conjoins him to Itself.

—^e. Every man after death lives to eternity; therefore no Angel or Spirit ever thinks about death, nay, they do not know at all what it is to die; wherefore, when 'death' is mentioned in the Word, there is understood by the Angels either damnation, which is death in the spiritual sense, or the continuation of life and resurrection.

(k.) When 'death' is mentioned in the Word, where the evil are treated of, in Heaven there is understood damnation, which is spiritual death; also Hell. Refs.

— . They who are in evils and falsities are called 'dead.' Refs.

— By 'death,' where it treats of the good who die, in Heaven is understood resurrection and continuation of life; because then man rises again, continues his life, and enters upon the eternal one. Refs.

C. J. 32^e. Hence it is evident, that death is only the continuation of life, and that it is only a passage.

S. 12^e. 'Death' (Rev.vi.8)=eternal damnation.

17⁴. That the dead were resuscitated (by the Lord)=that those became alive who would otherwise have spiritually perished.

W. 89^e. Fire is dead, and the solar fire is death itself. . .

90. When a man dies. . .

157. The sun of the natural world is pure fire, and thence dead; and nature, because it derives origin from that sun, is dead. Gen.art. E.1207².

— What is dead does nothing whatever of itself. . .

158. Therefore the heat proceeding from it is dead, and likewise the light. . . is dead. The atmospheres, too, which receive the heat and light of that sun, are dead. Since these are dead, all things. . . which are under the atmospheres. . . are dead. T.75².

159. It follows, that nature. . . is dead. T.77³.

160^e. (It follows) that spaces also may be called dead.

161^e. All these states (of the day and year), because they are not states of life, as in the Spiritual World, are also dead.

162. A person thus becomes sensuous natural, a spiritually dead man.

163. Without two suns, the one living and the other dead, there can be no creation. Gen.art.

164. As all natural things from their origin are dead. . . it follows that the other sun is dead; also, that the dead sun itself is created through the living sun. . .

165. A dead sun was created for this reason. . .

166. That nothing (was created) through the dead sun, (for) what is living disposes what is dead. . . For what is dead to act upon what is living, or a dead force upon a living force, or, what is the same, what is natural upon what is spiritual, is entirely contrary to order. . . What is dead, or what is natural, may indeed be perverted or changed in many ways by external accidents, but still it cannot act upon life. . .

172. There is nothing so inert and dead as to be totally devoid of working power-efficientis. . .

238. When man puts off the natural degree, which is the case when he dies. . .

257⁴. Still, the man with whom the spiritual degree has been opened, comes into this wisdom when he dies.

—⁵. These (natural) substances recede when man dies, but not the spiritual substances (of the natural mind); wherefore, the same mind after death. . . remains in a form similar to that which it had in the world.

260^e. The substances of the natural world are in themselves dead. . . and those substances which are dead. . . from their nature resist, and so from their nature react.

276^e. So the man, from being alive, becomes dead. He is said to be. . . dead, whose mind is a Hell.

390. When the correspondence of (the cardiac and pulmonary) motions ceases, a separation takes place, which is death. Separation or death takes place, when, from any disease or accident, the body comes into such a state, that it cannot act as one with its spirit. . . D. Wis. vii.4.

P. 19^e. Evil and falsity together are not anything, because there is nothing of spiritual life in them; which is the reason why the life of the infernals is not called life, but death; therefore, as everything is of life, there cannot be any thing of death.

134a. Speech with the dead. . .

220². It is of the Divine Providence that man puts off natural and temporary things by death. Gen.art.

—³. This is effected through the rejection of the temporary and natural ultimates, which is the death of the body.

—⁵. The necessaries of life; food, clothing, and habitation. . . are also put off and left behind by death. . .

277a. So, too, does man's life, when he dies, remain such as it has been. . . For death is a continuation of life, with the difference, that man cannot then be reformed. . . For the ultimates of life that man carries with him after death, become quiescent. . .

322³. Wherefore the natural man, however civilly and morally he may act, is called dead.

324³. The mortal in man is his material body, which is taken away by its death. That man's mind cannot die, was seen by the sages. . . for they said, How can the mind die, when it is able to be wise? Ex.

—⁸. But yet as they were born men, and are thereby in the faculty of thinking and willing, and thence in the faculty of speaking and acting, they cannot die. . .

R. 54. 'I fell at His feet as dead' (Rev.i.17)=a failing of his Own life. E.78.

59. 'And was dead' (ver.18)=that He has been neglected, and His Divine Human not acknowledged. 93.

62. 'I have the keys of Hell and of death' (ver.18)=that He alone can save. E.86.

102. 'Be thou faithful unto death' (Rev.ii.10)=the reception and acknowledgment of Truths, even until falsities are removed, and as it were abolished. . . With those in the Spiritual World there is no death, wherefore by 'death' here, is meant the end of their temptations.

106. 'Shall not be hurt by the second death' (ver.11)=that afterwards they will not yield to evils and falsities from Hell. By the first death is meant the death of the body, and by 'the second death' is meant the death of the soul, which is damnation. 525^e. E.128.

139. 'I will kill her sons with death' (Rev.ii.23)=that all the truths from the Word with them will be turned into falsities. . . 'To kill her sons with death,' also=to damn their falsities.

157. 'Thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead' (Rev.iii.1)=that it seems and is believed by themselves and others, that they are spiritually alive, when yet they are spiritually dead. E.186.

[R.] 159. 'Strengthen the things that are left, which are about to die' (ver.2)=that those things which are of their worship may receive life, and not be extinguished.

321. 'The name of him that sat on him was death' (Rev.vi.7)=the extinction of spiritual life. . . By 'death' is here signified spiritual death, which is the extinction of spiritual life; and by 'Hell' is signified damnation, which follows that death. Ill. E.383.

323. '(To kill) by death' (id.)=through the love of proprium. . . The reason that by 'death' is signified the love of man's proprium, is that by 'death' is signified the extinction of spiritual life, and thence natural life separated from spiritual life. . .

—4. 'The pestilence,' and 'death'=plenary consumption, and thus damnation.

405. 'The third part of those creatures in the sea, and had souls, died' (Rev.viii.9)=that those who have lived and do live that faith cannot be reformed and receive life.

411. 'Many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter' (ver.11)=the extinction of spiritual life with a number from the falsified truths of the Word. E.521.

429. 'In those days men shall seek death, and shall not find it, and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them' (Rev.ix.6)=that those who are in the doctrine of faith separated want the understanding to be closed up and the will to be stopped up in the things of faith, and thus that they should not have any spiritual light and life; but that still it is provided by the Lord, that the understanding should not be closed up, nor the will stopped up, lest spiritual light and life should be extinguished with men. . . For by 'death' no other death is meant than spiritual death, which is induced when the understanding is removed from the things which are to be believed. . . E.550. 551.

525. 'The time of judging the dead' (Rev.xi.18)=the last judgment upon those who have not any spiritual life. . . By the dead who are to be judged, in the universal sense, are meant the dead from the world; but in the proper sense, those who have not any spiritual life. Ill. E.694, Ex.

556. 'They loved not their soul even unto death' (Rev.xii.11)=those who have not loved themselves more than the Lord. . . 'Even unto death'=to want rather to die; consequently, to love the Lord above all things, and the neighbour as themselves; and to want rather to die, than recede from these two loves.

639. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth' (Rev.xiv.13)=the state of those after death who will be of His New Church. . . By 'the dead' are signified those who have afflicted their soul, crucified their flesh, and suffered temptations. Ex. and Ill.

681. 'It became as the blood of one dead, and every living soul died in the sea' (Rev.xvi.3)=infernally falsity with them, through all the truth of the Word. . . having been extinguished. . . For by death is signified the extinction of spiritual life, and thence by what is dead is signified what is infernal. . . E.966.

765. 'Death' (Rev.xviii.8)=infernally life and intestine grief from being cast down from dominion.

847. In the Word throughout, it is said that they are 'killed'. . . nay, 'dead,' (which means) that they have been rejected by those who are in evils and falsities.

850. 'The rest of the dead' (Rev.xx.5)=those who have been rejected by those who are in faith alone. . .

853. 'Upon these the second death hath no Power' (ver.6)=that they have not damnation. By 'the second death' nothing else is signified than spiritual death, which is damnation; for the first death is natural death, which is the death of the body; but the second death is spiritual death, which is the death of the soul. . . And as the second death is damnation, and the first death is decease, and this death is not spiritual, the first death is nowhere mentioned in the Apocalypse. . . He who has not observed this may easily believe that there are two spiritual deaths, because it is said 'the second death;' when yet there is only one spiritual death, which is here meant by 'the second death.'

866. 'I saw the dead small and great standing before God' (Rev.xx.12)=all who are dead from the earth, and are now among those who are in the World of Spirits. 868.

— By 'the dead' in the Word is signified the same as by 'deaths,' and by 'deaths' are signified various things; for by 'death' is not only signified the extinction of natural life, which is decease, but also the extinction of spiritual life, which is damnation. By 'death' is also signified the extinction of the loves of the body or the concupiscences of the flesh. . . In like manner, by 'death' is signified resurrection, because after death, man at once rises again. By 'death' is also signified neglect, no acknowledgment, and rejection by the world. In the most general sense, by 'death' is signified the same as by the devil, wherefore also the devil is called death. . . Hence, also, by 'death' is meant evil of the will, which makes man a devil. In this sense is 'death' used in the following verse, where it is said, that 'death and Hell gave up their dead.'

869. 'The sea gave up the dead who were in it' (ver. 13)=the external and natural men of the Church called to judgment.

870. 'And death and Hell gave up the dead who were in them' (id.)=the men of the Church impious at heart, who were in themselves devils and satans, called to judgment. . . 'Death'=those who were interiorly devils; and 'Hell' those who were interiorly satans. . .

872. 'And death and Hell were cast into the lake of fire' (ver.14)=that the impious at heart, who in themselves were devils and satans, and yet in externals were as men of the Church, were cast down into Hell. . .

873. 'This is the second death' (id.)=that these have damnation itself.

884. 'Death shall be no longer' (Rev.xxi.4)=that the Lord will take away all fear of damnation.

I. 10. That everything which proceeds from this sun, regarded in itself, is dead. Gen.art.

—². These, on account of this inversion, are they who are called 'the dead.' Ill.

—⁴. They are called 'the dead,' because spiritual death is damnation.

11³. When, by death, the soul emigrates from the natural world into its spiritual one . . .

T. 369^e. From this, man has spiritual death, which, regarded in itself, is natural life without spiritual.

385⁴. It is known from the Word that faith without charity is dead ; but I will tell whence comes its death. Its death is from cold . . . first it dies as to its power to see . . .

450. On dead charity. Gen.art.

453. Charity is dead with those with whom faith is dead. Ex.

607². What is natural . . . is a passive or a dead force.

D. 179. (The power of evil Spirits to cause death).

306. About five months after his death . . .

307^e. Because they were not so long dead . . .

319. The Souls of the dead . . . 326. 333. 342.

323. The dead . . . can clearly and sensibly smell the quality of a subject that is dead . . .

362. That man in a state of integrity could never die.

545¹. There was shown me a dead head . . . which they see who are to die within a year, in order that they may prepare themselves for death, which they do not fear, except on account of leaving their friends . . . 743.

580. (In Jupiter) they die in their early manhood, to prevent too great an increase of men ; but they rarely die through diseases . . . but they die tranquilly, and as in sleep.

623. Death is denounced against such, and for the most part is effected by the taking away of their breath . . . and rarely by diseases . . . They do not call it dying, but rather being Heaven-made.

1095. The first state of one who is dying . . .

1097^e. They then know that the man is dead.

1099. When man dies, the celestial are at once present . . .

— . It matters nothing whether a man dies in his bed, or in battle, or in any other way . . .

1102. The thoughts which a man entertains at the point of death . . .

1235. That the quality of the ends of life may be evident . . . when death is imminent.

— . (His arrangements) at the point of death.

1236. Not to want to die on account of the children is natural . . .

1237. The evil also at the point of death can lightly esteem worldly things . . .

1238. But they who care nothing for death, from the love of self . . .

1239^e. In the dead these openings are closed.

1289. Because in the hour of death he had thought of such a suction . . .

1337. Whatever happens in the last hour of death, long remains.

1742. When man dies . . .

2673^e. They are effigies of death . . .

3138. He then came into the Society of those who say that to die or live is all the same . . .

3139. (I said) that in battles or dangers they ought not to fear to die . . .

3392. He was behind, as it were dead . . .

3681^e. It is forbidden them . . . to approach a dead man.

4225. They had feared death for the sake of their life in the world . . .

4261. In the anxiety of death they could be in a state of receiving . . .

4546. (Situation of) those who have not feared death.

4592. Death itself is from no other cause than sin. Ex.

4627². This Corporeal belongs to man ; this dies and becomes a corpse.

—³. The interiors of man, which do not die. Enum.

4687³. When a man is about to die, he nods his head, and at last falls down. See 4686^e.

5003. The reasons why boys, young men, adults, old people die. Enum.

5007. When once they come to a man, they do not leave him until death.

5497. If they come to men, they at once inflict death on them . . .

5679. If anyone describes the state of one dying or dead . . .

5711. The Angels said that in the houses (in that neighbourhood of Stockholm) there was not anyone alive, but all were dead, spiritually . . .

5974. Asked whether they knew an example of those who had lived evilly, and had received their faith in the hours about death, and had repented . . .

D. Min. 4702. On the resuscitation of the dead.

4733^e. If they are not driven away, they induce death on man . . .

4773. Polhem died on the Monday, and spoke with me on the Thursday . . .

E. 28². Hence He is called 'the Firstborn of the dead' . . .

78³. Spirits cannot die ; wherefore, if they are evil, at the Divine presence they die with spiritual death.

—⁴. Spiritual death is turning away and removal from the Lord . . . This turning away and removal is what is called spiritual death ; the Spiritual of Heaven is also dead with them.

83. 'And was dead'=rejected ; for the Lord is said to be dead when there is no faith and love to Him . . . With these, it is said that the Lord is dead, because He is rejected. 114.

125. 'Be thou faithful unto death'=permanence in truths to the end.

128. 'Shall not be hurt by the second death'=shall come into the New Heaven.

—^e. 'The second death' is damnation ; hence, to be hurt by it is to be damned . . .

[E.] 166. 'I will kill her sons with death'=that thus falsities are extinguished.

186^c. 'Dying he shall die' (Ezek.iii.18)=to perish with eternal death, which is damnation.

—⁵. As 'death'=damnation, it also = Hell. Ill.

—⁶. —⁸.
—⁷. Hence it is evident that 'dead'=those who have not the life of Heaven in them, consequently, who are in evils and thence falsities. Ill.

188. 'Strengthen the things . . . that are about to die'=lest moral life perish by evils and falsities . . .

—^c. Hence it is that all things with him in themselves are dead, thus are about to die, unless vivified . . .

197. 'He that overcometh'=him who perseveres even until death.

336^c. Evils which are known to be evils, and still enter, are meant by 'the death which wastes at noon-day.'

349^b. 'Everyone that liveth and believeth in Me, shall not die to eternity' (John xi.26) . . . 'Not to die'=not to die spiritually, that is, to be damned; for the life of the damned is called 'death.'

386¹⁸. 'To snatch their soul from death' (Ps.xxxiii.19) =from evils and falsities, and consequently from damnation.

484². 'He will swallow up death in eternity' (Is.xxv.8)=that the Lord by His Advent will remove evils and falsities with those who live from Him. . . 'Death'=evil, because from it is spiritual death.

513. 'To die'=to perish spiritually, or as to the life of Heaven. 521.

—²⁹. He is said to be 'dead,' when he is not vivified from the spiritual man, that is, through influx out of Heaven from the Lord through the spiritual man . . .

555^c. 'Death is come up through the windows, it hath come into our palaces' (Jer.ix.21)=that infernal falsity has entered into the understanding, and thence into all things of thought and affection. 652²⁷.

654⁶⁶. 'There shall ye die' (Jer.xlii.16)=thence is the desolation of the Church and damnation.

659. Wherefore, where the death of man is mentioned in the Word, instead of it the Angels perceive his transmigration from one world into the other.

—³. 'A dead [body]' (Num.xix.16)=one who has perished through evils.

—⁷. 'Among the dead, neglected' (Ps.lxxxviii.5)=among those who have nothing of truth and good, and are therefore rejected.

—⁹. Falsities from evil are signified by 'deaths' (Is.liii.9), since they who are in them are spiritually dead.

675¹⁴. 'To die' (Amos vi.9)=to perish.

701²². 'To make a covenant with death' (Is.xxviii.15) =conjunction by means of falsity from Hell, from which man spiritually dies.

721⁴. That they will be taught and regenerated through truths from Him, is signified by 'thy dead shall live' (Is.xxvi.19).

750. 'They loved not their soul even unto death'=

the faithful who for the sake of these truths have suffered temptations, and have made nothing of the life of the world in comparison with the life of Heaven.

781¹⁸. 'We are . . . among the living as the dead' (Is.lix.10)=that they are able to be in spiritual life through the Word, and yet are not because they are in falsities.

785. 'Wounded to death' (Rev.xiii.3)=to disagree with the Word; for the doctrine which disagrees with the Word is dead . . . 786.

899. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth'=the resurrection into eternal life of those who have lived the life of charity hitherto, and will live it henceforth.

—³. The reason 'death'=resurrection, and that therefore 'the dead'=those who rise again to eternal life, is that 'death'=Hell, and consequently evils and falsities; and these must die in order that man may receive spiritual life; for before these are dead and extinguished man has not spiritual life . . . wherefore, by 'dying' here and elsewhere in the Word, is meant the extinction of man's Own life . . . Moreover, by 'dying' in the spiritual sense may be meant resurrection . . . Natural death, too, is nothing but resurrection . . .

—⁵. Hence it is evident, that 'death'=both spiritual death, which is damnation, and also resurrection into life, which is salvation. Ill.

—¹³. That natural death, which is the rejection of the unclean things of the body, and spiritual death, which is the removal of the unclean things of the spirit, signified resurrection. Ill.

—^c. The Lord's death and burial . . . means the purification of His Human, and glorification.

1125. 'Death'=when there is not anything good; for then man is spiritually dead.

1143^c. See HALF-DEAD at this ref.

1209². The forces which are in nature from its origin . . . are dead forces. Ex.

Ath. 159. It is said that the Lord has conquered death . . . for death=Hell, because all there are called dead.

192^c. With man, evil cannot be expelled, but is removed . . . therefore man dies as to the body.

J. (Post.) 47. (The Moravians) are not tolerated in any heavenly Society, because they think within themselves that all others but themselves are dead; thus the Angels would have a dead idea about themselves.

D. Love x². Diabolical love, which is death itself . . . xiv^c. Their life appears . . . to the Angels as death.

D. Wis. vii. 4². Man is not dead until the motion of the heart ceases. Ex.

xi. 3a. The life of man is then . . . death.

xii. 2^c. Wherefore, to adore nature, which in itself is dead, is to adore the fire which is in the sun of the world; they who do this are dead. . . They are called dead men who are in Hell.

C. 166^c. Then, if he dies, he dies in the Lord.

171^c. Then they do not fear death, because if they die, they die in the Lord, and come into Heaven.

5. M. (How death is made to appear as a continuation of life.)

7^e. They exclaim, Thank God, we live, death has not extirpated us.

Die. (To cause to.) Mortificare.

Death. Mortificatio.

R. 59^e. Concerning this separation, and thus the death of the Lord . . .

875¹⁷. Faith separated from charity causes all things to die. . . This death can be seen to the life in our Spiritual World. B.115. T.385².

T. 695². Whence their death . . .

D. 4014. By the removals of lower things, as it were by their death . . .

Die. Obire.

Death. Obitus.

A. 70^e. Very few days intervene after the death of the body before they are in the other life; for it is a continuation of life.

1886, Preface³. It has been granted me . . . to be in spirit in the other life . . . and there to speak with Souls who had risen again not long after their death . . .

6408. After death (this blessedness of the affections) manifests itself . . .

H. 304. Hence it is that after death a man becomes an Angel if he has lived according to Divine order . . .

312⁴. I have spoken with some after two days from death . . .

313. Most of the learned are amazed, when, after death, they see themselves in a body . . .

332. As soon as little children are resuscitated, which takes place immediately after death, they are carried into Heaven . . .

379^e. The delight of love truly conjugal . . . becomes the delight of Heaven after death . . .

415. Every day there are dying from this Earth several thousands of men . . . all of whom, after their death, have come and are constantly coming into the . . . Spiritual World.

427. Men, after their death, as soon as they come into the Spiritual World, are accurately distinguished by the Lord . . .

452. I have spoken with some on the third day after their death . . .

457. This state is the first state of men after death.

T. 138. When they enter the Spiritual World, which is usually on the third day after death . . .

Differ. Differre.

Difference. Differentia.

A. 1394. There is not the least difference which does not dissociate or consociate. . . This (distinct arrangement) is made according to all the differences of love and faith in the Lord, which are innumerable.

2523^e. There was this difference (between the Lord and other men) . . .

6706. All (both in Heaven and earth) differ in good . . . 9002².

7506. The difference between the truths and goods of faith of those of the Spiritual Church, and the truths and goods of faith with those who infest. Sig. and Ex.

—. 'To distinguish' = the difference.

M. 327^e. They had not before known the differences between the Spiritual and the Natural.

T. 42². The differences of life with men can thence be concluded.

D. 413. On the three general differences between men and Souls.

4280. Thence it was given to observe the differences . . .

De Verbo 3. On the difference in general between the Natural, Spiritual, and Celestial. —⁵. —¹⁰.

—⁷. Therefore their speeches so differ . . .

Differ. Discrepare.

Difference. Discrepantia.

A. 1571². In worship, the nature of the difference between the internal and the external man is especially discernible . . . Hence the difference which manifests itself in the worship; and that so clearly, that the least of the difference is noticed in Heaven.

3705^e. How greatly the sense of the letter differs from the internal sense . . .

4844⁴. Hence it is that Churches differ so much . . .

6602^e. In proportion as the state of one Society differs from that of another . . .

7424^e. So greatly may the interior form which is of the spirit differ from the exterior form which is of the body.

9166. When the Angels are discoursing about two truths which differ from each other . . .

N. 9. However they may differ in truths . . .

P. 38. Yet (these delights) differ little on the mere surface.

M. 171². They who differ in dispositions and disagree in affections . . .

D. 626. There cannot exist any true difference between the spiritual and the celestial, but only among the natural.

1109^e. The Spirit at once notices the differences: that which differs is from the Spirit.

Scia. Doc. 5. Occurs.

Difference. Discrimen.

A. 6704. The man of the internal Church does this with discrimination, thus with intelligence . . . But the man of the external Church . . . does it indiscriminately.

7226. The difference between the Divine Law and doctrine.

J. 25². The difference of life between a man and a beast. (i).

W. 185. See DEGREE at these refs. 226^e. 233. 238. 255.

[W.] 202². There is such a difference between the affections and thoughts, and thence the speeches, of the Angels of the higher and lower Heavens, that they have nothing in common . . . As these differences are of such a character . . . they cannot be described . . . These differences may in some measure be comprehended by this . . .

334. The difference is, that the Angels see . . .

M. 326³. When he heard the difference between the Spiritual and the Natural, he said, What is the difference? . . . I answered, The difference is not such . . . He meditated about this difference . . . I said, Thou shalt not only perceive the difference between the Spiritual and the Natural, but shalt see it . . . In order that thou mayest know the difference between the Spiritual and the Natural as to languages . . .

439^e. See DISCERN at this ref.

463³. The difference between fornication, pellicacy, etc. . . These said, that in interior ideas . . . they saw the differences . . . This I can assert, that these differences, as to their minute things, are perceived by the Angels of Heaven.

T. 392². But, with the difference . . .

413. The difference between . . .

415^e. The difference is as that between . . .

417. The difference is . . .

D. 311. As to the differences of perception . . .

619. On the difference between life in the body, and after . . .

4748². In punishments and dangers he was more present . . .

Difficulty. Difficultas.

Difficult. Difficilis.

Difficultly. Difficulter.

A. 790³. 'Waters' and 'rivers' = difficulties; also, falsities.

1366. (Such) can with difficulty, if ever, be brought to receive truths . . .

8729. 'A difficult word they will bring to Moses' (Ex.xviii.26)=mediation and intercession.

H. 359. It is evident that it is not so difficult as many believe, to enter the way of Heaven. The only difficulty is, to be able to resist the love of self and the world, and to prevent their predominance. Sig.

528. That it is not so difficult to lead the life which leads to Heaven, as is believed. Gen.art.

533². The difficulty of so thinking, and likewise of resisting evils, increases in proportion as man from the will commits evils . . .

534³. That 'the way is narrow which leads to life' is not because it is difficult; but because 'there are few who find it.'

535^e. This life (of charity) is not difficult; but a life of piety abstracted from a life of charity is difficult . . .

R. 532. Concerning the difficult reception of the doctrine of the New Church. Sig. 535.

B. 58. These dogmas can only be learned with great difficulty.

D. 499. Thus (He rules the universe) without any difficulty.

2951. How difficultly man can be persuaded . . .

5541. It is not grievous and difficult . . .

5793. That to live as a Christian is not difficult in the heavenly doctrine . . .

E. 721¹⁸. That spiritual truths and goods . . . can only be received with the greatest difficulty. Sig.

Diffuse. Diffundere.

Diffusion. Diffusio.

A. 913. 'That they may spread themselves in the earth' (Gen.viii.17)=the operation of the internal man into the external.

2888. He diffuses Himself through the universal Heaven . . .

9877. According to this form (the thoughts and affections) diffuse themselves into the angelic Societies. H.204 (o),Refs.

H. 413². Joy and delight . . . diffusing themselves most softly . . .

532. (The thought is then) diffused to those objects which are before the eyes.

D. 167. Which diffuses itself, and constitutes a sphere . . .

601. Which diffused itself into their general . . .

1229. From the hair . . . its diffusion, etc.

2438. This evil diffuses itself through many . . .

2696^e. This idea diffuses itself . . .

2712. Becomes hereditary, and thus diffuses itself into the posterities . . .

3217^e. That the poisons are diffused into the Spirits . . .

Dig. Fodere, Effodere, Perfodere, Refodere.

A. 3419. 'Isaac returned, and dug again the wells of waters which they had dug in the days of Abraham his father' (Gen.xxvii.18)=that the Lord would open those truths which were among the ancients. . . 'To return' and 'dig again'=to open again.

3424. 'The servants of Isaac dug in the valley, and they found there a well of living waters' (ver.19)=the Word as to the literal sense, in which is the internal sense. 'To dig in a valley'=to inquire lower according to truths where they are. 'To dig'=to inquire.

3445. 'And there the servants of Isaac dug a well' (ver.25)=doctrine thence derived . . . namely, from the literal sense of the Word.

7343. 'All the Egyptians dug about the river waters to drink' (Ex.vii.24)=a searching out of truth which they would apply to falsities. 'To dig'=to search out.

—³. The reason 'to dig'=to search out, is that by the water, the spring, the well, which were dug out, are signified truths, which are not dug out, but are searched out; wherefore, in the Original Language, the same word, when it is applied to truths, means to investigate.

In the propheticals, however, in place of truth it is said 'water' or 'spring;' and in place of to investigate it is said 'to dig.' Ill.

7344. 'To dig waters to drink about the river'=to investigate truths, which they would apply to falsities.

8902⁵. 'To be thrust through' (Is. xiii. 15)=the extinction of faith and charity.

9085. 'When a man hath dug a pit' (Ex. xxii. 33)=if he himself has devised it. . . 'To dig'=to receive from himself, or to devise.

9125. 'If a thief be taken in the digging through' (Ex. xxii. 2)=if it does not appear that good or truth is being taken away. 'A digging through'=the perpetration of evil in secret; and, when it is said of a thief, the taking away of good or truth by means of falsity from evil so as not to appear. Ex. and Ill.

—². 'To dig through the wall' (Ezek. viii. 8)=to enter into what is hidden, and to see what they are doing.

—³. 'To dig through into Hell' (Amos ix. 2)=to hide themselves there, thus in the falsities of evil.

—⁴. The reason 'to dig through a house'=to take away the good of another in secret, is founded on the representatives in the other life: there, when the Angels are discoursing about falsity destroying good in secret . . . it is represented by the digging through of a wall.

—⁵. 'He would not have suffered his house to be broken through' (Luke xii. 39) . . . 'To break through the house'=to do it in secret.

9836⁴. 'To thrust through every shoulder' (Ezek. xxix. 7)=to deprive of all power of apprehending truths.

H. 462a⁷. He was seen to dig out a trench under his feet . . .

E. 403²⁰. That 'he would dig about it' (Luke xiii. 8)=that they would henceforth be instructed by Christians . . .

411⁶. The soil which is dug from the pit=good from the Lord; wherefore it is said, 'the digging out—effossio—of the pit' (Is. li. 1).

537⁸. 'To dig' (Num. xxi. 18)=to investigate and collect.

Digest. Digerere.

Digestion. Digestio.

A. 3570⁶. Some serve as means for a kind of digesting . . .

P. 296¹⁴. The stomach rolls about the food, opens and separates it by means of solvents, that is, digests it.

D. 1272². So that there is no digestion.

D. Min. 4826⁷. The stomach corresponds to the desire of knowing, for the sake of use, thus digesting those things which are of use . . .

Dignitary. See LEADER—Antistes.

Dignity. Dignitas.

See HONOUR.

A. 949. Some of these . . . had been in considerable dignity.

995⁴. Very many who have lived in . . . dignity, etc. . . . are among the blessed . . .

1507. Having been born in dignity, he had contracted a sphere of pre-eminence . . . 1508.

1774. They who have done good . . . for the sake of dignity . . .

3913³. The natural man seems to himself to have life, when he is exalted to dignities . . . But the spiritual man seems to himself to have life in humiliation . . . not that he despises dignities, provided that by them as means he can be of service to his neighbour . . . nor does he reflect upon the dignities to which he is advanced for the sake of himself, but for the sake of those uses . . .

3957⁴. In the other life, man leaves many things behind . . . such as cares respecting promotion to dignities.

—⁶. If there has been an aspiring to dignities . . . he will then think the same things.

3993⁹. If anyone loves himself above others, and from this love studies . . . to be exalted to dignities . . . and yet adores God . . .

4947. They have not been proud . . . although advanced to dignity . . .

5025. Spiritual truth and good will that man should take no pleasure in dignities . . . but in offices . . . and should thus take pleasure in the use of dignities. The merely natural man . . . makes pleasure from dignities for the sake of self the lord, and pleasure from dignities for the sake of societies . . . the slave . . .

5721. The most stubborn of all . . . are those who had been established in dignity . . .

9120. He who is able to come to dignity, if he sees that another would be more useful . . . N. 136.

9182². Unlawful conjunction is that which takes place from . . . an affection of dignity of person . . .

10409². They had confirmed themselves . . . from the fact that man does not come to dignity and wealth from any Divine aid . . . since the wicked are often raised to dignities and become rich in preference to the good . . .

—³. They believe that to be exalted to dignities, and to become richer than others, is the very good which the Divine gives to man . . .

10796. Priests ought to have dignity and honour on account of the holy things they discharge . . . N. 317.

H. 364 (h). That dignities and wealth are not real blessings. Refs.

389. Hence, also, (in Heaven) dignity is adjoined to every employment, according to the dignity of the use; but still an Angel does not claim dignity for himself, but gives all to the use . . .

563. Some Spirits . . . said that they had been established in great dignity in the world, and that they deserved to be preferred above others . . .

564. He who exercises dominion from love towards the neighbour . . . in proportion as he is exalted to dignities above others, is glad; not for the sake of the dignities, but for the sake of uses . . . Whereas, he who exercises dominion from the love of self . . . courts dignities not for the sake of the good offices . . . but that he may be in eminence . . .

N. 321. A governor who believes that the dignity of a government is in his own person, is not wise.

P. 215. That temporary things relate to dignities and riches, thus to honours and gains in the world. There are many temporary things, yet they all relate to dignities and riches.

—². What and whence dignities and riches are. Ex.

— In the most ancient times, dignities and riches were quite different from what they afterwards successively became. In the most ancient times, dignities were such only as there are between parents and children, which dignities were dignities of love, full of respect and veneration, not on account of birth from them, but on account of instruction and wisdom from them . . . This was the only dignity in the most ancient times . . . This dignity was in the father of the family . . . But after those times there came in the love of dominion . . . Thence originated degrees of dignities, and also honours according to them; and, with these, the love of self, and the pride of one's Own prudence.

—⁶. The quality of the love of dignities and riches for their own sake; and . . . for the sake of use. Ex.

— The love of dignities and honours for the sake of dignities and honours is the love of self, properly the love of dominion from the love of self . . . But the love of dignities and riches for the sake of uses, is the love of uses . . . As to the love of dignities and honours for their own sake . . . it is the love of the proprium, and man's proprium is all evil . . .

—⁹. But as to dignities and riches not for their own sake, but for the sake of use; it is not the love of dignities and riches, but the love of uses, to which dignities and riches are of service as means; this love is heavenly. —¹¹.

—¹¹. These, although they are in dignity and opulence, still do not regard dignity and opulence otherwise than as means to perform uses, thus to be of service and to assist.

—¹². Very many who are in dignity and opulence, also perform uses, but do not know whether they perform uses for the sake of self or for the sake of uses . . . The difference between them can with difficulty be known by man. Ex.

217. From which it is evident, that dignities and riches with those who are in Heaven, in the world had been blessings; and with those who are in Hell, in the world had been curses.

—². To which it is to be added, that dignities and wealth seduce some, and some they do not seduce. They seduce, when they excite the loves of man's proprium . . . but they do not seduce, when they do not excite that love.

—³. Therefore, everyone is in dignity and honour, according to the laws of the kingdom, according to the dignity of the thing in whose function he is.

—⁴. That when dignities and wealth are blessings, they are spiritual and eternal; and when they are curses, they are temporary and perishable.

— There are dignities and wealth in Heaven as in the world . . .

— The dignities and wealth themselves are spiritual in the Spiritual Kingdom, and celestial in the Celestial Kingdom; consequently, those have dignities and wealth above others who have love and wisdom above others. These are they to whom dignities and wealth had been blessings in the world.

—⁵. From this it may be evident, what is the quality of spiritual dignities and wealth, that they are of the thing, and not of the person. A person who is in dignity there, is indeed in magnificence and glory like that of kings on earth; but still they do not regard the dignity itself as anything; but the uses . . . They do indeed receive the honours, each those of his own dignity; but they do not attribute them to themselves, but to the uses themselves . . . Such, therefore, are spiritual dignities and wealth, which are eternal.

—⁶. But the case is different with those to whom dignities and wealth in the world had been curses. Because they attributed them to themselves . . . they are in Hell, and are vile slaves there . . . Wherefore, as these dignities and wealth perish, they are called temporary and perishable. Sig.

—⁷. That the dignities and wealth which are curses, relatively to the dignities and wealth which are blessings, are as nothing to everything; and as that which in itself is not, to that which in itself is.

220⁵. Temporary things . . . relate to dignities and wealth . . .

—⁸. Dignities with their honours are natural and temporary, when a man regards himself, as to person, in them; and not the commonwealth and uses . . . But the same dignities with their honours are spiritual and eternal, when a man regards himself, as to person, as being for the sake of the commonwealth and uses . . . If he does this, the man is then in the truth, and in the essence of his dignity and of his honour. Whereas, if he does the other, he is then in the correspondence and the appearance; and if he confirms these with himself, he is in fallacies; and is no otherwise in conjunction with the Lord, than as those who are in falsities and thence in evils . . .

227³. Outwardly, like other men . . . they have sought for dignities . . .

250. The worshipper of self and of nature believes dignities and wealth to be the highest and the only happinesses . . . and if he thinks at all about God . . . in his worship there lies hidden . . . that he may be raised by God to dignities still higher, and to wealth still greater; and if he attains these, his worship goes off more and more to exterior things . . . He does the same, if he is cast down from the dignity and opulence on which he has set his heart. What, then, are dignities and wealth to the wicked but stumbling-blocks? Not so, however, to the good, because they do not set their heart on them; but on the uses or goods, to the performance of which dignities and wealth are of service as means.

—³. Moreover, what is dignity, whether greater or less? . . . Is it in itself anything but an imaginary affair? . . . Are these in a greater degree of happiness from their dignities? . . . Their domestic servants can be in a greater degree of happiness, when it is well with them . . . What, then, is dignity, if it be not of the thing or use, but an idea?

—³. Why the Divine Providence permits the impious at heart to be raised to dignities and enriched with wealth. Ex. . . Wherefore, the Lord rules the impious at heart, who are in dignities, by the celebrity of their name, and incites them to perform uses . . .

—⁴. Inquire how many there are in kingdoms at the present day, who aspire to dignities, that are not loves of themselves and the world. Will you find fifty in a thousand who are loves of God? and among these only a few aspire to dignities. . .

—⁵. 'The mammon of unrighteousness' means the Knowledge of truth and good possessed by the evil, and which they use only to procure for themselves dignities and wealth.

R. 153^d. This (infernal) had been in dignity; this in opulence . . .

M. 7^d. In the Heavens . . . there are governments . . . and therefore there are greater and lesser Powers and dignities . . .

250. Inequalities as to dignities (a cause of cold in marriage).

—². But in the Heavens there does not exist any inequality . . . of dignities . . . As to dignities, all there regard others according to the uses they perform; the more eminent in condition regard the lower as brethren; nor do they set dignity before the performance of use; but the latter before the former . . .

262^e. These regard dignities no otherwise, than as means to perform uses; the latter they set far above dignities; but the former set dignities far above uses.

266^g. (The Angels said,) The dignities in which we are, we do indeed seek, but for the sake of no other end, than that we may be able to perform uses more fully . . . We feel that the honours of the dignities are outside of us . . .

T. 300^e. He casts reproach upon their majesty and dignity . . .

403. The love of self, which is chiefly the love of dignities . . .

—^e. There are also administrations in Heaven, and dignities attached to them . . .

412^d. Dignities are dispensed according to the presidencies over communities . . .

D. 2515^e. In the Lord's Kingdom, no one is esteemed by virtue of his dignity and learning in the life of the body.

2516. In that Kingdom, there is nothing but joys . . . not from the assumed dignity . . . What is there sought in the world through dignities and wealth, except joys . . .

2683. Not proud . . . although in dignity . . .

3167. Persons in the world endowed with dignity, as those who have been born kings, and have drawn this from infancy, that they are endowed with dignity . . . are not able to hide or reject this sphere for . . . perhaps 100 or 1000 years. Still, the sphere of this dignity is so conjoined with a sphere of probity and goodness, that it is not offensive to anyone . . .

3228. This murderer . . . because he had aspired to the highest dignities . . .

3711. As those in Holland, who despise dignities . . .

3929. It was granted to speak against their dignity . . .

4734^e. Some who have been in much dignity in the life of the body, are among (these robbers.)

5462. The like takes place with those who are in offices and in dignity, and think only of themselves: many Swedes of family are such, because they almost all affect dignities, and also titles, merely to be eminent . . .

5832. Among these adulterers there were a number established in dignity . . .

D. Min. 4736. But when such were present as were not learned . . . but had lived in good, and had been established in dignity, at once there was light, and they understood everything.

Dijudication. Dijudicatio. A. 9159.

Dilation. Dilatio. D. 626.

Dilection. Dilectio.

P. 106². The derivations of heavenly love are affections of good and truth, properly dilections. . . The affections of heavenly love, which are properly dilections . . .

T. 388⁶. Does not man think from some dilection? Take away dilection, can he think anything? (The word used in the parallel passage in R. 655⁶, is affectio.)

409. Therefore the Lord has in so many places taught dilection, that is, charity.

Diligence. Assiduitas.

E. 101. Diligence in instructing. Sig.

Diligence. Diligentia.

Diligent. Diligens.

H. 364. The poor who are industrious and diligent in their work . . .

D. 5666. These are tokens of diligence . . .

5668. They are dressed according to their diligence . . .

Dimension. Dimensio.

A. 650. There is a trinal dimension of all earthly things; but such dimensions cannot be predicated of celestial and spiritual things: when they are predicated, abstractedly from the dimensions, there is meant greater or less perfection, and also its quality and quantity.

4482. By the dimensions there . . . are perceived states of good and truth . . . 4489².

H. 197. The reason such things are meant by these three dimensions . . .

W. 185. See DEGREE at these refs. 190.

D. 5623¹. These spaces are varied as to distances and dimensions.

E. 629⁴. The reason these things are signified by these three dimensions . . .

630⁸. By their dimensions is signified their quality.

Diminish. Diminuere.

Diminution. Diminutio.

Diminutive. Diminutivus.

A. 1392. These communications take place without any diminution with him who communicates . . .

1748. This, being in the diminutive, = what is lowest of all.

1856. Four is a kind of diminutive (of forty).

9003. 'Not to diminish' (Ex. xxi. 10) = not to deprive.

H. 593. The equilibrium between the Heavens and the Hells is diminished and increased according to . . .

D. 3376. This Hereditary was diminished . . .

3682°. With diminution of the veil . . .

E. 650¹. That these affections will in some other way perish through evils, is signified by 'they are minished and bowed for the vehemence of wickedness and sorrow' (1's. cvii. 39).

Can. Redemption ii. 12. According to the degree in which this equilibrium is raised, the happiness of the Angels of Heaven . . . is diminished.

Dinah. Dinah.

A. 3964. 'And called her name Dinah' (Gen. xxx. 21) = the quality. . . The quality which Dinah represents and signifies is everything of the Church of faith in which there is good. . . In the Original Language, 'Dinah' means judgment.

4427. 'Dinah went out' (Gen. xxxiv. 1) = the affection of all things of faith, and the Church thence; (for) 'Dinah' = the affection of all truths, and the Church thence. Refs. and Ex. 4437. 4449.

4429°. For by 'Dinah' is represented the external Church, such as was instituted with the descendants of Jacob.

4439. 'Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter' (ver. 5) = conjunction not lawful with the affection of truth, which is of the external Church here represented by 'Jacob.' . . 'Dinah' = the affection of all things of faith and the Church thence.

4456°. The conjunction of the interior truth, which is 'Shechem,' with the affection of exterior truth, which is 'Dinah.'

4475. 'Dinah,' who is here 'the daughter of Jacob' = the affection of truth of the Ancient Church.

4498. 'The brethren of Dinah' (ver. 25) = the truths and goods of that Church. . . 'Dinah' = the affection of truth, thus the Church.

4502. 'They took Dinah out of the house of Shechem, and departed' (ver. 26) = that they took away the affection of truth from those who were of the remains of the Most Ancient Church.

4504. 'Sister,' here, = the truth of faith; because by 'Dinah,' who here is 'the sister,' is signified the affection of all things of faith . . . And as she was not given by her brethren to Shechem for a woman, but remained with them defiled, afterwards by her is represented the opposite . . . namely, the affection of all falsities, thus a corrupt Church. 4522.

6024³. 'And Dinah his daughter' (Gen. xvi. 15) = the Church.

Dining-room. Cenaculum. Coro. 33°.

Dinner. Prandium.

A. 3596°. The dinners and suppers in the Primitive Church involved nothing else. 7996°. 9412.

N. 215. That dinners and suppers signified consociation through love. Refs.

M. 11°. You are invited to dinner.

T. 433. That the diversions of charity are dinners, suppers, and social intercourse.

— But the dinners and suppers of charity only exist with those who are in mutual love from a like faith. In the Primitive Church among Christians, there were dinners and suppers for no other end. . . Suppers with them signified consociations and conjunctions in the first state of the establishment of the Church; for evening, when they took place, signified this state; but dinners, the same in the second state, when the Church was established; for morning and day signified this state. At table, they conversed on various subjects, both domestic and civil, but especially on such as pertained to the Church; and because they were feasts of charity, on whatever subject they spoke, charity with its joy and gladness was in their speech. The spiritual sphere which reigned in those feasts was a sphere of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour, which cheered the disposition of everyone, softened the tone of everyone's words, and carried festivity from the heart to all the senses. For there emanates from every man a spiritual sphere . . . and it interiorly affects his associates, especially at feasts . . . Inasmuch as such consociations of dispositions were signified by dinners and suppers, or by feasts, they are mentioned in the Word; and nothing else is there meant by them in the spiritual sense . . .

E. 695°. 'To make a dinner or a supper,' and 'to bid to them' (Luke xiv. 12) = to do good and teach truth to the neighbour, and so to be consociated as to love.

Diogenes. Diogenes.

M. 182. They said, Diogenes with his scholars abides under Helicon, for the reason that he accounts worldly things as nothing, and revolves only heavenly things. T. 693.

Dip. Intingere.

E. 438°. 'Dipping his foot in oil' (Deut. xxxiii. 24) = the good of love from which are the truths of the Word in the sense of the letter.

Dippel. Dippelius. D. 3485. 3497. 3890. 5962. 5995. J. (Post.) 40.

Direct. See under INTEND.

Direct. Dirigere, Directus.

Direction. Directio.

Directly. Directe.

A. 4145. Good flowing in directly.

4206. That which comes directly from the Lord. Sig.

5145. Without any direction on the way . . .

H. 124. From Whom is all direction and determination.

142°. Direction in Heaven differs from direction in the world . . . Direction in the world is what is called centripetence, or gravitation . . .

151°. As all the direction of their interiors . . . is according to the love.

W. 125. They see Him directly . . .

M. 71. They who approach Him directly . . .

T. 613. The opposite direction of the interiors of their minds . . .

692°. For the interiors of their minds were bent from their direction . . . towards God, into a direction more and more oblique, outwards into the world . . . and at last they were inverted into the opposite direction, which is downwards to self.

D. 217. There does not exist the least thing, which does not come from the direction of God Messiah . . .

248. When the ultimate Heaven is not directed through Angels . . .

—, Wherefore, direction through Angels is always at hand . . .

254. All of whom God Messiah arranges and directs.

288. It was also conceded to them to direct my hand . . . 557.

295°. Each and all things are so directed by God Messiah . . .

364°. Similar things are induced on them by an imaginative direction.

454. By virtue of a direction of words by them . . .

636. For the directions are taken from the face.

693. That in the other life, each and all things are directed to conjunction through love.

2980. By the direction of the sight to objects in the street . . .

3759. Wherefore, Spirits are not able to speak otherwise, than according to the direction of the vessels . . .

4041. Thought is the sole direction of the vessels of the memory . . . 4042.

4042. So that when the vessels of the memory are directed, the Spirit who is speaking is not able to speak otherwise.

4605. The externals of man are continually directed, in like manner as the internals, by the Lord; the direction of the Lord is into primes and into ultimates; thence the mediates flow in their order. That the ultimates are directed equally as the primes . . .

5679°. Whereas, if it is said directly, that it is so, it is not believed.

Director. See MODERATOR.

Direful. Dirus.

Direfulness. Diritas.

A. 2269°. See DECEIT at this ref.

7686°. Direful persuasions . . .

H. 587°. Their direfulness increases as they are nearer the west . . .

P. 38°. These delights . . . are afterwards turned into direfulnesses.

D. 180. Their phantasies are direful and cruel . . .

193°. They then speak direful and filthy things.

286°. From that direful infernal tun.

318°. They said they had seen most direful things.

1383. According to the direfulnesses of their hearts . . .

4596°. Otherwise their state would be in the highest degree lamentable, from the direfulness in which they are.

E. 888°. The reason that 'to be tormented before the holy Angels, and before the Lamb' = the direfulness of Hell according to the falsification and thence the destruction of Divine truth and Divine good, thus of the Word, is that the direfulness of Hell or the torment there, is entirely according to these things . . .

Dirt. See under CLAY-lutum; and DEFILE.

Dirt, Mire. Coenum.

Dirty, Miry. Cocnosus.

See CLAY-lutum.

A. 940°. When he desired to eat, nothing was offered him but dirt.

2702¹⁵. 'The miry places and the marshes' (Ezek. xlvii. 11) = things inapplicable and impure.

6669°. 'Enter into the mire, and tread the clay' (Nahum iii. 14).

—³. 'Out of the mire of clay' (Ps. xl. 2).

—, 'As the potter treadeth the mire' (Is. xli. 25).

7519°. 'To enter into the mire' = into falsity; 'to tread the clay' = evil.

D. 1196. He was long in that dirty city . . . where the streets are nothing but dirt and mud . . . and where he had been fed with nothing but dirt . . .

4428. It was granted to say to him, that these (treasures) are nothing, like earthly dirt; so that if he had a chamber full of such golden things, or if he had another full of mud and dirt, the one would be of no more value than the other. . . He said, that . . . such things are sometimes turned into dirt . . .

E. 355²⁸. 'The mire of the streets' (Zech. x. 5) = falsities.

513°. Those who cannot be reformed because they are in the falsities of evil, are signified by, 'The miry places and the marshes which are not healed, and go away into salt' (Ezek. xlvii. 11).

Dirt. Sordes.

Dirty. Sordidus, Sordescere.

Sordidly. Sordide.

A. 938. The sordidly avaricious . . . 4751°. H. 4884°.

939. The ideas of thought of those who have been sordidly avaricious, are turned into dirty phantasies . . .

944. Women who, from a mean and low condition, have become rich . . .

2755. They love nothing more than dirt and excrements . . .

[A]. 3147. The dirtinesses of the natural man are all those things which are of the love of self and the love of the world: when these dirtinesses are washed off, goods and truths flow in.

—⁹. Washing (with water) only purifies from the dirt which adheres: (but) it involves . . . purification from that dirt which inwardly cleaves to man . . . Avarice, hatred, etc., which are spiritual dirtinesses . . .

3993¹⁰. If anyone believes himself pure from sins . . . as he who is washed from dirt with water . . . 7318².

4793^e. They were afterwards cast into a ditch abounding with loose dirt. . . Such Spirits correspond to the dirty little hollows in the outermost skin . . . 7419.

4948. In their houses there is nothing but dirt; they also seem to themselves to carry such things; for they correspond to such a life . . .

5185^e. Nor do they abstain from dirtinesses.

5246². This state . . . appears like a mist exhaled from dirty places.

5395^e. They who have lived only for self and pleasure . . . pass their time in dirt.

10407⁴. For it is sordid avarice . . .

H. 299. These Spirits love things undigested . . . such as those of filthy meats in the stomach.

362. The rich who have not believed in the Divine . . . are in Hell, where are dirt, misery, and want.

363². Riches with those whom they had served for evil uses, are turned into dirt; with which they also they are then delighted . . . The reason they are then delighted with dirt, is that filthy—spurcae—pleasures and disgraceful acts, which had been with them the uses from riches, and also avarice, which is the love of riches without use, correspond to dirt: spiritual dirt is nothing else.

491. They who . . . have need only to reject natural dirtinesses with the body . . .

R. 948. 'He that is filthy, let him be filthy still' (Rev. xxii. 11) = that from those who are in falsities, truths will be taken away . . . By 'him who is filthy' or unclean, is signified him who is in falsities. Refs. Hence it follows, that by 'he that is filthy, let him be filthy still' is signified, that he who is in falsities will be still more in falsities.

D. 2843. (Such) love nothing more than dirt and excrements.

— . When I was walking in the street, they carried away my eyes . . . to wherever there were dirt, excrements, and intestines. 2852.

2901. On those who observe dirt.

4861. They dwell in marshes and in the most dirty places.

Disagree. See DISSENT.

Disagree. Discordare.

Disagreement. Discordantia.

Discord. Discordia.

Discordant. Discors.

A. 1322. That they were all discordant, or that the one was against the other. Sig.

— . The concord of the mouth is nothing when there is discord of the heart.

1568³. In order to know, what makes correspondence and agreement of the external man with the internal, and what makes disagreement . . .

—⁴. The things which agree can never be together with those which disagree . . . The things which disagree are of man and his proprium. 1577.

1577. That there ought to be no discord between them. Sig.

3913³. Of himself, the natural man does not at all agree with the spiritual, but so greatly disagrees as to be altogether opposite to him . . .

4121^e. Therefore, they who have been of discordant disposition are dissociated.

4302. Such things as do not disagree with genuine truths . . .

5182². It is fundamental that thought and speech in themselves should agree in everyone in a Society, otherwise what is discordant is perceived as a troublesome harsh noise . . . Everything discordant, too, is disuniting, and is an impurity, which is to be rejected. This impurity from discord is represented by what is impure in the blood . . .

8630. See AGREE at this ref.

H. 290. In the world, it is called peace . . . when enmities and discords cease among men.

479³. If he is a good Spirit, all things discordant or dissident are taken away.

—⁵. Animals know their proper food, and seek for those things which agree with their nature, and are averse to those which disagree.

P. 224^e. The sound of the speech (of hypocrites) is quite discordant with their interior thoughts; and by the disagreement they are detected.

M. 171². See DIFFER at this ref.

236. Whence come indifference, discord . . .

243. These falsities are like discords of various tones, which, by skilful adductions and insinuations, are drawn into harmony.

B. 16. The Third Part will demonstrate the disagreements between the dogmas of the present Church and those of the New Church.

T. 647^e. Besides many other disagreements.

648. From this brief review of the disagreements or dissensions—dissensuum . . .

— . As there is such a discord and dissension . . .

E. 785. The disagreements of their doctrinals with the Word. Sig.

— . For the doctrine which disagrees with the Word is dead.

—². As these things (in the Word) disagree with that Religiosity . . .

—³. In order that everyone may see the disagreement . . .

786. The disagreement apparently removed . . . Sig.

— . When doctrine disagrees with the Word, it is no longer a Church . . .

Disagree. Dissidere.

Disagreement. Dissidentia.

A. 7046^e. How greatly (with such) the interiors disagree with the exteriors . . . With him who is in sincerity . . . there does not exist such disagreement . . .

8250². In the other life, the disagreement (between speech and thought) is clearly perceived in every word and tone; and the Spirit is cast out in whom there is such a disagreement . . . D.1124¹.

9255. They who are outside the Church are meant by 'an enemy,' because they disagree as to the good and truth of faith . . . 9256.

—³. They are called 'enemies' from spiritual disagreement . . .

9257. 'Hatred' = the aversion and disagreement which there is between truths and falsities, and also between goods and evils.

9261. The removals to a distance which appear in the Spiritual World, are according to the dissimilitudes, disagreements, and aversions as to those things which are of the spiritual life . . . As soon as they disagree, they are separated and removed from each other; and this takes place according to the degree of the disagreement.

9375. Without any disagreement . . .

H. 4792. See DISAGREE—discordare—at this ref.

494^e. If the minds of the married partners had disagreed with each other . . .

M. 272. Not as to the internal affections, if these disagree and appear.

286. If the disagreements of their minds should break out into open enmities . . .

D. 1124¹. The disagreements of thoughts and speech, derived from use in the life of the body, are so plainly manifested by Spirits, that they know at once, from every tone of the voice . . . For nothing disagreeing between thought and speech can be tolerated in the Heaven of good Spirits . . . For it is better for a Spirit to be entirely depraved, than thus disagreeing . . . Hence, evils are reduced to their falsities . . . so that there may be nothing of disagreement—dissidium—within.

1169. It is perceived in every word, or idea, that in idea he disagrees with truth and good . . .

2455. That the interiors . . . disagree with the exteriors.

2775. The Spirits of the interior sphere clearly observe, how the thoughts disagree with the speech. —^e.

2937. When yet the thought entirely disagrees . . .

5252^e. See DISAPPEAR at this ref.

E. 140⁶. The disagreement (of the will and understanding) appears manifestly with evil Spirits, when they are turned to good Spirits . . .

Disagreement. Dissidium.

A. 4799^e. Such a disagreement of the interiors and exteriors . . . They know nothing whatever about such a disagreement . . . 8383^e. D.594^e.

6766. Not yet so far advanced in the truth of faith as to take away the disagreements within the Church. Sig. —. Quarrels or disagreements.

8112. When there comes forth any slight disagreement among (the Spirits of Jupiter) . . . These are the signs of the disagreement: but the disagreement among them is quickly adjusted. D.614.

10490¹. It treats . . . of the disagreements (during temptations) between the evils and falsities which are from Hell, and the goods and truths which are from the Lord.

T. 4². From which disagreement it results . . .

D. 1793. They who cause disagreements and enmities among others . . . in order to rule. 1802.

5042. He sowed disagreements from intestine hatred . . .

E. 365. The Word not understood, whence come disagreements in the Church. Sig.

—¹. That there will no longer be a disagreement—dissidium—between the internal and the external man. Sig. —.

532¹¹. That there will be a disagreement between good and truth, and between truth and good. Sig.

650²⁴. That there will no longer be any disagreement between truths and falsities, and between goods and evils. Sig.

1035². Truth from Heaven acts into the understanding, and at the same time falsity from Hell; hence there takes place a tearing asunder—dissidium—in the mind . . .

D. Wis. xi. 2a^e. Hence come heresies, disagreements . . . of differing dogmas in the Church.

Disappear. Disparare.

Disappearance. Disparatio.

A. 9154^e. Then truths disappear . . .

9212. If scientific truths disappear through fallacies from sensuous things. Sig.

— . By this is signified the disappearance of truths through fallacies from sensuous things.

9213⁵. When they dissent, they disappear from the eyes of those who dissent. H.194.

9216⁶. Wherefore, if the ultimates are parted, the interiors also are dissipated.

H. 479¹. In proportion as anyone acts and speaks against his love, his face begins . . . not to appear, and at last he totally disappears, as if he had not been there. W.369.

W. 167^e. It disappears in a moment.

252². After a brief stay there, he disappears.

T. 797^e. As soon as they were gone, these shapes disappeared.

D. 5252^e. As soon as a Spirit disagrees in opinion with another, he disappears.

5531. When Spirits who are not yet vastated turn towards them . . . they as it were disappear from sight . . .

Discern. Discernere.

Discernment. Discretio.

See DISCRETE.

A. 425^o. These are afterwards distinguished from each other; so that some are retained, but others removed.

723^o. For the Intellectual discerns between apparent truths and truths themselves . . .

7786. 'That ye may know that Jehovah doth distinguish between the Egyptians and Israel' (Ex.xi.7)= the nature of the difference between those who are in evil and those who are in good.

9425^o. They do not discern between truth and falsity . . .

10156^o. They can well distinguish between these (scientifics), adopting those which . . . and rejecting those which . . .

H. 487^o. They distinguish between the things which are of light and of shade.

P. 318^o. The latter and the former can be but little distinguished, because one cannot distinguish between the light of confirmation and the light of the perception of truth.

M. 439^o. The Angels distinguish in the extremes what is lascivious from what is not lascivious, as one distinguishes a fire of dung . . . from a fire of spices . . . and this from the difference-discrimine-of the internal delights . . .

T. 412^o. Although not discerned in the world, they are discerned in Heaven.

428. But after death these are well discerned . . .

D. 399. So that the difference is scarcely discerned . . .

696^o. Thus, also, are they discerned, as to their quality . . .

1004. They who discern the inmost essences . . .

4627^o. From this light is . . . the faculty of judging, of discerning, and of choosing.

4756. They who had injured virgins, without distinction . . .

5138. They speak lies, without any discernment, or distinction.

J. (Post.) 241. Thus they could not distinguish good from evil . . .

Discerption. See REND.

Discharge. See under FUNCTION.

Discharge. Egerere.

P. 184^o. Like poison kept within, and not discharged.

Discharge. Exonerare, Exoneratio.

A. 9572. There the foul and superfluous things are discharged . . .

N. 487. The discharges of the spiritual man take place in the natural, and through it.

P. 296^o. Discharging them through unknown ways.

Disciple. Discipulus.

See under TWELVE.

A. 1690^o. No more (of the Lord's temptations) were disclosed to the disciples.

3354^o. By these things being said to the disciples, is signified that they are said to all who are of the Church.

3387^o. Hence it is evident, what kind of an idea of the Lord's Kingdom the disciples had . . . 3417^o. 3857^o.

3857^o. If they had been told that 'the disciples' did not mean themselves; but all who are in the good of love and of faith . . . they would have rejected the Word, and left the Lord . . .

4535^o. It is said by the Lord that He would be with the disciples even until the consummation of the age, because by the Lord's twelve disciples similar things are signified as by the twelve tribes of Israel, namely, all things of love and faith, thus all things of the Church. 9410^o.

4599^o. It here treats (Luke xiv.27) concerning the temptations which they undergo who are of the Church, and are there called the Lord's disciples . . . That they never overcome of themselves . . . but from the Lord, is signified by, 'He who doth not deny all that he hath cannot be My disciple' (ver.33).

6756^o. He also calls His disciples 'brethren' . . . By the disciples in the representative sense are meant all who are in the truths of faith and the good of charity.

7418^o. By the disciples here are not meant the disciples, but all things of the Church, thus all things of faith and of charity. Refs.

8902^o. By the disciples are signified all things of the truth and good of faith and of charity. Refs.

9212^o. The disciples represented the Lord's Church as to truths and goods. Refs.

9404. Like things (to those signified by 'the seventy elders') are signified by the Lord's seventy disciples.

9942^o. By the twelve disciples were represented all who are in goods and truths from the Lord; in the abstract sense, all the goods of love and truths of faith from the Lord. Refs.

10087^o. The Lord's twelve disciples represented all things of love and faith in the complex. Refs.

10227^o. He who does not do this cannot be instructed by the Lord, that is, 'cannot be His disciple.'

10490^o. 'To be the Lord's disciple'=to be led by Him, and not by self; thus by the goods and truths which are from the Lord, and not by the evils and falsities which are from man.

10683^o. 'A disciple' (Matt.x.42)=the truth of life; 'a prophet,' the truth of doctrine.

—7. 'The disciples'=all things of love and faith in the complex, thus in especial those who are led by the Lord. Refs.

N. 122. That the Lord's twelve disciples represented the Church as to all things of faith and charity in the complex; in like manner as the twelve tribes of Israel. Refs. J.57 (o).

S. 517. By His twelve disciples is meant the Church as to all the truths and goods which it has from the Lord through the Word.

P. 230³. 'A disciple' (Matt.x.41)=the state of those who are in some spiritual things of the Church.

R. 5. See APOSTLE at this ref.

8³. 'A disciple' (Matt.x.41)=charity, and at the same time faith from the Lord.

79². By the Lord's disciples are meant those who are being instructed by the Lord in the goods and truths of doctrine; but by 'the apostles,' those who after having been instructed, teach them. Ill.

174. For the twelve disciples represented all things of the Church as to its goods and truths.

325³. The Lord says these things to the disciples; but by the disciples are meant all who worship the Lord and live according to the truths of His Word.

M. 261. After the times of instruction they who have become intelligent are let out from thence, and these are called the disciples of the Lord. T.661.

T. 4. Some months ago, the Lord called together His twelve disciples, now Angels, and sent them out into the universal Spiritual World, with a command to preach the Gospel anew there. (See also 108. 791.)

798². The disciples of Godoschalcus . . .

D. 1216. On the twelve disciples of Jesus.

— . There was an inquiry among Spirits about the disciples . . . why men of a lower condition, such as fishermen, were chosen . . . and as I heard them, it is allowable to relate thus far: that at that time very many were imbued with nonsense, so that they could not apprehend the things of faith, as the unlearned could . . .

1217. The reason there were twelve, was that each might represent that which a tribe of Israel does . . . wherefore such were chosen as were like those things which they represented.

3440. Also the other, who was his disciple . . .

E. 25³. The disciples=all those who are in goods and thence in truths.

102⁶. 'A disciple' (Matt.x.41)=good from truth.

—^e. That 'a disciple'=good from truth, which is the good of charity. Refs.

122². This is described by its being said, that the Jews and others will persecute the Lord's disciples . . . for by the Lord's disciples are meant all who are in truths from good, thus who are in truths from the Lord; and therefore in the abstract sense . . . are meant the truths and goods themselves which are from the Lord through His Word. —³, Ill.

— . That by the Lord's twelve disciples are meant all things of faith and love in the complex, thus all the truths and goods of the Church. Refs. 206⁴. 333². 785⁵.

409⁸. 'Disciple' (Matt.x.24) is said from good; and 'servant,' from truth.

556⁷. This Spirit could not be cast out by the disciples, because the falsities for which he had fought could not as yet be dispersed by them; for as yet they were not such; wherefore the disciples were blamed by the Lord on that account.

594². For the Church is represented in the Word by the disciples . . .

624⁶. 'A disciple' (Matt.x.41)=the good of doctrine from the Lord. — .

695⁹. 'A disciple' (Matt.x.41)=the truth and good of the Word and of the Church. —¹⁰.

731^e. By the disciples are meant all who will be of His Church.

Discipline. Disciplina.

A. 1551^e. 'This word is a discipline of vanities' (Jer.x.8). E.587⁶, Ex.

W. 333. The branches of learning . . . M.207².

T. 407. By means of exhortations, disciplines, and penalties . . .

E. 750²². To receive discipline. Sig.

Disclose. Detegere.

Disclosure. Detectio.

A. Title. The Arcana Coelestia contained in the Holy Scripture unfolded.

2333². This correspondence is most constant, but the nature of it has not yet been disclosed.

3688². The things which are contained in the internal sense are not only to be disclosed, but are also to be explained.

5573. The first thing that was disclosed concerning them . . .

— . By which they hindered their being detected . . .

7293^e. The Divine truth at this day disclosed. Sig.

H. 236⁴. I have heard the Angels disclosing the life of another solely from hearing him.

462a. All their deeds were disclosed and recounted from their memory . . .

463². The reason was also disclosed . . .

J. 73^e. Therefore the spiritual sense of the Word is now disclosed.

W. 201. From the visible things in the natural world, it is only discovered . . .

R. 391. 'Seven trumpets' = the exploration and disclosure of the states . . .

449. It was then disclosed that . . . Sig.

483. In order that their falsities may be disclosed and thus abolished.

670. In order that the evils and falsities of the Church might be universally disclosed. Sig.

672. Those truths and goods by means of which the evils and falsities of the Church are disclosed. Sig. 673.

M. 133^e. By means of which they might unroll and disclose this arcanum.

532². The science of correspondences is now disclosed by the Lord . . .

T. 206. The reason the science of correspondences was not disclosed after those times . . .

360. Wherefore, this great arcanum is to be disclosed.

[T.] 396. These things are disclosed, lest . . .

508⁵. Its doctrinal things are continuous truths disclosed by the Lord through the Word.

669. The spiritual sense is disclosed at this day for the New Church . . .

D. 2791. How easily the falsities and crimes of Souls are disclosed in the other life . . .

348³. Not even to the disclosure of the operations of the excrements . . .

4320. It was disclosed that he was such . . .

Disconnected. Plurifarius. A.9022°.

Discord. See DISAGREE—Discordare.

Discourse. See CONVERSATION—Sermo.

Discrepancy. See DIFFER—Discrepare.

Discrete. Discretus.

Discretely. Discrete.

See under DEGREE.

A. 1757. After the separation of the body, human thought becomes more distinct and clear, and the ideas of thought become discrete, so as to serve for distinct forms of speech.

4530. Colours there . . . are also presented discrete in other forms . . .

So21. The words were not very discrete and separate from each other . . .

So22°. The ideas which were in the place of words, were discrete, but very little so.

So23. They afterwards spoke with me by means of ideas still less discrete, so that hardly anything interstitial was perceived.

845². Truth is there presented as a discrete quantity ; thus as much, or as minute, according to the quality of the truth.

9926°. (The musical instruments) which give a stridulous and discrete sound, signified spiritual Divine truths ; but those which give a continuous sound, celestial Divine truths.

10585. A roll seen, not continuous, but discrete. D.3267.

H. 38. See CONTINUE at these refs. W.185°. 219°.

W. 174. See ATMOSPHERE at this ref.

184°. These degrees are discrete, because they come forth distinctly.

T. 29°. Therefore the Angels dwell . . . more discretely and distinctly from each other than men.

108°. The prayer . . . which is determined to a discrete Trinity, and not to a conjoined one . . .

D. 448. As it were a discrete radiation . . .

3345. So that I perceived . . . a continuous, but still generally discrete human . . .

3377. With the Antediluvians this scandal was almost as it were continuous ; but with their descendants after the Flood was made by the Lord as it were discrete. Ex.

3399. (The gyres) were at last perceived as if they were continuous, while before they were most completely discrete.

4351. Thus in a certain series, but discrete . . .

5589°. The speech of brutes is continuous ; but that of Spirits is discrete . . . Therefore, with men, it is discrete and articulate.

E. 323. Discrete sounds excite affections of truth . . . continuous ones, affections of good.

Ath. 112. Successive order is not continuous, but discrete, to wit, the one from the other . . .

Discriminate. Discriminare.

Discrimination. Discriminatio.

A. 1378. From the discriminations of sound learned by use . . .

1624. A brightness which was varied and discriminated by another brightness . . .

3862°. In the discriminations of light there is everything which belongs to the life of truth . . .

C. J. 64°. If the Lord alone is not worshipped, there takes place a discrimination, which takes away the communion . . .

D. 3906. The innumerable differences which discriminate Societies.

E. 790⁸. Genuine truths are there discriminated and separated from falsities.

Discuss. Disserere.

A. 2709. The man of the Spiritual Church . . . discusses about truths ; differently from the man of the Celestial Church, who . . . does not discuss about truths. The truths by which the man of the Spiritual Church defends himself, and concerning which he discusses, are from the doctrine which he acknowledges.

2715°. The spiritual man . . . discusses whether it is so, unless he has been confirmed by much experience ; which the celestial never do.

2718°. They who are in the affection of truth think, investigate, and discuss whether this is true ; and when they are confirmed that it is true, they think, investigate, and discuss, what it is ; thus they stick at the first threshold . . .

D. 691. There was discussed with them concerning . . .

Discuss. Ventilare.

Discussion. Ventilatio.

R. 294°. Wherefore, this was committed to earnest discussion.

484⁸. The discussion was sharp.

M. 55³. A voice said, Discuss this love.

—⁴. When they discussed it . . .

132°. The arcana of wisdom . . . which they now discussed and unfolded. —².

133. They then took up the second subject of discussion . . .

165. This is why women . . . are silent in companies of men in which the like things are discussed.

314^e. The hands are the ultimates . . . into which are determined the things discussed and concluded by the mind.

330. I once heard a pleasant discussion among men about the female sex . . .

380^r. We asked why he discussed this.

T. 17³. They said, We will discuss these things, and after the discussion we will reply.

136. Gymnasia . . . where the learned discuss various arcana.

333². When the speech is about religion, they commit this to discussion, and this proposition and discussion rarely terminates in the affirmative . . .

459. The desire seized me . . . to hear what was being discussed there.

D. 1728. They are credulous . . . not discussing . . .

3474. Concerning which it was discussed.

3493. If they come into discussion, they come into obscurity . . .

Disease. Morbus.

See PAIN.

A. 268². As in temptations, misfortunes, diseases . . . 2411^e.

762. Instead of temptations . . . sicknesses — agritudines—of the body and diseases . . .

857². As in misfortunes, diseases, sicknesses of the disposition . . .

2284². In some anxiety, or in diseases . . .

3147². Only while the things of the external man are lured, as in misfortunes, miseries, and diseases . . .

4352³. See CONFIDENCE at this ref.

5127³. When he is in some grief from misfortunes or diseases, he can see and apprehend . . .

5353^o. As with those who are in misfortunes, miseries, and diseases, the loves of self and the world are removed . . . 8981^r.

5711. On the correspondence of diseases with the Spiritual World. Gen. art.

— All the diseases of man have correspondence with the Spiritual World. Ex.

5712. Diseases have no correspondence with Heaven, which is a Grand Man ; but with those who are in the opposite, thus with those who are in the Hells . . . The reason diseases have correspondence with them, is that diseases correspond to the cupidities and passions of the disposition ; these, too, are their origins ; for, in general, the origins of diseases are intemperances, luxury of various kinds, merely corporeal pleasures ; and also envies, hatreds, revenges, lasciviousnesses, and the like, which destroy the interiors of man, on the destruction of which the exteriors suffer, and draw the man into disease, and thus into death. That death appertains to man from evils . . . is known . . . thus diseases also ; for these belong to death. From this it is evident that even diseases have correspondence with the Spiritual World, but with unclean things there ; for in themselves diseases are unclean, since they spring from unclean things.

5713. All infernals induce diseases, but with a difference ; because all the Hells are in the cupidities and concupiscences of evil, thus are contrary to the things which are of Heaven, wherefore they act into man oppositely. Heaven . . . keeps all things together in connection and good condition ; Hell destroys and rends asunder all things. Thus, if the Hells are applied, they induce diseases, and at last death. But they are not permitted to flow in so far as to the solid parts themselves of the body, or into the parts of which man's viscera, organs, and members consist, but only into cupidities and falsities : it is only when man falls into diseases, that they inflow into such unclean things as belong to the disease . . . But this does not prevent man's being naturally healed ; for the Lord's Providence concurs with such means . . . Evil Spirits from such places have been often and long applied to me ; and according to their presence they induced pains, and also diseases . . .

5715. When this (infernal heat) acted upon my body, it instantly induced disease like that of a burning fever ; but when it ceased to flow in, the disease instantly ceased. When a man falls into such a disease as he has contracted from his own life, at once an unclean sphere corresponding to the disease adjoins itself, and is present as a fomenting cause . . . There were with me Spirits from a number of the Hells, through whom the sphere of the exhalations thence was communicated, which, as it was permitted to act into the solid parts of the body, so was it seized with heaviness, with pain, nay, with disease corresponding, which in a moment ceased as those Spirits were expelled . . . D.4585. 4586.

5718. From which are the beginnings of many diseases . . .

5726. Hence it is that evil closes the smallest and quite invisible vessels, of which the next greater ones, which are also invisible, are composed ; for the smallest and quite invisible vessels are continued from man's interiors : hence the first and inmost obstruction, and hence the first and inmost vitiation in the blood : this vitiation, when it increases, causes disease, and at last death. But if man had lived the life of good, his interiors would be open into Heaven, and through Heaven to the Lord, thus also the smallest and invisible little vessels — vascula . . . Hence man would be without disease, and would only decrease to the last of old age . . . and when the body could no longer minister to its internal man, or spirit, he would pass without disease out of his earthly body, into a body such as the Angels have . . .

6502. In the Spiritual World, diseases are evils and falsities ; spiritual diseases are nothing else ; for evils and falsities take away health from the internal man, and induce sicknesses of the mind, and at last pains ; nor is anything else signified by diseases in the Word.

—². 'If hearing thou wilt hear the voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do what is good in His eyes, and wilt give ears to His precepts, and keep all His statutes, all the disease which I have put upon the Egyptians I will not put upon thee, because I Jehovah am thy Healer' (Ex.xv.26). 'Jehovah the Healer' = the preserver from evils ; for these are signified by 'the diseases upon the Egyptians. . . 'Diseases upon the Egyptians' = evils and falsities originating by virtue of reasonings from scientific and fallacies concerning the arcana of faith.

[A.] 8364. 'All the disease which I have put upon the Egyptians, I will not put upon thee' = that they should be withheld from the evils appertaining to those who are in faith separate and in the life of evil. 'A disease' = evil.

—². The reason 'disease' = evil, is that in the internal sense such things are signified as affect the spiritual life: the diseases which affect that life are evils, and are called cupidities and concupiscences. Faith and charity make the spiritual life; this life sickens when there is falsity in the place of the truth of faith, and evil in the place of the good of charity; for these bring that life to the death which is called spiritual death. . . as diseases bring the natural life to its death. Hence it is, that by 'disease' in the internal sense is signified evil. Ill.

—³. By all the diseases here mentioned are signified spiritual diseases, which are evils destroying the life of the will of good, and falsities destroying the life of the understanding of truth, in a word, destroying the spiritual life which is of faith and charity. Natural diseases also correspond to such things; for every disease of the human race is thence, because it is from sin. Moreover, every disease corresponds to its own evil. The reason is, that everything of man's life is from the Spiritual World; wherefore, if his spiritual life sickens, there is also evil derived thence into his natural life, which there becomes disease.

—⁴. Like things are signified by diseases elsewhere. Ill.

—⁵. As by diseases are signified defects and evils of the spiritual life, by the various kinds of diseases are also signified the various kinds of defects and evils of that life. Examps.

— That in general by diseases are signified sins, may also be evident in Isaiah: 'A Man of pains and known of disease. . . Nevertheless He hath borne our diseases, and carried our pains, and through His wounds health is given us' (liii. 3-5).

—⁶. As diseases represented the unfairnesses and evils of the spiritual life, by the diseases which the Lord healed is signified deliverance from various kinds of evil and falsity, which infested the Church and the human race, and which would have induced spiritual death. . . On this account, the Lord's miracles were chiefly healings of diseases. Ill.

8392. See COMPEL at this ref.

8495°. For the diseases of which they were healed by the Lord, involve spiritual diseases, which are from evil. Refs.

8850°. (In Jupiter) they do not die by diseases. . .

9031². Because disease and sickness = the infirmity of the internal man: his infirmity is when he sickens as to his life, which is the spiritual life, thus when he turns aside from truth to falsity, and from good to evil. When he does this, that life sickens; and when he entirely turns himself away from good and truth, it dies. . . Therefore, such things as belong to diseases and death in the natural world, in the Word are said of the diseases of the spiritual life and of its death: thus, also, the curings and healings of diseases. Ill.

9324. 'I will remove disease from the midst of thee' (Ex. xxiii. 25) = protection from falsifications of truth and adulterations of good. . . 'Disease' = truth falsified and good adulterated; these are the diseases of the spiritual life; for the spiritual life exists and subsists through the truths which are of faith and the goods which are of love; and when these are falsified and perverted, the man sickens; but when they are denied at heart, the man spiritually dies. That diseases are such things and correspond to such things. Refs.

P. 142. The reason no one is reformed in a state of disease of the body, is that reason is not then in a free state; for the state of the mind depends on the state of the body. When the body is sick, the mind also is sick; if not otherwise, still by removal from the world. . . When, therefore, man is in a state of disease. . . he is not in the world. . . in which state alone no one can be reformed; but he can be confirmed, if he was reformed before he fell into disease. . . Wherefore, if they are not reformed before the disease, after it, if they die, they become such as they were before the disease; wherefore it is vain to think that anyone can do repentance or receive any faith in diseases. . .

184°. They would be like disease of the heart itself.

M. 470. Defects of the body are diseases. Enum.

T. 119². By comparison with diseases of the viscera below the diaphragm. . .

527°. Brings on lingering diseases. . .

534. Whence come. . . painful chronic diseases. . .

665°. These diseases we call organic diseases; and those which return at intervals, chronic diseases.

D. 623. (In Jupiter, the penalty of death is inflicted) by Spirits, and rarely by diseases.

2299°. There exists no disease or irremediable evil (in the other life), because the Lord's power is infinite.

2336°. As in a body affected with any disease, when it returns to health, there takes place an equilibrium of all things.

2439. Everyone derives diseases to himself from evil of life; thence come diseases. . .

2716. When evil begins to reign in the body, in its blood, disease comes.

4548. On disease. 4590.

4571. On diseases. On those who induce fevers, and the like.

4590°. Thence a heat exhales, which infests the body, when it falls into febrile disease. . .

4591. Such heats are at once received to itself by the disease itself.

4592. On diseases. D. Min. 4742. 4747.

— All diseases come forth with man from no other source; very many from no other than cupidities; as from intemperance of various vices and their abundance; as from various pleasures, from lasciviousnesses, from anxiety about future things. These are the genuine causes of all diseases. . . These things vitiate the blood, and when this is vitiated, they obstruct and stop up the smallest vessels, wherefore diseases break forth. Hence it is, that diseases correspond to those spheres which are from Hell. If man had lived in a state of good . . . he would have passed from his earthly body without disease.

6035¹⁰. They also know diseases from correspondence . . .

6106⁵. They suffer penalties from various diseases there . . .

D. Min. 4648. On correspondence in diseases. 4680.

— . Diseases are indeed with men from natural causes, which do not at the same time come forth with the spirit in the other life; but as often as they come forth, Spirits gather who correspond to that disease; for the Spirits who are in evil and falsity, produce precisely such things as are perceived by the sense in diseases. Examp.

4649. Hence it is, that as such Spirits apply themselves there, and increase the disease by their presence, if they are removed by the Lord, the man is at once restored; for there are evil and false Spirits to which correspond every kind of disease and sickness.

4733. On Spirits who induce diseases.

—^e. I was told that in diseases with men, there are Spirits inducing and aggravating the diseases . . .

E. 340¹⁵. 'Jehovah will remove every disease, and all the evil languors of Egypt' (Deut. vii. 15) = the removal of all evils and falsities.

701¹². 'To remove diseases' = to remove the evils and falsities which are from Hell; for these are diseases in the spiritual sense.

815³. All the diseases which the Lord healed, represented and thence signified the spiritual diseases corresponding to those natural diseases; and spiritual diseases can only be healed by the Lord, in fact, by looking to His Divine omnipotence, and through repentance of life, wherefore He sometimes said, 'Thy sins be forgiven thee.'

962². Various kinds of disease, as leprosy, fever, carbuncle, piles, and many others, all correspond to the cupidities which originate from evil loves, and thence signify them.

Disgrace. Flagitium.

To Urgently Demand. Flagitare.

See OPPROBRIUM.

H. 362. To give the mind to disgraceful things . . .

428. When any necessity urgently demands . . .

462a. Those who denied their crimes and disgraceful deeds . . .

563. As they urgently demanded to be set over others . . .

M. 504. Deforation . . . is the villainy of a robber.

—². This villainy, which is defilement . . .

— . The nature of this villainy . . .

Disguise. Infucare.

Painting. Infucatio.

A. 8593. They disguise the evil itself, so that it does not seem to be evil . . .

P. 278a⁴. They disguise sin by fallacies and appearances . . .

R. 463. Scarlet for paintings.

Disgust. See LOATHE.

Dish. Ferculum. M.6². Coro. 33².

Dish. Patina.

S. 40. As a silver dish contains eatables . . .

—². 'Cleanse first the inside of the cup and of the platter' . . . By 'the platter' is meant the food, and by the food the good of the Word; by the cleansing of the inside of the cup and platter is meant purifying the interiors which are of the will and thought, thus of love and faith, by means of the Word.

M. 14^e. On which there were dishes and plates of every kind of food . . . The dishes and plates were of silver . . .

453. Like dirt and eatables in one dish . . .

T. 820^e. Angels send down . . . a dish containing manna . . . and this dish is carried round to the guests . . .

D. 4947. She poured something out of a dish, like a liquor to drink . . .

E. 475⁶. By 'the cup and the platter' are signified the interiors and exteriors of man, which receive truth and good; for the cup contains wine, and the platter food . . . 794³.

Dishonest. Inhonestus.

A. 4574³. This is dishonest; and he who is clear-sighted also calls it dishonest, because it is pretended, fraudulent, or deceitful.

D. 4304^e. They then lead them . . . into dishonest and filthy things.

Disjoin. Disjungere.

Disjunction. Disjunctio.

A. 389. Without charity there is disjunction; and when there is disjunction, he is left to himself or proprium.

1594⁵. Hence it is evident what disjoins the external man from the internal . . .

2034⁶. When love becomes none, disjunction takes place; and when there is disjunction, destruction and extirpation follows.

3542. That disjoining truth should not appear. Sig.

— . If the will is of evil, good and truths disjoin, not conjoin; but if there is any will of good, they do not disjoin, but conjoin.

3584. 'Cursed are they that curse thee' = that he who disjoins himself shall be disjoined.

3730. In the Original Language, 'Luz' means recession, thus disjunction; which takes place when truth is put in the first place, and good is neglected, thus when truth alone is in the ultimate of order . . .

4139. Disjunction by virtue of a free state according to the faith of that good. Sig.

— . 'Not to permit to kiss' = disjunction.

[A.] 450². Disjunction as to life and doctrine. Sig.

4997. 'How shall I do this great evil, and sin against God?'=that thus there would be disjunction and no conjunction. 'Evil' and 'sin'=disjunction and no conjunction . . . Regarded in itself, evil, and also sin, is nothing but disjunction from good; evil itself consists in disunion. Ex.

—². The evil of the love of self disjoins him not only from the Lord, but also from Heaven . . . And when many do this in one Society, it follows that they are all disjoined . . .

5229. 'I do remember my sins this day'=concerning a state of disjunction . . . 'To remember sins' is to be conjoined with those things which are of inverted order, consequently, to be disjoined from the Natural which is represented by 'Pharaoh'; for that which is conjoined with those things which are in inverted order, is disjoined from those which are in order.

5474. 'Sin not against the child'=lest they be disjoined-sejungantur. 'To sin'=disjunction; for all sin disjoins-sejungit.

5807². Opposite loves, namely, the loves of self and the world, are not conjunctions, but disjunctions . . . For as soon as the one does not favour the other, there is disjunction.

8734^o. Hence it was evident to me . . . what spiritual disjunction is, which is enmity and hatred, namely, that the mind of the one presents itself in the mind of the other with the thought and will of destroying him, whence comes rejection.

9864^o. Hence with those (who are out of Heaven) there is disjunction . . .

10300^o. As the longing of truth to good conjoins, so the longing of falsity to evil disjoins; and that which disjoins also destroys; hence by 'salt' in the opposite sense is signified the destruction and devastation of truth and good. Ill.

W. 47^o. It does not appear that loving one's own, that is, one's self in another, disjoins; when yet it so disjoins, that in proportion as anyone has loved another in this manner, he afterwards hates him.

M. 171. What is heterogeneous and discordant effects disjunction and absence.

—². Spheres . . . conjoin and disjoin two married partners not only from without, but also from within.

236. That spiritual cold in marriages is a disunion of souls, and a disjunction of minds . . .

D. Min. 4686. How affections of love conjoin, and disjoin.

Disjoin. Sejungere.

Disjunction. Sejunctio.

A. 5474. See DISJOIN-disjungere-at this ref.

H. 531². Hence it is that he is entirely disjoined from Heaven . . .

P. 326. That the acknowledgment of God effects the conjunction of God with man and of man with God, and that the denial of God effects the disjunction.

E. 778¹. Heaven then removes itself, and the man is disjoined from it . . .

Disk. Orbiculus. A.947. D.Min.4819.

Dislocation. See DISTRACT.

Dismay. See CONSTERNATION.

Dismiss. See SEND AWAY.

Disobedience. Inobedientia.

A. 7225². Hence by 'an uncircumcised ear' is signified disobedience.

Disorder. Inordinatio.

Disordered. Inordinatus.

A. 1774^o. Such Spirits were represented by an old woman . . . who had things disarranged . . .

1871². In the literal sense, scarcely anything appears except a disordered somewhat.

5396. See CINOR at this ref.

6406. Disorder thence in the Natural. Sig.

— . Thus to disturb order, or cause disorder.

— . They who do works from truth . . . cannot do otherwise than induce disorder in their Natural . . . and if this is disordered, the things which flow in from the interiors also become disordered; and the things which are disordered are darksome and shady . . .

H. 343. The infants were heard as something tender and disordered . . .

466. With those who have filled the memory with falsities, (this callosity) appears hairy and rough, and this from the disordered mass of things.

D. 2164. Still, a beautiful image is presented from these disordered things; in like manner as before the eyes of men and Spirits . . . each and all things appear disordered and confused, whereas in the Lord's eye they constitute a beautiful image . . .

2178. Wherefore the ideas are disordered, because very many disordered things were flowing in from the World of Spirits, although to us, who are not in order, they appear ordered. Examps.

Dispel. Dispellere.

A. 1787². Despairs, which He dispelled . . .

D. 3493. Still (this denial) is dispelled.

E. 714². The dispersion of all truth . . . is signified by 'he hath scattered me' (Jer.li.34).

Dispense. Dispensare.

Dispensation, Dispensing. Dispensatio.

Dispenser. Dispensator.

A. 2371². They arrogate to themselves the dispensings of rewards.

4988². He thence knows how to dispense good . . . according to uses. The doctrine of what is just and fair teaches this dispensing . . .

H. 360^o. On account of their dispensings of what is just and right . . .

P. 210². He who faithfully dispenses the goods of his lord.

280. The papal dispensations.

316^e. He is not a dispenser, but a thief.

R. 783. By various dispensations and promises of heavenly joys . . .

784. As to the dispensations by which they get money, they are various. Enum.

799². The dispensations by virtue of the power of the keys. Sig. —³, Ex.

T. 364³. The atmosphere does not dispense part of itself to . . .

412². Dignities are dispensed according to . . .

425. Benefits are dispensed according to . . .

459¹⁰. The gifts which are dispensed to others . . .

D. 617. The crew of devils . . . manages these affections in a wonderful way . . .

3428, Pref. How charity is to be dispensed . . .

J. (Post.) 5². (The Italians enjoy this liberty of committing murder, etc. from the dispensations; but it is otherwise with the English) because there is no dispensation . . .

Disperse. Discutere.

A. 719^e. The evils which are to be dispersed, that is, loosened and tempered by goods. 731.

868. (They believe) that the evils and falsities with man are entirely dispersed and abolished; (whereas) there is not a single evil or falsity so dispersed as to be abolished . . .

1059². Such a cloud can be easily dispersed . . .

1408^e. With them, the fallacies taken from the sense of the letter are easily dispersed.

1542. These (scientifics and pleasures) are first to be dispersed; and when they have been dispersed . . . 1563².

1692. Temptations . . . are the means by which evils and falsities are loosened and dispersed.

1888^e. These reasonings are dispersed by . . .

2574^e. Such things are dispersed by means of the internal sense of the Word, and are thus perfected.

2986³. The principles of falsity imbued from infancy . . . are first to be dispersed . . .

682⁸. Nor does the truth which flows in appear . . . to be able to disperse falsities and evils.

7112. As these things are dispersed by the Angels . . .

7218. The truths through which falsities are dispersed . . .

7320^e. Truths . . . labour to shake off falsities from themselves.

9256³. Unless the negatives of truth are dispersed . . .

9301^e. The fallacies . . . which are to be dispersed . . .

H. 322^e. Until such ideas were dispersed . . .

435. It is important to disperse the fallacies . . .

455^e. May by rational things be dispersed . . .

VOL. II.

513^e. Until (the confirmed falsities) are dispersed, truths cannot be seen.

533. In proportion as he sees these evils, they can be dispersed; for no evil can be dispersed until it is seen.

Life 86⁵. As soon as these concupiscences have been dispersed by the Lord . . . (Repeated three times.)

W. 40^e. These appearances the mind cannot shake off, except by . . .

T. 597. Concupiscences are then dispersed . . .

604². Afterwards, to disperse evils with their falsities.

E. 1100⁷. 'Shake off the leaf' (Dan. iv. 14).

Disperse. Dispergere.

Dispersion. Dispersio.

A. 737². The dispersion of falsity. Sig.

1066. 'By them the whole earth was scattered over' (Gen. ix. 19) = that hence were derived all doctrines, both true and false.

1158. 'From these were scattered over the islands of the nations in their lands' (Gen. x. 5) = that the worships of a number of nations came forth from these.

1206. 'Afterwards, were scattered about the families of the Canaanites' (ver. 18) = that all the other idolatrous worships are thence.

1258. 'From these were scattered abroad the nations in the earth' (ver. 32) = that thence came all the worships of the Church as to goods or evils.

1309. 'Lest we be scattered abroad upon the faces of the whole earth' (Gen. xi. 4) = that otherwise they would not be acknowledged. Ex.

1324. 'Jehovah scattered them abroad upon the faces of the whole earth' (ver. 8) = that they were not acknowledged.

1328. 'Thence did Jehovah scatter them abroad upon the faces of the whole earth' (ver. 9) = that internal worship was annihilated; (for) 'to be scattered abroad' = to be dissipated.

1414². This Infirm . . . from the mother . . . is dispersed during regeneration.

3654³. 'The dispersed of Judah' (Is. xi. 12) = their goods.

4333³. When the Jews were dispersed.

4502². 'I will divide them in Jacob and scatter them in Israel' (Gen. xlix. 7) = that goods and truths shall no longer be in their external and internal Church; 'to divide' and 'to scatter' = to separate and extirpate from them.

6361. 'I will scatter them in Israel' = that they are to be exterminated from the spiritual man. 'To scatter' = extermination. But 'to scatter' is thus distinguished from 'to divide'; that the latter is predicated of the external man and of truth, and the former of the internal man and of good.

7102⁶. 'To scatter into every wind' (Ezek. v. 12) = to dissipate truths.

7130. 'The people scattered itself abroad in all the land of Egypt' (Ex. v. 12) = that they diffused the natural mind in every direction. 'To scatter itself abroad'=to diffuse.

[A.] 822⁶. Vastation is signified by their dispersion.

8237. The aspect of the damned dispersed here and there. Sig.

9093. See DIVIDE at this ref.

9391¹⁶. 'To scatter' (Ps.lxviii.30) = to dissipate. E.627¹².

R. 108. The truths . . . by which evils and falsities are dispersed. Sig.

631. That now the Roman Catholic religiosity as to its dogmas and doctrinals is dispersed. Sig.

827. The dispersion of falsities by doctrine thence. Sig.

E. 316¹³. 'The horns which have scattered them' (Zech.i.12)=the falsities of evil which have vastated the Church.

—¹⁹. 'Until ye have scattered them abroad' (Ezek. xxxiv.21).

355²². 'With thee will I scatter the nations . . . and by thee will I scatter the horse and his rider, and by thee will I scatter the chariot and its rider' (Jer.li.20,21).

374⁹. 'He scattereth the cummin' (Is.xxviii.25).

405⁴⁴. 'Cast forth a thunderbolt and scatter them' (Ps.cxliv.6)=the Divine truth through which they are dissipated.

411²⁷. The destruction of the falsities of evil is signified by 'to scatter them to the rock' (Ps.cxxxvii.9). 'To scatter'=to destroy. . . He is said to be 'blessed' who scatters the falsities of evil which are nascent in the Church.

417⁷. Vastation as to all things of good and truth, until there is not anything left, is signified by, 'I will scatter them into every wind, into the cuttings off of the corner' (Jer.xlix.32). 418⁷.

419²⁵. See WIND at this ref.

433⁷. 'The dispersed of Judah'=those who are in the good of life, and thereby in love to the Lord.

519⁵. 'To scatter among the nations'=to destroy through the falsities of evil.

610⁵. Occurs. 629⁹. 724²⁹. 727^e. 761^e. 768¹⁵. 863⁴. 1029⁶.

654³⁴. As they disperse the truths of the Church, it is said 'he scattereth the peoples.'

700⁷. 'Arise O Jehovah that thine enemies may be scattered.'

Displease. Displicere.

Displeasure. Displacencia.

A. 6288. Displeasure. Sig.

8027. Such things as displeased . . .

D. 152^e. Which very greatly displeased them.

Dispose. Disponere.

Disposition. Dispositio.

Methodically. Disposite.

A. 568². Such is the whole arrangement of their fibres. —.

681². According to the form, and the arrangement and determination of the parts . . .

842. The arrangement of all things into their order. Sig.

1487. The scientifics acquired in childhood . . . are disposed by the Lord into order.

1577⁴. When the Celestial Spiritual . . . flows into the Natural . . . and disposes it as its own.

1900². As these vessels (of the memory) are formed, and arranged in a series . . .

2556. Each and all things with a man who is truly rational . . . are so arranged, that they mutually regard each other . . . All things are arranged in an order like that of Heaven ; and this by influx . . .

2634^e. With him, all things are disposed by the Lord according to the order which is from Him in the Heavens.

2796. Each and all things (with man) are disposed by the Spirits and Angels with him.

2812. '(Abraham) set in order the woods' (Gen.xxii.9) =the justice which was adjoined thereto. . . 'To set in order the woods upon the altar'=to adjoin that to the Divine Human.

2879. Unless man is in freedom . . . he can never be so disposed (by the Lord) that good and truth may take root.

2953^e. The spiritual and celestial things in the Word follow in order most methodically.

3054. The holy arrangement of general scientifics. Sig. 3057².

3057². A species of light . . . whereby those things which are of thought are disposed into order.

3104³. That the Lord alone disposes their states. Sig.

3110³. This Divine arrangement is effected by the Lord, by means of Spirits and Angels.

3565^e. The Lord acts through ends, and through them disposes the intermediates successively into order.

3570². The Lord disposes the things (in the internal man), the man knowing nothing at all about it.

—³. Through ends of good (in the Rational) . . . the Lord disposes all things which are in the Natural.

3584². The Angels are arranged (in the form of Heaven) according to the consanguinities and affinities of good and truth . . . Thence truths and goods flow in with man, and are arranged with him into a like form, and this by the Lord alone.

3603^e. (This) involuntary manifests itself in adult age . . . and meanwhile it has dispersed and ruled all things of the thought and will . . .

3986³. Where the Divine is present within, all things are disposed into such an order, that they are able to be conjoined with genuine goods and truths which are in the Heavens. Ex.

4015. The disposition of the power of interior truth. Sig.

— . The disposition of the power of interior truth, is the power of the interior man in the exterior . . . for all the disposition of good and truth in the natural man comes from the spiritual man, that is, through the spiritual man from the Lord, and in fact, through the truth there . . . wherefore all disposition in the natural man is effected by the interior. The natural man can never be disposed, that is, regenerated, otherwise.

—². As the disposition is effected by the interior through truth, power is predicated of truth.

4021. It treats in what follows concerning the arrangement of the good and truth of the Natural to receive innocence.

4104⁵. Then all things are disposed and ordained in his Natural according to these things, so that they may be service and obedience.

4167³. The interior disposes the exterior.

4250. The preparation and arrangement of the truths and goods in the Natural to receive the good represented by Esau. Sig. 4252³.

—². 'To halve' is to divide into two parts, and so dispose itself to receive.

4301³. (The eye perceives pleasure) according to the order or dispositions into series.

4302. That truths were not as yet arranged into that order. Sig. and Ex.

—³. As the light of Heaven inflows into this light, and disposes it . . .

—³. The very life (of the Grand Man) is from the Lord, who, from Himself, disposes each and all things into such an order. . . When, therefore, truths are disposed into such an order as Heaven is in, they are in heavenly order, and are able to enter good. . . The truths and goods with every man who is being regenerated, are disposed into such an order. In a word, the order of Heaven is the arrangement of the truths which are of faith in the goods which are of charity towards the neighbour, and the arrangement of these in the good which is of love to the Lord.

4342. The arrangement of external truths under their own affection. Sig.

—¹. 'To divide upon to' = arrangement.

4543. Arrangement by natural good. Sig.

—^c. In what follows, it treats of the arrangement of truths by good ; for when spiritual good . . . begins to act as principal in the natural mind, it arranges the truths which are there into order.

5128⁶. In this case, sensuous things are also arranged into order, so that they may receive light . . .

5133⁹. In the good of charity there is life from the Lord, when life arranges truths into order . . .

5150. That which flows in immediately, disposes ; and that which flows in mediately, is disposed . . .

5296. Necessity and thence arrangement in the Natural. Sig.

—¹. 'Under the hand' = for disposal in every necessity ; for that which is in the power of anyone, is at his disposal.

5339². Particulars are arranged under generals, and singulars under particulars . . . These arrangements or ordinations are signified in the Word by 'bundles' . . .

5343. All truths joined to good are arranged into series . . . The series themselves are also arranged in a similar way one among another. That there are such arrangements of truths joined to good, is wont to be presented to the very sight in the other life . . . These arrangements derive their origin from the arrangements of the angelic Societies in Heaven ; for as these are arranged, so also, with the regenerate, are arranged the series of truths joined to good.

5354². It is necessary for a man to remove evils and falsities . . . and thereby dispose himself to receive the influx.

5510². That the Celestial of the Spiritual arranged these (scientifics) in order in the Natural, has been treated of. . . Scientifics must be arranged into order there before the truths of the Church . . .

5530. See ORDAIN at this ref.

5695. That he so arranged. Sig.

—¹. 'To wash the faces,' here, = to arrange so as not to appear . . .

—^c. Hence a disposing of the face contrary to their interiors . . . the face being so disposed that love towards him shines from it.

5703. 'They sat before him' = that they were arranged by his presence . . .

—¹. When the Lord is present, all things are arranged into order by His presence . . . The order itself consists in truths being rightly arranged under good.

6690. 'He made them houses' = that they were arranged into a heavenly form ; (for this) = to arrange them into order ; and they are arranged into order when into a heavenly form. . . The scientifics in the Natural are arranged into continual series. Ex.

—². But the arrangement of scientific truths in the Natural is varied with every man . . . If heavenly love dominates, all things are arranged by the Lord into a heavenly form . . . Into this form truths are arranged, and when they are so arranged, they act as one with good . . . Such is the arrangement which is signified by God's making houses for the midwives.

6724². What is interior . . . thus disposed the External at its beck.

6872⁴. When a man is being regenerated . . . each and all things with him are disposed so as to receive heavenly loves.

7160. 'Jehovah look upon you and judge' = Divine disposal ; (for) what Jehovah sees and judges, He disposes.

7408. That these reasoning falsities were arranged fascicularly in the Natural. Sig. (For) all things which are in man's mind are arranged into series, and as it were into bundles ; or into series within series, or into bundles within bundles. That there is such an arrangement, is evident from the arrangement of all things in the body. Ex.

—². The recipient forms or substances are arranged most fitly for the influx of life. Ex.

7542. These (evils and falsities) are arranged in the order in which they favour. In the other life, these are unfolded according to the order in which they are arranged . . .

7931². From the time when the Lord, from His Divine Human, began to dispose all things in Heaven and on earth . . . For previously the Lord disposed all things through Heaven.

[A.] 8131². When Spirits are to undergo temptations, the interiors, that is, the truths and goods, are disposed with them by the Lord into such a state . . .

8422. The arrangement of the goods appropriated. Sig.
— 'To prepare,' when said of goods appropriated = arrangement. . . This arrangement is effected by the Lord at the end of each state.

8685. The disposition (effected by) Divine truth with those of the Spiritual Church in the state before it is from good. Sig.

— 'To judge' = disposition thereby. (For) Divine truth does not judge anyone, but flows in and disposes that it may be received.

8694. That they are then disposed by virtue of Divine truth. Sig.

— 'To judge' between a man and his companion = disposition among truths.

8716. Disposition thus for ever. Sig.

— 'To judge' = the disposition (effected upon) truths.

8717². The Lord's disposition is immediate through truth Divine from Himself, and is also mediate through Heaven; but the mediate disposition through Heaven, is also as it were immediate by Himself . . . The Divine disposition or providence of the Lord is in each and all things . . .

8728^e. All good and truth . . . come from the Lord alone . . . in like manner all the disposition, which is continual, to that use.

8757. See CAMP at these refs. 8758.

9079². Thus are arranged the Societies in Heaven, and so also are the truths and goods with the man who is being regenerated.

9167. According to the quality of good, all truths are arranged with man, as a house by its lord.

9174. Good is what arranges truths into series . . .

— But it is to be understood, that the Lord arranges truths according to the man's good of life.

9278². Thereby external things are arranged so as to agree with internal ones . . .

9327². The Lord disposes all things in Heaven, in Hell, and in the world, by means of the truths which are from Him . . .

9336. Because all things with the man who is being regenerated are arranged according to the order of Heaven . . .

9337. For the Lord flows in with man through good, and thereby arranges truths into order; not the reverse; and in proportion as truths are arranged into order through good, evils and falsities are removed. 9846².

9931^e. All scientifics are arranged into a heavenly form, when the man is in celestial love; and love arranges.

10217. Ordination and disposal. Sig.

— 'To number,' when said of the things of the Church . . . = their ordination and disposal . . . The reason is, that to number involves a survey, and that which is surveyed by the Lord, is also ordained and disposed. The original term used here, means to . . . visit, command, and preside, thus to ordain and dispose.

— The Lord does not number any army, nor the stars; but He ordains and disposes the things (signified thereby).

—³. As it is of the Lord alone to ordain and dispose the truths and goods of faith and love with everyone in the Church and in Heaven, therefore, when this is done by man . . . it signifies the ordination and disposition of such things by man, and not by the Lord; which is not to ordain and dispose, but to destroy.

10303. The arrangement of truths into their series. Sig.

—². 'To grind' and 'to bruise' = to dispose that they may be of use. When 'to grind' is predicated of the goods which are signified by wheat or barley, it = the disposition and production of good into truths, and thus application to uses . . . Good is disposed into truths, and is thus qualified; for unless good has been disposed into truths, it has not any quality; and when it is disposed into truths, it is disposed into series adaptedly to things according to uses.

—³. What disposition into series is, may be told in a few words. Truths are said to be disposed into series, when they are disposed according to the form of Heaven . . . In the members, viscera, and organs, each and all things are disposed into series, and series of series . . . Into like series are disposed the truths from good with man. (See SERIES).

10452^e. For all disposition into good, which is called Providence, is thence.

H. 130. Truths, which he disposes analytically into orders . . .

282. Innocence . . . disposes and adapts to receive all the good of Heaven. (So the interiors of little children) are continually adapted and disposed to receive the good of celestial love.

458. As the interiors of the mind are disposed to the form of their own affections . . .

567^e. Natural heat . . . only disposes the seeds . . .

W. 263. In this case the natural mind is disposed for submission . . .

P. 119^e. Which operation is only a disposing that one thing may not destroy another . . .

180⁷. If man were in the disposing-disponendis-of these things . . . As he is not able to dispose the external . . . what would he do if he were to dispose internal things?

—⁸. So . . . if man were to dispose the interiors of the eye.

—^e. Is it not enough for him to know the externals, and to dispose them . . .

181². Therefore, as man disposes the externals, the Lord disposes the internals; thus in one way if man disposes the externals from himself, and in another if he disposes the externals from the Lord and at the same time as from himself.

199^e. Does not the soul, which disposes the interiors, also dispose the actions from them? . . . The quality is determined by the disposition in externals . . .

210. (The necessity that man should think and dispose from himself.) Gen.art.

— Unless man as from his own prudence disposes all things belonging to his function and life, he cannot be led and disposed from the Divine Providence.

227². The Lord, through His Divine Providence, continually looks out and disposes that . . .

M. 191^e. Love . . . acts into the lower things (of the mind) according to their arrangement; wherefore . . . a chaste mind disposes the body; but a lascivious mind is disposed by the body.

325². Good cannot look out for nor dispose anything except through truth.

T. 37³. The whole Angelic Heaven is disposed into its form . . . from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom.

52. See ORDER at this ref.

62. Relatives belong to the disposition of many things into order . . .

105. As man disposes himself for the reception of God . . .

142. They who accommodate and dispose themselves for the reception of the Lord . . . 143.

150^e. The active of accommodation and disposition is from the Lord.

155. There are four things which follow in order with the clergy: Enlightenment, Perception, Disposition, and Instruction. . . Disposition is from the affection of the love of the will; the delight of this love disposes . . .

255^e. The will disposes the understanding at its beck.

351. That the arrangement of the truths of faith is into series, thus as it were into bundles.

604. They look into the old will, and dispose all things there.

678. All from the same religion are arranged into Societies . . .

721². The proper management of possessions . . .

D. 206. God . . . thus disposes human endeavours . . .

212. By the arrangement of Angels a Spirits into genera and species, or into classes . . .

231². That they may be disposed into . . . connections . . .

237. Through Spirits and Angels, God Messiah disposes human thoughts.

242^e. They are disposed by God Messiah.

254. The myriads of Spirits and Angels, all of whom God Messiah disposes and directs.

298^e. From the disposition and auspices . . . of God Messiah . . .

301. From such a disposition of the Angels around me . . .

305. So are disposed the things which are around . . .

321. Each and all things from the mercy and disposition of God Messiah. 337.

703. They are received . . . according to a hidden disposition, which is ordained by the Lord . . .

742. They disposed my face so as to be smiling and cheerful.

800. From his ends . . . man is disposed so as to be a member . . .

1088. Providence is their disposition to good ends . . .

3021^e. With all difference and variety according to their disposition and state.

3291. Endeavours to put forth all his evil in various ways according to his disposition . . . The endeavours . . . are received according to his nature and disposition by the Lord, thus according to his state.

3321. Spirits . . . do not know the disposition of the breathing.

3360^e. It was only a representation of the disposition of the Lord through mediate Spirits . . .

3644^e. According to the disposition of the Lord . . . 4037.

4027. Openings having a different arrangement . . . Also openings having a like arrangement . . .

4042. Hence it is evident, that there is a continual disposition of the vessels of man's corporeal memory; for as the vessels are disposed, so the Spirits speak.

4333. I often observed, that only the organs of thought are disposed with me, and that Spirits spoke according to this disposition.

5544. This was not visitation . . . but arrangement into order.

E. 316⁹. 'I will ordain a lamp for Mine Anointed' (Ps.cxxxii.17).

365²⁰. 'Ordain peace for us' (Is.xxvi.12).

410². Such is the co-ordinate and subordinate arrangement through the whole Spiritual World.

650⁸. 'Thou disposest darkness, and it is night' (Ps.civ.20).

717⁵. 'I will arrange thy stones' (Is.liv.11).

727². 'To prepare a table' (Ps.xxiii.)=to be spiritually nourished.

741¹⁷. 'He hath set the world upon them' (1 Sam.ii.8).

1056⁶. All these minds with little children are disposed by the Lord by means of an influx of innocence.

Disposition. See MIND - animus, and NATURE - indoles.

Dispute. Altercari, Altercatio.

A. 6764. 'Two Hebrew men disputing' (Ex.ii.13) =that within the Church they fought with each other.

R. 435^e. Sensuous men . . . reason and dispute about everything, as to whether it is so; and these disputes in the Hells are heard outside like gnashings of teeth.

835². They are shut up in their workhouses, where they vehemently dispute with each other.

I. 19². (When the Spirit waved his torch) there entered the lust of disputing and quarrelling - litigandi.

Dispute. Lis, Litigare, Litigatio.

A. 1571. 'There was a strife between the shepherds of Abram's cattle, and the shepherds of Lot's cattle' (Gen.

xiii.7)=that the internal man and the external did not agree.

[A.] 179⁸. They who are not in charity, dispute about everything.

342⁸. As he who disputes whether . . .

—³. The simple . . . can perceive . . . without any dispute . . .

694⁸. From the long continued dispute about the circulation of the blood . . . From the dispute about the sun . . . And also from the dispute about the soul . . .

902⁴. 'When men strive together' (Ex.xxii.18)=contention among themselves about truths . . . Hence the strife-litigatio-of the men=contention about truths among those who are of the Church . . . For in the spiritual sense 'to strive together'=to contend about such things as are of the Church . . . That in the Word 'to strive together'=contention about truths, in general, in favour of truths against falsities; and also defence, and deliverance from falsities. Ill.

—². 'The controversy of Jehovah against the nations' (Jer.xxv.31)=the contention of the Lord in favour of truths against falsities, and in favour of goods against evils; thus, also, defence.

—³. 'To plead their suit-litigare litem' (Jer.i.34)=to defend against falsities, and to deliver.

—'. 'To plead the suit of the soul' (Lam.iii.58)=to defend and to deliver from falsities.

—'. 'To plead the cause-litigare litem' (Ps.cxix.154)=to deliver from falsities.

—'. 'To plead with the mountains' (Micah vi.1)=to contend and defend against the haughty.

922². There are two disputes which have infested the Church from the earliest times . . .

925². 'Thou shalt not answer upon a cause to decline after many to pervert' (Ex.xxiii.2)=no consociation with those who turn goods and truths into evils and falsities, and the reverse. 'To answer upon a cause'=concerning what is just and fair, and what is good and true, about which there is a contention.

925³. 'Thou shalt not revere a poor man in his cause' (ver.3)=that we are not to favour the falsities in which are they who are in ignorance of truth.

—'. 'A cause'=the contention of truth against falsity, and of falsity against truth.

926⁰. 'Thou shalt not decline the judgment of thy needy in his cause' (ver.6)=no destruction of a little truth with those who are in ignorance. . . 'A cause'=contention; here, 'in the cause'=in his own cause-causa-about a little truth for which he is contending.

H. 214. Matters of judgment never come into dispute there; but matters of justice.

R. 566. There arose a dispute among Spirits . . .

I. 19². See DISPUTE-attercare-at this ref.

D. 1396. They continually love disputes . . .

E. 412⁸. 'The strife of tongues' (Ps.xxxi.20)=the falsity of evil.

413⁷. 'The controversy of Zion' (Is.xxxiv.8).

455¹⁰. 'The strife of tongues'=the falsity of religion from which they reason against truths.

601¹¹. 'Because the controversy of Jehovah is against the nations'=visitation upon all who are in evils. (=visitation and detection. 659²².)

811²⁰. 'To plead the suit'=visitation and judgment.

Disquisition. Disquisitio. A.3385.

Dissection. Autopsia, Autopsicus. W.366².
Inv. 14.

M. 39. Personal observation. 380⁸. T.123. 608. 613.

Dissemble. Dissimulare. M.195. 208². D.932.

Dissembler. See under SIMULATION.

Dissent. Dissentire.

Dissension. Dissensio, Dissensus.

See under DISAGREE.

A. 1394. They are dissociated according to disagreement-dissensus.

3241³. It is not wonderful that there are dissensions about the most essential thing of all . . .

3267². He who is in charity excuses his neighbour when he dissents from him in matters of belief . . .

3539⁴. Although the will dissents . . .

9213⁵. When they dissent, they disappear . . . H.194.

H. 194. From the disagreement of the thoughts . . .

223². The preacher is confused . . . if anyone dissents.

P. 259². It follows, that dissensions and heresies are inevitable.

T. 596. After this dissension of the wills, there arises a combat . . .

D. 157. On the disturbance of the understanding by the dissension of Spirits.

158. The intermediate differences, from consent to dissent . . .

—^e. This continued dissension fatigued my mind . . .

289¹. Then this disagreement . . . is perceived . . . So that it is always perceived who dissents from Spirits; wherefore he is dissociated . . . according to his disagreement.

309. By wonderful perception it is known, whether and how they disagree. . . They are then associated where the disagreement is not so perceptible.

310. Now it disagreed, now there was agreement-consensus.

313². Through which all the disagreement was taken away.

2361. There are Spirits who do not agree-consentunt-with them; but disagree . . . not openly, but in thought.

3702^e. The rising of the clouds signified consent; a movement to the sides, that they were beginning to dissent; a movement downwards, that they were dissenting.

4202. See SPHERE at this ref.

E. 365⁴. This is the origin of all the dissensions, controversies, and heresies in the Church.

Dissertation. See COMMENT.

Dissidence. See DISAGREE—dissidere.

Dissimilitude. Dissimilitudo.

Dissimilar. Dissimilis.

Dissimilarly. Dissimiliter.

A. 4051². As it seemed to me impossible for a Society of the unlike to exist in the other life . . . I was instructed, that, although they are unlike, they are con-associated as to the end . . . They said, further, that they are such that each acts dissimilarly, and also speaks dissimilarly from another, and yet they will and think what is similar. Ex. 5189. D.3822.

5189^e. In ultimates (the nerves) act dissimilarly, yet they are from one beginning; thus they act in ultimates dissimilarly as to the appearance, although similarly as to the end.

6806^e. They who are dissimilar as to states of life, appear to be far from each other . . . Dissimilitude of state causes them to appear absent, and not to be known.

6866². In spiritual and celestial things, it is dissimilitude of state which makes removal and absence . . . It is the love which makes similitude and dissimilitude.

9104^e. They are afterwards disjoined according to the dissimilitudes of the state of the life.

9261. See DISAGREE—dissidere—at this ref.

9378³. In the other life, the distances of one from another are entirely according to the dissimilitudes and diversities of the interiors.

M. 216³. See MARRIED PARTNER at this ref.

227. See SIMILITUDE at these refs. 228. 246².

246. See COLD at this ref.

247³. Marriages of such dissimilitudes are not unlike conjunctions of different species of animals . . .

472. Internal dissimilitude, from which comes antipathy (a really excusatory cause of this concubinage).

Dissimulation. See DISSEMBLE, and under SIMULATION.

Dissipate. Dissipare.

Dissipation. Dissipatio.

A. 313^e. Nor is (hereditary evil) dissipated so as not to hurt, except with those who are regenerated.

1321. See CONFOUND at this ref.

1398^e. If the sphere (of the Angel) had not been tempered, the Spirits would all have been dissipated.

1499^e. When celestial things are conjoined . . . all things which are worthless are dissipated of themselves.

1631^e. Presently, the scene is changed; their palaces are gradually dissipated . . .

1633. The lives of animals are all dissipated after death.

1717³. Temptations are the means of dissipating evils and falsities. 1740².

1757. Obscurity (of thought) is dissipated with the body.

1771. Incredulity can be dissipated (after death) only by means provided by the Lord . . .

1782. That the Lord would dissipate evils and falsities. Tr.

1799⁴. All hatreds would be dissipated in a moment.

1868². With the man who is being regenerated, falsities and evils . . . are subjugated and dissipated . . .

1949^e. The dissipation (of this Rational) is here treated of.

2128. Then they who were in these Societies were dispersed, one here, another there . . .

—^e. Through such disjunctions and dispersings, all are reduced into order . . .

2249^e. The former ideas . . . are gradually dissipated.

2343². The continuity of the sense is thus dispersed.

3646³. They believe . . . that after death they will be dissipated (like the beasts).

3928². (How infernal delight can be dissipated.)

4057^e. The dispersion of the Jewish nation.

4099². Unless (these Spirits) are removed, truths are dissipated.

4121². This relationship is dissipated in the other life.

4174. (This idea) is successively dissipated.

4525. What is unconnected is dissipated as nothing.

4618³. See THIRD HEAVEN at this ref.

4777. 'To be torn to pieces'=to be dissipated by falsities.

5114^e. The recipient forms of the life (of brutes) cannot but be dissipated.

5208^e. Whatever is not in and dependent on some general principle, is dissipated. Refs.

5222^e. (The notion that the spirit) will be dissipated.

5651². Unless the Natural . . . becomes nothing, good . . . is dissipated.

5820. Unless truth becomes good . . . it is dissipated when the man comes into the other life.

6478. See COMMUNICATE at this ref.

6574². The Lord resists, by refuting the falsities of the infernal Spirits, and by dissipating their evil.

6834. See CONSUME at this ref.

6849⁵. What is not Divine would be utterly dissipated by such a union.

6864. The Holy proceeding from the Lord's Human, by which infesting falsities would be dissipated. Sig. —².

7102⁶. See DISPERSE at these refs. E.405⁴⁴.

7290². What is compelled . . . is dissipated.

7299. The angelic power from the Lord . . . instantly dissipates all such things.

8137. A Divine operation from the Lord's Divine Human in the dissipation of falsity. Sig.

8148³. This faith . . . is dissipated in the other life: it is also dissipated in the world if they gain nothing by it.

8184. 'Cleave asunder the sea'=the dissipation of the falsity from evil which is in that Hell.

[A.] 8185. 'To dry up the rivers of strength' = to dissipate the more powerful falsities. —³.

—². It here treats of . . . the dissipation of falsities through temptations.

8188. That they should see the operation of the dissipation of falsity and of reasonings. Sig.

8201. The means of the dissipation of falsity. Sig.

8203. 'He made the sea dry' = the dissipation of falsity.

8456. 'To go up' = to be dissipated, and thus not appear to the sight.

8847². To preserve it from being dissipated . . .

9093. See DIVIDE at this ref.

—^e. 'The rending of the rocks' (at the Lord's crucifixion) represented the dissipation of all things of faith.

9144. Then the former light is dissipated . . .

9163. 'A breach,' and 'to be broken' = dissipation, when the whole is broken; and injury, when a part. —². Ill.

— . When (these truths) are broken in general, truths with good are dissipated; and when they are broken in particular, the truths which are there are dissipated . . .

—³. To be dissipated, thus to be destroyed. Sig.

9298². Either the good will perish, or the evil will be dissipated . . .

10115. The dissipation (of spiritual and celestial goods). Sig.

— . 'To burn with fire' = to dissipate by the evils which are of these loves.

10643. 'Their statues ye shall break' = that the falsities of evil are to be dissipated.

H. 9. See CONNECT at this ref.

229. I have seen hundreds of thousands of evil Spirits dispersed and east into Hell by the Angels.

312². How can (the universe) be destroyed and dissipated? And how can bodies . . . dispersed into all the winds be gathered together again?

435. See CONJOIN at this ref.

475^e. (This is mere thought) which vanishes and is dissipated.

W. 220². Like rainbows, which vanish away and are dissipated . . .

865. Which heavens with their earth have been entirely dispersed. Sig. 877.

— . The Lord dispersed these imaginary heavens.

M. 148. Thus the covering between the External and the Internal . . . is at last resolved and dissipated.

—^e. Chaff, which is dispersed by the wind.

T. 123. The Lord cast down and dispersed Hell.

596^e. The external man (then) dissipates all the goods of the internal man.

D. 1099^e. If the parts of the body were dispersed over a thousand miles . . .

1270. Their thoughts could not be loosed from those things which he scattered.

1491. Thus they are dispersed, and sent into other Societies.

2124. By such a dispersion, as by the wind into the atmosphere . . .

2177. That Societies are dispersed by various methods . . .

2791. It dispersed itself so manifestly into the Spirits around . . .

2863. Such Spirits are dispersed by them . . .

3413. The sphere of that phantasy was dispersed around me . . .

3549. That evil Spirits are dispersed (by such).

3680. On the dispersion of those who lay an ambush.

3820^e. They would be dissipated like the brutes . . .

4322. When evil is dissipated or mastered . . .

4917. When they come to the lower parts, they are dispersed.

5073a. I saw another dispersion of them . . . They were dispersed in a moment. 5170^e. 5355². 5421. J. (Post.) 150.

D. Min. 4751. Fear is attended with this, that it dispersed itself into the souls of those who are near, and are conjoined by some affection.

E. 178. The Lord dissipated all evils and falsities from the human He had from the mother.

306^e. Unless (the angelic Heaven) were in order, it would be dissipated.

538⁴. The dissipation of the evils and falsities which are from the Hells. Sig.

629⁹. 'To disperse the nations' (Hab. iii. 6) = to cast those who are in evils and falsities into Hell.

700¹⁶. The dispersion of evil and falsity by an influx of Divine truth. Sig.

837^e. The truth which is outside man is dissipated.

1019. 'Made into three parts' = that they were dissipated.

Ath. 161^e. Everything of that kind was dissipated in the sepulchre.

162. In the sepulchre, thus by death, the Lord rejected everything human from the mother, and dissipated it.

J. (Post.) 323. Houses, which are destroyed or dissipated in a moment . . .

D. Wis. vii. 5². They are created in a moment, and are also dissipated in a moment . . .

Can. God viii. 8. The universe would be dissipated in a moment.

Dissociate. Dissociare.

Dissociation. Dissociatio.

A. 687. No life of anyone can exist that is dissociated from that of others.

1394. See CONSOciate at these refs. 1398^e.

2057². As each wants to be served and worshipped by others, and loves no one but himself, there results dissociation, which is determined . . . into lamentable states . . .

2871². These loves . . . were taken away from him, which is effected in the other life by dissociation.

4121². Therefore, they who have disagreed in animus are separated.

Dissolve. See MELT.

Dissolve. Diffuere.

H. 303. Whatever is not in connection, is dissolved.

J. 9⁸. Without these ultimates, man's spiritual things . . . would melt away . . .

W. 260. If the tunics around the body were not in reaction, the viscera . . . would push forth and thus fall apart.

E. 411³⁰. 'The mountain falling dissolves' (Job xiv. 18)=(that the love of evil perishes).

Dissolve. Diluere. D.Min.4713.

Dissolve. Dissolvere.

Dissolute. Dissolutus.

Dissolution. Dissolutio.

A. 10479. 'To be dissolute' (Ex.xxxii.25)=to be turned away . . . By this word in the Original Language, is also meant to be turned away, and to go back, also to be made naked . . . 10480.

M. 507. That by the lust of varieties is meant the utterly dissolute lust of scortation.

D. 314⁹. Lest they perish, and be dissolved.

502. The dragon now wants to be unloosed.

642. The more they want to unloose themselves (from the veil), the more closely they are tied.

676. By dissolution as it were death . . .

835. (If he were admitted) he would be dissolved.

Distance. Distantia.

Distant, To be. Distare.

See under AFAR, at J.58.

A. 1273. On place and distance in the other life. Gen.art. 1376.

1274. Situation and distance there, are circumstanced relatively to the human body. Ex.

— No Spirits and Angels are at a greater distance than that they can be seen . . .

— Spirits who are thought of by others . . . can be present at any distance . . . because in the other life distance of place effects nothing.

1277². Men who are distant from each other (may be quite close together before the internal sense).

1376. To Spirits . . . place and distance are not anything real, but appearing as if they were so, being nothing else than the states of their thought and affection which are thus varied, and thus presented to view in the World of Spirits; not so in Heaven with the Angels, as they are not in the idea of place and time, but in the idea of states.

—². Which are very far distant from fallacies . . .

1377. See PLACE at these refs. 1380. 3387².

1999². The distance which appears in the sublunary world is none at all in Heaven, still less above Heaven.

2183³. Evil Spirits then remove themselves to a distance.

3708⁹. Hence the things which were distant from Zion and Jerusalem represented what is obscure as to good and truth.

4321². All in the Grand Man keep their situation constant . . . at a less or greater distance . . .

4403. The quality of Spirits and the province they belonged to, it has been given me to know from the plane in which they were, and from their distance therein . . .

4416⁶. Thus he would know how far he was distant from Heaven.

6195⁶. As the affections were changed, so they receded. Hence it is evident whence come the appearances of distances in the other life.

6206⁶. From (his sphere) his quality is Known at a distance. 9606.

6602. One Society was . . . at a considerable distance. . . The reason distance is apperceived, is from the state of the affection of truth and good: in proportion as the state of one Society differs from that of another, the Societies appear remote at a distance.

6607⁶. The thoughts of the Angels flow almost in an instant to a great distance . . .

7337². It is according to order that the states of affection and thought make the idea of place and distance in the other life; and that they appear to be distant from each other in proportion as they are in a diverse state. 7358⁶. 8325, Refs.

7358. In the idea of Spirits . . . Mars appears . . . at some distance . . .

8918. Distance from the veriest good which proceeds from the Divine makes the appearance of distance in Heaven . . . The ideal of this state comes from the distance from the good and truth which is from the Divine of the Lord.

9261². Distances are diversities of states. Still, before the external sight there, states appear as spaces, and their diversities as distances. Refs.

9346². Hell is very remote from Heaven; not as to distance, since distance in the other life is none at all; but as to state.

9378³. In the other life, the distances of one from another are entirely according to the dissimilitudes and diversities of the interiors . . . U.135.

10379. These Spirits keep at a distance; because their correspondence is not with the external things with man, but with the interior ones.

H. 38. Distances determine (continuous) degrees.

42. The angelic Societies in the Heavens are distant from one another, as the goods differ in general and in special; for distances in the Spiritual World are from no other origin than from the difference of the state of the interiors . . . They are widely distant who differ much, and they are little distant who differ little.

[H.] 118. The Lord appears in two places . . . at a marked distance (from each other).

120. The Heavens are distant (from the Lord) according to the reception . . .

146. The distance between the Sun and Moon there, is thirty degrees; hence that of the quarters is the same.

192^e. Hence with the Angels there are not distances; and if there are not distances, neither are there spaces; but instead of them, states and their changes.

255². When Angels and Spirits turn themselves to a man, they can speak with him at any distance.

W. 7^e. The spiritual idea concerning the distances of space is the same as concerning the distances of good or the distances of truth . . .

10. In the Spiritual World there appear spaces . . . consequently, also, distances; but they are appearances according to the spiritual affinities which are of love and wisdom, or of good and truth.

106. If the Sun of the Spiritual World did not appear distant from the Angels . . .

108. That the distance between the Sun and the Angels . . . is an appearance according to the reception of the Divine Love and Wisdom by them. Gen.art.

109. The truth is there is no distance; but the distance is an appearance . . .

—^c. If there are no spaces, there are no distances; or, what is the same, if spaces are appearances, distances also are appearances; for distances are of space.

110. The reason the Sun appears in distance from the Angels, is that the Divine love and wisdom is received by them in an adequate degree of heat and light . . .

—^e. That which causes the appearance of distance is in the subjects . . .

113^e. The distance between the Sun and Heaven is not distance, but an appearance of distance; wherefore, as distance is only an appearance, it follows that the Lord Himself is in Heaven . . .

124². He is not received by one in the same degree as by another, and this causes them to appear to themselves to be more or less distant from each other.

130. The interior thought itself does not make distance; but the exterior thought, which acts as one with the sight of the eyes. Ex.

160. Therefore in nature there are spaces, and distances of spaces.

P. 162. The Lord is omnipresent . . . wherefore distance is an appearance according to the conjunction with Him . . . And as no one can be conjoined with the Lord as He is in Himself, He appears to the Angels at a distance as a Sun; but still He is in the universal angelic Heaven as the soul is in a man . . .

312². It is said that they flow in . . . because distance appears. And it is said that they are in them . . . because distance does not appear. Consequently, it is the appearance of distance which causes a belief concerning what man thinks and perceives, different from that concerning what he sees and hears. But this falls to the ground, when it is known that the Spiritual is not in distance as the Natural is. Think of the sun and moon, or of Rome and Constantinople: are they not in thought devoid of distance, provided this thought is not conjoined with experience acquired through sight or hearing? Why, therefore, persuade yourself, that because distance does not appear in thought, good and truth, and also evil and falsity are there, and do not flow in? . . . One Spirit can infuse his thoughts and affections into another . . . (although) the appearance of distance be considerable . . . (and) they acknowledge that in the internal sight or thought what is distant does not appear, unless it is disclosed. . . Evil Spirits have often injected evils and falsities into my thought . . . and they were at a great distance from me.

326. In the Spiritual World there is no distance, as in the natural world; but there is only an appearance of distance.

M. 78². The spaces and consequently the distances in the Spiritual World are appearances according to the states of the minds. 158.

158^e. Spiritual cohabitation exists between married partners who tenderly love each other, however far they are distant in the body.

171. Wherefore, these spheres make the distances there.

T. 185. In the natural world there are varieties of climates according to the distances of the sun from the equator; in the Spiritual World, they are according to the distances of the affections of the will and thence of the thoughts of the understanding from true love and true faith.

691. The Sun is distant from them as the sun of our world is distant from men.

D. 984^e. Thus communications are instituted with those who are the most distant thence, even if they were in another universe.

2333^e. Distances do not exist in the Spiritual World, still less in the Heavens; as there are no distances to our sight; not even between us and the sun; but we judge of distances from intermediate things, and also from previous Knowledge. 3666^e.

2771. In the other life distance effects nothing whatever. They who are 1000 or 1,000,000 miles remote are near them . . .

3140. In the other life, distance of place and removals are phantasies, induced by magicians . . .

3204^e. Hence it is evident that distance is something imaginary.

3476. They who are furthest from me, as in the Indies, or in other Earths, at such a distance that in comparison the distances of our Earth vanish to nothing; still, in a moment they are present.

3557. That distance in the other life is a fallacy of sense.

3644. On distance in the other life.

4017. That distances are phantasies, and that they are ideas . . .

E. 16². See NEAR at this ref.

422². All distance from the Lord in the Spiritual World is according to the reception of good and truth from Him.

628. In that World there are not distances which are constant and measurable as in the natural world; but similitude of affection and thence of thought effects presence, and their dissimilitude effects absence; from this origin are all the distances in that World. This comes from this Universal, that the Lord is present with all according to their love to Him, and according to the love towards the neighbour, and the consequent thoughts; from this universal principle come forth all the distances, that is, presences and absences among Angels and Spirits; wherefore, when anyone longs to speak with another, that is, thinks about him from the intention or will of speaking with him, he is at once present.

D. Love iii. Distance there, is only an appearance; for the Divine is . . . undistant—indistans. The reason distance appears, is that the Divine love, such as it is in the Lord, cannot be received by any Angel . . . wherefore it is successively diminished by infinite circumvolutions . . . This is the cause of the appearance of distance between the Lord as a Sun and Heaven where the Angels are. Still, the Lord Himself is present in Heaven; but adequately to reception.

J. (Post.) 81. In the Spiritual World distances are only appearances; and when anyone is thought about, distance perishes and becomes presence.

Distend. Distendere. Can. Redemp. v. 4.

Distinction. See DIFFERENCE—discrimen, and DISCERN.

Distinguish. Distinguere.

Distinction. Distinctio.

Distinct. Distinctus.

Distinctly. Distincte.

See under DISCERN and DISCRETE.

A. 21. 'God distinguished between the light and between the darkness' (Gen. i. 4).

24. 'Let it distinguish between the waters in the waters' (ver. 6) . . . He then distinguishes between the internal and the external man.

—². Before he is being regenerated, man (supposes that the internal and external man) are not distinct . . . and, from distinct things, he makes a single confused one. Therefore, it is first said . . . 'Let it distinguish between the waters in the waters,' but not 'let it distinguish the waters among the waters.'

—³. Therefore there is first mentioned a distinguishing—distinctio—from those which are under the expanse . . .

477. The distinction of one man from another ought to be according to the faith of love to the Lord.

618^e. Hence (the Original Language) does not suffer itself to be limited by times and distinctions.

863^e. The Lord distinguished the Intellectual of man from the Voluntary . . . 873³.

1198. See KNOW—scire—at this ref.

1394. Thence the Societies in the Heavens are so distinct that nothing can be thought of more distinct . . .

1577⁴. The internal and the external man are entirely distinct . . . 5586^e.

1680. All Spirits . . . are thus distinguished . . .

1940^e. By which he is distinguished from brute animals . . . 1999². 5160^e. 5302. 7604^e. H. 39. W. 240. 247. 413.

2023^e. This distinction between love and charity . . .

2069⁴. The distinction between the Celestial and the Spiritual . . . 2078. 2085^e.

2183². The Internal, the Rational, and the Natural are most distinct from each other, yea, so distinct, that one may disagree with another. 5411.

2231². The human mind is distinguished into two parts . . . But man was so created . . . that there should be no other distinction between them than . . .

—³. They then began to distinguish between charity and faith.

2425³. They who are in the good of charity, and thence in the affection of truth, do all things with a distinction . . . They know also how to distinguish between various kinds of good.

2541². Whereas the Angels have a most distinct idea; for myriads of distinct ideas with the Angels present only a single obscure one with man.

2866. 'Eight' = something that is distinct from what there was before.

2873^e. Hence all are distinguished there according to . . . loves . . .

3035². The sense of the letter distinguishes what the internal sense unites . . . Whereas Heaven never makes this distinction.

3247. The distinction and separation of the spiritual from the celestial. Sig.

4111². Hence it is . . . that Spirits and Angels are distinguished into Societies according to affections.

4138. These Kingdoms are most distinct . . .

4154². The goods and truths of each degree are most distinct from each other . . . Yet they do not appear distinct to man.

4329. As if they were in no distinct idea . . . Hence I opined that nothing distinct could be perceived by them.

—². General principles cannot present a distinct idea of any subject . . . They showed that they had a distinct idea of general principles; (for) they observed accurately and distinctly all the changes and variations of my thoughts and affections . . .

—³. As they are distinctly arranged in the general . . .

—⁴. Which are distinctly arranged in the universal . . .

4857^e. They do not know that what is spiritual and celestial is distinct from worldly and natural things . . .

5145². See DEGREE at this ref.

6370. The Hells are distinct according to . . .

6451². There is an inmost, there are interiors, and there are exteriors in man: all these are most exactly distinguished from each other.

[A.] 6465². He who conceives of exterior and interior things . . . as being without distinction by means of formations . . .

6775^e. In this case, spiritual light cannot flow into the singulars, and thus enlighten things distinctly.

6864^e. The Holy proceeding from the Lord . . . causes the Heavens to be most distinct according to goods and thence truths, and also causes the Hells to be most distinct according to evils and thence falsities.

7236. Their being brought forth 'according to their armies' = that they were to be distinguished as to the goods in truths, thus into classes according to the qualities of good; (as in Heaven) all are distinguished . . . according to the quality of good . . . 8019.

—². Every form consists of various distinct things.

7337². In order that all in the Grand Man may be distinguished from each other . . .

7353^e. The things (in the human mind) are distinct, almost as are the rooms of a house . . .

7381². The natural world distinguishes itself from the Spiritual World by means of time and space.

— . To distinguish the day into four periods . . .

7443. 'I will sever in that day the land of Goshen' (Ex.viii.22) . . . 'To sever' = to separate, so that there is no communication.

7761. We must well distinguish between spiritual good and natural good.

8118. They were distinguished into nations, families, and houses.

9826. These Heavens are most distinct from each other . . . H.29. 35^e.

H. 2. They cannot distinguish the Divine into three . . .

—². They who have distinguished the Divine into three . . .

15. There are two distinct loves in Heaven . . . How the two loves distinguish themselves, and how they conjoin themselves . . .

41. The Angels of each Heaven . . . are distinguished into Societies, according to . . .

43. All in each Society are similarly distinguished from each other . . .

45. Good consociates all in the Heavens, and they are distinguished according to its quality. . . But it is the Lord who . . . distinguishes them.

351². To distinguish them well . . .

Life 42. See FAITH at this ref.

W. 14. That being and manifesting in God Man are distinctly one.

—². They can be distinguished in thought, but not in act . . . therefore it is said that they are distinctly one.

17. That in God Man infinite things are distinctly one.

34. The reason the Divine being and the Divine manifesting are distinctly one, is that the Divine being is Divine love, and the Divine manifesting is Divine wisdom, therefore these in like manner are distinctly one. They are said to be distinctly one, because love and wisdom are two distinct things, yet are so united that love is of wisdom and wisdom of love . . .

83. (The Spiritual and natural worlds) are entirely distinct . . .

163. The universe is distinguished into two worlds . . . In external appearance these two worlds are so similar that they cannot be distinguished . . .

226. Thereby there is a distinction of all the singulars . . .

368. There is not a single man or Angel so like another that there is no distinction; it is the love which distinguishes . . . It is supposed that wisdom distinguishes . . .

374. There are two distinct things here.

P. 4⁴. That the form makes one more perfectly in proportion as the things which enter into it are distinctly different, and yet united.

42. See CONJOIN at this ref.

M. 352^e. This is the reason why all the Heavens are entirely distinct . . . De Verbo 3².

T. 29. The reason times and spaces were introduced into the worlds, was that one thing might be distinguished from another . . .

336. As charity and faith are distinctly two, but still make one in man . . .

420. That charity and good works are two distinct things . . .

481. Inspires life to man distinct from the life of beasts.

D. 187^e. They are distinguished from each other—interdistinguantur.

188. How Angels are distinguished from Spirits.

489. Both by heavenly representations, and by distinct ideas . . .

492. They performed everything most distinctly.

495. There are distinct choirs for . . .

2835. That there are distinct faculties, or lives, one within the other.

E. 453¹⁰. 'To distinguish the palaces' (Ps.xlviii.13) = to perceive the goods of truth. 850⁸.

Distinguished. See CELEBRATED, and ENSIGN.

Distort. Detorquere, Distorquere.

A. 4303. When truths are distorted, they become truths no longer, but are as it were distorted into the opposite.

4317⁵. The interior form itself . . . is depraved, and, so to speak, distorted . . .

D. 574². Their faces are not distorted . . . But in the other life their faces successively become so deformed and distorted . . .

2487³. The things which are evil and distorted in the interiors . . .

2488. The forms of the interiors are distorted from hereditary evil . . . and what is distorted from this birth can by no means be restored . . .

2736. That knowledges . . . distort the ideas.

Distract. Distrahere.

Pulling asunder. Distractio.

Distracted. Distractus.

Distractive. Distractivus.

A. 829^e. This takes place with a painful pulling asunder.

831^e. Some (are punished) by pullings asunder and various collisions. 957². D.865. 958^e. 1696^e. 2746.

2027². The sphere of a number of such together is so distractive, that there is nothing there but what is hostile . . .

5562. Like those who are called distracted . . .

8882. This conjunction can only be loosened . . . by a pulling asunder, which carries away all spiritual life with it.

D. 199². Their thoughts cannot so flow into human minds as to distract, still less confound them . . . Moreover, the thoughts of the Angels are concordant and unanimous, thus not at all distracting.

920. They have not their thought determined to anything fixed, thus they are ever distracted, as it were not in the body.

E. 331⁵. 'A people scattered and peeled' (Is.xviii.7) = those with whom truths have been taken away, changed, or perverted by those who are in falsities of doctrine.

Distress. See under STRAITNESS.

Distribute. Dispartire. T.509.

Distribute. Distribuere.

Distribution. Distributio.

A. 1712. 'He distributed himself upon them in the night' (Gen.xiv.15)=the shade in which were the apparent goods and truths.

H. 240. Various forms into which the general affection is distributed . . .

D. 194. Continual mediations distributed in an incomprehensible manner by God Messiah . . .

197. Spirits are distributed into classes . . . which distribution is effected by God Messiah . . .

5893. He afterwards distributed to everyone . . .

Disturb. Turbare, Deturbare, Perturbare.

Disturbance. Turbatio, Perturbatio.

See CROWD.

A. 2162¹⁶. See FOOT at this ref. E.632⁴.

3696². Evils and falsities emerge . . . and disturb him . . .

4516. 'Ye have troubled me to make me to stink' (Gen.xxxiv.30)=to cause them to be abominated.

5099. 'Behold, they were troubled' (Gen.xl.6)=that they were in a sad state.

5432^e. Such do not disturb anyone within the Church, nor do they ever condemn others.

5660^e. For there is nothing that disturbs him . . .

5716. They induce such things as disturb the mind.

6015⁷. 'To trouble the waters with the feet' (Ezek. xxxii.2)=to defile and pervert the truths of faith through the scientifics which are of the Natural; and 'to confound-confurbare-their rivers'=and thus to do the same to intelligence.

6047². Let him take care not to disturb the Church.

6405. Works without judgment which they will throw down-deturbabunt-from truth. Sig.

6822. Heresies come forth, and the Church is disturbed and rent asunder.

8985². His presence would bend to itself the thoughts of those who are in the Society, and thus disturb the influx from the Divine there: (but) when they think abstractedly . . . the thought diffuses itself . . . thus without the disturbance of any Society.

9328. 'I will disturb all the people' (Ex.xxiii.27)=the consternation of all falsities. . . The reason 'to disturb'=consternation, is that they who are in consternation are disturbed in mind and heart . . . as is evident from Zechariah: 'In that day a great disturbance from Jehovah shall be among them . . .'

H. 360. They induce anxieties which disturb the happiness of the Angels.

518^e. At their first entrance . . . they began to be disturbed in their understanding . . .

W. 261. Lest anything should flow in to disturb its states.

D. 155⁴. This form . . . is disturbed in human minds . . . Hence a confusion or disturbance like that of the builders of the tower of Babel.

157. On the disturbance of the understanding by the dissension of Spirits.

186. Lest they should be disturbed in their heavenly joys . . .

210. This sphere ascends to the rational sphere, and disturbs it.

318. So that the celestial . . . began to be disturbed . . .

408. That they were thrown down-deturbati-and cast out of Heaven. 409².

490. They could not be disturbed-disturbati-by phantasies.

526. When the dragon was thrown down from Heaven . . .

2961. That they perceive the sense of the words without disturbance from words.

E. 304⁸. 'When the waters thereof . . . are troubled' (Ps.xlvi.3).

365⁶. Therefore He says: 'Let not your heart be troubled' (John xiv.27).

406². 'To be troubled, etc.' (Ezek.xxxvii.35)=to be entirely changed as to state.

518³⁶. 'To be troubled, etc.' (Ps.xlvi.3)=their states when they are perishing, and in their place there enter falsities and evils; thus the states of the Church when it is being vastated as to goods and desolated as to truths.

[E.] 601¹⁴. The disturbance of all things from the primes of the Church to its ultimates. Sig.

Disunite. Disunire.

Disunion. Disunio.

A. 1594. Disunion. Sig.

— That which disunites the external man from the internal, is unknown . . . He does not believe that the love of self and its cupidities are the things which disunite . . . —³.

1607^e. He expelled all evil, which alone disunites.

2057³. Thus they destroy everything unanimous . . . hence disunion, and consequently destruction.

4997. Evil itself consists in disunion.

M. 215^e. From the disunion of their souls and minds they continually think themselves two.

216⁴. They are then disunited as to marriage love.

236. That spiritual cold in marriages is a disunion of souls, and a disjunction of minds . . .

242^e. This we perceive from the internal disunion of their souls.

331. Whence comes disunion, and not union.

Disuse. Desuescere, Desuetudo. T. 561. D. 2457.

Ditch. Fossa.

A. 2336³. 'The street and ditch shall be restored' (Dan. ix. 25) = that truth and good shall. ('The street' = truth; and 'the ditch,' doctrine. E. 652²². 684³⁷.)

E. 684³⁷. A ditch or well—puteus.

Ditch. Scrobis.

A. 817. He began to dig out a trench . . . He was twice rolled in the black trench he had dug. D. 1260. 1262.

4793^e. They were afterwards cast into a ditch . . .

7554². Leaving chasms and trenches deep and foul.

D. 1493. As when one is in the darkest ditches . . .

Diurnal. Diurnus. D. 397.

Divaricate. Divaricare.

Divarication. Divaricatio.

A. 5189³. Thence divaricates into a number of fibres . . . D. 3837.

H. 429. A way which in the ascent divides into many.

T. 11. Whence came disputes, dissensions, heresies . . .

641³. (Used in connection with the eyes, to indicate the opposite of squinting.)

D. 3404. He spread them out . . .

6088⁴. In idleness, the mind is spread out to various evils and falsities.

Diverse. Diversus.

Diversity. Diversitas.

A. 1771². They all apprehended it with diversity.

1857². Every evil has its limits, and this with diversity in each person.

3451². The Church . . . cannot but be various and diverse as to these things . . .

4063². The new man is entirely different and diverse from the old. Des.

H. 333. The little children are of diverse disposition . . .

378. Marriage love does not exist between two who are of a diverse religion . . .

W. 124. This diversity of their habitations . . . is from the Angels (themselves).

M. 324. That the varieties and diversities of these marriages as to love . . . are innumerable. There is an infinite variety of all things, and also an infinite diversity . . . By diversities are meant (the distinctions) between those things which are opposite.

—². By diversities we mean the opposites of these varieties, which exist in Hell . . . Hell is held together as a one by means of varieties which in their relations to each other are quite contrary to the varieties in Heaven; thus by means of perpetual diversities.

T. 374². There is infinite diversity between the goodwill of one and that of another. The origin of this infinite diversity. Ex.

D. 226. The talk was about the diversity of spheres and of stations in the Heavens . . .

329. That all things . . . of whatever diversity . . .

696. On the life of Souls, and its diversities.

1963. Whence come the diversities of delights.

2993. On the efficacy and diversity of style.

3624. The diversities in the body . . .

3852^e. The diversities are innumerable to which they ought to apply themselves . . .

4095^e. By the perverted they are received in a contrary manner, with indefinite diversity.

4450. This with much diversity.

Diversions. Diversoria.

See INN.

T. 433. That the diversions of charity are dinners, suppers, and social intercourse. Gen.art.

C. 189. That there are diversions of charity, which are various delights and pleasantnesses of the senses of the body, useful for the recreation of the mind. Gen.art.

190. These are the diversions of everyone who is in an office or employment; and hence they may be called the diversions of offices or employments; but actually they are diversions of the affections from which each person works in his employment.

192. The diversions vary from the interior affection that is in them . . .

194. With those who do their work merely for the sake of their reputation . . . these diversions are similar in externals . . .

195. In those with whom there is an affection solely of gain, these diversions are also diversions, but fleshly . . .

— From which it is evident what is the quality of their love in the above-mentioned diversions . . .

196. They do the works of their employment for the sake of diversions . . . When they are not in the diversions just enumerated, they are idlenesses . . .

Divide. See under DISCERN, DISCRIMINATE, and DIVARICATE.

Divide. Disfescere.

A. 997^e. It is scarcely possible to divide them into genera and species.

M. 116. This treatise is to be divided into the following articles. T.336³. 349².

324^e. Who can divide infinity into numbers ?

T. 350. Analytically divided into forms . . .

Divide. Dividere.

Division. Divisio.

Divisible. Divisibilis, Dividuus.

A. 644. There are so many divisions of intellectual and of voluntary things . . .

—^e. In Heaven, these divisions are called Societies . . .

1832. See DIVIDE—partiri—at this ref.

1862. That he divided those who were of the Church from the Lord. Sig.

1921³. Jehovah . . . cannot be divided, like the soul of a human father. 1999⁵.

3239^e. Multiplication and division, where a like thing is involved, do not vary the thing itself as to what is essential.

3812^r. 'To divide the garments' (Ps.xxii.18). Ex.

4071^e. The supreme sense . . . appears divided in the sense of the letter . . .

4342. See DISPOSE at this ref.

4424. 'He shall cut him asunder' (Matt.xxiv.51)= separation and removal from goods and truths; for they who are in Knowledges of good and truth . . . and are in a life of evil, are said to be 'cut asunder' when they are removed from them . . .

—². Hypocrites are thus cut asunder.

4502². See DISPERSE at these refs. 6361.

4677^b. The Lord's coat not divided. Ex.

5718. According to the maxim, Divide and rule. T.133^e. D.1793.

6443. 'To divide the spoil' (Gen.xlix.27)=to give a possession in the heavenly kingdom.

6610. The ideas of his thought vary, to wit, are multiplied and divided . . . The former thoughts and affections are also divided, and, when divided, are associated with ideas . . .

7180. It is not allowable for man to divide his mind . . .

8250². Until his mind is one, and not divided.

8292. 'I will divide the spoil' (Ex.xv.9)=service.

8882. In (such) the thought and will are divided.

9013^r. All are there compelled to speak from the heart, and not divide the mind . . .

9093. 'They shall divide the silver thereof' (Ex.xxi.35)=that its truth shall be dissipated. . . The reason 'to divide'=to dissipate, is that if things which are consociated are divided, they are also dispersed; as he who divides his animus or his mind destroys it . . . In like manner, he who divides truth from good . . . In a word, all things which ought to be one, perish if they are divided. This division is meant by ('serving two masters') . . . he who does this, has a divided mind, and thence comes its destruction. Further ill. 9094.

9114. They who have conscience . . . have a mind not divided . . .

9942¹³. 'To cast lots and divide'=to pull asunder and dissipate them. . . The coat not divided=that Divine spiritual truth proximately proceeding from Divine celestial truth could not be dissipated, because that truth is the internal truth of the Word.

H. 380². In proportion as dominion enters, their minds are not conjoined, but are divided.

425². It is not allowable for anyone in Heaven or Hell to have a divided mind . . . 508^r. M.48a².

W. 4. The Divine is one and not divisible. 27.

397. Lest man should thus have a divided mind . . .

P. 16. That the Lord does not suffer anything to be divided. Gen.art.

R. 313. 'Peres,' or 'to divide'=to disperse. 712. E.373³.

M. 185^e. Everything is divisible to infinity. T.33².

329². Every grain of your thought and affection is divisible to infinity; and in proportion as your ideas are divisible, so are you wise. Know, that everything divided is more and more manifold, and not more and more simple; because that which is divided and again divided approaches nearer and nearer to the infinite.

T. 41². (Heat and light) are divided in proceeding . . . With men, intelligence . . . and love are divided, because man is to be reformed . . . Unless man looks to God . . . he continually works for their division . . . In proportion as they are divided, he becomes an image of Lucifer and the dragon . . .

82^e. As the Divine cannot be divided . . .

367. That the man who divides the Lord, charity, and faith . . . is a destroying form.

D. 4627⁵. Each division of man's interiors . . .

E. 38^e. 'To divide'=to dissipate and disperse. Refs.

64³. 'To divide (His garments)'=to disperse and falsify.

376²². 'Numbered, weighed, divided'=separation from all things of Heaven and the Church.

506². See NUMBER at this ref.

624¹⁰. 'The land shall be divided by a line' (Amos vii.17)=that the Church and all things thereof will be dissipated.

Divide. Partiri.

Division. Partitio.

A. 1830. 'He divided them in the middle' (Gen.xv.10)=the Church and the Lord.

[A.]1832. 'And the flying thing he divided not' (id.)= spiritual things, that there is not such parallelism and correspondence. . . In the sacrifices, the birds were not divided-divisae: for to divide-dividere-is to place things opposite to each other, so that they may adequately correspond.

3858. The divisions of that people into twelve tribes.

D. 3036. These divisions (of the body) are general.

Dividing. Discidium. D.2321.

Divine. Divinare.

Divination. Divinatio.

Diviner. Divinator.

A. 5748. 'He in divining divines in this' (Gen.xliv.5) = that the Celestial knows hidden things from its own Divine.

5781. 'Wot ye not that such a man as I in divining divines?' (ver.15)=that it cannot be hidden from him who sees things future and concealed.

9188^s. See AUGUR at this ref.

9248². 'To see,' or 'vision,' when predicated of the prophets, = the revelation which regards doctrine; and 'to divine,' or 'divination,' the revelation which regards life. III.

9280^e. Arcana investigated by diviners in the Word . . .

S. 102. See CORRESPOND at this ref.

M. 151a³. Some of the learned have divined . . .

294. Divine if you can. We divine it to be . . .

315⁵. Where the soul is, is divined.

T. 469. Anyone who is wise may perceive or divine this).

D. 166. As I was allowed to conjecture.

2189. They are all very much addicted to divining from themselves . . . so that when anything happens, everyone . . . divines that it is so and so . . . Thus the whole sphere would be filled with false conjectures.

2190. Conjecture about future things and memory of past ones are what take away all the delight and happiness of life.

3137^e. In the other life, these are given to magic arts, to divinations, and the like.

4717. I said I would guess.

4774. From this they divined that a revelation was about to come.

4849. The divinations from the heavens were from the same source.

E. 433³³. 'To remove the diviner and the old man' (Is.iii.2)=all intelligence and wisdom.

624¹³. 'The prophets who see vanity, and divine a lie' (Ezek.xiii.9)=all who are not taught and led by the Lord, but by themselves, whence they have insanity instead of intelligence, and folly instead of wisdom . . .

—¹⁴. 'Darkness instead of divining' (Mic.iii.6)=falsities instead of revealed truths.

700²⁴. The reason the priests and diviners of the Philistines persuaded them to do so, was that the science of correspondences was the general science of that time; for their theology was known to the priests and diviners, who were their wise men.

1063². Can never be divined by any conjecture.

Divine. Divinus.

See under CONCEIVE, ESSENTIAL, GOD, JEHOVAH, LORD, MAKE, and PROCEED.

A. 1121. All laws, both human and Divine . . .

1414². The Lord's Hereditary from the Father was Divine . . .

1428. His Sensuous and Corporeal . . . was made Divine.

1460. That the Knowledges might become vessels to receive the Divine. The interiors with Him were Divine from Jehovah . . . the exteriors were human from Mary.

1469. His internal man, which was Divine. 1593. 1602.

1475^e. How His external man . . . was made Divine. 1489^e. 1540.

1477. See ESSENCE at this ref.

1573³. He was born from Jehovah, thus was Divine or Jehovah as to internals.

—⁶. Much less could Hell approach the Lord, if He had been born Divine, that is, without evil adhering from the mother . . . The Divine is not susceptible of evil.

1659^e. The Word is Divine, not human.

1661^e. So far as (the goods and truths) were imbued with hereditary things from the mother, they were not Divine; but by degrees . . . they were purified, and made Divine.

1690^e. As this love was not human, but Divine . . .

1707⁵. His interior man, as to celestial things or goods, was Divine . . . but His interior man as to spiritual things or truths . . . was made Divine, that is, Jehovah.

1708². How apparent goods were able . . . in like manner to become Divine.

1725². The interior man . . . was also made Divine.

1815². The external which He received from the mother, was to be united to the Divine . . .

1874^e. Thus the sense of the letter . . . becomes spiritual, then celestial, and at last Divine.

1894. The being itself, from which man is, is Divine, thus celestial and spiritual . . .

1902^e. His Rational was conceived and born as with another man, with the difference, that the Divine or Jehovah was inmost in each and all things of Him . . .

1904¹. To think from the Divine as from himself is not possible in man; only in Him who was conceived from Jehovah.

1921. At last He made (His Rational) Divine. 2093, Tr. 2194. 2204^e. 2208.

1999². In proportion as He put on the Divine . . .

—³. The Divine . . . is not divisible.

2009. That He would put on the Divine. Sig.

2010. See (the letter) H.
- 2011^e. The Infinite Divine can only be expressed as good and truth itself.
2023. The Divine with those who have faith in Him. Sig. . . The Divine with those who have faith in the Lord is love and charity.
2161. That they should let themselves down from Divine things nearer to His intellectual ones. Sig. 2186.
2171. Perception still more interior, which to them is Divine.
- 2189^e. As the Lord's rational good was then Divine . . .
- 2196^e. Human rational truth does not apprehend Divine things . . . Divine things themselves are exempt from all appearances. 2209.
2253. This life is the veriest celestial one, by which He united Himself to the Divine, and the Divine to Himself.
2332. The Holy Divine flowing into what is profane with man, is . . . like a devouring and consuming fire.
- 2515^e. The Lord's thought was immediately from the Divine.
2519. The doctrinal things of faith are all from the Divine, which is infinitely above the human Rational; the Rational receives its good and truth from the Divine; the Divine can enter into the Rational, but not the reverse . . .
- 2531². The doctrine of faith . . . is wholly Divine . . .
- 2533². Infinitely below the Divine. (See WORD.)
- 2568². From lower things no one can apprehend . . . Divine ones, because they transcend all understanding.
- 2571². By which man becomes spiritual and celestial, but not Divine which has life in itself, as the Lord did.
- 2588⁰. They who want to enter into the doctrinal things of faith and Divine things by means of scientific and rational ones. Tr.
- 2632². Until His Rational was such that it could receive the Divine.
- 2643^e. These are Divine things, which are not expressible by any forms of words.
- 2966². It is the Divine of the Lord which makes the Church with man . . .
3013. Truths were (thus) made Divine. Thus the Rational was made Divine as to truth, as well as to good. 3125.
3023. See JEHOVAH at this ref.
3030. See RATIONAL at these refs. 3490.
- 3043^e. It is said, as it were Divine, because man is only a recipient of life.
3140. An invitation of the Divine with itself. Sig.
3153. That the things which belong to the natural man should be prepared to receive Divine things; and thus the truths which are signified by 'Rebekah' . . . should become Divine, and this by influx. Tr.
- ^e. But with the Lord . . . all things, in both the Rational and the Natural, were made Divine by Himself. 3195².

3209². The rational good in the Lord was Divine; but the truth, which is elevated out of the Natural, was not Divine until it was conjoined with the Divine good of the Rational. . . A medium was therefore necessary, which could be nothing else than a Natural which should partake of the Divine. Sig.

3212¹. He was not regenerated . . . but made Divine, and this from the veriest Divine love . . .

3237. Of the Divine there is not predicated quality, but being.

3245. See ABRAHAM at this ref.

— . The Lord made His Rational Divine from His own Divine.

—². The Divine of the Lord constitutes His Kingdom.

3283. See NATURAL at these refs. 3656. 3657. 3660². 3737. 3761. 3993². 4025. 4234. 4536.

3285. The communication of the Divine that was the Son with the Divine that was the Father. Sig.

3304². See CELESTIAL at these refs. H. 31.

3318^e. The Lord was not made new, but altogether Divine.

3364^e. What is Divine cannot be apprehended by any created thing . . . 3365^e.

3365^e. See DOCTRINE at these refs. 3690.

3367. Thought from the Divine. Sig.

3370. That the Divine will be in them. Sig.

3372. Even the truth therein is good, because Divine.

3382². When He was in the world, He thought from the Divine, and thus from Himself, and acquired all intelligence and wisdom by continual revelations from the Divine.

3388. That it could be easily received, from the fact that it is called Divine. Sig.

— . With these, the first of the confirmation of truth is, that it is called Divine . . .

3392^e. Spiritual truth is first received because it is called Divine; afterwards, because what is Divine is in it.

3415. That they could not endure these truths on account of what is Divine in them. Sig.

3425^e. Things in the Word which are contrary to the Divine . . . It is also the Divine which the evil turn into what is diabolical . . . Wherefore, in proportion as they approach the Divine, they cast themselves into infernal torments.

3439. That the Divine was in the literal sense. Sig.

— . See WORD at these refs. 4279.

3539⁵. It is humiliation into which the Divine can flow . . .

3599. See ESAU at these refs. 4641.

3605². For the Divine is mercy.

3610². There is nothing of the Divine in their life, except that they can think and speak.

3665⁵. These are Knowledges which have the Divine in them.

3672. Life from the Divine. Sig. 3673.

[A.] 367^e. Knowledges are not in themselves truths ; but are so from the Divine things in them . . .

3700. That there was communication with the Divine. Sig.

— . This (good and truth) is also called Divine, because it is from the Lord.

3855. Further from the Divine. Sig. . . For the Divine is above the inmost . . .

3883. There is a correspondence of the Lord's Divine with . . .

3901^d. The Rational enlightened by the Divine. Sig.

— . Rational and voluntary things given from the Divine. Sig.

3938. Divine, that is, infinite things, are only apprehended from finite ones . . . Without an idea from space and time, man can comprehend nothing about Divine things, still less about the Infinite.

3986. From the Divine which the Natural had. Sig.

—³. The Lord's Divine is in the good of love to God and the good of charity . . . and where the Divine is present within, all things are disposed into order.

— . They are one in the Divine, that is, in the Lord.

—⁴. So long . . . they do not admit the Divine.

3994. He is then in a state of receiving the Lord's Divine.

4025^e. The goods and truths which He made Divine in Himself. Sig.

4061. That (these goods and truths) might be conjoined with the Divine from a direct Divine stock. Tr.

4071. That it would then be Divine. Sig.

4075. That all He had was from the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

4078. Nothing can do harm to the Divine, but its influx may be hindered . . .

4085. Perception from the Divine. Sig.

4103. A nearer approach to the Divine. Sig. 4111³.

4111^d. Changes of state there, are nothing but approximations to the Divine, and removals from the Divine.

4206. See GOD at these refs. 5107. 5689. 6276. 6277. W.49.

4255. His progress into intelligence and wisdom at last Divine.

4262. Divine things to be initiated into celestial natural good. Sig.

— . As the things which are of the Divine Providence are Divine . . .

4347². The Divine is not in any affection of glory . . .

—^c. The Divine flows in through the internal man . . .

4559. The difference between making Divine, and making holy. Ex.

4592³. He alone was born spiritual celestial, because the Divine was in Him.

4644. The good which was Divine in the Lord from birth. Tr.

—³. What is in the Divine never appears to anyone ; but what is from the Divine appears in a very general manner . . .

4658^d. The radiant circle is the Divine from Him.

4696^e. The Divine which comes from the Lord, in the supreme sense, is the Divine in Him ; but in the relative sense, is the Divine from Him . . .

4815^e. What is in the internal sense is Divine, and to the Divine, future things are present.

4960. How He made His internal man Divine. Tr.

4963^e. What He had from the Father . . . was Divine . . .

4964^e. Thereby He made progress to interior things more and more, and at last even to Divine things.

4971. That the Divine was in the Celestial of the Spiritual. Sig. and Ex. 4974.

—^c. The Divine is not within the Angels, but is present with them.

5041. That the Divine was in the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

5078². He made the very Corporeal in Himself Divine, both its sensuous things and their recipients . . .

5110². When we think that everything in the Lord is Divine, and that the Divine is above all thought, and is entirely incomprehensible even to the Angels . . .

5114^d. See DIE-mori—at this ref.

5116². They who attribute all things to the Divine, can see . . . that the Divine is in each thing in nature . . .

5127^e. The Lord's Divine continually flows in with man, and enlightens him.

5134^e. With the Lord, who made the Natural in Himself Divine, evils and falsities were completely cast out ; for the Divine can have nothing in common with evils and falsities, nor be terminated in them . . . For the Divine is the very being of good and truth.

5157^e. The Voluntary in the Lord . . . was Divine from conception.

5249. How He made His Natural new, and at last Divine. Tr.

5302. He can then look at the Divine, and perceptibly receive it.

5307. The Divine is good itself, and that which proceeds from it is truth in which is good.

5428. See GLORY at this ref.

5775^e. For truths have no communication with the Divine, except through good.

6229. The Divine appearing in the Natural in a former state. Sig.

6373. See CELESTIAL KINGDOM at these refs. 6698.

6565. The acknowledgment of the Divine things of the Church. Sig.

6700. See ADORER at this ref.

— . They know that no one can be conjoined with the Divine in faith and love, unless the Divine is in a form.

6752⁹. When His Divine appeared in the world (at the transfiguration) . . .

6784². The reason scientific truth prevails . . . is that the Divine is in all truth from good . . . whereas what is contrary to the Divine avails nothing at all.

6843. That he should not as yet think about the Divine from sensuous things. Sig. and Ex.

6845. That otherwise the Divine cannot enter. Sig. and Ex.

6983. In the Divine which is above the Heavens, still less is there space and time, and not even state; but instead of space there is the infinite, and instead of times there is the eternal.

6985. That voice and speech from the Divine is neither heard nor perceived. Sig.

7004². Hence it is evident, that the Divine inflows immediately into each and all things . . .

7007. The Divine in all things which shall come to pass. Sig. and Ex.

7042. For the Divine never opposes itself to anyone; but it is the man or nation which opposes itself to the Divine; and, when they oppose themselves, as they cannot endure the Divine, it appears as if there were resistance from the Divine.

7208. To all in Heaven it is given to see the Divine, that is, Divine good and truth, thus wisdom and intelligence . . .

7268. (The Divine above the Heavens, and the Divine in the Heavens. See GOD.)

7436. The appearance of the Divine to those who are in evils. Sig. . . 'Moses' = truth from the Divine, through which the Divine appears.

8227. They who hate good, intensely hate the Divine . . .
— The Divine, that is, the Lord.

8307. The Divine influx with those who had abstained from evils. Sig. and Ex.

8309. That the Divine power of the Lord had elevated them to Heaven into the Divine there. Sig.

8326^e. (Human perfection) can never be compared with the Divine.

8328. Regarded in itself, the Divine is above the Heavens; but the Divine in the Heavens is the good which is in the truth that proceeds from the Divine. This is meant by 'the Father in the Heavens.'

—². The Divine above the Heavens is the Divine good itself.

8535. That it was in the presence of the Divine. Sig.

8599^e. The Divine is in good, and through good in truth; but is not in truth without good.

8672. See JOY at this ref.

8678^e. Pride of heart . . . repels the Divine from itself, and thus removes Heaven from itself; as may appear from the state of reception of the Divine and of Heaven, which is a state of love towards the neighbour, and a state of humiliation towards God; (for) in the same proportion he receives the Divine, and therefore in the same proportion he is in Heaven.

8764⁴. The consociation of all things in the Divine. Rep.

8781. The Divine can only appear to anyone according to the state of his life . . .

8813. A Divine state in which there was revelation. Sig.

8814. A Divine state relatively to those who were to receive. Sig.

—^e. In the other life, the Divine appears to everyone according to the quality of his faith and love.

8815. The Divine in Heaven is in the midst or inmost, that is, in the supreme there . . .

8816. The commotion of all at the presence of the Divine. Sig. For the Divine is such that no one can endure it except in a kind of cloud . . . They who are in good do indeed tremble at the presence of the Divine, but it is the holy tremor which precedes reception; whereas they who are in evil are in terror at the presence of the Divine . . .

8817. See MOSES at this ref.

8838. That they may be warded off from the Divine. Sig. . . For the presence of the Divine is like a consuming fire to those who are not covered over.

8840. Influx of the Divine through truth from the Divine. Sig.

8870. A semblance of those things which are from the Divine (not to be made). Sig. and Ex.

8875⁸. When man has corrupted the Divine. Sig.

8876. The state of those who altogether reject from themselves the Divine. Tr.

8899. Heaven . . . is the reception of influx from the Divine.

8925. A holy fear of the Divine. Sig.

8931. Heaven is wherever the Divine is; thus with everyone who is in charity and faith; for charity and faith are Heaven, because they are from the Divine.

8939. The presence of the Divine and influx. Sig.

8941. That which is . . . from the Divine has life in itself; for all life is from the Divine.

8944. Of himself, man knows nothing about Divine things . . . The learned . . . above all others deny the Divine, and instead of the Divine acknowledge nature.

—². The ancients, who were gentiles, knew that there is a Divine . . .

9166⁴. The Divine in them causes them to be and to be called Angels of Heaven . . .

9229². 'To sanctify Himself' = to make Himself Divine from His own power.

9262². The Divine of the Lord can only be received in innocence. Ex.

9303². Thus they can think that there is one Divine, but not that there is one God . . .

9338⁶. For the Divine must be in what is Divine; not in the proprium of anyone.

9378^e. For the approach of the Divine to the Divine is nothing but union.

9568³. See ALL at this ref.

9946. The Divine of the Lord in the Heavens . . . can be represented; but not His Divine above the Heavens, because this cannot fall into human minds . . . being infinite; whereas the Divine in the Heavens which is thence derived, is accommodated to reception. 9956.

[A.] 9954. For the Divine flows in through the good of love with man, and makes his life . . .

10011. Hence it is evident, that the Divine, being the inmost of all things . . . is the only thing from which is the life of all things; wherefore in proportion as a man receives from the Divine, he lives.

10048². For the Divine . . . is in itself infinite . . .

10131. See ALTAR at these refs. 10151.

10157. The Divine of the Lord, that it is the all in all of Heaven and the Church. Sig.

10268. To represent the Divine of the Lord in the Heavens. Sig.

10269. To induce a representation of the Divine in the celestial good of the inmost Heaven. Sig.

10272. Goods and truths are goods and truths in proportion as the Divine of the Lord is in them.

10286. The imitation of Divine things by art. Sig. and Ex.

10299. From the influx and operation of the Divine of the Lord in each and all things. Sig.

—⁵. Man was created to be a receptacle of the Divine; and the faculty of receiving the Divine is no otherwise formed.

10322. That which is from the Divine descends through the Heavens even to man . . .

10498. For truth and good from Heaven is the Divine with man.

10528. See ANGEL at these refs. 10561¹.

10533. That if the Divine were to flow in with that nation it would perish. Sig. and Ex.

10536. The quality of their External, that it was devoid of the Divine. Sig.

—, 'Ornament' = the Divine in externals.

10571. That the Divine must be in the external of the Church, of worship, and of the Word, which is with them. Sig. 10575. 10614.

10579⁹. Where evil is in falsity the Divine does not appear. Sig.

10618⁸. For all good is the Divine with man, because it is from the Divine.

10619. The Divine is infinite.

10634. See CREATE at these refs. W.4. 53. 198.

10646. From the Divine nothing can proceed except the Divine, and the Divine is one.

10716. The Divine of the Lord makes the Heavens. 10721, Ex. 10736⁶. H.7, Gen.art. W.11. 19, Ex. R.882. D.5775. E.23⁵.

10736⁶. The inmost of nature was his Divine.

H. 2. In Heaven they are not able to distinguish the Divine into three, as they know and perceive that the Divine is one; those with whom there is the idea of three Divines cannot be admitted . . .

3². They who have denied the Divine of the Lord . . . are in like manner outside of Heaven. 83.

—³. They who say that they believe in an invisible Divine . . . have found that they believe in no God, because an invisible Divine is to them like nature in its primes . . .

(o). That a Divine not perceptible by any idea, is not receivable in faith. Ref.

13. That the Divine of the Lord in Heaven is love to Him and charity towards the neighbour. Gen.art.

82^e. No one comes into Heaven without an idea of the Divine.

108. That all things in nature come forth from the Divine . . .

318. The Lord has provided that all have religion, and thereby an acknowledgment of the Divine, and interior life; for to live according to religion is to live interiorly, as he then looks to the Divine, and in proportion as he looks to this, he does not look to the world . . .

319. Heaven in man is to acknowledge the Divine, and to be led by the Divine. The first and primary of all religion is to acknowledge the Divine; a religion which does not acknowledge the Divine is not religion; and the precepts of all religion regard worship, thus how the Divine is to be worshipped. . . Moral life which is lived for the sake of the Divine is spiritual life . . . for he who lives a moral life for the sake of the Divine is led by the Divine . . .

351². Man looks to the Divine when he believes in the Divine, and believes that from the Divine is all truth and good . . . and he believes in the Divine when he is willing to be led by the Divine.

354. They who at heart have denied the Divine . . .

506². For all who live in evil, interiorly deny the Divine . . . for to acknowledge the Divine and live evilly are opposite.

558. (Thus) in proportion as anyone loves himself, he removes himself from the Divine, thus also from Heaven.

561. Hence the Divine cannot flow in with such.

584^e. (Thus) man comes into the light of Heaven in proportion as he acknowledges the Divine . . . and he comes into the thick darkness of Hell in proportion as he denies the Divine . . .

592^e. The Divine alone, which proceeds solely from the Lord.

J. 10². The human race on one Earth may perish, which takes place when it completely separates itself from the Divine . . .

13. See INFINITE at these refs. P.48. 294^e. R.31^e.

25. The Spiritual of every man is in conjunction with the Divine, as it is able to think of the Divine, and also to love the Divine, and to be affected by all things which are from the Divine . . . thus to be conjoined with the Divine in thought and will . . . That which can be thus conjoined with the Divine, cannot die to eternity; for the Divine is with him and conjoins him to itself.

—⁵. The inmost of man into which the Divine of the Lord proximately flows . . . H.39.

36^e. In its own essence truth is Divine, wherefore to will truth because it is truth, is also to acknowledge and love the Divine.

L. 30^e. By the Lord from eternity is meant His Divine a quo.

32³. 'The Father' means the Divine that was in the Lord from conception . . . The Human itself from this Divine is the Son of God. As this, too, was made Divine . . .

35³. For the Divine could not be tempted, and still less suffer the cross.

46². The Divine which is the Father, and the Divine which is the Son, is the Divine ex quo; and the Divine proceeding which is the Holy Spirit, is the Divine per quod.

—⁵. It is customary in the Word to mention two Divines, and sometimes three, which yet are one . . .

S. 6. See DEGREE at this ref.

67³. By 'committing adultery' a celestial Angel understands to deny the Divine of the Lord, and to profane the Word. Life 74.

81^e. In every Divine work there is good conjoined with truth, and truth conjoined with good.

W. 7. That the Divine is not in space. Gen.art.

30^e. Hence it is evident, that the Divine resides with man in these two faculties . . .

54. The Divine is not in one subject differently from what it is in another. Ex.

59. (Thus) the Divine is in each and all things of the created universe . . . but still there is nothing of the Divine in itself in their being . . . 60.

60^e. (Thus) the Divine does not belong to man, but is adjoined to him.

61^e. The endeavour to vegetate, and thus to perform uses, is the ultimate from the Divine in created things.

69. That the Divine fills all the spaces of the universe, [and yet is] devoid of space. Gen.art.

— See SPACE at these refs. 70^e.

72^e. This is why it is said that the Divine fills all spaces . . . and not that God Man fills them.

73 That the Divine is in all time without time. Gen. art.

— For nothing that is proper to nature can be predicated of the Divine.

76. Without time, the Eternal and the Divine are the same; the Divine is the Divine in itself, and not from itself.

77. That the Divine in the greatest and in the least things is the same. Gen.art. 223^e.

156. Eternity not of time is the same as the Divine . . . Infinity not of space is also the same as the Divine.

170. The conjunction of the Creator with the created universe is not possible unless there are subjects in which His Divine may be as in itself . . .

204. (Prior or simple things) are as if were more Divine. Ex.

285^e. As the Divine is not in space, it is not continuous, as is the inmost of nature.

296. See LORD at this ref.

305. That in the substances and matters from which are earths, there is nothing of the Divine in itself, but still they are from the Divine in itself. Gen.art.

351. How men may confirm themselves in favour of the Divine from what they see in nature. 353- 354- 355. M.416.

P. 6². (Thus) in a certain image the Divine is in every created thing, but it is less and less apparent as it descends through the degrees . . .

52^e. The Divine in itself is in the Lord, but the Divine from itself is the Divine from the Lord in created things.

53. The Divine cannot regard anything but the Divine; and it can regard this nowhere but in things created by itself. Ex.

—². So with the Divine in itself; for the Divine in itself cannot regard itself from another, as from a man, a Spirit, or an Angel, because in them there is nothing of the Divine in itself . . . and to regard the Divine from another in whom there is nothing of the Divine, would be to regard the Divine from what is not Divine, which is impossible.

57^e. As the finite has not anything of the Divine in itself, there is no such thing in man or Angel . . . what is living in him is from the Divine proceeding conjoined with him by contiguity, and appearing to him as his.

96⁶. Sometimes the Lord infills an Angel with His Divine . . .

200. How can man claim for himself what is Divine . . .

231⁵. A fifth kind of profanation is committed by those who attribute Divine things to themselves.

285². The Divine cannot be appropriated to man as his, but it can be adjoined to him, and thereby appear as if it were his.

324. Man is able . . . thus to receive the Divine; and he who is able to receive the Divine, so as to see and perceive it in himself, cannot but be conjoined with the Lord, and by this conjunction live to eternity. What would the Lord [do] with the whole creation of the universe, unless He had created images and likenesses of Himself, to whom He could communicate His Divine? . . . What would there be Divine in these things, unless they were for the sake of the end that they might be of service to subjects which might receive the Divine more nearly, and might see and feel it? And as the Divine is of glory inexhaustible, would He keep it to Himself, and could He do so?

R. 21. The Divine is one and indivisible . . . T.364.

54². The Lord so moderates and tempers His Divine, that man is able to endure His presence, and this by coverings.

758². The Divine can be with man, but not in his proprium, for the proprium of man is nothing but evil; wherefore, he who attributes the Divine to himself as his Own, not only defiles it, but also profanes it. The Divine is exquisitely separated by the Lord from the proprium of man, and is elevated above it, and never immersed in it.

946. That there is nothing Divine in the Angels. Sig.

961³. That which is from God is not called God, but is called Divine.

T. 6. Nothing can proceed from God but what is Himself, and is called Divine.

[T.] 8°. All the Divine, taken both universally and singularly, is God; and as all the Divine coheres as one, there cannot but be inspired to man the idea of one God.

23. See BE at this ref.

109°. (Thus) His natural body was, by glorification, made Divine.

123. That redemption was a work purely Divine.

210. In everything Divine there is a first, a middle, and an ultimate . . . See S.27.

301. A day of instruction in Divine things.

D. 342°. What is truly good, what is truly spiritual and celestial, that is, what is Divine; for true happiness, true peace, true innocence, are entirely Divine.

1692. Frequent Divine worships.

4593°. Evil Spirits . . . feel aversion at the first approach of that which is truly Divine . . .

5669. See DENY at these refs. 6029.

5692°. Such are against the Divine . . .

5696. They do not trust in the Divine . . .

5811. On the idea of the Divine. The idea of the Divine conjoins, because it enters Heaven, where everything is Divine; and the idea of the Divine is obtained from Divine truths implanted in affection . . . in proportion to the number of Divine truths implanted, is the idea of the Divine fuller; and without Divine truths in the idea of man, the idea of the Divine itself has no existence.

E. 24. The Divine in Heaven. Sig.

30°. The Divine passing through the Heavens . . .

195⁴. That which is Divine in itself is able to become Divine with man, if he applies it to life. Sig.

309. The Divine that was in Him from conception was His own Divine . . . —.

328⁴. The Divine operates from primes through ultimates . . .

—7. Conjunction with the Divine is effected by . . .

422¹³. To whom the Divine had not before reached . . .

632¹⁰. Such are all they who deny the Divine.

635². For it is the Divine which bears witness concerning the Divine . . .

650³. Hence it is that they are able to think and reason ingeniously against the Divine.

954°. (The thought that) the inmost of nature is what is called Divine.

Ath. 3. As there is one Divine, there is the same Divine; thus not equal to the Father, but the same. 195.

De Verbo 6°. They who do not believe the Word from the Word, can never believe anything Divine from nature. Sig.

11°. The Divine let down by the Lord into the world . . .

D. Wis. i. The Divine is spiritual and not natural.

C. 102. As life is God, the Divine cannot be appropriated to man who is finite and created, but it can flow in and be adjoined to a receptacle.

Inv. 56. The Lord made the natural man in Himself Divine . . .

Divine a quo.

L. 30°. See DIVINE at these refs. 46°.

R. 6. See DIVINE ITSELF at these refs. 961.

Divine Celestial. Divinum Coeleste.

A. 1728. 'A king' = holy truth; 'a priest,' holy good; the former is the Divine Spiritual; the latter is the Divine Celestial.

1950. By 'Abram' is represented the Lord's internal man, or, what is the same, His Divine Celestial and Spiritual.

2441². It is the Divine Celestial of His love, which thus appears (as a Sun) before their eyes.

2569. When the Divine Spiritual was adjoined to the Divine Celestial. Sig.

2576¹⁷. By 'Judah' is represented the Lord's Divine Celestial. 6363. 6368. 9052².

2616. The presence of the Divine Celestial in the Divine Spiritual. Sig.

—'. 'Jehovah' = the Divine Celestial, that is, Divine good, or being itself.

2618. A state of union of the Lord's Divine Spiritual in His Divine Celestial. Sig. and Ex.

2619. The perception . . . was from the Divine Celestial; but the thought . . . was from the Divine Celestial through the Divine Spiritual. Ex.

2621. The Divine Rational from the union of the Divine Spiritual with the Divine Celestial of the Lord. Sig. 2622. 2629.

2622. 'Abraham' = the Divine Celestial or Divine good. Refs.

2629. Birth or manifesting is from the Divine Spiritual; and conception or being is from the Divine Celestial.

2830°. 'The flock of Kedar' = Divine Celestial things; 'the rams of Nebaioth' = Divine spiritual things.

3235. Abraham and Sarah represented the Lord as to the Divine Celestial; Abraham and Keturah, as to the Divine Spiritual.

—². The Divine Celestial and the Divine Spiritual are so circumstanced relatively to those who receive the Divine of the Lord . . .

4237. In the supreme sense, 'two camps' = the Divine Celestial and the Divine Spiritual of the Lord.

4677³. As the chief priests represented the Lord as to the Divine Celestial or Divine good . . .

6417°. The Lord is nothing but Divine good; that which proceeds from His Divine good and inflows into Heaven, in the Celestial Kingdom is called the Divine Celestial, and in the Spiritual Kingdom, the Divine Spiritual; thus the Divine Spiritual and the Divine Celestial are so called relatively to reception.

6435¹¹. In the supreme sense, by 'Mount Zion' was represented the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love; and, in the relative sense, the Divine Celestial and the Divine Spiritual in His Kingdom.

8665. A mutual Divine Celestial state. Sig.

—^e. The state of such is called Divine Celestial.

8827. Hence the Divine in the Third Heaven is called the Divine Celestial; and the Divine in the Second Heaven, the Divine Spiritual.

8828. Conjunction with the Divine Celestial, that is, with the Divine of the inmost Heaven. Sig.

9804. By the priesthood discharged by Aaron with his sons, was represented the Lord as to the Divine Celestial, which is the Divine good in Heaven; and by his garments was represented the Divine Spiritual, which is the Divine truth thence proceeding. 10098.

9810. 'Aaron' = a representative of the Lord as to the Divine Celestial . . . The Divine Celestial is the Divine of the Lord in the inmost Heaven . . .

9813. 'The sons of Aaron' = the things which proceed from the Divine Celestial . . .

10092. 'The flank of uplifting' = the Divine Celestial which is of the Lord alone perceived in Heaven and the Church.

10213. 'The holy of holies is this to Jehovah' = as it is from the Divine Celestial.

H. 24. From the Divine Celestial, the Lord in the world was called 'Jesus;' and from the Divine Spiritual, 'Christ.'

R. 49. In the Lord and thence from the Lord, there are the Divine Celestial, the Divine Spiritual, and the Divine Natural; the Divine Celestial is meant by 'the head' of the Son of Man; the Divine Spiritual, by His 'eyes' and by His breast that was 'girt with a golden girdle;' and the Divine Natural, by His 'feet.' As these three are in the Lord, they are also in the angelic Heaven; the Third Heaven is in the Divine Celestial, the Second Heaven is in the Divine Spiritual, and the first Heaven is in the Divine Natural. In like manner the Church on earth. For, before the Lord, the universal Heaven is as one man, in which they who are in the Divine Celestial constitute the head, they who are in the Divine Spiritual the body, and they who are in the Divine Natural the feet . . .

373. The Divine Celestial things of the Lord. Sig.

466. The Lord is with men in His Divine Natural, with the Angels of the Spiritual Kingdom in the Divine Spiritual, and with the Angels of the Celestial Kingdom in the Divine Celestial; yet He is not divided, but appears to everyone according to his quality.

959. When the Word passed through the Heavens of the Lord's Celestial Kingdom, it was Divine Celestial; when it passed through the Heavens of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, it was Divine Spiritual; and when it came to man, it became Divine Natural . . . T.6. E.593². De Verbo 5. 11.

T. 195. From the Lord proceeds the Divine Celestial, the Divine Spiritual, and the Divine Natural, one after the other. Whatever proceeds from His Divine love is called Divine Celestial, and the whole of it is good; whatever proceeds from His Divine wisdom is called the Divine Spiritual, and the whole of it is truth. The Divine Natural is from both, and is their complex in the ultimate. The Angels of the Celestial Kingdom . . . are in the Divine which proceeds from the Lord which is called Celestial . . . The Angels of the Spiritual King- dom . . . are in the Divine . . . which is called Spiritual . . . And the Angels of the Natural Kingdom . . . are in the Divine . . . which is called the Divine Natural. E.69². 448². 696¹⁷. Sig.

E. 283. The appearance of the Divine Spiritual on every side around the Divine Celestial. Sig.

—². The Divine Celestial is the good of love to the Lord, and the Divine Spiritual is the good of charity towards the neighbour.

Coro. 51^e. Thus He conjoined into one in Himself the Divine Celestial, the Divine Spiritual, and the Divine Natural.

Divine Essence. See under DIVINE HUMAN, and ESSENCE.

Divine Good. Divinum Bonum, Bonum Divinum.

A. 1728. The Lord as a King governs each and all things in the universe from Divine truth; and as a Priest, from Divine good. Divine truth is the order itself of His universal Kingdom, all the laws of which are truths, or eternal Truths; Divine good is the essential itself of order, all things of which are of mercy. Both are predicated of the Lord: if only Divine truth were, no mortal could be saved; for Truths condemn everyone to Hell: whereas Divine good, which is of mercy, elevates from Hell to Heaven. 2015¹⁰. 4839². 7995⁶.

1935. This affection was from Divine good itself.

2063². See ABRAHAM at these refs. 2822. 3236. 3239². 3703.

2069⁵. The Lord's Divine good can only flow in with the celestial man, because it inflows into his voluntary part, as with the Most Ancient Church; but the Lord's Divine truth flows in with the spiritual man, because only into his intellectual part, which in him is separated from his voluntary part . . .

2093. Divine truth conjoined with Divine good. Sig.

2258. That Divine good cannot do this according to truth separated from good. Sig.

— . The priests who were also judges, as priests represented Divine good, and as judges, Divine truth.

—². Divine good judges all to Heaven; but Divine truth condemns all to Hell.

—³. That the evil are condemned to Hell, is not from the fact that Divine good is separated from Divine truth, but because the man separates himself from Divine good . . . In this, also, Divine good is conjoined with Divine truth, that unless the evil were separated from the good, the evil would inflict injury on the good . . .

2397^e. As all Divine truth goes forth from Divine good, the expression 'to be sent' is properly predicated of Divine truth.

2524. Divine good and Divine truth are united with each other as in a marriage.

— . The Rational as to truth is conceived by the influx of Divine good into the affection of knowledges; but rational good, by means of the influx of Divine good into that truth. . . (Thus) the good of the Rational is from good Divine, but its truth is not from truth Divine . . .

[A.] 2554. Divine good, which is here called celestial good, is united as it were in marriage with Divine truth, which is here called spiritual truth ; and although Divine good is thus united solely with Divine truth, still it inflows into lower truths, and conjoins itself with them, but not as in marriage . . . It was in order that Divine good might thus be conjoined with them . . . that the Lord came into the world . . . 3086, Tr.

2616. See DIVINE CELESTIAL at these refs. 2622. 6417^e. 6435¹¹. 9804.

2665^e. He united the Human to the Divine by means of Divine truth, and the Divine to the Human by means of Divine good.

2719^e. Divine good is able to have a kind of receptacle in appearances.

2803. That Divine truth is the son, and Divine good the father . . .

—³. As Divine good can never be and come forth without Divine truth, nor Divine truth without Divine good, but one must be in the other mutually and reciprocally, it is manifest that the Divine marriage existed from eternity, that is, the Son in the Father, and the Father in the Son. Sig.

2813. The Lord's Divine Rational as to good could not suffer, or undergo temptations ; for no Genius or Spirit inducing temptations can approach good Divine ; but it was truth Divine bound that could be tempted . . . For some idea can be formed of truth Divine, but not of good Divine, except by those who have perception, and are celestial Angels. It was truth Divine that was no longer acknowledged when the Lord came into the world, wherefore it was this by virtue of which the Lord underwent and endured temptations. Truth Divine in the Lord is what is called 'the Son of Man ;' but good Divine in the Lord is what is called 'the Son of God' . . .

2832^s. See ALTAR at these refs. 9388. 9714². —³. 10001². 10047. 10052.

—¹⁰. 'Bethel' = good Divine.

3004^e. 'Jesus' = Divine good ; and 'Christ,' Divine truth. 3005, Ex. 5502.

3021^s. 'Thigh' = the Divine good which is of His love, from which He is also called 'Lord of lords.' 4973².

3043^s. When He adjoined Divine truth to the Divine good of the Rational . . . 3072.

3088. Exploration by Divine good. Sig.

3094^e. The light of Heaven is from the Lord's Divine good through His Divine truth ; and as it is through the Divine truth in His Human, it penetrates not only to the celestial, but also to the spiritual . . . This is the reason it treats so much in the internal sense of the Divine good and the Divine truth in the Human of the Lord.

3095. The separation of the affection of truth which was being initiated in good Divine. Sig.

3103. 'An ornament of gold' = Divine good . . . because the Lord is treated of.

3128^s. The Divine good with man inflows into his Rational, and through the Rational into His Natural, and in fact into his scientifics or Knowledges and doctrinal things there . . . and there by inaptation forms to itself truths, by means of which it then enlightens all things in the natural man . . .

3132. When He perceived Divine good and Divine truth in the power of the affection of truth. Sig. —^e, Ex.

—². The conjunction of Divine good and Divine truth in the Lord is the Divine marriage itself, from which is the heavenly marriage . . .

3141. See DIVINE RATIONAL at this ref.

3154^s. Things discordant in which good Divine is. Sig.

3192. That Divine good natural initiated it . . . to the Divine good in the Rational. Sig. and Ex.

3194. Divine good rational born from Divine truth itself. Sig. 3261.

—². 'He that liveth and seeth me' = Divine good rational, which is there called the Lord's interior man, from Divine truth. (For) in the very Divine itself there is good and truth ; the Lord as to the Divine Human went forth from Divine good, and was born from Divine truth ; or, what is the same, the being itself of the Lord was Divine good, and the manifesting itself was Divine truth ; from this was the Divine good rational of the Lord, with which He conjoined Divine truth from the Human. 3210.

3195. That Divine good rational, being born from Divine truth, was in Divine light. Sig.

—³. The Divine good itself, and the Divine truth, from which comes light, is the Lord.

—⁹. 'His face as the sun' = the Divine good.

3209. That Divine good rational perceived from the Divine Natural how the case was. Sig. and Ex.

3210². It was the veriest Divine good and truth in the Divine Human with which truth from the human was conjoined, that was signified by the Holy of Holies in the tabernacle . . .

3246². The spiritual are from the same father (as the celestial), but not from the same mother, that is, from the same Divine good, but not from the same Divine truth. Ex.

3283². The influx into the Natural must be from the Divine good of the Rational through Divine truth there.

3286. See DIVINE NATURAL at this ref.

3300². 'Wine and the blood of grapes' = the Divine good and the Divine truth of the Natural.

—³. 'Edom' = the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Natural. 3322². —³.

3301⁴. Before He put on Divine good and truth, as to the natural man also.

3313. The Divine good of the Divine Rational loved the good of truth. Sig.

3358. That Divine good and truth cannot be comprehended, thus not received, unless they are in appearances. Tr.

3387. That he could not open Divine truths themselves, for thus Divine good would not be received. Sig.

— For good from the Lord or Divine good, can only inflow into truths. . . Truths or appearances of truth are given to man, in order that Divine good may form his Intellectual, thus the man himself. . .

3390. See ISAAC at these refs. 3392. 4108.

3394². The celestial perceive Divine good and truth in the Rational. . .

—³. It treats here of the regenerate spiritual man, who, by regeneration, receives Divine good in the new will, and Divine truth in the new understanding. . .

3398². Therefore it is most carefully provided by the Lord, that Divine good and truth be not profaned.

3402. That Divine truth and Divine good are not to be opened, and are not even to be approached in faith, on account of the danger of eternal damnation if they are profaned. Sig.

3510. That the Divine good of the Divine Rational willed the affection of good. Sig.

3538. (Genuine truths of good) which were from the Divine good through the Divine truth of the Divine Rational. Sig.

— 'House,' here, = Divine good, because predicated of the Lord.

3576^e. See ESAU at these refs. 4639. 4641.

3579. 'Of the fatnesses of the earth' = from the Divine good.

3579⁴. See MANNA at this ref.

3600. That life is from Divine good. . . and from Divine truth. Sig.

3619. As Divine good is being itself, and Divine truth is life thence, the Lord is the Lord principally by virtue of Divine good.

3704. As everything relates to good and truth, the Divine of the Lord is distinguished into Divine good and Divine truth, and the Lord's Divine good is called 'the Father,' and the Divine truth 'the Son;' but the Divine of the Lord is nothing but good, yea, good itself; whereas the Divine truth is the Divine good so appearing in Heaven before the Angels. . . That the Lord as to Divine good is represented by the sun; and that the Lord as to Divine truth is represented by the light. Refs. Thus, in His own essence, the Lord is nothing but Divine good, and this as to both the Divine itself and the Divine Human. But Divine truth is not in Divine good, but from Divine good; for so the Divine good appears in Heaven. And as Divine good appears as Divine truth, for the sake of man's apprehension, the Divine of the Lord is distinguished into Divine good and Divine truth. . . This is why the Lord so often speaks of the Father as if He were distinct and as it were another than Himself, and yet elsewhere says that He is one with Himself. 3969¹⁶. 7499. 8241.

—¹¹. They who are in Divine truth are 'they who have His precepts and do them;' and they who are in Divine good, are they who 'love.' Hence it is said, 'We will come and make our abode with him,' to wit, the Divine good and the Divine truth will do so.

— Before He was glorified, the Lord was the Divine truth which is from the Divine good, whereas when He had been glorified, He was the Divine good itself as to both essences, from Whom is all Divine good and Divine truth.

3720. In the supreme sense, 'the House of God' = the Lord as to Divine good; and 'the Temple,' the Lord as to Divine truth.

3734. See BREAD at these refs. 9393^e.

3736. To return to the Divine good itself. Sig.

3813. See FLESH at these refs. 4735. 7850^c. 8409³. 9127². 10283¹⁴. E. 1082³.

—². 'Bread' = the Lord's Divine good; and 'wine,' His Divine truth.

3921. The Lord judges from justice, because from Divine truth; and He hears from mercy, because from Divine good; from justice, those who do not receive Divine good; and from mercy, those who do receive it; but still. . . in all Divine justice there is mercy, as in Divine truth there is Divine good.

3952². (Thus) the Divine marriage itself of the Lord is not between good Divine and truth Divine in His Divine Human; but between the good of the Divine Human and the Divine itself. . .

3954. The Divine good comes from the Divine love.

3956. See REWARD at this ref.

3975^e. The Lord acquired Divine goods and Divine truths by His own power. Refs.

4069. That now He would betake Himself nearer to good Divine. Sig.

4133. No longer good Divine with Him as before. Sig.

4145. A longing for conjunction with good Divine directly inflowing. Sig.

4180. The Divine good as to each essence. Sig.

— With those who are not in good, Divine truth is attended with fear, dread, and terror; but not Divine good; this terrifies no one. Ex.

—². The Holy which is from the Lord has in it Divine good and Divine truth: these continually proceed from the Lord. . . They who are in evil do not receive Divine good; for they are in no love and charity. . . But Divine truth can be received even by the evil; yet only by their external man. . .

—⁴. (Thus) the fear, dread, and terror with the evil are not from Divine good, but from Divine truth; and they exist when they do not receive Divine good, and yet receive Divine truth; also, Divine truth without good cannot penetrate towards the interiors; but merely sticks in the extremes. . .

—⁶. For Divine good cannot be received by man, or Angel; but only by the Divine Human of the Lord (Sig.); but Divine truth can be received. . . and in this Divine good can dwell, with a difference according to the reception.

4193. Appropriation from good Divine. Sig.

4234. See JACOB at these refs. 4641². 4645.

4247². Divine good cannot be applied to any vessels except genuine truths. . .

4253. Conjunction with Divine good and truth. Sig.

4341. Conjunction of Divine good with Divine truth in the Natural. Sig.

[A.] 4350. Divine good flows in through the internal man, and comes to meet the truth which is insinuated through the external man, in order that they may be conjoined. Sig.

4358. Divine good at once acknowledges the truths which it conjoins with itself. Sig.

4576. See CANAAN at this ref.

4577². After the Lord was glorified as to the Human, He became Divine good, and then from Him, as from Divine good, there proceeded and there proceeds Divine truth, which is 'the spirit of truth' which He said He would send. —^e. 4973⁵. 5307².

4606. The essentials of external Divine goods and truths. Sig.

4641². He afterwards conjoined this Human . . . with the Divine good which He had from birth.

4642². In what follows, it treats of the Divine good natural of the Lord; but its derivations are described by names; for the derivations of this good go beyond the understanding of any man, or Angel. . . Still, the derivations are represented to the Angels . . . by an influx of Divine love . . . and the influx, by a celestial flame which affects them with Divine good. 4646.

4644^e. The Lord alone was born into good, and into the Divine good itself, so far as from the Father. The Divine good in which the Lord was born, is what is here treated of; its derivations are the things which came forth in the Lord's Human, when He made it Divine; and are the things by means of which He glorified it.

4677². As the chief priests represented the Lord as to the Divine Celestial or Divine good, Aaron was clad with garments which represented the Divine truth which is from the Lord's Divine good; for Divine good is in the Lord, whereas Divine truth proceeds from Him. In like manner, when the Lord was transfigured . . . the Divine good appeared as the sun; and the Divine truth was presented by garments which appeared as the light. S.44. 48.

4763². Mourning over the Divine truth and the Divine good lost. Sig.

4931. In the proper sense, Heaven is the Divine good and Divine truth which are from the Lord.

4973⁶. As by 'Lord' is meant Divine good; and by 'King,' Divine truth, 'dominion' (in relation to the Lord) is predicated of Divine good; and 'Kingdom,' of Divine truth. Ill.

4980². See CELESTIAL at this ref.

5075. Nothing that comes forth in the universe is anything, that is, is a thing, unless it is from Divine good through Divine truth. Sig.

5076. Divine order itself is Divine truth from Divine good . . .

5145⁴. Conscience is the interior plane in which is terminated the influx of Divine good . . .

5157^e. The Voluntary in the Lord was Divine from conception, and was the Divine good itself; but the Voluntary from the mother was evil, and therefore . . . a new one was to be acquired in its place from the Divine Voluntary through the Intellectual, or from the Divine good through the Divine truth . . .

5313¹². See CELESTIAL KINGDOM at this ref.

5576⁵. When predicated of the Lord, 'meat' = the Divine good of love to save the human race.

5704². The Lord is nothing but Divine good, and Divine truth is not in the Lord, but proceeds from Him: according to this Divine truth under Divine good are ordained all the Societies in the Heavens.

5920². The influx of Divine good and truth from the Lord progresses by continual mediations, and thus successions . . .

6013^e. To the end that man may be a recipient of Divine good from the Lord in particular, as Heaven is in general . . .

6032. See HEAT at these refs. 7381⁴. 8329^e. 9682².

6135⁵. 'The temple of His body' = Divine truth from Divine good, 6148³. See PRIEST at these refs. —⁴. —⁵. 8625. 8770. 9809.

6179. See MARRIAGE at this ref.

6280². As to His essence, the Lord is not Divine truth; for this is from Him as light is from the sun; but He is the Divine good itself, one with Jehovah.

6367⁴. The omnipotence of Divine truth from Divine good. Sig.

6378. That His Intellectual is Divine good from His Divine love. Sig.

—². In the supreme sense, 'grapes' = the Lord's Divine good, which is with those who are in His Spiritual Kingdom.

6380^e. His whole Human is the Divine good of the Divine love.

6685. In its first origin, the Spiritual is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, which truth has Divine good, in it, because Divine truth goes forth from the Lord's Divine Human, which is Divine good. This Divine truth, in which is Divine good, is the Spiritual itself in its own origin, and is the very life which fills Heaven, yea, the universe. Where there is a subject, there it flows in; but it is varied in the subjects according to their form . . .

6716². When the Lord was in the world, He caused His Human to be Divine truth; but afterwards, when He was fully glorified, He caused it to be Divine good, thus one with Jehovah. 6753^e. 6864.

6788. That which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human is Divine truth from Divine good.

6830. ('Horeb') = the Divine good of love shining forth through the truth which is of the Divine law.

6832⁵. The Divine good of the Lord's Divine love was here also seen as 'a flame of fire.'

—⁷. In order that the Divine good itself might be represented, it was commanded that there should be perpetual fire upon the altar.

6834. 'The bush was not consumed' = Divine truth united to Divine good in the Natural. Ex.

—². The Divine good of the Divine love is the solar fire itself in the other life . . .

6864. The difference between Divine truth and Divine good is such as is that between the light from the sun and the fire in the sun.

6905^e. See JEHOVAH at these refs. 7311. 7499. 7590. 8241. 8765. 8988^s. 10646. S.88.

6993. After the Lord became Jehovah, that is, Divine good, even as to the Human, which was after the resurrection, He was no longer Divine truth, but this proceeded from His Divine good. 8127^e. 8573^s. 9670^a.

6997^e. In its inmost bosom, the Word has stored up in it Divine truth itself, which proceeds immediately from the Lord, thus also the Divine good, that is, the Lord Himself.

6998. See AARON at these refs. 9670^s. 9806. 9946. 9952. 9959^e. 10067. 10082. 10118. 10198. 10239.

7014^e. As the Lord thus successively put on the Divine, He first made Himself truth from the Divine, afterwards Divine truth, and at last Divine good. These were the degrees of the Lord's glorification which are here described in the internal sense.

7167^e. The Divine law is truth Divine proceeding from the Lord; and that which proceeds from the Lord is Divine good and truth; and Divine good is love and charity, and Divine truth is faith.

7206. The Word is Divine truth proceeding from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Human.

7268. The Divine which is above the Heavens is Divine good, but the Divine in the Heavens is Divine truth; for from the Divine good there proceeds Divine truth, and makes Heaven, and disposes it . . . 7873^e. 8328^s.

7273^s. See CONDEMN—dummare—at this ref.

7343. Divine truth flows in with all, but is varied with everyone according to his state . . . Hence the infernals turn it into falsities, just as they turn Divine good into evil . . .

7679. In its origin, the good of love and charity, being Divine, is most gentle . . . but when it falls down to the Hells, it becomes ungentle and rough, being turned so by them; therefore the influx and presence of this Divine good not only torments, but even devastates them. 8823^s.

7796^s. See BE at these refs. 8267^s.

7873^e. See DIVINE ITSELF at these refs. 10052^e. 10067^s. 10125^s.

8215^s. 'The Ancient of Days' = the Lord as to Divine good. . . His 'garment' = truth Divine in the external form; 'the hair of his head' = good Divine in the external form.

8309^e. 'The sanctuary' = where there is Divine truth in which is Divine good.

8470^e. The universal that forms and ordains each and all things, is the Divine good of Divine love from the Lord.

8472^s. The Divine good which proceeds from the Lord is communicated to all in Heaven universally and singularly, but everywhere according to the power of receiving . . .

8480. The abuse of good Divine. Sig.

8641. That truths are ordered by good Divine . . . and the good Divine from which is the ordination, is represented by 'Jethro.' 8643.

8644. As in what follows it treats of the conjunction of Divine good with Divine truth, in order that from it there may be effected ordination with the man of the Church, it is to be known, that between Divine good and Divine truth there is this difference, that Divine good is in the Lord and Divine truth is from the Lord; they are circumstanced as is the fire of the sun and the light thence derived; fire is in the sun, and light is from the sun: in the latter there is not fire, but heat . . . In the Sun which is the Lord there is Divine fire, which is the Divine good of the Divine love; from that Sun there is Divine light, which is Divine truth from Divine good; in this Divine truth there is also Divine good, but not such as there is in the Sun; it is accommodated to reception in Heaven . . . How the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love is accommodated to reception cannot be known to anyone, not even the Angels; because the accommodation is that of the infinite to the finite . . . That the Sun is the Divine good of His Divine love, and the light thence is Divine good, from which is intelligence. Refs.

8647. See JETHRO at these refs. 8657. 8661. 8662. 8672, etc.

—. 'Zipporah the wife of Moses' = good Divine (conjoined with truth Divine).

8666. It treats in this verse of the union of Divine good with truth Divine; and all union is first effected by the influx of the one into the other, and consequent perception; then by application, and also by immission; and afterwards by conjunction.

8682. The appropriation of these things from Divine good. Sig.

8724. The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord does nothing from itself; but from the Divine good, which is the Divine itself; for Divine good is being, but Divine truth is the manifesting therefrom . . . When the Lord was in the world, He was Divine truth, and then the Divine good in Him was 'the Father'; but when He was glorified (and went out of the world), He became Divine good even as to the Human; and the Divine truth which then proceeds from Him is called 'the Comforter' or 'the spirit of truth.' 8861. 10258^a. 10730. Ath. 79, Ex.

8753^s. See SINAI at these refs. 8805^s. 8916.

8758. Arrangement with those of the Spiritual Church by Divine celestial good. Sig. . . By Divine celestial good is meant the Divine good in Heaven; for good Divine in itself is far above Heaven.

8760^s. The Divine itself is far above the Heavens, not only the Divine good itself, but also the Divine truth itself which proceeds immediately from Divine good . . . The Divine good itself in itself is an infinite flame of ardour, that is, of love . . . The light, too, from the flame of the Divine love, which is Divine truth, if it were to flow in from its own fiery splendour without remission, would blind all who are in Heaven. From this may be evident what the difference is between the Divine good and Divine truth above the Heavens, and the Divine good and Divine truth in the Heavens.

[A.] 8761. The union of the Divine good in Heaven with the Divine truth there. Sig.

— Whether you say the Divine good in Heaven, or Heaven, is the same, because Heaven comes forth from it. . . There, Divine good united to Divine truth is all in all, thus the life or soul of Heaven.

8764⁴. 'The wings covering their bodies' = that the Divine truth covers the Divine good from which it proceeds; for Divine good is flame, and Divine truth is the light thence. . . The flame itself does not appear in Heaven, but only the light. . .

8770². See KINGDOM at this ref.

—³. In the Spiritual Kingdom there reigns Divine truth; in the Celestial Kingdom, Divine good. 10090². 10151.

8797. 'Mount,' here, = the Divine good of the Divine love in the inmost Heaven.

8875. For they who are in the opposite perceive Divine truth as falsity, and Divine good as evil. . . They rush into the sphere where Divine truth and Divine good are, with the endeavour to destroy those who are there, and then the Divine truth of the Divine good operates with them, and causes them to feel torments like those of Hell.

8897². In the supreme sense, 'mother' = the Lord as to Divine truth, thus His Kingdom; for the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord makes Heaven; (because) the Lord as to Divine good is the Sun in the other life, and as to Divine truth is light. . . Divine good is in Divine truth, as the heat of the sun is in the light in spring and summer time.

8918. Distance from the veriest good which proceeds from the Divine causes the appearance of distance in Heaven.

9050⁵. 'Heart' is said from the Divine good which is of love or mercy; and 'soul' from the Divine truth which is of faith with man.

9144¹¹. See JUDAH at this ref.

9167². Hence, 'Lord' = the Lord as to Divine good; and 'God,' 'King,' and 'Master,' the Lord as to Divine truth. III.

9262². Therefore, the good of innocence is good Divine itself from the Lord with man. . .

9264. See DENY at this ref.

9473³. The internal good in the good of love to the Lord or in the good of innocence, is the good Divine itself proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, thus is the Lord Himself; this good must be in every good for it to be good.

9491. 'Shittim wood' = the good itself proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human.

9493. 'Four rings of gold' = Divine truth conjoined with Divine good.

9498⁸. The heat proceeding from the Lord as a Sun is the Divine good of His Divine love accommodated to the reception of the Angels; and the light proceeding from the Lord as a Sun is the Divine truth of His Divine good; both, however, are called the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. 10106². 10809. H. 117.

9499. The Divine good conjoined with the Divine truth, which is the ultimate, terminant, concludent, and containant of Heaven, is like the atmosphere. . . which holds together the whole surface of the body. . .

9533. The termination of the sphere of good from the Lord's Divine good. Sig. 9535.

9534. The sphere of Divine good encompasses Heaven. . . and thus protects. (Refs.) This Divine sphere extends also into the Hells, and guards them also; but with this difference, that the Divine sphere which encompasses and protects Heaven is the sphere of Divine truth conjoined with Divine good; but that which guards Hell is the sphere of Divine truth separated from Divine good. The reason why this sphere is in Hell, is that all who are there reject Divine good, thus the Lord's mercy. Such a sphere reigns in Hell in the external form; yet a sphere of Divine truth conjoined with Divine good, in the internal form. . . (Thus) the sphere of Divine good in the external form, ceases where Heaven ceases; and the sphere of Divine truth separated from Divine good, begins where Hell begins; and in the interspace is the conjunction. Sig.

9537. Firmness is from the conjunction of Divine truth with Divine good in ultimates. Sig.

9569. The Divine good of the Divine love is what sanctifies.

9571. (The light of the Spiritual Heaven) from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

9636⁶. The good of merit is the Divine good itself which constitutes the Heavens and supports them.

9639. The Divine good proceeding from the Lord is that which conjoins all in Heaven; for that which reigns universally in Divine truths is Divine good, and that conjoins which reigns universally.

9667⁶. The Lord's Divine love is Divine good; for all good is of love. . .

9670⁴. Divine good is the holy of holies.

—^e. The veil between the holy place and the holy of holies = the medium which unites the Divine truth and Divine good in the Lord.

9684². Divine good becomes spiritual good through the reception of Divine truth, as of light from the moon.

9727⁶. The good which is here signified (by the brass), is the Divine good of His Divine love: all things of the Lord's Divine Human are from that good.

9735. The power of the sphere of Divine good. Sig.

9809. There is Divine good, and there is Divine truth; Divine good is in the Lord, thus is His being, which in the Word is called 'Jehovah;' but Divine truth is from the Lord, thus is the manifesting from that being; this in the Word is meant by 'God;' and as that which comes forth from Him is also Himself, the Lord is also Divine truth, which is His Divine in the Heavens. . . The celestial Angels are receptions of the Divine good which is from Him; and the spiritual Angels of the Divine truth which is thence derived. . .

—⁴. Conception from the Divine good itself, from which he had Divine truth. Sig.

9812². Divine good celestial, which makes the Third Heaven, is the good of love to the Lord; Divine good spiritual, which makes the Second Heaven, is the good of charity towards the neighbour; and Divine good natural, which makes the First Heaven, is the good of faith and of obedience. To Divine good natural pertains also civil good . . . and also moral good . . . These three goods follow in order, as end, cause, and effect . . .

9818²². 'The Angel of faces'=the Lord as to Divine good. . . 'To make the Angels spirits'=receptions of Divine truth; 'to make them a flaming fire'=receptions of Divine good or Divine love.

9877². The Divine good proceeding from the Lord creates this heavenly form.

9882. The sphere of Divine good through which there is conjunction at the higher part of Heaven. Sig.

9883^e. The conjunction of the sphere of Divine good in the extremes of Heaven. Sig.

9896. The conjunction and preservation of all things of Heaven by means of the sphere of Divine good in the externals of the Spiritual Kingdom. Sig.

9930. Enlightenment from the Lord's Divine good. Sig.

—². A crown is a representative of Divine good. Ex.

—³. Government from Divine good was represented by a crown; and government from Divine truth, by a sceptre.

—⁵. After this last temptation (of the cross) the Lord put on Divine good; and thus united His Divine Human to the Divine itself which was in Him.

9954¹¹. When the Lord was in the world, He was Divine truth itself as to the Human, and He was Divine good itself as to the very being of His life . . . The anointing of the Lord as to the Divine Human was effected by means of the Divine good itself of the Divine love . . .

10001. 'The door of the Tent'=the conjunction of Divine good and Divine truth from the Lord in Heaven. Ex.

10010. See ANOINT at these refs. 10011. 10066. 10100. 10125. 10258³.

10033⁸. By (the Holy Supper) is signified the appropriation of Divine good and Divine truth from Him, (which) can only exist with those who acknowledge the Divine of the Lord . . .

10047². The Glorification of the Lord's Human was effected by the union of Divine truth with Divine good: the Divine good, which is Jehovah, was in the Lord as the soul from the father is in man . . . 10125².

—⁴. The sprinkling of the blood upon the altar round about, represented the union of Divine truth and Divine good in every way, in both the internal and the external man; and the sprinkling of the blood at the foundation of the altar, represented the union of Divine truth and Divine good in the external man only. 10064.

10053. The sacrifices=the casting out of evils and falsities from His human from the mother, and the implantation of Divine truth from the Divine good which was in Him; and the burnt-offerings=the union of Divine truth with Divine good, which union is what is meant by the Glorification; for, while He was in the world, the Lord made His Human Divine truth, and, successively also, through union with the Divine good which was in Him, and which was the being of His life, He made His Human Divine good, thus one with Jehovah.

10057. The following state, which is one of Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good in the Heavens. Sig.

—⁵. (Thus) the first state of His Glorification was to make His Human Divine truth, and to unite it with the Divine good which was in Him; and the second state was to act from Divine good through Divine truth; for Heaven is built and the Church is built by means of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good. 10060. 10076. —⁵.

10064. When Divine good is mentioned, Divine love is also understood; for all good is of love . . .

10068. The reciprocal union of the Divine good and Divine truth from the Lord's Divine Human in the lower Heavens. Sig.

10084. Union with the Divine good of the Divine love. Sig.

10153. The presence and influx of the Lord through Divine good in Heaven and the Church. Sig.

10188. 'Two rings of gold'=the sphere of Divine good, through which there is conjunction and preservation.

—². The sphere of Divine good fills the universal Heaven, and also extends itself into Hell. Ex.

10190^e. Thus the sphere of Divine good in the midst is like an axis, and the sphere of Divine truth thence proceeding is on both sides, right and left.

10196². As to the Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' and as to the Divine Human which is called 'the Son,' the Lord is Divine love, thus Divine good itself; but as to Heaven, which is below the Lord as a Sun, the Lord is Divine truth; but this Divine truth has in it Divine good accommodated to the reception of Angels and Spirits; this Divine is what is called 'the spirit of Jehovah,' and 'the Holy.' The reason this is called Divine truth, and not Divine good, is that Angels and Spirits are created, and therefore are receptions of Divine truth proceeding from Divine good . . . their understanding is formed to receive Divine truth, and their will, to receive Divine good; the understanding is of service to them for reception, and thus for perception.

10252. See OIL at these refs. 10261. 10283.

10261. It is called Divine celestial good of the Lord, because all good in the Heavens which is essentially good, is from the Divine of the Lord. But it is to be known, that in itself the Lord's Divine good is only one; for it is infinite . . . The reason it is distinguished into celestial and spiritual, is owing to its reception by Angels . . . and men: as received by Angels and men of the Celestial Kingdom, it is called Divine good celestial; and as received by Angels and men of the Spiritual Kingdom, it is called Divine good spiritual.

—^e. 'The Mount of Olives'=the Divine good of the Divine love; for from this He fought and conquered.

[A.] 10262. The Lord's Divine good celestial is the Conjective itself of all things, because it is the being itself of the life of all things; for it vivifies all things by means of the Divine truth proceeding from that Divine good . . .

10285. Whether you say, the Divine good of the Divine love, or the Divine Human, it is the same.

10528°. He is called 'the Lord' from Divine good; and 'Angel' from Divine truth.

10579°. 'The faces of Jehovah' . . . in the universal sense = Divine truth; for in Divine truth is all good; and, with man and Angel, there is Divine good in Divine truth; and without the latter, there is not the former . . .

10617°. As to the Divine itself and as to the Divine Human, the Lord is Divine good; and as to the Divine proceeding He is Divine truth.

H. 9°. From the Lord nothing proceeds but Divine good and Divine truth, and these affect everyone according to the reception . . .

13°. The Divine good, which is compared to heat, is the good of love with the Angels; and the Divine truth, which is compared to light, is that by which and from which is the good of love.

33. The interiors are opened by the reception of Divine good and Divine truth . . .

107. The Divine good which proceeds from the Lord makes Divine order . . .

133. There are two things which proceed from the Lord as a Sun, Divine truth and Divine good; Divine truth is presented in the Heavens as light, and Divine good as heat; but Divine truth and Divine good are so united that they are not two, but one; yet with the Angels they are separated; for there are Angels who receive Divine good more than Divine truth; and there are those who receive Divine truth more than Divine good; they who receive Divine good more, are in the Celestial Kingdom; they who receive Divine truth more, are in the Spiritual Kingdom; the most perfect Angels are those who receive both in a like degree. Life 32. E. 22. 204⁴. 448⁵. 1042³. 1073.

139. The Divine good and the Divine truth which are in the Heavens from the Lord as a Sun, are not in the Lord, but from the Lord; in the Lord there is only Divine love . . .

232. The Angels are receptions of Divine truth in proportion as they are receptions of Divine good . . .

282. See INNOCENCE at this ref.

370. See MARRIAGE LOVE at these refs. 374.

371. From the Divine love proceeds Divine good; and Divine good is received by Angels and men in Divine truths . . .

539. The Divine itself in Heaven is Divine good and Divine truth.

N. 304. That the Lord united Divine truth with Divine good, thus His Human with the Divine itself. Refs.

— That when the Lord went out of the world, He made His Human Divine good. Refs.

S. 19. From the Lord there proceed Divine good and Divine truth; Divine good from His Divine love, and Divine truth from His Divine wisdom; and both are in the Word; for the Word is the Divine proceeding.

80. The things in the spiritual sense relate to Divine truth; and those in the celestial, to Divine good.

P. 172⁴. How the Lord is the Divine truth of the Divine good. Ex.

R. 17. 'He is the First-begotten from the dead' = that He is Divine good itself.

46. The Divine proceeding and at the same time conjoining, which is Divine good. Sig. E. 65.

49. 'His feet like fine brass burning in a furnace' = the Divine good natural. 126.

170. That those are to be received who are in Divine good and in Divine truths from the Lord, thus who have the life of Heaven in them. Sig.

193°. When the Lord was in the world, He made His Human Divine truth, which also is the Word; and when He went out of the world, He fully united Divine truth to Divine good which was in Him from conception; for the Lord . . . made His Human Divine as He makes man spiritual; He first implants in him truths from the Word, and afterwards unites them to good . . . E. 419⁵. 594².

254. Whether it is said Divine good and Divine truth, or Divine love and Divine wisdom, it is the same . . .

266. That the Lord conquered the Hells, and reduced all things into order by means of Divine good united to Divine truth in His Human. Sig. E. 310.

288. See DIVINE HUMAN at these refs. E. 293.

689. The Divine good of the Word confirming this Divine truth. Sig.

739. That the Word is Divine good itself, and that it is Divine truth . . . In its celestial sense it is Divine good; and in its spiritual sense it is Divine truth. Sig. — e.

821. The Lord as to the Word, that He is Divine good and Divine truth itself; from both of which He effects judgment. Sig.

854². For Divine good and Divine truth cannot be appropriated to any Angel or man so as to be his, but only so as to appear as if they were his . . .

882°. 'The temple' = the Lord's Divine Human as to Divine truth or Divine wisdom; and 'the tabernacle,' as to Divine good or Divine love.

M. 86. The preservation of the universe is nothing but the perpetual influx of Divine good and Divine truth into the forms created by them.

115³. In the Lord the Creator there are Divine good and Divine truth in their own substance itself; the being of His substance is Divine good, and the manifesting of His substance is Divine truth; in Him also they are in their very union; for in Him they make infinitely one; and as these two are one in the Creator Himself, they are also one in each and all things created by Him . . .

T. 85. That Jehovah God descended as Divine truth, which is the Word, and yet did not separate Divine good. Gen.art.

86. To subjugate the Hells, etc., Divine good does not avail, but Divine truth from Divine good: regarded in itself, Divine good is like the round hilt of a sword . . . but Divine truth from Divine good is like a sharp sword . . .

686. They who have been regenerated by . . . the Divine truth of faith, are distinguished in the Heavens from those which have been regenerated by . . . the Divine good of love. (The former) go in white garments of fine linen, and are called spiritual Angels; whereas (the latter) go in crimson garments, and are called celestial Angels. Sig.

E. 30. The Lord in Heaven is Divine truth united to Divine good.

146. That which proceeds from the Lord is Divine good united to Divine truth: both are of love, and also are the Lord in Heaven.

205. The Lord has all power . . . from Divine good through Divine truth . . . Sig.

254³. Heaven is Heaven from the Divine which proceeds from the Lord; and this Divine is called Divine truth; but it is Divine good united to Divine truth. . . The Divine love appears to the Angels as the solar fire: from Him as a Sun proceed light and heat; the light . . . is Divine truth, and the heat . . . is Divine good; this latter, namely, Divine good, is meant by 'the Father in the Heavens.' 297.

272. All truths disposed into order by Divine good. Sig.

274. See DIVINE LOVE at these refs. D.Wis.ix.

279. The appearance in ultimates of Divine good as to protection. Sig.

288⁷. From the Lord proceeds Divine good united to Divine truth; but in Heaven and the Church . . . Divine truth is received, and is united to Divine good.

—¹. 'The glory of Lebanon'=the Divine truth; 'the honour of Carmel and Sharon'=the Divine good, which they receive.

290. In this and the following verses, it treats of the reception of Divine truth and Divine good by the Angels of Heaven and the men of the Church . . . It is to be known, that the reception of Divine truth and Divine good . . . exists only with those who are in truth from good. Ex.

295. That they are through Divine good, and that they come forth through Divine truth. Sig.

297. Divine good judges no one, but Divine truth . . . Still, the Lord Himself does not judge anyone from the Divine truth which proceeds from Him; for this is united to Divine good, so that they are one; but the man Spirit judges himself; for it is the Divine truth received by him which judges him. 907³.

298. All intelligence and wisdom are from Divine good through Divine truth.

339. 'Honour and glory'=Divine good and Divine truth.

340¹¹. The Divine love from which the Lord flows in, is meant by 'The faces of Jehovah;' the Divine truth with which He flows in, is meant by, 'May Jehovah make His face shine upon thee;' and the Divine good with which He flows in, is meant by, 'May Jehovah lift up His faces upon thee.' Ex.

343. 'He that sat upon the throne'=the Divine good proceeding; and 'the Lamb'=the Divine truth proceeding.

349⁵. The Divine good which proceeds from the Lord is the source of order; and Divine truths are the laws of order.

374¹⁴. 'The Holy Spirit'=the Divine truth proceeding from Him; and 'fire'=the Divine good of His Divine love.

409⁶. 'Servants'=those who receive Divine truth, and those who teach it; for Divine truth serves, and thereby effects Divine good; and 'the chosen'=those who receive Divine good, and lead.

412. Lest they should suffer direful things from the influx of Divine good united to Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. Sig.

418². Into the eastern and western quarters the Lord flows in with Divine good more strongly than with Divine truth; and into the southern and northern quarters with Divine truth more strongly than with Divine good . . .

434⁶. The light of Heaven is Divine good in form.

458². Divine good united to Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, is received in the Third Heaven as the Divine Providence; in the Second Heaven, as Divine wisdom; and in the First Heaven, as Divine intelligence.

466. The Divine good which proceeds from the Lord, in the three Heavens. Sig.

— There are two things which proceed from the Lord, from which are all things in the Heavens and earths, namely, Divine truth and Divine good; Divine truth is the source of all intelligence and wisdom with Angels and men; and Divine good is the source of all charity and love with them; these two proceed united from the Lord; thus in their very origin they are one; but with the Angels and men who receive, they are two, because there are two receptacles of life with them, which are called the understanding and the will; the understanding is the receptacle of Divine truth, and the will is the receptacle of Divine good . . . and, in proportion as these two, Divine truth and Divine good . . . are one with Angels and men, they are in conjunction with the Lord; but in proportion as they are not one, they are not in conjunction.

479. The influx of Divine good into the truths with them. Sig.

—^c. Divine good can only flow into truths . . .

—^c. They in whom truths have been implanted by the Lord through temptations, are constantly kept in them by the influx of Divine good into them. Sig.

684. That then Divine good and Divine truth is received. Sig.

[E.] 701^o. 'Levi' = the Lord as to Divine good . . .

710³¹. In the Word, which is Divine truth, there is everywhere the marriage of Divine good and Divine truth; and Divine good united to Divine truth is the Divine proceeding from the Lord, which is called 'the Holy Spirit.'

780⁶. That the Divine good proceeding from the Lord's Divine love conjoins those in Heaven and the Church who are in love to Him; and that the Divine truth proceeding from Him conjoins those who are in love towards the neighbour. Sig.

926². This light is Divine wisdom, and is called Divine truth; and this heat is Divine love, and is called Divine good. 944². 997². 1076². 1093⁴. 1124³. 1141².

944². The heat proceeding, which is Divine good, is Divine love in its extension; and the light proceeding, which is Divine truth, is the modification or interior action in the substances which are outside of Him . . . which are the spiritual atmospheres.

907. The Divine good girded for judgment. Sig.

—². Divine good does not judge anyone; but Divine truth. The reason is, that Divine good loves all, and draws to Heaven in so far as man follows it; but Divine truth separated from good condemns all, and judges to Hell. Lest, therefore, all should be judged and condemned to Hell, Divine good moderates and elevates to Heaven as far as possible; therefore there was 'a golden crown upon the head,' by which is signified Divine good girded for judgment, namely, to moderate it.

984². As Divine good and Divine truth proceed united from the Lord, they must be united in an Angel of Heaven and a man of the Church.

997². The heat, which is Divine good, does not flow in with Angel and man as does the light which is Divine truth; because man is born in evils of every kind, and evils obstruct; wherefore these are first to be removed, before the heat, which is Divine good, can flow in . . . In proportion, therefore, as man thus receives Divine good, he comes into the light of understanding Divine truth; for the way of Divine truth into the man who is being reformed, is through the good of the will . . . But when man is not in Divine good, but is in evil, he nevertheless is in the capacity of . . . understanding Divine truth, but only so far as he is in a separated state . . . But in this state the man is not being reformed, because . . . Divine truth is not being implanted. But . . . in a state not separated, man does not . . . understand Divine truth, unless, as to the affection of the will, he is at the same time in Divine good . . .

1026³. In these ten commandments are contained all things of Divine good and all things of Divine truth; and in them there is also the conjunction of these . . . Divine good is of love to the Lord, and Divine truth is of love towards the neighbour; for when man lives according to Divine truth, that is, loves the neighbour, the Lord flows in with Divine good, and conjoins Himself.

1069². As to His being, Jehovah is Divine love; and as to His manifesting, He is Divine good united to Divine truth.

1077². The Divine proceeding from the Lord is Divine good and Divine truth reciprocally united.

—³. From this reciprocal union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord, proceeds the reciprocal union of the Divine good and Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine love.

Ath. 156. The Divine good of the Divine love . . . was in Him from conception, from which He made His Human Divine truth while he was in the world, thus, such as is Heaven; but afterwards it successively became the Divine good of the Divine love through union with the Father . . .

Can. Redeemer ii. 6. Divine good (could not fight against the Hells, or be tempted, or suffer). vi. 5.

iv. 6. Divine good made His soul, and Divine truth, His body. 'The Holy Spirit,' and 'the power of the Highest' = Divine truth and Divine good; the latter making the soul, and the former, the body.

Divine Human. Divinum Humanum.

Divine and Human. Divinum et Humanum.

See SON OF GOD, and under HUMAN, ISAAC, and TRINITY.

A. 32^e. The inmost things are signified by the Lord's 'face' (at the Transfiguration), and the things which thence proceed, by His 'garments'; thus His Divine by 'the sun' or love; and His Human by 'the light' or wisdom from love.

1402. That the Lord's Human essence might be conjoined with the Divine one. Tr.

1414^e. The Lord's Human was made Divine. With Him alone was there an infinitely perfect correspondence of all things of the body with the Divine; hence there was a union of bodily things with Divine celestial ones; and of sensuous ones with Divine spiritual ones. Thus is He the perfect Man, and the only Man.

1426. Here commence the progressions of the Human essence to the Divine one. 1440.

1432. All things come forth and subsist from the Lord, and from the union, as it were in marriage, of His Human essence with the Divine one . . .

1461^e. The Human essence was only an addition to His Divine one, which was from eternity.

1469^e. For the Lord conjoined the Divine essence with the Human one, in order that His Human things might also become Divine.

1493^e. There is here described the order in which the Lord advanced to intelligence, and thus to wisdom; so that He might become wisdom itself, even as to the Human essence, as He already was as to the Divine one.

1502³. How the Lord's Human essence was conjoined with His Divine one, or, what is the same, how the Lord became Jehovah as to His Human essence also; and that He was inaugurated from childhood. Tr.

1535. It treats in this chapter of the external man with the Lord, which was to be conjoined with His internal man. The external man is the Human essence; the internal man is the Divine one: the former is represented by 'Lot;' the latter by 'Abram.' 1584^e. 1587.

1539. A promise that when . . . His Human essence was conjoined with the Divine one, all power should be given Him. Tr.

1557^e. As the Lord would conjoin Human things to Divine ones, He advanced according to order, and now first comes to that celestial state, such as He had when a child, in which state there are present worldly things; thence progressing into a state still more celestial; and at last into the celestial state of infancy, in which He fully conjoined the Human essence with the Divine one.

1568^e. Before He conquered evil, and thus became celestial, Divine, and Jehovah, as to the Human essence also. Des.

1573⁷. Otherwise . . . the Lord could have assumed the Human essence without birth, as He had already sometimes done . . . But He came into the world in order that He might put on evil, and then fight against and conquer it; and thus conjoin in Himself the Divine essence with the Human one.

1607². By 'the Son of Man' is meant His Human essence, which, when united to the Divine one, was also Jehovah . . . 1729².

1616². (Thus) His external man or Human essence was conjoined with the Divine essence by degrees, according to the multiplication and fructification of Knowledges . . .

1661⁵. For it was according to Divine order that His Human essence should be introduced to the Divine essence and united to it by means of continual combats and victories. . . His Divine essence thus introduced the Human one to conquer by its own power. 1737.

1738^o. These remains . . . are the celestial things of love which the Lord acquired by the continual combats and victories through which He was continually united to the Divine essence, until His Human essence was in like manner made love, or the being of life, that is, Jehovah. 1906⁴.

1864^e. This covenant (made with Abram) . . . was a representative of the conjunction of the Lord's Human essence with His Divine one, that is, with Jehovah.

1893^e. As, by His own power, He made Divine all the Human things that were with Him; so did He also the Rational.

1894^e. Wherefore, by being born like any other man, the Lord deigned to assume the Human nature and to make it Divine . . .

1919⁴. After the Lord's Human essence had been united to His Divine one . . . the Lord was above that which is called perception . . .

1990². The Infinite . . . can only be manifested through the Divine Human.

2003. The union of the Divine essence with the Human one. Sig.

2004. The union of the Human essence with the Divine one. Sig.

— . Thus do the Angels perceive these words, and at the same time, the reciprocal union of the Lord's Divine essence with the Human one, and of the Human one with the Divine one. Ex. and Sig. —³.

—⁴. In these words are the same arcana, namely, concerning the union of good with truth, and of truth with good, or, what is the same, of the Lord's Divine essence with the Human one, and of the Human one with the Divine one. 2011.

2016². In this verse, it treats of the Lord's Human essence to be united to the Divine one: and that everything good and true would thus come to man from the Divine essence through His Human one, is a Divine arcana which few believe . . . for they suppose that Divine good could reach man without the Human of the Lord united to the Divine; but . . . there never could have been any influx of the Divine into the Rational of man's mind, except through the Human which the Lord united in Himself to the Divine: through His Human the communication is effected; for thus the Supreme Divine could come to man. . . This, then, is what is here said,—that from Him, to wit, from the Human united to the Divine, is everything good and true.

2021. That a more distinct idea may be had of the union of the Lord's Divine essence with the Human one . . . it is allowable to call it union (not conjunction); for there is union of the Lord's Divine essence with His Human one; but there is conjunction of the Lord with the human race . . . For His Human essence was also made life . . .

2025⁵. From the good, which is of Jehovah, He united the Divine essence to the Human one; and from the truth, He united the Human essence to the Divine one . . . Nay, His Human was left to itself, in order that He might fight from Himself against all the Hells . . .

2033². The union of the Lord's Human essence with His Divine one was not effected at once; but through the whole course of His life . . .

2034⁵. That conjunction of the Infinite or Supreme Divine with the human race was effected through the Human of the Lord made Divine . . .

—⁸. When the Human was made Divine, and the Divine Human, in the Lord, then was effected the influx of the Infinite or Supreme Divine with man . . .

2083². From His own power, the Lord made Divine all that was Human with Him; thus not only the Rational, but also the interior and exterior Sensuous, thus the very body; so He united the Human to the Divine. . . (For) He alone rose from the dead as to the body; and He sits at the right hand of Divine power, both as to all the Divine, and as to all the Human . . .

2095. When the Rational of the Lord's Human essence would be united to the Divine one; and that truth conjoined with good would effect this. Sig.

2102². It has treated in the whole of this chapter of the union of the Lord's Divine essence with His Human one; and of the conjunction of the Lord with man through His Human essence made Divine . . . For the union of the Divine essence with the Human one in the Lord has been effected to the end that the Divine might be conjoined with man. But the conjunction of the Divine with man cannot be effected, unless man is purified from these loves. As soon, however, as he is thus purified, the Divine Human of the Lord flows in, and thus conjoins man to itself.

[A.] 2106. The state and time before the union of the Lord's Divine essence with His Human one. Sig.

2112. That when the Lord conjoined His Human essence with His Divine one, He also conjoined with Himself, and saved, the rest who become rational from truth. Sig.

—^c. 'To be circumcised,' when predicated of the Lord, = to be glorified, thus to put off the Human, and to put on the Divine.

2136. The state of the Lord's perception in the Human, and of communication at that time with the Divine, before the perfect union of His Human essence with the Divine one. Tr.

2137. That He perceived the Divine, which manifested itself before His Human; at which He rejoiced; and that He wanted the Divine to approach nearer to His Human, by putting on something natural; and His Human nearer to the Divine, by putting on the Celestial. . . Hence the conformation and communication of the Divine with the Human, and of the Human with the Divine. Tr.

2138. On the Lord's perception in that state concerning the Rational with Him, that it should put off the Human, and become Divine. Tr.

2149. 'Three men standing over him'=the Divine itself, the Human Divine, and the Holy proceeding. —^c.

2159. 'Servant'=the Human with the Lord before it was made Divine; (for) the Human with the Lord was nothing else before He put it off and made it Divine. The Human with Him was from the mother, thus infirm . . .

—². When the Lord had put off this human, he put on the Divine Human; from which He called Himself 'the Son of Man' . . . and also 'the Son of God'; and by 'the Son of Man' He signified the truth itself; and by 'the Son of God' the good itself, which belonged to His Human essence when made Divine . . .

2213. That then the Lord would put off the Human Rational, and would put on the Divine Rational. Sig.

— . When Abraham entered his hundredth year, by which year is signified the union of the Lord's Human with the Divine, and of the Divine with the Human.

2245^o. The thought was from the Human conjoined with the Divine . . . But the perception from which came the thought, was from the Divine . . . And when the Human had been conjoined with the Divine, the proceeding was together [therewith].

2249. The Lord's thought from the Human which adjoined itself more nearly to the Divine. Sig.

— . That so much should be said of the state of the conjunction of the Lord's Human with His Divine . . . is a matter of the greatest importance . . . For thus are the Angels confirmed more and more concerning the union of the Lord's Human essence with the Divine one . . .

—⁴. Therefore, in order to dispel such (ideas about the Lord), it treats so much in this chapter, in the internal sense, of the conjunction of the Lord's Human with His Divine . . .

2265². Relatively to the Divine, the Human is as 'dust and ashes' . . . By the Human, here, is not meant the Divine Human, but the Human which He derived from the mother, and which He completely expelled, and in its place put on the Divine Human.

2288². His state of humiliation existed when He was in the Human which He derived hereditarily from the mother; His state of glorification, when in the Divine which He had from Jehovah His Father; the former state, to wit, the Human from the mother, the Lord completely put off; and put on the Divine Human, when He passed out of the world, and returned to the Divine itself in which He was from eternity; together with the Human made Divine; from both of which is the Holy which fills the universal Heaven. Thus, from the Divine itself and the Divine Human, through the Holy proceeding, He rules the universe.

2299. They represented the Lord rising from the sepulchre, and at the same time the union of His Human with the Divine. H.335. M.412.

2319. 'Two Angels'=the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord, to which appertains judgment. 2320. 2321, Ex. 2397, Ex.

2320. 'The Son'=the Divine Human. 2628. 2658.

2326². That those who are in the good of charity within the Church acknowledge the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord; but not those who are not in the good of charity. Sig.

2329. Interior acknowledgment and confession of the Divine Human and Holy proceeding of the Lord. Sig.

—². That the Divine itself, the Divine Human, and the Holy proceeding are Jehovah . . .

2341^o. The cohabitation and first conjunction of the Divine of the Lord with His Human Rational. Sig.

2343². At first, the men of the Church perceive something of temptation; but when they persist and conquer, the Lord has His abode with them, and confirms them in good, introduces them to Himself in His Kingdom, and dwells with them, and there purifies and perfects them, and at the same time appropriates to them good and happy things, and this through His Divine Human and Holy proceeding. Sig.

—⁹. That it is the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord through which and from which come life and salvation, is manifestly known from the words of the Holy Supper: 'This is My body,' and 'This is My blood,' which is the Divine Human of the Lord . . . Whether you say the Divine Human, or 'the body,' or 'the flesh,' or 'the bread,' or the Divine love, it is the same; for the Divine Human of the Lord is pure love; and the Holy is of love alone; but the Holy of faith is thence derived.

2352. The denial of the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord. Sig. 2353. 2354.

2354². They who are against the good of charity are in no faith, and especially are they in no acknowledgment of the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord; this is denied at heart by all those who are in a life of evil. . . .

2357. Lest they should do violence to the good of charity, and deny the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord. Sig. 2359.

2359^e. The Divine cannot flow in except into the Divine, nor be communicated to man except through the Divine Human and the Holy thence proceeding. 2520³. 2531².

2447^e. 'Jehovah,' as first mentioned, means the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord. . . .

2529. Truth was insinuated in the Lord through the Human of His birth; but good from the Divine alone.

2571². Because the Lord adjoined the Human to the Divine by means of the truths which are of faith, although at the same time by means of the Divine goods which are of love, in the truths; according to the order by which man becomes spiritual and celestial.

2574². As the Lord implanted rational truth in rational good, thus spiritual truth in celestial good, so He continually implanted the Human in the Divine; in order that in each particular there might be the marriage of the Human with the Divine, and of the Divine with the Human. Sig.

2576^e. 'The rending of the veil of the temple' . . . = that the Lord opened an approach to the Divine itself through His Human made Divine.

2628². The first arcanum is, that the Lord's Divine Human came forth from the Divine itself; which is further treated of in this verse. The second is, that the Lord's Divine Human was not only conceived, but was also born from Jehovah; hence the Lord as to the Divine Human is called 'the Son of God,' and 'the Only Begotten.' The third is, that the Lord's Divine Human is 'the name of Jehovah,' that is, His quality. 2798.

2636. A full state of union of the Divine of the Lord with His Human, or, what is the same, with the Rational; for the Human begins in the inmost of the Rational. Sig. and Ex. 2827.

—³. When the Lord . . . had acquired so much of the Divine in the Human, that is, in the Rational, thus on the He could unite the Divine itself to the Divine acquired in the Rational. Sig.

2643. That by His own power the Lord implanted the Human in the Divine. Sig. . . (For) the Divine truth is the same as the Divine Human.

2649. From the first verse (of Gen. xxi.) it has treated of the union of the Lord's Divine essence with His Human one, in this order: On the presence of the Divine in the Human, for the sake of union (ver. 1). On the presence of the Human in the Divine, thus on the reciprocal union (ver. 2). That from this union, the Human was made Divine (ver. 3). And this successively and continually while the Lord lived in the world (ver. 4). 2667.

2657^e. For the merely Human and the Divine cannot be together.

2658⁴. In this verse, where by 'Isaac' is represented the Divine Rational or Divine Human of the Lord, ('to inherit') is a term of possession by hereditary right, because the Lord's Divine Human is the sole Heir Possessor, as He teaches in the parable (Matt. xxi).

2665^e. That the Lord concluded from the Divine Human, and acted according thereto, thus from His own power; for it was Divine truth by which He united the Human to the Divine, and Divine good by which He united the Divine to the Human, 2666. That from the Lord's Divine Human is all salvation to those who are in good. Sig. 2670.

2714. 'Paran' = enlightenment from the Lord's Divine Human. (See PARAN.)

2715. The second arcanum is, that the obscurity of the spiritual man is enlightened by the Lord's Divine Human. 2716, Ex. 2718.

2765. The union of the Human essence with the Divine one, by means of these most grievous temptations. Tr. 2767. 2776. 2966. 3381. 3382.

— On the salvation of the spiritual by virtue of the Lord's Divine Human. Tr. 2807. 2833. 2848.

2776². The passion of the cross was the last of the Lord's temptation, by means of which He fully united the Human to the Divine, and the Divine to the Human . . . It is this very union through which they can be saved who have the faith of charity in Him . . . (For) in order that the Supreme Divine might descend to such men the Lord came into the world, and united the Human to the Divine in Himself . . . Hence it is, that, from the Divine Human, the Lord can illumine minds even more remote from the celestial things of love, provided they are in the faith of charity. T. 126.

—³. It is the Lord's Divine Human which illumines both the sight and the understanding of the spiritual, which would not be effected, unless the Lord had united the Human essence to the Divine one . . .

—^e. The light of Heaven from the Lord's Divine Human can reach only those who live in the good of faith, that is, in charity. . . .

2795². Neither the Divine itself, nor the Divine Human can be tempted.

2798². The union of the Divine and the Human essence was effected mutually and reciprocally, so that He united the Divine essence to the Human one, and the Human one to the Divine one. Refs.

2803. The union of the Divine essence with the Human one, and of the Human one with the Divine one, is the marriage of Divine good with truth, and of truth with good, from which is the heavenly marriage. 3211.

—⁴. But the Divine Human which was born from eternity, was also born in time. Sig.

2805^e. That the Divine Human will provide those who are to be sanctified. Sig. 2807.

2807^e. When both 'Jehovah,' and 'God' are mentioned, 'Jehovah' means the same as 'the Father;' and 'God' the same as 'the Son,' thus, here, the Divine Human.

2811. 'Abraham built an altar there' = the preparation of the Lord's Human Divine . . . for the Lord's Divine Human is all worship and all doctrine; insomuch that it is worship itself and doctrine itself, as may be evident from the Holy Supper, which succeeded altars . . . and is the primary thing of external worship, because it is the Lord's Divine Human which is there given. . . It treats in this verse of the last preparation of the Lord's Human Divine to undergo the last degrees of temptation.

[A.] 2813⁵. 'The Son of God' or the Lord as to good in the Human Divine could not be tempted.

2814. In the Human Divine to which justice [was the adjoined]. Sig.

— The truth Divine in the Lord's Human Divine, which underwent temptations, is not the Divine truth itself, for this is above all temptation; but is rational truth . . . consisting in the appearances of truth . . . But the Divine truth in the Lord's Divine Human glorified is above appearances. . . (The former) may be called truth Divine in the Lord's Human Divine; (but the latter,) Divine truth in the Lord's Divine Human.

2816. It is according to the internal sense, that the Lord's Divine led the Human into the most grievous temptations. . . The case is this, that the Lord admitted temptations into Himself, in order to expel everything that was merely human, and this until nothing remained but what was Divine.

2822. An idea must be formed of the Lord's Divine Human from the Knowledge of a number of things . . .

2826. The Lord's Divine . . . was united with the Human Divine by temptations. Refs.

— It is love Divine whereby the Lord united the Human essence to the Divine one, and the Divine one to the Human one; or, what is the same thing, glorified Himself. Refs.

2827. The union of the Human with the Divine by the last of temptation. Sig. 2844.

2830. The burnt-offerings and sacrifices . . . signified the Lord's Divine Human . . . as may be evident from the Holy Supper, which succeeded them; and in which the bread and wine = the Lord's Divine Human; the bread, His Divine Celestial; and the wine, His Divine Spiritual . . .

2833. See ABRAHAM at these refs. 3016. 3246. 3248. 3251. 3263. 3381. 3419. 3441. 6804.

2838°. 'Manna' = the Lord's Divine Human; and, as it = the Lord's Divine Human, it = heavenly food . . .

2842°. 'The right hand of Jehovah,' 'the great name of Jehovah,' 'the soul of Jehovah,' 'the holiness of Jehovah,' 'the height of Jacob,' = the Lord's Divine Human . . .

2854. (The salvation of all who are in good) by the union of the Lord's Human essence with His Divine one. Sig.

— See ADVENT at this ref.

2858. See BEERSHEBA at this ref.

2894°. The internal sense teaches that the Lord as to the Divine Human is meant by 'the Word;' for it is said that 'the Word was made flesh.' And as the Divine Human is meant by 'the Word,' there is also meant all the truth which is about Him and from Him in . . . the Heavens and the Church.

3038. See CANAAN at these refs. 4108. 4112.

3043°. He willed to make His Human Divine by the common way . . . 3138².

3061. Communication of His Divine which is 'the Father' with His Divine Human, which is 'the Son.' Sig.

—². I have heard from the men of the Most Ancient Church, that Jehovah Himself was the Lord as to the Divine Human when He descended into Heaven, and flowed in through Heaven . . . The Divine itself in Heaven, or in the Grand Man, was the Divine Human, and was Jehovah Himself thus clothed with the Human. But when the human race became such that the Divine itself clothed as the Divine Human could no longer affect them . . . then Jehovah, who is the Lord as to the Divine essence, descended and took the Human, by conception Divine, and by birth from a virgin like that of another man; but this He expelled; and, by Divine means, made Divine the Human that was born, from which everything Holy proceeds. Thus, the Divine Human came forth an essence per se, which fills the universal Heaven, and causes those to be saved who before could not be saved. This, now, is the Lord, who, as to the Divine Human, alone is Man . . .

3063. 'To do mercy' = the influx of love, because from the Lord's Divine itself into His Divine Human; for it was the Divine love . . . through which He made His Human Divine; for love is the very being of life . . .

3141. In order that the Lord might make His Human Divine, both as to good and as to truth, and this in the ordinary way . . .

3154°. The Divine Human as to good, and as to truth. Sig.

3161. While the Lord lived in the world, He made the Human in Himself Divine by His Own power; the Human begins in the inmost of the Rational. It is here described how He made this Divine, to wit, as before in respect to good, so now in respect to truth; for the Rational consists of good and truth: the good therein was from His veriest Divine . . . but the truth was to be acquired in the ordinary way . . .

3187. The Lord's Spiritual Kingdom from the marriage of good and truth in the Divine Human. Sig.

3189°. The form of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom comes forth according to the ordination of the affection in His Divine Human. Tr.

3194°. As to the Divine Human, the Lord came forth from Divine good, and was born from Divine truth . . . 3210.

3195°. The Divine Human which was from eternity (John xvii. 5), was that light itself; and as that light could no longer affect the human race . . . the Lord willed to put on the Human itself by means of birth; for thus He could illumine not only the rational but also the natural things of man; for He made both the Rational and the Natural in Himself Divine, in order that those who were in such dense darkness might also have light.

—4. 'The Word' was the Divine truth, (thus the Lord Himself as to the Divine Human; of which it is said that 'the Word was with God, and God was the Word.'

—6. From these passages it is evident that the Lord as to the Divine Good and Divine truth in the Divine Human is called 'the Light.'

3210. The sanctuary of truth in the Divine Human. Sig. . . (For) 'his mother Sarah'=truth Divine, from which was born the Divine Human, the Rational of which is represented by her son Isaac.

—2. In the veriest Divine there is good and truth, and the Lord as to the Divine Human came forth from Divine good, and was born, to wit, as to the Divine itself, from Divine truth . . . (This only can be said), that it was the veriest Divine good and truth in the Lord's Divine Human to which there was conjoined truth from the Human. Sig.

3212². That the Lord as to the Human was made new, that is, glorified, or, what is the same, was made Divine, can never be apprehended by anyone who is in worldly and bodily loves . . .

—e. That this (appearance of the Lord at the Transfiguration) was His Divine Human, is evident from the voice which came out of the cloud, saying, 'This is My beloved Son.' 'The Son' is the Divine Human.

3245². There are two things which properly constitute the Human,—the Rational and the Natural; the Lord's Rational is represented by 'Isaac,' and His Natural, by 'Jacob;' the Lord made both Divine. . . The Natural could not be made Divine until the Rational was made Divine; for the former was made Divine through the latter.

3248. That the Spiritual have life from the Lord's Divine Human. Refs.

3296^o. In regeneration, as in a certain image, it appears how the Lord glorified His Human, or, what is the same, made it Divine; for, as the Lord completely changed His Human state into a Divine one, so, when He regenerates man, He completely changes his state . . .

3300³. The Nazarites represented the Lord as to the Divine Human, especially as to the Divine Natural. 3301³.

3314^o. The Angels see these things in clear light . . . whenever it is given them to think of the Lord's Divine as to the Human . . . But he who is not in good feels weariness when he thinks of such things, and the more so in proportion as he thinks of them as applied to the Divine which appertains to the Lord's Human; therefore it is better for such people to remove their mind therefrom . . .

3325⁵. That the Lord as to the Divine Human is 'the First-born.' Ill.

3382. It cannot be signified that He observed these things; but that He revealed them to Himself when He was in a state of union of the Human with the Divine.

—2. The union of the Lord's Divine with the Human by means of continual revelations from Himself. Sig.

3441. (That there would be an increase of good and truth) from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

— . The reason 'servant'=the Divine Human, is not that the Divine Human is a servant, because it also is Jehovah; but because the Lord is thereby of service to the human race . . . (for) unless the Lord had united the Human to the Divine, so that man could mentally view and adore the Human of the Lord, and thus approach the Divine, he could never be saved. The conjunction of man with the Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' is through the Divine Human which is called 'the Son;' thus through the Lord, by whom the spiritual man means the Human; but the celestial man the Divine itself.

—2. 'Abraham My servant'=the Lord as to the Divine Human. In like manner, also, the Lord as to the Divine Human is meant in the supreme sense by 'Israel My servant,' by 'Jacob My servant,' by 'David My servant.' Ill.

3454. See INTERNAL SENSE at this ref.

3490. (The history of Isaac and Rebekah) treats of how the Lord made the Rational Divine in Himself. (Here, the history of Esau and Jacob) treats of how the Lord made the Natural Divine in Himself; for, when He was in the world, the Lord made the whole Human Divine in Himself, both the interior, which is the Rational, and the exterior, which is the Natural, and also the very Corporeal; and this according to Divine order; according to which also the Lord regenerates man.

3624. The universal Heaven is so formed as to correspond to the Lord; to His Divine Human. 3637.

3704². See DIVINE GOOD at these refs. 4180^o. R. 266.

—7. His Human is a stumbling-block to many, because they distinguish the Human from the Divine, and do not believe it to be Divine. . . Moreover, no one can be justified, still less sanctified, except from the Divine, and, in fact, from the Lord's Divine Human, which is represented and signified in the Holy Supper, where it is openly said that the bread is His body and the wine His blood.

3720. See HOUSE at this ref.

3813. See FLESH at these refs. 8409. E. 1082².

3952². (Thus) the Lord's Divine marriage itself is not between good Divine and truth Divine in His Divine Human; but between the good of the Divine Human and the Divine itself, that is, between the Son and the Father . . . 6179.

3960. 'To dwell together'=the Lord's Divine itself and His Divine Human . . . because the Divine itself which is called 'the Father' is in the Divine Human which is called 'the Son of God' mutually and reciprocally. . . This union is the Divine marriage itself. This union is not dwelling together, but is so expressed in the sense of the letter . . .

3994⁶. See PASSOVER at this ref.

4180⁵. As Divine truth proceeds from the Divine Human, but not from the Divine itself, it is the Divine Human which is here signified by 'the dread of Isaac' . . . As to Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Human and from the Divine itself, the case is this. Before the Lord came into the world, the Divine itself flowed into the universal Heaven, and . . . produced the light which was in the Heavens. But after the human race had removed themselves from the good of love and charity, that light could no longer be produced through Heaven . . . so as to penetrate to the human race; wherefore it was necessary . . . for the Lord to come into the world, and make the Human in Himself Divine, in order that He Himself, as to the Divine Human, might become the Divine Light. He had been the Light itself from eternity . . . and the Divine itself was what took the Human, and made it Divine; and, when it was made Divine, He could illumine from it not only the Celestial Heaven, but also the Spiritual Heaven, and the human race too, who had received and do receive Divine truth in good. Sig.

[A.] 4208. Oaths were taken by the Lord's Divine Human. Ref.

4211². The conjunction of man with the Lord is not with His Supreme Divine itself, but with His Divine Human; for man cannot have any idea whatever about the Lord's Supreme Divine . . . but he can have an idea about His Divine Human . . . When the Lord's Human is thought of, if there is holiness in the idea, the Holy which fills Heaven from the Lord is also thought of, thus, also, Heaven is thought of. . . Hence it is that no conjunction is possible with the Lord's Supreme Divine, but with His Divine Human, and, through the Divine Human, with His Supreme Divine. Sig.

—³. But men think variously about the Lord's Human . . . They who are within the Church are able to think that His Human is Divine . . . whereas they who are outside the Church are not able . . .

4219. Heaven is named the Grand Man because it corresponds to the Lord's Divine Human.

4240². 'Seir'=the Lord's Divine Human, and, in special, the Divine Natural as to good therein. . . 'To arise and go forth out of Seir'=that He would make the Natural Divine, in order that there might be light from it . . .

4318. It is the chief of the intelligence the Angels have, to know and perceive . . . that the universal Heaven corresponds to the Lord's Divine Human, and, consequently, that all Angels, Spirits, and men correspond to Heaven.

4558. See ALTAR at these refs. 9388. 9395. 9714². 10028. 10052. 10273. R.325. E.391.

4575. Truths from the Divine marriage are those which proceed from the Lord's Divine Human, and are called holy; for the Lord's Divine Human is the Divine marriage itself.

4606². In the supreme sense, 'Zebulon'=the Divine itself of the Lord and His Divine Human.

4642. 'Edom'=the Lord's Divine Human as to the Natural and the Corporeal. 4645^e. 4647^e. 4650. 4651^e.

4665. It treats in (Gen.xxxvii.) of the truths Divine which are from the Lord's Divine Human, that, in process of time, they are rejected in the Church . . . In special, it treats of those who are in faith separated from charity, that they are against the Lord's Divine Human. 4680² From experience.

4669. 'Joseph'=the Lord's Spiritual Divine Human. . . (For) 'Joseph'=the Divine Spiritual, which proceeds from His Divine Human . . . and which is the Divine truth that is from Him in Heaven and the Church.

4682. As the dream treats of Joseph, it=to preach about the Lord's Divine Human.

4687. 'My sheaf arose and stood upright'=the doctrinal about the Lord's Divine Human . . . and that it will reign supreme and be adored. 4689.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that the supreme of truth Divine is the Lord's Divine Human; and that therefore the supreme among the doctrinal things of the Church is that His Human is Divine.

4689². Not a single one from the Christian world knew that His Human is Divine . . . still less that His Divine Human is the all in Heaven. That this is so could not be openly revealed, because it was foreseen by the Lord that the Christian Church would turn away from charity to faith . . . and thus would not only reject but profane the Holy which is from His Divine Human; for faith separated from charity cannot do otherwise. 4692², Ex. 4727², Ex.

4692. Still greater contempt and aversion on account of the preaching of the truth about the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—². It is the supreme among truths, which the Church that has separated faith from charity chiefly despises . . . that the Human of the Lord is Divine.

—⁴. The Christian Church does indeed adore in external worship the Human of the Lord as Divine, especially in the Holy Supper. . . But they do not make His Human Divine in doctrine; for they distinguish between the Divine nature and the human nature; this also is because the Church has turned away from charity to faith; and as they acknowledge the Human of the Lord to be not Divine, many cause themselves to stumble, and at heart deny Him; when yet the case is, that the Lord's Divine Human is the Divine manifesting from the Divine being . . . 4731^e.

—^e. The Lord was indeed born as another man, and had an infirm human from the mother; but He completely expelled this human . . . and made the Human in Himself Divine . . . and He also showed Peter, James, and John that He was a Divine Man when He was transfigured.

4700. Indignation on account of the preaching of the truth about the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

4715². In the Lord and in His Divine Human everything is infinite.

4723. Perception of the Lord's Divine Human remotely. Sig.

—^e. The reason it is the Lord's Divine Human which is here meant by Joseph, is that this is the supreme of Divine truth. There are two essentials which constitute the Church, and thus two principal things of doctrine; one, that the Human of the Lord is Divine; the other, that love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour make the Church.

4724. That they wanted to extinguish the Divine Spiritual which is from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—². The case is this. All the Divine truth that is in the universal Heaven is from no other source than the Lord's Divine Human. What is from the Divine itself can never flow in immediately with any Angel . . . but mediately through the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—^e. Hence, too, the Lord as to the Divine Human is called 'Mediator.'

—³. This, too, was from eternity ; for, without influx through Heaven, and thus being made the Divine manifesting, the Divine being could not be communicated to any Angel ; (and) as to the Divine itself the Lord is the Divine being, and as to the Divine Human, the Divine manifesting. Neither could the Human itself of the Lord have received any influx from the Divine being, unless in Him the Human had been made Divine ; for that which receives the Divine being must be Divine.

—^e. But they who live the life of faith, adore the Lord with bended knees and humble hearts as God the Saviour, thinking nothing at that time about the distinction between the Divine and the human nature ; in like manner do they in the Holy Supper. Hence it is evident, that, with these, the Lord's Divine Human is in their hearts. 473^r. 475^e.

4727. The extinction of the essential of doctrine concerning the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—^e. The Church which acknowledges faith alone has extinguished this essential truth . . . for who among them believes the Lord's Human to be Divine ?

—^e. From His Divine Human proceed all wisdom, intelligence, and all light in Heaven . . .

4733. The acknowledgment and adoration of the Lord's Divine Human is the life of religion . . .

—^e. (For this reason) the Divine itself willed to assume the Human, and make it Divine.

4735. Everything holy in Heaven proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human, and thence everything holy in the Church ; wherefore, to prevent its violation, the Holy Supper was instituted by the Lord, and there it is said in express words, that the bread therein is His flesh, and the wine His blood, thus that it is His Divine Human from which comes the holiness on that occasion. . . Thus the proprium which He acquired in the Human was Divine ; and this Divine proprium in the Human is what is called 'the flesh and blood.'

—². The Lord's Human, after it was made Divine, cannot be conceived as human, but as the Divine love in a human form . . . For the Lord made His Human Divine from Divine love ; as by celestial love a man becomes an Angel after death. . . Thus it is evident, that by the Lord's Divine Human in the celestial sense is signified the Divine love itself . . .

—¹. In the rituals of the Jewish Church, 'blood' = the Holy proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human. III.

4738. That which he would claim for the Church, is the Divine truth about the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—². After the papal chair had grown to the pitch of domination over human souls . . . the Divine was taken away from the Lord's Human, or a distinction was made between His Divine and His Human. How this was decreed in a certain Council has also been revealed to me. There appeared . . . some of those who were together in the Council, when the decree was made about the Lord's two natures, Divine and human. . . They said . . . they concluded that both a Divine and a human should be attributed to the Lord, chiefly because otherwise the papal chair would not subsist. Ex. . . They added . . . that to the Lord was given 'all power' . . . which could not be attributed to any vicar, if the Human also were acknowledged to be Divine . . . D.4551. E.52^e. 1050.

4754. They who are in simple good acknowledge that the Human of the Lord is Divine . . . and the distinction between the Human and the Divine of the Lord they call sophisms . . .

5005^e. That the Lord made the Human in Himself Divine by His own power. Refs.

5256. 'Not to me' = that it was not from the Human alone . . . but from the Divine ; for the Divine foresees . . . For, when He was in the world, the Lord had foresight and providence, and this in the Human ; but from the Divine ; whereas afterwards, when He was glorified, He has them from the Divine alone ; for the Human glorified is Divine. Regarded in itself, the Human is nothing but a form which receives life from the Divine ; but the glorified Human of the Lord or His Divine Human, is not a form which receives life from the Divine, but is the very being of life ; and that which thence proceeds is life. Such is the idea the Angels have of the Lord.

5257. 'God will answer peace' = from the Divine Human by conjunction.

5321. (Thus) the doctrine that treats of good and truth . . . proceeds from His Divine Human. No doctrine can possibly proceed from the Divine itself, except through the Divine Human, that is, through the Word, which, in the supreme sense, is Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human. That which proceeds from the Divine itself immediately cannot be apprehended even by the Angels in the innermost Heaven . . . Whereas that which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human they can apprehend ; for it treats of God as a Divine Man, about whom some idea can be formed from the Human ; and an idea which is formed about the Human is accepted, of whatever kind it may be, provided it flows from the good of innocence, and is in the good of charity. Sig.

5335^e. The remains the Lord had He Himself had acquired, and they were from the Divine ; by these He united the Human essence to the Divine one and made it Divine.

5585². The Lord's Divine itself never appeared in any face, but the Divine Human ; and through it, as in it, the Divine love. Sig.

5620¹. 'The manna' = truth Divine which descends from the Lord through Heaven, thus the Lord Himself as to the Divine Human, as He teaches in John vi. 51, 58 ; for it is the Lord's Divine Human from which comes all truth Divine, nay, about which is all truth Divine.

5663. 'Your God, and the God of your father' = the Lord's Divine Human . . . and in fact as to the Divine Natural.

—². By 'Jehovah,' and 'God,' the ancient Churches understood no other than the Lord . . . as to the Divine Human. They knew about the Divine itself which is in the Lord . . . but could not think about it ; but about the Divine Human . . . For, when the Divine itself is thought of, the thought falls as it were into an unbounded universe, and so is dissipated, consequently there is no conjunction. It is otherwise when the Divine itself is thought of as the Divine Human . . . Therefore, it was the Divine Human that the ancient Churches adored. Jehovah also manifested Himself among them in the Divine Human ; and the Divine Human was the Divine itself in Heaven ; for Heaven constitutes a man, which is called the Grand Man. This Divine in Heaven is nothing but the Divine itself ; but, in Heaven, as a Divine Man. It is this Man that the Lord took upon Him, and made Divine in Himself, and united to the Divine itself, as He had been united from eternity . . . and this because the human race could not otherwise be saved ; for it could no longer suffice that the Divine itself through Heaven, thus through the Divine Human there, could flow into human minds ; wherefore, the Divine itself willed to unite to itself the Divine Human actually by means of the Human taken up in the world. The latter and the former are the Lord.

[A.] 592². (At the Transfiguration) the Lord showed His Divine Human to Peter, James, and John, such as it was and as it appeared in Divine light ; and the form in which He was then seen, presented to view the Word as it is in the internal sense, thus such as is the Divine truth in Heaven . . .

—⁷. The tabernacle represented the Lord's Divine Human, thus the Divine truth which proceeds from Him . . .

600⁷. Jehovah's being one, and His name one = the Lord as to the Divine Human, which will be one with the Divine itself . . . Before the Lord's Advent, the Divine Human was Jehovah in the Heavens ; for, by passage through the Heavens, He presented Himself as a Divine Man before many on earth. At that time the Divine Human was not so completely one with the Divine itself . . . as when the Lord made it completely one in Himself. That before they were as it were distinct. Sig.

6135³. It is the Lord's Divine Human which thus appears (as the Sun) . . .

6279. 'The Angel who redeemeth me from all evil' = the Lord's Divine Human from which there is deliverance from Hell. 'Angel' = the Lord's Divine Human. 6280, Ex. and III.

6280. Before the Lord's Advent into the world, the Divine Human was Jehovah Himself flowing in through Heaven when He spoke the Word ; for Jehovah was above the Heavens, and that which passed through the Heavens from Him was then the Divine Human ; for by the influx of Jehovah into Heaven a man was reproduced—retulit hominem, and the Divine itself thence was a Divine Man. This, then, is the Divine Human from eternity, and is what is called 'the Sent,' by which is meant the proceeding. But, as Jehovah could no longer flow in with men through this His Divine Human, because they had removed themselves so far from that Divine, He assumed the Human and made it Divine ; and so, by influx therefrom into Heaven, He was able to reach those of the human race who would receive the good of charity and the truth of faith from the Divine Human thus made visible, and thus deliver them from Hell ; which otherwise could never have been done. This deliverance is what is called Redemption, and the Divine Human itself which delivered or redeemed, is what is called 'the Redeeming Angel.' But it is to be known, that, as to the Divine Human, as well as as to the Divine itself, the Lord is above Heaven ; for He is the Sun which illuminates Heaven . . . The Divine Human which is in Heaven is the Divine truth which proceeds from Him . . . As to His essence, the Lord is not Divine truth ; for this is from Him like light from the sun ; but He is the Divine good itself, one with Jehovah.

—⁴. It is the Lord's Divine Human which is called 'the Angel of Jehovah' (at the burning bush) . . . and that Jehovah was there in the Divine Human, is evident from the fact, that the Divine itself could only appear through the Divine Human. Sig.

6281. As the Lord delivered man by making the Human in Himself Divine, it is His Divine Human which in the Word is called 'the Redeemer.' III.

— In these passages, the Divine itself which is called 'Jehovah,' is distinguished from the Divine Human, which is called 'the Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.' But that it is Jehovah Himself in the Divine Human. III.

6330. See JUDAH at this ref.

6332. See JOSEPH at this ref.

6343². In the inmost sense of the Word, there is in every particular the marriage of the Lord's Divine Human with His Kingdom and Church, nay, in the supreme sense, there is the union of the Divine itself and the Divine Human in the Lord.

6371². When the Lord made the Human in Himself Divine, He put on that very [transflux] that there was with the Angels of the Celestial Kingdom ; for the Divine transflux through that Heaven had before been the Human Divine . . . But this Human Divine ceased when the Lord made the Human in Himself Divine . . . The Angels of that Kingdom have still great Power, but only in proportion as they are in the Lord's Divine Human by love to Him.

6373². Thus at that time none could be saved except the celestial ; and at last scarcely they, unless the Lord had assumed the Human and made it in Himself Divine . . . (So) the Lord came into the world, and made the Human in Himself Divine, in order that the Divine truth might proceed from the Lord's Divine Human itself, and thus save the man who would receive good through truth.

6374. That from His Divine Human there should proceed truths which can be received. Sig.

6425. 'By the hands of the mighty Jacob' = by the omnipotence of the Lord's Divine Human.

6427. See SPIRITUAL at this ref.

6437. See NAZARITE at this ref.

6502⁹. 'Sanctuary' = celestial love ; in the supreme sense, the Lord's Divine Human, from which is that love. 9594⁵. Refs.

6674^f. Hence the Divine Human is the origin, and also the object, of all Divine worship . . .

6685. Divine truth goes forth from the Lord's Divine Human, which (latter) is Divine good.

6716^g. As the inmost of the Lord was the Divine itself, could not this, more than with any man, make the external which was from the mother its own image . . . thus the Human, which was the external from the mother, Divine? and this from His own power, because the Divine which was inmost, and from which He operated upon the Human, was His own . . . And, as the Lord advanced according to Divine order, He made His Human Divine truth while He was in the world; but afterwards, when He was fully glorified, He made it Divine good, thus one with Jehovah. Tr.

6717^h. The reason the origin of truth is good, is that the Divine which was the inmost of the Lord . . . produced it in His Human.

6720. When the Lord made His Human Divine, He did it from the Divine by transflux through Heaven: not that Heaven contributed anything from itself, but that in order for the Divine itself to be able to flow into the Human, it flowed through Heaven. Before the Lord's Advent, this transflux was the Divine Human. The Divine which flowed through Heaven was the Divine truth or the Divine law, which Moses represented . . .

6723ⁱ. The ark was most holy because it represented the Lord's Divine Human as to the Divine law; for the Divine law or the Divine truth proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human . . .

6788. That which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human is Divine truth from Divine good; hence it is that the Holy Spirit is the Holy which proceeds from the Lord . . .

6804. On account of conjunction with the Church through the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—¹. The Lord as to the Divine Human is the Mediator . . . Thus the Lord as to the Divine Human is conjunction. Who can by any thought comprehend the Divine itself . . . But everyone can comprehend in thought the Divine Human, and be conjoined with it in love.

6831. See ANGEL OF JEHOVAH at this ref.

—². The Lord is Jehovah Himself in the Divine Human.

6832^f. 'The appearance of a Man upon the throne' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

6834^g. When the Lord was in the world, and united the Human essence to the Divine one, He received the fire of this love in His Human, and united it to the truth therein when He made Himself the Divine law.

6846^h. The God who was worshipped in the Ancient Church was the Lord as to the Divine Human . . . and many of them knew that the Lord was about to come into the world, and make the Human in Himself Divine. In that Church no other was understood by Jehovah; for He had appeared to them as a Divine Man . . .

6849ⁱ. Hence it may be very evident that the Human of the Lord is Divine; for unless it were Divine, it could never have been so united to the Divine itself . . . as to be one with it.

— . That the Father does not appear, except in His own Divine Human. Sig.

6854^g. The Divine passing through Heaven, which, before the Lord's Advent, was the Divine Human, could not reach the spiritual . . . But after the Lord had made the Human in Himself Divine, He delivered those who were in the pits . . .

6869. 'I will be with thee' = that the Divine would be in the Human.

6872. The perception and acknowledgment of the Divine in the Human. Sig.

—². Thus His Human was made Divine when He received in the Human the love of His Father, which was the being of His life.

6876^h. The Divine of the Ancient Church was the Lord as to the Divine Human: the Ancient Church had this from the Most Ancient one; and also from the fact that Jehovah was seen by them in a human form; wherefore, when they thought of Jehovah . . . they thought about the Human Divine, into which they were able to determine their thought . . . They who were of the Ancient Church, and especially they who were of the Most Ancient one . . . could not think otherwise about Jehovah than as about a Man whose Human was Divine . . . The Angels themselves . . . cannot think otherwise about the Divine, for they see the Lord in the Divine Human . . .

—³. That in ancient times they adored Jehovah under the Human Divine, is manifest from the Angels seen. Ill.

6880. See BE at this ref.

— . The Divine Human cannot communicate itself to anyone except through the Divine truth, which is the Holy Spirit.

6887. 'This is My name to eternity' = that the Divine Human is the quality of the Divine itself. Ill.

—^e. In the Lord's Prayer, also, by 'Our Father in the heavens, hallowed be Thy name' is meant the Lord as to the Divine Human.

6945. The Divine which is in the Lord's Human. Sig. . . That Jehovah's 'being seen' = the appearance of the Lord's Divine in His Human, is evident from the fact, that His Divine cannot appear to any man or Angel, except through the Divine Human; nor the Divine Human, except through the Divine truth which proceeds from Him.

—². (They of the Spiritual Church) do not at all apprehend how the Lord's Human can be Divine.

6947. The power of the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

6956. That they may have faith concerning the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

6982. In order to be heard, the Divine must first become Human, and it becomes Human when it passes through the Heavens; and when it has passed through the Heavens it is presented in a human form and becomes speech, which speech is uttered by Spirits, who, in that state, are called the Holy Spirit.

6984. The Divine inflowing into the Human. Sig.

[A. 69S4]^e. 'Servant' = the Human of the Lord while as yet not made Divine; whereas when it was made Divine, being one with Jehovah, it was the Lord. S241^e. E. 409, III.

6993. The Divine in each and all things which proceed from the Divine Human. Sig.

— The Divine truth, which is called the Holy Spirit, proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig. 6996.

7004. That the things which he utters proceed from the Divine Human. Sig.

— The Word which is uttered by a Spirit or Angel, proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human.

7005. That truth Divine must proceed through the Divine Human from the Divine itself. Sig.

7091. 'Thus saith Jehovah the God of Israel' = an exhortation from the Lord's Divine Human. . . The reason 'the God of Israel' = the Lord as to the Divine Human, is that those who are of the Spiritual Church have natural ideas about everything spiritual and celestial, and also about the Divine . . .

7193. The Lord as to the Human, that is, the Human before it was made Divine is here signified; by 'Abraham' is signified the Celestial in that Human, by 'Isaac' the Spiritual, and by 'Jacob' the Natural. The reason they here signify the Lord as to the Human and not as to the Divine Human, is that temptations are treated of; and the Lord could be tempted as to the Human before it was made Divine, but not as to the Divine Human . . .

7195. The conjunction even then existing through the Divine Human. Sig.

— The proximate sense of these words is, that the union of the Divine itself is with the Divine Human; and, from this, is the subsequent sense, that, with those of the Spiritual Church, there is conjunction of the Divine itself through the Divine Human . . . For they who are of the Spiritual Church are saved through the Lord's Divine Human.

7206. According to the laws of order from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

7211. Elevation from the Divine power to Heaven, where the Divine Human is all. Sig. and Ex.

7499². When the Lord was in the world, He made His Human Divine truth . . . but after He was fully glorified, He made His Human Divine good also, that is, Jehovah, and from it the Divine truth itself proceeded from His Divine Human. R. 193. E. 594².

7847⁴. See TEMPLE at these refs. S. 47. R. 191. S82^e. 918.

7914. The man of the Spiritual Church . . . can scarcely believe that the Lord is the only God, and that His Human is Divine.

7931². By order, is here meant that order which there was in Heaven from the time when the Lord began to dispose all things in Heaven and earth from His Divine Human, which was immediately after the resurrection (Matt. xxviii. 18). Ex.

8099³. 'The arm of Jehovah' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

S137. That they would see a Divine effect from the Lord's Divine Human in the dissipation of falsity. Sig.

S159². They of the Spiritual Church could not undergo temptations until after the Lord had glorified His Human . . . For they of the Spiritual Church are saved only by means of the Lord's Divine Human.

S226. The destruction of the evil . . . and the salvation of the good . . . is from the presence of His Divine Human. —².

S264. 'In exalting He hath exalted' = that He has manifested His Divine in His Human.

—⁸. This Song treats about the Lord, that after He had made His Human Divine He cast the evil into the Hells, and elevated the good into Heaven; and this by His mere presence.

S273. The Divine passing through Heaven, which before the Lord's Advent was the Divine Human, was not strong enough against the evils and falsities which had so vastly increased . . .

S301. That all the truth of good proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

— The reason the Divine Human is here meant by 'Jehovah,' is that in this Song it treats of the salvation of those who are of the Spiritual Church by the Lord's Advent into the world, and by means of His Divine Human. Refs.

S495. In the supreme sense, the Sabbath represented the union of the Divine and the Divine Human in the Lord; and, in the relative sense, the conjunction of the Lord's Divine Human with the human race. S886. S887².

S668. Perception from truth Divine concerning the power of the Lord's Divine Human against those who were in falsities, and who infested. Sig.

S705⁴. See MEDIATION at these refs. T. 135⁵.

—⁵. They who do not think about God from themselves . . . but from the spirit, think about Him determinately, that is, they present to themselves the idea of the Divine under a Human appearance . . . So thought the wise ancients, to whom the Divine itself appeared as a Divine Man, for the Divine passing through Heaven is a Divine Man . . . The intelligent of the world remove from themselves a Human idea; hence between their minds and the Divine there is no mediation, and consequently they are in thick darkness; whereas the intelligent of Heaven have the idea of the Divine in the Human; thus the Lord is their mediation, and consequently their minds have light.

S864. 'I am Jehovah thy God' = the Lord as to the Divine Human reigning universally in each and all things of what is good and true.

— The reason it is the Lord's Divine Human which is here meant by 'Jehovah God,' is that the Lord as to that is meant in the Word by both 'Jehovah' and 'God;' the Divine good which He is even as to the Human, by 'Jehovah;' and the Divine truth which He is because it proceeds from Him, by 'God.' 9388 and 9389, Rep.

—². The reason the Lord's Divine Human is meant by 'Jehovah God,' is that the Divine itself which is in the Lord cannot be seen in Heaven, nor even perceived, thus cannot be received in faith and love; but only the Divine Human . . .

—³. In both these (internal truths and external truths) the Lord must reign as to the Divine Human, because they are from Him, and are Himself . . . That the Lord as to the Divine Human who is to reign in each and all things of faith, is also known in the Churches . . .

8878. 'To them that hate Me' = those who completely reject the Divine of the Lord . . . The reason they do so, is that those who are in evil . . . are in natural light . . . and from this light they cannot at all see the Human of the Lord otherwise than as human; for they are not able to perceive what the Divine Human is . . .

9263². The Lord's being made justice, consisted in His making His Human Divine by His Own power.

9303. 'Behold, I send an Angel before thee' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

— By 'the Angel of Jehovah,' is meant the Lord as to the Divine Human, because this proceeds from Jehovah as a Father. Ex.

—⁴. The Angels think . . . that the Human is the Divine itself in form.

9306². The reason the Lord as to the Divine Human is called the 'Angel of the faces of Jehovah,' is that the Divine Human is the Divine itself in face, that is, in form, as the Lord teaches in John xiv. 7-11.

9310. As this is effected from the Divine itself through His Divine Human and from it, the Lord as to the Divine Human is called 'the name of Jehovah.' Refs.

—³. For the Lord as to the Divine Human is Jehovah or the Father in a visible form.

9315². At that time, His Divine Human appeared as an Angel, of which the Lord speaks in John viii. 56, 58; xvii. 5.

—³. The reason it pleased the Lord to be born a Man, was that He might actually put on the Human and make it Divine, to save the human race.

9394⁶. The Lord's Divine Human treated of.

9396⁸. The union of the Divine itself and the Divine Human. Sig.

—⁶. Restoration through the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

9398. Reception of the truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

—². Divine truth does not proceed from the Divine itself, but from the Divine Human. Sig.

9400. 'The blood of the covenant' = conjunction thereby of the Lord as to the Divine Human with Heaven and earth.

9486². The Lord as to the Divine Human has merit and justice from Himself. Ex.

9491. 'Shittim wood' = the good itself proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human.

9571. From the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

— The Lord's Divine Human is the source of light in Heaven, as the Divine can only be seen under a Human form. Sig.

9594⁴. It is the Divine things which proceed from the Lord's Divine Human which are properly called 'habitations.' Ill.

— 'The Mighty One of Jacob' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

—⁶. The Lord as to the Divine Human is the Sun which is the source of heat and light in the Heavens . . .

9644. This good is the good of merit, thus that of the Lord's Divine Human. Refs.

9654. Where there is good from the Lord's Divine Human in every way. Sig.

9684. The illumination of the Spiritual Kingdom by the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human to those who are in good. Sig.

—². Light in the Heavens is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human . . .

—³. 'The Son of Man' = the Lord as to the Divine truth from His Divine Human. Refs. 9807², Ill.

9726². 'The grate, the work of a net, about the altar' = the Sensuous of the Lord's Divine Human. 9727.

9727². All things of the Lord's Divine Human are from the Divine good of the Divine love.

9806. The conjunction of Divine truth with Divine good in the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

9809². 'Lord' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

—⁵. ('Melchizedek') = His Divine Human.

9930⁵. After this last temptation, the Lord put on Divine good, and thus united His Divine Human to the Divine itself that was in Him.

9932. 'Holiness to Jehovah' = the Lord's Divine Human, and thence all celestial and spiritual good.

9933. In that sphere of Heaven where there is the truth of celestial love, no other Divine is perceived than the Divine Human of the Lord . . . In that sphere, the Human of the Lord is perceived as being the Divine itself in the Heavens; wherefore, as soon as an Angel is elevated into that sphere . . . this perception flows in from the Lord; for the Lord's Divine Human makes Heaven. Sig.

9937³. He who once conquers the Hells, conquers them to eternity, and in order that this might be done by the Lord He made His Human Divine. 10659².

9954¹¹. 'Jehovah's anointed' = the Lord as to the Divine Human . . . The anointing of the Lord as to the Divine Human was effected by means of the Divine good itself of the Divine love . . .

—¹³. 'Messiah the Prince,' or 'the Anointed' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

—¹⁶. The Lord as to His Divine Human is here meant by 'David, the anointed of Jehovah.'

9956. 'Thou shalt sanctify them' = thus a representative of the Lord as to the Divine Human . . . for this is what alone is holy, and the sole source of holiness in Heaven and earth. 9988. 10359.

— The Divine of the Lord in the Heavens, accommodated to the reception of the Angels . . . is in their perception the Lord's Divine Human.

9987². The Lord as to the Divine Human is order in the Heavens.

[A.] 10009. 'Thou shalt put the coronet of holiness upon the mitre' = the Lord's Divine Human.

10053⁶. The union of the Human with the Divine in Him is here described by 'all things that the Father hath being His;' and elsewhere, that 'the Father and He are one;' and that 'the Father is in Him, and He in the Father.'

10054. The reason the burnt-offering is called 'an odour of rest to Jehovah,' is that by the burnt-offering was represented the union of the Lord's Divine Human with the Divine itself.

10067². The reason it is the Divine Human which is the source of these things, is that in the Heavens no other Divine is acknowledged and worshipped than the Divine Human of the Lord. Ill.

—³. This is also evident from the fact that no one can be conjoined by love and faith with the Divine itself without the Divine Human. Ill.

—⁴. But that the Divine itself which is the Father is comprehensible in the Lord by means of His Divine Human. Ill.

— Hence it is evident that the Divine in the Heavens is the Divine Human of the Lord.

—⁵. The union of Divine truth with Divine good, and of Divine good with Divine truth with the Lord's Divine Human. Sig. and Ex.

— Hence the reciprocal union of Divine truth and Divine good in the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

10125³. So it is said in the Athanasian Creed: As the soul and body are one man, so the Divine and the Human in the Lord are one Christ. He, therefore, who knows the union of the soul in the body, and the image of the former in the latter, can in some measure know the union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord, and the image of the one in the other; and thus might know that the Divine which is called 'the Father' and the Human which is called 'the Son' are one, and that the one is in the other. . . . But as it is not known what the soul is . . . and that the body is its image . . . man has separated the Divine from the Human in the Lord, and has distinguished them into two natures . . .

10152³. Unless the Lord had made His Human Divine . . .

—⁴. The Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' without the Divine Human which is called 'the Son,' could not effect this; as the Divine itself without the Divine Human cannot reach man, nor even Angel . . .

—⁵. That the Divine itself effects this by means of the Divine Human. Ill.

— That the Lord subjugated the Hells from the Divine Human . . . and that the Divine itself . . . effected this through the Divine Human . . .

— Here, the Lord as to the Divine Human is that which is called 'the Word.'

—^e. From these things, it may now be evident what the work of salvation and redemption is, and that it is from His Divine Human.

10157². Hence it is that the whole Heaven relates to the Lord as to His Divine Human.

10159⁶. That Heaven in its whole complex relates to one man, is from the Lord's Divine Human . . .

10177⁴. The Lord as to the Divine Human is the Divine love itself.

10196². As to the Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' and as to the Divine Human which is called 'the Son,' the Lord is Divine love itself, thus Divine good itself; but as Heaven, which is below the Lord as a Sun, the Lord is Divine truth . . .

10252⁶. The reason the wise men from the east offered these things to the newly-born Lord, was that they signified His Divine in the Human.

10253³. See ANOINT at these refs. 10264. 10268. 10269². 10276². R. 779². E. 31⁵. 684². —¹⁰.

—⁴. Hence by 'garments' is signified His Divine Human; for whether you say the Lord's Divine Human, or Divine truth, it is the same . . .

10267. 'The oil of anointing of holiness' = a representative of the Lord as to the Divine Human . . . for this is the Holy itself in the Heavens; as the Angels do not know nor acknowledge any Divine but the Divine Human of the Lord; for they can think about this, and love it . . .

—². The incomprehensible Divine, which is called 'the Father,' is worshipped when the Lord as to the Divine Human is worshipped. Ill.

—^c. That the Lord's Divine Human is the all in all of Heaven, and that it is the Holy itself there. Refs.

10270². See CELESTIAL GOOD at this ref.

10285. Whether you say the Divine good of the Divine love, or the Divine Human, it is the same.

10359. The Divine in Heaven and the Church proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human, thus it is the Lord's Divine Human which alone is holy and makes holy.

10360. 'Thou shalt keep the Sabbath' = that the Lord's Divine Human is to be worshipped.

—⁶. They who reverently worship the Lord's Divine Human shall be in the Divine truths of Heaven and the Church. Sig.

—⁷. As by the Sabbath is signified the Lord as to the Divine Human, in which there is union . . .

10370. The essential itself of the Church is the acknowledgment of the union of the Divine itself in the Lord's Human, and that this must be in each and all things of worship. Sig. . . (For) 'to do the Sabbath' = reverently to worship this union, thus the Lord as to the Divine Human; for therein is this union.

10528. 'Angel,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord as to the Divine Human. Ill.

10579². (Thus) the Lord as to the Divine Human is Jehovah who is seen, and thus is the face of Jehovah.

—⁴. When Jehovah appeared (before the Lord's Advent) He appeared in the form of an Angel; for He clothed Himself with that form, which was the Human form . . . Thence, at that time, was the Divine Human . . .

—⁶. (Thus) the Lord even as to His Human is Jehovah; so that His Human is Divine. Sig.

10617. See JEHOVAH at this ref.

— As to the Divine itself and the Divine Human, the Lord is Divine good; and as to the Divine proceeding, He is Divine truth.

1073⁸⁴. Such is the idea the Angels have about the soul and the body. Hence they know that the Lord made His Human Divine from the Divine in Himself, which was His soul from the Father.

1078⁵. (The angelic Spirits from the Sixth Earth said that what had disturbed them was) the idea of the Divine without the Human in God . . . when yet they perceive that He is a Man.

1082⁰. All who are of the Church and are in light from Heaven, see the Divine in the Lord, and this in His Human; but they who are not in light from Heaven, see nothing but the Human in the Lord; when yet the Human and the Divine in Him are so united that they are one, as the Lord taught: 'Father, all Mine are Thine, and all Thine are Mine' (John xvii. 10).

1082⁵. (Thus) even the Human in the Lord is Divine.

H. 78. That Heaven in the whole and in the part relates to a man, is from the Lord's Divine Human. Gen. art. 250.

—². All these (propositions) lead to the conclusion, that, as the Divine makes Heaven, it is Human in form.

79. The Angels never perceive the Divine under any form than the Human one; and those in the higher Heavens cannot think otherwise about the Divine. Ex. . . . Hence it is that all there acknowledge the Lord, because the Divine Human exists only in Him. . . . The wiser the Angels are, the more clearly they perceive this; and hence it is that the Lord appears to them; for He appears in a Divine angelic form, which is the Human one, to those who acknowledge and believe in a visible Divine; but not to those who acknowledge and believe in an invisible Divine; for the former can see their Divine, but the latter cannot.

84. That the ancients had an idea of the Human in respect to the Divine, is evident from the appearances of the Divine to Abraham, Lot, Joshua, Gideon, Manoah, his wife, and others . . .

84. Appendix. Refs. to passages about the Lord and His Divine Human. N. 305.

—⁸. All who are in good as to life, when they think about the Lord, think about the Divine Human; and not about the Human separated from the Divine. Refs.

101. The correspondence there is with Heaven is with the Lord's Divine Human, because Heaven is from Him, and He is Heaven; for, unless the Divine Human flowed into all things of Heaven, and, according to correspondences, into all things of the world, no Angel or man would exist. Thus it is again evident why the Lord became a Man, and clothed His Divine with the Human from first to last, namely, because the Divine Human which was the source of Heaven before the Lord's Advent, no longer sufficed to support all things . . .

187 (z). 'The house of God,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord's Divine Human as to Divine good; 'the temple,' as to Divine truth.

227^e. The essential of all doctrines is to acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human.

250. To speak with the Angels is granted only to those who . . . are in the acknowledgment of the Divine in His Human, because this is the truth in which the Heavens are.

286. Divine peace is in the Lord, coming forth from the union of the Divine itself and the Divine Human in Him.

297². Immediate influx, which is of the Lord Himself, is from His Divine Human . . .

534². By the stone at the head of the two ways . . . upon which the evil fell, and from which they afterwards ran into the way leading to Hell . . . was signified the Lord's Divine Human.

N. 1². 'God and the Lamb' = the Lord as to the Divine itself and the Divine Human.

287. (Thus) the body or Human of the Lord was as the Divine itself . . .

288. That the Divine and the Human of the Lord are one Person (is evident from the Athanasian Creed). L. 29.

305². That the Divine Human from eternity was the Divine truth in Heaven, thus the Divine manifesting, which afterwards in the Lord became the Divine being, from which is the Divine manifesting in Heaven. Refs.

C. J. 74². I heard a certain presbyter saying that no one can have an idea of the Divine Human; and I saw him carried to various nations . . . and at last to the Christian Heaven . . . and he found that they had no other idea of God than the idea of a Man, which is the same as the idea of the Divine Human.

75⁰. When He was in the world, His Divine essence . . . rejected the finite nature and the life thereof from the mother, and thus made Divine his Human that was conceived and born in the world.

L. 3². That the Lord would come into the world to glorify His Human, that is, unite it to the Divine that was in Him from conception. Ill. 12, Gen. art.

19. That the Lord as to the Divine Human is called 'the Son of God;' and as to the Word, 'the Son of Man.' Gen. art.

—². That the Human of the Lord which was conceived from Jehovah the Father, and born from Mary the virgin, is 'the Son of God.' Ill.

20. As by 'the Son of God' is meant the Lord as to the Human which He took in the world, which is the Divine Human . . .

21. They think only of His Human, and not at the same time of His Divine; when yet His Divine and Human cannot be separated . . . Lest, therefore, man should hereafter in thought separate the Divine and the Human in the Lord, let him, I pray, read these passages. Ill.

29. That the Lord made His Human Divine from the Divine in Himself, and thus became one with the Father. Gen. art.

—². (Thus) the Divine cannot be separated from the Human, nor the Human from the Divine; for to separate them would be like separating soul and body. . . . As His soul was the Divine itself of the Father, it follows that His body or Human also became Divine.

30^e. By 'Lord' and also 'Jehovah,' after His Human was glorified, is meant the Divine and the Human together, as one; and by 'the Son,' alone, is meant the Divine Human.

[L.] 32. That the Lord made His Human Divine from the Divine in Himself. . . successively. Ill.

—². That the Divine operated through the Human, as the soul through the body. Ill.

—³. That the Divine and the Human operated unanimsously. Ill.

—⁴. That the Divine is united to the Human, and the Human to the Divine. Ill. 35⁸.

—⁵. That the Divine Human is to be approached. Ill. . . The reason is, that no one can see the Divine itself; but [they can] the Divine Human. Ill.

—⁶. As the Lord made His Human Divine from the Divine in Himself; and as this is to be approached; and as this is the Son of God; we are to believe in the Lord, who is both the Father and the Son. Ill.

—⁷. The Human itself from this Divine is 'the Son of God.' Now, as this also was made Divine, therefore, lest man should approach the Father alone . . . the Lord teaches that we are to believe in Him . . .

—^e. That the Human was made Divine in the Lord, cannot be apprehended . . . by many in Christendom, chiefly because they think about man from his material body . . . When yet all the Divine which proceeds from Jehovah God, from its primes in Heaven, to its ultimate in the world, tends into the Human form.

33. That the Lord made His Human Divine by means of temptations admitted into Himself, and then by means of continual victories. Gen.art.

34. That the full union of the Divine and the Human in Him was effected through the passion of the cross, which was the last of the temptations. Gen.art.

—³. From these passages it may be seen, that the Divine of the Lord, which is called 'the Father,' and here, 'Jehovah' and 'God;' and the Divine Human, which is called 'the Son,' and here, 'the Redeemer' and 'Saviour,' and also 'the Former,' that is, the Reformer and Regenerator, are not two, but one. . . From which it is evident, that the Divine and the Human in the Lord are one Person, and that the Human also is Divine; for the Redeemer and Saviour of the world is no other than the Lord as to the Divine Human, which is called 'the Son.' For redemption and salvation are an attribute proper to His Human . . . for it was His Human which endured temptations and the passion of the cross; thus He redeemed and saved by means of His Human. Now as after the union of the Human with the Divine in Himself, which was like that of the soul and body with man, they were no longer two, but one Person . . . it follows that the Lord is Jehovah and God as to both. Ill.

35. That the Lord successively put off the human taken from the mother, and put on a Human from the Divine in Himself, which is the Divine Human and the Son of God. Gen. art. T.102. 103^e.

— That the Lord was Divine and Human, Divine from Jehovah the Father, and Human from Mary the virgin, is known. Hence it is, that He was God and Man, having a Divine essence and a Human nature, a Divine essence from the Father, and a Human nature from the mother; and hence was equal to the Father as to the Divine, and less than the Father as to the Human: further, that this Human nature from the mother was not transmuted into the Divine essence, neither commingled with it, as the Athanasian doctrine teaches, (and as, indeed, is impossible). Moreover, from the same is our doctrine, that the Divine took the Human, that is, united it to itself, as the soul is united to its body; so that they were not two, but one Person. From this it follows, that the Lord put off the human from the mother, which in itself was like the human of another man, and thus material; and put on a Human from the Father, which, in itself, was like His Divine, and thus substantial; from which the Human also was made Divine. Ill. —⁷.

—⁶. The quality of His glorified Human, He showed . . . when He was transfigured . . .

—⁷. That the Lord's Human was glorified. Ill.

—⁹. As the Lord's Human was glorified, that is, made Divine, He rose with His whole body . . .

—¹¹. As the Lord ascended into Heaven . . . with the Human and the Divine united into one, it follows that His Human substance or essence is as His Divine one. Ex. and Ill.

59. The Lord assumed in the world a Human conceived of Jehovah . . . and born from the virgin Mary; hence He had both a Divine and a Human, a Divine from His Divine from eternity, and a Human from Mary in time; but this Human He put off, and put on the Human Divine. This is the Human which is called the Divine Human, and is meant by 'the Son of God.' (Agreement of this doctrine with the Athanasian one.)

S. 49. This power the Lord took even as to His Divine Human . . .

F. 35². It is a universal of faith that the Lord came into the world in order to glorify the Human which He took in the world, that is, to unite it to the Divine a quo. R.67. B.116. T.2.

W. 12. They who approach the Lord alone, think of the Divine Human, thus of God as a Man.

221². The second arcanum (which is explained by the doctrine of degrees) is that the Lord came into the world, and took a Human, in order to put Himself in power to subjugate the Hells, and to reduce all things into order . . . This Human He superinduced upon His former Human. The Human which He superinduced in the world was as the Human of a man in the world; yet both were Divine, and therefore infinitely transcending the finite humans of Angels and men. And, as He fully glorified the natural Human even to its ultimates, He rose with the whole body . . .

233. See DEGREE at this ref.

P. 255¹. The Orientals were not able to comprehend that He came into the world, and assumed the Human; as neither do Christians comprehend it, who, therefore, in their thought separate His Divine from His Human, and set the Divine near the Father in Heaven, and His Human they know not where.

262³. Who thinks that God and Man in Him, or His Divine and Human, are one Person; and that they are one as the soul and body are one? . . . when yet it is from . . . the creed of Athanasius . . .

—4. If you ask further, What is your idea of the Lord's Divine, and of His Human? they will say that His Divine is from the essence of the Father, and the Human from the essence of the mother; and that His Divine is with the Father. And if you then ask, Where is His Human? they will make no reply; for in idea they separate His Divine and His Human, and make the Divine equal to the Divine of the Father, and the Human like the human of another man . . .

—5. From this idea impressed about the Lord's Human . . . it has come to pass, that a Christian can scarcely be brought to think of the Divine Human . . .

—7. In the doctrine of all the Churches, it is stated that His Divine and Human are not two, but one Person, united as the soul and the body. But the first cause of their dividing the Human and the Divine, and making the Divine equal to the Divine of Jehovah the Father, and the Human equal to the human of another man, was that the Church fell away into Babylonia, which transferred the Lord's Divine power to itself, and in order that it might be called not Divine but human Power, they made the Lord's Human like the human of another man. And afterwards, when the Church was reformed, and faith alone was received . . . the Lord's Human could not be regarded differently, because no one can approach the Lord, and at heart acknowledge Him as the God of Heaven and earth, but he who lives according to His precepts. E.315³.

R. 6. They who from the heart, and thus in light, receive Divine truth from the Word, and acknowledge the Lord's Human to be Divine. Sig. E.10.

— By 'Jesus Christ,' and by 'the Lamb,' in the Apocalypse, is meant the Lord as to the Divine Human; and by 'God,' the Lord as to the Divine itself a quo. 15. E.26.

17⁶. The Lord is 'the First-begotten from the dead,' because, as to His Human also, He is truth itself united to Divine good . . .

29. 'I am Alpha and Omega, etc.' = who is the Self and Sole from primes to ultimates, from whom all things are; thus, who is the self and sole love, the self and sole wisdom, and the self and sole life in itself; and is thus the self and sole Creator, Saviour, and Enlightener from Himself, and thence all in all of Heaven and the Church. These things and still more which are contained in these words . . . were said of the Lord, and, in fact, of His Human. E. 41.

59. 'And was dead' = that He was neglected, and His Divine Human not acknowledged.

— His Divine from eternity is indeed acknowledged . . . but His Human is not acknowledged to be Divine, although the Divine and Human in Him are as soul and body . . . When, therefore, His Divine is separated from His Human, by saying that His Human is not Divine, but like the human of another man, He is then dead among men. 93.

93⁶. It is the primary falsity of those who are signified by this Church (of Smyrna), that they do not acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human, and therefore do not approach Him.

97³. He who is in this falsity, that he believes that the Divine in the Lord's Human is not as the soul in the body, cannot do good from Him. Sig.

193⁶. For the Lord . . . made His Human Divine as He makes man spiritual; He first implants in him truths from the Word, and afterwards unites them to good . . . T.105.

256, Preface. That the Lord in the Divine Human will effect judgment from the Word and according to it, because He is the Word; and that this is acknowledged by all in the three Heavens. Tr. 273, Sig. and III. E.319.

256. See DIVINE ITSELF at this ref.

269. 'A Lamb standing as if slain' = the Lord as to His Human not acknowledged in the Church to be Divine. E.315.

276. Confession of the Lord's Divine Human from spiritual truths. Sig.

277. Confession of the Lord's Divine Human from spiritual goods. Sig.

281. Jehovah is the Lord from eternity; consequently, the Lord's Divine Human, with which there must be conjunction, is the Divine Human of Jehovah Himself. 743².

288. That the Lord as to His Divine Human has omnipotence, omniscience, Divine good and Divine truth. Sig.

291. That in the Lord from eternity, and thence in His Divine Human, is the all of Heaven and of the Church, Divine good and Divine truth, and Divine power; and from Him in those who are in Heaven and the Church. Sig.

294¹. It was further said to them, that from thought about the Lord's Human, they should say Divine Human; but none of the clergy were able; but some of the laity were able. . . The following passages were then read to them: 'the Father hath given all things into the hand of the Son' (John iii.35). 'The Father hath given to the Son Power over all flesh' (John xvii.2). 'All things are delivered unto Me by My Father' (Matt. xi.27). 'All Power is given unto Me in Heaven and in earth' (Matt. xxviii.18): and it was said to them, Keep in mind from these, that not only as to His Divine, but also as to His Human, Christ is the God of Heaven and earth, and so utter Divine Human. But still they could not . . . Afterwards was read to them from Luke i.32-35, that the Lord as to His Human was the Son of Jehovah God; and that as to His Human He is everywhere in the Word called 'the Son of God,' and also 'the Only-begotten:' and they were requested to keep this in the thought . . . and to utter Divine Human. But they said, We cannot, because our spiritual thought . . . does not admit into the thought next the speech any ideas but what are similar to it . . . Then were read to them these words of the Lord to Philip (in John xiv.); and other passages; that the Father and He are one . . . and it was said to them that they should keep this in the thought, and so say Divine Human. But as that thought was not rooted in the acknowledgment that the Lord was God even as to His Human, they could not. They twisted their lips . . . even to indignation, and wanted . . . to force it out; but were not able . . .

Further, there was read to them (from the Athanasian Creed) that the Divine and the Human in the Lord are not two, but one, yea, one Person, being united altogether as the soul and the body. And it was said to them, From this you can certainly have the idea from acknowledgment that the Lord's Human is Divine, because His soul is Divine . . . They retained this idea, and from it wanted to utter Divine Human; but they could not; for the interior idea about the Lord's Human expunged this new idea . . . Again, there was read to them, 'The Word was with God, and God was the Word; and the Word was made flesh;' and, 'In Jesus Christ dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily;' and it was said to them, that they should think firmly that God who was the Word was made flesh; and that all the Divine dwells in Him bodily; and perhaps they might thus utter Divine Human. But still they could not; saying openly that they could not have the idea of a Divine Human, because God is God, and man is man; and God is a Spirit, of which we can only think as of wind . . . At last it was said to them, You know that the Lord said, 'Abide in Me and I in you: he that abideth in Me and I in him, beareth much fruit; for without Me ye can do nothing' (John xv.4,6). And as some of the English clergy were present, this was read to them out of one of their exhortations before the Holy Communion: For, when we spiritually eat the flesh of Christ, and drink His blood, then we dwell in Christ, and Christ in us. If now you think that this cannot be unless the Lord's Human is Divine, utter Divine Human from acknowledgment in the thought. But still they could not; so deeply was the idea impressed upon them, that the Lord's Divine was one thing, and His Human another; and that His Divine was like the Divine of the Father, and the Human like the human of another man. They afterwards turned to the Lutherans, saying that the Augustan Confession and Luther taught that the Son of God and the Son of Man in Christ are one Person; and that He, even as to His Human nature, is the true, omnipotent, and eternal God . . . thus that in Christ God is Man and Man God. On hearing this, they answered, Is it so? . . . We did not know this before, and therefore we cannot . . . We have read it, and written it; but still, while we thought about it in ourselves . . . they were only words, of which we had no interior idea. At last, turning to the Papists, they said, Perhaps you can say Divine Human, because you believe that in the bread and wine . . . is the entire Christ; and you also adore Him as God when you carry round the host; also because you call Mary the mother of God . . . And they wanted to utter it from these ideas of their thought about the Lord; but could not, on account of their material idea of His Body and Blood; and on account of their declaration that the Human Power, and not the Divine, was transferred by Him to the Pope. And one of the monks said that he could think of a Divine Human in relation to the virgin Mary . . . and also in relation to the saint of his monastery. And another monk . . . From the idea of my thought I can say Divine Human of the Pope . . . After this, Heaven was seen to be opened, and there were seen tongues like little flames descending and flowing in with some; and these then celebrated the Lord's Divine Human, saying,

Remove the idea of three gods, and believe that in the Lord dwells all the fulness of the Godhead bodily; and that the Father and He are one, as the soul and body are one; and that God is not wind or ether, but that He is Man; and then you will be conjoined with Heaven, and will thereby be able from the Lord to speak the name Jesus, and to say Divine Human. T.711.

[R.] 325. That those who were hated and rejected . . . on account of . . . their acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine Human, were guarded by the Lord lest they should be led astray. Sig. 329.

383. 'The Lamb in the midst of the throne'=the Lord as to His Divine Human in the inmost, and so in all things of Heaven.

464. Preface. The exploration (of the Reformed) as to what they believe . . . about the Lord's Human being Divine: and that this is not received there, and can with difficulty be received so long as . . . justification by faith alone is seated in their hearts. Tr.

464. In Rev.x. and xi., it treats about the Lord . . . that He is God even as to the Human. 469.

465°. (In the Sun above the Heavens) He is in His Divine from eternity, and at the same time in His Divine Human, which are one, as soul and body.

468. The reason His feet were seen as pillars of fire, is that the Lord's Divine Natural, which, in itself, is the Divine Human that He begot in the world, supports His Divine from eternity, as the body does the soul . . .

469°. That 'the brazen serpent'=the Lord as to the Divine Human. Sig.

481. That the Lord is the Saviour is agreeable . . . but that His Human is Divine is disagreeable and difficult, owing to falsifications. Sig. and Ex.

485. Preface. (The first essential of the New Church, is) that the Lord is the God . . . and that His Human is Divine. Tr. (See under ESSENTIAL.)

504. 'Where our Lord was crucified'=the non-acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine Human. . . They who deny His Human to be Divine are like the Jews . . . And he who regards His Human as being equal to the human of another man cannot then think of His Divine . . . In that state, he is therefore as if he denied it; for he denies that His Human is the Son of God . . .

520. Celebration by the Angels, that Heaven and the Church . . . have now also become the kingdom of His Divine Human. Sig.

— . By 'our Lord' is meant the Lord from eternity; and by 'Christ,' His Divine Human, which is 'the Son of God.'

—². That the Lord will reign even as to His Divine Human. III.

— . Add to this, that unless the Lord's Human is acknowledged to be Divine, the Church perishes; as the Lord cannot then be in man and man in the Lord . . .

—³. The reason the Lord's Divine Human is meant by 'Christ,' is that Christ is Messiah, and the Messiah is the Son of God whom they expected.

548². By 'Gabriel' is meant the ministry of those who teach from the Word that Jehovah came into the world, and that the Human which He there begot is the Son of God, and Divine.

565. Those who believe themselves wise on account of confirmations in favour of the mystical union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord. Sig. and Ex. —².

571. 'Upon his heads the name of blasphemy' = the denial of the Lord's Divine Human. 584.

— The reason it is blasphemy to deny the Divine of the Lord in His Human, is that he who denies this is against the faith received in the whole Christian world . . . where it is plainly said, that in Jesus Christ God and Man, that is, the Divine and the Human, are not two, but one . . . Wherefore, they who deny the Divine in His Human are not far from the Socinians and Arians . . .

589. 'Slain from the foundation of the world' = the Lord's Divine Human not acknowledged from the first establishment of the Church. E. 807.

613. 'Having His Father's name written in their foreheads' = the acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine and Divine Human from love and faith; (for) they are one and one Person, united like soul and body. Ex. . . Consequently, the Lord as to the Divine Human is to be approached; and in this way, and no other, the Divine called the Father is approached. Ill.

618². The Lord glorified His Human, that is, united it to the Divine of the Father, that is, to the Divine that was in Him from conception, in order that the human race might be united to God the Father in Him and through Him. Ill.

—⁴. Who cannot see that all these things were said by the Lord concerning Himself in His Human; and that He never would have said . . . that He was in men and men in Him, and that we must believe in Him in order to have eternal life, unless His Human was Divine?

—^e. That 'the name of the Father' is the Lord as to the Divine Human. Refs. 839⁶.

662. 'The Song of the Lamb' = confession . . . from faith in the Divinity of the Lord's Human. E. 936.

664. The Lord is called 'King' in His Divine Human, because this is the Messiah, the Anointed, the Christ, the Son of God.

692. That on account of the delight of self-love originating from grievous concupiscences of evils, they did not acknowledge the Divinity of the Lord's Human. Sig. 693.

738². By the other king who is not yet come, and who when he cometh must remain but a short time, is signified the Divine truth which has not yet come into question, and when it does, will not remain with them, that the Lord's Human is Divine. Ex.

—³. (The Divine Human as acknowledged in the Eucharist by them.) Fully Ex.

743. See LAMB at this ref.

812². When the Lord's Human is acknowledged to be Divine, there is a full marriage of the Lord and the Church . . . Before the Lord's Human is acknowledged to be Divine, there is indeed a marriage of the Lord with the Church, but only with those who approach the Lord, and think of His Divine, and not at all whether His Human is Divine or not. The simple do this . . . but rarely the learned.

VOL. II.

820². The Human He . . . made Divine was the natural Human, which He could make Divine only by taking to Himself a Human in a virgin . . . to which He then united His Divine which He had from eternity.

839⁶. We in Heaven . . . think of Him in His Divine Human, because in this He is visible; and in this He is called by you Christ, but by us the Lord.

882. 'The tabernacle of God is with men' = (the Lord evangelizing from love,) that He will now be present with men in His Divine Human.

954. 'I am the Root and the Offspring of David' = that He is that Lord who was born in the world, and thus the Lord in His Divine Human.

960. The Lord . . . testifying this Gospel,—that in His Divine Human which He took up in the world, and glorified, He comes as the Bridegroom and Husband . . . Sig.

961³. In Him is the Divine being itself . . . to which the soul in man corresponds; the Divine Human, to which the body in man corresponds; and the Divine proceeding, to which the activity in man corresponds. This Trine is a one, because from the Divine a quo is the Divine Human; and thence from the Divine a quo through the Divine Human is the Divine proceeding.

962². The first question discussed was, Who assumed the Human in the virgin Mary? That it was Jehovah. Ill.

—³. (Thus) we see that the Lord's Human is Divine, because it is the Human of Jehovah . . . Ill.

—¹⁰. See HOLY SPIRIT at this ref.

B. 89. This draconic faith, which is a faith hatched from the idea of three gods, and from no idea of the Divinity in respect to the Human nature of Christ . . .

108. With the Roman Catholics, there is the idea of Divine majesty in the Lord's Human, more than with the Reformed; as is evident from the most holy reverence of the host.

T. 40. As the Divine itself . . . lives in itself, so also the Human, which it assumed in time, lives in itself. Sig.

73³. God could not . . . make His Human Divine, unless His Human were at first as the human of an infant, and afterwards as the human of a boy; and unless the Human afterwards formed itself into a receptacle and dwelling into which its Father might enter; which was done by fulfilling all things of the Word . . .

81. By the Lord the Redeemer, we mean Jehovah in the Human . . .

93². 'The Holy One of Israel' = the Lord as to the Divine Human. Ex.

94². By this fiction (of a Son of God born from eternity) the Lord's Human is indeed . . . elevated to the Divine; but not with those who by the hypostatic union understand a union as between two of whom one is above and the other below.

98. That the Father and the Son, that is, the Divine and the Human in the Lord, are united like soul and body, is indeed according to the faith of the present Church . . . yet hardly five in a hundred know it. Ex.

—². First, it shall be demonstrated, that the union of the Father and the Son or of the Divine and the Human in the Lord, is as the union of soul and body; and afterwards, that this union is reciprocal. 99.

P

[T.] 109. The Glorification of the Lord is the Glorification of His Human which He assumed in the world, and the glorified Human of the Lord is the Divine Natural. (For) the Lord rose with His whole body. . . consequently, He took with Him the natural Human itself from primes to ultimates. . . (Thus) His natural body was made Divine. . . Hence . . . in the universal Spiritual World, the Lord alone is a full Man.

112⁴. 'Father, all Mine are Thine, and all Thine are Mine' (evidently means) that the Divine of the Father belongs to the Human of the Son, and the Human of the Son to the Divine of the Father . . .

—⁵. (Thus) the Divine of the Father is the soul of the Son, and the Human of the Son is the body of the Father . . .

136⁴. 'To sit at the right hand' means the omnipotence of God through the Human He assumed in the world . . .

154⁶. The soul acts in the body and into the body, but not through the body; but the body acts of itself from the soul . . . It is like this with the Divine and the Human of the Lord; for the Divine of the Father is the soul of His Human; and the Human is His body; and the Human does not ask its Divine to tell it what to speak and do. Sig.

170⁶. From this every man may be convinced if he will, that the Human of the Lord is Divine; consequently, that in Him God is Man, and Man God.

299. 'The blasphemy against the Holy Spirit' means blasphemy against the Divinity of the Lord's Human, and against the holiness of the Word.

538². He was conceived from the power of the Highest through the Holy Spirit, and His Human was born thence of the virgin Mary; whence it follows, that His soul was the Divine itself . . . and that the Human born thence is the Human of God the Father.

581⁶. Unless He had glorified His Human, that is, made it Divine . . .

619⁶. One (of the spheres from modern Christendom) is that respecting the Lord . . . Wherever it goes, it secretly enters the ideas, and with many takes away faith in the Divinity of the Lord's Human, with many weakens it, and with many makes it foolishness . . .

716. That the Lord is in the Holy Supper wholly, both as to His glorified Human, and as to the Divine from which is the Human. Sig. —.

777². Since the Lord ascended into Heaven He is in the glorified Human, and in this He cannot appear to any man unless He first opens the eyes of his spirit, and this cannot be done with anyone who is in evils and thence in falsities. Sig. . . Neither did the apostles see the Lord in the glorified Human before His resurrection with the eyes of the body, but in spirit . . . as is evident from His Transfiguration . . .

795⁶. They who, like the Arians, have denied the Divinity of the Lord's Human, come among these (in Hell) after death.

Ad. 3/2551. (The Divine and the Human essence mentioned.) 2554. 3744.

D. 4442. I was let into the sublime idea that these three are one. . . The Divine was for the celestial, the Human for the rest who were beneath, and the Divine too, but applicable to them; and the Holy proceeding was all the sphere thence derived.

4629. The influx into the universal Heaven is from the Lord's Divine Human: hence, as the Divine Human there is all in all, the universal Heaven represents a man, and all the particular things with man correspond to the Societies there.

4829. (The present action of the Divine Human upon men shown by withdrawing it.)

4844. On the Lord's Divine Human, that it is everywhere acknowledged in Heaven.

—. Every man who has not destroyed His Rational . . . has an idea about the Divine Human . . . This Divine Human exists nowhere else than with the Lord . . .

4845⁶. That the Divine Human is in Heaven, is the fundamental of wisdom, because of thought . . . Hence it is evident, that the Lord as to the Divine Human is the all of Heaven and the all of the wisdom of the Angels there.

4846. The Divine in Heaven before the Lord's Advent was the Lord's Divine Human . . . wherefore everything proceeding from the Divine was at that time in a Human form . . . Hence follows the necessity . . . that He should put on the Human actually.

4847. By means of the Lord's Divine Human, order was restored even to the ultimate of life, which is the Sensuous . . .

5032. On the Lord's Divine Human in the Heavens from this Earth.

—. The Divine Human is everywhere acknowledged in Heaven, except in the Heaven which originated from Christendom in this Earth. But this is the case only in the ultimate Heavens. . . Therefore, those from this Earth who are of such a character that they can be elevated into the Third Heaven, at once come into the perception that God exists under a Human form . . . The inmost ones also in the Spiritual Heaven . . . are also in this perception when they turn themselves towards the Celestial Kingdom.

5244². Thus it is evident that the Lord's Human could not do otherwise than become Divine to the likeness of its Father.

5775. The Divine Human is what inflows into Heaven, and makes it. Before the Lord's Advent, the Divine Human which is the Lord from eternity was this form of Heaven . . . Hence is it everywhere implanted in men . . . to worship the Divine under a Human form . . . And hence, too, it is, that the Angels who are in the interior Heaven, and especially those who are in the inmost, or as soon as they are elevated into the higher sphere, cannot do otherwise than think about the Divine under a Human form.

5811³. Dahlborg said that he had sought, but had not found anyone who had not an idea of the Divine Human; he was then carried to those who were chiefly from the converted gentiles, who had an idea of the Divine Human, and from the Africans, who had so just a one as to exceed belief. . . J.(Post.)122.

5819. All are preserved in Heaven who in the world have acknowledged the Divine of the Lord, and have lived well ; most especially those who have acknowledged the Divine Human . . .

D. Min. 4609. (Danger of getting an idea of the Divine Human from the bodily things in ourselves.)

E. 10. Those who at heart acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human. Sig.

— For the Divine in His Human is as the soul in the body ; wherefore, to think of the Lord's Human, and not at the same time of His Divine, is like thinking of a man abstractedly from his soul or life, which is not to think of a man.

—². That the Divine of the Lord is in His Human, and that together they are one person, is taught by (the Athanasian Creed).

23°. The Divine which makes Heaven is the Divine Human, which is the Divine manifesting from the Divine being. 69°.

26. 'From Jesus Christ'=the Lord as to the Divine Human ; as is evident from the fact, that this was the Lord's name in the world, thus the name of His Human . . . It is said the Divine Human, because the Lord made His Human Divine when He was in the world ; for He united it to His Divine that was in Him from conception, and which was His soul from the Father . . . and the body, which is the Human, lives therefrom ; wherefore, when the Divine was united to the Human in the Lord, as the soul is united to the body, it is called the Divine Human. . . Therefore, they who think of the Lord's Human, and not at the same time of His Divine, do not at all admit the term Divine Human ; for they think separately of the Human, and separately of the Divine . . .

—^e. From which it will appear in what light the Church would be in respect to the Divine . . . if it were to acknowledge and believe in the Divine Human of the Lord.

27. 'The faithful witness,' when said of the Lord, = the acknowledgment of the Divine Human, from which is all truth in Heaven. Ex.

— The Angels of the interior Heaven cannot think otherwise of the Divine than as under a Human form, thus of the Divine Human ; because the Lord's Divine Human fills the universal Heaven and forms it, and the thoughts of the Angels flow according to the form of Heaven. Hence it is, that 'the testimony of Jesus Christ'=the acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine in His Human. 52.

—². 'To bear witness of the Light'=the acknowledgment of His Divine Human from which Divine truth proceeds.

30°. They have thought of the Lord's Human as of the human of another man, and not at the same time of the Divine in His Human, rejecting the term Divine Human ; and they who so thought of the Lord's Human, could not but think materially of His flesh and blood . . .

43. 'The Word'=the Divine truth in the Heavens . . . and that this is the Lord as to the Divine Human is evident, because it is said 'the Word was made flesh' . . .

—^e. That the Lord's Divine Human is, lives, and has ability from itself, equally with the Divine itself. Sig.

45°. The Divine which has revealed itself is the Divine Human ; and without the acknowledgment of the Divine in the Lord's Human there is no salvation . . .

48°. 'The Kingdom of God' . . . in the supreme sense, = the Lord as to His Divine Human.

49. 'In the expectation of Jesus Christ'=where there is the Knowledge of the Lord's Divine in His Human . . . (For) the Church will know the Lord when it acknowledges the Divine in His Human. . . The modern Church indeed knows that the Divine is in the Lord's Human ; for it knows according to the received doctrine that the Divine and Human are not two but a single Person . . . Still, it does not know that the Lord's Human is Divine, for it separates the one from the other, as is evident from the fact that it does not admit the term Divine Human ; and also that it approaches the Father . . . when yet the Divine itself in Heaven is the Divine Human. 52.

63°. 'The Son of Man'=the Lord as to the Divine Human. —⁶. 77°. 146°. 151.

64°. 'The beloved Son'=His Divine Human.

—³. That the Lord's Divine Human was thus seen (at the Transfiguration) is evident, because the Divine itself cannot appear to anyone except through the Divine Human. Sig.

66°. His Divine in ultimates was His Human, which He made Divine even to the flesh and bones, which are the ultimates. 513¹⁹. 619¹⁵.

70°. A serpent of brass was made ; and it=that if they looked to the Lord's Divine Human . . . they would have eternal life.

77°. That the Lord as to the Divine Human was He who was seen by Daniel and Ezekiel . . .

96. The reason why the Lord as to His Divine Human is described by representatives in Rev.i., is that something might thence be taken to be prefixed to the description of each Church, for a testimony and a memorial that the all of the Church is from the Lord, and, in fact, from His Divine Human ; for from this proceed every good of love and truth of faith which constitute the Church . . . 151, Ex. —⁶.

102. 'The name of Jehovah,' or of 'the Lord,' in the supreme sense, = His Divine Human ; and, in the relative sense, all the things of love and faith through which the Lord is worshipped ; because these are the Divine things which proceed from His Divine Human. —⁵.

—⁵. 'Hallowed be Thy name'=that the Lord's Divine Human is to be held in reverence, and worshipped.

113. 'The First and the Last'=the Lord, who, from primes through ultimates, rules all things from the Divine Human. (For) it is the Lord as to the Divine Human who here speaks to the Angels of the Churches.

—³. As 'the Son of Man'=the Lord as to the Divine Human, it follows that all things written to the Churches are from the Lord's Divine Human ; and hence it also follows that the Divine Human is the all in all of the Church, as it is the all in all of Heaven.

—^e. This I can assert, that no one who is within the Church, and does not acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human, can enter into Heaven. To acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human, is to think of His Divine when thinking of His Human. The reason we are to think thus, is that the whole Heaven is from His Divine Human,

[E.] 114. The Lord is said to be rejected . . . when He is approached and worshipped only as to His Human, and not at the same time as to the Divine. 114⁷.

—². But the Lord's Divine Human falls into the idea of the thought and thus into faith, and thence into the . . . love.

—³. (Thus) the Lord is rejected by those within the Church who immediately approach the Father . . . for these cannot but think of the Lord's Human as of the human of another man, and not at the same time of His Divine in the Human, and still less of His Divine being conjoined with His Human as the soul is conjoined with the body . . .

—⁴. The men of the present Church do indeed think of the Divine of the Lord in His Human while they are speaking from doctrine; but quite differently when they are thinking and speaking with themselves without doctrine . . .

77³. The presence of the Lord's Divine Human with a man who is in humiliation of heart, is of such a character that he falls on his face, and is raised up on his feet by the touch of His hand. Sig.

115². The spiritual affection of truth, which is to love truth because it is truth, is granted only to those who are conjoined with the Lord by the acknowledgment of and faith in His Divine in the Human; as all the truth of Heaven and the Church is from no other source than the Lord's Divine Human . . .

135. 'Thou holdest fast My name' = the acknowledgment of the Divine in the Lord's Human.

— (These goods and truths) cannot flow in with man unless he thinks of the Lord's Divine at the same time as he thinks of His Human; His Divine is not separated from the Human, but is in the Human. I can assert from all my experience in connection with the Spiritual World, that no one is in the truths of faith and the goods of love, but he who thinks of the Lord's Divine at the same time as he thinks of His Human; and also that no one is spiritual, or is an Angel, unless he had been in this thought and consequent acknowledgment in the world. In order to be saved, man must be conjoined with the Divine in his faith and love; and all conjunction is with the Lord; and to be conjoined only with His Human and not at the same time with the Divine, is not conjunction; for the Divine saves, and not the Human without the Divine.

137. 'The days wherein Antipas was My faithful martyr' = in that time and state wherein all are hated who profess the Lord's Divine Human. Ex.

—³. That such are hated by all those who do not think of the Lord's Divine at the same time as they think of His Human, (only appears) in the other life, where they burn with hatred against them . . . The reason is, that all in the Hells are against the Lord . . . and they who are of the Church, and do not acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human, act as one with the Hells.

138^o. None are let into spiritual temptations but those who acknowledge the Lord's Divine in His Human, and are in the spiritual affection of truth. All others are natural men.

146. 'The hidden manna' = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

—³. This (delight of celestial love) no one can receive but he who acknowledges the Lord's Divine Human; for from this it proceeds.

—^e. It is the same thing whether you say the Lord's Divine Human, or the Divine love . . .

148. None are in love to the Lord but those who acknowledge the Divine in His Human . . . with those who live according to the Lord's precepts, and acknowledge the Divine in His Human, the interior mind is opened, and then the man becomes spiritual; but they who do not so live, nor acknowledge, remain natural.

—². As the Divine under a Human form is the Lord's Divine Human, the Lord bends and determines to Himself the thoughts and affections of those (who think about God under a Human form). And as this is the primary of the Church, it continually flows in with man from Heaven, and therefore it is as it were implanted in everyone to think of the Divine under a Human form . . . Hence . . . after death . . . they who have worshipped the Divine under a Human form turn to the Lord . . . But they who have not worshipped the Divine under a Human form are turned to the loves of their natural man . . .

—³. All who lived in ancient times and worshipped the Divine, in thought saw the Divine under a Human form . . . and the Divine under a Human form, even then, was the Divine Human. But as this Divine Human was the Divine of the Lord in the Heavens and passing through them, when Heaven became weak from the fact that the men from whom Heaven is become more and more external . . . it pleased Him to put on the Divine Human, and to glorify it or make it Divine, that thus He might . . . save those who acknowledge and worship His Divine in the Human.

—⁴. The Lord as to the Human is meant by 'the Word' (in John i.); and that He made His Human Divine, by the words, 'the Word was with God, and God was the Word,' and this 'was made flesh,' that is, man. And as all Divine truth proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human . . . 'the Word' also = Divine truth . . . 852^d.

—⁵. 'To believe in the Lord's name' = to acknowledge His Divine Human, and to receive from Him love and faith.

183¹⁰. As Divine truth proceeds from the Lord's glorified Human, and not immediately from His Divine itself . . . it is said, 'The Holy Spirit was not yet, because Jesus was not yet glorified.' 343.

—¹¹. As the Divine and Human of the Lord . . . are united like soul and body, it may be known that the Divine which is called the Holy Spirit proceeds from His Divine through the Human, thus from the Divine Human; for nothing can proceed from the body except as from the soul through the body . . .

— The reason they distinguished the Divine and Human of the Lord into two natures, and said that the Lord is God from the nature of the Father, and Man from the nature of the mother, was that they did not know that when the Lord fully glorified His Human, He put off the human from the mother, and put on a Human from the Father. 205⁶.

209. 'Not to deny My name'=to acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human.

—². There are two principal things of the Church: to acknowledge the Lord's Divine in His Human, and to make truths from the Word of one's life. No one can be in the one unless he is at the same time in the other; for all truths which become of the life are from the Lord, and this with those who acknowledge the Divine in His Human. For the Lord flows in with all . . . from His Divine Human; and not from the Divine separate, nor from the Human separate; wherefore, they who in their thought separate the Divine of the Lord from His Human, and look to the Divine of the Father . . . as being above it . . . do not receive any influx from the Lord . . .

—⁴. These things were said to Peter when he acknowledged the Divine of the Lord in His Human; by which is also meant that they have power who acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human, and, from Him, are in the good of charity and thence in the truths of faith.

220⁵. 'The veil of the temple rent' . . . =the union of the Lord's Divine Human with the Divine itself. 400⁴.

224. 'My new name'=that they will acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human.

— . They who will be of the New Jerusalem will all acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human . . .

228. See DIVINE TRUTH at these refs. 748.

293. 'Thou art worthy, etc.'=the merit and justice which appertain to the Lord's Divine Human, that from it are all Divine truth and Divine good, and salvation.

314⁹. As 'a lamb'=innocence, by 'the Lamb' in the supreme sense is signified the Lord as to the Divine Human; for the Lord as to it was innocence itself.

315. The Lord Himself is indeed acknowledged in the Church, and also His Divine, but, as to the Human, as another man . . . Hence it is that His Divine Human is not acknowledged.

316¹⁶. 'The habitation of His sanctuary was cast down'=the denial of the Lord's Divine Human, and the consequent vastation of the Church. 'The Prince of the army'=the Lord as to the Divine Human, because from it proceed all the truths and goods which make the Church.

319. That these things are from His Divine Human, Sig.

321. The acknowledgment that the Human of the Lord is Divine, and that it has omnipotence and omniscience. Sig. 322. 327.

326. 'They sang a new song'=the acknowledgment and confession that the Lord as to the Divine Human has all Power in the Heavens and on earth.

328⁶. Wherefore, to acknowledge the Divine in the Lord's Human or the Divine Human is the primary of the Church, by which there is conjunction; and as it is the primary it is also the first of the Church. . . (Therefore) the Lord so often asked whether they believed, and said, 'According to your faith be it unto you;' in order that they might first believe that He had Divine omnipotence from His Divine Human . . .

337. 'Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, etc.'=acknowledgment in heart that everything Divine is from the Lord's Divine Human not acknowledged and by many denied.

349⁷. 'The Son'=the Lord's Divine Human, which in like manner is life itself . . .

—¹⁰. That His Human was equally Divine with the Divine itself that assumed the Human, is evident from the fact that they are both called 'God;' for it is said, 'the Word was with God, and God was the Word;' and 'in Him was life.'

365⁶. The union of His Divine Human with the Divine itself that was in Him from conception. Tr.

401⁹. 'Until there be no moon'=the Lord as to His Divine Human, that this will be the Divine good of the Divine love.

422¹⁵. The New Church . . . when everything Divine will proceed from His Divine Human. Sig. —¹⁶.

649³. At the end of the Church the Lord is indeed preached, and, from doctrine, the Divine is ascribed to Him like the Divine of the Father; yet hardly anyone thinks of His Divine, because they set it above or outside of His Human . . . (For) while the Divine is separated from His Human, His Divine is not acknowledged interiorly . . .

684²⁸. 'Arise O Jehovah to Thy rest, Thou and the ark of Thy strength'=the union of the Divine itself with the Human in the Lord, and thence peace to all in Heaven and the Church. 'The rest of Jehovah'=that union.

696¹⁶. 'Levi,' here, =the Lord as to the Divine Human.

701⁸. 'Because He hath set for me a covenant of eternity'=that from the union of His Human with the Divine He has conjunction with the men of the Church.

735. See MICHAEL at this ref.

— . The reason they who are in faith separated from charity are against the Divine Human, is that most of those who have confirmed themselves in faith alone are merely natural and sensuous; and the natural and sensuous man separated from the spiritual cannot have any idea of the Divine in the Human; for they think naturally and sensuously about the Lord's Human . . . and hence in the idea of their thought they set the Divine of the Lord above His Human, and thus completely separate the Divine and the Human of the Lord . . . 749⁹.

741¹². That the Lord has glory and Power from the Human which He united to His Divine. Sig.

749. 'By the word of their testimony'=by the confession and acknowledgment of the Divine in His Human. . . . They who are in this acknowledgment, are also in the acknowledgment that the Human of the Lord is Divine . . .

759⁴. They who . . . do not acknowledge the Divine in the Lord's Human . . . cannot have the understanding enlightened . . .

803¹⁰. That neither is there in (that faith) . . . and acknowledgment of the Divine in His Human. Ex.

[E.] 808³. 'He that hath an ear, let him hear' especially means that they should believe that the Divine of the Lord is in His Human, that is, that His Human is Divine. Who cannot but wonder that the idea of the Divine Human is completely destroyed in the Christian Churches . . . and that it is only with the simple that there remains anything of it? . . .

—⁴. That in primeval times, the inhabitants of this Earth had an idea of the Divine Human, is evident from their idols . . .

—⁶. Hence it is, that even from the first establishment of the Church they separated the Divine of the Lord from His Human . . .

852⁹. As the Human of the Lord was Divine from the Divine in Himself . . .

864. They who are adjoined to the Lord by the acknowledgment of His Divine Human. Sig.

—². The reason why to acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human, and to do His precepts, is to 'follow' Him, is that no others can be conjoined with the Lord. Ex.

865. They who are received into the New Church acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human, and live according to His precepts; no others are received into the New Church . . .

— Hence it is, that those who do not acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human, and do not live according to His precepts in the Word, cannot be consociated with the Angels . . .

899¹⁴. The Lord willed to die and rise again, in order that He might put off all the human He had from the mother, and put on the Divine Human; for all (the former) human He rejected by temptations and at last by death, and, by the putting on of a Human from the Divine itself that was in Him, He glorified Himself, that is, made His Human Divine. Sig.

956⁶. As, from the general influx from Heaven, man in his spirit sees that God is a Man, it follows that if those who are of the Church . . . shun evils as sins . . . they see the Divine in the Lord's Human . . .

1077³. From this reciprocal union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord, proceeds the reciprocal union of Divine good and Divine truth . . . also the reciprocal union of the Lord with Heaven and the Church; and, in general, the reciprocal union of good and truth with an Angel of Heaven and a man of the Church . . .

1091. At the end of the articles of this chapter, I will show that the Lord as to His Human was God, that is, that His Human was Divine. 1107³. —⁵. 1108².

1104². The Athanasian doctrine teaches that in the Lord there are two essences, Divine and Human; and in that doctrine the idea is clear that the Lord has a Divine and a Human, or that He is God and Man; but the idea is obscure, that the Lord's Divine is in His Human as the soul is in the body. Shown.

—³. As a clear idea prevails over an obscure one, most . . . think of the Lord as a common man . . . if they think of His Divine, they separate it from the Human . . . If they are asked, Where is His Divine? they reply, In Heaven with the Father. The reason is, that it is repugnant to think that the Human is Divine . . . not being aware, that when they thus separate the Lord's Divine from His Human, they are not only thinking contrary to their own doctrine, which teaches that the Lord's Divine is in His Human as the soul is in the body . . . but also that they are charging that doctrine with fallacy, to the effect that the Lord's Human together with the rational soul was from the mother alone; when yet every man is rational from the soul, which is from the father. . . Reader, you may suppose that you have never in thought separated the Lord's Divine from His Human, thus neither the Human from the Divine; but pray consult your thought, when you have determined it to the Lord, as to whether you have ever thought that the Lord's Divine is in His Human as the soul is in the body . . . Are you not thinking of His Human and of His Divine as being separate from each other? And when you think of His Human, do you not think of it as being like the human of another man; and when of His Divine, that it is with the Father? I have asked great numbers, even primates of the Church, and they all answered that so it is; and when I have said, that it is from the doctrine of the Athanasian faith . . . that the Lord's Divine is in His Human as the soul is in the body, they answered that they were not aware of it . . . 1114³.

—⁵. That the Divine is in the Lord's Human as the soul in the body. III.

1115⁵. The Angels acknowledge the Divine itself, see the Divine Human, and are in the Divine proceeding.

De Dom. 19. All are allotted places in the Heavens according to the idea of faith concerning the Lord's Divine Human . . .

21. When this (infirm) was cast out, He united the Human to the Divine . . .

23. We read (in the Athanasian Creed) that the Divine took to itself the Human; but it is according to the Lord's words that the Divine took to itself the Human and the Human took to itself the Divine; for He says, 'Believe Me that the Father is in Me and I in the Father.'

28. All the Angels acknowledge the Divine Human from perception.

29. All who at heart acknowledge the Lord's Divine in His Human are received into Heaven; and the rest cannot be received.

34. No one comes into the New Jerusalem unless he acknowledges the Lord's Divine Human.

40. It was His own Divine which assumed the Human . . .

41. The Lord glorified His Human from the Divine in Himself. Ath. 220, Ex.

43. Wherefore, the Divine Human is to be approached and worshipped from faith and love.

Ath. 22. The Divine which is life itself made the Human a resemblance of itself, and thus also Divine . . . If this were not so, would not the idea of thought be that the Lord's Divine was as it were outside of the Human . . .

27. That some idea may be gained concerning the Divine Human from the Father; namely, that the Divine clothed itself with the Human according to Divine order from primes to ultimates . . .

30. No one denies that the Divine which took upon itself the Human was His Divine . . .

—². The Divine of the Lord took upon itself the Human; and if the Divine is one, it follows that the Divine itself . . . took it upon itself . . .

—³. (Thus) according to our symbolic faith, the Divine and the Human in the Lord are together in one Person; and the Divine is not outside the Human . . .

33. The learned set the Lord's Divine outside of Him, because they think of the Divine of the Father, and only think of the Lord's Human separated from the Divine, and do not think of the Divine of the Lord Himself in the Human.

34. And as they separate the Divine from the Human, and set the Divine outside His Human . . . it follows that they think that the Human with the rational soul and the perfect body came forth from the mother alone.

42. That the Human of the Lord is equal to His Divine. III.

49. The Divine could not subjugate the Hells and restore all things to order . . . except from the Divine by means of an assumed Human . . .

62. That the Son from eternity was the Divine Human from eternity . . .

68. They consider that as the Divine of the Father created the universe, it cannot be in the Human; and . . . that it cannot be conceived of as in a Human body . . .

73. Let those who have an idea of the Lord's Divine as being above the Human, weigh well the idea which they have concerning Him in Heaven; whether, there, the Human is where the Divine is; whether the Divine is separate with the Father, and the Human in Heaven; and whether, thus, the Lord is two.

96. In the other life all are examined . . . by means of influx from Heaven concerning the Lord's Divine Human . . .

102. It was from the Papists that the Lord's Human was made less than the Divine of the Father, and thus less than His own Divine.

103. That the Lord's Human is Divine, is manifest from (the expression) 'Jehovah your Redeemer;' and this, then, is the Divine Human; for the Lord was the Redeemer in respect to that.

III. That there has been a Divine Human from eternity, is evident from the fact, that the Lord said that Abraham saw Him, etc. These things cannot be said of the Divine itself, for this can appear to no one; but they can of the Divine Human.

116. That the Lord from eternity was the Divine proceeding, and thus the Divine Human, may be seen from the fact, that the whole Heaven is a Grand Man, and the Divine proceeding effects this. . . That this was the Divine Human, is evident from those places where it is said that the Father had not been seen, etc.

118. The Father can be in no other Human than that which is from Himself, and thus in His own Divine Human.

119. From the first creation, He was in a Human, and in a Human from Himself, to wit, in the universal Heaven, which in the complex relates to one man; but this was not His own proper [Human], because it was in the Angels of Heaven; but in the Divine Human He is in His own proper [Human].

121. By 'the Father' the Lord means His own Divine; this, therefore, assumed the Human . . . The Divine cannot be in any other body than its own; thus it must be Divine.

129. On the Divine Human from eternity . . . 138.

134^e. Wherefore, the Protestants believe with the Papists that the Human is not Divine; whence they set the Divine above the Human, near the Father.

141. It may be said that it is contrary to perception, that the Divine which is the Father took on the Human, but not that the Divine which is the Son did so; when yet it is the same thing; (for otherwise) three Divines as to persons, which are one as to substance, assumed the Human; or else they would be separated, and one would be the soul in the Human and not the other.

144. Moreover, the idea of man is that the Divine which is the Father did not take on the Human, because this Divine fills the universal world . . . The case would be the same if the Divine which is called the Son took the Human . . . And it is not denied that the Lord's Divine assumed the Human.

154. In pictures, God is represented as a Man, and this from the general idea about God which comes from Heaven. But still, the idea of the Divine as in a Human form has at this day been lost; because they draw conclusions from space . . .

156. The Lord is 'the Anointed of Jehovah,' 'the Messiah,' etc., as to the Divine Human, from the fact that the Divine good of the Divine love . . . was in Him from conception; from which His Human was made Divine truth while He was in the world, thus such as is Heaven; but afterwards it was successively made the Divine good of the Divine love by union with the Father . . .

157. The Divine Human is 'the Holy thing,' the 'Holy of Holies,' etc.

162. In the sepulchre . . . the Lord rejected all the human from the mother, and dissipated it . . . and so assumed a Human from the Father; thus the Lord thoroughly and clearly glorified, rose with the Human.

175. Before the Lord's Advent . . . the Divine proceeding was 'the Son'; and this was at that time the Divine Human . . . But afterwards the Lord was made the Father as to the Divine Human also.

188. In the Creed of Athanasius it is said that the Divine took upon itself the Human. Hence it follows that the Human is the Divine Human; otherwise the Human could not be taken on by the Divine, since they are as soul and body. Consequently, there is not commixture, but union, like that of soul and body.

194. That the Lord made His Human Divine, is also evident from this, that He subjugated all the Hells . . .

198. The idea of Europeans, especially of the learned . . . comes from this; that it is impossible to think that

... what is human can be Divine; when yet they who are in the Third Heaven are utterly unable to have any other idea . . .

[Ath.] 203. All the little children in Heaven are led to the idea of the Lord's Divine Human; and all adults who have lived in the life of charity are instructed concerning this; and they who receive, come into Heaven. . . No one in Heaven can think otherwise, because the whole Heaven is the Divine Human, and all thought goes according to the form of Heaven.

208. From the words to Peter it is evident that those who are in the doctrine of faith alone will not acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human, but only they who are in the good of charity.

209. Christians can hardly think and have a perception of the Divine Human . . . because they think of an ordinary man, and not of the Human essence, which is love . . .

Q. vi. Before the incarnation there was not any Divine Human, except a representative one by means of some Angel, whom Jehovah the Lord filled with His spirit . . . The representative Human, in which Jehovah was then manifested in the world . . . was not of such efficacy that it could spiritually enlighten men . . .

De Just. 63. Luther (there) acknowledged the Lord's Human to be Divine . . .

Can. Redeemer iii. 5. 'The Word' . . . = the Divine Human which Jehovah assumed in time.

viii. After the completion of the unition, He returned into the Divine in which He was from eternity, together with and in the glorified Human,

1. Jehovah God from eternity had a Human like that of the Angels, but of infinite essence, thus Divine; and had not a Human like that of men on earth.

3. He thus united this Human with His Divine from eternity . . .

6. By the union of this Human with His Divine, Jehovah God exalted His own omnipotence, which is meant by 'sitting at the right hand of God.'

7. In this Human Jehovah God is above the Heavens, illuminating the universe . . .

ix. Jehovah God successively put off the human from the mother, and put on the Human from the Father, and thus made the former Human Divine.

x. The Divine from eternity and the Human in time, united like soul and body, are one Person, which is Jehovah.

9. These (persons) are receptacles of His Divine Human.

Trinity iv. 4. The Divine truth which is the Word, in which is the Divine good, was the seed from the Father from which the Human was conceived . . .

Divine Itself. Divinum Ipsum.

Supreme Divine. Divinum Supremum.

See under FATHER, and TRINITY.

A. 1440^e. In celestial things there is the Divine itself, that is, Jehovah Himself.

2149. See DIVINE HUMAN at these refs. 2288. 2329. 3038. 3061³. 3063. 3441. 3952². 3960. 4180³. 4211². 4606. 4724². 5321. 5585². 5663². 6716³. 6720. 6804⁴. 6849². 6887. 6945. 7005. 7195. 8495. 8705^e. 9306³. 9396³. 9398. 10196². 10370. 10617. 10738⁴. H.286. N.I. L.32². R.359. 584. 613. —². 961³. Ath.30.

2171². When He was in the Human, it was thus made known to Him how in Himself there would be united the Divine itself, the Divine Human, and the Holy proceeding . . .

2198. Jehovah was the Lord's Divine itself, and not separated from Him, although in the historical representatives it is presented as separated . . .

2329⁴. There is no access to the Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' except through the Son.

2447⁶. 'Jehovah,' as mentioned the second time, means the Divine itself which is called 'the Father.'

2523³. There was this difference (between the Lord and other men), that the Divine itself was in Him, because He was conceived from Jehovah. 7058³.

2576⁵. The veil of the temple being rent = that having dispersed all appearances, the Lord had entered into the Divine itself; and had at the same time opened an approach to the Divine itself through His Human made Divine.

2628. That the Divine Human came forth from the Divine itself, Sig.

2630. 'Abraham' represented the Supreme Divine; 'Isaac,' the Divine Rational; and 'Jacob,' His Divine Natural.

2632. See DIVINE RATIONAL at these refs. 3279.

2636³. (Thus He was able) to unite the Divine itself to the Divine acquired in the Rational.

2776². For the Supreme Divine itself could no longer reach mankind . . . Therefore, in order that the Supreme Divine might be able to descend to such a man, the Lord came into the world . . .

2795². The Lord could never be tempted when He was in the Divine itself; for the Divine is infinitely above all temptation; but He could as to the Human . . .

2821. 'The Angel of Jehovah cried to him out of Heaven' = consolation then from the Divine itself. 2841.

2833. See ABRAHAM at these refs. 3017. 3251. 3419. 3670. 4180. 4615. 5095.

3017. 'Jehovah' = the Lord as to the Divine itself. Refs.

3035. 'Jehovah the Lord of Heaven' = the Lord's Divine itself. 3061. 3119.

3140. Good is the Divine itself, and truth is the Divine thence derived.

3161³. From the Divine itself He not only begot the Rational as to good, but also, through this, the Natural as to truth . . .

3194^e. To the Veriest Divine there appertains good and truth . . . 3210².

3404². As the Divine itself is infinite and eternal, all things which are from the Divine are also infinite and eternal . . . and are therefore presented before the Angels in appearances . . .

3405. As the Lord put off the maternal human He also put off these appearances, and put on the infinite and eternal Divine itself.

3439. The Divine itself is in the supreme sense of the Word, because there is the Lord . . .

3539⁴. The happiest life is from love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour, because the Divine itself flows into it.

3657. In order that He might conjoin each and all things to the First, that is, to His own Divine itself. Tr.

3700. In the supreme sense, 'Heaven'=the Divine itself.

3736. 'The house of my father,' when predicated of the Lord,=the Divine itself in which the Lord was from conception.

— By 'His coming forth from the Father,' is meant that the Divine itself assumed the Human.

4180⁵. Before the Lord came into the world, the Divine itself inflowed into the universal Heaven . . .

4207. 'The God of their father'=from the Supreme Divine . . . Divine good is the Supreme Divine . . .

4235. In the Lord was the Divine itself which is called 'the Father.'

4615^e. As the Divine itself, the Divine Rational, and the Divine Natural are one in the Lord . . .

5110³. This Divine, or this Jehovah in Heaven, is the Lord from eternity; and the Lord took on the same when He glorified the Human in Himself . . . Hence it is, that everyone is able to think of the Divine itself as of a Man, and at the same time of the Lord . . . for in the Lord the Divine itself is the Father, that Divine in Heaven is 'the Son,' and the Divine thence proceeding is 'the Holy Spirit.'

5331^e. The Celestial of the Spiritual . . . was the Human in which the Divine itself was able to be (while He was in the world), and which He could put off when He had made all the Human in Himself Divine.

5459. 'God'=the Divine itself that was in the Celestial of the Spiritual, or the Divine that was in truth.

5689². The Lord's internal Human was the Celestial of the Spiritual, and this was truth from the Divine, or the proximate clothing of the Divine itself in the Lord.

6674⁴. The Divine Human is what is to be worshipped, for thus is worshipped the Divine itself, to which otherwise no thought reaches, and if no thought, neither is there conjunction.

6849. 'Because he feared to look upon God'=lest they should be injured by the presence of the Divine itself.

— The Divine itself is pure love, and pure love is like fire more ardent than the sun of this world . . .

6880. See BE at this ref.

6887. As the Divine itself cannot be worshipped, because it cannot be approached in either faith or love, for it is above every idea, according to the Lord's words in John: 'No one hath seen God at any time . . . Ye have neither heard His voice at any time, nor seen His shape,' it is the Divine Human which can be approached and worshipped, because it is the quality of the Divine itself. 8705⁴.

7058^e. In proportion as the Lord was in the infirm human, Jehovah or the Divine itself that was in Him appeared to be absent; but in proportion as He was in the glorified Human, Jehovah or the Divine itself was present, and that in the Human itself.

7211². Not even an Angel of the Third Heaven can have any idea of the Divine itself; according to the Lord's words: 'No one hath seen God at any time.'

7270². The truth which immediately proceeds from the Lord, being from the infinite Divine itself, cannot possibly be received by any living substance which is finite . . .

7499. Divine good is the Divine itself.

7796². All things which are done by the Divine itself are done through the truth proceeding from it; the Divine itself is the being of all things.

7873^e. Truth proceeds from the Divine itself . . . The Divine itself is Divine good, and that which proceeds from it is Divine truth . . .

8127. The Divine itself does not instruct and speak with men or even Angels immediately, but mediately through Divine truth.

8705. 'To bring the matters to God,' when said of Divine truth,=to mediate with the Divine itself and intercede.

8724. See DIVINE GOOD at this ref.

8732. '(Jethro) went to his own land'=to the Divine itself. . . Jethro represented Divine good, thus the Divine itself.

8760². The Divine itself is far above the Heavens; not only the Divine good itself, but also the Divine truth itself which proceeds immediately from the Divine good. The reason they are far above Heaven, is that the Divine in Itself is infinite.

8824. 'Moses spake, and God answered him in a voice'=through the influx of truth from the Divine, in which was the Divine itself.

8864². The Divine itself which is in the Lord cannot be seen nor even perceived in Heaven, thus not received in faith and love; but only the Divine Human . . .

8878². If it is said to them that the Divine itself is Divine love, which is the being of all life . . .

8989⁶. 'To open the doors before him'=to give access to the Divine itself.

9303⁴. His Human is the Divine itself in form.

9398^e. The Divine itself under a human form actually taught Divine truth; for the Lord is the Divine itself under a human form.

9818^e. 'The Father'=the Divine itself; 'the Son,' that Divine itself under a human form.

10052². The inmost of the Human, which with man is called the soul from the father, was the Divine itself; for He was conceived from Jehovah. The Divine itself is the Divine good of the Divine love. 10125².

[A.] 10067³. That the Divine itself, which is 'the Father,' is incomprehensible. Ill.

—⁵. The arcanum is, that there was a reciprocal union of Divine good and Divine truth, thus of the Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' and the Divine truth which is called 'the Son.' Sig. and Ill.

10125². The Divine itself which is the being of all things was in the Lord alone; for He was conceived from Jehovah . . .

10265. 'The work of the ointment-maker'=from the influx and operation of the Divine itself that was in the Lord from conception.

—². The Lord's Human is the Divine itself with the Angels.

10356. 'Ye shall keep My Sabbaths'=holy thought constantly about the union of the Divine itself with the Lord's Human. 10730.

10372². That the Divine itself is in His Human. Sig.

10579. 'No man seeth Me and liveth'=that the Divine itself cannot be seen, such as it is in itself, but such as it is through the Lord in Heaven. Ex.

10617. See JEHOVAH at this ref.

10730. When He went out of the world, He made His Human Divine good by union with the Divine itself that was in Him.

—². When the Lord had united His Human to the Divine itself, He had peace.

—³. The universal of all is that the Lord united His Human to the Divine itself, and that thence man has peace and salvation.

10738³. The being of His life was the Divine itself . . .

10823³. The body or Human of the Lord was as the Divine itself, which was the being of His life or the soul from the Father.

H. 118 (u). That the Lord's Divine itself is far above His Divine in Heaven. Refs.

W. 148. As the Divine itself is present through spiritual heat and light in Angel and man . . .

R. 6. 'God'=the Lord as to the Divine itself a quo.

222³. The Divine of the Father is not adjoined but united to the Lord's Human, as the soul is to its own body.

256. 'He that sat upon the throne'=the Lord as to the Divine itself from eternity . . . from which is His Human.

T. 82³. As the Divine cannot be divided, (it follows) that the Divine itself of the Father was His soul and life . . .

641². The Divine itself immediately encompassing the Lord makes that Sun.

718². As man is finite, His Divine itself cannot be conjoined with him, but only adjoined. Examps.

D. 4847². It was also perceived that the Divine itself which is the first essence was man, in endeavour, or in becoming-feri; whence it was as man; thus man reflexively . . .

E. 96². That which proceeds immediately from His Divine itself does not reach man, because His Divine itself is invisible, and therefore does not fall into the thought; and that which does not fall into the thought does not fall into the faith. 151.

239³. That the Divine itself would assume the Human. Sig.

295². The Divine itself from which are all things, is Divine love.

1069². That the Divine itself which is called Jehovah and the Father, which is Divine love, was in the Lord from conception. Sig.

1073². The reason the Word is of such a quality, is that in its origin it is the Divine itself proceeding from the Lord, which is called Divine truth . . .

De Dom. 18. Anyone can see that the soul which was the Divine itself could not dwell in an infirm body, such as it is from its own nature. Ath.22.

38. That the Lord was conceived from the Divine itself. Sig. Ath.150.

70. The Lord alone was born with an appetite for good and a longing for truth, because His soul from the Father was the Divine itself, thus the affection of Divine love, or the Divine love, from which He mastered the external which was from the mother.

Ath. 68. The Divine itself is not to be thought of from the idea of extension or space; for thus, instead of God, the purest of nature and of the visible universe is thought of . . .

71. The Divine itself as a soul can only dwell in life . . .

145. The idea to be held of the Divine itself is the idea as of a Man, whose Divine love appears as a Sun . . .

J. (Post). 311. Above these six degrees there ascend infinite degrees up to the Divine itself; for the Divine itself cannot flow in with any Angel or man from itself except through discrete degrees . . .

D. Love ii. What is uncreate and infinite is the Divine itself in itself; from this man cannot be formed, for thus he would be the Divine in itself . . .

Divine Love. Amor Divinus.

The Lord's Love. Amor Domini.

See under DIVINE GOOD, FATHER, AND LOVE.

A. 1799². From Divine love or mercy the Lord wills to have all near Himself . . . and if it were possible, not only with Himself, but in Himself: such is Divine love or the Lord's love.

1803. The Lord's life is Divine love, that is, love towards the whole human race, consisting in the will, if possible, to save all to eternity. They who have not the Lord's love, that is, who do not love the neighbour as themselves, never have the Lord's life . . .

1813. The Lord alone fought from Divine love, to wit, from love towards the universal human race . . .

1820. Temptation against the Lord's love, which will be assured. Sig.

—⁵. The fearfulness of the temptation is in proportion to the greatness of the love. The Lord's love was the most ardent love for the salvation of the universal human race ; thus was all affection of good and affection of truth in the highest degree. Against this love all the Hells fought with the most malignant wiles and venom.

1865². The salvation of the human race was the only comfort He had ; for He was in Divine and celestial love ; and became, even as to His Human essence, Divine and celestial love itself, in which alone love for all is regarded and kept at heart. That Divine love is such, may be evident from the love of parents towards their children, which increases according to the degree in which it descends . . . This can only be from the Lord . . . His love being such, that He loves all as a father does his sons, and wills to make all heirs . . .

2222. The Lord's love towards the universal human race was so great, that He willed to save all to eternity by the union of the Human essence to the Divine . . .

2227². See LOVE TO THE LORD at these refs. H.399.

2250. The Lord's grief from love towards the human race. Sig.

2253. His intercession from love. Sig. . . With the Lord, while He was in the world, there was no other life than the life of love towards the universal human race . . . This life is the very Celestial itself, by which He united Himself to the Divine and the Divine to Himself. Being itself, or Jehovah, is nothing but the mercy which is of love towards the universal human race ; and that life was the life of pure love, which is never possible with any man. 2261².

2343². See DIVINE HUMAN at these refs. 2826. 3063. 4735². 10196².

2500². As to the Lord's love, it was infinitely above the love in which the Angels are ; for it was the Divine love itself, wherefore it had in it all pre-eminence of wisdom and intelligence . . .

2520². These things are said from the zeal of affection or love towards the universal human race ; this love directed the Lord's thoughts while He was still in the maternal human.

2571². The Lord's perception and thought were always from the Divine love in every particular of faith.

2572. To be in everything where there is good, is to be in the omniscience of all things Divine, celestial, spiritual, rational, and natural, and this from Divine love ; for in Divine love there is the omniscience of all these things.

2732. The Lord's love and mercy can flow in with blessedness and happiness into such a oneness (as exists in love truly conjugal).

2777. ('Offer Isaac) upon one of the mountains' = Divine love. . . . As it was Divine love from which the Lord fought and conquered in temptations, and from which He sanctified and glorified Himself, it is here said to Abraham that he should offer Isaac for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains in the land of Moriah.

2826. 'Now I know that thou fearest God' = glorification from Divine love. Ex.

3084². Divine love inflows into the affection of good, and thence into the affection of truth, and vivifies and enlightens those things which are in the natural man, and then disposes them into order. Sig.

3138². The Lord was made new through the Divine love which was in Him, and which was His.

3212⁴. He was not regenerated . . . but made Divine, and this from the veriest Divine love ; for He was made the Divine love itself . . . 4727².

3325⁷. The Lord's Divine celestial love is relatively so to the Celestial Church ; the Lord's Divine spiritual love is relatively so to spiritual love, or to those who are of this Church . . . The Lord's Divine love is towards all ; but as it is variously received by men . . . it is said to be relatively so.

—⁹. See AARON at this ref.

3339. The heats which are perceived by the Angels are from the Lord's Divine love.

3539⁵. Man's humiliation . . . is for the sake of the Divine love . . . 10646³, Ex.

3735³. The Lord's 'body' = His Divine love, and the reciprocal with man, such as is the love with the Celestial Angels ; and the Lord's 'blood' in like manner = His Divine love, and the reciprocal with man, such as is the love with the Spiritual Angels.

3742². The appropriation of the Lord's life comes from His love and mercy towards the universal human race, to wit, that He wills to give Himself and what is His own to everyone ; and that He actually does give in proportion as they receive . . .

3880. Hence it is, that 'to confess Jehovah' = the Divine of love, and His Celestial Kingdom ; for the Lord is Divine love itself, and the influx of this makes His Kingdom ; and this through the Word which is from Him.

3934. Omnipotence is predicated from infinite good, or, what is the same, from Divine love ; thus from the Divine will ; but omniscience, from infinite truth . . .

3954. 'God heard Leah' = the Divine love. Ex.

4007². 'Judah' = the Lord as to His Divine love.

4217. See BREAD at this ref.

4220. They who have received . . . the Lord's love towards the universal human race . . . are there gifted with intelligence and wisdom, and with happiness ineffable . . . But they who have not received . . . the Lord's love towards the universal human race . . . are there deprived of all intelligence . . . and are among the stupid infernals.

4320. The reason life . . . appears with everyone as if it were in himself, is from the Lord's love or mercy towards the universal human race, to wit, that He wills to appropriate to everyone what is His own, and to give eternal happiness to everyone. Ex.

4735². This love . . . is represented in the Holy Supper ; the Divine celestial love, by 'the flesh' or 'the bread ;' and the Divine spiritual love, by 'the blood' or 'the wine.' 5120⁵.

5042. 'He inclined mercy to him' = Divine love in every particular.

—^e. See MERCY at these refs. 5480. 8676². 9219. 9528. P.337.

[A.] 5097. The heat of that light is the Lord's Divine love, which is warm to the sense . . .

5377². It is the Lord's love towards the universal human race to which the flame and heat (of the sun) correspond.

5576^e. See FOOD at this ref.

5585. 'The face of Jehovah'=the Divine love . . .

5696. The Lord's love and mercy does not appear until conjunction has been effected through a medium; for it is so disposed as not to appear; otherwise, regeneration would not be possible.

6135³. Love pours forth from the Angels so that you would believe they were nothing else, and this from their whole bodies; their bodies also appear resplendent and full of light from the light thence derived. . . . What, therefore, must be the case with the Lord . . . whose Divine love appears as a Sun . . . Hence it is evident what is meant by the Lord's 'body,' namely, Divine love . . . For the Lord's very body, when glorified, is nothing else.

— . Hence 'body' in the Holy Supper=the Lord's Divine love towards the universal human race.

—⁵. Divine love is also signified by the Lord's 'body' in, 'He spake of the temple of His body.'

6645². From love, which is infinite because Divine, the Lord wills to draw man even to Himself, and thus to bless him with all glory and happiness. Sig. . . . This may also be evident from the fact that in the other life the Lord appears as a Sun . . . and the flame of that sun is nothing but the Divine love; and the light thence is the Holy of love, which is Divine truth. Hence it may be evident how great the Lord's love is.

6829. 'He came to the mount of God'=that the good of Divine love then appeared.

6832. 'In a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush'= Divine love in scientific truth.

6834. 'Not to be consumed by the fire'=not to be dissipated by the good of Divine love. . . In the other life, the Divine good of the Divine love is the solar fire itself, which is of such ardour, that if it were to fall upon anyone without intermediate tempering . . . he would perish. Such is the ardour of the Lord's Divine love. When He was in the world, the Lord . . . received the fire of this love in His Human, and united it to the truth therein . . .

6872². He in whom the Divine love is . . . is God. Thus His Human was made Divine when He received into it the love of His Father, which was the being of His life.

8409. See FLESH at this ref.

8644². No Angel can endure the flame from the Divine love; he would be consumed in a moment.

8820. 'Fire,' here, =Divine celestial love, that is, Divine love such as it is in (the Celestial Heaven).

8878². See DIVINE ITSELF at this ref.

9263². The Lord is in the good of love, and thereby in the truth of faith; because He is Divine love itself.

9434. 'Fire,' here, =the Divine love itself.

—³. With those who are in heavenly love, fire or the Divine love continually creates and renovates the interiors of the will, and illumines the interiors of the understanding; but with those who are in infernal love, fire or the Divine love continually injures and vastates. Ex. and Sig.

9528. That the Lord fought from Divine love, to save those who receive Him in love and faith. Refs.

9667^e. The Lord's Divine love is Divine good; for all good is of love. The Divine love itself, thus the Divine good, is the being itself which is called Jehovah, and also is the Lord . . .

9780^e. 'His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives'=that the Lord was about to fight against the Hells from Divine love.

9798. The fire of Heaven is the Divine love proceeding from the Lord: to be kindled by it is to will good.

9902. 'To carry upon his heart'=to preserve to eternity by virtue of the Divine love.

9936. 'It shall be upon Aaron's forehead'=from the Lord's Divine love . . . For by the Lord's face are signified all things which are of Divine love; as mercy, peace, good, wisdom. Refs. 9939.

— . The reason the forehead specifically =the Divine love itself, is that the interiors have their provinces allotted in the face; the interiors which are of love, in the province of the forehead.

10034. 'Thou shalt burn them on the altar'=from the Lord's Divine love. 'To burn'=the kindling of the Divine love . . . because the fire upon the altar =the Divine love.

10055. 'This is an offering by fire to Jehovah'=all things from the Divine love. Ex.

10177⁴. Love makes the whole man . . . Hence the Angels are loves and charities in form: the form which they have from this is the human form, since the Lord who is in them and forms them as to the Divine Human is Divine love itself . . .

10178. 'With Shittim wood thou shalt make it'=from Divine love. . . The reason 'Shittim wood' also =love, is that when the Lord was in the world He fought from Divine love against all the Hells . . . and thus saved the human race . . . Wherefore, the good of the Lord's merit is this Divine love.

10188³. The Sun of Heaven, which is the Lord, is the Divine love itself; for this so appears . . . Hence 'sun' = Divine love.

10308. That worship is to be applied to Divine love. Sig. and Ex.

—². By Divine love is meant love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour: the reason the latter love is also Divine, is that it, too, proceeds from the Lord . . .

10606. 'Thou shalt stand . . . upon the head of the mount'=from the inmost Heaven where there is the Divine love. Ex.

10809. Both Divine good and Divine truth proceed from Divine love, which is the fieriness appearing around the Lord in that Sun.

H. 13. This Divine truth flows into Heaven from the Lord, from His Divine love. Divine love and the Divine truth therefrom are like the fire of the sun and the light thence derived.

117^e. The reason the Lord appears in Heaven as a Sun, is that it is the Divine love, from which all spiritual things come forth, and, by means of the sun of the world, all natural things. It is that love which shines as a Sun.

120. The greatness and the quality of the Divine love may be evident by comparison with the sun of the world . . . The ardour of His love is tempered on the way by means of degrees.

139. See DIVINE GOOD at this ref.

143. As the Lord Himself is in His own love with the Angels . . .

268. His Divine love is of this character . . .

285^d. Hence it follows, that these two inmost things, innocence and peace, proceed from the Lord's Divine love, and affect the Angels from the inmost.

350^e. Hence it is evident, that man is loved by the Lord in proportion as his will is formed from good, and his understanding from truth. To be loved by the Lord is also to love the Lord; for love is reciprocal; for the Lord gives to him who is loved that he should love.

371. The conjunction of good and truth derives its origin from the Lord's Divine love towards all in Heaven and on earth. From the Divine love there proceeds Divine good, (which) is received by Angels and men in Divine truths.

L. 1^a. 'The life' = the Divine love; and 'the light' = the Divine wisdom.

—^e. For all things were created from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom.

51³. The breathing of the Angels is according to the reception of Divine wisdom from the Lord; and the beating of the heart is according to the reception of Divine love from the Lord.

S. 3². There are two things which proceed from the Lord, Divine love and Divine wisdom; or, what is the same, Divine good and Divine truth; for Divine good is of His Divine love, and Divine truth is of His Divine wisdom: the Word in its essence is both of these.

—⁶. That is called celestial which proceeds from His Divine love, and it is Divine good . . .

67. By 'father' a celestial Angel understands the Lord's Divine love; by 'mother,' His Divine wisdom; and by 'to honour,' to do good from both.

Life 102. The Lord loves man . . . but He cannot love him . . . unless He is reciprocally loved . . .

W. Title. Angelic Wisdom concerning the Divine Love and the Divine Wisdom.

5. As the Lord is love in its own essence, that is, Divine love, He appears before the Angels in Heaven as a Sun . . .

—². This Sun itself, or the Divine love . . . cannot create anyone immediately from itself; for so he would be Love in its own essence . . .

28. That the Divine essence itself is love and wisdom. Gen.art.

34. That the Divine love is of the Divine wisdom, and that the Divine wisdom is of the Divine love. Gen.art.

— . As the Divine being is Divine love, and the Divine manifesting Divine wisdom, (the Divine love and the Divine wisdom) are in like manner distinctly one. They are said to be distinctly one, because love and wisdom are two distinct things, but are so united, that love is of wisdom and wisdom is of love; for love is in wisdom and wisdom comes forth in love; and as wisdom derives its manifesting from love, the Divine wisdom also is being; from which it follows, that love and wisdom taken together are the Divine being; but taken distinctly love is called the Divine being, and wisdom the Divine manifesting. Such is the angelic idea about the Divine love and the Divine wisdom.

35. Since there is such a union of love and wisdom and of wisdom and love in God Man, the Divine essence is one. For the Divine essence is Divine love because it is of Divine wisdom, and Divine wisdom because it is of Divine love. And as there is such a union of these, the Divine life is one. The reason the Divine love and the Divine wisdom are one, is that the union is reciprocal.

36. There is also in every Divine work a union of love and wisdom; from this comes its perpetuity . . . If there were more of Divine love than of Divine wisdom, or if there were more of Divine wisdom than of Divine love in any created work, it would not subsist, except in so far as the two are equal in it; that which is in excess passes off.

37. The Divine Providence . . . partakes equally of the Divine love and of the Divine wisdom. From more of Divine love than Divine wisdom, or from more of Divine wisdom than Divine love, man cannot be reformed, regenerated, and saved. Divine love wills to save all, but it can save only through Divine wisdom; to Divine wisdom belong all the laws through which salvation is effected; and these laws love cannot transcend, because Divine love and Divine wisdom are one, and act in union.

38. Divine love and Divine wisdom are meant in the Word by 'righteousness' and 'judgment.' Ill.

40. That Divine love and Divine wisdom is substance and is form. Gen.art.

44. That Divine love and Divine wisdom are substance and form in itself, thus the Very and the Only-*Ipsum et Unicum. Gen.art.

45². As this substance and form itself is Divine love and Divine wisdom, it follows that it is the very and only love, and the very and only wisdom; consequently, that it is the very and only essence, as well as the very and only life; for love and wisdom is life.

47. That Divine love and Divine wisdom must necessarily be and come forth in others created by itself. Gen.art.

48². (Thus) Divine love must necessarily be and come forth in others, whom it loves, and by whom it is loved.

49^e. In order that this may be possible, there must be infinite wisdom which makes one with infinite Love; that is, there must be Divine love of Divine wisdom, and Divine wisdom of Divine love.

[W.] 52. That all things in the universe have been created by the Divine love and Divine wisdom of God Man. Gen.art.

— So full of Divine love and Divine wisdom is the universe in its greatest and least, and first and last things, that it may be said to be Divine love and Divine wisdom in an image . . .

55. That all things in the created universe are recipients of the Divine love and the Divine wisdom of God Man. Gen.art.

67². Every spiritual degree with man is opened according to the reception of Divine love and Divine wisdom from the Lord . . .

83. That the Divine love and the Divine wisdom appear in the Spiritual World as a Sun. Gen.art.

84^e. Everything spiritual . . . must originate from Divine love and Divine wisdom ; for all good is of love, and all truth of wisdom.

86. That Sun is not the Lord, but is from the Lord. It is the Divine love and Divine wisdom proceeding which appear as a Sun in that World. And as love and wisdom in the Lord are one, it is said that that Sun is Divine love ; for Divine wisdom is of Divine love, thus it too is love.

87². Divine love is felt as fire by spiritual beings . . .

89. That from that Sun which comes forth from the Divine love and Divine wisdom there proceeds heat and light. Gen.art.

—^c. Love is alive ; the Divine love is life itself.

93. That this Sun is not God, but is the proceeding from the Divine love and Divine wisdom of God Man ; so also are the heat and light from that Sun. Gen.art.

— The highest of spiritual heat is spiritual fire, which is the Divine love and Divine wisdom in their first correspondence . . .

98. 'The sun' (in the World) means the Lord as to the Divine love and Divine wisdom together ; 'fire,' the Lord as to Divine love ; and 'light,' the Lord as to Divine wisdom.

108. That the distance between the Sun and the Angels . . . is an appearance according to the reception of the Divine love and Divine wisdom by them. Gen.art.

109. The Sun is the first proceeding of the Divine love and Divine wisdom of the Lord.

110. The Divine love and Divine wisdom is received by them in an adequate degree of heat and light . . .

114. The Lord can only dwell in the Angels in what is His own . . . which is love and wisdom . . . The angelic itself of Heaven is Divine love and Divine wisdom. This Divine is called the angelic when it is in the Angels.

146. That Divine love and Divine wisdom, which proceed from the Lord as a Sun, and make heat and light in Heaven, are the Divine proceeding, which is the Holy Spirit. Gen.art.

— From that Sun there proceeds heat which in its essence is Divine love, and light which in its essence is Divine wisdom.

151. That the Lord created the universe . . . by means of the Sun which is the first proceeding of the Divine love and Divine wisdom. Gen.art. 154. 174. 176^e.

170. They must be recipients of His love and wisdom as of themselves . . .

221³. By the assumption of the natural Human, the Lord is Divine good and Divine truth itself ; or, what is the same, He is Divine love and Divine wisdom itself, in both primes and ultimates . . .

296. There are three things in the Lord which are the Lord : the Divine of love, the Divine of wisdom, and the Divine of use ; and these three are presented in appearance outside of the Sun of the Spiritual World, the Divine of love by heat, the Divine of wisdom by light, and the Divine of use by the atmosphere which is the containant. Gen.art.

335. The essence of spiritual love is to do good to others, not for the sake of self, but for their sake ; infinitely more is this the essence of Divine love.

358. That two receptacles and habitations for Himself were created by the Lord with man . . . the will for His Divine love, and the understanding for His Divine wisdom. Gen.art.

— 'The image of God' = the Divine wisdom ; and 'the likeness of God,' the Divine love . . .

376. Heaven strives to come into such forms from the influx of love and wisdom from the Lord.

400. The reason there is an endeavour and a striving after the human form, is that God is a Man, and the Divine love and Divine wisdom is His life, which is the source of all life.

P. 1. That the Divine Providence is the government of the Divine love and Divine wisdom of the Lord. Gen.art.

3. That the universe with each and all things of it was created from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom. Gen.art.

4. That the Divine love and Divine wisdom proceed as one from the Lord. Gen.art. M.60.

7. It is of the Divine Providence . . . that in every created thing there may be something from the Divine love and at the same time from the Divine wisdom ; or, what is the same, that in every created thing there may be good and truth, or the conjunction of good and truth.

27². Spiritual love is such that it wills to give what is its own to another ; and in proportion as it can do this, it is in its being, its peace, and its blessedness ; this it derives from the Lord's Divine love, which is such infinitely. From this it follows, that the Divine love, and hence the Divine Providence, has for its end a Heaven . . . 324².

43². The reason he appears to himself to be more distinctly his own, is that the Divine love is such, that it wills what is its own to be another's . . .

61^e. As all good and truth is from the Lord, and the Lord is love itself and wisdom itself, it follows that the angelic Heaven is His image ; and as the Divine love and Divine wisdom in its own form is a Man, it also follows, that the angelic Heaven must necessarily be in such a form.

89. As all willing is from love, and all understanding from wisdom, it follows that the power to will is from the Divine love, and the power to understand from the Divine wisdom; both, therefore, are from the Lord, who is Divine love itself, and Divine wisdom itself.

92². (Thus) if only the Lord loved man, and was not loved by man in return, the Lord would approach, and man would recede . . .

123⁴. For the Lord is not only Divine love, but is also Divine wisdom, and Divine love does nothing except from its own Divine wisdom and according thereto. (Now this) is according to His Divine wisdom; and whatever is according to the Lord's Divine wisdom is also of His Divine Providence.

157. This only essence, substance, and form, is the Divine love and Divine wisdom, from which are all things that relate to love and wisdom with man . . .

158. The Angels of the Third Heaven perceive the influx of the Divine love and Divine wisdom from the Lord . . .

324. Man . . . is able to understand such things as are of Divine wisdom, and to will such things as are of Divine love, thus to receive the Divine . . .

—6. All love wills the good of another . . . What then does not will the Divine love will ?

—11. That the Divine love cannot do otherwise than will (that man should come into Heaven); and that the Divine wisdom cannot do otherwise than provide it. Ex.

— The Divine essence is Divine love and Divine wisdom . . . And in every human embryo the Lord forms two receptacles, one for the Divine love, and the other for the Divine wisdom; the receptacle of the Divine love for the man's future will, and the receptacle of the Divine wisdom for his future understanding; and thus He has implanted in every man the faculty of willing good, and the faculty of understanding truth . . . D. Wis.ii., Gen.art.

330. That any predestination except to Heaven is contrary to the Divine love, which is infinite.

—2. Hence it is evident, that the Divine love is in every man, both evil and good; consequently, that the Lord, who is Divine love, cannot deal otherwise with them than as a father with his children, and infinitely beyond it; because the Divine love is infinite.

—3. The reason there are some who are not saved, is that the Divine love wills that man should feel the happiness and blessedness of Heaven in himself . . . and this could not be effected, unless it appears to man that he thinks and wills from himself . . . The Divine Providence, which is of the Divine wisdom from the Divine love, is for the sake of this.

331. That the Lord cannot act against the laws of the Divine Providence, because to act against these would be to act against His Divine love and against His Divine wisdom, thus against Himself. Gen.art.

R. 21. 'To God and His Father'=thus images of His Divine wisdom and of His Divine love. . . There are two things in the Lord, Divine wisdom and Divine love, or Divine truth and Divine good; in the Old Testament these two are meant by 'God and Jehovah;' here, by 'God and the Father.'

29. 'I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End'=Him who is the very and only love, and the very and only wisdom . . . For 'Alpha and Omega' relate to His Divine love; and 'Beginning and End' to His Divine wisdom.

47. 'His head and His hairs were white as wool, as white as snow'=the Divine love of the Divine wisdom in primes and ultimates.

53. 'His face was as the sun shining in its power'=the Divine love and the Divine wisdom, which are Himself, and which proceed from Him. E.74. 596.

231. 'He that sat was in aspect like a jasper and a sardine stone'=the appearance of the Divine wisdom and Divine love in ultimates.

254. 'Thou hast created all things'=that all things of Heaven and the Church have been made and formed from the Lord's Divine love through His Divine wisdom, or from the Divine good through Divine truth . . . and that they are being reformed and regenerated. . . Whether you say Divine good and Divine truth, or Divine love and Divine wisdom, it is the same, because all good is of love, and all truth is of wisdom. 663.

615. 'As a voice of great thunder'=the Lord speaking through the New Heaven from Divine love. . . When the Lord speaks through Heaven, He speaks from the Third Heaven through the Second, thus from love through Divine wisdom; for the Third Heaven is in His Divine love, and the Second in His Divine wisdom.

643. 'Having upon his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle'=the Divine wisdom from His Divine love, and the Divine truth of the Word.

875². The Heavens are from the Divine love, and they come forth from the Divine wisdom; wherefore, the one is of the other.

933. 'In the midst of the street of it and of the river . . . was the tree of life'=that in the inmost things of the truths of doctrine and thence of life in the Church is the Lord in His Divine love. . . 'The tree of life'=the Lord as to Divine love.

961⁵. The Lord Himself is not a Sun, but the Divine love and Divine wisdom proximately going forth from Him and round about Him, appear before the Angels as a Sun. . . It is our Lord Jesus Christ both as to the Divine a quo and the Divine Human; since the Itself, which is love itself and wisdom itself, was His soul from the Father.

M. 183². See MARRIAGE LOVE at this ref.

222. There proceed from the Lord love and wisdom; or, what is the same, good and truth . . . These two in marriage proceed continually from the Lord, because they are Himself, and from Him are all things; and the things which proceed from Him fill the universe . . .

380³. As the centre of life, which is the Sun of the angelic Heaven, is the Divine love proximately proceeding from the Lord . . .

I. 5. See SUN at this ref.

8. These two: heat and light, or love and wisdom, inflow conjointly from God into the soul of man; and through this into his mind, its affections and thoughts; and from these into the senses of the body, the speech, and the actions. Gen. art.

T. 36. On the Divine essence, which is Divine love and Divine wisdom. Chapter.

— The Divine love is infinite . . .

37. That God is love itself and wisdom itself, and that these two make His essence. Gen.art.

— As God is the . . . first substance and form, whose essence is love and wisdom . . . it follows that He created the universe . . . from love through wisdom, and that thence the Divine love together with Divine wisdom is in each and all created subjects. Love, moreover, is not only the essence which forms all things, but also that which unites and conjoins them, and thus holds them together in connection.

—². Heat and light are there, because they correspond to the Divine love and Divine wisdom . . .

— Wherefore, the will and understanding correspond to the Divine love and Divine wisdom, from which they originate.

—³. The universal angelic Heaven is disposed into its form, and held together in it, from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom.

— They who deduce the creation of the world from any other source than the Divine love through the Divine wisdom, and do not know that these two make the Divine essence, descend from the sight of reason to that of the eye . . .

39. That as God is love itself and wisdom itself, He is life itself which is life in itself. Gen.art. It is said in John: 'the Word was with God . . . By 'God' is here meant the Divine love, and by 'the Word,' the Divine wisdom; and Divine wisdom is properly life . . . Divine love forms life, as fire forms light.

41. That love and wisdom in God make one. Gen.art.

43. There are two things which make the essence of God: love and wisdom; but there are three things which make the essence of His love: to love others out of itself, to will to be one with them, and to bless them from itself: the same three things also make the essence of His wisdom, because love and wisdom, in God, make one . . . But love wills these things, and wisdom produces them. Ex. 44, Des.

50. That omnipotence, omniscience, and omnipresence, are of the Divine wisdom from the Divine love. Gen.art.

— These (attributes) do not pertain to the Divine love through the Divine wisdom . . .

76⁴. That the universe . . . was created from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom, everything in it witnesses. . . But the love and wisdom which in God make one, are not love and wisdom in an abstract sense, but are in Him as a substance.

308. From the Lord there continually proceeds a Divine celestial sphere of love towards all who embrace the doctrine of His Church, and obey Him . . .

364. That the Lord inflows with every man with all His Divine love, with all His Divine wisdom, thus with all His Divine life. Gen.art.

471. Life is not creatable; for what is life but the inmost activity of the love and wisdom which are in God, and are God . . .

691. The reason man cannot see God and live, is that God is love itself, and love itself or Divine love in the Spiritual World appears before the Angels as a Sun . . . Wherefore, there are perpetual temperatures which modify and moderate the ardour of that love . . .

E. 69. 'His feet like fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace'=the Natural full of Divine love. . . It is said 'as if they burned in a furnace,' in order to express the Divine love in the greatest degree, and in its fullness; for the Divine is in its fullness when in its ultimate.

146^e. It is the same whether you say the Lord's Divine Human, or whether you say the Divine love; for the Lord is Divine love itself; and that which proceeds from Him is Divine good united to Divine truth; and both are of love.

254³. The Divine love appears to the Angels as the solar fire . . .

274. 'Seven lamps of fire burning before the throne' = Divine truth itself united to Divine good proceeding from the Lord's Divine love.

295². 'Will,' when said of the Lord, = the Divine love; for the Divine itself, from which are all things, is Divine love . . .

328⁸. His Divine love from which He did these things. Sig.

340¹. From Divine love the Lord inflows with Divine truth and with Divine good with those who receive; the Divine love from which the Lord flows in, is meant by 'the faces of Jehovah' . . .

405²⁴. As the Mount of Olives = the Divine love . . . the Lord was wont to stay on it . . . and by this is meant, that He did all things from Divine love.

422. 'I saw another Angel ascending from the rising of the sun' = the Divine love going forth from the Lord. . . 'The rising of the sun' or 'east' = the Lord's Divine love. Ex. 423.

496⁵. 'The fire of the altar' = the Lord's Divine love; which love in Heaven is called Divine love celestial, and Divine love spiritual; Divine love celestial that which is in the Celestial Kingdom, and Divine love spiritual that which is in the Spiritual Kingdom . . . But the Lord's Divine love in the Heavens is called celestial and spiritual merely from the reception of it by the Angels . . .

504⁵. When the Divine love descends out of Heaven, and falls down into the Societies where the evil are, it is turned into love contrary to Divine love . . .

580⁴. 'A coal from the altar' = the Divine love, from which is all purification.

678³. The Lord's Divine love is what appears to the Angels as a Sun; hence it is evident, that the light of Heaven, which in its essence is Divine truth and Divine wisdom, is the Divine love proceeding . . .

944². The heat proceeding, which is Divine good, is the Divine love in its extension.

1076². The Lord Himself is Divine love . . . and the Lord's Divine love appears as a Sun . . .

1124². An abstract idea . . . about the life which is

God, is that it is love itself and wisdom itself; and that the love is of wisdom, and the wisdom of love . . . The Divine love which in the Divine wisdom is the life itself which is God, cannot be thought of in its own essence, because it is infinite . . . but it can be thought of in its appearance. The Lord appears before the eyes of the Angels as a Sun; and from that Sun there proceed heat and light; the Sun is Divine love; the heat is the Divine love proceeding, which is called Divine good; and the light is the Divine wisdom proceeding, which is called Divine truth . . .

1131². It is from a spiritual idea, that the Divine love is infinite, and that the Divine Wisdom is infinite; and as the Divine love and Divine wisdom are the life which is God, the Divine life is also infinite; hence, now, God is infinite. Ex.

—⁴. The Lord's Divine wisdom is also light, and His Divine love is also heat; but they are spiritual heat and light, because they proceed from the Lord as a Sun, which is Divine love and at the same time Divine wisdom.

1134³. From the Lord's Divine love, which appears as a Sun, there proceed light and heat; the light is the life of His Divine wisdom, and the heat is the life of His Divine love . . .

1138⁵. For the Divine love consists in this, that it wills what is its own to be man's . . .

1228². As the Lord is Divine love and Divine wisdom, He has Divine omnipresence and Divine omniscience from both; but omnipresence is chiefly from the Divine love, and omniscience is chiefly from the Divine wisdom. Ex.

— Love and wisdom in the Lord are not two, but one, and this one is the Divine love, which appears . . . as a Sun; but the love and wisdom proceeding from the Lord as a Sun appear as two distinct things; love appears as heat, and wisdom as light.

De Dom. 21. As to the soul or life, the Lord was Divine love . . .

Ath. 69. The Lord's life is Divine love, and this alone has life . . . And as the Divine love is such that it wills what is its own to be another's, it has been granted that life should be perceived as if it were man's.

190. This love, or Sun, is His Divine love proximately proceeding from Him. The radiant circles are the devolutions of the infinite . . . for an Angel cannot otherwise bear the presence of the Divine love, than a man can the presence of the sun's fire.

D. Love iii. That the life which is the Divine love is in a form. Gen.art. The Divine love, which is life itself, is not simply love, but is the Divine proceeding, and the Divine proceeding is the Lord Himself. The Lord is indeed in the Sun . . . from which proceeds love as heat, and wisdom as light; but still love with wisdom is also Himself outside the Sun; the distance is only an appearance . . . The reason why distance appears, is that the Divine love, such as it is in the Lord, cannot be received by any Angel, for it would consume them . . . Since therefore the love proceeding from the Lord as a Sun is the Lord Himself, and that love is life itself, it follows that the love itself which is life is a Man . . .

viii. The Divine love which is life itself, and which is the Lord, is in the form of forms of all uses, which form is a Man . . .
VOL. II.

xx. The reason love produces heat, is that love is life itself, and is the living force of all things in the universal world; there is no other origin of all the endeavours, forces, activities, and motions therein than the Divine love which is the Lord, and which appears . . . as a Sun . . .

xxi. That the Divine love which is life itself, by means of heat produces spiritual animal forms, with each and all things in them. Gen.art.

—². The Divine love which is life itself, from its Author the Lord, bears nothing in its bosom than to create and form images of itself, which are men . . . also to cover with a corresponding body affections of every kind, which are animals; all these forms, both perfect and imperfect, are forms of love . . .

D. Wis. i. In the Lord there is love and there is wisdom; love in Him is being, and wisdom in Him is manifesting; yet these two in Him are not two but one; for the wisdom is of love and the love is of wisdom; from which union, which is reciprocal, there is effected a one, and this one is the Divine love, which appears . . . as a Sun. The reciprocal union of the Divine Wisdom and the Divine love is meant by, 'Believest thou not Philip that I am in the Father and the Father in Me; believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father in Me; and by, 'I and the Father are one.' Still, these two, which in the Lord are one, proceed from Him as a Sun as two distinct things; the wisdom as light, and the love as heat; but they proceed distinct in appearance, yet in themselves are not distinct . . .

—². As wisdom and love in appearance proceed from the Lord as a Sun as two distinct things . . . they are received by the Angels as two distinct things; by some, more of the heat which is love, and by others more of the light which is wisdom; wherefore the Angels of all the Heavens are distinguished into two Kingdoms . . .

ii². All creation is from the Lord as a Sun, which is Divine love and Divine wisdom . . . Hence it follows, that the first forms, especially with man, are receptacles of love and wisdom.

— In the end there is, in endeavour and in idea everything that follows; in endeavour in Divine love, and in idea in Divine wisdom, which are the end of ends.

ix. That the Divine love is Divine good, and the Divine wisdom Divine truth, is because all that love does is good, and all that wisdom teaches is true. Hence it is evident, that from the effect which is use, Divine love is called Divine good; and also from the effect which is use, Divine wisdom is called Divine truth . . . but the one effect is of love, and the other of wisdom . . .

—³. As man is a recipient of Divine love and Divine wisdom, there are given to him a will and an understanding; a will into which he may receive the Divine love, and an understanding into which he may receive the Divine wisdom; the Divine love into the will by means of life, and the Divine wisdom into the understanding by means of doctrine.

xi. 7a. When the Lord's Divine love comes forth with man in charity, which is to will and do truths, the Lord's Divine wisdom comes forth with man in faith, which is to know and think truths. Gen.art.

[D. Wis.] xii. That by His Divine love and Divine wisdom the Lord animates all things in Heaven and the world even to their ultimates; some to live, and some to be and come forth. Gen.art.

4. But the life itself which is the life of all things is the Divine love and Divine wisdom; Divine love is the being of life, and Divine wisdom is its manifesting; the latter reciprocally united to the former is the Lord. Both Divine being and Divine manifesting are infinite and eternal, because Divine love is infinite and eternal, and Divine wisdom is infinite and eternal.

Ang. Idea. The Divine proceeding is Divine love and Divine wisdom, of which such is the appearance at a distance . . .

Can. God v. On the Divine love and Divine wisdom in God.

1. Love and wisdom are the two essentials and universals of life; love, the being of life; and wisdom, the manifesting of life from that being.

2. God is love itself and wisdom itself, because He is being and manifesting in itself.

3. Unless God were love itself and wisdom itself, there would be nothing of love or wisdom with Angels or men.

5. Two things proceed from Jehovah God through the Sun in the midst of which He is: heat and light; and the heat thence proceeding is love, and the light wisdom.

8. Angels and men are alive in proportion as they are in wisdom and love from God.

10. Love and wisdom are inseparable and indivisible . . .

vi. On the creation of the universe by the one and infinite God, from Divine love, through Divine wisdom.

1. Enlightened reason may see, that the first origin of all things of the world is love, and that the world has been created from it through wisdom.

3. There are three things which follow in order and proceed in indivisible companionship; to wit, love, wisdom, and use.

4. Love through wisdom comes forth and subsists in use.

5. These three are in God; and these three proceed from God.

6. The created universe consists of infinite receptacles of these three.

7. Love and wisdom come forth and subsist in use; and the created universe is a receptacle of uses, which, from their origin, are infinite.

9. That creation took place from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom, is meant by, 'In the beginning was the Word . . .'

5a. The Divine love, which is love itself, and God Himself, wills to be in a subject which is an image and likeness of itself . . .

Redeemer i. In Jehovah God there are two things of the same essence: Divine love and Divine wisdom, or Divine good and Divine truth.

Divine Love and Wisdom. The Work.

L. Preface. The Divine Love and Wisdom referred to. 32^e. 36. 65^e. S.83. Life 36. W.338. P.3. 4. 5. etc. R.44. 48. 49. etc. M.314. L.16^e. T.20. etc. C.92. 197.

R. 875¹⁵. The Work seen in the Spiritual World.

Divine Man. Divinus Homo.

See DIVINE HUMAN.

A. 5110³. Therefore it pleased Jehovah to present Himself such as He is and such as He appears in Heaven; to wit, as a Divine Man.

5663³. This Divine in Heaven is nothing else than the Divine itself; but in Heaven as a Divine Man; it is this Man which the Lord took up, and made Divine in Himself. . . 6371².

8705⁴. No one can think of the Divine itself unless he presents to himself the idea of a Divine Man; still less can anyone be conjoined by love with the Divine itself except through such an idea. If anyone thinks of the Divine itself without the idea of a Divine Man, he thinks indeterminately—interminate, and an indeterminate idea is none at all.

—⁵. To the wise ancients, when the Divine itself appeared, it appeared as a Divine Man; for the Divine passing through Heaven is a Divine Man. The reason is, that Heaven is a Grand Man.

8943². The Word is like a Divine Man . . .

9694. (The Spirits of the First Earth) said that they worship a certain Angel who appears to them as a Divine Man . . .

H. 59^e. Therefore, they call Heaven the Grand Man and the Divine Man.

P. 164⁵. Every man from infancy is let into this Divine Man, whose soul and life is the Lord.

T. 32^e. All there are so conjoined, that the universal angelic Heaven represents one Divine Man; and the universal Hell, one monstrous devil.

Divine Natural. Divinum Naturale.

See under ESAU, and JACOB.

A. 1950. By 'Jacob' is represented the Lord's exterior man, or the Divine Natural. 2630. 4189. 4286⁷. 4295.

2830². 'A bullock for sin' = the Lord's Divine Natural. 3204. Exploration from the Divine Natural. Sig.

3206. Acknowledgment through the Divine Natural. Sig.

— . Initiation is effected through the Divine Natural. 3209. Perception from the Divine Natural how the case was. Sig.

—^e. The elder servant of Abraham's house who administered all things that belonged to him = the Divine Natural. Refs.

3232. The conception and birth of the Divine Natural; as to good, which is 'Esau,' and as to truth, which is 'Jacob.' Tr. 3279. 3289. 3293. 3314. 3576.

3245. See DIVINE RATIONAL at these refs. 3279. 3705. 4211³. 6947.

3286. (Rebekah barren) = the Divine Natural not yet.

— The Divine Natural came forth from the Divine good of the Rational as a father, and from the Divine truth there as a mother: when as yet there was no Divine Natural, it is said that rational truth was 'barren.'

3288. The first beginning of the Divine Natural as from a mother. Sig.

3300^o. '(Judah) washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes: here, 'garments,' and 'clothes'=the Lord's Divine Natural.

—³. 'Who is this that cometh from Edom?' here 'Edom'=the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Natural.

— The Nazarites represented the Lord as to the Divine Human, especially as to the Divine Natural. 5247⁴.

3301⁵. (The priests were not to shave their heads) in order that they might represent the Lord's Divine Natural as to the truth which is from good.

—⁶. 'His hairs like clean wool'=the Divine Natural as to truth.

3302. 'Esau'=the Lord's Divine Natural as to Divine good when first conceived . . . 'Edom'=the Divine Natural as to good to which there are adjoined the doctrinal things of truth. 3313. 3322². —³.

3674. 'Isaac sent Jacob'=the beginning of the coming forth . . . of the Lord's Divine Natural.

3737. 'Jehovah shall be to me for a God'=that the Divine Natural was also Jehovah. Ex.

4189. The conjunction of the Divine Natural with the goods of works. Sig.

4198. The presence of the Divine Natural in the good which is now represented by Laban. Sig.

4211. The appropriation of good from the Lord's Divine Natural. Sig. and Ex.

4214. The enlightenment of (gentile) good by the Lord's Divine Natural. Sig.

4240^e. Enlightenment is from the Lord's Divine Natural.

4262. 'Esau'=the Divine Natural as to good; here, as to celestial good, because the Natural was not yet made Divine.

4564. 'Bethel'=the Divine Natural.

4568. 'God said to him, Thy name is Jacob'=the quality of the Lord's external Divine Natural. . . (For) 'Israel'=the Lord's internal Divine Natural. 7091.

4583. 'And Jacob called the name of that place where God spake with him, Bethel'=the Divine Natural and its state. . . 'Bethel'=the Divine Natural.

4585. 'To journey from Bethel'=what is continuous of the progression of the Divine from the Divine Natural. —⁶.

4603. 'The sons of Jacob were twelve'=the state of all things now in the Divine Natural.

— We have spoken of the Lord's Natural, how He made it Divine in Himself . . . But now the conjunction of the Divine Natural with the Rational is treated of, which conjunction is represented by the coming of Jacob to Isaac. 4610^e.

4614^e. The Divine Natural is conjoined through good to the good of the Rational. Sig.

4618. 'Isaac died'=resuscitation in the Divine Natural. Ex.

4619. 'And was gathered to his people'=that it was now among those things which are of the Divine Natural.

4667. That the Lord's Divine Natural was concordant under Divine rational good. Sig. and Ex.

— 'Jacob'=the Lord's Divine Natural. Refs.

4680. 'Their father loved him more than all his brethren'=that it was conjoined with the Divine Natural.

4715. 'He sent him from the valley of Hebron'=from the Divine Natural and Sensuous.

—². The lower things of the Church are said to be from the Lord's Divine Natural and Sensuous; not that these are lower in the Lord; for in Him and His Divine Human all is infinite.

5663. See DIVINE HUMAN at these refs. 7091.

6380. 'His teeth white with milk'=that the Divine Natural is nothing but the good of truth. 9052².

— The reason the Lord's Divine Natural is said to be the good of truth, is . . . that they who are of the external Church cannot raise their thought higher than the Lord's Divine Natural; whereas they who are of the internal Church raise it above the Natural to the internal . . . Hence it is that the Lord's Divine Natural is called the good of truth, when yet the whole of His Human is the Divine good of the Divine love.

6437. The Nazarites represented the Lord as to the Divine Natural, which is the external Divine Human.

6948. The influx of the power of the Lord's Divine Natural into what is sensuous. Sig.

7091². That [the Lord as to the Divine Natural is meant by 'the God of Israel.' Ill.

9811^e. See ELEAZAR at these refs. 9812.

S. 6. Men of the Church in the world are in the Divine Natural, which also proceeds from the Lord. (Compare T. 195.)

99^e. In the world He put on the Divine Natural also, in which He is present with men. . . The glorified Human of the Lord is the Divine Natural. T. 109.

R. 49. See DIVINE CELESTIAL at these refs. 959. T. 195. Coro. 51^e.

466. See DIVINE SPIRITUAL at this ref.

468. 'His feet as pillars of fire'=the Lord's Divine Natural as to Divine love, which supports all things. . . The reason His feet were seen as pillars of fire, is that the Lord's Divine Natural, which in itself is the Divine Human that He took up in the world, supports His Divine from eternity as the body supports the soul . . .

T. 109². After He came into the world, these representations vanished; the interior reason of which was, that the Lord in the world put on the Divine Natural also, and from this He enlightens not only the internal spiritual man, but also the external natural . . . —^e.

Q. 2. The Lord from eternity . . . had a Divine Celestial and a Divine Spiritual, but not a Divine Natural before He assumed the Human.

Divine Natural Good. Divinum Bonum Naturale.

A. 4350. 'Esau ran to meet him'=the influx of Divine natural good.

4370. The Divine things which are to be adjoined to Divine natural good. Sig.

4387. 'Esau returned in that day to his way to Seir'=the state of Divine natural good at that time, to which have been adjoined the goods of truth.

Divine proceeding. See under PROCEED.

Divine Providence. See under PROVIDE.

Divine Providence. The Work.

P. 2. (Scope of the Divine Providence.)

R. 31. The Divine Providence referred to. 59. 949°. C.197. 201. (Seen in the Spiritual World. R.875¹⁵.)

Divine Rational. Divinum Rationale.

See ISAAC.

A. 1950. By 'Isaac' is represented the Lord's interior man, or His Divine Rational. 2610, Tr.

2621. That the Divine Rational was and came forth from the union of the Lord's Divine Spiritual with His Divine Celestial. Sig. 2625⁴.

2623. 'A son'=the Divine Rational . . . because truth is the chief thing in the Rational; but in the Divine Rational there is chiefly good, which Isaac, who is here 'the son,' also represents.

2632°. (After the expulsion of the worldly and hereditary things from the Lord's Rational,) then was born the Lord's Divine Rational, which is represented by Isaac; and this not by an external way, which is that of sensuous things, as the former Rational was; but by an internal way from the Divine itself. Sig.

2643°. The quality of the Lord's Divine Rational when first born is described by these words: 'God hath made me to laugh.'

2654. 'Mocking'=not agreeing with and favouring the Divine Rational.

2658. That the merely human Rational could not have a common life with the Divine Rational either as to truth or as to good. Sig.

2720. The state in which the Lord was when He made His Rational Divine. Sig.

2772. As the Lord made His Rational Divine by His own power, it is here said, the Divine Rational begotten by Him.

2793. The Divine Rational in a state of truth girded for the most grievous and the inmost combats of temptations. Sig.

2798°. It was the merit of righteousness which was adjoined to the Divine Rational while it was undergoing the inmost temptations from which it then fought, and against which the evil Genii fought, even until He had glorified it also. Sig.

2813. The state of the Divine Rational as to truth about to undergo the last degrees of temptation. Sig.

— The Lord's Divine Rational as to good could not suffer, nor undergo temptations . . .

2856. The former or merely human Rational was to serve the Divine Rational. Sig.

3012. The process of the conjunction of truth with good in the Lord's Divine Rational. Tr. 3048².

3017°. His Divine Rational . . . was now disposed into such order, that Divine truths from the Human itself could be conjoined with it. Tr.

3024. That the Divine Rational was not to be conjoined with any affection which disagrees with truth. Sig. 3154³.

3141. The Lord's Divine Rational was born from Divine truth itself conjoined with Divine good. Sig. 3154².

— The Divine Rational of the Lord alone was thus born, and in fact from Himself, because the veriest being of the Lord was Jehovah or Divine good itself, and the veriest being of the Lord thence derived was of Jehovah, or Divine truth itself. Divine good in the Rational was thus born, which was not good separated from truth, but was Divine good with Divine truth; and both taken together are called Divine good in the Rational; to which there was to be conjoined truth from the natural man, which truth is 'Rebekah' . . . It was that Divine good through the Divine truth in the Rational which inflowed into the natural man and enlightened all things there. This very process is here described . . .

3245°. The Natural could not be made Divine until the Rational was made Divine; for the former was made so through the latter. 3283.

3279. The Lord's Divine Rational from which was the Divine Natural. Sig. . . The Divine Rational was born from the Divine itself, and the Divine Natural from the Divine Rational. Sig.

3314. The Divine good of the Divine Rational loved the good of the Natural, and the Divine truth of the Divine Rational loved the truth of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

3372. The Lord's Divine Rational is nothing but good, even the truth there is good, because Divine.

3387. 'Woman,' here Rebekah=the Lord's Divine Rational as to Divine truth.

3508. The endeavour of the affection of good to procure truth which might be conjoined with the Divine Rational. Sig.

3517. Longing and delight perceived by the Divine truth in the Divine Rational towards natural truth. Sig.

— Rebekah=the Divine truth of the Divine Rational.

3589. Desirable and delightful things for the Divine Rational. Sig.

3705. In the supreme sense, 'heaven'=the Lord as to the Divine Rational; and 'earth,' as to the Divine Natural.

3973. Longing of the Natural . . . for a state of conjunction with the Divine of the Rational. Sig.

4211³. They who are in the most holy idea about the Lord, and are at the same time in the Knowledges and affections of good and truth . . . are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Rational; but they who are not in such great holiness, nor in such an interior idea and affection, and yet are in the good of charity, are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Natural; and they who have a still grosser holiness, are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Sensuous.

4612. The Divine Natural conjoined with the Divine Rational. Sig.

4715². They who are celestial men, and thence are truly rational, perceive interior things; of them it is said that they are taught from the Lord's Divine Rational.

6947. The power which is here signified by 'the hand,' is the power proceeding from the Lord's Divine Rational; but the power which is signified by 'the rod,' is the power proceeding from the Lord's Divine Natural. Ex.

Q. ii. As the Rational is predicated only of the celestial and spiritual Natural, Jehovah the Lord, by the assumption of the Human, did also put on the Divine Rational. Before the assumption of the Human, He had a Divine Rational; but it then existed by influx into Heaven; and when He manifested Himself in the world, He had it by an Angel whom He filled with His Divine . . .

Divine Sensuous. Divinum Sensuale.

A. 4211². See DIVINE RATIONAL at this ref.

4715. See DIVINE NATURAL at these refs. —².

Divine Spiritual. Divinum Spirituale.

See under DIVINE CELESTIAL, ISRAEL, JOSEPH, and SARAH.

A. 1904⁴. The Lord alone . . . thought from intellectual truth, because that was His Divine conjoined with good, or the Divine Spiritual conjoined with the Divine Celestial.

2569. 'He restored to him Sarah his wife' = when the Divine Spiritual was adjoined to the Divine Celestial.

2616. 'Jehovah visited Sarah' = the presence of the Divine Celestial in the Divine Spiritual.

—^e. 'Sarah' = the Divine Spiritual, that is, Divine truth. 2622.

2621. See DIVINE RATIONAL at this ref.

2629. Birth or manifesting is from the Divine Spiritual; and conception or being, from the Divine Celestial.

2830². 'A bullock for sin' = the Lord's Divine Natural; and 'a ram,' the Divine Spiritual.

3235. Abraham and Keturah represented the Lord as to the Divine Spiritual. —³.

— . See DIVINE CELESTIAL at these refs. 6417.

3969. 'She called his name Joseph . . .,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord as to the Divine Spiritual. —⁴.

—⁶. In these prophetic words (from the blessing of Joseph by Israel) there is contained in the supreme sense a description of the Lord's Divine Spiritual.

—¹⁵. The Lord's Divine Spiritual is that which is also called His Royalty; for the Lord's Royalty is Divine truth.

—¹⁶. As to the Lord's Divine Spiritual or the Divine truth which in the supreme sense is represented by Joseph, it is not in the Lord, but from the Lord; for the Lord is nothing but Divine good; but from Divine good there proceeds Divine truth . . .

—¹⁷. The Divine Spiritual which proceeds from the Lord is called in the Word 'the spirit of truth,' and is the holy truth . . . of the Lord sent through a Spirit from the Lord. Sig.

4286⁷. 'Jacob' = the Lord as to the Divine Natural; 'Israel,' as to the Divine Spiritual . . .

4401^e. Interior worship from the Divine Spiritual. Sig.

4402. 'He called it El Elohe Israel' = (interior worship) from the Divine Spiritual.

—⁴. The altar was called 'El Elohe Israel,' because in the supreme sense, 'El Elohe' is the same as the Divine Spiritual; and so also is 'Israel' . . .

—⁵. Hence it is that by 'El' and 'Elohim' in the supreme sense, is signified the Divine Spiritual, for this is the same as Divine truth; but with this difference, that by 'El' is signified truth in the will and in act, which is the same as the good of truth . . .

4675. 'Israel loved Joseph more than all his sons' = the conjunction of the Divine Spiritual of the Rational with the Divine Spiritual of the Natural. (For) Jacob as 'Israel' = the Divine Spiritual of the Natural, or the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Natural; and 'Joseph' = the Divine Spiritual of the Rational, or the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Rational.

4677. The light which appears there is from the Divine truth which is from the Lord, or is the Divine Spiritual from Him; or, what is the same, it is Divine intelligence and wisdom.

—². In the Jewish Church, 'kings' represented the Lord as to the Divine Spiritual or Divine truth.

—⁴. 'A coat of fine linen' = the Divine Spiritual in special.

4708. Perception from the Divine Spiritual. Sig.

4724. 'They conspired against him to put him to death' = that they wanted to extinguish the Divine Spiritual which is from the Lord's Divine Human.

5444. 'And one is not' = that the Divine Spiritual a quo does not appear. Joseph = the Celestial of the Spiritual; or, what is the same, the Divine Spiritual, or truth from the Divine. And as all conjunction of truth in the Natural proceeds from the Divine Spiritual, it is said the Divine Spiritual a quo.

9548. 'The candlestick' = the Divine Spiritual in Heaven and the Church from the Lord. . . The Divine Celestial is the good of love, and the Divine Spiritual is the truth of faith thence; both proceeding from the Lord.

9567. That the scientifics of good, and also the powers, shall be from the Divine Spiritual. Sig.

9811. 'Nadab and Abihu' = as to the Divine Spiritual thence derived. . . The Divine Spiritual is Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Celestial, thus the Divine of the Lord received in the Second Heaven; this is represented by the two first-born sons of Aaron, because it proceeds and is as it were born from the celestial good which is in the inmost Heaven, as a son from a father.

R. 372. 'Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving' = the Lord's Divine spiritual things.

466. 'Encompassed with a cloud, and a rainbow was over his head' = His Divine Natural and Divine Spiritual. 'The cloud' by which he was encompassed = the Divine Natural; wherefore the Word in its natural sense, which is also from Him, thus of Him and Himself, is signified by 'a cloud.' 'A rainbow' = the Divine Spiritual; and as this is above the Natural, the rainbow was seen over his head. The Lord in His Divine Natural is with men; in His Divine Spiritual with the Angels of the Spiritual Kingdom; and in the Divine Celestial with the Angels of the Celestial Kingdom . . .

E. 700³⁴. 'The wings' of the cherubs = the Divine Spiritual, which descends from the Divine Celestial . . . into the Second Heaven, and is there received; wherefore the wings touched each other in the midst of the house, and thence were stretched out to the wall on each side.

Divine Trinity. See TRINITY.

Divine Truth. Divinum Verum.

Truth Divine. Verum Divinum.

Truth from the Divine. Verum a Divino, Verum ex Divino.

See under DIVINE GOOD, and DIVINE SPIRITUAL; also CHRIST, GOD, HOLY SPIRIT, REBEKAH, SARAH, SON, SON OF MAN, TRUMPET, and WORD.

A. 1936. How the Lord thought about the appearances which at first withheld the Rational with Him, that they are not to be trusted, but Divine truths themselves, however incredible they might appear before the Rational. Sig. This is the case with all truths Divine; if the Rational is consulted about them they can never be believed, for they transcend all its apprehension. Examps.

2015¹⁰. 'Kings' represented His Divine truth; and 'priests,' His Divine good.

2053. There does not exist with man any pure intellectual truth, that is, truth Divine; but the truths of faith which are with man are appearances of truth . . .

2063. See SARAH at these refs. 2069². 2075. 2093. 2616. 2901. 2904. 2906.

2139^e. That the Lord put off human rational truth, and in its place put on truth Divine. Sig.

2531². The doctrine of faith is truth Divine from good Divine, thus is wholly Divine. What is Divine is incomprehensible . . . but still this Divine which in itself is incomprehensible, is able to inflow into man's Rational through the Lord's Divine Human . . .

—³. As the Lord is Divine good, so He is Divine truth, thus is doctrine itself . . .

2545^e. The Lord's thought was from intellectual truth, above the Rational . . . But the perception from which He thought was from Divine truth.

2553. 'The fear of God' = respect for truth Divine or spiritual.

2571². When the marriage of Divine truth and good, and of good and truth was effected in the Lord, which is signified by Abimelech's restoring to Abraham his wife Sarah . . .

2584². The quality of the state of the doctrine of faith when it is regarded from truths Divine, and when it is regarded from the Rational; namely, that when it is regarded from truths Divine, that is, from the Word, everything both rational and scientific confirms it . . . Sig.

2761². 'Horses' here, = Divine truths which are in the Word.

2769. '(God) said to Abraham' = the Lord's perception from Divine truth . . . That His perception was from Divine truth, may be evident from the fact that 'God' is mentioned . . .

2813². Whether you say truth Divine, or the Lord as to truth Divine, it is the same, for the Lord is the truth itself.

—³. That the Lord rose on the third day, also involves that truth Divine or the Word as to the internal sense . . . will be resuscitated in the consummation of the age; wherefore it is said that then will appear the Son of Man, that is, truth Divine.

2814. The truth Divine in the Lord's Divine Human which underwent temptations . . . is not the Divine truth itself, for this is above all temptation; but it is rational truth, such as exists with the Angels; consisting of appearances of truth; and is what is called 'the Son of Man,' but before the Glorification: whereas the Divine truth in the Lord's glorified Human is above appearances; nor can it ever come to any understanding, and still less to any apprehension of man . . . or Angel; thus never to [anything of temptation: it appears in the Heavens as light which is from the Lord. This Divine truth, or the Son of Man glorified, is spoken of in John xiii. 31, 32.

—^e. In order that there may be a distinct idea of this very deep arcanum, we may call the truth with the Lord which could be tempted . . . truth Divine in the Lord's Human Divine; but the truth which could not be tempted . . . Divine truth in the Lord's Divine Human: which rule has been observed throughout in what has gone before. 2817.

2902. It here treats of truth Divine, that it had expired.

2928⁴. 'Prince' = the truth Divine which is from the Lord.

3007. 'Christ' = the same as 'the Messiah,' 'the Anointed,' and 'the King,' (all of which) are the same as Divine truth. 3009.

3021³. 'Vesture' = Divine truth.

3024. It here treats of truth Divine, that it was to be adjoined to the Divine good of the Lord's Rational. 3072. 3086.

3038. 'To thy seed will I give this land' = the Divine truth which pertained to the Lord's Human.

3065. 'Behold, I stand above at the fountain of waters' = the state of conjunction of truth Divine in the Human.

3101. Concerning Divine truth, of what sort it was. Sig.

3102. The acknowledgment of truth Divine from enlightenment in general scientifics. Sig.

3105. 'Two bracelets' = Divine truth. Ex. 3132.

3131. 'Laban ran out to the man at the fountain' = the mind of the affection of good towards the truth which was to be initiated to truth Divine. . . 'Fountain,' here, = truth Divine.

—³. The case is this: The first truth in the natural man was not truth Divine, but truth appearing as if it were Divine. Examp.

3137. 'At the fountain' = their enlightenment by truth Divine. . . The Word, being truth Divine, is called 'a fountain.'

3141. See DIVINE RATIONAL at these refs. 3517.

3191. 'They went after the man' = from the guidance or auspices of Divine truth natural.

3192. The case is this: Truth from the Natural could not be elevated to good in the Rational, except by means of Divine truth and Divine good, both natural: Divine truth natural, which is called 'the man,' must show the way and lead. . .

3194. Truth Divine was not as yet called forth out of the Natural. . .

3195⁴. The Word was Divine truth, thus the Lord Himself as to the Divine Human.

—⁹. 'His garments as the light' = Divine truth.

3236. Abraham's woman (Keturah) = the Lord as to Divine truth adjoined to Divine good spiritual.

3237. 'Her name was Keturah' = the essence of this Divine truth.

3264. Hagar is called Sarah's 'handmaid,' because Sarah = the Lord's Divine truth, to which the affection of the knowledges and Knowledges of truth is subordinated.

3314. The Divine truth of the Divine Rational loved the doctrine of truth. Sig. and Ex.

3357. It treats (in Gen. xxvi.) of appearances of truth of three degrees, how they are adjoined to truth Divine so that truths and their doctrinal things may be received.

3362². Truths Divine themselves are of such a character that they can never be apprehended by any Angel, still less by any man. . . In order, therefore, that they may have conjunction with the Lord, truths Divine inflow with them in appearances. . .

3364⁹. As what is Divine cannot be apprehended by any created thing, the doctrinal things which are from the Lord, in so far as they appear. . . are not truths Divine, but are appearances of truth; but still in the appearances there are truths Divine; and as this is the case, the appearances also are called truths. 3365⁹.

3368⁹. Divine truth cannot flow in immediately into scientifics. . . but through rational things. Sig.

3376. The internal sense of these two verses is, that when Divine truth flows in through rational things, it presents appearances of truth, and thus fructifies itself and multiplies as to the good and truth through which the Lord conjoins Himself with Angels and men.

3385. The investigations of men about Divine truth. Sig.

—^e. They investigate whether it is. . . Divine truth.

3387. If truths Divine themselves were opened, they would not be received by those who are in the doctrinal things of faith, because they surpass all their Rational apprehension. . .

3394. 'How saidst thou, She is my sister?' = that if it were Divine truth it could not be rational. —.

— . The spiritual do not know that Divine truth becomes rational truth with man when he is regenerate; they indeed say that all good and truth are from the Lord; but still, when these come forth in their Rational, they suppose that good and truth are their own. . .

3398. That Divine truth might easily have been adulterated by some one in the Church, who would thereby have brought on himself the blame of profanation. Sig.

—². Divine truth cannot be at all profaned except by those who have first acknowledged it. . .

3448². 'The prince of the army' = the Lord as to Divine truth.

3576^e. Jacob will then represent the Lord's Divine Rational. . . as to Divine truth therein.

3579⁴. The 'dew' in which the manna descended, in the supreme sense, = Divine truth.

3703¹². 'The sons who are instead of the fathers' = that Divine truths shall be as Divine goods.

3704. The Lord as to Divine truth is represented by light; and in the other life also is the light of the universal Heaven. Refs.

3712². Divine doctrine is Divine truth; and Divine truth is the whole Word of the Lord. . .

— . Everything in the Lord is Divine good, but not Divine truth. . . But Divine truth is Divine good appearing in Heaven before the Angels, and on earth before men; and although it is appearing, still it is Divine truth, because it is from Divine good; just as light is the sun's because from the sun.

3735. 'A garment to put on' = conjunction with Divine truth.

3813². 'The blood,' and 'the wine' = His Divine truth.

3952². See HEAVENLY MARRIAGE at this ref.

4060⁶. 'Then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven' = the appearing then of truth Divine.

4111⁵. The teraphim were idols. . . and as the answers which they got were to them truths Divine, truths are signified by them. Ill. Here, 'the ephod and the teraphim' = the truths Divine which they got by the answers. 4162⁹.

4162. 'Teraphim' = truths from the Divine.

4180. 'The Son' = Divine truth. Refs.

4180⁶. When the Human was made Divine, not only the Celestial Heaven could be illuminated by Him, but also the Spiritual Heaven, and the human race too that have received and do receive Divine truth in good, that is, in love to Him and charity towards the neighbour. Sig.

—⁶. 'The Word' (John i.) = Divine truth. (See under Word.)

4197. The good (of the gentiles) so long as they live in the world is at one side, because they have not truths Divine.

4207. Divine truth is that which is from Divine good, and is also called 'the Son.'

4234². This conjunction itself, to wit, of truth Divine with the good Divine of the Lord's Divine Natural, is now treated of in the supreme sense. 4239.

[A.]4334⁷. 'So shall the coming of the Son of Man be' = that they will not accept the Divine truth.

4353³. All truth Divine regards these two precepts; namely, to love God above all things, and the neighbour as one's self . . .

4402⁵. In the supreme sense, 'El' and 'Elohim' = the Divine Spiritual; for this is the same as Divine truth . . . 'Elohim' is used in the plural because by truth Divine are meant all truths which are from the Lord. Ill.

4552². When a man . . . is led by evil . . . evil with falsities is in the middle, truths are rejected to the circumferences, and truths Divine to the extreme circumferences; this order is infernal . . .

4577. 'To thy seed after thee will I give the Land' = Divine truth appropriated. . . 'Seed,' in the supreme sense, = Divine truth; thus 'to give the Land to thy seed,' in the supreme sense, = to appropriate Divine good to Divine truth. The reason it is Divine truth appropriated, is that before He was glorified, the Lord as to the Human was Divine truth . . .

4592. 'To sit at the right hand of God' . . . when predicated of the Lord, = omnipotence; and also the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine good.

4665. It treats (in Gen. xxxvii.) of the truths Divine which are from the Lord's Divine Human, that in process of time they are rejected in the Church, and at last falsities are received in their stead.

4669. 'Joseph' = . . . the Divine Spiritual which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human, (which) is the Divine truth that is from Him in Heaven and the Church: in its essence the Spiritual is nothing else. The Divine Spiritual or Divine truth is also that which is called the Lord's Royalty; and is also signified by 'Christ,' or 'Messiah.'

4673. 'With the sons of Bilhah and with the sons of Zilpah' = that the Divine truth which is 'Joseph' is rejected to the lower things which are relatively things of service. Divine truth is said to be rejected to lower things when faith is set before charity . . . For all Divine truth is from Divine good; thence it proceeds; if it does not do so with man, he is not in the Lord. This Divine truth is the Holy Spirit itself which proceeds from the Lord . . .

4675. 'Joseph brought to their father their evil report' = that from (Divine truth) it appeared of what quality they were.

—². They who are in the Church appear quite different in Heaven; for in Heaven there is Divine truth from the Lord; and Divine truth there is light. Des.

4675^e. The Spiritual is the Divine truth which is from the Lord, which, when it shines in the rational or internal man, is called the Spiritual of the Rational; and when it shines in the natural or external man, is called the Spiritual of the Natural.

4677⁶. That 'a coat' = Divine truth from the Lord. Ill. . . For by 'a coat' was signified the Lord's Divine truth, which, because it is the sole thing—unicum—and from good, was represented by His coat being without seam and woven from above throughout. . . There was also represented that the Lord does not suffer Divine truth to be pulled to pieces, as was done by the Jews to the lower truths of the Church.

—⁸. As Divine truth is the only thing—unicum, to wit, that it is from Divine good; when sent forth to preach the gospel, the disciples . . . were forbidden to have two coats . . .

4680^e. Their father's loving Joseph more than all his brethren = that the Lord's Divine truth was conjoined with the Ancient Church.

4681. 'They hated him, and could not speak to him for peace' = contempt for the Divine truth which is represented by Joseph, and turning away from it.

4682. In Joseph's two dreams are contained in a summary all those things which were foreseen and provided . . . concerning the Divine truth in such a Church as is represented by Joseph's brethren, that is, such a one as begins from faith. Moreover, in ancient times, Divine truths were manifested either by speech, or by visions, or by dreams . . .

4687³. 'The Word' is Divine truth, which in its essence is the infinite manifesting from the infinite being; and is the Lord Himself as to His Human. This is the very thing—ipsium—from which truth Divine now proceeds and flows into Heaven, and through Heaven into human minds; consequently, which rules and governs the universe, as it has ruled and governed it from eternity; for it is the same and one with infinite being, seeing that it conjoined the Human to the Divine . . . Thus it is evident that the supreme of truth Divine is the Lord's Divine Human.

4723^e. As these are the two primary things of the Church, they also are represented by Joseph; for he who represents Divine truth in general, also represents the things of Divine truth in special.

4724². All Divine truth in the universal Heaven proceeds from no other source than the Lord's Divine Human; what is from the Divine itself can never flow in immediately with any Angel, because it is infinite. Sig.

4726. 'That lord of dreams cometh' = that (the preachings of Divine truth) are vain and empty.

—². For example, it is a Divine truth that the Word is holy . . .

4728^e. 'They let down Jeremiah by cords into a pit where there was no water' = that they rejected Divine truths among falsities in which there is nothing of truth.

4735. See BLOOD at these refs. —⁴. —⁷. —⁹. —¹⁰. 5147⁶. 6378². 7317. 9127. —. 9262⁴. 9393. 9410⁵. —^e. 9670⁶. 10026. 10028. 10033². 10047. 10060. S. 15^e. R. 19. 26. 379². 555. 730. 825. T. 702. E. 329, etc.

4747². They who are within the Church, and have confirmed themselves against Divine truths . . . not only in doctrine but also in life, have reduced themselves as to the interiors into such a state, that they cannot possibly be afterwards brought to receive them . . .

4752^e. They who are in simple good acknowledge Divine truth . . .

4760. 'They brought Joseph to Egypt' . . . When the Divine truth is brought to scientifics, it is to consult them. . . To consult scientifics about Divine truth, is to see from them whether it is so. Examps.

—⁴. The reason the learned see Divine truths less than the simple, is that they consult scientifics . . . from the negative . . .

4763². The reason they did not rend their garments (Jer. xxxvi. 24), was that they did not mourn on account of Divine truth not being received.

—³. 'Kingdom'=Divine truth; and so do 'king,' and 'royalty.' Refs.

—⁵. See DAVID at these refs. 5313⁴. 9548⁶. 10249⁵. R. 174. 266. E. 205, etc.

—⁷. Elisha's rending his garments into two pieces, was on account of mourning that the Word, that is, Divine truth, was lost; for by Elijah is represented the Lord as to the Word, that is, Divine truth.

—⁸. As 'a garment'=the truth of the Church, and in the supreme sense, the Divine truth, it was shameful to go with their garments cut off, unless they were in such mourning.

4766. That there is no Church where there is no heavenly Joseph, that is, the Lord as to Divine truth . . .

4769. The truths of the external man from which are the delights of life, are truths Divine like those of the literal sense of the Word, whence come the genuine doctrinal things of the Church.

4788. 'The Midianites sold him into Egypt' . . . When Divine truth is said to be sold or estranged to scientifics by those who are in the truth of simple good . . . it is because they consulted scientifics . . .

—². Joseph, or the Divine truth, could not be sold by those who are in good, but by those who are in truth; for they who are in good know from good what Divine truth is; not so they who are in truth . . .

4809. 'When the Son of Man shall come in His glory' = when Divine truth will appear in its own light, which takes place with everyone when he dies . . .

—². All the influx of Divine truth is effected through Heaven; immediate influx cannot be received by anyone.

—³. It is Divine truth from which and according to which is judgment.

4884. The light of Heaven is intelligence, because it is Divine truth from Divine good.

4973². The Lord is called 'the God of gods' from the Divine truth which proceeds from Him.

—³. The Lord is called 'the King of kings' from Divine truth.

—⁴. 'The Lord's Christ'=the Divine truth of Divine good.

—⁵. When the Lord was in the world He was Divine truth; but when He was glorified . . . He became Divine good, from which there afterwards proceeds Divine truth. . . The Divine truth which the Lord was in the world, and which afterwards proceeds from Him . . . is also called 'the Angel of the covenant.'

4980². In its own essence, the Spiritual is the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; and the Celestial is the Divine good which is in this Divine truth. When the Divine truth in which is Divine good is received by the rational man, it is called the Spiritual in the Rational; and when it is received by the natural man, it is called the Spiritual in the Natural.

5008⁶. All truths Divine can be confirmed from the literal sense of the Word; and also by means of rational or intellectual things with those who are enlightened . . .

— The merely natural man believes as truth Divine whatever he has confirmed . . . not knowing that falsity can be confirmed just as well as truth . . .

5044⁵. 'Asshur'=reasoning about truths Divine . . . III.

5044¹³. The Spiritual Kingdom is so called from the Lord's truth Divine . . .

5068. The Lord's Royalty is Divine truth, from which and according to which judgment is effected. . . The good are judged from good, thus from mercy, because they have received Divine truth; the evil are judged from truth, thus not from mercy, because they have not received Divine truth; for they have rejected it, and therefore in the other life they continually reject it. To receive Divine truth, is not only to have faith but also to act faith . . .

5113¹⁶. In the supreme sense, 'a vine'=the Lord as to Divine truth.

5247⁶. The Word has been given to man, in order that . . . the Divine truth which is in Heaven may affect him by influx.

5272. The Word, when predicated of the Lord . . . in the proximate sense=the Divine truth, from which all things, which are things, come forth . . . It is the Divine truth which proceeds from Divine good, that is, which proceeds from the Lord, from which all things have and do come forth. The Divine truth proceeding from Divine good is the veriest reality and the veriest essentiality in the universe; and this is what makes and creates . . .

5313. 'A seat' is often mentioned in the Word when Divine truth and judgment therefrom is treated of . . . When the Lord's Divine itself and Divine Human are meant by Him that sitteth on the seat, the Divine truth which proceeds from Him is meant by the seat; but when the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord is meant by Him that sitteth upon the seat, the universal Heaven, which the Divine truth fills is meant by the seat; but when the Lord as to the Divine truth in the higher Heavens is meant by Him that sitteth upon the seat, the Divine truth which is in the lowest Heaven and also which is in the Church, is meant by the seat . . .

—³. 'The throne of glory'=the Divine truth which is from Divine good in Heaven . . . —⁵.

—⁶. The lightnings, thunders, and voices which went forth from the throne=the terrors which are from Divine truth with those who are not in good.

—⁷. The holiness of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, is described in what follows.

—¹⁰. When there is discourse in a higher Heaven about Divine truth, and about judgment, in the ultimate Heaven there appears a throne.

—¹². The Spiritual Kingdom is where the chief thing is Divine truth in which is good; but the Celestial Kingdom is where the chief thing is Divine good from which is Divine truth.

[A. 5313].⁴⁵. The Lord's Royalty, by which is signified the Divine truth which proceeds from Him . . .

5316^e. The Angels are in the Lord, because in the sphere of Divine truth proceeding from the Lord . . .

5319. 'Garments of fine linen'=truths from the Divine . . . and truth from the Divine is represented by a garment of such brightness and resplendence, because the brightness and resplendence of Heaven are from the light which is from the Lord, (which) is the Divine truth itself. Refs. . . It was the Divine truth itself, which is from the Lord's Divine Human, that was thus represented (by the Lord's garments at His transfiguration).

5321. By Joseph is represented the Lord as to the Divine Spiritual, thus as to the Divine truth from the Lord's Divine Human, from which Divine truth is the Celestial of the Spiritual.

—². Nothing whatever of doctrine can proceed from the Divine itself, except through the Divine Human, that is, through the Word, which, in the supreme sense, is the Divine truth from the Lord's Divine Human . . .

5377². It is Divine truth to which the sun's light corresponds.

5400³. The light of Heaven . . . is Divine truth from the Lord . . .

5417. 'Joseph was ruler over the land'=that the Celestial of the Spiritual, or truth from the Divine, reigned in the Natural . . . The reason the Celestial of the Spiritual is truth from the Divine, is that the Lord's internal Human before it was fully glorified, as it was a receptacle of the Divine itself, was the Celestial of the Spiritual . . . This receptacle of the Divine is the same as truth from the Divine. (That Joseph is this truth, see 4723, 4727.) 5689².

5428. 'They did not recognize him'=that truth from the Divine did not appear in natural light not as yet illuminated by celestial light.

5459. Joseph represents the Lord as to truth from the Divine, which is the same as the Celestial of the Spiritual . . .

5482. Truth from the Divine, which is represented by Joseph, flows in through a medium into the good of faith, and, through this, into its truth . . .

5576⁴. 'Man does not live by bread alone, but by every utterance of the mouth of Jehovah'=in general, the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord, thus all the truth of wisdom; in special, the Word . . .

5620¹⁰. 'The judgments of Jehovah'=truth Divine.

—¹¹. As the manna=the truth Divine which descends from the Lord through Heaven, it thus=the Lord Himself as to the Divine Human . . . For it is the Lord's Divine Human from which comes all truth Divine; yea, concerning which is all truth Divine.

—¹³. The delight of truth Divine as to the external sense is described by 'honey' . . .

—'. The roll' in Ezek., and 'the little book' in Revelation, =truth Divine. That in the external form this appears delightful, is signified by its taste being sweet as honey; for truth Divine, as the Word, is delightful in the external form or in the literal sense . . . but not the internal sense . . .

5645^e. They now only ate with Joseph, and did not recognize him, by which is signified general conjunction, which is the first introduction; for at that time truth from the Divine flows in generally, and is not known; but when it is apperceived that truth flows in, there is a second conjunction, which is signified by Joseph's manifesting himself to his brethren.

5922³. See GLORY at this ref.

—⁴. 'The Word'=Divine truth; and as this proceeds from the Lord, it=the Lord Himself; hence 'glory' is predicated of Divine truth.

—⁵. The form in which the Lord was seen (at the transfiguration) presented the Word as it is in the internal sense, thus as the Divine truth is in Heaven; for the Word is Divine truth for the use of the Church . . . —⁷.

—⁸. The law, which is Divine truth, was promulgated from that mountain . . .

—⁹. The Divine truth was also represented by the resplendence as of a rainbow in the cloud round about the cherubim, and above them . . . The reason the Divine truth in the Heavens appears in glory . . .

—¹⁰. That the Divine truth, from which is all wisdom and intelligence, is 'glory.' III.

6032. From its first origin, spiritual light is Divine truth from the Lord's Divine good . . .

6115². The most general universal by which all things are held together, is the Lord Himself, and that which holds them together is the Divine truth proceeding from Him . . .

6119². 'The rod of the mouth,' and 'the breath of the lips'=Divine truth, from which is judgment.

6148². There are two things which proceed from the Lord, to wit, good and truth; Divine good was represented by the priests, and Divine truth by the kings . . .

—⁴. 'According to the manner of Melchizedek'=that He is both King and Priest, that is, in the supreme sense, that from Him there proceeds Divine good and Divine truth together. As a representative Church was instituted among the descendants of Jacob, the Divine good and the Divine truth, which proceed united from the Lord, were conjointly represented in one person . . . But on account of the idolatry which reigned among them, it was permitted that they should be separated, and the Lord as to Divine truth was represented by the kings, and as to Divine good by the priests . . . The reason these two were not to be separated, was that Divine truth separated from Divine good condemns everybody; whereas Divine truth united to Divine good saves; for, from truth Divine man is condemned to Hell; but from Divine good he is taken out thence and elevated into Heaven. Salvation is of mercy, thus from Divine good; but condemnation takes place when a man declines mercy, and thus rejects Divine good from himself, and is therefore left to judgment from truth.

6280². The Divine Human which is in Heaven is the Divine truth which proceeds from Him, which is the light from Him as a Sun. As to His own essence, the Lord is not Divine truth, for this is from Him as light from the Sun . . .

6373^e. The Divine truth from Jehovah flowed in through Heaven into the human race; but as this did not suffice . . . the Lord made the Human in Himself Divine, in order that Divine truth might proceed from the Lord's Divine Human itself . . .

6377. 'He washes his raiment in wine' = that His Natural is Divine truth from His Divine good.

—⁹. As 'wine' = the good of love and of faith, in the supreme sense it = the Divine truth from the Lord's Divine good; for, from this, by influx, the man who receives has the good of love and of faith.

6419³. 'The wall' (of the New Jerusalem) = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord.

6472. That which flows in from the Lord is the good of love and the truth of faith; for that which proceeds from the Lord is Divine truth in which is Divine good; but these are variously received with man.

6645^e. The flame of that Sun is nothing but Divine love; and the light therefrom is the Holy of love, which is Divine truth.

6713. In (Ex.ii) it treats of truth Divine (Moses); its beginnings and successive states with the man of the Church.

6720^e. The Divine which at that time flowed through Heaven was the Divine truth, or the Divine law, which Moses represented; and the Divine which flows through Heaven is good. Sig.

6723⁴. Hence the ark was most holy, because it represented the Lord's Divine Human as to the Divine law; for from the Lord's Divine Human there proceeds the Divine law or Divine truth, which is the same as 'the Word' in John . . .

6724². That around truth Divine there was good mixed with evils and falsities (Moses in the pitched ark). Ex. . . Unless this arcanum is known, it cannot possibly be known why around the Divine truth with man there are goods mixed with evils and falsities . . .

6726. They who are being initiated into truth Divine are first put among falsities (Moses laid in the flags).

6750³. That the Scientific was the first plane with the Lord when He made His Human Divine truth, or the Divine law, is signified by the Lord's being carried into Egypt when He was a little child.

6752. 'She called his name Moses' = the quality of the state at that time . . . The quality of the state which is signified, is the quality of the state of the law Divine in the beginning with the Lord, and the quality of the state of truth Divine in the beginning with the man who is being regenerated.

6753^e. Until He became the Divine law, that is, the Divine truth itself . . .

6766³. In the supreme sense, it has treated of the beginnings of the law Divine in the Lord's Human; and it now treats of the progress of that law. But in the internal sense, it here treats of the progress of Divine truth with the man who is being regenerated . . .

6772. Here now begins the fifth state of the progression of the law Divine in the Lord's Human; and, in the relative sense, of the progression of truth Divine with the man who is being regenerated . . .

6832⁵. Thus 'a flame of fire' = the Divine truth which is in the Word, which is from the Lord's Divine good. —⁶, III.

—⁶. 'The voice of Jehovah' = the Divine truth.

— . In order to represent the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good, it was commanded to make a candlestick of pure gold with seven lamps . . .

6880. When the Lord even as to the Human became Divine being . . . the Divine truth, which proceeds from the Lord's Divine human is Divine manifesting from Divine being . . . The Divine Human cannot communicate itself except through the Divine truth, which is the Holy Spirit. Sig. . . It appears to man as if the Divine truth were not of such a character as that anything could come forth by means of it; for it is believed that it is like a voice . . . But . . . the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is the veriest reality, and is of such a character that all things have come forth from it, and all things subsist from it; for whatever proceeds from the Lord is the veriest reality in the universe. Such is the Divine truth, which is called 'the Word, through which all things were made.'

6882. 'Moses' = the Lord as to the Divine law, that is, as to the Divine truth. The Divine truth is the manifesting from the Divine Human, because proceeding from Him.

—^e. This is the second instruction . . . which is, that the Divine truth, which is from Him, is to be received.

6905^e. See GOD at this ref.

6945. The Divine Human cannot appear to anyone except through the Divine truth which proceeds from Him.

6948². By the Lord's Divine power is here meant the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord; for in Divine truth there is power so that it is power itself. The Divine truth proceeding from the Lord inflows into every man, through his interiors into his exteriors even into the external Sensuous and into the Corporeal, and everywhere excites things corresponding in their order . . . But . . . the Sensuous, when in these evils only . . . when Divine truth flows in, cannot but turn it into falsity.

6971^e. 'Voice' = Divine truth, thus the Word, and annunciation therefrom.

6982. The truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine cannot be heard by anyone, not even by an Angel. In order to be heard, the Divine must first become human, and it becomes human when it passes through the Heavens, and when it has passed through the Heavens it is presented in a human form, and becomes speech, which speech is uttered through Spirits, who, in that state, are called the Holy Spirit . . . In the supreme sense, this is meant by Moses, who represents the Lord as to truth Divine, saying that he was not a man of words . . .

6993. For from the Lord's Divine Human itself there proceeds Divine truth, which is called 'the Holy Spirit;' and as when He was in the world, the Lord was Divine truth, He Himself taught the things of love and faith . . .

[A.] 6996. That the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Human must be uttered mediately. Sig.

—². It is said Divine speech, but it is meant the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human. This being the case, it may be evident that the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, in order to be heard and perceived, must pass to man through mediations; the last mediation is through a Spirit who is with the man, who flows either into his thought, or by means of a living voice.

—³. That the Divine truth immediately proceeding from the Lord cannot be heard or perceived (shown from correspondences) . . . And as the spiritual sense of the Word is not perceivable by man . . . what must be the case with the Divine truth immediately proceeding from the Divine of the Lord? which is infinitely above the angelic understanding, and is not perceivable in Heaven, except so far as it passes through Heaven, and thus puts on a form adequate to the perception of those who are there; which is effected by a wonderful influx.

6997. Moses represents the Lord when He was in the world as to truth Divine.

—⁷. From this it may be evident . . . what is the quality of truth Divine in its most general [form], to wit, that it is according to appearances . . . Hence the Word in the sense of the letter is according to things which appear; but still . . . in its inmost bosom it has stored up in it the truth Divine itself which proceeds immediately from the Lord . . .

6998. 'Moses' = the Lord as to the Divine truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord; and thence 'Aaron' = the Divine truth which proceeds mediately from the Lord, which truth is the doctrine of good and truth. That truth which Moses here represents is the truth which can neither be heard nor perceived by man; whereas the truth which Aaron represents is the truth which can be heard and perceived by man: hence Aaron is called 'a mouth,' and Moses 'his god.'

7000. 'He cometh forth to meet thee' = the reception . . . of Divine truth. . . The Angels and Spirits who receive the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, and advance it further, are said 'to go forth to meet' when they are presented by the Lord prepared to receive.

7002^e. What is pleasant and delightful, and also affection . . . are in doctrine when a man applies it to himself, because in doctrine there is the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord; and in the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord there is love, thus what is pleasant and delightful.

7004². The case is this: From the Lord there proceeds Divine truth immediately and mediately; that which proceeds immediately is above all the understanding of the Angels; but that which proceeds mediately is adapted to the Angels and also to men; for it passes through Heaven, and thus puts on the angelic quality and the human quality. But into this truth the Lord also flows in immediately, and thus leads Angels and men both mediately and immediately . . . For the Divine truth itself is the sole substantiality, the derivatives being nothing but the successive forms thence derived . . .

7005. 'I will be with thy mouth' = that truth Divine must proceed through the Divine Human from the Divine itself . . . which is the same thing as that the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Son, and the Son from the Father . . .

7010. 'Thou shalt be to him for a god' = the Divine truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord.

7014. When Moses was on mount Horeb with Jehovah . . . he represented the Lord as to Divine truth; but now, when with Jethro . . . he represents the Lord as to truth from the Divine. . . As the Lord put on the Divine successively, He first made Himself truth from the Divine, afterwards Divine truth, and at last Divine good. These were the steps of the Lord's glorification, which are here and elsewhere described in the internal sense.

7206. In the supreme sense, 'judgments' = truths Divine, which truths are nothing but the laws of order from the Lord's Divine Human . . . The laws of order, or the truths which proceed from the Lord . . . are what are called 'the Word by which all things were made' . . . for the Word is the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Human. Hence it is that all things in the Spiritual World, and also in the natural world, relate to truth.

7268. 'I have made thee a god' = the Divine truth, or, what is the same, the Divine law, and also its power.

—^e. Aaron is here called 'his prophet' (or spokesman), and in a former place 'his mouth;'; that is, one who utters in a way adapted to the understanding the Divine truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord . . .

7270. 'To speak' = the mediate influx of Divine truth into doctrine, that is, with one who is teaching; for the meaning is, that Moses, who is the Divine truth, should speak to Aaron what Jehovah commanded . . .

—². The truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord . . . cannot possibly be received by any finite living substance . . . Wherefore the Lord created successives, by which as media the Divine truth immediately proceeding could be communicated. But the first successive from this is too full of the Divine to be received by any . . . Therefore the Lord created another successive, by which the Divine truth immediately proceeding might be as to some part receivable: this successive is the truth Divine which is in Heaven. The first two are above the Heavens, and are as it were radiant belts from the flaming, and encompass the Sun . . .

—³. Influx is circumstanced according to these successions; for the Divine truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine good flows in successively; and on the way, or near each new successive, it becomes more general, thus more gross and dim, and it becomes slower, thus more sluggish and cold . . . But it is to be well known, that the truth Divine which inflows into the Third Heaven . . . inflows at the same time without successive formation down to the ultimates of order: and there, from the First, rules and provides each and all things also immediately: thus the successives are kept together in their order and connection.

7273². The order according to which (the evil) are explored, is the order of truth Divine, which is such that nothing at all is wanting. The order of truth Divine for the evil who are condemned differs from the order of truth Divine for the good who are saved. The difference is, that the order for the evil . . . is that of truth Divine separated from Divine good . . . But the order for the good . . . is that of truth Divine conjoined with Divine good . . .

7293⁶. The son whom the woman bore = the Divine truth at this day disclosed.

7337. Divine miracles proceed from Divine truth . . .

—². The Divine truth proceeding from the Lord has all power in it; hence it is that even in truths in the ultimate of order there is power . . .

7343. Divine truth flows in with all, but is varied with everyone according to the state and quality of his life; and hence it is that the infernals turn it into falsities.

—^e. 'The fountain' = the doctrine of truth Divine.

7381. 'Moses' = the internal law; and 'Aaron,' the external law; and the influx from the Divine takes place through what is internal into what is external. The internal law is the truth Divine itself such as it is in Heaven; and the external law is truth Divine such as it is on earth; thus the internal law is truth accommodated to the Angels; and the external law is truth accommodated to men . . . The truth accommodated to the Angels as to the greatest part is incomprehensible to men. Ex.

—⁴. The light which is from that Sun is truth Divine; and the heat . . . is good Divine: from these come forth the ideas of states with the Angels; a state of intelligence and faith from truth Divine, and a state of wisdom and love from good Divine.

7395. 'Have honour over me' = that truth Divine is to be trusted in.

7396⁶. The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord introduces this order wherever it is received.

7436. 'Moses' = the truth from the Divine by means of which the Divine appears.

7463. 'Moses said [to Pharaoh], Behold, I go out from thee' = the removal of the appearance of truth Divine with them. . . As to the presence and the removal of truth Divine with the evil, it is to be known that sometimes truth from the Divine appears to them, and this through the presence of an Angel near them; but truth from the Divine does not flow in with them through the interiors, as with the good, for with them the interiors are closed; but it only affects their exteriors. When this is the case they are in fear, and thence in humiliation, for the presence of truth from the Divine dismays them . . . But when the truth from the Divine is removed, they return into their former state . . . This is meant by the appearance of truth Divine, and by its removal.

—². The reason the Divine law is the same as truth Divine, is that the law Divine signifies the Word, and thus truth Divine. Ill.

7498. 'Come to Pharaoh, and speak to him' = the appearance of truth from the Divine with those who are infesting.

7499. The Lord is called 'the Son of God' as to Divine truth; for Divine truth proceeds from Divine good as the Son from the Father, and is also said to be 'born.' (For) the Lord when in the world made His Human Divine truth; and He then called the Divine good which is Jehovah, His Father, because the Divine truth proceeds and is born from the Divine good. But after the Lord had fully glorified Himself . . . He made His Human Divine good . . . and from it the Divine truth itself proceeded from His Divine Human. This Divine truth is what is called 'the Holy Spirit,' and it is the Holy which proceeds from the Divine Human, 8127^e.

7519². The ashes being sprinkled toward heaven = the influx of Heaven . . . The reason Moses was to do this, and not Aaron, is that the truth proceeding immediately from the Divine presents this effect with the evil. . . The filthy things of cupidities with blasphemies . . . are excited when the Divine truth flows in, and Heaven approaches nearer.

7573. Thus truth Divine in Heaven is mild and gentle, but is terrible in Hell.

—². That 'the voices' which are thunders = truths Divine, which enlighten and perfect those who are in Heaven, and terrify and devastate those who are in Hell. Ill.

7678. 'Moses stretched out his rod over the land of Egypt' = the dominion of the power of truth Divine over the whole Natural of the infesters.

— Such power is there in the Divine truth which proceeds from the Divine good, that all things in the universe were created by it . . . Hence it is that miracles were performed by Moses, for Moses represents Divine truth. Most people believe that the Word or Divine truth is only speech from Jehovah, and a command that it is so to be done, and nothing further; but it is the essential itself from which and through which are all things. The being which proceeds from Him, and thence the manifesting of all things, is that which is meant by the Divine truth. From the Angels there proceeds a sphere of charity and faith which is sensibly perceived, and which also produces wonderful effects. From this, some idea may be formed about the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine good. 8200^e.

7738^o. As (the infernals) are in a state of falsity from evil . . . they remove from themselves the truth Divine which is represented by Moses; therefore Pharaoh now says to Moses that he should go away from him, and that he should see his face no more . . .

7772. 'The man Moses was very great in the land of Egypt' = respect now for truth Divine . . . in the mind of the infesters.

7790. 'After it is so I will go forth' = that truth Divine will depart. . . (For) when they who have infested the upright are being damned, all truth Divine departs from them; for they are then in the state of their evil, and evil rejects and extinguishes all truth Divine . . .

7791. 'And he went out from Pharaoh in wrath of anger' = the divulsion of the presence of truth Divine from those who are to be damned. . . For when they begin to feel aversion for truth Divine, to fear it, and at last to feel horror at its presence, they tear themselves away from it.

[A.] 7796. 'Moses and Aaron did all these prodigies before Pharaoh' = that these vastations, and thus the confirmations that they are in evil, were performed by truth from the Divine. . . (For) the prodigies were performed by the Divine by means of the truth proceeding from it, for all things performed by the Divine itself are performed by the truth proceeding from it: the Divine itself is the being of all things, and the truth proceeding from it is thence the manifesting of all things; and good itself, which is Divine being, produces all things by means of its truth.

— . It is said that vastations are performed by means of truth from the Divine; but it is to be understood that Divine truth is not the cause; for what is Divine vastates no one, but an evil person vastates himself by setting himself against truth Divine, by extinguishing, rejecting, or perverting it. . .

7912. 'Moses called all the elders of Israel' = the enlightenment of the understanding of those who are of the Spiritual Church through the influx and presence of truth Divine.

7944. That those who are of the Spiritual Church will obey truth Divine. Sig.

7955. 'He called Moses and Aaron by night' = the afflux of truth from the Divine in that state. . . It is said truth from the Divine, and not truth Divine, because it is predicated of those who are in damnation.

8041^e. Information from the Divine through Divine truth. Sig.

8048. 'Moses said to the people' = instruction through truth Divine.

8068. 'That the law of Jehovah may be in thy mouth' = that Divine truth may be in everything which thence proceeds.

8127. 'Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying' = instruction by the Divine through Divine truth. . . The reason it is said through Divine truth, is that Moses, by whom Divine truth is represented, spoke to the people: the Divine itself does not immediately instruct men, but mediately through Divine truth. This is meant by . . . 'No one hath seen God at any time; the only-begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He hath displayed Him.' 'The only-begotten Son' means the Lord as to Divine truth.

8128. 'Speak to the Sons of Israel' = the influx of truth Divine with those who are of the Spiritual Church. . . . (For) Moses = Divine truth; and Divine truth comes into perception and thought by influx.

8170. 'Moses said to the people' = elevation from a state of despair through truth Divine. . . It is said through truth Divine, because all elevation in a state of temptations is effected through truth Divine.

8182. 'Take thou thy rod' = the power of Divine truth.

8192. 'The Angel of God journeyed' = ordination by Divine truth.

—². The Lord Himself is called 'an Angel;' hence

'Angels' = Divine truth; for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord makes Heaven; consequently the Angels who constitute Heaven; for in proportion as they receive the Divine truth which is from the Lord they are Angels. . .

8197². The truth Divine proceeding from the Lord appears before the eyes of the Angels as light; but to those who are in falsities from evil it cannot appear as light, but as thick darkness. . .

8200. 'Moses stretched out his hand over the sea' = the dominion of the power of truth Divine over Hell. . . It is said the dominion of the power of truth Divine, because all Divine power exists through the truth which proceeds from the Lord. . . By means of Divine truth are ordained all things in Heaven and in Hell; thence is all order on earth also; all miracles are effected by means of it; in short, Divine truth has all power in it, so that it is power itself. . .

8241. Divine good is in the Lord; and Divine truth is from the Lord. Divine good stands to Divine truth as the fire of the sun to the light thence derived; light is not in the sun, but from the sun.

8267. 'My song is Jah' = that everything of faith and thence of glory is from the Divine truth which is from Him.

—². The reason 'Jah' = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, is that 'Jah' is from 'Jehovah;' and it is called 'Jah' because it is not being, but manifesting from being; for the Divine truth is manifesting, but the Divine good being. Ill.

8281³. By 'the Lord,' in David, is meant the Lord as to Divine truth. . . for Divine truth has omnipotence from Divine good.

8302. By the Holy is meant the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. (See HOLY.)

8309. Holiness is predicated of the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; and this Divine truth makes Heaven.

—^e. 'The sanctuary' = where there is Divine truth in which is Divine good.

8328^o. 'A place for Thee to dwell' = Heaven, where is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, for this makes Heaven.

— . How the case is with the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord, that in Heaven it is good (is thus): in the sun there is fire; but from the sun there proceeds light; this light has heat in it. . . In the spiritual sense, this light is the Divine truth: the heat is the good in the truth from Divine good.

8345. 'Moses made Israel journey from the Red Sea' = what is successive according to the order of truth Divine.

8404. '(They murmured) against Moses and against Aaron' = (grieving and complaint) against truth Divine.

8425. 'Moses and Aaron said . . .' = information from truth Divine.

8427. 'Glory,' in the supreme sense, = the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; and the Divine truth appears before the eyes of the Angels as the light and splendence from the Sun which is the Lord. . . Ill.

8437. 'Moses said to Aaron' = the influx of the truth Divine proceeding immediately from the Lord through the truth Divine proceeding mediately.

8443. 'The glory of Jehovah was seen in the cloud' = the Divine truth which is not so accommodated to perception, because it is above the appearances and fallacies of the senses . . .

—². See DEGREE at these refs. 8641. 8712. E.627⁵.

— . The appearing of the Lord is through Divine truth; and also is Divine truth.

8444. 'Jehovah spake to Moses, saying' = the truth which proceeds from the Divine of the Lord, in which is the presence of the Lord. . . The presence of the Lord in truth from the Divine is signified by Jehovah speaking with Moses out of the cloud wherein the glory of Jehovah was seen . . .

8463. 'Moses said to them' = information through truth from the Divine.

8483. 'Moses was inflamed with anger upon them' = that they turned truth Divine away from themselves.

8535. As the Word is truth Divine, thus the Lord . . .

— . That 'the testimony' = the Lord as to Divine truth . . .

8563. 'The people did chide with Moses' = grievous complaint against truth Divine.

8568⁴. 'Streams of living water' = the Divine truth which is from the Lord alone.

8573. 'Moses cried to Jehovah' = intercession by Divine truth.

—³. The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord intercedes in such a way continually, because it proceeds from Divine love; for when the Lord was in the world He was Divine truth . . .

8575. 'Yet a little and they will stone me' = that they are not far from offering violence to truth from the Divine.

8595. 'Moses said to Joshua' = Divine influx into truth fighting . . . 'Moses' = Divine truth, that is, the truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord; this truth, being purely Divine, inflows into truths of faith of every kind, and causes them to be truths. . . Against this (falsity), must fight the truth which is made fighting through the influx of Divine truth. The truth Divine itself which proceeds immediately from the Lord is not fighting, but is peaceful, for it is peace itself, seeing that it proceeds from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love. But in order that it may be made fighting, it flows into such Angels as are in ardent zeal for truth and good . . . 8598².

—^e. 'A drawn sword in his hand' = truth Divine fighting in its power.

8598. 'Tomorrow I will stand upon the head of the hill' = the conjunction of truth Divine with the good of charity, and influx thence.

8603. 'Moses, Aaron, and Hur' = Divine truths in successive order. (For) 'Moses' = the Divine truth proceeding immediately from the Lord; 'Aaron,' the Divine truth proceeding mediately from the Lord; and 'Hur,' the Divine truth proceeding mediately through this again. Ex.

8604³. The Lord flows in with every man through the truth which is from Him; through this He gives life to man; for the light which is from the Lord is Divine truth. This Divine truth which is from the Lord inflows into the good with man, and through this draws the man to Himself . . .

8609. 'They took a stone' = truth Divine in the ultimate of order.

8625. The Lord is called 'King' from Divine truth. This, to wit, Divine truth, is involved in the name 'Christ.'

8645^e. Thus 'Moses' represents the Lord as to Divine truth, for from this is the Spiritual Kingdom.

8662. 'Moses went forth to meet his father-in-law' = the application of truth Divine to Divine good.

8685. 'Moses sat to judge the people' = the disposition (effected by) truth Divine with those who are of the Spiritual Church in the state before it is from good. . . The reason 'to judge' here = disposition, is that truth Divine does not judge anyone, but flows in and disposes so that it may be received.

8686. 'The people stood over Moses' = obedience then from truth Divine. . . The truth by which man is then led is the Word, for this is truth Divine.

8693. The people came to him alone, by which is signified that truth Divine was consulted in every thing.

8700². The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord is that which makes order, and is order itself; hence everything which is according to Divine truth is possible, because it is according to order; and everything which is against Divine truth is impossible, because it is against order. Examps.

8701. The influx of truth Divine is immediate in the first state of a man while being regenerated, but both immediate and mediate in the second state, to wit, when he is regenerate. Ex. 8726².

8705. Mediation and intercession are of Divine truth, because this is the nearest to the Divine good which is the Lord Himself; (for) it proceeds immediately from Him.

—³. By 'the Son' is meant Divine truth . . . and mediation is effected through Divine truth; for through it there is given access to Divine good; for the Divine good cannot be approached, because it is like the fire of the sun, but the Divine truth can, because it is like the light thence derived . . .

8707^e. This light (of the internal eye) is from the Divine truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord.

8712. 'The princes of thousands' = the primary things which are in the first degree under the truth immediately from the Divine . . . because they were under Moses, by whom is represented truth Divine proceeding from Divine good, that is, from the Lord.

8717. 'Every great word they shall bring to thee' = that everything is from the truth immediately from the Divine . . . In the sense of the letter, it appears as if everything were to be brought to Divine truth; but as everything comes from the Lord through the truth proceeding from Him . . . it does not signify to it, but from it.

[A. 8717]². The fact really is, that by the truth proceeding from Him the Lord rules all things down to the smallest particulars ; not as a king in the world, but as God in Heaven and in the universe . . . His disposition is immediate through the truth Divine from Himself, and is also mediate through Heaven . . .

8726. That the truth immediately from the Divine, through these (truths), might lead the man of the Church through good. Sig.

8731. 'Moses sent his father-in-law away'=the state of truth Divine accommodated. (For) when mediate truths are subordinated to the truth immediately from the Divine, there is an end of that state.

8748. It treats in what now follows (Ex.xix.etc.) of the revelation of truth Divine by the Lord out of Heaven ; and, in this chapter, of the preparation to receive it. 8786^e.

8760. 'Moses went up unto God'=the truth from the Divine which is below Heaven conjoining itself with the Divine truth which is in Heaven. 8828.

8761. 'And Jehovah called to him from the mount'=the union of the Divine good in Heaven with the Divine truth there.

8764³. When 'wings' are attributed to the Divine, by them is signified Divine truth to which belongs omnipotence. Ill.

—⁴. 'The sound of the wings as the sound of great waters'=the quality of Divine truth in Heaven ; in like manner 'its voice as the voice of wheels,' and 'as the voice of Shaddai ;' for 'sound' and 'voice' are attributed to Divine truth.

8768. 'Ye shall be unto Me a peculiar treasure . . . '=that then Divine truth will be with them more than others. Ex.

8778. 'Moses'=truth from the Divine conjoined with truth Divine in Heaven, which is mediant . . .

8780. 'Jehovah said to Moses'=the influx of the Divine through truth from the Divine concerning revelation.

8781. 'Moses'=the truth from the Divine which is of the Spiritual Church.

8783. Truth Divine is not received by anyone unless it is accommodated to the apprehension, thus unless it appears in a natural form . . .

8787. 'Go unto the people'=conjunction ; as is evident from the representation of Moses now, which is the truth from the Divine that is below Heaven ; (and also because) the truth from the Divine . . . is the mediant of the Divine with those who are of the Church . . . Therefore by Moses is also represented the truth from the Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven. 8805⁴.

8805. 'Moses went down from the mount to the people'=application and preparation through truth from the Divine to receive truths in good.

8813. 'Voices' which are the sound of thunder= truths Divine ; and 'lightnings'=the flashing and resplendence of these truths, for truths Divine are resplendent and flash from the flaming of the light which is from the Sun of Heaven. Ill.

8814. 'The cloud' here,=truth Divine accommodated to the people from Jacob . . .

8815. The truth Divine itself in Heaven is signified by 'the voices and lightnings ;' but the heavenly or angelic truth which is adjoined to the Divine, and which is below or around, is signified by 'the voice of a trumpet.'

—². The Divine truth which passes through Heaven is also meant by the trumpets which the Angels sounded (Rev.viii.) Ill.

—^e. The truth Divine through the Heavens is such that it perfects the good, and destroys the evil. Sig. and Ex.

8816. 'The people in the camp'=those who were about to receive Divine truth.

8817. 'Moses made the people go forth to meet God'=the power of truth from the Divine to prepare them to receive the Divine.

8823. Truth Divine is revelation, and that which is manifested by the mediumship of Heaven is general relatively to the truth Divine itself in Heaven ; for it is outside or around.

8824. 'Moses spake, and God answered him in a voice'=through the influx of truth from the Divine in which was the Divine itself.

8834. 'Moses said unto Jehovah'=the thought of truth from the Divine. Ex.

8840. 'Away, get thee down'=the influx . . . of the Divine through truth from the Divine.

8841. 'And come up, thou and Aaron'=conjunction with truth from the Divine, internal and external.

8859. It treats in (Ex.xx.) of the truths Divine which are to be implanted in the good with those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Church. The ten commandments of the decalogue are these truths.

8861. 'God spake all these words, saying'=truths Divine for those in the Heavens and for those on earth . . . (8862,Ex.) For God speaks nothing but truths ; hence truth Divine is called 'the Word ;' and 'the Word' is the Lord in John . . . because the Lord was the Divine truth itself while He was in the world, and afterwards when glorified He became Divine good, and then all Divine truth proceeds from Him. This Divine truth is light to the Angels, which light also it is that illumines our internal sight . . . From this it can be seen in what order truths follow, and that each and all things derive their origin from truths Divine, which are the internal beginnings of all things : the forms too in which they are derive their origin thence . . . For truth Divine is the veriest essentiality, and the sole substantiality through which all things exist.

8899. The commandments of the decalogue are also for those who are in Heaven . . . for the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord flows through Heaven, and reaches down to men.

8914. The perception of truths Divine from good. Sig. and Ex. 8915.

8916. 'The mount' (Sinai)=Divine good united to Divine truth in Heaven; and 'smoking' = in the external form; (for) Divine truth or the Word in the internal form is like light and flame, but in the external form it is like a cloud and smoke, because truth Divine or the Word in the internal form is such as it is in Heaven . . . but in the external form is such as it is in the world . . . truth Divine or the Word in the internal form is its internal sense, and in the external form is its external or literal sense.

8917. 'The people saw, and were moved' = a tremor when Divine truths are being received.

8920². As to the truth in an accommodated form (here represented by Moses), it is to be known that when truth Divine descends through the Heavens to men, as the Word has descended, on the way it is accommodated to all both in the Heavens and on earth; but truth Divine is in a completely different form in the Heavens from what it is in the world; in the Heavens it is such as is the internal sense of the Word; in the world it is such as is its sense in the letter; nay, in the Heavens themselves it exists in diverse forms; in one form in the Third Heaven, in another in the Second, and in another in the First: the form of truth Divine, that is, its perception, thought, and utterance, in the Third Heaven, so far transcends that in the Second Heaven, that in the latter it cannot be apprehended, so Divine and super-eminent is it; for it contains innumerable things which cannot be uttered in the Second Heaven, consisting of mere changes of state as to the affections which are of love: and the form of truth Divine in the second Heaven, in like manner transcends that in the First Heaven; and still more the form of truth Divine in the world. . . From this it is evident, that unless truth Divine or the Word were to appear in an accommodated form, it could not be apprehended. . . Hence it is that truth Divine has been given to man such as is the Word in the letter. . .

8921. 'And let not God speak with us' = truth in a form not accommodated. . . For by Moses is signified the truth Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven, thus mediant between the Lord and the people; and therefore truth Divine in an accommodated form. . . For by 'God' is here meant the Lord as to the Divine truth in Heaven, thus Divine truth itself.

8922. 'Lest we die' = that thus the life of Heaven would perish with them. . . That truth Divine in a form not accommodated has this effect, is evident from what is shown above; for truth in a form not accommodated such as it is in Heaven, transcends the apprehension, and that which transcends the apprehension is not received, and that which is not received does not flow into any faith, thus neither into the life of faith, which is the life of Heaven; and man is regenerated. . . through the truth Divine which is of faith. Refs.

8928. 'Moses drew near to the thick darkness where God was' = still the conjunction of the truth of spiritual good with truth Divine. (For) 'Moses' = the truth Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven, and therefore mediant; thus the truth of spiritual good, for this is the truth Divine below

Heaven, in which is the Spiritual Church which is represented by the Sons of Israel: Moses represented this truth as the head of that Church. . . The 'thick darkness' = truth Divine relatively to those who are of the Spiritual Church; also relatively to that people of whom Moses was the leader. The reason truth Divine is thick darkness to both the latter and the former, is that they are not in any light as to truths Divine. . . The reason they of the Spiritual Church . . . are in obscurity, yea, in thick darkness as to truth Divine, is that they do not know from any internal perception . . . and he who is not in internal perception concerning truth Divine, is in thick darkness, or, what is the same, Divine truth is thick darkness to him. Examps.

8932. Divine truth and good itself is in internals, and it is also in externals; but in the latter Divine truth and good is in representative types.

8941². When truths are hatched from man's own intelligence, they are dominant over truths from the Divine, for the latter are applied to confirm the former; when yet the contrary ought to be the case, to wit, that truths from the Divine are to be dominant, and those from man's own intelligence subservient.

—⁶. The temple also was to be built of whole stones . . . for by the temple of the Lord was represented the Lord as to Divine truth . . . because Divine truth was taught there; wherefore, also, it was built of stones, (which) = Divine truth. (Therefore the meaning is) that religion is to be formed by truths from the Lord, thus from the Word, and not from man's own intelligence.

8988³. It is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord which makes order in Heaven, so much so that it is order itself; wherefore, when a man or angel receives Divine truth from the Lord in good, there exists with him the order which is in the Heavens; and therefore he is a Heaven or Kingdom of the Lord in particular. . . And, what is an arcanum, the Angels appear in a human form entirely according to the truths which are with them in good. . . and the men of the Church the same as to their soul in Heaven: the very Divine truth proceeding from the Lord induces this. Sig.

—^e. By the internal sense, as by a key, are opened truths Divine such as are in Heaven. . .

9093⁵. The arcanum was, that Divine truths had been dissipated by the Jews; for the Lord was the Divine truth. . . His 'garments' represented truths in the external form; and His 'coat' in the internal. . .

9127⁶. The 'water' (out of the Lord's side) = external truth Divine, such as is the Word in the letter.

—^e. The truth Divine proceeding from the Lord in Heaven has innocence in it, for it affects no others than those who are in innocence. Refs.

9144¹⁰. 'The King of the Jews' = truth Divine.

—¹¹. The reason the Lord, with the crown of thorns on His head, said, 'Behold the Man,' was that it = Behold Divine truth, such as it is at this day in the Church; for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord in Heaven is man. . .

9160. Every Angel receives truths Divine in his own way. Sig and Refs.

9163. In the Spiritual World, each and all things are conjoined according to the reception of truth Divine from the Lord, thus according to the reception of order . . .

[A.9163]⁴. 'To break the bones' = to destroy the truths from the Divine which are the last in order . . . 'A bone of Him was not broken' . . . because He was the Divine truth itself in both the first and the last of order.

9166². These words (about swearing) involve that truths Divine are to be confirmed by the Lord, and not by man . . . 'To swear by Heaven' = by Divine truth, thus by the Lord there; for Heaven is not Heaven from the Angels regarded in themselves, but from the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, thus from the Lord, in them. . . Hence it is that the Angels are truths Divine, because they are recipients of truth Divine from the Lord. Refs. . . 'God's throne' (also) = the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord. And 'to swear by the earth' is by the Church, thus by the Divine truth there; for as Heaven is the Lord from the Divine truth which proceeds from Him, so also is the Church. . . 'A footstool' (also) = the truth Divine below Heaven, such as is the Word in the literal sense; for upon this rests the truth Divine in Heaven, such as is the Word in the internal sense. . . And 'to swear by Jerusalem' = by the doctrine . . . of truth Divine from the Word.

9167². 'God,' 'King,' and 'Master' = the Lord as to Divine truth.

— Here, He is called 'Lord' from Divine good; and 'Angel,' from Divine truth. Refs.

9198. The Lord is called 'the Bridegroom' and 'Husband' from Divine good; and His Kingdom and Church is called 'the wife' and 'bride' from the reception of the Divine truth which proceeds from Him.

—². 'No prophet is accepted in his own country' = that the Lord and the Divine truth which is from Him are less received and loved at heart within the Church than without it.

—³. 'Many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias' = the state at that time of the acknowledgment in the Church of truth Divine from the Word.

9199². By 'the Comforter' is meant the Divine truth which the Lord was while in the world, and which proceeds from the Lord after He glorified His Human and went out of the world; therefore He said that He would send the Comforter, and that He would come Himself.

—⁴. That by 'the Comforter' is meant the Divine truth, Ill.

—⁵. That the Lord was Divine truth while He was in the world, Ill.

—⁶. And that the Divine truth proceeds from the Lord after He glorified His Human and went out of the world, Ill.

9212⁴. That His garments became as the light = the Divine truth proceeding from Him; this also appears in Heaven as light. Refs.

9221. See BLASPHEME at these refs. 9222.

9267. The reason 'words' = truths, is that in the Original Language, 'word' means that which is something, and which really comes forth . . . From this too it is, that Divine truth is called 'the Word.'

9315⁴. That the Divine truth could not be revealed to men, except by Jehovah in a human form. Ill.

9327². All power in the Spiritual World is from truths from good, thus from the truths which proceed from the Lord; (for) the Lord disposes all things in Heaven, in Hell, and in the world, through the truths which are from Him; for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is that very reality — ipsum — through which all things have come forth, and through which they all subsist . . . From this it is evident, that the Angels have their power from the truth Divine which is from the Lord . . .

9336⁴. The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine good disposes all things in Heaven into order; wherefore, this Divine truth in which there is good from the Lord, is order itself. (Refs.) . . . In order, therefore, for Heaven to come forth in a man, it is necessary that he should receive Divine truth in good from the Lord . . .

9338⁶. For Heaven is nothing but the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good.

9358. In every other Earth, truth Divine is manifested orally through Spirits and Angels . . . but this is done within families . . . Wherefore the Divine truth thus revealed through Spirits and Angels is not carried far beyond the families; and unless a new revelation constantly follows, it is either perverted or perishes. It is different on our Earth, where truth Divine, which is the Word, remains perpetually in its integrity.

9372². In the Word there are a number who represent the Lord as to truth Divine, chief among whom are Moses, Elijah, Elisha, and John the Baptist . . .

—⁵. By the clothing or garment, when predicated of the Word, is signified the truth Divine therein in the ultimate form.

9382. 'Moses came and related to the people' = enlightenment and information by the Lord through the Divine truth which is from Him. (For) 'Moses' = the Lord as to the Word, thus as to Divine truth.

9389. 'Twelve pillars for the twelve tribes of Israel' = a representative of the Lord's Divine Human as to the truth Divine which is from Him in the whole complex.

9393. So long as truth Divine has not entered more interiorly (than the memory), it is indeed with man, but still is not implanted in the life and will . . . Hence it is evident what is meant by Divine truth being made of the life.

9395. The reason why by this half of the blood, which was sprinkled upon the altar, is signified the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human; and by the other half of the blood, which was sprinkled upon the people, is signified that Divine truth received by the man of the Church, is that a covenant was entered into, and by a covenant is signified conjunction, and the conjunction of the Lord with the man of the Church is effected when the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord is received by man.

9396². The reason Divine truth or the Word is a covenant or conjunction, is that it is the Divine from the Lord, thus the Lord Himself; wherefore, when the Word is received by man, the Lord Himself is received.

—¹². 'To cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem, and the bow of war'=the vastation of truth Divine in the Church as to all the understanding of it; and 'by the blood of the covenant to send forth the bound in the pit in which there was no water'=restoration through the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human.

9398². Divine truth does not proceed from the Divine itself, but from the Divine Human. Sig.

9399. To 'sprinkle the blood upon the people'=adaptation for reception by man . . . For the Divine truth which is from the Lord continually flows in with man, and makes his Intellectual; and (in fact), without the continual influx of the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord, man cannot perceive and understand anything whatever; for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is the light which illumines the mind of man, and makes the internal sight, which is the understanding; and as this light continually flows in, it adapts everyone to receive; but they who receive are they who are in the good of life; and they who do not receive are they who are in evil of life; nevertheless, the latter, like the former, are in the capacity of receiving and understanding; and also in the capacity of receiving in proportion as they desist from evils. These things are signified by the half of the blood which Moses sprinkled upon the people. (From experience.)

9400. The reason 'the blood of the covenant'=conjunction with Heaven and with earth, is that the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human passes through the Heavens down to man, and on the way is accommodated to every Heaven, and at last to man himself: Divine truth in our Earth is the Word . . .

—². Hence it may be concluded for certain, that without the Word on this Earth . . . the human race would utterly perish; for that which makes the interior life of man is the influx of truth Divine from the Lord; for this is the light itself which illumines the sight of the internal man . . . and it is the heavenly heat which is in that light . . .

9405. The Word is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, and what proceeds from the Lord is the Lord Himself; wherefore, they who read the Word, and at the same time look to the Lord . . . are enlightened . . . This enlightenment is from the light of Heaven, which light is the Divine truth itself proceeding from the Lord. Refs. 9905²; Refs.

9406³. 'Footstool'=the Divine truth in ultimates. —⁴.

—⁵. Still, in this sense (of the letter), there is Divine truth such as it is in the Heavens. Sig.

—⁶. 'The man clothed in linen,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord; (and therefore he =) the Divine truth which is from Him; for the Divine truth which is from the Lord is the Lord Himself in Heaven and the Church. Truth Divine, or the Lord in ultimates, is meant by 'his arms and feet as the brightness of burnished brass'; also, by 'the voice of his words as the voice of a multitude.'

—⁷. The successive states of the Church on this Earth as to the reception of the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord, are also meant by the statue seen by Nebuchadnezzar.

9407. 'The work of a sapphire'=the quality of the literal sense of the Word, when the internal sense . . . thus when the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, such as it is in Heaven, shines through: for the Word is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, which, in its own origin, is Divine; and in its progress through the Heavens, in the inmost Heaven is celestial, in the middle one is spiritual, in the ultimate one is spiritual natural, and in the world is natural and worldly, such as it is in the sense of the letter.

—⁹. The Nazarites = the Lord as to the Divine Natural, thence also the Divine truth proceeding from Him in ultimates, which is the Word in the sense of the letter; for the hair . . . = truth in ultimates.

—¹⁰. 'The throne upon which was the appearance of a man'=the Divine truth from the Lord's Divine good.

—¹¹. The reason all things of the Word are translucent from the Lord, is that the Divine truth which is from the Lord is the sole thing—unicum—from which are all things; for that which is the first is the sole thing in the derivatives, since they are and come forth from it; and the Divine truth is the Lord. . . That the Divine truth is the Lord Himself, is evident from this, that whatever proceeds from anyone is himself . . .

—¹³. (Such) may believe that the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is as the speech which proceeds from a man; but it is not speech, but the Divine filling the Heavens, as the light and heat from the sun fill the world . . . This may be illustrated by the spheres which proceed from the Angels . . . But the Divine sphere, which proceeds from the Lord, which is called Divine truth, is universal . . .

—¹⁴. This light, which is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, was described by the ancients by means of radiant circles of a golden colour around the head and body of God.

9408. The angelic Heaven is said to shine through, when truth Divine shines through; for the universal Heaven is nothing but a receptacle of truth Divine; for each Angel is the reception of it in particular . . . From this, Heaven is called 'the habitation of God,' and also 'the throne of God;' because by 'a habitation' is signified truth Divine proceeding from the Lord received in the inmost Heaven, which relatively is good; and by 'a throne' is signified truth Divine from the Lord received in the middle Heaven . . .

9410⁵. The omnipotence of the Divine truth which is from the Lord, is described in many places in the Word; and also in . . . 'they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the Word of their testimony: 'the blood of the Lamb'=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human; and 'the Word of their testimony' = truth Divine received. 9503².

9419⁶. Such is the influx of Divine truth, that it does not fall into a human idea, unless it is enlightened by the Lord . . .

9420. 'Mount Sinai,' which is here called 'the mount of God'=the law or Divine truth which is from the Lord . . . and 'the mount of God'=the Divine truth from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love. Ill.

[A.]9429⁴. Here 'the glory of the Lord,' and 'the glory of God'=Divine truth; and 'the glory of men'=falsity.

— The Divine truth proceeding from His Divine Human is described in this whole chapter (Is.lx.); and is called 'light,' 'honour,' and 'glory.'

—⁵. 'The light of the gentiles'=the Divine truth which is from Him.

9430². All who are in Heaven are instructed by the Lord from the truth Divine which is with man, thus from the Word. Ex. . . The Word in the letter is Divine truth in the ultimate of order; in like manner the man of the Church, with whom is Divine truth, as to his Natural and Sensuous . . . They are as a house and its foundation; the house itself is Heaven, and the Divine truth there is such as is the Word as to its internal sense; and the foundation is the world, and the Divine truth there such as is the Word in the external sense. As a house rests on its foundation, so does Heaven upon the Church, and therefore the Divine truth in Heaven upon the Divine truth on earth. . . This is why it is always provided by the Lord that there should be a Church on earth, where Divine truth is in its ultimate.

9433. The Divine truth which is from the Lord can never appear to anyone in the very beam in which it is . . . for his Intellectual would be quite blinded by the light of the truth, and his Voluntary would be quite extinguished by the fire of the good, thus the whole of his life would be annihilated; hence it is that Divine truth is accommodated to the apprehension of everyone, and is as it were veiled over by a cloud, even with the Angels. Ill.

—^c. 'A bound that they may not pass over'=the ultimate of truth Divine in which interior things cease, and upon which they subsist and rest as a foundation.

9434. 'The aspect of the glory of Jehovah was as a devouring fire on the head of the mount to the eyes of the sons of Israel'=Divine truth in Heaven itself resplendent from the good of love, but hurting and devastating with those who are in its external separated from the internal.

9468³. The Word is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good; and it appears as a flaming light in the inmost Heaven, and as a bright white light in the middle one.

9493. 'Thou shalt cast for it four rings of gold'=Divine truth conjoined with Divine good, which is everywhere round about.

9498. 'Thou shalt bring the staves into the rings'=the power of the Divine sphere; (for) the rings=Divine truth conjoined with Divine good which is everywhere round about, thus the Divine sphere. . . For the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good is not to be conceived of as speech and its influx into the ear, but as a sphere from the Sun, which, by degrees, as it recedes from the Sun, decreases in ardour and resplendence, and at last is so tempered that it is accommodated to the reception of the Angels. Within this sphere, but far from the Sun . . . is the angelic Heaven. This sphere also extends itself . . . down into Hell; but they . . . turn it into what is contrary.

9503. 'Thou shalt give to the ark the testimony'=the Divine truth, which is the Lord in Heaven. . . The reason Divine truth is the Lord in Heaven, is that the Lord is good itself and truth itself, for both proceed from Him, and what proceeds from Him is Himself. Hence it is that the Lord is Heaven; for the Divine truth which is from Him, and is received by the Angels, makes Heaven. Hence it is that the more perfectly the Angels receive the Divine truth which is from the Lord, thus the Lord, the more perfect human forms they are . . . The reason the Angels are human forms, is that the Divine in Heaven is the Lord, and they who receive Divine truth in good from Him are His images.

9534. 'Thou shalt make for it a closure of a span round about'=conjunction there with truth from the Divine. Ex.

9548. See CANDLESTICK at these refs. 9549, 9684.—². —³.

—⁵. 'A lamp'=the Divine truth which is from the Lord.

9569. 'The seven lamps'=the holy spiritual things thence. . . For the Divine truth which is from the Lord, through which come faith, intelligence, and wisdom, is the Spiritual . . . The reason the lamps were seven in number, was that the Divine truth . . . is what is called 'holy,' because it proceeds from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love, which is what sanctifies.

9684². The light in the Heavens is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, which when received by the Angels of the Spiritual Kingdom, is called the truth of faith from the good of charity. . . Divine good becomes spiritual good through the reception of Divine truth as of the light from the moon.

—⁴. That the light from the Lord as a Sun and Moon is the Divine truth proceeding from His Divine Human. Refs.

—⁵. The difference between the Celestial and the Spiritual Kingdom as to the reception of Divine truth . . . is as that between the light from the sun and from the moon . . .

9714². 'The temple' was a representative of the Lord as to His Divine truth, thus as to Heaven, for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord makes Heaven . . .

9804. Aaron's garments=the Divine Spiritual, which is the Divine truth proceeding (from Divine good). Tr.

9806. 'Cause Aaron thy brother to approach unto thee'=the conjunction of Divine truth with Divine good in the Lord's Divine Human. (For) Moses=the Lord as to Divine truth . . . For the Lord had first made His Human Divine truth, and afterwards Divine good. Aaron was chosen to fill the priestly office because he was the brother of Moses; for thus there was simultaneously represented the brotherhood of Divine truth and of Divine good in Heaven.

9807. 'And his sons'=Divine truth proceeding from Divine good.

9809⁴. Divine truths fighting at that time. Sig.

—⁵. 'The Lord at thy right hand' = the Divine truth at that time from Him, by which is omnipotence.

9810. The Divine Celestial is the Divine of the Lord in the inmost Heaven; the Angels there are called Celestial Angels, and are receptions of the Divine truth in their Voluntary part; the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord when received in that part is called celestial good, but when received in the intellectual part it is called spiritual good.

9811. 'Nadab and Abihu' = the Divine Spiritual thence; (for) the sons of Aaron = the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine good. The Divine Spiritual is the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Celestial, thus the Divine good received in the Second Heaven. This is represented by the two firstborn sons of Aaron, because this proceeds and is as it were born from the celestial good which is in the inmost Heaven, as a son from a father.

9814. 'The raiment' (of the Lord when transfigured) = the Divine Spiritual, or the Divine truth which is from Him.

9815. 'For glory and for beauty—decus' = to present the Divine truth such as it is in the Spiritual Kingdom adjoined to the Celestial Kingdom in its internal and external form. 9950.

9818. 'Whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom' = those on whom Divine truth is inscribed. Ex.

—³. 'Spirit,' when said of the Lord, = the Divine truth proceeding from His Divine good. Ill.

—¹⁴. 'The streams of living water which shall flow forth from his belly' = truths Divine.

— The reason it is said that 'the Holy Spirit was not yet, because Jesus was not yet glorified,' is that when the Lord was in the world, He Himself taught Divine truth, but when He was glorified, which was after His resurrection, He taught it through Angels and Spirits.

—¹⁵. Breathing = the life of faith; therefore the Lord's 'breathing on' (His disciples) = the capacity bestowed of perceiving Divine truths, and thus of receiving that life.

—¹⁹. 'The spirit of Jehovah' = the Divine truth, and thus heavenly life for the man who receives it. Ill.

—²¹. 'The spirit of judgment' = Divine truth; for judgment is predicated of truth.

—²². 'The spirit of holiness,' here, = the Lord as to Divine truth, thus the Divine truth which is from the Lord.

— 'The testimony of Jesus' = the Divine truth which is from Him and about Him.

—²³. 'To make His Angels Spirits' = receptions of Divine truth.

—²⁴. 'Lamps' = Divine truths.

9820. 'To sanctify him' = thus a representative of the Divine truth in that Kingdom. (For) 'to be sanctified' = to be imbued with Divine truth by the Lord; for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is what is called in the Word 'holy.' Ill.

9822. 'These are the garments which they shall make' = Divine truths in the Spiritual Kingdom in their order.

. . . This Kingdom is called the Spiritual Kingdom from the Divine truths there . . . And as the garments of Aaron represented this Kingdom, and these garments were the ephod, the robe, and the coat, the Divine truths there in their order are signified by them.

9823. 'The breastplate' = Divine truth shining forth from Divine good . . . here, in the ultimates progressively from the inmosts in the Heavens. Ex. . . The twelve precious stones correspond to Divine truths thence derived. . . 'Judgment' also = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good. 9857. 9863². 9905.

9824. 'And the ephod' = the Divine truth there in the external form in which the interior things cease. Ex.

9835. 'And the robe' = the Divine truth there in the internal form. Ex. 9911.

9826. 'The chequered coat' = the Divine truth there inmostly proceeding immediately from the Divine Celestial. 9942.

9905³. 'Urim' means 'fire shining;' and 'thummim,' 'the shining forth thence;' 'fire shining' = the Divine truth from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love; and 'the shining forth' = this truth in ultimates, thus in effect . . .

—⁴. 'Judgment' = Divine truth in doctrine and life.

— With those who are in truths from good . . . there is such a shining forth, by means of which Divine truth from Heaven is revealed in the natural man with those who are being enlightened from the Word . . .

9912^e. 'The robe' = Divine truth in the internal form in the Spiritual Kingdom, which is the same as the good of charity.

9917². 'The fringes' = Divine truths in ultimates, such as are the truths of the Word in the sense of the letter; and they are said 'to fill the temple' when they fill the Church. (The same is also signified by 'the smoke filling the tabernacle, and the temple.')

9926. 'The voice,' when said of Aaron, by whom is represented the Lord, = Divine truth; for 'the voice' = the announcement of it; and as it = the announcement, it is with those who are in the Heavens and on earth; for Divine truth fills all things of Heaven, and makes all things of the Church. Such an announcement was represented by 'the voice' of the golden bells when Aaron went in to the Holy before Jehovah, and when he went out.

—². That 'voice' = the Divine truth which is heard and perceived in the Heavens and on earth. Ill.

9930. Enlightenment in the Heavens is wisdom and intelligence from the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord as a Sun, for this enlightens their interiors.

—¹. 'A lamp' = Divine truth from which is intelligence.

—⁸. 'Beauty—decus' = the Divine truth of the Church.

—⁹. 'Glory' = the intelligence which is of Divine truth.

9942³. When the Celestial Church fell, which took place through reasonings from scientifics about truths Divine, which is signified by the serpent that persuaded . . .

[A. 9942]¹³. His coat not being divided = that Divine truth spiritual proximately proceeding from Divine truth celestial could not be dissipated, because this truth is the internal truth of the Word, such as is with the Angels in Heaven.

9946. 'For the sons of Aaron' = the Divine truths proceeding from the Lord's Divine good in the Heavens. . . . The reason it = in the Heavens is that the Divine of the Lord in the Heavens is what is represented by the priesthood of Aaron and his sons; the Divine good in the Heavens, by the priesthood of Aaron, and the Divine truth from the Divine good there, by the priesthood of his sons.

9954². When stones were anointed with oil, they represented truths from good, and, in the supreme sense, the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good, thus the Lord Himself, who is therefore 'the stone of Israel.'

—⁹. The reason they anointed the prophets, was that the prophets represented the Lord as to the doctrine of Divine truth, thus as to the Word, for this is the doctrine of Divine truth.

—¹⁰. The reason they anointed the kings, was that they might represent the Lord as to judgment from Divine truth; wherefore, by 'kings' in the Word are signified truths Divine.

—¹⁷. An assault upon Divine truth by falsities and evils. Sig.

9960⁶. 'Sons of deliciousnesses' = truths Divine.

—⁷. 'The Angel of the Church' = truth Divine there.

9964. The worship representative of the Lord as to Divine good [was] at the altar; and the worship representative of the Lord as to Divine truth [was] in the Tent of the assembly. . . . Heaven and the Church are receptacles of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. The Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is the truth proceeding from the good of His love, and is implanted where this good also is received.

9987. In an eminent sense, 'the Word' = Divine truth, because everything that really comes forth, or that is anything, is from Divine truth. Ill.

9995. All the truths and goods which are in the Heavens are from the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good. This Divine truth received by the Angels in the Celestial Kingdom is called celestial good, but as received by the Angels in the Spiritual Kingdom it is called spiritual good; for however the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good is called truth, still it is good. The reason it is called truth, is that it appears in the Heavens . . . as light . . . But the heat in that light . . . causes it to be good.

10001. 'The Tent of the assembly' represented the Lord as to Divine truth.

10013. 'The coats for the sons of Aaron' = the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Spiritual.

10019. 'The filling of their hands' = inauguration to represent the Divine power of the Lord through Divine truth from Divine good. 10076. 10101. 10106⁶.

—⁶. 'The light of faces' = Divine truth from Divine good.

10026. 'Blood' in the Word = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good; and through this truth all purification is effected; for truth teaches man what is good . . .

10027⁶. The reason the blood was first to be put upon the horns of the altar, was that there might be represented the very power of Divine truth from Divine good; for all things are effected through the power of Divine truth from Divine good.

10061. ('The blood on the ear') = the whole perceptivity of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good in the Heavens.

10067⁵. The blood from the second ram being sprinkled upon the altar round about, and the taking of that blood and of the oil of anointing, and sprinkling it upon Aaron and his garments = the union of the Divine truth with the Divine good, and of the Divine good with the Divine truth in the Lord's Divine Human. . . . But the arcanum hidden here is, that there was a reciprocal union of the Divine good and the Divine truth; thus of the Divine itself which is called 'the Father,' and of the Divine truth which is 'the Son.'

10076⁵. He first made His Human Divine truth, and, by degrees, the Divine good of love; and afterwards, from the Divine good of the Divine love, He acts in Heaven and the world, and gives life to them, which is effected through the Divine truth which proceeds from the Divine good of the Divine love of His Divine Human; for from it the Heavens have come forth, and from it they perpetually come forth . . .

10090. Communication with those who are in truths Divine. Sig.

—². Divine truth is received by those who are in the Spiritual Kingdom; and Divine good by those who are in the Celestial Kingdom. Sig.

10093. Divine truth is acknowledged in the Spiritual Kingdom, but in the Celestial Kingdom it is perceived. The reason is, that Divine truth in the Spiritual Kingdom is received in the intellectual part, but in the Celestial Kingdom in the voluntary part.

—³. As the Levites represented the Divine truths in Heaven and the Church which are of service to Divine good, they were given to Aaron in place of all the firstborn . . .

10099⁵. This opening and consequent elevation (of the interiors) is effected through truths Divine, which are the vessels recipient of the good of love from the Divine. . . . And there is no opening with the man who does not receive truths Divine, which takes place if he is in evil.

10149. 'He shall be sanctified in My glory' = what is receptive of Divine truth from the Lord.

10182². In the Heavens all power is from the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good; hence the Angels have power, for they are receptions of Divine truth from the Lord.

—³. The power of Divine truth is also meant by 'the voice of Jehovah.' Ill.

—⁴. The power of Divine truth is also meant by 'the Word.' . . . Therefore, the Lord, when in the world, first made Himself Divine truth . . . The reason the Lord then made Himself Divine truth, was that He might fight against all the Hells . . . Refs.

10196. 'The testimony'=the Lord as to the Word, thus as to the Divine truth.

10240². 'The spirit' (as distinguished from 'water')=the Divine truth which flows in from the Lord through the internal of man into his external or Natural, whence the man who is being regenerated has the life of faith.

10243². 'The linen cloth' with which the Lord was girded, and with which He wiped=the Divine truth proceeding from Him. —³.

10258⁸. 'Thy God hath anointed thee . . . with myrrh, aloes, and cassia, all thy garments'=the Divine truths from Divine good which the Lord put on as to His Human. The anointing was a representative of the Divine good in the Lord's Divine Human; hence 'myrrh, aloes, and cassia'=the Divine truths in their order proceeding from the Divine good which was in Him; hence 'the garments'=His Divine Human; for whether you say the Lord's Divine Human, or the Divine truth, it is the same, since the Lord when in the world was the Divine truth itself, and when He went out of the world, He made Himself Divine good, from which is Divine truth. 10730.

10287. (To put the ointment on a stranger)=the conjunction of Divine truth with those who do not acknowledge the Lord. This conjunction is profanation; for profanation is the conjunction of Divine truth with falsities from evil . . .

10330. 'I have filled him with the spirit of God'=influx and enlightenment from the Divine truth which is from the Lord's Divine good. Ex.

10336³. 'To write the law upon the heart'=to impart Divine truth to the will; and when this takes place, Divine truth is no longer taken out of the memory, but is perceived from the good of love itself . . .

10355⁶. The Lord is the Word itself, since the Word is Divine truth, and Divine truth is the Lord in Heaven, because from the Lord; wherefore they who love Divine truth for the sake of Divine truth, love the Lord; and with those who love the Lord, Heaven flows in and enlightens; whereas they who love Divine truth for the sake of honours and gain as ends, turn themselves from the Lord to themselves and the world, wherefore with them influx and enlightenment are impossible. 10552². —³.

10376. 'Tables of stone written with the finger of God'=the Divine truth there from the Lord Himself. . . 'Stone'=Divine truth in ultimates . . . and Divine truth in ultimates is the sense of the letter of the Word in which is the internal sense.

10400. 'As for this man Moses . . . we know not what is become of him'=that it is utterly unknown what other Divine truth there is in the Word . . . except what stands forth in the sense of the letter.

10422. 'They have suddenly departed from the way which I commanded them'=that they have removed themselves from Divine truth.

10452². The Heavens subsist by means of the Divine truth, and without it they would not be . . . In order, therefore, that the Heavens may subsist, and, from conjunction with them, the human race, the Word has been provided by the Lord, in which there is Divine truth for Angels and for men.

10493. 'Fill ye your hand to-day to Jehovah'=what is communicative and receptive of Divine truth in the Heavens.

10495. 'To give a blessing upon you to-day'=the reception of Divine truth from the Word, and through it conjunction with the Lord.

10508. 'Mine Angel shall go before thee'=that still the Divine truth will lead.

10557. 'His minister Joshua the son of Nun, a boy, removed not himself from the midst of the tent'=Divine truth ministering meanwhile in the holy things of the Church and of worship in the place of Moses. 'Joshua the minister of Moses'=Divine truth ministering in the place of Moses. . . For Moses now begins to represent the head of the Israelitish nation; wherefore, lest the series in the internal sense should be broken, Joshua remained in the tent when Moses was absent; for by 'Joshua' is represented Divine truth as to another function: as Divine truth fighting; Divine truth surveying and apperceiving; and here, Divine truth ministering, in the absence of Moses.

10565⁶. 'Way'=truth; here, Divine truth leading.

10574. 'Make me see Thy glory'=the apperception of internal Divine truth in what is external.

—². To receive the internal of the Church, is to receive Divine truth from Heaven, and through it heavenly love.

—⁵. That 'glory,' and 'light'=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. III.

—¹². 'Cloud,' here, =Divine truth as it is in the light of the world, thus such as it is with men; and 'glory,' Divine truth such as it is in the light of Heaven, thus such as it is with the Angels.

—¹⁴. 'Cloud'=the Divine presence; and where there is the Divine presence there is the Divine truth, for the Divine does not appear without it, since He is in it, and is it.

10577. That the Divine truth and good will be revealed to those who receive. Sig.

10579⁷. The Lord is above the Heavens, for He is the Sun of Heaven; but still He is present in the Heavens, being the Divine truth there, and the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord as a Sun is the Lord in Heaven, on which account the Divine truth there is His 'face.'

10605. 'Be ready for the morning, and thou shalt come up to mount Sinai'=a new rising of the revelation of Divine truth. . . 'Mount Sinai'=Heaven where is the Divine truth, thus whence there is revelation.

10607. 'There shall not anyone come up with thee'=that the Israelitish nation could not be in Divine truth. . . (For) 'mount Sinai'=Heaven whence is the revelation of Divine truth . . . and 'Moses'=the external of the Church, of worship, and of the Word, which receives Divine truth, and through which internal Divine truth shines. —³. Ex.

10608. 'There shall not anyone be seen in the whole mountain'=that they are altogether removed from it . . . (For) 'the mountain,' here mount Horeb=Heaven in the whole complex, thus also the Divine truth; for whether you say Heaven, or the Divine truth, it is the same; for the Angels of whom Heaven consists are receptions of the Divine truth. The whole extent of that mountain was called Horeb, and the higher mountain in the middle of it was called mount Sinai; hence by 'Horeb' is signified Heaven, or, what is the same, the Divine truth in the whole complex; its internal by 'mount Sinai,' and its external, by the mountainous part around.

[A.] 10656. 'Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened things' = a holy state then and the appropriation of Divine truth purified from evil and from the falsities of evil.

10688. 'The ten words' = all truths Divine therein.

H. 1 (m). That 'a trumpet' = the Divine truth in Heaven, and revealed from Heaven. Refs.

13. The Divine proceeding from the Lord is called in Heaven the Divine truth. This Divine truth inflows into Heaven from the Lord, from His Divine love. The Divine love and the Divine truth thence derived are like the fire of the sun and the light thence . . . Hence it is evident, that the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine love is in its essence Divine good conjoined with Divine truth . . .

19. That love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour comprehend all truths Divine in them. Sig.

25. See CELESTIAL KINGDOM at this ref.

33. The interiors are opened by the reception of Divine good and Divine truth. They who are affected with Divine truths, and admit them immediately into the life, thus into the will and thence into act, are in the Third Heaven . . . But they who do not admit them immediately into the will, but into the memory and thence into the understanding, and from that will and do them, are in the Second Heaven.

127. That which proceeds from the Lord as a Sun, in the Heavens is called the Divine truth; yet in its essence it is Divine good united to Divine truth. From this the Angels have light and heat; from Divine truth they have light, and from Divine good they have heat.

128. The reason the Divine truth is light to the Angels, is that the Angels are spiritual . . . and it is the Divine truth from which the Angels have understanding; and understanding is their internal sight, which inflows into their external sight and produces it. . . (Therefore) the light in Heaven is varied according to the reception of the Divine truth from the Lord . . .

129. As the Lord in the Heavens is the Divine truth, and the Divine truth there is light, the Lord is called 'the light.' Ill.

137. That all things have been made and created through the Divine truth, will now be explained. In Heaven, Divine truth has all power, and without it there is none at all. All the Angels are called 'powers' from Divine truth, and they are powers in proportion as they are receptions or receptacles of it. . . A thousand enemies there cannot endure a single ray of the light of Heaven, which is Divine truth. As the Angels are Angels from the reception of the Divine truth, it follows that the whole of Heaven is from no other source . . .

That there is such great power in the Divine truth cannot be believed by those who have no other idea about truth than as of thought or discourse . . . But in the Divine truth there is power in itself, and such power, that by it Heaven has been created, and the world has been created, together with everything that is in them. That there is such power in the Divine truth, may be illustrated by two comparisons, namely, by the power of truth and good in man, and by the power of the light and heat from the sun. Ex. . . From these things it is evident how it is to be understood that all things have been made 'by the Word.' 231. ~~231.~~

140. As the Lord as a Sun is Divine love, and Divine love is Divine good itself, the Divine which proceeds from Him, which is His Divine in Heaven, for the sake of distinction is called the Divine truth, although it is Divine good united to Divine truth. It is this Divine truth which is called the Holy proceeding from Him.

250². From this it is evident, that to speak with the Angels of Heaven is granted only to those whose interiors have been opened through Divine truths even to the Lord; for into these the Lord inflows with a man. . . The reason Divine truths open the interiors of a man, is that man is so created, that as to the internal man he is an image of Heaven, and as to the external an image of the world; and the internal man is not opened except through the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, because it is the light of Heaven and the life of Heaven.

270². As the interiors of the Angels of the Third Heaven are open to the third degree, Divine truths are as it were inscribed on them; for the interiors of the third degree are more in the form of Heaven than those of the second and first degree, and the form of Heaven is from the Divine truth, thus according to the Divine wisdom. Hence it is that Divine truths appear to be as it were inscribed on these Angels, or as it were implanted and innate. As soon, therefore, as they hear genuine Divine truths, they acknowledge and perceive them, and afterwards as it were see them inwardly within themselves. (They therefore) never reason about Divine truths . . .

—³. But the Angels of the First Heaven have not Divine truths so inscribed on their interiors, because with them only the first degree of life is open; they, therefore, reason about them . . .

271. The Angels of the inmost Heaven do not lay up Divine truths in the memory, thus neither do they make knowledge of them; but as soon as they hear them they perceive them and commit them to life; hence it is that Divine truths are permanent with them as it were inscribed . . . But the Angels of the ultimate Heaven first lay up Divine truths in the memory, and store them up for knowledge, and take them out thence, and perfect their understanding by means of them, and, without any interior perception as to whether they are truths, will them, and commit them to life. Thus they are in comparative obscurity.

—^e. Love to the Lord in the Third Heaven is to will and do Divine truth; for Divine truth is the Lord in Heaven.

280². (They who are in the Third Heaven) are the very innocences of Heaven; for more than all others they love to be led by the Lord, as little children by their father; wherefore also the Divine truth which they hear either immediately from the Lord or mediately through the Word and preachings, they receive at once into the will, and do it.

347. They who are affected and delighted with the truth itself, are affected and delighted with the light of Heaven; and they who are affected and delighted with the light of Heaven, are also affected and delighted with Divine truth, yea, with the Lord Himself; for the light of Heaven is Divine truth, and Divine truth is the Lord in Heaven.

—². He who loves Divine truths for the sake of his own glory, regards himself in Divine truth, and not the Lord . . .

459. The human form of every man after death is beautiful in proportion as he has loved Divine truths and lived according to them . . . But they who have loved Divine truths more exteriorly, and have thus lived more exteriorly according to them, are less beautiful.

488⁴. They who have applied truths Divine to their own loves, and have thus falsified them, love unrighteous things . . .

489². They who from interior affection have loved Divine truths and the Word . . . in the other life dwell in the light, in lofty places . . .

522. Divine means are what are called Divine truths . . . 523.

532². Hence they who love themselves and the world above all things, at heart deny Divine truths, because with them the higher things of the mind are closed; and if they speak about them from the memory they do not understand them.

N. 25. That the light of Heaven, which is Divine truth united to Divine good . . . Refs.

— That Divine truth there is light, and Divine good heat. Refs.

— That the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good forms and orders the angelic Heaven. Refs.

— That the Divine good united to the Divine truth which is in the Heavens, is called Divine truth. Ref.

—². That the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is the only real thing. Refs.

— That by means of the Divine truth all things have been made and created. Refs.

—³. That of itself the Rational of man cannot perceive Divine truth. Refs.

303. That the Lord's Human was Divine truth while He was in the world. Gen.art.

— That the Lord made His Human Divine truth from the Divine good which was in Him, while He was in the world. Refs.

— That the Lord then disposed with Himself all things into the heavenly form, which is according to Divine truth. Refs.

J. 28 (i). That the Lord is the Word, because He is the Divine truth in Heaven. Refs.

38. I have been told from Heaven that there is still good with some, but that it cannot be called spiritual good, but natural good, because Divine truths are in obscurity, and Divine truths introduce to charity; for they teach it, and regard it as the end in view . . . The Divine truths from which come the doctrines of the Churches, regard faith alone . . . and these cannot make a man spiritual . . .

—². In proportion as a man . . . becomes external, spiritual light is darkened with him, even until he does not see Divine truth from the truth itself, that is, from the light of Heaven; for the light of Heaven is Divine truth; but only from natural light . . . which sees Divine truth as it were in the night . . .

W. H. 1². 'His eyes as a flame of fire' = the Divine truth from the Divine good of His Divine love.

L. 51. That by 'spirit,' where said of the Lord, is meant in special the life of His wisdom, which is the Divine Truth. Gen.art.

—³. After the Glorification . . . the Lord was the Divine wisdom itself and the Divine Truth itself, thus the Holy Spirit.

51a². 'A dove' is the representative of purification and regeneration through Divine truth.

S. 1. That the Holy Scripture or the Word is the Divine truth itself. Gen.art.

37. That Divine truth in the sense of the letter of the Word is in its fulness, in its holiness, and in its power. Gen.art.

41. Such being the Word in the sense of the letter, it follows that those who are in Divine truths . . . while in enlightenment from the Lord they read the Word, see Divine truths in natural light; for the light of Heaven . . . inflows into natural light . . . and causes them to see and acknowledge Divine truths, where they stand forth, and where they lie concealed. These flow in with some along with the light of Heaven; sometimes when they are not aware of it.

44. 'The garments' of the priesthood or of holiness represented the Divine truth from the Divine good; and 'the ephod' represented Divine truth in its ultimate, thus the Word in the sense of the letter . . . Thence the twelve precious stones . . . represented Divine truths from Divine good in the whole complex.

57. The reason enlightenment exists with those who love truths because they are truths, and make them of use for life, is that they are in the Lord and the Lord in them; for the Lord is His own Divine truth; and when this is loved because it is Divine truth, and it is loved when it is made of use, the Lord is in it with the man. Sig.

98. That the Lord came into the world in order to fulfil all things of the Word, and thereby become the Divine truth or the Word in ultimates also. Gen.art.

99. All the Churches which existed before His Advent were representative Churches, which were not able to see Divine truth except as in shade; but after the Advent of the Lord into the world, a Church was instituted by Him which sees Divine truth in the light . . .

W. 57. The Angels are Angels . . . from conjunction with God Man; (which) is according to the reception of Divine good and Divine truth, which are God, and appear to proceed from Him, although they are in Him ; and the reception is according to the laws of order, which are Divine Truths . . . By this they have a reception of Divine good and Divine truth as from themselves.

[W.] 221³. As, through the assumption of the natural Human, the Lord made Himself the Divine truth in ultimates, He is called 'the Word' . . . and the Divine truth in ultimates is the Word as to the sense of the letter ; this He made Himself by the fulfilment of all things of the Word about Himself in Moses and the Prophets.

427². They who are in celestial love have wisdom inscribed on their life . . . which is the reason why they do not speak about Divine truths, but do them. Whereas they who are in spiritual love have wisdom inscribed on their memory, wherefore they speak about Divine truths, and do them from beginnings or principles in the memory.

P. 231². The second kind of profanation is committed by those who understand and acknowledge Divine truths, and yet live contrary to them. Ex.

—³. He who confirms evil loves, does violence to Divine goods ; he who confirms false principles, does violence to Divine truths.

R. 6. See WORD at this ref.

14. 'And from the seven Spirits who are in sight of the throne'=from the universal Heaven, where the Lord is in His Divine truth, and where His Divine truth is received.

16. 'He is the faithful Witness'=that He is the Divine truth itself. E.27,Ex.

25. 'Every eye shall see Him'=that all will acknowledge Him who from affection are in the understanding of Divine truth.

26. 'To pierce Jesus Christ'=to destroy His Divine truth in the Word. This also is meant by one of the soldiers piercing His side . . . 'The blood and water'= Divine truth spiritual and natural, thus the Word in its spiritual and its natural sense . . .

37. 'I heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet'=manifest perception of Divine truth revealed from Heaven. E.55.

45. 'Clothed with a robe-talaris'=the Divine proceeding which is Divine truth. E.64.

50. 'His voice as the voice of many waters'=Divine truth natural. (= Divine truth in ultimates. E.71.)

157. Spiritual life is not of worship alone . . . within there must be Divine truths from the Word ; and when the man lives them, there is life in the worship. The reason is, that the external derives its quality from the internals . . .

—². They were rejected, and when they asked why, they were answered, that they were utterly indifferent to Divine truths ; and yet life not according to Divine truths is not a life such as that of those in Heaven : and they who are not in the life of Heaven cannot endure the light of Heaven, which is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord as a Sun . . .

173. 'These things saith He that is Holy, He that is True'=the Lord as to the Divine truth.

174. 'He that hath the key of David' . . . By 'David' is meant the Lord as to the Divine truth. E.205.

193. 'I will write upon him the name of My God'=that the Divine truth will be written in their hearts.

195. 'Which cometh down out of Heaven from My God'=which will be from the Lord's Divine truth, such as it is in Heaven.

223³. The conjunction of the Lord with man is through His Divine truth ; and this in man is of the Lord, thus is the Lord, and not at all of man . . . The man indeed feels it as his ; yet it is not his ; for it is not united to Him, but adjoined.

237. 'There were seven lamps of fire before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God'=a New Church thence in Heaven and on earth from the Lord through the Divine truth proceeding from Him.

241. 'The first animal was like a lion'=the Divine truth of the Word as to power. Ex. and Ill. E.278.

242. 'The second animal was like a calf'=the Divine truth of the Word as to affection.

243. 'The third animal had a face like a man'=the Divine truth of the Word as to wisdom.

244. 'And the fourth animal was like a flying eagle'=the Divine truth of the Word as to Knowledges and thence understanding.

258. 'I saw a mighty Angel proclaiming with a great voice'=the Divine truth from the Lord flowing in deeply into the thought of Angels and men, and investigation.

272. 'The seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth'=that from (the Divine wisdom) is the Divine truth in the universal world where there is any religion.

296. 'I heard one of the animals saying, as with a voice of thunder'= [exploration] according to the Divine truth of the Word.

367. 'Palms in their hands'=confession from Divine truths. (For 'palms'= Divine truths ; (for) palm-trees = Divine truth in ultimates, which is the Divine truth of the sense of the letter of the Word. Ill.

414. 'Light,' in general, = the Divine truth, which is the truth from the Word ; 'the light of the sun'= Divine truth spiritual ; and 'the light of the moon and stars'= Divine truth natural ; both from the Word. The Divine truth in the spiritual sense is like the light of the sun in the day time ; and the Divine truth in the natural sense is like the light of the moon and stars in the night time.

511. 'Great fear fell upon them that saw them'= commotion of mind and consternation on account of Divine truths . . . For Divine truths have this effect with the evil . . .

614. 'I heard a voice from Heaven as the voice of many waters'=the Lord speaking through the New Heaven from Divine truths.

643. 'Having upon his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle'=the Divine wisdom from His Divine love, and the Divine truth of the Word. 647.

649. 'And he cried with a great cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth' = the Lord's operation from the good of His love through the Divine truth of His Word into the works of charity and faith among the men of the Christian Church.

920. 'The nations which are being saved shall walk in the light of it' = that all who are in the good of life and believe in the Lord, will there live according to Divine truths, and will see them inwardly within themselves, as the eye sees objects.

—². All they who are in celestial good . . . have Divine truths inscribed on their life; wherefore they live righteously according to them, and also see them inwardly within themselves, as the eye sees objects . . .

B. 117. Jehovah God Himself . . . as to the Divine truth, which is the Word, and which was God with God, descended and assumed the Human . . . And afterwards in His Human He united the Divine truth to the Divine good . . . T.3. Can. Redeemer ii.

— . It is the same at this day; wherefore, unless the Lord comes again into the world in the Divine truth, which is the Word, no one can be saved. T.3.

T. 85. That Jehovah God descended as the Divine truth, which is the Word, and yet did not separate the Divine good. Gen. art.

— . 'The reason why by 'the Word,' here, is meant the Divine truth, is that the Word which is in the Church is the Divine truth itself; for it is dictated by Jehovah Himself, and that which is dictated by Jehovah is purely Divine truth . . . But as it passed through the Heavens down to the world, it became accommodated to the Angels in Heaven and also to men in the world. From this there is in the Word a spiritual sense in which Divine truth is in the light, and a natural sense in which Divine truth is in the shade.

—². Nor is anything but the Divine truth meant by 'the Messiah' or 'Christ,' 'the Son of Man,' or 'the Comforter the Holy Spirit.'

—³. That the Lord in the world was the Divine truth. III.

86. The reason why Jehovah God descended into the world as the Divine truth, was that He might perform the work of redemption . . . To subjugate the Hells, etc., Divine good does not avail, but Divine truth from Divine good. Regarded in itself, Divine good is like the round hilt of a sword . . . but Divine truth from Divine good is like a sharp sword. . . Moreover, all the strength, all the virtue, and all the power of God, are of the Divine truth from the Divine good . . . 224³.

87². An Angel who is in Divine truths from the Lord, although as to the body weak as an infant, can put to flight, pursue to Hell, and thrust into the caverns there, a troop of infernal Spirits who appear . . . like giants. . . They who are in Divine truths from the Lord in that world are like lions, although as to their bodies they have no more strength than sheep. It is the same with men who are in Divine truths from the Lord, when acting against evils and falsities . . . The reason there is such strength in Divine truth, is that God is good itself and truth itself, and He created the universe through the Divine truth . . .

124². The combat of the Lord with the Hells . . . was a spiritual combat, which is of Divine truth from Divine good, which was the very vital principle of the Lord; no one in Hell can resist the influx of this through the medium of sight. There is such power in it, that the infernal Genii flee away at the mere perception of it . . . Sig. 224³.

—^e. All (the great convulsions at the Last Judgment of 1757) were effected by the Lord alone through the power of Divine truth from Divine good.

139². That the Lord is the Divine truth itself, or the Divine Truth . . .

142. These are the virtues . . . which the Lord operates with those who believe in Him and accommodate themselves . . . and this is done through the Divine truth, and with Christians through the Word . . . For the Lord is the Divine truth itself, and whatever proceeds from Him is the Divine truth; but the Divine truth from good is to be understood . . . Through Divine truth from good, that is, through faith from charity, man is reformed and regenerated . . .

144^e. To regenerate through the Divine truth which is of faith. Sig.

224. The reason man was made through the Divine truth, is that all things of man relate to understanding and will, the understanding is a receptacle of Divine truth, and the will of Divine good; thus the human mind . . . is nothing else than a form of Divine truth and Divine good spiritually and naturally organized; the human brain is this form . . .

—^d. Hence it is evident that the power of the Divine truth is inexpressible; and as the Word . . . is the containant of Divine truth in three degrees, it is evident that it is this which is meant in John i.3, 10.

—^e. (Therefore,) the Church which is in Divine truths from the Lord prevails over the Hells. (Sig. by the keys given to Peter.) For 'a Rock' everywhere in the Word = the Lord as to the Divine truth.

D. 2604. That Divine Truths are to be confirmed by philosophy, not the reverse. Examp.

477². The Divine truth proceeding from the Lord induces the human form, not only on the universal Heaven, but also on every Angel there; for the Divine truth in its own form is man: hence the correspondence of all things of the Heavens with man.

5363. All places, wherever situated (there), are appearances of Divine truth in ultimates. Divine truth in ultimates appears in such forms as those of nature; and all places receive Divine truth variously . . . Wherefore, if the evil who have been cast into Hell . . . put out their heads or arms, they fall into the Divine truth from the Divine good there, which they cannot at all endure.

5630^e. They wanted to betake themselves to their arts and wiles; but I said that this avails nothing, because we were speaking from truth Divine; and they are aware that he who attacks truth Divine attacks the Divine itself, and that in the other life no one dares anything against truth Divine.

5908. That Divine truths are of such a character that they are not perceived except by one who is enlightened. Shown by experience.

E. 36. See CLOUD at this ref.

55. The reason "a trumpet"=Divine truth to be revealed from Heaven, is that Divine truth is sometimes so heard when it flows down through the Heavens with a man . . . But it is thus heard only at first with those through whom Divine truth in the ultimate sense is to be revealed . . . Afterwards it is heard as a human voice.

63³. Divine truth is the all of faith and love to the Lord.

118. As they know . . . that all their intelligence . . . is from the Lord, and love it to be so, Divine truth continually flows in from the Lord, from which is all intelligence and wisdom, which they receive in proportion as they are affected with it.

—⁴. 'Abraham's bosom'=the Divine truth which is in Heaven; for they who are in it are in the Lord.

151⁴. As all Divine truth proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human, and is His Divine in the Heavens, by 'the Word' is signified the Divine truth . . .

179⁷. 'The waters going forth from under the threshold of the house towards the east'=the Divine truth proceeding from Him, and flowing in with those who . . . are in the good of love to Him. . . That 'everything lived whither the river came'=that they have life from the Divine truth. 518¹. 629⁸.

183. By 'the spirit' is meant the Divine which proceeds from Him, which in a general term is called the Divine truth.

196. He who deduces life from any other source than the Divine which proceeds from the Lord, which in Heaven is called the Divine truth, and appears there as light, is much mistaken.

198. All intelligence and wisdom are from Divine truths, according to the perception and reception of them in the life . . .

—². The light of Heaven, which is Divine truth, can enter into man through no other way than the way of his spirit . . . and a man's spirit is such as is his life.

205⁴. David is called 'My servant,' because . . . the Divine truth proceeding is of service and ministers to the Divine good from which it proceeds.

219. 'Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of My God'=that those who persevere shall be in Divine truth in Heaven. . . 'A pillar'=Divine truth supporting; (for) 'the temple'=Heaven, and Heaven is Heaven from the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; (for) the Angels are Angels in proportion as they receive the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord, wherefore 'Angels'=Divine truths. The Divine truths which support are in general lower truths, because these support the higher ones; for there are Divine truths lower and higher, as there are Heavens lower and higher; there are degrees of them.

228. 'Witness,' when said of the Lord,=the Divine truth which is from Him . . . The Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is called 'a witness,' because it is His Divine in Heaven and the Church, in which He is, and which is Himself there; for it proceeds from His Divine

Human, and fills the whole Heaven, and forms and makes it: hence it is that Heaven in the whole complex relates to one man. As this is the source and character of the Divine truth, it is called 'a witness;' for it witnesses concerning the Lord's Divine Human, and manifests it with all who receive the Divine truth from Him . . .

—². That the Divine truth is from the Lord, is meant by 'he shall not speak from himself, but shall receive of Mine and announce it unto you.'

—⁴. That the Lord was the Divine truth itself while He was in the world, He Himself teaches in John: 'I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life;' 'for them I sanctify Myself, that they also may be sanctified in the truth.' 'Holy' is said of the Divine truth; and 'to be sanctified,' of those who receive it.

269. 'There was a rainbow round about the throne in sight like unto an emerald'=the appearance of the Divine truth in the Heavens around the Lord; (for) 'a rainbow like unto an emerald'=the appearance of the Divine truth in its circumference; for 'a rainbow round about the throne'=the Divine truth round about.

273. 'Out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thunders, and voices'=the enlightenment, understanding, and perception of the Divine truth in the Heavens from the Lord. III.

274. 'There were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God'=the Divine truth itself united to the Divine good proceeding from the Lord's Divine love . . . (for) 'lamps'=truths, and 'seven lamps,' all truth in the complex, which is the Divine truth.

283⁶. 'To cover under the wing'=to guard through the Divine truth, which is the Divine Spiritual.

—⁸. 'The light' with which Jehovah 'covers' Himself=the Divine truth in the Heavens, which is called 'His garment,' because it proceeds from Him as a Sun, and thus is outside of or around Him.

—'. 'He stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain'=to fill with the Divine truth, and, through it, to fill with intelligence Heaven and those who are there.

—¹³. 'The wings of the cherubs'=the Divine Spiritual, which is the Divine truth instructing, regenerating, and protecting.

—¹⁴. As by the wings of the cherubs and their determinations is signified the Divine truth heard and received from the Lord . . .

285². 'The fringes which filled the temple'=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord in the ultimates of Heaven and in the Church . . . That it is the Divine truth which fills all things, is signified by, 'The whole earth is full of His glory.'

286. The infinite is predicated of His being, which is the Divine good of His Divine love; and the eternal of His manifesting from that being, which is the Divine truth of His Divine Wisdom: these two are Divine in themselves. From these two the universe is created, wherefore all things in it relate to good and truth. . . Hence it is that it is here said 'Lord God;' for 'Lord'=the Divine good of the Divine love; and 'God,' the Divine truth of the Divine wisdom. Refs.

288⁹. 'Gird Thy sword upon Thy thigh' = the Divine truth fighting from the Divine good.

294¹⁵. 'The spirit of God' = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord; 'moving over the faces of the waters' = enlightenment; 'there was light' = the reception of the Divine truth.

—¹⁶. That 'creation' = reformation and the establishment of the Church, which is effected through the Divine truth that proceeds from the Lord, is evident (from John i.) By 'the Word,' there, is meant the Lord as to the Divine truth; that all things were created through the Divine truth, is meant by 'all things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made,' and 'the world was made by him.' And as by 'the Word' is meant the Lord as to the Divine truth, it is said that 'in him was life, and the life was the light of men; that was the true light:' 'the light' = the Divine truth; and 'the life,' all intelligence and wisdom from the Divine truth . . . The presence of the Lord with everyone with His Divine truth, from which there are life and light, is meant by, 'the light shineth in the darkness,' and 'lighteth every man that cometh into the world.'

297^e. They who receive the Divine truth in good are saved; but they who receive the Divine truth, which is 'the Word,' not in good, are not saved, since all Divine truth is in good, and not elsewhere; wherefore, they who do not receive it in good reject it and deny it, if not openly, still tacitly, and if not with the lips, still with the heart; for their heart is evil, and evil rejects. To receive the Divine truth in good, is to receive it in the good of charity; for they who are in this, receive.

329⁷. As the Divine truth, through which there is conjunction, proceeds from the Lord, the Lord was seen by them having under His feet as it were the work of a sapphire stone, (which) = that the Divine truth is such in ultimates; the Divine truth in ultimates is the Divine truth in the sense of the letter. 'The work of a sapphire stone' = its translucence from the Divine truth in the internal sense.

333. 'We shall reign upon the earth' = the power which belongs to the Lord alone through the Divine truth united to the Divine good, and the power and wisdom thence derived to those who are of the Lord's Spiritual and Celestial Kingdom.

395. 'White robes were given to every one of them' = the Divine truth from the Lord with them, and protection.

—². (For) 'the white robes' which were given them = the presence of the Lord with the Divine truth around them, and the Lord through the Divine truth protects His own; for He encompasses them with a sphere of light, which is the source of these white robes; and when they are thus encompassed, they can no longer be infested by evil Spirits . . . This also takes place with those who are elevated into Heaven by the Lord; for they are then clothed with white garments, which is a sign that they are then in the Divine truth, and thus in safety. Ill.

409¹⁰. That to receive the Divine truth in doctrine and in life is to be free. Sig.

411². The light of Heaven, which is the Divine truth united to the Divine good, and from the influx and presence of which the evil are tortured who cast themselves down. Sig. . . (For) as the interiors of their minds . . . are turned into a quarter opposite to that of goods and truths Divine, therefore, when the Divine truth flows in, and endeavours to retroact the interiors of their minds, and thus lead them into Heaven—for the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord does this wherever it flows in—and they do not want to recede from the delights of their own loves, they thus suffer torture, which ceases when they come into the Hells where the like loves reign.

—⁴. 'It became a great rock, and filled the whole earth' = that through the Divine truth the Lord will have dominion over Heaven and the Church. . . Whether you say the Lord, or the Divine truth, it is the same, since all the Divine truth is from Him, and therefore He Himself is in it.

—⁵. That 'a rock' = the Lord as to the Divine truth. Ill.

—¹¹. 'The house founded upon a rock' = the Church and the man of the Church who has founded his doctrine and life upon the Divine truth which is from the Lord, thus upon those things which are in the Word. Therefore (these words =) those who are in truths from good from the Lord. It is said those who are in truths from good, since the Divine truth is not received by anyone except the man who is in good . . .

419³. 'The wind' or 'breath' of Jehovah = the Divine truth; and 'the four winds,' the Divine truth united to Divine good. Ill.

—⁵. 'The Holy Spirit' = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, from which comes spiritual life. That they were to teach this from the Lord, is signified by, 'As the Father hath sent Me, so send I you;' for the Lord was the Divine truth itself while He was in the world, which He taught from His Divine good that was in Him from conception . . .

—⁶. As man is regenerated through a life according to the Divine truth; and as all the Divine truth through which man is regenerated proceeds from the Lord, and flows in with him while he is not aware, it is said, 'The wind bloweth whither it listeth, and thou hearest its voice, but knowest not whence it cometh and whither it goeth.'

422². Spiritual light, or the Divine truth, also (that is, as well as the heat) flows in directly from the east into the west, and likewise flows in on both sides; but with this difference: that the Divine truth which flows in from the east into the west is in its essence the good of love, whereas that which flows in on both sides is in its essence the truth from that good; hence they who dwell in the south and in the north, which quarters are both at the side, are in the light of truth . . .

448³. The Divine proceeding from the Lord is Divine good united to Divine truth. All in Heaven who receive Divine good more than Divine truth constitute the Celestial Kingdom; but all who receive Divine truth more than Divine good constitute the Spiritual Kingdom. (Yet) the Divine good, which, from reception, is called the Divine Celestial, and the Divine truth, which, from reception, is called the Divine Spiritual, proceed so united that they are not two but one.

[E.] 464. 'Saying, Amen' = the Lord as to the Divine truth from the Divine good.

465. 'Blessing, glory, and wisdom' = that these are from the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord in the three Heavens. . . The reception of the Divine truth in the first Heaven is called 'blessing'; the reception of the Divine truth in the Second Heaven is called 'glory'; and the reception of the Divine truth in the Third Heaven is called 'wisdom.'

469. 'Amen' = the Divine truth from the Lord; but here, confirmation from the Divine. . . Confirmation from the Divine, is that this is the Divine truth, and thus that it is so; for when anyone speaks Divine truth from the heart the Lord confirms it.

483. 'And shall lead them to living fountains of waters' = in Divine truths. III.

502³. 'The law' promulgated from Sinai = the Divine truth; 'the voice of a trumpet' = the deflux of it from Heaven and manifestation; 'the voice of a trumpet strengthening itself mightily' = the increasing of it towards the lower things. . . 'The people trembled,' and were warned 'not to approach nearer the mount lest they should perish' = the effect of the Divine truth flowing down with such as were the sons of Jacob, (who) were utterly evil inwardly.

—⁴. The reason they sounded (the silver trumpets) for the convocations and journeyings, was that the Divine truth calls together, gathers together, teaches the way, and leads. The reason they sounded them on days of gladness, feasts, at the beginnings of the months, and over the sacrifices, was that the Divine truth descending from Heaven gladdens, and makes the Holy of worship. The reason they sounded them also for war and battle, was that the Divine truth flowing down from Heaven with the evil. . . strikes terror of death, puts to flight, and disperses. —⁷.

518². The reason 'to fall,' when said of the stars. . . = to perish, is that when, in the Spiritual World, the Divine truth falls out of Heaven into the earth where the evil are, it is turned into falsity; and when Divine truth becomes falsity, it perishes. (From experience.)

—¹³. As all things (of the natural man, and of the rational man) live from the influx of Divine truth from the Lord, they are said to be 'planted by the rivers, and by the waters;' by which is signified the Divine truth flowing in, whence is intelligence.

—¹⁴. Where the wisdom (of the most ancients) is described, there is also described the influx of the Divine truth and thence of intelligence, by 'a river went out of Eden to water the garden' . . .

—¹⁹. The Divine truth from Him, through which is power, and through which is salvation, is signified by 'the voices of many mighty waters' . . .

—²¹. The Divine truth from the Lord, from the reception of which comes intelligence, is signified by the waters out of the rock in Horeb.

—²². 'Living water' = the Divine truth which is from the Lord alone. . . And as 'rivers of living water' = intelligence through the Divine truth from the Lord, it is added, 'this He said of the spirit which they that believe in Him should receive:.' the spirit which they would receive from the Lord, is the Divine truth and thence intelligence; wherefore the Lord calls the spirit which they would receive 'the spirit of Truth.'

543⁴. The spiritual man is opened and formed only through Divine truths received in the understanding and the will.

593². When the Divine itself which is in the Word descends to the Third Heaven, it becomes the Divine Celestial; when it descends thence to the Second Heaven, it becomes the Divine Spiritual; and when it descends from this Heaven to the First, it becomes the Divine celestial or spiritual Natural; and when it descends thence into the world, it becomes a Divine natural Word, such as is with us in the letter. These successive derivations of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord Himself, come forth from the correspondences established from the very creation between higher and lower things.

594. The universal angelic Heaven consists solely of the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; the reception of it makes the Angels. In the highest Heaven it appears as the pure aura which is called the ether; in the lower Heaven as a less pure one, almost like the atmosphere which is called the air; in the lowest Heaven it appears as a thin watery [medium], upon which there is vapour like clouds. Such is the appearance of the Divine truth according to the degrees in its descent. There is a like appearance (to this last) when the Angels of the higher Heavens are speaking about Divine truths. . . Hence it is evident why 'a cloud' = Divine truth in ultimates. III. (See CLOUD at this ref.)

596. 'His face as the sun' = the Lord's Divine love from which is all the Divine truth, which in Heaven and the Church is the Word.

597. 'And his feet as pillars of fire' = the Divine truth or the Word in ultimates. . . also full of the good of love. . . Divine truth natural, which is the Word in the world, supports Divine truth spiritual and celestial, which is the Divine truth in Heaven, as pillars do a house.

601. 'He cried with a great voice as a lion roareth' = a testification of bitter grief on account of the desolation of Divine truth in the Church. . . For 'a lion' = the Divine truth in its power.

—⁶. The vehement power of the Divine truth, and the consequent terror, is described by, 'the heavens and the earth shall tremble.'

611. 'In the days of the voice of the seventh Angel when he shall begin to sound' = the last state of the Church, and a revelation then of the Divine truth.

617²⁰. 'Buy wine and milk without silver and without price' = that Divine truth spiritual and Divine truth natural are procured without man's own intelligence; 'wine' = Divine truth spiritual; and 'milk,' Divine truth spiritual natural.

627⁵. (See a very important passage under DEGREE at this ref.)

644²⁴. 'Rain,' in the Word, = the influx of the Divine truth from the Lord, whence comes spiritual life.

— . 'The rock' on which that house 'was founded' = the Lord as to the Divine truth, or the Divine truth received . . . in faith and love . . . But 'the sand' = the Divine truth received only in the memory, and thence a little in the thought, and therefore scattered and disconnected, because intermixed with falsities, and falsified by means of ideas.

654⁴⁸. 'Jehovah rideth upon a light cloud, and cometh into Egypt' = the visitation of the natural man from Divine truth spiritual natural ; for visitation is inquiry into man's quality, and inquiry is effected through the Divine truth ; 'a light cloud' = Divine truth spiritual natural, from which it appears what is the quality of man as to his Natural.

665. 'The spirit of life from God entered into them' = enlightenment and the reception of the Divine truth from the Lord with some, to commence a New Church.

675⁹. Evils are not removed, except through Divine truths from the Word, to wit, through their application to uses, and thus through their reception in the life.

681. 'And the seventh Angel sounded' = the influx of the Divine truth through the Heavens from the Lord, and thence the last changes.

684⁸. Thus from the Divine good of the Divine love, which was in Him from conception, the Lord was as to His Human the Divine truth, so long as He was in the world.

685. 'He shall reign for ages of ages' = His dominion by means of the Divine truth to eternity. Ex.

700. 'The ark of His covenant was seen in His temple' = the Divine truth, through which there is conjunction with the Lord. (For) 'the ark of the covenant' = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. III.

—². That the ark containing the testimony = the Lord as to the Divine Celestial, which is the Divine truth in the Third Heaven. III. . . The reason the place within the veil . . . represented the Third Heaven, was that the law was there, by which is meant the Lord as to the Divine truth, or as to the Word . . . and the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord forms the Heavens : this is received very purely by the Angels of the Third Heaven . . . for all the Angels in that Heaven are in love to the Lord, wherefore they see the Divine truth as it were implanted in themselves, although it continually flows in from the Lord. —³⁴.

—⁷. The words addressed to the ark when it went forward : 'Arise, O Jehovah, and let Thine enemies be scattered . . . , and when it rested : 'Return O Jehovah to the ten thousands of the ten thousands of Israel' = that the Lord, through His Divine truth, leads men, and protects them against the falsities and evils which are from Hell, especially in temptations . . . That He leads them continually through His Divine truth, is signified by the ark advancing before them a journey of three days to search out a rest for them ; by the ark of Jehovah is meant the Lord as to the Divine truth . . .

—¹⁶. 'The priests sounding the trumpets' (at the taking of Jericho) = the preaching of the Divine truth from the Divine good. —.

—²¹. The reason (the Philistines were plagued) on account of the ark, was that the ark signified the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord, and this does not exist genuine, except with those who are in the good of love and thence in the good of life ; and when the Divine truth flows in with those who are not in good, it produces effects which correspond to their falsities of doctrine and evils of life ; in like manner as takes place in the Spiritual World, when the Divine truth flows in with such . . .

—²². The like (to that which happened to Dagon) also takes place in the Spiritual World, when the Divine truth flows in from Heaven with such ; for they then appear as though they were without heads and without the palms of their hands, because they have no intelligence or power.

—²⁴. The ark was deposited on a great stone . . . because a stone = the Divine truth in the ultimate of order.

701. The ark was called 'the ark of the covenant,' because the law was in it, and by 'the law,' which in a wide sense means the Word, is signified the Lord as to the Divine truth, which is the Word, thus the Divine truth or Word which is from the Lord, and in which the Lord is, because all the Divine truth proceeds from Him. When this is received by man, conjunction with the Lord is effected, and it is this conjunction which is signified by 'a covenant.'

—⁸. 'The God of Israel' and 'the Rock of Israel' = the Lord as to the Divine truth ; and 'He is as the light of the morning, the sun ariseth, of a morning without clouds, from the resplendence after rain grass out of the earth' describes the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, from which is all germination of truth and fructification of good. 'Is not my house firm with God?' = the Church conjoined with the Lord through the Divine truth.

—¹¹. That the Divine proceeding, which is the Divine truth, thus the Word, is a covenant. III.

—¹⁵. As the Lord called His blood, by which is meant the Divine truth proceeding from Him, 'the blood of the new covenant,' it shall be told what is meant by the old covenant and the new covenant. By the old covenant is meant conjunction through Divine truth such as was given to the Sons of Israel, which was external, and thence representative of internal Divine truth ; they had no other Divine truth because they could receive no other . . . Wherefore the old covenant was a conjunction through such Divine truth as is contained in the books of Moses, and was called 'precepts,' 'judgments,' and 'statutes,' in which however lay hidden the Divine truth such as it is in Heaven, which is internal and spiritual. This Divine truth was opened by the Lord when He was in the world, and by this alone is there conjunction of the Lord with men ; therefore it is meant by 'the new covenant,' and also by 'His blood.' —¹⁶.

—¹⁹. The Lord is called 'a Shepherd' because He pastures them with the Divine truth, and through it leads to the good of love, and thus to Himself.

717. 'Upon the heads (of the dragon) seven diadems' = Divine truths in the ultimate of order, which are the truths of the sense of the letter ; here, adulterated and profaned.

726. 'Who shall rule all nations with a rod of iron'

... 'A rod'=power, and is predicated of spiritual Divine truth; and 'iron'=truth in the natural man. . . All the power which belongs to the truths in the natural man is from the influx of truth and good from the spiritual man, that is, it is from the influx of the Divine truth from the Lord through the spiritual man into the natural; for power belongs to the Lord alone, and He exercises it through the Divine truth which proceeds from Him. 727, Ill.

[E. 726]³. That the Lord has infinite power from Himself through His Divine truth, is because the Divine truth is the Divine proceeding. . . Regarded in itself, the Divine truth is the Divine wisdom, which extends itself on all sides, as the light and heat of our world do from the sun; for the Lord appears as a Sun from the Divine love, and all that which proceeds from that Sun is called the Divine truth; and that which proceeds is that which produces; and that which proceeds is Himself, because from Himself; wherefore the Lord in the Heavens is the Divine truth. In order that it may be known that the Lord has infinite power through the Divine truth, something shall be said about its essence and manifestation—existentia. . . From the sun of the world, as from their fountain, went forth the auras and atmospheres which are called the ethers and the airs. . . Nearest him is the pure ether, and further from him there are ethers less pure, and at last airs; these, and also the less pure ethers, are around the planets. When these ethers and airs are acted on in the volume they give heat, but when modified molecularly they give light. Through these the sun exercises the whole of its power, and produces the whole of its effect outside of itself, thus through the ethers and through the airs by means of heat and by means of light. From this some idea may be formed about the infinite power of the Lord through the Divine truth. From Himself as a Sun have in like manner emanated auras and atmospheres, but spiritual ones. . . Hence it is that there are three Heavens. . . These auras, or atmospheres. . . when acted upon generally, present heat, and when modified molecularly, present light; and this heat, which in its essence is love, and this light, which in its essence is wisdom, specifically, are called the Divine truth; but taken together with the auras, which also are spiritual, they are called the Divine proceeding. From these therefore the Heavens have been created, and also the worlds. . . Thus, as it were in a natural mirror, may be regarded the creation of Heaven and earth by means of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord as a Sun. . . and also in some measure it may be comprehended that the Lord has infinite power through the Divine proceeding, which in general is called the Divine truth. This, also, is meant by these words: 'In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and God was the Word; all things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made;' and 'the world was made by him.' And in David: 'By the word of Jehovah were the Heavens made.' 'The Word' = the Divine truth.

—⁶. The Heavens subsist upon. . . Divine truths in ultimates, which are Divine truths such as are in the sense of the letter. . . The Divine power itself resides in these ultimates. . . This was the reason of the Lord's Advent; for at the time just before His Advent, there was not any Divine truth in ultimates with men in the world. . . except what was falsified and perverted; therefore there was not any basis for the Heavens. . . But now the Lord is in His fulness. . . thus He can save all who are in truths Divine from the Word, and in a life according to them; for with these He can be present and dwell in the ultimate truths from the Word. . .

—⁸. That Angels and men are powers in proportion as they are receptions of the Divine truth from the Lord. Gen.art. . . For Angels are nothing but forms recipient of the Divine truth, in like manner men. . .

—⁹. The Lord with the Divine truth does not flow into the natural man, except through the spiritual; and in proportion as the natural man receives influx thence, there is power therein.

727². 'Thy rod and Thy staff shall comfort me'=that Divine truth spiritual together with Divine truth natural will protect, because they have power; 'a rod'=Divine truth spiritual; 'a staff,' Divine truth natural, both together as to the power of protecting; for 'to be comforted'=to be protected. . . Therefore it goes on to say, 'Thou dispoest a table before me, Thou makest my head fat with oil, and my cup will run over,' by which is signified spiritual nourishment by means of the Divine truth. . .

—³. 'Rods of strength'=the Divine truth as to power; and 'sceptres,' the Divine truth as to dominion.

746¹¹. In ancient times, kings represented the Lord as to the Divine truth, and the Divine truth received by the Angels in the Spiritual Kingdom is the same as Divine good spiritual, and spiritual good is the good of charity. . .

748. All the Divine truth which fills the Heavens, and makes the wisdom of the Angels, proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human; for the Lord's Divine Human is united to the Divine itself that was in Him from conception, so that they are one. . . and as there is such a union, after the glorification of His Human the Divine truth proceeds from His Divine Human; (and) is what is called 'the Holy Spirit'. . . 768³.

768¹⁷. 'The seed of Jacob'=those who are in Divine truth natural; 'the seed of David,' those who are in Divine truth spiritual; and 'the seed of Israel,' those who are in Divine truth spiritual natural, which is the medium between Divine truth natural and spiritual; for there are degrees of Divine truth, as there are degrees of the reception of it by the Angels in the three Heavens, and in the Church.

781¹². See DAVID, at this ref.

797. '(The beast) opened his mouth in blasphemy against God'=the falsification of the Divine truth, thus of the Word, which is from the Lord, and which is the Lord. . . (For) the Word is the Divine truth, and the Divine truth proceeds from the Lord as a Sun; and that which proceeds is His from whom it proceeds, yea is Himself; wherefore the Divine truth, from which both Angels and men have all intelligence and wisdom, is the Lord in Heaven: the reason it is also the Word, such as is with us in the world, is that it is the Divine truth in the ultimate of order, containing a spiritual sense, which is Divine truth such as it is in Heaven.

798^s. (Such) falsify all things of the Word . . . even to the destruction of the Divine truth in the Heavens . . . Thus destroying the Divine truth by arguments . . .

799^s. 'The tent of Jehovah' = the Divine truth; and 'the tabernacle,' Divine good. . . Thus 'He shall hide me in His tent' = to hold in the Divine truth and to protect from falsities; and 'in the covert of His tabernacle shall He conceal me' = to hold in the Divine good, and to protect from evils.

821^s. When the Lord was transfigured, He represented the Divine truth, which is the Word; wherefore Moses and Elias were seen speaking with Him.

832^s. There are three degrees of life with man . . . These degrees are opened with man according to the reception of the Divine truth in his life; and the Divine truth is received in the life from the willing and doing of the truth according to the knowing and understanding of it.

850^s. As Judgment is effected by means of the Divine truth . . . the Lord assumed the Human, and made it the Divine truth so long as He was in the world, for this reason, that He might perform a Judgment. Sig. —¹⁰.

—¹⁵. The Lord is where He reigns through His Divine truth. Sig.

—^e. The spiritual affection of Divine truth is the love of truth for the sake of truth, and a yearning towards it for the sake of the uses of eternal life.

864^s. All the Angels live according to the laws of order, which are His precepts, that is, they live in the Divine which proceeds from the Lord, which is called the Divine truth; and because they so live, they live in a heavenly aura . . .

874. 'Fear God, and give glory to Him' = that they should worship the Lord from His Divine truth by a life according to it.

— All these magnificent and precious things, which flash as with gold and precious stones in marvellous forms . . . are given by the Lord according to the reception of the Divine truth proceeding from Him.

—². They who know Divine truths, and from knowledge speak them, but do not live according to them . . . have no wisdom . . . But as soon as they are in their own spirit . . . they sometimes rave like fools, thinking against the Divine truths which they had spoken; (whereas) they who live according to Divine truths think wisely with themselves. (From experience.)

905. 'Behold a white cloud' = the Divine truth in ultimates, such as is the Word in the sense of the letter, which contains the spiritual sense.

907^s. That the Divine good does not judge anyone, but the Divine truth, is meant by, 'the Father does not judge anyone, but hath given judgment to the Son' . . . Still, it is to be understood that the Lord does not judge anyone by means of the Divine truth; but the Divine truth regarded in itself judges the man who does not receive it, but rejects it; as is very evident from . . . 'he that rejecteth Me, and receiveth not My words, hath one that judgeth him; the Word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day.' . . . The Divine good does not judge anyone, but saves; and so also does the Divine truth, which proceeds from the Lord united with the Divine good . . .

—⁴. How the Divine truth, regarded in itself, judges man, shall also be told. The man who is in falsities from evil from contempt for and rejection of the Divine truth, is in hatred against it, and burns to destroy it with everyone who is in it from the Lord; and when he endeavours to do so he is like one who throws himself into the fire, or dashes his face against a rock, the cause of which is not in the fire or in the rock, but in the man himself; for the fact really is, that the Divine truth never fights against the falsity from evil, but the latter fights against the former.

908. 'In his hand a sharp sickle' = the Divine truth exquisitely exploring and separating. Ex.

914. 'Another Angel went forth from the temple which is in Heaven, he also having a sharp sickle' = manifestation by the Lord concerning the devastation of the Church as to the Divine truth such as it is in Heaven, after exploration.

—². It is said the Divine truth such as it is in Heaven, because this is falsified, and not so the Divine truth such as it is on the earth, or in the Church there. The Divine truth in Heaven is such as is the Word in the spiritual sense, but the Divine truth on earth is such as is the Word in the sense of the letter; this Divine truth is for men, and makes the Church with them; but the former Divine truth is for the Angels, and makes Heaven with them.

—³. The devastation of the Church as to the Divine truth is effected through the falsification of the Word . . . and when the Word is explained even to the destruction of the Divine truth in Heaven; for thus Heaven is closed, and when Heaven is closed there is not any Church with man . . . The understanding of the sense of the letter in simplicity does not do injury to any spiritual truth which is in Heaven, but explaining that sense according to falsities of doctrine, and according to the evils of the loves; for the sense of the letter is Divine truth natural . . . and when Divine truth natural is explained even to the destruction of Divine truth spiritual, it can no longer make one with it by correspondence, but the falsity according to which the Divine truth natural is explained destroys the Divine truth spiritual; and this is the falsification of the Word and the devastation of the Church through falsifications.

918^s. That the Lord from ultimate Divine truth . . . entered into interior Divine truth . . . even to the supreme of it. Sig. For the Lord, while in the world, was . . . the Divine truth, and was more interiorly so by degrees as He grew up, even to the supreme of it, which is purely Divine, and entirely above the perceptions of the Angels.

941. 'King of saints' = because the Divine truth is Himself; for 'King,' when predicated of the Lord, = the Divine truth; and 'saints' = those who are in Divine truths from the Lord. . . From the Angels there proceeds a spiritual sphere . . . But from the Lord as a Sun there proceeds the Divine which fills the universal Heaven, and which makes Heaven, and this Divine is called the Divine truth. Hence it is evident that the Divine truth is Himself.

[E.] 948³. Inmost Divine truths were revealed to those who were of the Most Ancient Church; Divine truths more exterior to those who were of the Ancient Church; and outermost or ultimate Divine truths to the Hebrew Church, and at last to the Israelitish one, with which Church finally all Divine truth perished; for finally there was nothing in the Word that was not adulterated. But after its end, Divine truths more interior were revealed by the Lord for the Christian Church; and now truths still more interior for the Church which is to come: these more interior truths are those in the internal sense of the Word. Thus it is evident, that there has been a progression of Divine truth from inmosts to ultimates . . . and that now there is being effected a progression of it from ultimates to interiors.

950. 'The Angels going forth from the temple, clothed in linen clean and shining' = that the evils and falsities which have devastated the Church are manifested by means of the Divine truth or the Word from its spiritual sense.

—². See SPIRITUAL SENSE at this ref.

951². The reason they put on linen garments when they ministered holy things, was that all holy administration is effected by means of the Divine truth; for the priesthood . . . represented the Lord as to the Divine good, and this ministers all things through the Divine truth.

—³. The washing of the disciples' feet = purification from evils and falsities by the Lord through the Divine truth; for all purification from evils and falsities is effected by the Lord through the Divine truth: this latter is signified by 'the linen cloth' with which the Lord girded Himself, and with which He wiped the feet of the disciples.

998². It is here described how the doctrine of faith alone has extinguished the capacity of understanding Divine truth, which, however, is given to every man by the Lord, in so far as falsities from evil have not blocked up the influx and the approach, so that nothing from Heaven is perceived. Ex.

1067³. In the Word there is a spiritual sense, and in this a Divine celestial sense, which, regarded in itself, is the Divine truth itself which is in the Heavens, and gives wisdom to the Angels, and enlightens men: the Divine truth that is in the Heavens is the light proceeding from the Lord as a Sun . . . and as the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is the light of Heaven, it is also Divine wisdom.

1071³. As it may be said of a regenerate man that he is his own truth and his own good, so it can be said of the Lord as a Man that He is truth itself or the Divine truth, and good itself or the Divine good. . . From this the Truth is evident, that the Lord as to His Human in the world was the Divine truth, that is, the Word, and that then everything which He spoke was the Divine truth, which is the Word; and that afterwards, when He went away to the Father . . . the Divine truth proceeding from Him is the spirit of Truth . . . 1069². 1070². Ath. 79. 156.

1076². The Divine truth, which is the same as the Divine wisdom, proceeds from the Lord as light and heat from the Sun. . . The heat thence is the Divine good, and the light thence is the Divine truth. The reason the heat is the Divine good, is that all the heat of life proceeding from love is felt as what is good, for it is spiritual heat; and the reason the light is the Divine truth, is that all the light proceeding from love is felt as what is true, for it is spiritual light.

1088². The Divine truth is what is called Holy, but it is not holy until it is in its ultimate, which is the Word in the sense of the letter; wherefore the Divine truth there is holy, and may be called the sanctuary . . . It appears as though the Divine truths in the Heavens, which are called spiritual and celestial, were more holy than the Divine truths in the sense of the letter, which are natural; but the Divine truths in the Heavens, which are called spiritual and celestial, are comparatively like the lungs and heart in man, which would not make the breast unless they were encompassed by the ribs . . .

1094. 'The earth was enlightened by his glory' = the Church now in light from the influx and reception of the Divine truth. . . (For) when the Judgment had been performed upon them, the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord came into its power and into its light . . .

Ath. 145. The extension of the Divine into the universe is what may be predicated of the Divine proceeding, which is the Divine truth, and is called the Word . . . 191.

178. As affection and love put on that human form in every Heaven and in every degree, it follows that the Human which is put on is the Divine truth . . .

De Verbo 13². Leave is not given to any Spirit or to any Angel to teach any man in this Earth in Divine truths, but the Lord Himself teaches everyone through the Word; and He teaches them in proportion as a man, from the Lord, receives good in the will; and he receives it in proportion as he shuns evils as sins.

20². All the power of Divine truth consists in the sense of the letter of the Word . . .

D. Wis. i. 3. Wisdom in its own essence is the Divine truth . . .

ix. That the Divine wisdom is the Divine truth. Gen. art. . . The Divine wisdom, from the effect, which is use, is called Divine truth . . .

—². Divine truths are what are called the laws of the Divine Providence . . . and also the laws of Divine order.

Can. Redeemer vi. 4. When the Lord was in the Divine truth apart, He was in a state of exinanition.

Holy Spirit 8. In proportion as anyone Knows and acknowledges the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord, he Knows and acknowledges God; and in proportion as anyone does this Divine truth, he is in the Lord and the Lord in him. vii.

Trinity iv. 4. It follows that the Divine truth, which is the Word, and in which is the Divine good, was the seed from the Father from which the Human was conceived; from the seed is the soul, and through the soul is the body.

Inv. 22. Man cannot find the one only Divine truth, unless he approaches the Lord immediately. Ex.

Divine Wisdom. Divina Sapientia.

See under DIVINE LOVE.

A. 3485. The light of life is the Divine wisdom which is from the Lord alone.

3993⁶. The Divine intelligence and wisdom from the Lord is there presented as light. Refs.

4007². 'His eyes redder than wine'=the Divine wisdom.

4677. See DIVINE TRUTH at these refs. E.726².

8427^e. 'Glory'=the Divine wisdom and intelligence which is of the Divine truth from the Lord.

L. 1. The Lord is called 'the Word,' because 'the Word'=the Divine truth, or the Divine wisdom, and the Lord is the Divine truth itself, or the Divine wisdom itself. . . As the Divine wisdom and the Divine love make one, and in the Lord have been one from eternity, it is said, 'in him was life, and the life was the light of men:' 'the life'=the Divine love; and 'the light'=the Divine wisdom.

—^e. As the Word is the Divine wisdom of the Divine love, it follows that it is Jehovah Himself, thus the Lord, by whom all things have been made that are made; for all things have been created from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom.

51³. After His Glorification . . . the Lord was the Divine wisdom itself and the Divine Truth, thus the Holy Spirit.

51b^e. 'The Holy Spirit,' in special,=the Lord as to the Divine wisdom, and thence as to the Divine Truth.

S. 6. That is called the Spiritual which proceeds from His Divine wisdom, and it is the Divine truth.

73. The light of Heaven is the Divine wisdom, which before their eyes is light.

P. 330³. That any predestination except to Heaven is contrary to the Divine wisdom, which is infinite.

R. 48. 'His eyes were as a flame of fire'=the Divine wisdom of the Divine love.

240. 'Full of eyes before and behind'=the Divine wisdom therein.

246. 'And they were full of eyes within'=the Divine wisdom in the Word in the natural sense from its spiritual and celestial sense.

271. 'Seven eyes'=His omniscience, and Divine wisdom.

E. 152. 'Having His eyes as a flame of fire'= . . . the Divine wisdom and intelligence communicated to those who are in love and thence in faith in Him.

1135⁵. As the Divine wisdom in itself is nothing but an end . . .

D. Wis. i. That the Divine wisdom in the Heavens appears before the eyes of the Angels as light. Gen.art.

—³. The Divine wisdom which appears in the Heavens as light, in its own essence is not light, but clothes itself with light, in order that it may appear before the sight also of the Angels; wisdom in its own essence is the Divine truth; and the light is its appearance and correspondence.

ix. That the Divine wisdom is the Divine truth. Gen. art.

—². The Divine wisdom is that which is called the Divine Providence, and also that which is called Divine order.

Can. Redeemer ii. Jehovah God descended as to the Divine wisdom, or the Divine truth . . .

Divine Wisdom. (The Work.)

D. Wis. vii. 1^e. Date of this Work.

Divinely. Divinitus.

A. 1886. Divinely inspired. —. 1887^e. S.18.

D. 623. It is Divinely guarded (against). See A.8542.

Diving-bell. Campana urinaria. T.125^e.Divinity. Divinitas.

A. 10738. Three Persons in the Divinity.

10821. They who, in respect to the Divinity, have an idea of three Persons . . . But they who, in respect to the Divinity, have an idea of one Person . . .

L. 22. When it treats of His Divinity . . .

55². They distinguished the Divinity into three Persons.

S. 4. Concerning the Divinity and holiness of the Word . . .

W. 13^e. The denial of the Divinity of the Lord . . .

R. 565². Their figments concerning the influx and operation of the Divinity into the Humanity . . .

T. 9³. They endowed them with Divinity . . . Because in each of them there was Divinity.

11. In Him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. 101².

23. This is wholly to abolish the idea of the unity of God, and with this all notion of Divinity.

31². By the immensity of God, they perceive the Divinity as to being; and by His eternity, the Divinity as to manifesting: also, by His immensity, they perceive His Divinity as to love; and by His eternity, His Divinity as to wisdom: the reason is, that the Angels abstract spaces and times from the Divinity.

94. Concerning the Lord the idea of Divinity is lost . . .

—². In order to vindicate the Divinity of the Lord . . .

110⁵. He thus made Himself a receptacle of the Divinity in all its fulness; wherefore Paul says, that in Jesus Christ dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily.

146³. Thou who deniest . . . the Divinity of the Lord . . .

299. Blasphemy against the Divinity of the Lord's Human. Sig.

339. They who deny the Divinity of the Lord's Human . . . 380². —³.

451. A faith in three Persons of the same Divinity in successive order . . .

457. They who, from confirmation, deny the Divinity of the Lord . . .

[T.] 636. As, if the Divinity of the Lord is denied, the Christian Church dies out.

D. 6093. On the three Persons of the Godhead.

Ath. 167. On this account, the Mohammedans have denied the Divinity of the Lord . . .

Can. Trinity ii. 10. From this it follows, that the Divinity and the soul of the Son of God, our Saviour, are not distinctly two, but one and the same.

v. A trinity of Persons in the Godhead is from the Nicene Council . . .

Coro. 38. The phantasy that God has transfused His Divinity into men . . .

Divorce. Divortium.

A. 10603⁵. Hence the laws relating to such marriages and divorces, which otherwise would not have entered the external of the Word.

M. 234. On the causes of divorces, etc. Gen.art.

— Divorces are from adulteries, because these are completely opposite to marriages . . .

255. That adultery is the cause of divorce. . . (For) marriages are holy, and adulteries are profane; and therefore marriages and adulteries are diametrically opposite to each other; and when opposite acts upon opposite, the one destroys the other even to the last spark of its life. This is the case with marriage love, when, from what is confirmed, and thus from set purpose, a married man commits adultery. . . Marriages are in and from Heaven, and adulteries are in and from Hell; and these two cannot be conjoined . . . Hence it is, that adultery is the cause of divorce; wherefore the Lord says, that 'whosoever shall put away his wife, except for whoredom, and shall marry another, committeth adultery.' He says (this), because the putting away for this cause is a plenary separation of minds, which is called divorce; whereas puttings away for all other causes are separations: after these, if another wife is married, adultery is committed; but not after divorce.

468. The lawful causes of this concubinage are the lawful causes of divorce, the wife being nevertheless retained at home. By divorce is meant the abolition of the marriage covenant, and thence a plenary separation, and after this the full liberty to marry another wife. The sole cause of this total separation is whoredom, according to the Lord's precept in Matt.xix.9. To the same 'cause belong manifest obscenities, which banish decency, and fill and infest the house with flagitious allurements, from which comes a scortatory immodesty, in which the whole mind is dissolved. To these is to be added malicious desertion, which involves whoredom, and causes a wife to commit adultery, and thus to be put away, Matt.v.32. These three causes, being the lawful causes of divorce—the first and third before a public judge, and the middle one before the man as judge—are also the lawful causes of concubinage; but when the adulterous wife is retained at home. The reason why whoredom is the sole cause of divorce, is that it is diametrically opposite to the life of marriage love, and destroys it even to extermination.

469°. As these are the lawful causes of divorce, they are also lawful causes of concubinage; for the causes of retention at home do not take away the cause of divorce, when she has committed whoredom. Who but a vile person can fulfil the duties of the marriage bed and keep company there with a harlot? If it takes place here and there, it proves nothing.

D. 1794°. Among such there are strifes and divorces.

Divorced woman. Repudiata.

E. 768⁹. 'A divorced woman' (Lev.xxi.14)=good rejected by truth, thus discordant.

Divulge. See PUBLISH.

Do, Make. Facere.

Deed. Factum.

Doer, Maker. Factor.

See DO EVIL, DO GOOD; and under ACT and WORK.

A. 292. That God instructed them, is expressed by 'To make' and 'to clothe' (Gen.iii.21).

472. 'The day in which God created man'=when he became spiritual; and in the likeness of God He made him (Gen.v.1)=when he became celestial. . . The term 'to create' properly regards man when he is . . . being regenerated; and 'to make,' when he is being perfected; wherefore in the Word there is an accurate distinction drawn between 'to create,' 'to form,' and 'to make,' as in chapter ii., where it treats of the spiritual man being made celestial: 'God rested from all His work, which God created in making;' where 'to create' regards the spiritual man; and 'to make,' that is, to perfect, regards the celestial man. 593.

682. 'Noah did according to everything that God commanded him, so did he' (Gen.vi.22)=that it was so done. Its being twice said 'he did,' involves both (good and truth). 683. 732.

S23. Whatever a man does in the life of the body, successively returns in the other life . . . D.4109.

1080. See BIND at this ref.

1317. 'This they begin to do' (Gen.xi.6)=that now they begin to become different. . . 'To begin to do,' here, =thought or intention, thus the end. 1318.

1414. Made Divine. 1428. 1475. 1568. 1573. 1661. 1707. 1708. 1893. 1894. 1921. 2093. 2102. 2107. 2159. 2218. 2625. 2720. 4025. 4027.

1921. 'Do to her that which is good in thine eyes' (Gen.xvi.6)=command.

2169. 'So do, as thou hast said' (Gen.xviii.5)=that so it would come to pass.

2181. 'He gave to a boy, and he hastened to make it' (ver.7)=the conjunction of this (natural) good with rational good. . . 'To make'=what is ministered, or what comes to pass.

2256°. Whatever man has thought and done, from infancy to the last of his life, remains . . . so that not the least of it entirely perishes; they are inscribed in his book of life, that is, on both his memories, and on his nature . . . From them he has formed a life for himself, and, so to speak, a soul, which is such after death; but goods are never so mingled with evils . . . that they cannot be separated . . .

2349^e. 'Then He shall render to everyone according to his deeds' (Matt.xvi.27): 'deeds'=the goods which proceed from charity.

2488^e. Deeds have their quality from thoughts, and thoughts from ends.

2618. 'Jehovah did to Sarah' (Gen.xxi.1)=a state of union. . . (For) 'to do,' when predicated of what is Divine of the Lord,=everything of effect, thus state.

2954². To will and thence do it, is what is called good.

3397. 'Abimelech said, What is this thou hast done unto us?' (Gen.xxvi.10)=indignation.

3420^e. He therefore who teaches what is to be done, and does not do, does not want to know truths, because they are against his life.

3545. 'Which (Rebekah) made' (Gen.xxvii.17)=which are from the Divine.

3603³. Meanwhile the good with man is as it were this Involuntary which is in his Voluntary, in each thing he thinks, and in each thing he does.

3701⁵. They who are being regenerated do not learn truths as knowledges, but as life; for they do these truths; but the reason they do them is from the principle of the new will, which the Lord insinuates while they are entirely unaware . . .

—7. Thus the things of the former will and understanding are separated from those of the new understanding; and this not according to the affection of knowing truths, but according to the affection of doing them.

3709^e. (These truths) are said to be conjoined with good in the natural man, when there is pleasure and delight in knowing them for the sake of doing them.

3870. The first life manifests itself by obedience . . . the second, by the affection of doing the truth . . . which exists when delight and blessedness is perceived in doing the truth.

4101. 'And now everything that God hath said unto thee, do' (Gen.xxxi.16)=the Providence of the Lord; for (these words)=to obey, and when they are predicated of the Lord, they=to provide; for He does not do from another, but from Himself, nor does God say to Himself that He should do, but He Himself says, that is, does from Himself.

4190. In their obscurity (the gentiles) have something of conscience, against which they are unwilling to act, in fact, some are unable to do so.

4247². When a man is being regenerated . . . good manifests itself; for he is then not so much in the affection of knowing what is true, but he is in the affection of doing it.

4551. The things which a man believes, he does.

4774^e. 'The rich He hath sent empty away' . . . Those are called 'the empty rich' who know these things and do not do them; for the truths with them are not truths, because they are without good.

4814. 'It came to pass at this time' (Gen.xxxviii.1)=the state of the things which follow. 'Time'=state; and that it is the state of the things which follow, is signified by its being said, 'it came to pass at this time.'

4979. 'It came to pass' or 'it was,' which frequently occurs in the Word, involves something that is new, thus another state. 4987. 5074. 5221. 5578.

4987^e. When one state is terminated, and another succeeds which is a remarkable one, it is indicated by 'it was,' or 'it came to pass;' and a change of state less remarkable, by 'and.' 5031.

5046. 'Everything that they did there, he was the doer' (Gen.xxxix.22)=absolute Power.

5126³. In proportion as he then imbues goods through truths, that is, in proportion as he does the truths which he learns, the Rational is opened; but in proportion . . . as he does not do truths the rational is not opened . . . In proportion, however, as in the following age, he . . . acts contrary to truths . . . the Rational is closed up, and also the interior Natural.

5264. 'What God is doing He hath shown Pharaoh' (Gen.xli.25)=what is provided. . . That 'what God is doing'=what is provided, is that everything the Lord does is Providence, which being from the Divine, has in it what is eternal and what is infinite . . . and as in each and all things the Lord does, such is contained His doing cannot be expressed by any other word than Providence.

5284. 'And God hasteth to do it' (ver.32)=with the whole event. (For) 'to do,' when predicated of God,=Providence, therefore it also=the event; for that which is of the Divine Providence certainly comes to pass; and 'to hasten to do'=the whole event . . .

5368. 'What he saith to you, do' (ver.55)=provided there is obedience; (for) to do what anyone says is obedience.

5466. 'They did so' (Gen.xlii.20)=the end of this state; (for) 'to do,' or it 'came to pass'=the end of a former state, and involves the beginning of the following one. Refs.

5491. 'And he did so' (ver.25)=the effect. 8471.

5503. 'What is this that God hath done unto us?' (ver.28)=(terror) on account of so great a Providence. (For) 'God's doing'=Providence, since all that God does cannot be expressed by any other word than Providence . . .

5578. See AND at this ref.

5755. 'Far be it from thy servants to do according to this word' (Gen.xliv.7)=when it is not from the will. (For) 'to do'=to will, since every deed is of the will; the deed itself is natural, and the will is the Spiritual from which it comes.

6185. '(Joseph) said, I will do according to thy word' (Gen.xlvii.30)=that so it shall be of Providence from the Divine; (for) 'to do according to anyone's word'=that so it shall be.

6545. 'His sons did so as he had commanded them' (Gen.l.12)=the effect according to influx. . . 'They did'=the effect.

6562. 'Thus shall ye say unto Joseph'=perception from the internal what is to be done. 'Say'=perception . . . and 'thus'=what is to be done.

[A.] 6572^e. For what God intends, He does.

6573. 'In order to do according to this day' (ver.20) = that it is according to order from eternity ; (for) 'to do,' when said of the Divine, = order ; for whatever the Divine does, is order.

7007. 'I will teach you what ye shall do' (Ex.iv.15) = thus what is Divine in each and all things that shall be.

7318. Says that good contributes nothing to salvation.

7944. 'The Sons of Israel went and did as Jehovah commanded Moses and Aaron' (Ex.xii.28) = that those who are of the Spiritual Church will obey truth Divine. (For) 'to go and do' = to obey. 8015.

7945. 'So did they' (id.) = an act from the will. (For) 'they did' is repeated, and the first time it = an act from the understanding. 8016.

8043². The Lord is called 'the Maker and the Former from the womb,' because He regenerates man, and, from natural makes him spiritual.

8140. 'And they did so' (Ex.xiv.4) = obedience.

8325². The natural man cannot but fall into what is fantastical about the Divine, when he thinks from time what the Divine had been doing before the creation of the world . . . D.3476, Gen.art.

8361. 'If thou shalt do what is right in His eyes' (Ex.xv.26) = life according to these (commandments). (For) 'to do what is right' = to live according to the dictate of truth. . . 'To hear,' properly = obedience, but when it is said 'to do,' as here, then 'to hear' = faith, and 'to do,' life, as is evident from, 'Everyone that heareth My words, and doeth them, I will liken him to a prudent man' . . . 'My mother and My brethren are they that hear the word of God, and do it.' In these passages, 'to hear' = to perceive, understand, and have faith ; and 'to do' = to live according thereto. 9311^e.

8585. 'And Moses did so in the eyes of the elders of Israel' (Ex.xvii.6) = the effect through primary truths.

8638. He who knows these things is able to think them, then to will them, and at last to do them, and thus have a new life.

8777. 'They said, All that Jehovah hath spoken we will do' (Ex.xix.8) = according to the influx from the Divine.

8870². All dissemblers, hypocrites, and deceitful persons, learn to do this in the other life ; in general, all who from frequent use have contracted a habit of speaking otherwise than they think, and of doing otherwise than they will. 8885.

8881. So long as a man does not will truths, and thence does not do them, they are not alive . . .

8911. The will is the man himself ; therefore to be judged according to the deeds = to be judged according to the will ; for the will and the deed are not at variance. It is only external bonds . . . that restrain ; and meanwhile the deed is in the will, and the will is in the deed. Ex.

—^c. Man is also judged according to his deeds, but no further than according to the degree and the manner in which the deeds have proceeded from his will.

8932. 'Ye shall not make with Me gods of silver, and gods of gold' (Ex.xx.23) = that they should entirely abstain from such things as in the external form appear to be truths and goods, but in the internal form are falsities and evils. 8933.

—⁵. 'Which your Own hands have made' (Is.xxxi.7) = the things which are from man's Own intelligence.

9239. To believe in God is to know and to do ; whereas to believe the things which are from God, is to know and not as yet to do. They who are truly Christian know and do, thus they believe in God ; whereas they who are not truly Christian know and do not do. The latter the Lord calls 'fools,' but the former 'prudent.'

9245^e. They who 'do the Lord's sayings' are they who love the neighbour and who love the Lord ; for he who loves, does.

9282. As the things of life, worship, and the civil state are not anything with a man so long as they are in his understanding only, but are with him when they are in his will, it is everywhere said in the Word that they are to be 'done ;' for 'to do' is of the will ; but to know, understand, acknowledge, and believe, are of the understanding . . .

9293. The case with presents is as it is with all other deeds of man. The deeds of a man are only gestures, and, regarded abstractedly from the will, are only motions variously formed, and as it were articulated, not unlike the motions of a machine, thus inanimate : but deeds regarded together with the will are not such motions, but are forms of the will shown before the eyes ; for deeds are nothing else than testifications of such things as are of the will ; and also have their soul or life from the will ; wherefore, of deeds the like may be said as of motions, namely, that nothing lives in deeds except will, as nothing lives in motions except endeavour. That this is the case is known ; for he who is intelligent, does not attend to a man's deeds, but only to his will, from which, through which, and for the sake of which, deeds come forth. Nay, he who is wise, scarcely sees deeds, but the quality and amount of the will in the deeds. . . From this it is evident, how it is to be understood, that everyone will receive judgment in the other life according to his deeds or works (Matt.xvi.27), namely, according to those things which are of the heart and thence of the life.

9312. 'If thou shalt do all that I speak' (Ex.xxiii.22) = compliance from faith and love. (For) 'to do the things which I speak' = to live according to those things which the Lord has taught in the Word . . . To live according to them is to comply with them from faith and love. . . The case with compliance is as with every deed of man ; in a man's deed nothing lives except love and faith.

9319. 'Thou shalt not do according to their works' (ver.24) = that evils of life are not to be followed after ; 'works' = evils of life ; and 'not to do according to them' = not to follow or follow after them.

9333². Whatever a man from his earliest infancy thinks, wills, speaks, and does, adls itself to his life and makes it : these things cannot be exterminated, but only removed.

9334². All things which a man has thought, intended, and done from infancy, have added themselves to his life, and made it; and have also formed such a connection among themselves that one cannot be removed unless all are removed at the same time . . .

9385. 'They said, All the words that Jehovah hath spoken we will do' (Ex.xxiv.3)=reception then in the heart . . . 'To do'=reception by the voluntary part, thus reception in the heart.

9393. That truth is said to be received by man which becomes of his life and worship . . . or, what is the same, when he wills it, and, from will, that is, from love and affection, does it.

9398. 'They said, All things that Jehovah hath spoken we will do and hear' (ver.7)=the reception of the truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, and obedience from the heart and soul . . . 'To do'=obedience in will, thus in heart; and 'to hear,' obedience in understanding, thus in soul.

9483. 'So shall ye make it' (Ex.xxv.9)=a representative certain and genuine. 'So to make,' when repeated, and bringing the words to a close,=what is certain and genuine.

9587. The Lord keeps man in the freedom of thinking, and in so far as external bonds . . . do not hinder, He keeps him in the freedom of doing.

9737^e. See BEAR—portare—at this ref.

9780². They who only know the things which are in the Word . . . and do not do them, are in no Knowledge of good, consequently, in none of truth.

9824². The case is the same with willing, thinking, and doing with man; to will is the first, to think is the second, and to do is the ultimate, which also is the effect, in which the prior or interior things come forth simultaneously; for in proportion as doing contains in it that which a man thinks, and that which he wills, the interior things are held together in form and in connection. Hence it is that it is said in the Word, that man is to be judged according to his deeds or according to his works, which=that he is to be judged according to his thinking and willing; for these are in the deeds as the soul is in its body.

9937². These things are not meant by 'bearing iniquity,' since the deeds remain with everyone after death; and he is then judged according to their quality either to life or to death: their quality is from love and faith; for the love and the faith make the life of the deed.

10284. 'In its quality ye shall not make like it' (Ex.xxx.33)=no imitation from the study of man.

10307. 'The incense which thou makest in its quality, ye shall not make for yourselves' (ver.37)=that worship from the holy truths of the Church is not to be applied to man's loves.

10331². See WORK at this ref.

10332. 'To make in gold, and in silver, and in brass' (Ex.xxxi.4)=interior and exterior goods and truths which are from the will . . . 'To make'=that which proceeds from the will; for that which a man does, proceeds from his will.

10337. 'They shall make (or do) all things which I have commanded thee' (ver.6)=the Divine truths which are from the Word, and which are to be represented in things external. 10352.

10373. 'For in six days Jehovah made Heaven and earth' (ver.17)=a state of combat and labour while the Church is being established . . . 'To make heaven and earth' does not mean the first creation of the visible heavens and earth, but the establishment of the Church, and the regeneration of man therein.

—². 'To create' (Is.xliiii.1)=what is new that was not before; 'to form'=the quality; and 'to make'=the effect.

10469. 'What hath this people done to thee?' (Ex.xxxii.21)=whence is it that this nation is such; for 'to do,' here, does not signify to do, since by 'Aaron' is not signified Aaron, but the external whose quality is observed by the internal.

10491. 'And the sons of Levi did according to the word of Moses' (ver.28)=the effect by those who are in truths from good.

10645³. The truths which are from good are those which a man wills and thence does, but not which he understands and does without willing; for to do without willing is hypocrisy.

10740. That which anyone does from love remains inscribed on his heart . . .

H. 358. For man is such as his affection and thought are, or such as his love and faith are; all things he does—agit—in externals thence derive their life; for to act is to will, and to speak is to think; for he acts from will, and speaks from thought; wherefore, by its being said in the Word, that man will be judged according to his deeds, and that he will be recompensed according to his works, is meant that it will be according to his thought and affection, from which the deeds are, or which are in the deeds; for deeds are of no account without these, and are of precisely the same character as they are. Examp.

—^e. The deeds (of both these men) appear alike in the external form, but in the internal one are entirely unlike.

471. That man will be judged and recompensed according to his deeds and works. III.

—^e. That 'works' and 'deeds' are the external life of man, and that through them his internal life and its quality are manifested, is evident.

472. But by 'deeds' and 'works' are not meant the deeds and works solely such as are presented in the external form, but also such as they are in the internal one; for everyone knows that every deed and work proceed from the man's will and thought, because unless it did proceed thence it would be only a motion such as that of automaton and images. Wherefore, regarded in itself, a deed or work is only an effect, which derives its soul and life from the will and the thought, so much so, that it is the will and the thought in effect, and therefore it is the will and the thought in an external form. Hence it follows, that such as are the will and the thought which produce a deed or work, such, also, is the deed or work; if the thought and the will are good, the deeds and works are good, but if the thought and the will are evil, the deeds and works are evil, although, in the external form, they appear alike. It is possible for a thousand men to do alike, that is, to present a like deed, so like, that as to the external form they cannot be distinguished from each other; and yet, regarded in themselves, each may be unlike all the others, because they are from a dissimilar will. Examp. [H.472]^p. The deeds of all these are evil, although they appear good.

475. In the deeds or works, the whole man is presented, and his will and thought . . . which are the interiors of the man, are not complete, until they are in deeds or works, which are the exteriors of the man; for these latter are the ultimates in which the former things are terminated, and without terminations they are as it were unbounded things, which as yet do not come forth, thus which as yet are not in the man. Thinking and willing, without doing, when one is able, are like a flaming thing enclosed in a vessel, which is extinguished; and like seed thrown into sand, which does not grow, but perishes . . . Whereas thinking and willing, and thence doing, is like a flaming thing giving heat and light around; and is like seed in soil, which grows . . . Everyone can know that to will and not to do, when one is able, is not to will; and that to love and not to do good when one is able, is not to love, thus that it is only to think that one wills and loves, and thus that it is thought separated, which vanishes away and is dissipated. The love and will is the very soul of the deed or work, and it forms its own body in the sincere and righteous things which the man does. The spiritual body, or body of man's spirit, is from no other source, that is, it is formed from nothing else than those things which the man does from his love or will. In a word, all things of a man and his spirit are in his deeds or works.

Life 47. There are many things which appear to belong only to faith, as that there is a God . . . of which it is not said that they are to be done, but that they are to be believed: these matters of faith are also dead with the man who is in evil, but alive with the man who is in good. The reason is, that the man who is in good not only does well from the will, but also thinks well from the understanding. 48, Ex.

F. 42^p. Then, said the Angel, you will not do anything. He replied, What should I do? I am not able to do what is good, that is good, from myself.

43. The Angel said, What is charity? He replied, To do what the Word teaches. He said, Have you only believed these things, or have you also done them? He replied, I have also done them. The Angel of Heaven then looked at him, and said, My friend, come with me, and dwell with us.

W. 215^e. From a mere deed or work of a man, the Angels perceive and see the whole of the will and thought of him who does it . . . Hence it is that in the Word works and deeds are so often commanded, and it is said that a man is Known from them. 220, Ex.

266. That an evil man is able to will and do these (truths), although he does not will and do them, reason and experience testify. Reason: Who is not able to will and to do the things which he thinks? The reason he does not will and do them, is that he does not love to will and do them: his ability to will and to do them is the freedom which every man has from the Lord; and the reason he does not will and do what is good, when he is able, is the love of evil . . . which he can resist, as many do.

P. 78. That whatever a man does from freedom according to his thought, is appropriated to him as his, and remains. Gen.art.

— That which a man does from his life's love, he does from freedom. The reason a man does from freedom according to his thought, is that what is of anyone's life or love he also thinks . . . and when it is confirmed, he does it from freedom according to his thought; for whatever a man does, he does from the will by means of the understanding. A man can also act from freedom against reason, and also according to reason but not from freedom; but these things are not appropriated to the man . . . Whereas the things which are of his spirit and heart are appropriated to the man when they become of his lips and body.

80. Nothing is appropriated to a man which he only thinks, or even which he thinks to will, unless at the same time he wills it to such a degree, that, when an opportunity is afforded, he does it. The reason is, that when he does it from this source, he does it from the will by means of the understanding, or from the affection of the will by means of the thought of the understanding; but so long as it is of the thought alone, it cannot be appropriated, because the understanding does not conjoin itself with the will . . . but the will with the understanding. This is meant by . . . 'Not that which goeth out from the mouth defileth the man; but that which cometh out from the heart' . . .

111^e. That consent is deed, is known; which is also what the Lord says: 'If anyone shall look on a strange woman, so as to lust after her, he hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.' It is the same with all other evils.

128. Who does not know from the Word that according to his deeds is a life allotted to everyone after death. (Very fully ill.) E.785³.

168². From interior enlightenment man perceives, that whatever a man loves he wills, and whatever he wills he does; and thus that to will is to do: and again, that whatever a man believes from love, he also wills and does, and thus that to have faith is also to do.

278. That evils cannot be removed, unless they appear. It is not meant that a man is to do evils in order that they may appear; but that he is to examine himself, not only his deeds, but also his thoughts, and what he would do if he did not fear the laws and disgrace; especially what evils he in his own spirit makes allowable, and does not account to be sins; for these he also does.

287. All that man thinks and wills, and thence speaks and does, is from influx . . . 292.

321⁷. Man is said to do this, but he does it as from himself, and then he does it from the Lord. When man acknowledges this . . . it lies inwardly hidden in all that he afterwards thinks and does as from himself. . . In a word, it is like the heart and soul in all that he thinks and does.

326⁸. For the life of everyone is in each and all things which he does.

R. 463². (They affirm) that nothing which man does appears before God, whether good or evil . . . and therefore that it is allowable for man to will, think, speak, and do whatever he likes, provided he takes care of himself in so far as the world is concerned. T.462.

630. 'To make heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters' (Rev.xiv.7), in the natural sense, means to create them; but in the spiritual sense, it=to make the angelic Heaven and the Church, and all things thereof.

887. 'He said unto me, It is done' (Rev.xxi.6)=that it is the Divine truth.

M. 5³. They asked the Angel, What is heavenly joy? The Angel replied. . . It is the delight of doing anything that is of use for ourselves and others.

6⁶. There is a certain current latent in the affection of the will of every Angel, which draws the mind to be doing something: by this the mind tranquilizes itself, and satisfies itself: this satisfaction and that tranquillity make a state of mind that is receptive of the love of use from the Lord; and from the reception of this comes heavenly happiness.

12². While they were in amazement at the sight of these magnificent things, the Angel said, Marvel not, these things which you see have not been made and fabricated by any angelic hand, but they have been constructed by the Framers of the universe, and presented as a gift to our prince.

530. This scortatory love is imputed to anyone, not according to his deeds, as they appear in externals before men . . . but as they appear in internals before the Lord . . .

—^e. These things are imputed to anyone, not according to the deeds, but according to the state of mind in the deeds; for the deeds follow the body into the tomb, whereas the mind rises again.

I. 14. That . . . the will can be elevated into the heat of Heaven . . . according to the deeds of the life; but that the love of the will is not elevated, except in proportion as the man wills and does those things which the wisdom of the understanding teaches. Gen.art.

T. 313. See CONCUPISCENCE at these refs. 316. 328^e.

347³. Truths do not actually live until they are in deeds. Truths abstracted from deeds are of the thought only . . . He who learns truths and does not do them, is like one who scatters seed on a field, and does not harrow it in . . . Whereas he who learns truths and does them, is like one who sows, and ploughs over the sown surface . . .

589. (Thus) the first of the new generation is the reception of Truths in the understanding; the second of it is, that he wills to do according to the Truths, and at last he does them.

628. From arbitrary Election . . . they have fallen into . . . this abominable thing: that God does not attend to the deeds of a man's life, but only to the faith inscribed on the interiors of his mind.

D. 1910. That the thoughts and the deeds of a man who is in faith are not his.

4324. All external things are abolished in the other life, as well as deeds themselves, both good and evil . . .

5541. They who were sent down asked me what they were to do, whether they were to do all the things in (the heavenly doctrine); and said that this they were utterly unable to do. It was granted to say to them, that it is not grievous and difficult . . .

E. 15^e. 'To do' is to will, and to will is 'to do,' because in deeds the will is everything.

98. 'I know thy works, and labour, and endurance' = all things which they will, think, and do . . .

—³. Who that is wise looks at a man from his mere deeds? Is it not from his will? If he wills well, he loves his deeds, but if he wills evilly he does not love his deeds; he sees these too, but explains them according to the intention of his will. He who is spiritual, attends still less to the deeds, and explores the will: the reason is that deeds are nothing in themselves, but everything of them is from the will; for deeds are the will in act.

—⁴. As 'works' or 'deeds' in the Word=in special those things which proceed from the will or love of a man, it is so often said in the Word that a man will be judged and recompensed according to his works; and it is meant not according to works in the external form, but in the internal one. III.

108². That it is not knowing and understanding truths Divine which makes the Church and forms Heaven with a man, but knowing, understanding, and doing, the Lord teaches openly in many places. III.

195². A man lives a moral life from a spiritual origin . . . when he thinks . . . that what is evil, insincere, or unjust is not to be done, because it is against the Divine laws. He who abstains from doing these things for the sake of the Divine laws, acquires spiritual life . . .

242⁴. (Thus) unless Knowledges are implanted in the life by thinking and willing them, and thence doing them, they are like the unmastered meats in ruminatory stomachs . . . Moreover, the circle of man's life is to know, to understand, to will, and to do; for man's spiritual life begins from knowing, then it is continued into understanding, afterwards into willing, and at last into doing: whence it is evident, that while Knowledges are in the memory they are only at the entrance to life, and that they are not fully in the man until they are in deeds; and that they are more fully in the deeds in proportion as they are more fully in the understanding and the will.

292^e. To live the life of love is to do the precepts of the Lord; for to love is to do; for what a man loves he wills and he does; whereas what he does not love he does not will, and therefore he does not do.

294^e. (Thus) 'to make' or 'create,' here=to make man new, or to reform him.

328⁷. Divine truth is received when it is applied to and implanted in the life through doing it; therefore the Lord so often says, that they should do His words. Hence it is evident, that these two things, to wit, to believe in the Lord and to do His words, make a one; and that they cannot possibly be separated; for he who does not do the Lord's words does not believe in Him. . .

[E.] 376³⁷. 'The work of Jehovah' is said of the goods of life; and 'the deed of His hands' (Is.v.12), of the truths of doctrine; both from the Word.

391²³. The Lord is called 'Maker' (Is.xvii.7) from the fact that He leads into the goods of life; for these make man; and 'the Holy One of Israel,' from the fact that He teaches the truths of doctrine. 585⁷.

—³⁷. 'To make' is said of good; and, in the opposite sense, of evil.

411¹¹. 'To do the Lord's words'=the good of life; for when a man does the truth it becomes good; for it enters into the will and love, and that which is of the will and love is called good.

419¹³. From the reformation of man and the establishment of the Church, the Lord is called 'the Maker of the earth' (Jer.x.12; li.15); and elsewhere, 'the Former' and 'the Creator.'

440. That which a man wills, he does when he is able; for the deed is nothing but the will acting, as may be evident from the fact, that the deed ceases when the will does, and that it lasts as long as the will does.

644²⁴. 'The house' (which fell)=the man. . . who receives Divine truths with only one part of the mind, which is of the thought or understanding, and not at the same time with the other, which is of the affection or will. . . Hence it is evident what is meant by 'hearing the Lord's words, and not doing them.'

696⁶. In many places where it is said 'to fear Jehovah God,' it is also said 'to keep and do His words and precepts;' where 'to fear'=worship through truths; and 'to keep and do,' worship through the good of love; for to do is of the will, thus of love and of good; and to fear is of the understanding, thus of faith and of truth.

796. 'Power of doing was given to him forty-two months' (Rev.xiii.5)=destruction even until nothing of truth and good remained; (for) 'the power of doing'=the act of destroying goods and truths.

797⁴. Love in its essence is to will, and in its manifestation is to do; for that which a man loves he wills, and that which he wills from love he does; therefore the Lord says: 'He that hath My commandments, and doeth them, he it is that loveth Me' (John xiv.21).

825³. Every day he is taught by the Lord what to do and to speak. . . for when evils have been removed he is under the Lord's auspices, and is in enlightenment. . .

837¹³. There exists no truth with man, still less any faith, unless he wills and does. . .

948⁵. If these bonds did not restrain, they would do them.

1013. 'It is done' (Rev.xvi.17)=it is consummated. . .

1099³. Nothing is full until it is done. . .

C. 4. (A man) must not think of the things he does, but of those, he wills to do; if he believes these to be allowable, he also does them; and the reason he does not do them is on account of the world. There is an internal and an external effect, or an internal and an external work: the external effect or work proceeds and comes forth from the internal effect or work, as act does from endeavour. Endeavour, in man, is will; therefore, although he does not do a thing in the body, if he makes it allowable, the endeavour or will remains; and this is the act itself in the spirit.

Can. Trinity viii. 4. A plurality of gods may be confirmed from. . . 'Let us make man in our image and likeness.'

Do Evil. Malum facere.

Do Harm. Malefacere.

A. 1327³. The man who does evil, but does not think evil, has not imputed to him the evil he does. . .

1864². From himself, man thinks and does nothing but evil; all the good he does is from Jehovah.

2359. (Lot said) 'I pray you, my brethren, do not wickedly' (Gen.xix.7)=that they should not do violence to these things. 2373.

3820². See Do Good at these refs. 4992^o. 6405³. 6477. 6703.

4078. 'God gave not to him to hurt me' (Gen.xxxi.7) =that he could not hinder.

4317⁵. It is believed that (hereditary evil) is to do evil; but it is to will and thence think evil. . . It is the endeavour itself which is within; and when he does good it adjoins itself.

5596. 'Wherefore did ye ill to me to tell the man whether there was yet a brother?' (Gen.xxxiii.6)=that they would separate from themselves the truth of good. . . 'To do ill'=to separate.

6666². All the delight of the life (of infernal Spirits), thus their very life, consists in doing harm; wherefore nothing else occupies their thoughts, consequently they intend nothing else; to do good they are unable, because it is repugnant; if they do good, it is for the sake of self.

7165. 'Lord, wherefore hast Thou so evil entreated this people?' (Ex.v.22)=that those who are in truths and goods are being too much infested by falsities; (for) 'to entreat evil'=to permit them to be too much infested by falsities; for, in the spiritual sense, this is 'to entreat evil' when it is said of those who are in truths and goods.

7168. '(Pharaoh) hath done harm to this people' (ver. 23)=that by the falsities which are injected, they who are in the truths and goods of the Church seem to be injured; (for) 'to do harm'=to injure by means of the injection of falsities.

7392². By means of reasonings from mere falsities they cannot do harm, because the upright laugh at mere falsities. . . Whereas by the falsities which are from fallacies and appearances. . . they could do harm. . . Nothing delights the infernals, except doing evil, in whatever way it is possible to do it; for to do harm is the very delight of their life, so much so that it is their life itself; wherefore, when they are not permitted to do harm, they are weary. This is why Pharaoh deprecated the evil of the frogs, but not that of the blood.

—³. In the other life, all those perceive delight in doing harm, who in the world have not done well to the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour, nor to their country for the sake of their country, nor to the Church for the sake of the Church, but for the sake of self; thus those who do not do what is true and good for the sake of what is true and good. That it is a delight to them to do harm does not shine forth in the world, because the external man hides it; but in the other life, when the externals are taken away, and the man is left to his own interiors, this delight manifests itself. Hence it is, that they are in Hell; for all who are there love to do harm; but all who are in Heaven love to impart benefits—benefacere.

8120. He who renders aid to a poor or needy rogue, through him does harm to the neighbour; for by the aid which he renders him he confirms him in evil, and furnishes him with the means of doing harm to others.

8910³. Man cannot desist from thinking evil, but from doing it; whereas, as soon as from the thought he receives evil into the will, it does not go out, but enters into him.

9093². 'To serve two lords' . . . to acknowledge truth, and do evil. He who does this has a divided mind; hence his destruction.

10718. They who have Hell in themselves will evil to all, and perceive delight in doing harm to others; if these perceive delight in imparting benefits, it is not for the sake of what is good and true, but for the sake of self and the world.

H. 319². He who does not do harm to the neighbour because to do so is contrary to religion, thus contrary to the Divine, he, from a spiritual origin, abstains from doing harm; whereas, he who does not do harm to another merely on account of fear of the law, the loss of reputation, or of honours and gain, thus for the sake of self and the world, he, from a natural origin, abstains from doing harm; and is led by self.

550. See PUNISH—punire—at this ref.

P. 19. An evil person can do harm, and also does harm in a thousand ways; nevertheless, he can do harm to the evil only from their evil; but he cannot do harm at all to the good; if he does harm to the good, as sometimes happens, it is by means of conjunction with their evil.

R. 153¹⁰. If anyone does evil to another, he is thrown into a corner of the cavern, upon a certain bed of damned dust, where he is miserably tormented . . .

325^e. All those who worship the Lord and live according to the truths of His Word . . . the evil in the World of Spirits continually want to kill . . . and as they cannot do this, they burn with such hatred against them, that they feel nothing to be more delightful than to do harm to them . . .

M. 264³. Everyone in Hell is left to his own phantasy . . . but is not allowed to do evil to another. 268^e.

T. 160⁷. We said . . . Examine these. And they turned them round, and saw that the hinder parts of their heads [were very hollow; and then they said, Depart hence, because you have the delight of the love of doing harm . . .

—⁸. On the way home, we spoke about the reason why the back parts of the head, with those who have delight in doing harm, are in this World hollowed out. Ex.

798¹¹. They said, that (in that cave) they are all enemies, and that everyone seeks a pretext of doing harm to another, and that they also do it when they get hold of any slight occasion, and that this is the delight of their life.

D. 4582. See DELIGHT—juvandum—at these refs. —^e. 5830^e. 5873. E.661. 991⁶.

De Verbo 4². They explained the meaning of Ps. xxxii.2, from the mere letters, and said that their meaning as a whole was, that the Lord is merciful even to those who do harm.

Do Good. Bonum facere.

Do Well, Impart Benefits. Benefacere.

A. 105. As no one can do good from himself . . .

361. 'If thou doest well' (Gen.iv.7)=if thou wilt well . . . 'If thou doest not well'=if thou dost not will well.

363. 'To do well'=to will well, because doing good flows forth from willing good.

735. If he believes in simplicity that he can do good from himself . . . he can easily be instructed that the good which he does is from the Lord.

1485. 'And to Abram he did well for her sake' (Gen. xii.16)=that matters of knowledge were multiplied with the Lord; (for) 'to do well'=to enrich.

1534. By favour—beneficio—of the light . . .

1712. They who are in ignorance can know no otherwise than that the good they do is theirs, and that the truth they think is theirs. In like manner they who attribute to themselves the goods which they do, and place merit in them; not knowing that in that case they are not goods . . . But it is otherwise if this is done from ignorance not confirmed; in this case these evils and falsities are easily shaken off; whereas, if they confirm themselves in the idea, that with their Own strength they can do good and resist evil, and that so they merit salvation, this remains adjoined, and makes the good evil, and the truth falsity. But still the order is such, that man is to do good as if from himself; and therefore he is not to hang down his hands, thinking, If I can do nothing good from myself I must await an immediate influx, and thus remain in a passive state. This, too, is contrary to order. He ought to do good as if from himself; but when he reflects upon the good he does or has done, he should think, acknowledge, and believe, that the Lord has operated it in him. If he hangs down his hands, thinking as we have said, he is not a subject into which the Lord can operate; He cannot flow into anyone who deprives himself of everything that is of a nature into which forces can be infused . . .

1864². See DO EVIL at these refs. 4317⁵. 6666³. 7392². 10718.

1937. See important passages under COMPEL at these refs. E.1152². —³.

1992⁵. 'Shaddai' . . . means the Tempter, and the Benefactor after temptations.

[A.]2715². When (a spiritual man, as distinguished from a celestial one) does well to anyone, it is for the sake of an end in the world . . . and he thinks of recompense from those to whom he does well . . . so that his good is defiled with what is meritorious. (Also) when he has done anything good, if he can mention it . . . he is in the delight of his life.

2738. Mutual love, such as prevails in Heaven . . . is such as is the love of those who are affected with doing good—benefaciendo—on account of . . . the joy it is to them. 5084⁸. 6388.

2882. No one ever has freedom in thinking what is true and doing what is good from himself . . . But the freedom of thinking the truth which is of faith, and of doing the good which is of charity all flows in from the Lord.

2883. In order, therefore, that a man may receive a heavenly proprium, he ought to do what is good from himself, and think what is true from himself; but still he ought to know, and, when he is reformed, to think and believe, that everything good and true is from the Lord . . .

2928^e. As they do good from the affection of truth . . .

3671^e. When a man understands what is good and true . . . but still does not love to know them, and still less to do them, good cannot be fructified nor truth multiplied in the Rational.

3701⁴. Such Knowledges are insinuated as are not altogether contrary . . . as that benefits are to be imparted to those who appear poor . . . whatever may be their inward quality.

—⁶. At last, when he is still further perfected, he studies to impart benefits to those who are in good, and this according to the quality of the good in them; and at last he perceives delight in imparting benefits to them.

3820². They who are in external truths . . . impart benefits equally to the evil and the good, not knowing that to do good—benefacere—to the evil is to do evil to the good . . . Whereas they who are in internal truths . . . impart benefits to everyone according to his quality.

3887. (The spiritual Angels) place the delight of their life in this: that they are able to impart benefits to others without recompense; this is their recompense, that they are allowed to do good to others; and the more they will and yearn for this, in the greater intelligence and happiness they are.

3934². The good of faith cannot exist without works; just as thinking good and willing good cannot without doing good; the former is the internal, the latter is the corresponding external.

—⁷. He who wills good does good; but he who does not do good, however he may say that he wills good, still does not will it when he does not do it.

3956. The hire to those who are in charity is that they are able to impart a benefit, and that the benefit is accepted; this is the delight itself, yea, the blessedness which prevails with those who are in the affection of charity.

3987². To will good to another, and thence to think good, are of the interior man; and to do good, and thence to teach good, are of the external man: unless doing good is conjoined with willing good, and teaching good with thinking good, the man has no good; for the evil can will evil and do good, also think evil and teach good . . .

3993⁵. Truth without good has such merit in it; for when anyone does good, not from the good of truth, he always wants to be recompensed; for he does it for the sake of self; whereas, when he does truth from good, the truth is enlightened by the light which is from the Lord.

—¹¹. He who believes that a man is saved from believing well, and not from willing well; and yet wills well, and thence does well—bene facit; this is a falsity to which good and truth can be adjoined; but not if he does not will well, and thence do well—bene facit.

4001. 'The black in the lambs' = the first state of innocence, because at first there reigns the proprium of the man who is being regenerated; for he supposes that he does good from proprium; and he must do it as from proprium, in order that he may be gifted with a heavenly proprium.

4258. 'Thou hast said, In doing good I will do good—benefaciendo benefaciam—to thee' (Gen. xxxii. 12) = that still he should then obtain life. . . 'To do good' = to obtain life.

4368⁴. When they who are in the affection of truth from the good of genuine charity hear that heavenly blessedness is to do good—benefacere—to others from good will, for the sake of no end for self, they rejoice; whereas, they who are in the affection of truth from the love of self and the world do not want this, nor in fact do they apprehend it.

4721³. The Church which acknowledges faith alone . . . will wonder that anyone should say, that the happiness of the life after death and the joy in Heaven is the Divine that flows into willing well and doing well to others; and that the happiness and blessedness thence surpass all perception; and that the reception of this influx can never exist with anyone who has not lived the life of faith, that is, who has not been in the good of charity.

4730². Who at this day knows anything else than that love towards the neighbour is to give what he has to the poor . . . and to impart benefits to them in every way, without distinction as to whether he is good or evil . . .

4741². Who does not see that to will well and to do well is the veriest Christian life; and if it is said to him, that this is charity, he cannot but affirm it . . .

4788³. The men of the Church are distinguished into those who are in good, and those who are in truth; the former are called the celestial, and the latter the spiritual. . . They who are in good are in the affection of doing good for the sake of good, and this without any recompense for themselves; the recompense is that they are permitted to do good; for they thence perceive joy. But they who are in truth are not in the affection of doing good for the sake of good, but because it is so commanded, and for the most part they think of recompense; their joy is thence, and also from glorying. Hence it is evident, that those who do good from good do it from internal affection, whereas they who do good from truth do it from a certain external affection; whence the difference is manifest, to wit, that the former are internal men, and the latter external.

4844⁷. As in the Jewish Church . . . all things were representative, so was imparting benefits to the fatherless and widows . . .

4992^e. To impart benefits to a friend, without regard to his quality, is natural and not spiritual; whereas to impart benefits to a friend for the sake of the good in him, and still more to hold the good itself as the friend to which to impart benefits, is spiritual-natural; and when a man is in this, he knows that he is doing wrong when he is imparting benefits to a friend who is an evil person; for then, through him, he does harm to others.

5008^s. See POOR at these refs. 5028^s.

—³. See NEIGHBOUR at these refs. 5028^s. 6704.

5071^e. In the love and zeal of imparting benefits to others.

5293. That which conduces to use, is to know good and truth; that which is of use, is to will and do them.

5354². From the new will he feels delight in doing well to the neighbour . . .

5461^e. In the same proportion the Lord flows in, and makes the affection of doing good, that is, of exercising charity towards the neighbour.

5555. From this general principle they have imparted benefits equally to the evil and the upright . . . 6405.

6208. Many enjoy natural good hereditarily, from which they have delight in imparting benefits to others; but they are not imbued with principles of doing good from the Word . . .

6388. See ISSACHAR at this ref.

6389. They who do good for the sake of recompense are indeed of use . . . but are among those in the Lord's Kingdom who are in the lowest place . . . 6393.

6393³. 'The recompense in the resurrection of the just' is the internal happiness from doing good-benefaciendo—without reward which they who perform uses receive from the Lord.

6477. I have observed a general sphere of influxes around me . . . from the perpetual endeavour of doing evil by the Hells on the one part, and from the continual endeavour of doing good by the Lord on the other; by means of these opposite endeavours I have been constantly kept in equilibrium . . .

6478. When an Angel does good to anyone, he also communicates to him his own good. (See ANGEL at this ref.)

6481². The Lord moves the evil to do good to the neighbour, to their country, and to the Church, by their evil loves . . . 6914³.

6687. 'God did well to the midwives (Ex.i.20)=that the Natural is blessed by the Divine.

6703^e. The evil, from the benefits they receive, do harm to the neighbour, but the good do good-benefaciunt.

6708^s. The evil are to be benefited in a different way.

6821. See COUNTRY at this ref.

7318. Truth is falsified when . . . he says, that as no one can do good from himself, good contributes nothing to salvation . . .

8002. 'A lodger and a hireling shall not eat it'=that those who do good from mere natural disposition, and for the sake of gain, shall not be with them.

8255. That to do good is to worship the Lord, is evident from Matt.vii.24,26.

8487³. The concupiscences into which the Angels are let down . . . are the delights of doing good-benefaciendi—in some abundance, and thence something of glory, in which, however, there is benevolence and the earnest disposition to be of service . . .

8516². It is not of charity to do good for the sake of self . . .

8546. (I said to the Spirits of Jupiter) that no one can do anything good from himself, but from the Lord . . . They modestly replied that they supposed they were able to do good from themselves . . . It was granted to reply, that the Lord leaves those to say so who live in simplicity and innocence, provided they know that nothing of good comes from themselves, but from the Lord.

8639. He who does not know that the Lord is the Saviour of mankind, cannot have faith in Him, adore Him, love Him, and thus do good for His sake.

8701². Man is not regenerated before he acts from the affection of good; for he then wills what is good, and is delighted and happy to do it.

8762. They are of the external Church who do good to the neighbour . . . from obedience of faith; whereas they are of the internal Church who do good to the neighbour . . . from love.

9174⁴. 'To lend'=to do good from the affection of charity . . .

— To love enemies, and do good-benefacere—to the evil, is the affection of charity; but enemies are loved and it does good-benefit—to them, when they are being instructed; and also when, by suitable means, they are amended.

9207. See DESIRE-desiderare—at these refs. —².

9209². The internal of charity and mercy is clearly to see who and of what quality they are to whom good is to be done-benefaciendum est, and in what way to each. They who have been at last initiated into the internal of charity and mercy know that the internal itself is to will well and to do well to the internal of man . . . and that the external is to do well to the external of man . . . but always with such prudence, that while one benefits-benefit—the external, one may benefit-benefiat—the internal at the same time; for he who does good-benefacit—to the external, and does harm to the internal, does not exercise charity. . . It is the external of charity that is described in the literal sense by 'doing good-benefaciendum—to the poor and needy.'

9210. 'A usurer'=one who does good for the sake of gain.

—². If the end is to do good for the sake of reputation, etc., the good he does is not good . . . Whereas, if the end is to do good for the sake of . . . the neighbour, the good he does is good. . . The difference between (these two) is . . . as great as that between Heaven and Hell ; and they who do good for the sake of the neighbour and the Lord are in Heaven ; whereas they who do it for the sake of themselves and the world are in Hell ; for they who do good for the sake of the neighbour and the Lord love the Lord above all things and the neighbour as themselves . . . whereas they who do all things for the sake of themselves and the world love themselves above all things . . .

[A.] 9211. He who is led by the Lord never thinks at all about reward, and does good to the neighbour from the heart.

97807. The virgins who took the lamps and no oil, are they who hear the Word, read it, and say they believe, and yet do nothing of good ; and if they do it it is not from the love of what is good and true, but from the love of self and the world.

9975. See under GOOD at this ref.

10067⁸. That man can do nothing of good from himself. Sig.

10219. 'And there be not in them a plague in numbering them'=lest there be the penalty of evil in doing goods as from themselves. . . For the goods which a man does, he does as from himself ; he perceives no otherwise until he is in faith from love. . .

—³. So long as there is such a state in a man that he cannot perceive and feel the influx of goods from the Lord, so long he does goods as from himself ; but still he ought to acknowledge and believe that they are from the Lord.

10718. They who have Heaven in themselves will good to all, and perceive delight in doing good-benefaciendo-to others, not for the sake of themselves and the world, but for the sake of the good and truth that are so to be done.

H. 361². A rich man can in many ways benefit (his country and neighbour) more than a poor man . . .

535 (e). Charity is to do what is good, just, and right, in every work and employment. Refs.

— Unless doing good is conjoined with willing good and with thinking good, there is no salvation, nor is there conjunction of the internal man with the external.

N. 152. They who do good for the sake of reward do not do good from the Lord, but from self. . .

157. To think and believe that those come into Heaven who do good, and also that good is to be done in order that men may come into Heaven, is not to regard reward as an end, thus not to place merit in works ; for so think and believe even those who do good from the Lord . . . T.440.

C. J. 42³. (They complain that from those sermons) they do not know whether good is to be done or not . . .

Life 1. All religion is of life, and its life is to do what is good, Gen.art.

— The reason it is said that the life is to do what is good, is that doing good acts as one with thinking good . . .

2. That religion is of life, and that life is to do good. Ill.

9. No one can do good that is good from himself. Gen.art.

— The reason scarcely anyone knows hitherto whether the good he does is from himself, or from God, is that the Church has separated faith from charity . . .

11. As it concerns salvation to know whether the good which a man does is from God, or whether it is not from God, it is to be revealed.

16. In what follows, they who do good from themselves will be called natural men . . . but they who do good from the Lord will be called spiritual men . . .

17. That no one can do anything good that is good, from himself. 29, Ill.

— They who believe in the Lord, and do good from Him, are called 'sons of light,' etc.

18. In proportion as a man shuns evils as sins he does good not from himself, but from the Lord. Gen.art.

21. Hence results this general law : That in proportion as anyone shuns evils, he does goods.

24. That if a man wills and does goods before he shuns evils as sins the goods are not goods, is because he is not in the Lord. Examps. Thus, if he does good-benefaciato-to the Church, etc. J. (Post.) 347.

31. (Although) it is a Truth that no man can do good from himself which is good, by this to destroy all the good of charity which a man does who shuns evils as sins, is an enormity . . . For everyone knows that religion is to do what is good . . . Every man is able to shun evils as from himself from the Lord's power . . . and that which he afterwards does is good from the Lord.

58. In the second Table . . . it is not said that man is to do this or that good, but that he should not do this or that evil . . . The reason is, that man cannot do anything good from himself ; but when he does not do evils, he then does good, not from himself, but from the Lord. R.461^e.

P. 326⁸. If thou doest goods in all abundance, as if thou buildest churches . . . endowest hospitals, givest alms daily, succourest widows and orphans . . . and yet dost not shun evils as sins against God, all these goods are not goods, being either hypocritical or meritorious . . .

—³. To do good and not acknowledge God, is contradictory ; for the one cannot exist without the other.

R. 577. 'Its deadly wound was healed'=the cure of that 'head' of the doctrine by this reasoning, that no one can do good work from himself . . .

580. 'They adored the beast'=the acknowledgment by the general body that it is a holy Truth, that no one can do good work from himself . . .

581. 'Who is able to fight with him?'=who can deny that man cannot do any spiritual good from himself ?

601. 'That they should make an image to the beast that hath the wound by a sword and did live'=that faith is the only means of salvation, because no one can do good from himself, except it be meritorious . . .

634². To live according to (the doctrine of faith alone) . . . is to make nothing of good, by thinking within themselves, that no one can do good from himself, except it be meritorious: thus they only avoid evils for the sake of civil and moral laws . . . These are they who do goods merely for the sake of themselves and the world, and therefore from the love of self . . .

875³. How man can do good from God, and yet as from himself. (Fully ex.) T.461.

M.130⁴. The wisdom of life is . . . to shun evils . . . and to do goods, because they are advantageous for the soul, the commonwealth, and the body.

B. 43. Goods are to be done, because they are of God, and from God. And these are to be done by man as by himself, but it is to be believed that they are from the Lord with him and through him. 117³. T.3. Scia.10.

59^e. My friend, make your escape from such, and shun evils as sins, and do goods, and believe in the Lord, and saving justification will be given you.

T. 329. The First of love to God and of love towards the neighbour is not to do evil, and the Second of them is to do good . . . There are two opposite loves, the love of willing and doing good, and the love of willing and doing evil . . . All Hell is in the love of doing evil, and all Heaven is in the love of doing good . . . How evils are removed, and man is brought to do goods, will be demonstrated in the two chapters on Repentance and Reformation.

—³. That evils are to be put away, before the goods which a man does become goods before God. The Lord teaches in Isaiah: 'Wash you, purify yourselves, put away the wickedness of your works from before Mine eyes; learn to do good . . . (i.16,17).

330^e. To these things are to be added two canons for the service of the New Church: I. No one can shun evils as sins, and do goods which are goods before God, from himself; but in proportion as anyone shuns evils as sins, he does goods, not from himself, but from the Lord. J.(Post.)348.

374. That charity is to will well, and that good works are to do well from willing well. Gen.art.

404. He does good to the neighbour, but for the sake of returns.

409. That good is to be done—benefaciendum sit—to an adversary and enemy from charity, the Lord teaches in Matt.: 'I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good—benefacite—to them that hate you, and pray for them that injure and persecute you . . . (v.44).

410. Charity itself resides in the internal man, in which it is willing well, and is thence in the external man, in which it is doing well . . .

414. Good is to be done—benefaciendum est—to our Country according to its needs . . . They who love their Country, and from good will do good—benefaciunt—to it, after death love the Lord's Kingdom . . .

419. To do uses is to do goods; and according to the quantity and quality of the use in the goods, the goods are goods.

420. Charity and good works are two distinct things, like willing well and doing well. Gen.art.

428. After death, these are well discriminated, and are separated from those who have performed the benefactions of charity prudently; for they who have performed them from that blind idea of charity, then do good—benefaciunt—equally to the evil and the good; and the evil thereby do evils, and thus injure the good; wherefore, these benefactors are also the cause of injury to the good; for to do good—benefacere—to a rogue is like giving bread to a devil, which he turns into poison . . . It is also like handing a sword to an enemy, with which he may kill some one . . .

435. That the first of charity is to put away evils, and the second of it is to do goods, which are of use to the neighbour. Gen.art.

— A man can see from reason itself, that in proportion as the evil seated in the will is not removed, the good which he does is impregnated with that evil; for the evil is then within the good, like a kernel in its shell . . .

—⁴. That a man cannot do good which in itself is good, before evil has been removed, the Lord teaches in many places. Ill.

437. It is believed that charity is simply to do good, and that then one does not do evil; consequently, that the First of charity is to do good, and its Second not to do evil; but this is turned completely upside down: the First of charity is to put away evil, and its Second is to do good; for it is a universal law in the Spiritual World, and thence also in the natural world, that in proportion as anyone does not will evil, he wills good; thus in proportion as he turns away from Hell, from which all evil ascends, he turns himself to Heaven, from which all good descends . . .

439². That good is not to be done with reward as the end, the Lord teaches in Luke: 'If ye do good—benefacitis—to them that do good—benefaciunt—to you, what thank have ye: rather love your enemies, and do good—benefacite—, and lend, hoping for nothing again . . . (vi.33,35).

— That man cannot do good which in itself is good, except from the Lord. Ill.

440². With these, the delight of doing good to the neighbour is the reward; this delight . . . far surpasses all natural delight; and they who are in this delight do not want to hear of merit; for they love to do . . . They are like those who do good to friends for the sake of friendship . . .

484². But my friend, shun evil, and do good, and believe in the Lord with all your heart, and with all your soul, and He will give the love to do and the faith to believe; and then you will do good from love . . .

535². All those who do good from religion avoid actual evils; and yet how very rarely they reflect upon the interior things of the will, believing that they are not in evils because they are in goods; and even that the goods cover the evils . . .

536. Still, all who do good from religion, not only Christians, but also pagans, are accepted by the Lord, and are adopted after death; for the Lord said, 'I was a hungered, and ye gave Me meat, etc.' To this I will add this new thing: All those who do good from religion, after death reject the doctrine . . . of three Divine Persons . . . and also the faith applied to the three in order; and turn themselves to the Lord God the Saviour, and draw in with pleasure the things of the New Church. All others . . . have hearts of adamant . . .

[T. 536]⁷. It is not said (in the parable of the goats) that they had done evils, but that they had not done goods; and they who do not do goods from religion do evils, because 'no one can serve two lords' . . .

537. They who do good from mere natural goodness, and not at the same time from religion, are not accepted after death . . .

726². There are many who confess the Lord, and who do good to the neighbour, but if they do not do it from love to the neighbour, and from faith in the Lord, they are not regenerate; for they do good to the neighbour merely for the sake of reasons which regard themselves and the world . . . The works of these are merely natural . . . Love towards the neighbour, and faith, are from the Lord alone, and both are given to man, when he, from his free-will, does good to the neighbour naturally, believes truths rationally, and looks to the Lord; doing these three on account of the things commanded in the Word.

D. 3000. On some who want to do good from their own powers.

3025a. On a certain person who supposed that he could do good and love the neighbour from himself. 3026.

4815. One (of the Moravians) does not confer a benefit on another: if he confers a benefit, he at once becomes his enemy . . . Thus there is a deadly vindictiveness against all who do good.

6004². If they ask what it is to do good, it is answered, that it is to have as an end the good of the Church, of our Country, of society, and of a fellow-citizen, for their own sakes, and for the sake of good; thus to do good because it is commanded in the Word, which is to do it for the Lord's sake . . . This is the good of life which makes faith . . . —³.

E. 741². Man does not do good from himself, but from the Lord, when he does good from the Word, that is, because it is commanded by the Lord in the Word; for the Lord is the Word . . . and the Lord is in those things which are from the Lord with man, as He also teaches in John: 'He who keepeth My word, I will come to him, and I will make My abode with him.'

—². It is evident (from Rev. iii. 20) that the Lord is continually present, and gives the endeavour to do good, but that man is to 'open the door,' that is, receive the Lord; and he receives Him when he does good from His Word; and although this appears to the man to be done as by himself, still it is not of man, but of the Lord with him . . .

785². He who does good has faith, but he who does not do goods has not faith.

797⁵. If they do good, it is from the love of reward . . .

—¹⁰. If (a man who in both doctrine and life makes good works of no account) still does goods, because they are commanded in the Word, he does no other goods than moral goods from the natural man, which goods are from himself, and are also meritorious goods; for all the doing of man is from his will, and is as his will; for a deed is nothing but the will in its activity; wherefore, when a man thinks, and also wills, that there is nothing of salvation in works, he is not able to do any other goods than such as are from this origin. Such are many of the learned . . .

798⁴. In (love to the Lord and charity) are all they who do goods from the Word . . .

—⁶. That to do good from obedience is from the natural man. Ex. (But) no one can do good from charity but he whose spiritual mind is opened, and the spiritual mind is opened solely by a man's abstaining from doing evils . . . because they are contrary to the Word . . . Whatever a man then does is good . . . and it follows that to do good from charity is spiritual; but to do good from obedience, because it is from the love of reward, is natural. This is the Natural in which they are who are at the entrance to Heaven . . .

802⁴. That faith has been given as the means of salvation, because man cannot do good from himself. Ex.

803². How man may be . . . in affection to do the goods which must be of his love. Ex.

— V. Hence it follows, that to shun evils is to do goods.

— VI. In proportion as man acts from (these good affections, he does goods, because he does these from the Lord, and not from himself.

—³. Many believe that they will come into Heaven, if they have faith . . . and do goods; and yet they are not averse to evils . . . But let them know that their faith is not faith . . . and their goods are not goods . . .

897. They who believe that Angels . . . are in such a state of integrity that they are able to do goods from themselves, are very much mistaken . . .

935². Everyone can see that in these eight commandments there are contained the evils which are to be shunned, and not the goods which are to be done.

946⁵. As a man thinks and wills he also does; for every deed of man proceeds from the thought of his will: hence it follows again, that when a man shuns and is averse to evils, he does goods, not from himself, but from the Lord: hence it is that to shun evils is to do goods. The goods which the man then does are meant by good works, and good works in the whole complex are meant by charity.

951⁸. To regard use in the first place and self in the second, is to do goods for the sake of the Church, our Country, a society, and the neighbour; and the goods which a man does for the sake of these are not from man, but from the Lord . . .

1167. The law of the Divine Providence, that in proportion as man can be withdrawn from evils, he does good from the Lord which is in itself good. Ex. See 1141².

J. (Post.) 217. The argument in which they place force, is that man cannot do good from himself which is good. This is true: but still unless man is in good as from himself, it is not appropriated to him, and thus he is not conjoined with the Lord. In order to conjunction there must be reciprocation . . .

342. That to do goods and not fight against evils is to do goods from self, and not from the Lord . . . It is believed by many that they will be saved because they have done goods, as that they have given to the poor, benefited the neighbour, acted sincerely and justly in their employment and in their work; and yet have never fought against the evils opposed to these goods, believing that evils are thus removed—it does appear, too, as if goods removed evils—saying in their hearts, If I do good, then I shun evil. But still the fact really is, that he does indeed do good from obedience to the Lord's commandments, but still not from the Lord, but from himself, thus not from a spiritual law, except only apparently, but really from a moral law and a civil one; and in this case evils still remain, and although he does not do them, still he is not averse to them; wherefore when the love of evil with its delight returns, he does not resist it, and so either excuses it and does it, or for the sake of self and the world omits to do it, and then he does not even know that it is evil. It is very different when he fights against evil from a spiritual law; in proportion as he does this he arraigns it; and in the same proportion he loves good and its truth; and in the same proportion he does good from the Lord, and not from himself; and in the same proportion, through his good and his truth, the Lord removes evil.

343. I heard Spirits saying that they know no other-wise than that to do good is to shun evil: but they received for answer that still they do not shun evil further than that they do not do it at that time; but still they do not hate evil and arraign it as sin, except in proportion as they have fought against it: by means of combat, evil is removed, and then good succeeds . . . To do good and not to fight against evil, is a thing that exists only in externals, and not in internals; whereas to fight against evil and thus do good, is a thing that exists in internals. Man does not become spiritual, except through combat. Some of those who have been sincere, just, chaste; and have not fought against things insincere, unjust, and unchaste, are let into combats after death; and then it clearly appears how much they have done from themselves or for the sake of themselves, or how much from the Lord; and, through combats, they are reformed.

345. Man does good from obedience, and he does good from affection; he does good from obedience before he has fought against evils; this is the first state of man, and may be a state of reformation—and he who is in this state, and does not do evils, is regenerated in the other life through combats against them, or through temptations. To do good from affection exists when a man has fought against evils; this state is the state of man's regeneration; and is the inverse of the former one.

346. To do good from obedience is not from freedom, because not from affection; there is the thought of recompense in it; thus, afterwards, of merit.

347. No one can do good from himself, but the Lord does good in the man; and no one comes to the Lord except the man who removes evils from himself through combats against them: thus in proportion as anyone so removes them, he does good from the Lord. This good has a similar appearance to that which is done—fiat—by man; but still he is always thinking about the Lord, and the Angels have the perception that it is from the Lord.
VOL. II.

C. 13. That the Second of charity is to do goods because they are uses.

17. That to will to do good to the neighbour is of charity.

— If a man does these goods (giving to the poor, etc.) before he shuns evils as sins, they are external goods, yea, meritorious, because they flow from an impure fountain; and the things which flow forth from such a fountain are inwardly evil: the man is in them, and the world is in them.

18. That to do Christian goods is of charity is known, and it is believed by many that good blots out evil . . . But it does not blot out evil if the man does not think about the evils in himself, and perform repentance from them.

20. That man is able to do good which he believes to be of charity, and still not shun evil, and yet all evil is against charity. . . That to shun evil [and do good] are two distinct things is evident; for there are those who do every good of charity . . . and yet do not know that to cherish hatred and revenge, to commit whoredom, to slander, etc., are evils. Examp. . . In a word, to shun evils as sins, and to do Christian good, are two distinct things. He who shuns evils as sins does Christian goods; but they who do good and do not shun evils as sins do no Christian good. For evil is contrary to charity, and must therefore be abolished before the good a man does is of charity. No one can do good, and at the same time will to do evil.

23. That as a man does not will to do evil to the neighbour, so he wills to do good to him; and not the converse.

27. That first evil is to be removed . . . before the good he does is the good of charity.

28. (The Decalogue) was so holy because no one can do Christian good before.

29. That good follows is clearly evident from this: A judge says, I will not judge from what is evil . . . but justly; and he does good.

31. So in a thousand other cases; when one does not do evil he does good.

32. Wherefore it may be taken as a maxim, that to shun evil as sin is to do good.

Can. Trinity ix. 6. When (the laity and the clergy) were examined as to whether they had in them anything of God, of faith and of charity, it was observed that there was nothing, consequently nothing of Heaven, of the Church, and of salvation, except with those who had done goods from religion; because these are receivable in the Spiritual World of faith in the Lord God the Saviour.

Dock. Navale. A.1977. R.463. T.462.

Doctrine. Doctrina.

Doctrinal. Doctrinalis.

See BEERSHEBA, BOW, CHARIOT, CITY, HEAVENLY DOCTRINE, and SHIP.

A. 5^o. I have been instructed there . . . especially concerning the doctrine of faith which is acknowledged in the universal Heaven.

36. Few know that faith is the doctrine of faith . . . not only the Knowledge of all things that are embraced in the doctrine of faith, and the acknowledgment of them, but especially obedience to all things which it teaches. The primary thing it teaches is the love of the Lord and the love of the neighbour . . . as the Lord clearly teaches . . . in Mark xii. 28-35 . . . 'the law and the Prophets' are the universal doctrine of faith, and the whole Word.

324. It treats (in Gen. iv.) of doctrines separated from the Church, or heresies.

325. The doctrine of faith separated from love was called 'Cain.'

330. Perverted doctrine is called 'the curse concerning the ground.'

337. As the falsification of the doctrine (of the Most Ancient Church) is here treated of, and consequently heresies and sects under the names of Cain and his descendants, (it shall be explained) how the doctrine was falsified . . . Thus it follows that the doctrine was falsified in the most ancient time when they made confession of faith, and thus separated faith from love. They who thus falsified the doctrine . . . were called 'Cain;' and, with them, such a thing was an enormity. 442. 468.

340. Before, they had as it were been ignorant what faith is, because they had a perception of all the things of faith; but when they began to make a distinct doctrine about faith, they took out the things of which they had a perception, and reduced them into doctrine, and called it, 'I have gotten a man Jehovah,' as if they had found out something new; thus that was made a matter of knowledge which before was inscribed on the heart.

355. 'Cain'=faith separated from love, or such a doctrine that faith can be separated.

368. That 'a field'=doctrine, thus whatever is of the doctrine concerning faith and charity. Ill. 2936.

442. Owing to their being of such a genius, these separated doctrines and heresies were much more profound than they are at this day.

464. The Church called 'Enoch' . . . made doctrine from the things revealed and perceived in the Most Ancient Church; which doctrine, although of no use at that time, was preserved for the use of posterity. Tr. 519. 521.

521. Enoch reduced to doctrine that which was perceptive of the Most Ancient Church, which at that time was not permitted; for it is entirely different to know from perception, from what it is to learn from doctrine; they who are in perception have no need to know what they do know through the way of formed doctrine. Examp. . . To those who know from perception, it is given by the Lord to know what is good and true through an internal way; whereas to those who know from doctrine, it is given to know through an external way, or that of the bodily senses; the difference between which is like that between light and darkness. But, as it was foreseen that the perceptive of the Most Ancient Church would perish, and that afterwards they would learn what is good and true by means of doctrines, or by means of darkness would come to the light, it is here said that 'God took him,' that is, that he preserved it for the use of posterity.

530. The names in this chapter=Churches, or, what is the same, doctrines; for the Church is from doctrine, and has its name from it; thus 'Noah'=the Ancient Church, or the doctrine remaining from the Most Ancient one . . .

531. 'To comfort us by our work, and by the pain of our hands out of the ground which Jehovah hath cursed'=doctrine, by which that which was perverted would be restored.

555. That they conjoined the doctrinal things of faith to their cupidities, and thus confirmed themselves in evils and falsities, is signified by 'the sons of God took to themselves wives from the daughters of man.' 570.

557. They who immersed the doctrinal things of faith in their cupidities . . . are 'the giants.'

570. The truths of the Church are doctrinal things, which, as those here treated of had them by traditions from the most ancients, regarded in themselves were truths; wherefore they are called 'the sons of God.'

609. As there was no longer any communication with Heaven . . . of the Lord's Providence, doctrinal things of faith were preserved . . . for the use of this posterity; which doctrinal things were first collected by Cain, and were stored so that they might not be lost, wherefore it said of Cain that a mark was set on him, lest anyone should kill him. . . Afterwards, they were reduced into doctrine by Enoch, which doctrine was of no use at that time, but was for posterity, and therefore it is said that 'God took him.' . . 920⁴.

769. 'The sons of Noah'=doctrinal things. . . For a Church cannot exist without doctrinal things . . .

809^o. Therefore, neither does what is doctrinal make the Church, if that which is doctrinal does not regard charity both in general and in special. In that case charity is the end, and from the end is evident the quality of what is doctrinal as to whether it is of the Church or not.

920⁴. These doctrinal things (collected by Cain) consisted solely in significative things . . .

1065. 'These three sons of Noah'=these three kinds of doctrines, which are those of the Churches in general. There are indeed innumerable kinds of doctrines less universal, but there do not exist any other universal kinds; for they who acknowledge neither charity, faith, nor external worship, are of no Church.

1066. 'By them was the whole earth scattered over'=that thence have been derived all doctrines, both true and false.

1068. 'Noah began to be a man of the ground' = man in general instructed from the doctrinal things of faith.

—². The doctrinal things which the man of the Ancient Church possessed . . . were preserved from the revelations and perceptions of the Most Ancient Church, in which they had faith, as we at this day have in the Word. These doctrinal things were their Word.

1071. The man of this Church had no perception . . . but had to learn what was good and true from doctrinal things of faith collected and preserved from the perception of the Most Ancient Church; which doctrinal things were the Word of that Church. The doctrinal things of faith, like the Word, were in many cases of such a character that without perception they could not be believed; for spiritual and celestial things infinitely transcend human apprehension. 1151. 1152. 1154. 1156.

1141. They who are here called 'sons of Japheth' . . . knew no other doctrinal things except external rites.

1143^e. In the literal sense, the names mentioned here = the peoples who constituted the Ancient Church; but in the internal sense, their doctrinal things.

1145. 'These are the nativities of the sons of Noah' = the derivations of the doctrinal things and worships of the Ancient Church.

1147. 'And sons were born to them' = the doctrinal things thence derived . . . by which are meant both truths and falsities; for such are the doctrinal things of Churches.

1176. The Knowledges of interior things are what are called doctrinal things, and which these also distinguish from rituals. Examp.

1188. 'Nineveh' = the falsities of doctrinal things; and 'Rehoboth' and 'Calah,' the like, from a different origin.

1190. 'Resen between Nineveh and Calah' = that they also formed for themselves doctrinal things of life; and 'Resen' = the false doctrinal things thence derived. . . In the former verse it treated of the falsities of doctrine; here, of the falsities of life.

1196. 'Pathrusim and Casluhim' = the doctrinal things of rituals from a like origin, which are only matters of knowledge.

1198^e. 'The Philistines' . . . cannot do otherwise than pervert even the Knowledges of faith by reasonings therefrom, and thence form for themselves false doctrinal things.

1214. 'The sons of Ham' = the derivations of doctrinal things and worships from corrupt internal worship. . . (For) 'sons' = doctrinal things; and 'Ham,' corrupt internal worship.

1241². The internal things (of the worship of the second Ancient Church) were doctrinal things from the antediluvian time, especially from those who were called 'Enoch,' who collected the perceptive things of the Most Ancient Church, and thence made doctrinal things; these were their Word. 1409².

1280. The first state of the first Ancient Church, that there was one doctrine for all. Tr.

1285. 'The whole earth was of one lip' = that everywhere there was one doctrine in general. 1316.

—². As to the first Ancient Church, which although spread so widely through the world, was one in doctrine in general and in particular, when yet the worships both internal and external were everywhere diverse; as has been shown in the preceding chapter, where by every nation there mentioned is signified a diverse doctrinal and ritual; the case is this. (Ex. by the Heavenly Societies.)

—³. The doctrine is one, when in all there is mutual love, or charity. . . (Then) the varieties of doctrinal things and worships are like the varieties of the senses and viscera in man, which contribute to the perfection of the whole.

1288. 'Their words were one' = that they were one in doctrine in particular. (For) 'lip' = doctrine in general; 'words,' doctrine in particular, or the particulars of doctrine. For the particulars are of no account—nihil faciunt—, as was said, provided they regard one end, which is, to love the Lord above all things, and the neighbour as ourselves; for in this case the particulars belong to the generals.

—². That 'word' = all doctrine concerning charity and thence faith. Ill.

1304. The Church is such that when charity recedes, and the love of self succeeds in its place, the doctrine of faith is of no account, except in so far as it can be turned into the worship of self. . . These are the things which are signified by 'the city and the tower.'

1322. 'So that they may not hear a man the lip of his companion' = . . . not to acknowledge what another teaches, or his doctrine. . . They indeed acknowledge it with the mouth, but not with the heart. (Ex. by the case of the infernal Societies.) The case is the same with such doctrine and worship in the world; they acknowledge what is doctrinal and ritualistic well enough conjointly; but the general principle which holds them together is the worship of self . . .

1324. 'They ceased to build the city' = that such a doctrine was not received . . . From this it is evident, that such a doctrine . . . containing within it the love of self . . . was not permitted with this Ancient Church.

1330. 'These are the nativities of Shem' = the derivations of the second Ancient Church; (for) 'nativities' = the origin and derivation of doctrinal things and of worships.

1346. 'Begat sons and daughters' = doctrinal things which are rituals.

1515. Sirens in the other life seize upon . . . doctrinal things . . . in order to turn them into magic and claim command over others . . . Hence it is evident that what is doctrinal is of no account, unless the man does as it teaches . . . Besides, many are among the infernals who have been pre-eminently skilled in doctrinal things.

1679³. Falsities from adopted principles . . . cannot be so rooted in the voluntary part of man. Such are false or heretical doctrinal things: these commence from an origin outside the will, being from the imbuing of such things from infancy, and afterwards from confirmation in adult age. But as they are false, they cannot do otherwise than produce evils of life. Examp.

[A.] 1798². In a general sense, faith is every doctrinal thing of the Church ; but what is doctrinal separated from love or charity never makes the internal of the Church ; for what is doctrinal is only knowledge, which is of the memory, and exists also with the worst persons, even with the infernals. But what is doctrinal, when it is from charity, or of charity, does make the internal, because this is of the life. The life itself is the internal of all worship, and so is everything doctrinal which flows from the life of charity.

—⁴. These are the commandments of the Decalogue, which are the exterior doctrinal things of faith, and which, with those who are charity and its life, are not known by memory, but are in their hearts.

1799³. What is doctrinal itself does not make the external, still less the internal (of the Church) ; nor does it distinguish Churches with the Lord ; but it is life according to doctrinal things, all of which, when true, regard charity as their fundamental. What is the use of that which is doctrinal, except to teach how a man must be ?

—⁴. See CHURCH at these refs. 1844. 3305⁷. 3310. 3451². 3786². 4468. 4683. 4747². 4837². 4899².

182. By spiritual things, are meant . . . all things which are of faith, thus all doctrinal things ; for these are said to be of faith, although they are not of faith until they are conjoined with charity.

1834². See CHARITY at this ref.

2009⁶. 'Where I made My name dwell at the beginning' = worship, thus the doctrine of true faith.

—¹¹. That 'the name' of God or of the Lord = all the doctrine of faith concerning love and charity, which is signified by 'to believe in His name.' III.

—^e. The reason they say that there is no salvation in any other name than the Lord's, is that there is not in any other doctrine, that is, not in any other thing than mutual love, which is the true doctrine of faith.

2049. The truths of faith are all doctrinal things concerning the eternal life, the Lord's Kingdom, and the Lord.

—³. The law and the Prophets, that is, the universal doctrine of faith with all its Knowledges, consist in love to the Lord and in love towards the neighbour. . . Nevertheless, doctrinal things or the Knowledges of faith are in the highest degree necessary for the formation of the life of charity, which cannot be formed without them.

2116³. The doctrinal things and dogmas of faith are not faith, but are of faith ; for each and all are for the sake of the end that man should become such as they teach, as is evident from the Lord's declaration that in love to God, and in love towards the neighbour, consists all the law and the prophets, that is, the universal doctrine of faith.

2228^e. Faith . . . is charity ; for to this lead all things which are called of the doctrine of faith.

2231. '(Abraham) will command his sons and his house after him, and they shall keep the way of Jehovah, to do justice and judgment' = that from Him is the whole doctrine of charity and faith ; (for) the signification of 'son,' 'house,' 'way,' 'justice,' and 'judgment,' when reduced into one sense = the whole doctrine of charity and faith ; for 'sons' = all who are in truths ; 'house,' all who are in goods ; 'the way,' the doctrine in which they are instructed ; which doctrine concerning good is signified by 'justice,' and concerning truth, by 'judgment ;' the doctrine concerning good is the doctrine of charity, and the doctrine concerning truth is the doctrine of faith. In general, there is only one doctrine, to wit, the doctrine of charity ; for all things of faith regard charity . . .

—³. They then began to distinguish between charity and faith, and to refer to faith all the doctrinal things which belonged to their religion, and to call them by the single term faith . . .

2234. That 'a way' = doctrine (is because) 'a way' is predicated of truths, because truths lead to good, (and therefore) 'a way' = doctrine, because doctrine in one complex comprehends all those things which lead to good, that is, to charity.

2371. 'They said, Is one come to sojourn' = those who are of a different doctrine and a different life ; (for) 'to sojourn' = to be instructed and to live, thus doctrine and life . . . That the good of charity, in consequence of its complete secession from life, is also rejected from doctrine (is here signified).

2382. 'The men who were at the door of the house' = rational things and thence doctrinal things, by which force is put upon the good of charity ; (for) 'men' = rational things ; and 'a door,' introduction or approach, which leads either to truth or to good ; thus what is doctrinal.

2385^e. Then everyone would say, in whatever doctrine, and in whatever external worship he was, This is my brother, I see that he worships the Lord, and is good.

2417. 'Look not behind thee' = that he should not have regard to doctrinal things ; for the city was behind him, and the mountain before. . . What it is to look to doctrinal things, will be shown in what follows ; here, we shall only say what that is which is doctrinal. What is doctrinal is twofold ; first, that which is of love and charity, and secondly, that which is of faith ; every Church of the Lord at its beginning . . . has nothing doctrinal except what belongs to charity, and loves no other, because this is of life ; but the Church successively bends itself from this [kind of] what is doctrinal, beginning to undervalue it, and at last to reject it, and then it acknowledges nothing to be doctrinal except what is called of faith ; and when it separates this from charity, what is doctrinal conspires with a life of evil. (Traced through all the Churches.) Hence it is evident that what is doctrinal is twofold . . . although in itself it is one ; for what is doctrinal of charity involves all things of faith ; but when what is doctrinal is made solely from those things which are of faith, then what is doctrinal is said to be twofold, because faith is separated from charity.

—⁸. As what charity is and what the neighbour is, in such great obscurity, it follows that after what is doctrinal of faith had gained the ascendancy, what is doctrinal of charity was among the things that were lost, although this was the sole one that was cultivated in the Ancient Church . . .

—^e. In order, therefore, that what is doctrinal of charity may be restored, it shall be told in what follows . . . what charity is and what the neighbour.

2418. 'Stay thou not in all the plain' = that he should not delay in any of these (doctrinal things); (for) 'a plain' = the whole of what is doctrinal. III.

2454. 'His wife looked back behind him' = that truth turned itself away from good and looked to doctrinal things . . . (For) 'to look back behind him' = to look to doctrinal things, which are of truth, but not to a life according to doctrinal things, which is of good. Ex.

—⁴. 'Not to return back to take the garments' = not to turn away from good to the truth of what is doctrinal.

—⁵. Truth is said to turn itself away from good and look to doctrinal things, when we no longer have at heart what sort of life makes the man of the Church, but what sort of doctrine; when yet life according to doctrine makes the man of the Church, but not doctrine separated from life; for when doctrine is separated from life, as the good which is of life is laid waste, so is laid waste the truth which is of doctrine, that is, it becomes a statue of salt; as everyone may know who regards doctrine alone, and not life, by seeing whether, although doctrine teaches them, he believes in the resurrection, in Heaven, in Hell, yea, in the Lord, thus in all the other things which are of doctrine.

2496. By Abraham's sojourn in Gerar, where Abimelech was, is signified the Lord's instruction in the doctrinal things of faith. It treats here especially concerning the doctrine of charity and faith, its origin, to wit, that it is spiritual from a celestial origin, and not from a rational one. 2497².

2497. It treats of the state in which the Lord was when He first instructed Himself in the doctrinal things of charity and faith; the state itself is signified by 'Kadesh' and 'Shur'; the doctrine of faith, by 'Abimelech the king of Gerar.'

—^e. That thus doctrine is perfect. Sig.

2500. 'Abraham journeyed towards the land of the south' = a further and more interior progression, which is into goods and truths as to the doctrine of faith; (for) 'land' = the Church, for the sake of which doctrine exists.

2509^e. 'Abimelech' = the doctrine of faith, but the doctrine of faith regarding rational things. 2510, Ex.

2510. In what follows, it treats of the doctrine of faith, as to whether it derives its origin from the Rational or from the Celestial. . . Doctrine is said to regard rational things, when nothing is acknowledged as the truth of doctrine, except what can be apprehended by reason, so that the view of all things which are of doctrine is from the Rational; but that the doctrine of faith is not from a rational, but from a celestial origin, is taught in what follows, in the internal sense.

2511. The things contained in this verse involve the Lord's first thought about the doctrine of faith, as to whether it would be profitable to consult the Rational or not. . . Whatever was human . . . from the mother, He had to put off. . . So also this human thing, as to whether the Rational is to be consulted in the doctrinal things of faith.

2516. (God said to Abimelech) 'Thou shalt die on account of the woman' = that there would be no doctrine of faith if the Rational were to be consulted as to the things therein.

—². The reason there is no doctrine of faith from the Rational, is that the Rational is in the appearances of good and truth, which appearances are not truths in themselves; moreover, the Rational has fallacies under it, arising from external sensuous things confirmed by scientifics, which induce a shade on those appearances of truth. For the most part, the Rational is merely human . . . Hence it is that nothing doctrinal of faith can be begun, still less built, from it; but it must be from the Divine itself and the Divine Human of the Lord. This is its origin, and that so completely, that the Lord is doctrine itself; and therefore, in the Word, He is called 'the Truth,' 'the Light,' 'the Way,' 'the Door;' and, what is an arcanum, everything doctrinal is from the Divine good and the Divine truth, and has in it the heavenly marriage: anything doctrinal which has not this in it is not a genuine doctrinal thing of faith. Hence it is, that in each thing of the Word whence doctrine comes, there is a resemblance of a marriage. It does indeed appear, that the doctrine of faith, in the literal sense of the Word, has many things from the Rational, nay, from the Natural, but this is because the Word is for man, for whom it is thus accommodated; but still, in itself, it is spiritual from a celestial origin, that is, from the Divine truth conjoined with the Divine good.

2517. 'She is married to a husband' = that the doctrine of true faith is spiritual, and the things which are therein are conjoined to the Celestial. . . As 'Sarah' = spiritual Divine truth, the doctrine of true faith itself is also meant by Sarah as a wife; for doctrine is from truths.

2519. 'Abimelech had not approached her' = that in the doctrine of faith rational truth was not consulted in any way. . . The reason the Rational was not consulted in any way . . . is that the doctrinal things of faith are all from the Divine, which is infinitely above the human Rational. . . But as it at first appeared as if the Rational ought to be present . . . this thought at first occurred, whether it should not be simultaneously consulted; but the Lord revealed and replied to Himself, that thus there would be no doctrine. 2530.

2520. 'A righteous nation' = both good and truth; for both are of doctrine.

—². Although the Lord perceived from the Divine, that the doctrine of faith is from a celestial origin only, yet, out of regard for mankind, who receive nothing of which they cannot have some idea from the Rational, it is said, 'Wilt Thou also slay a righteous nation?' by which is signified would the good and truth of doctrine be extinguished? Ex.

2531. In order that it may be further known, how the case is with the doctrine of faith, that it is spiritual from a celestial origin, it is to be known, that it is truth Divine from good Divine, thus wholly Divine. That which is Divine is incomprehensible . . . but still it can flow into man's Rational through the Divine Human . . . and it is there received according to the truths which are there . . . Hence it is evident how important it is that interior truths should be known and received. These truths . . . can only be received by those who are in love or faith in the Lord ; for the Lord is the Divine good, thus He is the Divine truth, and therefore He is doctrine itself ; for whatever is in the doctrine of true faith, regards the Lord . . . That the Lord is doctrine itself as to truth and good, thus that He alone is regarded in doctrine, He teaches in . . . 'I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life;' where 'the Way'=doctrine ; 'the Truth,' everything that is of doctrine ; and 'the Life,' the good itself which is the life of truth.

[A.] 2533. 'And now bring back the man's wife'=that he should restore the spiritual truth of doctrine free from what is rational ; for 'wife'=spiritual truth ; and 'the man,' doctrine itself ; for when Abraham, by whom is represented the Lord in that state, is called 'the man,' he=celestial truth, which is the same as doctrine from a celestial origin . . . And 'Abimelech'=doctrine regarding rational things, or, what is the same, the rational things of doctrine.

—². It was said above, that although in itself the doctrine of faith is Divine, and thus above all human apprehension, even angelic, nevertheless it has been stated in the Word according to the apprehension of man. Ex.

—^o. As the Lord is the Word, He is also doctrine ; for there exists no other doctrine which is Divine doctrine itself.

2534. 'A prophet'=one who teaches, also, abstractedly, the doctrine itself. And as the Lord is doctrine itself, or the Word which teaches, He is called 'a Prophet.' Ill.

2535. '(If thou dost not bring her back,) dying thou shalt die'=that there will be no doctrine of truth and good.

— (Thus the spiritual sense of this verse is,) that the spiritual truth of doctrine was to be restored free from what is rational, and that it was so to be taught and revealed to Him, and thus there would be life in doctrine ; whereas if spiritual truth were not restored free from what is rational, the doctrine of truth and good would be no doctrine of truth and good . . . The case with doctrine is this : In proportion as there is anything human, that is, sensuous, scientific, or rational, from which it is believed so to be, in the same proportion there is no doctrine ; whereas, in proportion as what is sensuous, scientific, and rational is removed, that is, in proportion as it is believed without them, in the same proportion doctrine lives ; for in the same proportion what is Divine flows in : it is the things proper to the human which hinder the influx and the reception . . .

2543^o. How great the Lord's aversion was, is evident from the zeal . . . which zeal was for doctrine, that it might be uncontaminated by everything rational and scientific.

2545. 'Abimelech called Abraham and said to him'=the Lord's thought from the doctrine of faith. 2550.

2546. Self-reproof . . . because what is rational and scientific wanted to rise up and enter, and thus have something in common in the doctrine of faith, which is Divine. Sig.

2547. 'Thou hast brought upon me and upon my kingdom a great sin'=that thus the doctrine of faith and all doctrinal things were in danger.

2553. Man cannot apprehend anything doctrinal that is purely spiritual and celestial, that is, Divine ; because it infinitely transcends his apprehension, thus also his faith ; all man's thoughts are terminated in natural things . . . Wherefore, if doctrinal things were expounded before man in any other way, they would not be received at all . . .

2568. It was said above that there would be no doctrine if what is rational were consulted . . . But it is said here that the doctrine of faith was enriched with goods and truths both rational and natural. At first sight this may appear contradictory, but it is not so. How the case was with the Lord has been told ; but how it is with man, shall be told. With man, it is one thing to regard the doctrine of faith from rational things, and quite a different thing to regard rational things from the doctrine of faith. (See the whole of this important passage quoted under BELIEVE, at A.2568, and —³ ; and under BEGINNING, at 2568⁴.)

2571. 'Abimelech said, Behold my land is before thee'=the Lord's perception concerning the doctrine of love and charity . . . (For 'land,' here, =the doctrine of love and charity . . . which is the doctrine of the Church ; and which, here, is the land of Abimelech ; for by 'Abimelech' as a king, is signified the doctrine of faith . . . but by his 'land,' whence and where he was, the doctrine of love and charity, whence and where faith is.

—². The reason why the Lord's thought was hitherto about the doctrine of faith, but now about the doctrine of love and charity. Ex.

—^o. This is the reason why the doctrine of love and charity is now mentioned for the first time, although, regarded in itself, the doctrine of faith is the same thing . . . Hence it is that the doctrine of love and charity is the Divine doctrine itself, and that which was cultivated in the Most Ancient Churches ; and as this made one with the doctrine of faith, they rejected those who separated them.

2572. 'Dwell in that which is good in thine eyes'= . . . in the proximate sense, that He was in the good of doctrine ; (for) 'the eyes'=the Intellectual, which is of doctrine.

—². There exist the good and the truth of doctrine ; the good of doctrine is love and charity, the truth of doctrine is faith ; they who are in the good of doctrine, that is, in love and charity, are in the truth of doctrine, that is, in faith. But it is one thing to be in good . . . and another thing to be in the good of doctrine : little children . . . are in good, but not in the good of doctrine, and therefore not in the truth of doctrine . . . But those are in the good of doctrine who have been regenerated through the truths of faith . . .

—³. Such also is the case with those who are in the good of doctrine, relatively to those who are in the truth of doctrine separated from good, although the latter suppose that they see further than the former ; but still they see nothing of good, nor anything of truth except very slightly and superficially, and this defiled with falsities.

2581. 'God healed Abimelech'=the soundness of doctrine as to good. . . His wife also is said to be healed, by which is signified the soundness of doctrine as to truth.

2583. 'And his maid-servants'=as to the affections of the doctrinal things thence derived.

2584. 'And they brought forth'=fertility . . . as to the things which are of doctrine.

—³. That 'God healed Abimelech, his wife, and his maid-servants, and they brought forth;' and that 'in shutting up Jehovah had shut up every womb of the house of Abimelech, on account of the word of Sarah, the wife of Abraham'=what is the state of the doctrine of faith when it is regarded from truths Divine, and what it is when it is regarded from what is rational, to wit, that when it is regarded from truths Divine, that is, from the Word, each and all things, both rational and scientific, confirm; but when regarded from human things, that is, from reason and knowledge, nothing of good and nothing of truth is conceived; for to look at it from the Word is to look at it from the Lord; whereas to look at it from reason and knowledge, is to look at it from man; from the former come all intelligence and wisdom; from the latter, all insanity and folly. 2586. 2588², Examps.

2586. All the conception of doctrine is from good as a father, whereas its birth is from truth as a mother.

2588. It here treats of the doctrine of faith, concerning which the Lord thought in His childhood, as to whether it was allowable to enter into it by means of rational things, and so form for Himself ideas concerning it . . . But He perceived from the Divine that this ought not to be done . . .

—². How the case is with the doctrinal things of faith in men, was told at 2568. . . They who are in the affirmative, that is, who believe that things are true because the Lord has said so, are continually being confirmed by means of rational things, scientific, and even sensuous things . . . for man has light from no other source than by means of rational things and matters of knowledge . . . With these, doctrine thus in living lives, and it is said of them that they 'are healed,' and that they 'bring forth;' but with the former, doctrine 'in dying dieth,' and it is said of them that 'shutting up, the womb is shut up.'

—¹⁰. Those who by means of scientific and rational things want to enter into the doctrinal things of faith and into Divine things, and who consequently become insane, are treated of in (many passages here quoted).

2613. On human rational things adjoined to the doctrine of faith which in itself is Divine. Tr.

2614. Doctrine, with these things adjoined, is 'Beersheba.'

2679. '(Hagar) went and wandered in the wilderness of Beersheba'=an erratic state (before reformation) in the doctrinal things of faith. See 2671.

2682³. But they who are being regenerated, think much about doctrine and life . . . and therefore if truth is lacking . . . they grieve at heart. Sig.

2686³. 'Wheels'=the doctrine (of natural truths).

2691^e. The Spiritual of man is born from the affection of the Knowledges of truth from doctrine . . .

2702. 'A fountain'=the Word, also doctrine from the Word, consequently, also, truth itself. Ill.

—³. The doctrine in which there are no truths is called 'a pit,' but a pit in which there is no water. Ill.

—¹⁵. '(The waters) descending into the plain'=doctrinal things which are of the Rational.

2704. They who come out of vastation . . . are easily imbued with truths . . . they who are on earth, from the Word of the Lord, or from doctrine . . .

2709. The truths by which the man of the Spiritual Church defends himself, and about which he debates, are from the doctrine which he acknowledges. That the spiritual man was formerly called 'a shooter,' and 'an archer;' and doctrine, 'a bow' and 'quiver;' and the truths of doctrine, or rather doctrinal things, 'missiles,' 'darts,' and 'arrows.' Ill.

2710. The state of the Spiritual Church is relatively obscure, and is one of combat; because the man of the Spiritual Church knows truth from no other source than doctrine; not from good itself, like the celestial man.

2718. By knowledges . . . are meant all . . . that he can imbue from doctrine, etc.

2719. It now treats of the doctrine of faith that will be of service to the Spiritual Church, to wit, that human rational things from scientific were adjoined to it, which are 'Abimelech' and 'Phicol.' . . . (For) the Spiritual Church would not comprehend doctrine without them, and therefore would not receive it. . . The man of the Spiritual Church is relatively in obscurity, wherefore doctrine is to be invested with such appearances as are of human thought and affection, and are not so discordant as that the Divine good cannot possess therein a kind of receptacle.

2720⁴. 'Abraham reproved Abimelech'=the Lord's indignation; 'by reason of a well of water which the servants of Abimelech had seized'=the doctrine of faith, which scientifics wanted to attribute to themselves.

—⁶. 'And Abraham took flock and herd, and gave to Abimelech'=Divine goods implanted in the rational things of doctrine.

—⁷. 'That I have dug this well'=that doctrine is from the Divine.

— 'Therefore he called that place Beersheba'=the state and quality of doctrine.

—⁸. 'And they struck a covenant in Beersheba'=that human rational things were adjoined to the doctrine of faith.

—^e. 'And Abimelech arose, and Phicol the prince of his army, and returned to the land of the Philistines'=that still they had no part in doctrine.

2722. '(Abraham) planted a grove in Beersheba'=the doctrine thence derived with its Knowledges and its quality.

—^e. When predicated of the Spiritual Church, 'trees'=Knowledges, because the man of the Spiritual Church has no perceptions except those through Knowledges from doctrine or the Word.

2723. 'Beersheba'=the state and quality of doctrine, to wit, that it is Divine to which are adjoined human rational things . . . (For) 'well' = the doctrine of faith; and 'oath' = conjunction. Ill. 2767.

[A.2726.] 'Abraham sojourned in the land of the Philistines many days' = that the Lord adjoined to the doctrine of faith very many things from the knowledge of human Knowledges.

2762². The doctrine of faith is the same as the understanding of the Word as to interior things, or the internal sense.

2831². Hence men can have conscience from any doctrine whatever . . .

2858. 'They went together to Beersheba' = progression into the doctrine of charity and of faith, which was Divine, and to which were adjoined human rational things.

2859. 'Abraham dwelt in Beersheba' = that the Lord is that doctrine itself. . . 'To dwell in Beersheba' = to be in doctrine, but when predicated of the Lord, it = to be doctrine. . . That the Lord is the Word is known, thus the Lord is doctrine; for all doctrine is from the Word. All the doctrine in the Word is from the Lord, and is about the Lord; in the internal sense nothing is treated of but the Lord and His Kingdom . . . and everything of doctrine in the Word, as to man, is to worship Him, and to love Him.

2913. The doctrinal things (of the Ancient Church) were all of charity or life; they who cultivated the doctrinal things of faith were called 'Canaanites,' and were separated from the rest of the inhabitants of the Land of Canaan.

2973. Exterior Knowledges are those of the ritual and doctrinal things of the external Church; interior Knowledges are those of the doctrinal things of the internal Church.

2982. In ancient times there were many Churches all at once, and they all differed as at this day as to doctrinal things; but still they made one in this, that they acknowledged love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour as the chief and as the essential thing; and thus doctrinal things were not for them to think by, but to live by . . .

—². Doctrinal things are for the sake of life . . . What are doctrinal things except for the sake of an end, and what is the end but the life . . .

3052^e. Scientific and doctrinal things are distinguished from each other by the fact, that doctrinal things are from scientific; the former regard use, and are procured by reflection from scientific.

3057². A holy arrangement of general knowledges, and then at the same time a removal from doctrinal things, to receive the truths of faith. Sig.

—⁴. (For) while general scientific are being arranged, doctrinal things are removed; for these are conclusions from scientific; for there flows in through the Rational as it were a dictate that this is true, and that that is not true . . . There exists no other influx as to truths; doctrinal things are indeed present before, but they are not doctrinal things before they are believed; they are only scientific; wherefore, when the man thinks about them, no conclusion is drawn from them, but it is drawn from other things about them. This is what is meant by removal from doctrinal things . . . But this state is what is called an obscure one, and is here signified by 'the time of evening.' When, however, doctrinal things have been confirmed, so as to be believed, then comes the morning, or a lucid state.

3077. 'Rebekah came out' = the affection of truth from doctrinal things . . . because she came out of the city. . . Truths also are from doctrinal things. —^e.

3079². 'A clean vessel' = a concordant external, thus the things which are in the external, which are scientific, Knowledges, and doctrinal things.

3091. The submission of the recipients . . . is, that doctrinal things, Knowledges, and scientific, which are recipients, apply themselves.

3102². Every truth which is elevated out of the natural man, that is, out of scientific, or out of Knowledges and doctrinal things, for these are of the natural man . . .

3161². Man becomes rational by means of scientific, to wit, by means of Knowledges of many genera and species, the first of which are means to those which follow next in order; and so on in order to the last ones, which are Knowledges of the spiritual things of the Lord's Kingdom, and are called doctrinal things. That these are learned partly from the doctrine of faith, partly immediately from the Word, and thence partly from one's own study, is known. So long as these doctrinal things are only in the memory, they are only scientific truths, and are not as yet appropriated to the man as his own; but they are for the first time appropriated to him, when he begins to love them for the sake of life, and still more so when he applies them to life . . .

3167^e. Natural truth is (then) everything doctrinal and scientific which has wisdom for its end . . .

3182. Truth is separated when man no longer regards good from truth, but truth from good; or, what is the same, when he no longer regards life from doctrine, but doctrine from life. Examp.

3203². Spiritual truths at first are scientific; for when doctrinal things are learned and inserted in the memory, they are nothing else; but they are successively called out thence by the Lord, and implanted in the life . . . until at last he no longer acts from what is doctrinal or truth, but from charity or good.

3240². As there are two classes of the spiritual, to wit, those who are more in good, and those who are more in truth, they have two kinds of doctrinal things, to wit, the doctrinal things of charity and the doctrinal things of faith; the doctrinal things of charity for those who are in the good of faith, and are here signified by 'the sons of Jokshan;' and the doctrinal things of faith for those who are in the truth of faith, and are signified by 'the sons of Midian.' 'Sheba' and 'Dedan' are they who constitute the first class, that is, those in the Spiritual Kingdom who are in the good of faith, and who have doctrinal things of charity. Hence it is that by 'Sheba' and 'Dedan' are signified the Knowledges of celestial things, or what is the same thing, those who are in the Knowledges of celestial things, that is, who are in the doctrinal things of charity; for doctrinal things are Knowledges.

3241³. (In the Spiritual Church) each remains in that doctrinal matter, and calls it truth, which belongs to his Church . . .

— . As there are dissensions about the most essential thing of all, it is evident that the varieties and differences of doctrinal things are innumerable . . . but notwithstanding there being so many varieties and differences of doctrinal things, or so many derivations, they nevertheless all together form one Church, when all acknowledge charity as the essential of the Church . . .

3242. The life of faith remains, but not the doctrine of faith, except in proportion as it makes one with the life.

—². ‘The dromedaries of Midian and Ephah’ = doctrinal things; the doctrinal things of good are ‘gold’; the doctrinal things of truth are ‘frankincense’; both are ‘the praises of Jehovah.’

3243. ‘All these are the sons of Keturah’ = as to the doctrinal things and the worships thence derived; (for) ‘sons’ = truths and doctrinal things. . . As the worship of the Spiritual Kingdom is according to doctrinal things, ‘the sons of Keturah’ = doctrinal things, and also the worships thence derived.

3263³. (‘Ishmaelites’ = those who are) as to life in simple good, and as to doctrine in natural truth.

3266. ‘These are the names of the sons of Ishmael’ = the qualities of the doctrinal things of the spiritual.

3268¹⁰. The doctrinal and ritual things of the Ancient Church were various, but still there was one Church, because they did not make faith but charity the essential thing.

3270. The external things of the Church are rituals; the internal things are doctrinal things, when these are not a matter of mere knowledge, but of life.

3305. ‘They called his name Jacob’ = the doctrine of natural truth. . . (for) that which is represented by Jacob is the doctrine of natural truth. 3324.

— . There are two things which constitute the Natural . . . one of life, the other which constitute the doctrine; that which is of life is of the will, that which is of doctrine is of the understanding . . .

3309. From these (scientific truths) there may afterwards be learned and apprehended truths still more interior, which are called doctrinal things, and which are signified by ‘a man of the field.’

—². ‘Hunters’ = those who teach from scientific truths, and also from doctrinal things.

3310. ‘A man of the field’ = the good of life from doctrinal things.

—³. With the good of life from doctrinal things . . . the case is this: they who are being regenerated, first do good from doctrinal things; for they do not know what good is from themselves, but learn it from the doctrinal things of love and charity . . . But afterwards, when they are regenerate, they do not do good from doctrinal things, but from love and charity; for they are then in the good itself which they have learned through doctrinal things. Examp.

—⁴. This also is the case with spiritual truths, which are called doctrinal things, and are still more interior commandments; for doctrinal things are the interior truths which are for the natural man. The first truths are sensuous, the second are scientific, the interior are doctrinal; these latter truths are founded upon scientific truths, inasmuch that man can have and retain no idea, notion, or conception of them except from scientifics . . . Thus they succeed in order with man; wherefore, until man is in adult age, and, through sensuous and scientific truths, is in doctrinal things, he cannot be regenerated; for he cannot be confirmed in the truths of doctrinal things except by means of ideas from scientific and sensuous things . . .

3314. ‘Rebekah loved Jacob’ = that the Divine truth of the Divine Rational loved the doctrine of truth.

3316. ‘Jacob boiled pulse’ = a mass of doctrinal things. (For) ‘Jacob’ = the doctrine of natural truth, thus the doctrinal things which are in the natural man; and ‘pulse’ = a mass of such things.

—². The first state of the man who is being regenerate . . . is, that in . . . his memory there are amassed the doctrinal things of truth, without any fixed order. The doctrinal things which are therein may be compared to some undigested and uncompounded mass, and to a kind of chaos . . . These are not reduced into order by themselves, but by the good which flows into them . . . When good first longs for them, in order to conjoin them with itself, it manifests itself under the appearance of the affection of truth. This is what is signified by Esau saying to Jacob, ‘Cause me to sup I pray of the red, this red.’ 3318. 3320.

3324. It treats (here) of the right of priority, as to whether it belongs to . . . the doctrine of truth, or to the life of good . . .

3325. ‘Sell as to-day thy birthright to me’ = that as to time the doctrine of truth was apparently prior.

—¹¹. In the Spiritual Church, at the beginning . . . the doctrine of truth is the firstborn with the external Church, and the truth of doctrine with the internal Church; or, what is the same thing, the doctrine of faith is the firstborn with the external Church, and faith itself with the internal.

— . The Church then no longer studies life, but doctrine; and when this takes place, it casts itself into shades . . . This was represented by Cain . . . by Ham . . . by Reuben . . . and by Pharaoh and the Egyptians . . .

3330. ‘He sold his birthright to Jacob’ = that the priority was meanwhile conceded to the doctrine of truth.

3332. ‘Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles’ = the good of life endowed with the good of truth, and the good of doctrinal things. . . That Jacob gave these to Esau = that these goods exist through the doctrine of truth.

—². Here is described . . . how the case is with the spiritual man when he is being regenerated, to wit, that he first learns the doctrinal things of truth; then, that he is affected with them, which is the good of doctrinal things; afterwards, that by looking into doctrinal things he is affected with the truths which are in them, which is the good of truth; at last, that he wills to live according to them, which is the good of life. Thus does the spiritual man, when being regenerated, advance from the doctrine of truth to the good of life. But when he is in the good of life, the order is inverted; and from this good he regards the good of truth; and from this the good of doctrinal things; and from this the doctrinal things of truth.

[A.3332]². The good of life is what flows forth from the will; the good of truth, from the understanding; the good of doctrinal things, from knowledge; what is doctrinal is that which contains these goods.

3336³. See AFFECTION at this ref.

3357. How appearances of truth of three degrees were adjoined to truth Divine, in order that truths and their doctrinal things might be received. Tr.

3364². It treats here about the Lord, that all the doctrinal things of faith are from His Divine; for there does not exist any doctrinal thing, not the least of it, which is not from the Lord; for the Lord is doctrine itself. Hence it is that the Lord is called 'the Word,' because the Word is doctrine. But as everything that is in the Lord is Divine, and what is Divine cannot be apprehended by any created thing, the doctrinal things which are from the Lord, in so far as they appear before created things, are not truths purely Divine, but are appearances of truth; yet still in the appearances there are truths Divine . . .

3365. 'Isaac went to Abimelech the king of the Philistines, to Gerar'=the doctrinal things of faith. . . (For) 'Abimelech'=the doctrine of faith looking to rational things; 'the king of the Philistines'=doctrinal things. . . and 'Gerar'=faith. Hence (the above words) =that from the Lord comes the doctrine of faith which looks to rational things; or, what is the same thing, the doctrinal things of faith.

—². All those things are called doctrinal things which are of doctrine, and which, in so far as they can be received and acknowledged in Heaven by the Angels, and on earth by men, are said to look to rational things; for it is the Rational which receives and acknowledges them. But the Rational . . . can never apprehend Divine things . . . therefore truths Divine are presented by the Lord before the Rational by means of appearances. Hence it is, that doctrinal things are nothing but appearances of truths Divine, or nothing but celestial and spiritual vessels, in which is what is Divine; and as what is Divine is in them . . . they affect. Hence the conjunction of the Lord with Angels and men. 3368.

3368². Whether you say rational things enlightened by the Divine, or appearances of truth, or celestial and spiritual truths such as are in (Heaven and the Church), it is the same thing: the same are also called doctrinal things, but this from the truths which are in them.

3385. It here treats of the reception of (the appearances of truth), first by those who are in the doctrinal things of faith, and are here meant by 'the men of the place,' or of Gerar; and who belong to the first class of those who are called the spiritual.

3387. The internal sense of these words is, that if truths Divine themselves were to be opened, they would not be received by those who are in the doctrinal things of faith, because they surpass all their apprehension, thus all their faith . . . Examp.

3388. It here treats of those who are in the doctrinal things of faith, and who have no perception of truth from good, but only a conscience of truth . . . With these, the first of the confirmation of truth is, that it is called Divine, for they then at once have an idea of what is holy, which gives a universal confirmation to each and all things that are said, and this although they do not apprehend them; but still the things which are said must be adapted to their apprehension . . .

3391. 'Abimelech the king of the Philistines looked forth through a window, and saw'=the doctrine of faith looking to the rational things in Knowledges.

3393. 'And Abimelech called Isaac and said'=the Lord's perception from doctrine. . . (For) as 'Abimelech' =that doctrine in which what is Divine was now perceived, he=the Lord as to that doctrine; for each and all things in the Word in the supreme sense relate to the Lord; and the Lord is doctrine itself, that is, the Word . . .

3412². In the Ancient Church, and afterwards, those were called 'Philistines' who studied life little, but doctrine much . . . consequently, who made nothing of the doctrinal things of charity, which in the Ancient Church were the whole of doctrine, and thus obliterated them, whereas they cried up the doctrinal things of faith in their stead, and in these placed the whole of religion . . . and therefore, they, pre-eminently, were called 'the uncircumcised;' for by 'the uncircumcised' were signified all who were not in charity, however much they might be in doctrinal things.

3413². On the approach of the light of truth from the Lord, they who are in doctrine alone, and not in life, are completely darkened and amazed . . .

3417. 'He encamped in the valley of Gerar'=that the Lord disposed truths that they might also be adapted to the genius and apprehension of those who are not so much in life, but in the doctrinal things of faith. Examp.

3419². As the Ancients were in the representatives and significatives of the Lord's Kingdom, in which there is nothing but celestial and spiritual love, they had doctrinal things which treated only of love to God and charity towards the neighbour; from which also they were called 'the wise.' From these doctrinal things they knew that the Lord was to come into the world, and that Jehovah would be in Him, and that He would make the Human in Himself Divine, and thus would save mankind. From these things they also knew what charity is . . . and what the neighbour is . . . At this day, these doctrinal things are completely destroyed, and in their stead there are the doctrinal things of faith, which the Ancients made comparatively nothing of . . .

— According to these doctrinal things (of charity) is the whole Word as to the sense of the letter, wherefore they who do not know them can never know any interior sense of the Word. Ill.

—^c. That these truths are completely obliterated by those who are in the doctrinal things of faith, and not in the life of charity, that is, by those who are called 'Philistines,' is signified by 'the Philistines stopped up the wells after the death of Abraham.'

3420. Those are in the knowledge of Knowledges who are in the doctrinal things of faith, and do not want to know the truths of Knowledges or of doctrinal things. The truths of Knowledges or of doctrinal things are those things which are of life, and regard charity towards the neighbour and love to the Lord. The doctrine, to which belong the doctrinal things and Knowledges, only teaches these truths; he, therefore, who teaches what is to be done, and does not do it, does not want to know truths . . . It is from these that the doctrinal things of love and charity, which were the whole of doctrine in the Ancient Church, have been obliterated.

3427². They who are in the mere doctrinal things of faith, who are called 'the shepherds of the valley of Gerar' . . . cannot but deny that there is an internal sense of the Word . . .

—⁴. Moreover, they who are in the mere doctrinal things of faith . . . cannot but be in persuasive faith . . .

3436. 'He went up thence to Beersheba' = that thence the doctrine of faith was Divine; (for) 'Beersheba' = the Divine doctrine of faith. The doctrine of faith which is here signified by 'Beersheba' is the literal sense itself of the Word; for the Word is doctrine itself . . .

3445. 'There the servants of Isaac dug a well' = the doctrine thence derived; (for) 'a well' = the Word; and as the Word is doctrine itself, and thus all the doctrine of the Church is from the Word, 'to dig a well,' = the doctrine thence derived, to wit, from the literal sense of the Word, because this is here treated of. But the doctrine itself from the literal sense of the Word is one only doctrine, namely, the doctrine of charity and of love; for this doctrine and a life according to it is the whole Word, as the Lord says.

3447. 'Abimelech went to him from Gerar' = the doctrine of faith looking to rational things. . . It here treats of those who are in the literal sense of the Word, and thence in the doctrinal things of faith; and also of the agreement with the internal sense of the doctrinal things of these persons in so far as they are from the literal sense. . . They are those who make faith the essential thing, and do not indeed reject charity, but set it behind, and thus set doctrine before life. Our Churches at this day are almost all of this character, except that which is in Christian Gentilism . . .

3448. 'Ahusath his companion, and Phicol the general of his army' = the primary things of the doctrine of their faith. . . For 'a general' = primary things; and 'an army' = the doctrinal things themselves. The reason 'an army' = the doctrinal things which are of truth, or which are lower truths . . . (is) that truths or doctrinal things are the things by which spiritual combats are carried on. III.

3451³. If anyone acknowledges as a doctrinal thing that charity is from faith, and lives in charity . . . he is not in truth as to doctrine, but still is in truth as to life.

—⁴. Here, therefore, by 'Abimelech' it treats of those who are in the doctrinal things of faith . . . and of the agreement of their doctrinal things with the internal sense, with whom it is evident that conjunction is effected, but only with those who are in good, that is,

with those, who, although they make faith the essential thing as to doctrine, yet make charity the essential thing as to life.

— (Refs. to passages on the subject of doctrine.)

3452. 'We said, Let there be an oath between us . . . and let us make a covenant with thee' = that, regarded in themselves, the doctrinal things of their faith were not to be denied, to wit, in so far as they are from the literal sense of the Word. . . (For) 'an oath between us' = the agreement of doctrinal things with the literal sense of the Word. . . No doctrinal things whatever, provided they are from the Word, are to be denied; for they are accepted by the Lord, provided he who is in them is in the life of charity; for with this life all things which are of the Word can be conjoined.

3454. The Lord's Divine Human, love to Him, and love towards the neighbour, are the three chief things of the internal sense . . . and they are the internal and holy things of all the doctrinal things which are from the Word. . . A fourth is, that the Word is Divine as to every tittle, thus that the Lord is in the Word. This, too, all confess and acknowledge who have doctrinal things from the Word.

3459. They (who are here represented by Abimelech) confirm themselves in the doctrinal things of faith, and not in any of charity. When they act good, it is from the doctrinal things of faith; and the good thence is what is called the good of truth. With those who are in this good, the Lord conjoins Himself, but not so much as with those who are in the good of charity.

3462. 'It came to pass in that day' = in the state . . . here, the state of doctrine of which it treats.

3464. 'They said, We have found waters' = that in doctrinal things there are interior truths; for there are interior truths in all the doctrinal things taken from the literal sense of the Word . . . for in each and all things of the Word there is an internal sense, which, also, is in the doctrinal things that are from the Word.

—². With the doctrinal things that are from the literal sense . . . the case is this: that when a man is in them, and at the same time in a life according to them, he has correspondence in himself; for the Angels who are with him are in interior truths while he is in exterior ones; thus, by means of doctrinal things, he has communication with Heaven, but according to the good of his life. Examp.

—³. The Angels dwell with everyone in the affection of his life, thus in that of the doctrinal things according to which he lives. . . But if the life is at variance, as if he is in the affection of gaining honours and wealth by means of doctrinal things, the Angels recede, and the infernals dwell in that affection . . . and then the doctrine of his mouth is only a sound excited and modified by the fire of (the loves of self and of the world).

3466^e. Of interior things is predicated state, which is signified by 'place;' but of exterior things is predicated doctrine, which is signified by 'city;' for all doctrine has its state and its quality from its interior things.

3494. The affection of truth, and thence the doctrine of truth, is what is called 'the younger son.'

3502^e. The Natural is not . . . regenerated except by means of doctrinal things or Knowledges of good and truth; the celestial man, by the Knowledges of good first, but the spiritual man, by the Knowledges of truth first. Doctrinal things or Knowledges of good and truth cannot be communicated to the natural man, thus cannot be conjoined and appropriated, except by means of delightful and pleasant things accommodated thereto; for they are insinuated through an external or sensuous way.

[A.] 350^{8e}. The vessels which receive good and truth from the Rational are the truths themselves of the Natural, which are nothing but scientifics, Knowledges, and doctrinal things.

353⁹. Even in the other life, man has the things which belong to the external man, to wit, natural affections, and also doctrinal things, even scientifics; in a word, all things which belong to the exterior or natural memory; for these are the planes in which his interior things are terminated. According to the way, therefore, in which these things are disposed, do the interior things become when they flow in; for they are modified therein.

—⁶. The first state of the reformation of the good, is that the truth of doctrine appears to them to be in the first place, and the good of life in the second; for from truth they act good; whereas their second state is that the good of life is in the first place, and the truth of doctrine in the second; for from good they act good, that is, from the will of good; and, when this takes place, as the will is conjoined with the understanding as in a marriage, the man is regenerate.

354⁰. 'If in pledging thou shalt pledge the garment of thy companion, thou shalt restore it to him before the sun goes down, because this alone is his covering, this is his garment for a skin in which he will lie down' . . . =that companions are not to be defrauded of external truths, which are the doctrinal things according to which they live, and rituals . . .

357⁶. See DESIRE—desiderare—at this ref.

360³. They do indeed know from revelation that . . . the doctrinal things which are from the Word are true, but, as they do not live according to them, they have no perception of that good and truth, but only Knowledges separated therefrom.

—³. In his first age, man knows only by memory the things that are in the Word, in like manner the things which are in the doctrinal things of faith; and he believes himself to be good when he knows many things from this source, and can apply them, not to his own life, but to that of others. In his second age, when he is more grown up, he is not content merely to know by memory the things which are in the Word and in doctrinal things, but begins to reflect upon them from his own thought, and in proportion as he adds something over and above from what is his own, it is pleasing to him . . . But in the third age, if he is one of those who can be regenerated, he begins to think about use, and then begins to reflect upon those things which he reads in the Word and draws from doctrinal things for the sake of use; and when he is in this state, the order is inverted, to wit, truth is no longer set so much in the first place. And in the fourth age, which is the age of his regeneration . . . he loves the Word and the doctrinal things which are from the Word, that is, truth, for the sake of the good of life, and therefore from the good of life.

361². If man first knew good and truth from doctrine conjoined with life, or from life conjoined with doctrine, he would know and apperceive innumerable things concerning good and truth. Des.

368^{0e}. All truths are Knowledges of good: the truths which are not from good, or which do not regard good as the end, are not truths; but in so far as they regard doctrine, they are called Knowledges of truth.

369⁰. 'Jacob went forth from Beersheba' = life more remote from Divine doctrinal things. . . Life is said to be more remote from them when it is in external truths, and when it is carried on according thereto, as is the life of early childhood and youth with those who are being regenerated. . . All the historical things of the Word are truths more remote from Divine doctrinal things themselves, yet are of service to little children and youths, as means to introduce them by degrees into the more interior doctrinal things of truth and good, and at last to the Divine ones themselves. . . How far these things are remote from Divine doctrinal things, may be evident from the following example. He who at first only knows that God descended upon Mount Sinai, and gave tables to Moses on which were inscribed the ten commandments, and that Moses broke them, and that God afterwards wrote like things on other tables; when delighted merely with this historical matter, is in the life of external truth, remote from Divine doctrinal things. Afterwards, when he begins to be delighted and affected with these commandments . . . and lives according to them, he is then in the life of truth, but is even yet remote from the Divine doctrinal things themselves; for his life according to them is only moral life . . . But he who is being regenerated, is by degrees led from this . . . moral life into a life nearer to the Divine doctrinal things, that is, into a spiritual life; (and then he comes into the internal sense of the commandments,) and when he who is being regenerated is in these truths, and in a life according to them, he is in Divine doctrinal things, and is then in an angelic state.

370⁹. 'In thee shall all the families of the ground be blessed' = that all the truths of the good of doctrine shall be conjoined with good. . . (For) 'ground' = that which is of the Church, consequently, the doctrine of good and truth in the natural man, which is here represented by 'Jacob.'

371². 'And I will bring thee back to this ground' = conjunction with Divine doctrine. . . (For) 'ground' . . . here, = Divine doctrine, because by the sojourning of Jacob with Laban are represented the intercedent means by which the Lord made His Natural Divine; and by the return of Jacob to the Land of Canaan is represented the end of these intercedent means, to wit, that He had made the Natural Divine. . . Divine doctrine is Divine truth, and Divine truth is the whole Word of the Lord. Divine doctrine itself is the Word in the supreme sense, in which it treats only of the Lord; thence Divine doctrine is the Word in the internal sense, in which it treats of the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens and on earth. Divine doctrine is also the Word in the literal sense, in which it treats of those things which are in the world and upon earth ; for, as the literal sense contains within it the internal sense, and this the supreme, and completely corresponds by means of representatives and significatives, therefore, also, the doctrine thence derived is Divine.

3726². Hence it is that man ought to commence from scientifics, which are the truths of the natural man ; and afterwards from doctrinal things, which are the truths of the spiritual man in his Natural. Ex.

3767. 'Behold there three droves of a flock lying down near it'=the holy things of Churches and of doctrinal things. . . (For) 'the droves of a flock'=the things which are of the Church, thus doctrinal things . . . (for) in general, 'a flock'=all who are in good, thus all who belong to the Lord's Church in the whole world ; and as all these are introduced into good and truth by means of doctrinal things, 'a flock'=doctrinal things. Ex.

—^e. The droves of the flock are said to be lying down 'near a well' because doctrinal things are from the Word.

3769. The Word is said to be shut up, when it is understood only as to the sense of the letter, and everything therein is taken for what is doctrinal ; and it is still more shut up, when those things are acknowledged for doctrinal things which favour the cupidities of the love of self and of the world . . .

3770. 'They collected thither all the droves'=that all Churches and their doctrinal things are from the Word.

3772. 'They gave the flock to drink'=that doctrine is (from the Word).

3773. When any Church is being established, the Word is at first shut up to them, but is afterwards unclosed . . . and then they learn that all doctrine is founded upon these two commandments, that the Lord is to be loved above all things, and the neighbour as themselves.

3786. 'It is not time to gather together the small cattle'=that the goods and truths of Churches and of doctrinal things are not yet in one.

—². So it is with the Church when it is being established ; first, the doctrinal things of good and truth must be in a one ; for these are what the Church is built upon ; doctrinal things also have a connection together, and mutually regard each other ; wherefore, unless they are first in a one, there will be something defective, and the things which are lacking will have to be supplied from the Rational of man . . . Therefore the Word has been given to the Church, in which are all the doctrinal things of good and truth. The case in this respect with the Church in general is the same as it is with a man who is being regenerated in particular . . . and that with a man there ought first to be the doctrinal things of good and truth, before he is being regenerated, was stated above.

3843². No longer from knowledge or doctrine, but from a certain delight . . .

—^e. Hence it is evident, that even the interior truths of doctrine are not conjoined with man until they are of the life.

3849. Hence it is, that nothing which is of doctrine, nor even anything which is of knowledge, can enter man, except by means of affections ; for there is life in affections ; but not in truths of doctrine and of knowledge without them.

3856. 'He opened (Leah's) womb'=that doctrines of Churches were thence derived ; (for) 'to open the womb,' or to conceive and bear—to become the Church ; and as this is effected by means of doctrinal things, 'to open the womb'=the doctrines of Churches.

3857. 'Rachel was barren'=that interior truths were not received. . . (For) 'barren'=that doctrines were not thence derived, and thus not Churches. . . The reason interior truths are not received . . . is that they are not according to external appearances, or the fallacies of the senses . . . For example, it is an interior truth that time and space do not exist in the other life, but state in their stead ; (but) unless the states which exist in the other life were described to man by means of (the things of) time and space, he would perceive nothing . . . Thus the doctrine would be barren, and therefore there would be no Church.

—⁵. This may be evident from the Churches which existed in ancient times, and from their doctrinal things, to wit, that their doctrinal things were formed from external truths . . .

3863. When a man is being regenerated or becoming a Church, he first learns those things which are of faith, that is, which are of spiritual truth ; for he is introduced by means of the doctrine of faith or of truth ; for man is such that he does not know from himself what heavenly good is, but this he learns from the doctrine which is called the doctrine of faith. All the doctrine of faith regards life as the end, and as it regards life, it regards good.

3880. 'She said, This time I will confess Jehovah,' in the external sense, = doctrine from the Word ; (for) confession is nothing but a declaration of one's faith before the Lord, thus it comprehends in itself the things which the man believes, and therefore the things which to him are doctrine.

3899. It now treats (in Matt.xxiv.) of the state of the Church such as it then is as to doctrine in general, and with those in special who are in holy external worship, but in profane internal worship.

3900. 'Then, if anyone shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there, believe it not'=an exhortation that they should beware of their doctrine. 'Christ'=the Lord as to Divine truth, thus as to the Word, and as to doctrine from the Word ; here, the contrary, to wit, Divine truth falsified, or the doctrine of what is false.

—². 'For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets'=the falsities of that doctrine.

3952⁴. The truths of the external man are scientifics and doctrinal things . . . With those who are in the love of self and of the world . . . scientifics and even doctrinal things are conjoined with delights, but they are the delights of their loves, with which even truths can be conjoined.

3993¹³. That there are evils and falsities to which goods and truths can be adjoined, may be evident from the fact that there are so many diverse dogmas and doctrinal things, many of which are quite heretical, and yet in every one there are some who are saved.

[A.]424⁵. They who think much about doctrinal things, but not about the goods of charity . . . can never know, still less perceive, that the truth which is of faith must be subordinated to the good which is of charity.

4249³. He speaks differently when he is speaking from what is doctrinal of faith . . . for he believes from this feeling, and not from what is doctrinal, when yet what is doctrinal is true and the feeling fallacious.

4266. 'Droves' = scientifics, also Knowledges, thus doctrinal things. So long as these are in the natural man, that is, in his memory, and are not yet implanted in the spiritual man, they are signified by 'the droves given into the hand of his servants.'

4269². Man acts from charity when he lives according to the truths of faith, and loves doctrine for the sake of life.

4270^e. Reuben represented faith in the understanding, or doctrine, which is the first thing of regeneration ; or, in the complex, the truth of doctrine by means of which man arrives at the good of life (4731) : and 'Gad' represented the works of faith. These two things, the truths of faith or doctrinal things, and the works of faith which are first exercised, are those by means of which the man who is being regenerated is insinuated into good.

4301². Truth is in obscurity ; for men call that truth which they have learned from doctrinal things, and that good which is done according to this truth.

4319. This Christians know from what is doctrinal from the Word . . . but few believe it. —².

4335. 'To take the mill, and grind flour' = to hatch doctrinal things from truths which they pervert.

—⁴. 'Mills' = doctrinal things ; and 'a millstone,' the truths of doctrinal things.

4390². These two things (truth and good), include in general all things which are of doctrine and which are of life ; truths, all things which are of doctrine, and goods, all things which are of life.

4433. These truths (which were the internal of the statutes, judgments, and laws of the Ancients) were their doctrinal things according to which they lived ; in fact, they were the doctrinal things of charity ; for in the ancient time there were no other doctrinal things for those who belonged to the genuine Church. Relatively to doctrine, the same may be called the interior truths of faith, but goods, relatively to life.

4459². They who are in externals . . . affirm that there is what is internal, because they know from doctrine that it exists, but they affirm it 'from fraud.'

4468. 'We shall be for one people' = as to doctrine, also conjunction. 'People' = the truth of the Church, thus doctrine. Thus 'to be for one people' = conjunction by means of doctrine. (See CHURCH at this ref.)

4479. 'These men are peaceful with us' = agreement, here, as to doctrinal things. 'Men' = truths, hence also doctrinal things ; for the truths of the Church collected into one and acknowledged are called doctrinal things.

4481. 'And in trading they let them range through (the Land)' = as to doctrine ; (for these words) = to enter into the Knowledges of good and truth, thus into doctrine ; for this contains and teaches these Knowledges.

4489³. Afterwards, (the Lord taught what was good) by means of the doctrinal things of good and truth . . . Hence the Christian Church.

4493. 'To enter' (a city) = accession to doctrine, and recession from external things. Here the contrary is signified.

4502². 'Into their secret come not my soul, and into their congregation be not united my glory' = disjunction as to life and doctrine ; for 'soul' is predicated of life ; and 'glory' of doctrine.

4606. 'Judah' . . . in the exterior sense, = the doctrine from the Word which belongs to the Celestial Church.

4638³. 'The prudent took oil in their vessels with their lamps' = that they have the good of charity and of love in their truths ; 'vessels' = the doctrinal things of faith.

4642. 'Edom' = the Lord's Divine Human as to natural good, to which are adjoined the doctrinal things of truth, thus as to the Natural and Corporeal ; for doctrinal things are as a body to truth ; or, in a spiritual sense, are the corporeal things of natural truth. . . . The reason doctrine is as a corporeal form to truth, is that in itself doctrine is not truth, but truth is in doctrine as the soul is in its body.

4651. The doctrinal things of good from them, and their rise, state, and quality. Sig. —.

—, 'These are the leaders of Edom' = the chief doctrinal things.

4677². The prophets represented the Lord as to the truths of doctrine ; and as these are of the natural man, they had coats of hair ; for hair = what is natural.

4680². See ANCIENT CHURCH at this ref.

4683. When this Church commences, they preach charity, but only from what is doctrinal, thus from what is scientific . . . and, in process of time . . . they preach faith, and at last . . . faith alone . . . without works . . . which they call the fruits of faith : they do thus conjoin them, but only from doctrine . . . Yet as they plainly know from the Word, and also from their own Intellectual, that doctrine is nothing without life . . . they make saying faith to consist in confidence . . .

4686. 'We were sheaving sheaves in the midst of the field' = teaching from doctrine ; for 'a sheaf' = doctrine. . . . The reason 'a sheaf' = doctrine, is that 'a field' = the Church . . . and the standing corn in a field = the truth in the Church ; thus a sheaf containing that corn = the doctrine in which there is truth. III.

4687. 'Lo, my sheaf arose and stood up' = what is doctrinal concerning the Lord's Divine Human. 4689.

—². With this highest of doctrinal things, the case is this . . .

4689^e. Hence it is evident that at this day it is doctrine which makes the Church, and not life ; and that the fruits which they adjoin to faith, exist only in doctrine, and not at all in their minds. (See CHRISTIAN at this ref.)

4697^a. As 'the stars'=the Knowledges of good and truth, they=the doctrinal things of the Church; for these are Knowledges. Ill.

4700^e. Not from doctrine, but from love . . .

4715. That everything of doctrine regards life, every-one may know from mere natural lumen.

4720. 'Let us go to Dothan'=that they betook themselves from the general to the special things of doctrine; (for) 'Shechem'=the general things of doctrine; and 'Dothan'=the special things of doctrine. Ill.

—³. At its beginning, every Church knows nothing but the general things of doctrine . . . In process of time, it adds the particulars, which are partly things confirmatory of the general things; partly additions, which, however, are not at variance with the general principle; and also explanatory things which draw what is openly contradictory to their side, so that they may not go contrary to what common sense dictates. All these things, however, are the special things of false principles; for all the things of every doctrine mutually regard each other as it were in a kind of society; and are conjoined as it were in relationship by blood and by marriage, acknowledging a general principle as their father. Hence it is evident that, when the general principle is false, they are all flavoured with falsity.

4723. There are two essentials which constitute the Church, and thence two principal things of doctrine; one, that the Lord's Human is Divine, the other, that love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour make the Church . . . As these are the primary things of Divine truth, they are represented by 'Joseph.'

4729. There are three origins of falsity; one from the doctrine of the Church, the second from the fallacies of the senses, and the third from the life of cupidities. That which is from the doctrine of the Church takes hold only of the intellectual part; for the man is persuaded from early childhood that it is so, and things confirmatory afterwards strengthen it.

4731^e. They who are in . . . charity adore the Lord as their God and Saviour . . . But when they are thinking from doctrine, as they cannot comprehend how His Human can be Divine, they speak from what is doctrinal.

4747. 'Ishmaelites'=those who are in simple good as to life, and thence in natural good as to doctrine.

—². If they have confirmed themselves against it, not only in doctrine, but also in life . . . That which is confirmed in doctrine imbues what is intellectual; and that which is confirmed in life imbues what is voluntary; and that which is rooted in both man's lives . . . cannot be eradicated.

4769. Divine truths such as are of the literal sense of the Word, from which are the doctrinal things of the genuine Church . . .

—⁴. 'He-goats'=those who are in separated faith, that is, those who set doctrine before life; and at last do not care for life.

4783². That the Word from the sense of the letter can be explained in one's favour by means of interpretations, is very evident from the fact, that all doctrinal things whatever, even heretical ones, are thence confirmed. Examp.

4788^e. They who are external men may sell Divine truth, because they do not apperceive truth from good, but only know it from doctrine and teachers . . .

4818². Evil from the falsity of evil, is evil of life from a false doctrinal matter, which has been hatched from the evil of the love of self, that is, by those who are in this evil; and has been confirmed by the sense of the letter of the Word. Such is the origin of evil with the Jewish nation; such is the origin of evil with some in the Christian world, especially with those who are meant by 'Babel.' This evil is of such a character that it closes up every way to the internal man, so that nothing of conscience can be formed in it; for the evil which a man does from a false doctrinal matter, he believes to be good, because he believes it to be true; and so he does it from allowableness, freedom, and delight; and he thus so closes up Heaven against himself that it cannot be opened. Examp.

4843². The doctrine of falsity from which is the life of evil, is signified by 'the daughters-in-law commit adultery.'

4844². The Ancient Church knew no other doctrinal things . . . than those which taught what related to charity and the neighbour . . . But these doctrinal things are now quite obliterated . . . and in their stead there have succeeded the doctrinal things of faith, which, if widowed and separated from the doctrinal things of charity, teach almost nothing; for the doctrinal things of charity teach what is good, and the doctrinal things of faith what is true; and to teach what is true without teaching what is good is to walk blindfold; for good is what teaches and leads, and truth is what is taught and led. Between these two kinds of doctrinal things there is as great a difference as there is between light and darkness: unless the darkness is enlightened by the light, that is, unless truth is enlightened by good, or faith by charity, there is nothing but darkness. Hence it is that no one knows from intuition, and therefore not from perception, whether truth is true, but only from the doctrine drawn in during childhood and confirmed in adult age. 4955.

—⁶. Good without truth . . . becomes the good of wisdom by means of the doctrine of truth. Sig.

4928^e. When truth has been conjoined with good . . . the man acts from good, and regards truths as it were from good; for he then studies life more than doctrine.

4966. The primary things for interpretation (which are signified by 'the prince of the guards') are those things which primarily conduce to interpret the Word, and thus to understand the doctrinal things of love to God and charity towards the neighbour which are from the Word.

4982. 'In everything that he had in the house and in the field'=in life and in doctrine. . . 'A field'=the truth of the Church, and therefore it=doctrine; for all truth is of doctrine.

[A.] 4984². At their beginning, all uses are truths of doctrine . . .

4988². The good with man is from a twofold origin, to wit, from what is hereditary and thus adscititious ; and also from the doctrine of faith and of charity . . . The good which is from the latter origin is spiritual natural good. Truth is from the like origin, because all good has its own truth adjoined to it.

—³. This management of good is taught by the doctrine of what is just and fair ; and, in a higher degree, by the doctrine of faith and of charity.

5006³. See CHRISTIAN CHURCH at this ref. (Doctrine without life.)

5032³. They who are in spiritual good, when they lived in the world, received precepts from doctrine, by means of which they imbued the internal man . . . But they who are in natural good not spiritual, when they lived in the world, did not receive any precepts from doctrine . . . wherefore with them there is no plane into which Heaven can operate . . .

5044. That truth which governs (in a state of temptation) is that truth, and such truth, as they have learned from the Word, or from doctrine, and which they themselves have confirmed in themselves ; other truths are indeed recalled ; but they do not govern their interiors. Sometimes the truth which is governing is not presented conspicuously before the understanding, but lies hidden in obscurity, yet still it governs ; for the Divine of the Lord inflows into it, and thus keeps the interiors of the mind in it . . .

5068^e. To receive Divine truth is . . . to make what is of doctrine become of life.

5078⁶. When he is speaking from what is doctrinal, he says what is quite different, to wit, that he will not rise again until the last day.

5117¹³. 'When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, thou shalt eat grapes according to thy soul, to thy satiety, but thou shalt not put into thy vessel' = that anyone who is with others who are in a different doctrine and religion may learn and accept their goods of charity, but not imbue them and conjoin them with their own truths.

5149². Falsity is of a twofold origin, to wit, falsity of doctrine, and falsity of evil ; the falsity of doctrine does not consume goods ; for a man can be in the falsity of doctrine, and yet in good ; hence it is that some are saved from every doctrine.

5321. The reason everything of the doctrine of good and truth is (from the Divine Human), is that the Lord is doctrine itself ; for everything of doctrine proceeds from Him, and everything of doctrine treats of Him ; for everything of doctrine treats of the good of love and the truth of faith ; and these things are from the Lord ; wherefore the Lord is not only in them, but also is them both. Hence it is evident that the doctrine which treats of good and truth, treats of the Lord alone, and that it proceeds from His Divine Human. Nothing whatever of doctrine can proceed from the Divine itself, except through the Divine Human, that is, through the Word . . .

5351³. The life remains with everyone, but doctrine no further than in so far as it draws from life.

5354⁷. What is doctrinal depends upon what is intellectual ; for, as it is understood, so it is believed ; the understanding of what is doctrinal makes the quality of the faith.

5402. The doctrinal things of the Church and its rituals . . . are nothing but scientifics, until a man sees from the Word whether they are true, and thence appropriates them to himself.

—². There are two ways of procuring the things which are of faith, to wit, through doctrinal things, and through the Word ; when a man acquires them only through doctrinal things, he in this case has faith in those who have concluded them from the Word, and he confirms them to be truths because others have said so ; thus he does not believe them from his own faith, but from the faith of others ; whereas when he acquires them from the Word, and thence confirms them to be truths, he believes them because they are from the Divine, thus from faith from the Divine. Everyone within the Church first acquires truths which are of faith from doctrinal things, and also ought thence to procure them, because as yet he has not the judgment which will enable him to see them for himself from the Word, but in this case these truths are nothing to him but scientifics. But if, when he is able to view them from his own judgment, he does not consult the Word in order to see whether they are truths, they remain with him as scientifics ; whereas if he then consults the Word from the affection and end of knowing truths, when he has found them, he then acquires the things which are of faith from the genuine fount, and then they are appropriated to him by the Divine. Tr.

5432. The truths of faith of the Church, which are called doctrinal things, in the first age, when they are learned, are no otherwise apprehended and committed to memory, than as are other scientifics ; and they remain as scientifics until the man begins to view them from his own sight, and to see whether they are truths . . .

—³. (Such) are signified by 'spies coming to see the nakedness of the land ;' for they do not believe the doctrinal things of their Church from any affection of truth, but from the affection of getting honours or gain ; wherefore, within themselves they scarcely believe anything . . . considering those doctrinal things as a trader does his merchandize . . .

5542. 'Reuben' = faith in doctrine and understanding ; his 'two sons' = the two kinds of doctrine which are of the Church, to wit, the doctrine of truth and the doctrine of good, or the doctrine of faith and the doctrine of charity. That both these doctrines of faith or of the Church would not live, unless the medium which is represented by 'Benjamin' were conjoined, is signified by 'thou shalt cause my two sons to die, unless I bring Benjamin to thee.'

5637^e. Scientifics are enlightened by the light of Heaven when man has faith in the doctrinal things which are from the Word ; and he has faith when he is in the good of charity . . .

5652. 'They came near to the man who was over Joseph's house' = the doctrinal things of the Church ;

(for) 'the man over Joseph's house'=that which is of the external Church, thus what is doctrinal; for this is of the Church. Moreover, 'a man'=truth, thus, what is doctrinal. . . 'Joseph's house'=the internal Church; and what is doctrinal from the Word is that which is over this house, serving and ministering.

5653. 'And they spoke to him'=consultation from doctrinal things.

5895⁵. 'He who is on the house top, let him not come down, etc.'=that he who is in good should not betake himself thence to the things which are of the doctrinal things of faith . . . So 'he who puts his hand to the plough'=him who is in good; 'and looks back'=who then looks to the doctrinal things of faith, and thus leaves good behind.

5945. 'Take you carriages from the land of Egypt'=the doctrinal things of scientifics (6015) . . . The doctrinal things of scientifics are doctrinal things from the literal sense of the Word, and are of especial service to those who are for the first time being inaugurated into the interior truths of the Church; as for instance, that widows and orphans are especially to be benefited . . . also the commandments of the Decalogue; these and many more are doctrinal things of scientifics . . . Such doctrinal things, which are the first that a man learns, afterwards serve him as an ultimate plane . . . Celestial and spiritual things also actually cease in them . . . For the Spiritual World has as it were its feet and soles in the natural world, and, with man, as to his spiritual life, in the doctrinal things of scientifics.

5952. 'And Joseph gave them carriages, according to the mouth of Pharaoh'=that there were doctrinal things from the internal as it pleased them. . . It is said, as it pleased them, because the doctrinal things which are signified by 'the carriages of Egypt' are from the literal sense of the Word, which, without the internal sense, can be applied to any good; for the Lord does not teach anyone truths openly, but, through good, leads him to think what is true . . . Thus the Lord adapts truths according to the reception of good by each person . . .

5971. '(Jacob) saw the carriages which Joseph had sent to carry him'=the doctrinal things (from the Celestial of the Spiritual) which persuaded.

5997. Spiritual good is more than doctrine; doctrine is from this good; wherefore, he who arrives at spiritual good, has no longer any need of the doctrinal things which are from others; for he is then at the end to which they tend, and is no longer in the means; and doctrinal things are nothing but means for arriving at good as at their end.

6024. 'The sons of Reuben . . .' = the doctrinal things of faith in general; 'the sons of Simeon . . .' = faith in the will, and its doctrinal things in general; 'Shaul the son of a Canaanitess'=what is doctrinal not from a genuine origin; 'the sons of Levi . . .' = spiritual love, and its doctrinal things in general; 'the sons of Judah . . .' = celestial love, and its doctrinal things . . . ; 'the sons of Issachar . . .' = heavenly marriage love and its doctrinal things; 'the sons of Zebulon

. . .' = the heavenly marriage, and its doctrinal things . . . 'the sons of Gad . . .' = the good of faith, and thence works, and their doctrinal things; 'the sons of Asher . . .' = the happiness of eternal life, and the delight of the affections, and their doctrinal things . . . 'the sons of Benjamin . . .' = the internal Spiritual, and its doctrinal things . . . 'the sons of Dan . . .' = what is holy of faith, and the good of life, and their doctrinal matter; 'the sons of Naphtali . . .' = temptations in which there is victory, and the doctrinal things concerning them.

6047². The doctrinal things of the Church are first to be learned, and then examination is be made from the Word as to whether they are true; for they are not truths because the leading men of the Church have said so, and because their followers confirm it . . . If the truths (of the Word) are at variance with the doctrinal things, let him take care not to disturb the Church. Afterwards, when he has been confirmed, and is thus in the affirmative from the Word, it is allowable for him to confirm them by all the scientifics he has . . . Wherefore, it is to be denied to no one to search the Scriptures from the affection of knowing whether the doctrinal things of the Church within which one is born are truths; for otherwise no one can be enlightened . . . But at this day very few proceed in this way; for most who read the Word do not read it from the affection of truth, but from the affection of confirming therefrom the doctrinal things of the Church in which they were born.

6049². 'A broad pasture'=the doctrine of truth.

6086. 'If . . . there are any men of activity among them'=the things more excellent in doctrine.

6146. Doctrinal things are the general things to which truths are referred; for the doctrine of the Church is distributed into its heads, and each head is a general principle of the Church.

6208. Conscience does not come from hereditary good, but from the doctrine of truth and of good, and a life according to it . . .

6353. 'Instruments of violence were their swords'=that doctrinal things serve to destroy the works of charity, thus charity itself. . . 'Swords'= doctrinal things.

—². The doctrinal things of those who are in faith alone, from which they destroy the works of charity. Enum.

6383². By 'Zebulon,' here, are meant those who believe doctrinal things from the Word, thus those with whom something affirmative reigns universally, and yet their faith has life not in truths but in scientifics; for they apply scientifics to doctrinal things, and thus steady their affirmative.

6385. 'He is at the haven of ships'=where there are doctrinal things from the Word. . . 'Ships'= doctrinal things from the Word. The reason 'ships' have this signification, is that they go through seas and rivers, and carry things useful for life; for seas and rivers=scientifics and Knowledges; and the useful things which the ships carry, are doctrinal things and also truths themselves from the Word. Ill.

[A.] 6386. Here, where Zebulon is treated of, there are mentioned Knowledges, doctrinal things, and scientifics; and it is said that there is an extension on the one side to the Knowledges of good and truth; also, that the conclusion of truth from scientifics is where there are doctrinal things from the Word; therefore the distinction between them shall be told. Doctrinal things are those which are from the Word; Knowledges are those which are from these doctrinal things on the one hand, and from scientifics on the other; and scientifics are those things which are of experience, both our own and that of others. (See at 5402, —², above.)

6427. The truth of faith in the Lord's Spiritual Church is various; for in one Church that is said to be truth which in another is said not to be truth, and this according to the doctrine of each; thus doctrinal things are what are called truths. These truths are those which are conjoined with good, and make the good of the Spiritual Church . . .

6500. The man of the Spiritual Church is relatively in obscurity, and reasons about truths, as to whether they are truths, or confirms those things which are called doctrine . . .

6627. Before the chapters of the Book of Exodus, doctrinal things are to be prefaced; first, the doctrinal things of charity; and afterwards, the doctrinal things of faith; in order that the things which have been delivered in the explications in a scattered form may be expounded in a series; and thus that doctrine may appear in its order, and such as is and ought to be the doctrine of the Church in order to agree with the good and truth in Heaven.

6628. It has been shown passim, that the doctrine of charity was the doctrine in the Ancient Churches; and that this doctrine conjoined all the Churches, and so made one out of many . . . N.9.

6632. Hence the doctrine of charity . . . is at this day among the things which are lost . . . When yet this doctrine abounds with so many and such great arcana, that it cannot be described as to the thousandth part: the whole Sacred Scripture is nothing else than the doctrine of love and charity . . . 7262. N.9⁴.

6633. As the doctrine of charity is at this day among the things which are lost, and the doctrine of faith is consequently much estranged from the truth, it is allowable, of the Lord's Divine mercy, to deliver this doctrine before the several chapters of the Book of Exodus, and thus restore it to the Church. 6703. 6818. 7255.

6637². It is not called the Church, because . . . there are doctrinal things from the Word there . . . but because they live according to . . . doctrine from the Word, and thus so that doctrine is the rule of life . . . They who live in evil, thus contrary to doctrine, are further outside the Church than the Gentiles . . .

6705. The Ancients reduced the neighbour into classes . . . and thus reduced the doctrine into order, and reduced life according to it; thus the doctrine of their Church contained the laws of life . . .

6717. This truth, which is received . . . before regeneration, is not the genuine truth of good, but is the truth of doctrine; for at that time the man does not consider whether it is true, but acknowledges it because it is the doctrine of the Church . . . —³.

6751^e. When man is being regenerated, the general things of faith or the rudiments of the doctrine of the Church are the first plane, afterwards there are particulars of doctrine and of faith . . .

6765^e. Hence it is that some can be regenerated within the Church from any doctrine whatever, but, more than others, those who are in genuine truths.

6777. 'They filled the troughs'=that thence they enriched the doctrine of charity. 'To fill from the well'=to enrich from the Word; and 'troughs'=the doctrine of charity . . . because they were wooden troughs into which water was drawn from the well to give drink to the flocks; for 'wood'=the good of charity; 'to draw'=to instruct; 'water'=the truth of faith; and 'a well'=the Word.

6784. 'An Egyptian man delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds'=that the scientific truth which was adjoined to the Church prevailed over the power of the doctrine of falsity from evil. 'Shepherds'=those who teach, here, those who teach falsity from evil; and as they=those who teach, they also=such doctrine.

6822^e. Everyone should first acquire truth from the doctrine of the Church, and afterwards from the Lord's Word; this must be the truth of his faith.

6859. There are two origins of evil, and also two origins of falsity; one origin of evil is the falsity of doctrine or of religion, the other is the cupidities of the love of self and of the world; the falsity of the first origin is the falsity of doctrine or of religion; and the falsity of the second origin is the evil of the cupidities of the said loves.

6865². It is a false scientific which most infests those who are of the Spiritual Church, because they have no perception of truth from good, but only the Knowledge of truth from doctrine.

—³. These believe themselves to be illuminated when they have confirmed in themselves the doctrinal things of the Church; but it is sensuous lumen . . . which then cheats them; for any kind of doctrinal things whatever can be confirmed . . . and when they have been confirmed they appear to them in the sensuous lumen as truths themselves. (See CONFIRM, here.)

6998. See AARON at these refs. 7053. 7063. 7089. 7104. 7184. 7226. 7230⁴. 7239. 7269. 7285. 7381. 9424. —⁴.

7002. The affection of love is here said of the doctrine of good and truth . . . because the Angels are unwilling to speak of persons . . . Therefore they attribute to doctrine what is pleasant and delightful, also affection . . . and these things really are in doctrine when a man applies it to himself, because in doctrine there is truth Divine proceeding from the Lord . . .

7006. '(I will be with Aaron's mouth)'=what is Divine with that doctrine, and in it; and this doctrine is from the Divine truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine Human. . . That the doctrine of good and truth proceeds both mediately and immediately from the Lord's Divine Human, see at 7004. (Which will be found under DIVINE TRUTH.)

7008. 'He shall speak for thee to the people'=that this doctrine will be for the Spiritual Church.

7009. 'And he shall be for a mouth to thee'=the truth of doctrine, which proceeds also mediately from the Lord.

7012². They who are in no affection for the sake of truth, but for the sake of gain, are not at all enlightened when they read the Word, but are only confirmed in doctrinal things, of whatever kind . . .

7053. All doctrine is of truth; for doctrine treats of truth and thence good, which is called the doctrine of faith; and it treats of good and thence truth, which is called the doctrine of charity; but both are of truth.

7055². With those who think and teach according to the doctrine of their own Church confirmed in themselves; and only know that they are truths from the fact that they are from the doctrine of the Church, there can be the truth which proceeds mediately from the Divine; but still this is not conjoined with the truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine; for if they were conjoined, they would have the affection of knowing truth for the sake of truth, and especially for the sake of life, and thence would be endowed with a perception whether the doctrinal things of their Church were truths, before they confirmed them in themselves . . . Examp.

7225. 'Lips'=the things which are of doctrine. Refs. —^e. Hence the truths of doctrine are no otherwise apperceived by them than as if they were impure.

7230^e. 'Eleazar the son of Aaron'=the doctrinal things derived from the doctrine itself of charity.

7231^e. The internal of the Church is called the law from the Divine; and its external, the doctrine thence derived. The law from the Divine . . . is also the Word in the internal sense; and the doctrine thence derived is the Word in the external sense.

7233². The doctrine of the Spiritual Church is not the doctrine of truth Divine itself, because they who are of the Spiritual Church have no perception of truth Divine . . .

—³. It is therefore not surprising that . . . they have no doctrine of charity. Their doctrinal things being from the Word does not make them truths Divine; for anything doctrinal whatever can be hatched from the sense of the letter of the Word . . . But not if what is doctrinal is formed from the internal sense . . .

7258. The doctrine of celestial good, which is that of love to the Lord, is the fullest and at the same time the most arcane; but the doctrine of spiritual good, which is that of charity towards the neighbour, is also full and arcane, but less so than the doctrine of celestial good . . . That the doctrine of charity is full, may be evident from the fact, that charity is not the same with one as it is with another. 7259. N. 107². —³.

7270. The mediate influx of Divine truth into doctrine, that is, with one who is teaching. Sig.

7291. 'Thou shalt say to Aaron'=the influx and communication of the law Divine with doctrine. . . For the law Divine is internal truth, and doctrine is external truth.

7317². (When they find that only those are admitted into Heaven who have lived the life of charity), they begin to hold the doctrinal things of their faith cheap.

7323. 'Over their streams, over their rivers'=(power) against the doctrinal things of falsity.

7343^e. 'A fountain'=the doctrine of truth Divine; and 'to dig,' its investigation.

8042. When (the Spiritual Church) act according to the truth which is of their doctrine, the truth is called good . . . But the reason this good is still in its essence truth, is that with them the doctrinal things of the Church are truths; and the doctrinal things in the Churches are at variance, and therefore so are the truths also.

8148². Persuasive faith is the persuasion that all things which are of the doctrine of the Church are truths, not for the sake of truth . . . life . . . or salvation . . . but for the sake of profits . . . and reputation. . . In order to gain such things they learn doctrinal things . . . wherefore it is all the same to them whether these doctrinal things are true or false.

—³. The things which are of faith, that is, doctrinal things, are with them as means to an end, that is, to eminence and wealth . . .

8149. The doctrinal things of the Church with those who are in evil of life are called doctrinal things of falsity, although it is possible that as to some part . . . they are truths . . . —.

8152^e. When life makes the Church, and not doctrine separated from life, the Church is one; but when doctrine makes the Church, there are many.

8408². 'A pot,' also, = doctrine, from the fact that it contains the good and truth of the Church. Ill.

8420. 'The law'=the Word; and as it=the Word, it=the Divine truth, thus also the doctrine of good and truth; hence 'to walk in the law of Jehovah'=to live a life of truth and good according to doctrine.

8456. No truth of doctrine or of the Word becomes truth with man until it has received life from the Divine, and it receives life by the insinuation of the truth which proceeds from the Divine, which is called the truth of peace . . .

8513³. How to live so that it may be according to order, the Word teaches, and what is doctrinal of faith from the Word.

8516². Everyone ought to be led to Christian good . . . by the truth of faith . . . and unless he at first learns this from what is doctrinal of his Church—for he can never know it at all from himself—he cannot be prepared and thus adapted to receive that good. Examp.

8521². In the intellectual part (of the spiritual) the Lord forms a new will, which is that the man wills to do according to the truth which he has drawn from what is doctrinal of his own Church . . . That this really is true he indeed believes, because he has faith in what is doctrinal . . .

—³. (Of the spiritual) none are able to see whether what is doctrinal of their own Church is true, except those who are in the affection of truth for the sake of the uses of life: they who have this faith are continually enlightened by the Lord . . .

[A.] 8541^e. (In Jupiter) that which is revealed is handed down from parents to children, and thus doctrine spreads to all the families, and so into the whole nation which is from one father. They added, that it seems to them as if they had the doctrine inscribed on their own minds; as they conclude from the fact, that they at once perceive and acknowledge as from themselves whether that is true or not which is said by others about the life of Heaven with man.

8762^e. Those are in both internal and external things who are in the life of good according to the doctrinal things of their own Church; whereas those are in external things without internal things who are in worship and not at the same time in good of life according to the doctrinal things of their own Church.

8764^f. 'Wheels'=the truths of doctrinal things, from the fact that 'chariots'=the doctrines of truth.

8780^g. They who are in the affection of truth from what is evil, that is, they who for the sake of honours, etc., desire to know truths, do not see them, but only see the things which confirm the doctrinal things of their own Church, whether they are true or false.

8869^h. 'The formers of a graven image'=those who hatch doctrines which are not truths from the Word, but from their own intelligence . . .

—ⁱ. 'The graven image which the artificer casts'=the false doctrine which is from proprium; 'the caster covers over with gold, and casteth chains of silver'=that by means of reasonings he makes the falsities of doctrine appear to be truths.

8904. 'Thou shalt not commit adultery'=that the things which are of the doctrine of faith and of charity are not to be perverted. . . (These words also)=that the Word is not to be applied to confirm evils and falsities; for the Word is the veriest doctrine itself of faith and charity.

8928^k. (As the Spiritual Church is in such thick darkness) they divide the Church into as many Churches as there are diverse doctrines concerning the truths which are of faith; which would not be the case if they were in light . . .

8939^l. Let him who would be happy to eternity . . . know and believe that the Word is the one only doctrine which teaches how man is to live in the world in order to be happy to eternity.

8980. 'Servants,' here, = those who are in the faith of the doctrinal things of their own Church, and not in the corresponding good, but in a delight which counterfeits the corresponding good . . . and as they are only in the faith of the doctrinal things of their own Church, and not in the corresponding good, thus not in the truth of good . . . they can be admitted no further into Heaven than the entrance; for they who are in the entrance to Heaven, through the truth of faith communicate with those who are in Heaven, and with those who are outside of Heaven through the delight conjoined with the truth . . .

8981^m. They who from early childhood have thought but little about eternal life . . . but only about worldly life . . . and still have lived a good moral life, and have also believed the truths of the doctrine of their own Church, when they arrive at more adult age, can only be reformed by the adjunction of spiritual good while they are in combat, but they do not retain this good, but only thereby confirm the truths of their own doctrine. Ex.

8993ⁿ. They who are in the affection of truth from natural delight are they who learn the doctrinal things of the Church, which are called the truths of faith, either for the sake of gain or for the sake of honours, and not for the sake of life. Such affections of truth . . . are represented by 'the daughter of an Israelitish man sold for a maidservant.'

—^o. They who are in the affection of truth from this origin . . . stick in merely confirming the doctrinal things of their own Church in which they were born, whether they are true or false . . . Whereas they who are in the genuine affection of truth, that is, they who long to know truths for the sake of good use and for the sake of life, do indeed remain in the doctrinal things of the Church until they arrive at the age when they begin to think for themselves, and then search the Scriptures, and supplicate the Lord for enlightenment; and when they are enlightened they rejoice from their hearts; for they know that if they had been born where there was any other doctrine of the Church, even the greatest heresy, without the searching of Scripture from the genuine affection of truth, they would have remained in it.

9025^p. Such things as are from the literal sense of the Word are called scientific truths, and differ from the truths of faith which are of the doctrine of the Church; for the latter arise out of the former by explication . . . Hence also it is, that the doctrines of the Church in many things recede from the literal sense of the Word. It is to be known that the true doctrine of the Church is that which is here called the internal sense; for in the internal sense there are truths such as those with the Angels in Heaven. Among the priests and among the men of the Church, there are those who teach and learn the truths of the Church from the literal sense of the Word; and there are those who teach and learn from doctrine from the Word, which is called the doctrine of faith; the latter mightily differ in perception from the former . . . for they who only teach and learn the literal sense of the Word without the doctrine of the Church for a directress, apprehend nothing but the things of the natural man; whereas they who do so from the true doctrine which is from the Word, understand also the things which are of the spiritual man . . .

9030^q. That truth is called spiritual truth which, together with good, makes the life of the internal man, whereas scientific truth is that truth which makes the life of the external man; this truth is from the literal sense of the Word; but the former is from the internal sense of the Word, thus also is from the genuine doctrine of faith of the Church; for this doctrine is the doctrine of the internal sense.

9032. It has treated in these two verses of spiritual truth—which is the truth of the doctrine of faith from the Word—being weakened by means of scientific truth, which is the truth of the literal sense of the Word; but, as it is commonly believed, that the truth of the doctrine of faith of the Church is one and the same with the truth of the literal sense of the Word, it is allowable to illustrate the matter by means of an example . . .

9033. In the two verses which follow, it treats of the weakening of the scientific truth which is of the literal sense of the Word by the spiritual truth which is of the doctrine of faith of the Church. Examp.

9034². The truth of the internal sense of the Word is the same as the genuine truth of the doctrine of faith of the Church.

9113. See CONSCIENCE at this ref.

9166⁶. 'To swear by Jerusalem' = by the doctrine of truth from the Word . . . When 'land' is mentioned, which = the Church, and then 'Jerusalem,' 'Jerusalem' = the doctrine of the Church, and therefore the doctrine of truth Divine from the Word.

9192. All worship has doctrinal things for rules, which are truths in so far as they are from good, and falsities in so far as they are from evil . . .

—³. The reason the former were in Hell, was that they had indeed been in truths as to doctrine, but in evils as to life; and the reason the latter were in Heaven, was that they had not indeed been in truths as to doctrine, but still they had been in good as to life . . .

—⁴. They who are learned as to doctrine, but evil as to life, are they who are meant by the Lord in Matt. vii. 22, 23; xxv. 11, 12; and Luke xiii. 26, 27.

9222. 'The prince in thy people thou shalt not excrete' = that the doctrine of truth is not to be reviled.

— Truth Divine is the Word; and the doctrine of the Church is the truth thence derived . . . they who at heart deny these, revile them, even if they orally praise and preach them . . .

9283. 'The name of other gods ye shall not mention' = that we are not to think from the doctrine of falsity. . . 'Name' . . . here, = everything of false doctrine.

9300⁵. Hence it is that most people remain in the doctrinal things of their own Church in which they were born, and merely confirm them . . .

9317. The falsities of evil are worshipped when worship is carried on according to the doctrine which has been forged from falsified truths and adulterated goods. This takes place when dominion and gain are regarded as the ends, and truths from the Word as the means.

9372⁵. That the Word is more than any doctrine in the world, is signified by, 'What went ye out for to see, a prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet . . .'

9375. 'Nadab and Abihu' = the doctrine from both. (For) when 'Aaron' = the Word, his sons = doctrine; the elder, the doctrine from the internal sense; and the younger, the doctrine from the external sense. The doctrine from the internal sense of the Word, and the doctrine from the external sense of the Word, are one doctrine; for they who are in the internal are also in the external . . .

—². As Nadab and Abihu . . . represented doctrine from the Word, they were slain when they instituted worship from some other doctrine than that which is from the Word . . . Fire in the censer from some other source = doctrine from some other source than the Word; for 'fire' = the good of love; and 'incense' = the truth of faith thence derived; and the good of love and the truth of faith are what enter into doctrine from the Word, and make it.

9380². The case is similar with those who remain solely in the literal sense of the Word, and do not collect anything doctrinal therefrom; for they are separated from the internal sense, as the internal sense is that which is doctrinal itself. The conjunction of the Lord with the external things of the Word exists through its interior things; wherefore, if the interior things are separated, there exists no other conjunction of the Lord with the external things, than as with a bodily gesture without a concordant heart. Similar also is the case with those who perfectly know the doctrine of their own Church as to every particular, and yet do not apply these things to life; these also are in externals without an internal; for, with them, the truths of doctrine are outside, not being inscribed on their life . . .

9382². Everyone is enlightened from the Word according to the affection of truth . . . and according to the capacity of receiving . . . They who are thus illuminated, apprehend the Word as to its interior things, wherefore they make for themselves doctrine from the Word, to which they apply the sense of the letter; whereas they who are not in the affection of truth from good . . . are more blinded than enlightened when they read the Word . . . Therefore most of them make for themselves no doctrine, but remain in the sense of the letter, which they apply to favour falsities, especially such things as agree with the loves of self and of the world; but those who are not of this character merely confirm the doctrinal things of their own Church, and neither know nor care whether they are true or false.

9391⁴. 'We will render the bullocks of the lips' = to confess Jehovah from the goods of doctrine, and offer thanks to Him; for 'lips' = the things which are of doctrine.

9403. See MOSES at this ref.

9409. They who are in the external sense of the Word separated from the internal sense, are they who draw out no doctrine of charity and faith from the Word, but remain solely in the sense of the letter: the doctrine of charity and faith is the internal of the Word, and the sense of the letter is its external. They who are in the external of the Word without an internal, are they who are in external worship without internal . . .

—³. The sons of Israel would have known these internal things if they would have received the doctrine of love and charity; as this teaches what the external things involve. From this doctrine, also, the internal sense of the Word is known, since the internal sense of the Word is the doctrine itself of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour . . . As, in the Christian world at this day, there is no doctrine of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour, it is scarcely known what celestial love and spiritual love are . . . Therefore they are in externals without an internal . . . Hence it is that at the present day also the external sense of the Word, without doctrine for a directress and leader, is bent wherever they like; for the doctrine of faith, without the doctrine of love and charity, is as the shade of night ; whereas the doctrine of faith from the doctrine of love and charity is as the light of day ; for the good which is of love and charity is as a flame, and the truth of faith is as the light thence derived.

[A.] 9424. Aaron . . . here, = the doctrine of truth from the external sense alone, because the elders over whom Aaron was set at the foot of the mountain = those who are in the external sense of the Word ; and 'Hur,' when joined to Aaron, = the truth of that doctrine, which is also the signification of 'Hur,' when, together with Aaron, he supported the hands of Moses ; for the truths from the Word, from which comes doctrine, support the Word ; which on that occasion was represented by 'Moses' . . . We shall here state in a few words how the case is with the supporting of the Word from the doctrine which is from the Word. He who is not acquainted with the arana of Heaven can believe no otherwise than that the Word is supported without doctrine thence derived ; for he supposes that the Word in the letter or the literal sense of the Word is doctrine itself ; but it is to be known that all the doctrine of the Church must be from the Word ; and that doctrine from any other source than the Word is not the doctrine in which there is anything of the Church, still less anything of Heaven ; but doctrine is to be collected from the Word ; and, while it is being collected, the man must be in enlightenment from the Lord ; and he is in enlightenment when he is in the love of truth for the sake of truth, and not for the sake of self and the world : these are enlightened in the Word while they are reading it, and they see truth, and make themselves doctrine therefrom. The reason it is so, is that such persons communicate with Heaven, thus with the Lord ; and so, being enlightened by the Lord, they are led to see the truths of the Word such as they are in Heaven ; for the Lord flows in through Heaven into their understanding . . . From this it may be evident how the doctrine of truth and good is given to man by the Lord. That this doctrine supports the Word as to its literal or external sense, is evident to everyone who considers the matter ; for everyone in the Church who thinks from doctrine, sees truths in the Word from his own doctrine and according thereto ; and he explains those things which do not coincide with it ; and the things which appear to be opposite to it he passes over as if he did not see or did not understand them . . . Whereas they who are in the genuine doctrine of truth from the Word, and in enlightenment when they are reading the Word, see concordant truths everywhere, and nothing whatever that is opposed ; for they do not stick in those things which are said according to appearances . . . because they know that if appearances are unrolled, and as it were unswathed, the truth appears there in its nakedness. Neither do falsities from the fallacies of the external senses lead them astray . . . as is especially the case with the Jews and Socinians ; nor falsities from the loves of self and of the world, as is the case with those who are meant by 'Babel.' As the former and the latter cannot be enlightened, they infer a doctrine solely from the external sense to favour their loves . . .

— It is to be known that the internal sense of the Word contains the genuine doctrine of the Church.

—⁴. 'Idols' in the Word = such doctrines (as are solely from the external sense of the Word). III. (See IDOL, here.)

—⁹. 'A graven image' = what is doctrinal from man's own intelligence.

—¹⁰. (In Is. xli. 9-18) there is described how doctrine is formed from man's own intelligence, and not from any enlightenment from the Lord.

9425. 'To come to them' = that they may be judged from this doctrine ; for 'Aaron and Hur,' to whom they were to come = the doctrine from the external sense of the Word. Thus (it also =) that falsities may be removed ; for he who in a dispute about truths judges from doctrine, removes falsities. But that it did not remove falsities, but that it removed truths, is evident from the worship of the calf . . . for they who teach the external things of the Word without the internal, thus without the genuine doctrine of good and truth, do not discriminate between truth and falsity, thus not between good and evil . . .

9430. It is to be known that even in this world a man is in the internal sense of the Word when he is in the genuine doctrine of the Church as to faith and as to life ; for, by means of this doctrine, the internal sense of the Word is then inscribed on both his understanding and his will ; on his understanding by faith, and on his will by life. When such a man comes into Heaven, he apprehends the Word no otherwise than according to its internal sense, and knows nothing about its external sense.

9468³. As external celestial good and its truth are signified by 'scarlet double-dyed,' the Word as to its external sense, and thence what is doctrinal, is expressed by it. III.

—⁴. It treats in this prophecy (2 Sam. i. 17, 18, 24) of the doctrine of faith separated from the doctrine of love and charity, namely, that truths are extinguished by it separated, whereas they are restored by means of the doctrine of love and charity ; for by 'the Philistines,' by whom Saul and Jonathan were slain, are signified those who are in the doctrine of faith separated from the doctrine of love and charity : thus 'to teach the sons of Judah the bow' = to instruct those who are in the good of love and charity about the truths of doctrine.

9494². 'A corner' = the stability of doctrine from the truth which is from good.

9642⁸. The tribe of Reuben = the truth of faith in doctrine. Refs.

9780. The Word is the doctrine of good, for it is the doctrine of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour.

9857. 'Judgment,' in the Word, = Divine truth, and therefore, doctrine and a life according to doctrine. III.

9918. The scientifics of good and truth which are signified by 'pomegranates,' are doctrinal things from the Word ; which are scientifics in so far as they are in the memory which is in the natural man ; but when they enter the memory which is in the spiritual man, which takes place when we live according to them, the doctrinal things as to truth become of faith : and the doctrinal things as to good become of charity, and are called spiritual things. When this takes place, they almost vanish from the natural memory, and appear as if they were innate, because they are implanted in the man's life.

9921. 'Bells of gold'=all the things of doctrine and worship from good passing to those who are of the Church.

—^e. The reason the bells were placed in the fringes, was that the holy things of doctrine are in the extremes.

9922. The reason the bells were placed in the midst of the pomegranates, was that the scientifics which are signified by 'the pomegranates' are recipients, and are as it were the vessels of truth and good; and the doctrine and worship which are signified by 'the bells' must be from the good and truth which are within scientifics as in their vessels. If they are not from them, but are solely from scientifics, they have no life. Ex.

9960¹⁰. 'To take a mill and grind flour'=to fit doctrine together from such things as may serve for means to an end.

10028². When a man is being purified, first of all are learned such truths as can be apprehended by the sensuous man, such as are the truths in the sense of the letter . . . Afterwards, more interior truths are learned, such as those which are collected from the Word by those who are in enlightenment; for these collect its interior sense from various passages where the sense of the letter is explained: from these, when Known, truths still more interior are drawn by those who are enlightened, which, together with the former, serve the Church for doctrine; these latter, for doctrine to those who are men of the internal Church; the former for doctrine to those who are men of the external Church.

10105. 'Thou shalt boil the flesh in the holy place'=the preparation of good for the uses of life by means of the truths of doctrine in enlightenment from the Lord. 'To boil'=to prepare for the use of life by means of the truths of doctrine . . . because these teach use; and the water in which the boiling is done=truths.

—². It is said truths of doctrine in enlightenment from the Lord, since the truths from the Word are fitted together into doctrine in order that they may serve for use, which is done by those who are in enlightenment from the Lord . . .

— That doctrine must by all means be from the Word in order that the Word may be understood. Refs.

—³. That to boil in water=to reduce truths into doctrine, and thus prepare for the use of life. Ill.

— 'The meal' which Elisha cast into the pot=the truth from good, by which doctrine is amended.

10252². In order that celestial good . . . may be born with man . . . there must be acquired truths from the Word, or from the doctrine of the Church which is from the Word . . .

10276³. They who hold fast the sense of the letter alone, and have no doctrine . . . may be drawn into any heresies whatever . . . The internal sense teaches this doctrine itself; and he who knows this doctrine has the internal sense of the Word.

10295². When (those of the Celestial Kingdom) do the precepts from love, they at the same time act from truths, without thought about them from what is doctrinal . . .

10324. The Word in the letter can be apprehended only by means of doctrine from the Word made by one who is enlightened; for the sense of its letter is accommodated to the apprehension even of simple men; wherefore they must have doctrine from the Word as a lamp.

10399. See FALSITY at this ref.

10400³. Think also whether anyone can know the Divine truths which are in the sense of the letter, except by means of doctrine thence derived; and that if he has not doctrine as a lamp, he is carried away into errors . . . The doctrine which he must have as a lamp is that which the internal sense teaches, thus it is the internal sense itself, which is in some measure evident to everyone . . . whose internal man is opened, although he does not know what the internal sense is; for Heaven, which is in the internal sense of the Word, inflows with that man when he is reading the Word, enlightens him, and gives him perception, and thus teaches him . . .

10406. 'To form with a graver,' when said of an idol, =to fit together a false doctrinal matter from man's own intelligence, which is done by the application of the sense of the letter in favour of the loves of self and of the world; for, when these reign, the man is not in any enlightenment from Heaven . . .

—². This is the case with every doctrinal thing which is made from man, and not from the Lord; and it is made from man when he has for an end his own glory, or his own gain; whereas it is made from the Lord, when he has for an end the good of the neighbour and the good of the Lord's Kingdom. Such things are signified by 'graven images,' and 'molten images,' in the following places.

10503. Four kinds of idols are mentioned in the Word . . . The idols of stone = worship from falsities of doctrine; those of wood = worship from evils of doctrine; those of silver = the worship of falsity in both doctrine and life; and those of gold = the worship of evil in both doctrine and life.

10548³. All the doctrinal things of the Church which are of service for worship are given by means of the external of the Word; but are given only to those who are in enlightenment from the Lord, when they are reading the Word; for then light from Heaven flows into them through the internal sense. Refs.

10578². To live according to the Lord's precepts, is to live according to the doctrine of charity and faith, which you will see in the prefaces to the several chapters of Exodus. That it is so, the Lord teaches in John xiv. 21-24.

10582³. In such obscurity and falsity of faith are they who believe the Word as to the sense of its letter only, without doctrine thence derived by one who is enlightened; they who read the Word without doctrine are like those who go in the dark without a lamp: such are all merely sensuous men.

[A.] 10591. The doctrine of charity and of faith. Gen.art. 10714. 10740. 10760. 10773. 10789. 10815. N.223, et seq.

10640². The man who wants to be enlightened by the Lord must take especial care not to appropriate to himself any doctrinal thing which supports evil. A man appropriates it when he confirms it with himself . . . and still more if he lives according to it. When he does this, the evil remains inscribed on his soul and heart ; and when this has been done, he cannot possibly be afterwards enlightened through the Word by the Lord. Examp.

10644. 'Thou shalt cut down his groves'=that their doctrinal things are to be utterly rejected. . . 'Groves' =the doctrinal things of the Church, here, the doctrinal things of the religiosity with idolaters, which are the doctrinal things of falsity from evil. The reason 'groves'=doctrinal things, is that 'trees'=the perceptions and the Knowledges of good and truth . . .

10763. In order for there to be a Church, there must be doctrine from the Word, since without doctrine the Word is not understood ; but doctrine alone in man does not make the Church in him, but life according to it.

10764. The genuine doctrine of the Church is the doctrine of charity and at the same time of faith, and not the doctrine of faith without the former ; for the doctrine of charity and at the same time of faith is the doctrine of life, but not the doctrine of faith without the doctrine of charity.

10794. Priests must teach men the way to Heaven, and also lead them ; they must teach them according to the doctrine of their own Church, and lead them to live according thereto. N.315.

H. 221. In Heaven . . . they have doctrines equally as on earth . . . The doctrines agree as to essential things, but those in the higher Heavens are of a more interior wisdom than those in the lower Heavens.

227. The doctrines according to which the preachings are made all regard life as the end, and none faith without life. The doctrine of the inmost Heaven is fuller of wisdom than the doctrine of the middle Heaven, and this is fuller of intelligence than the doctrine of the ultimate Heaven ; for the doctrines are adapted to the perception of the Angels in each Heaven. The essential thing of all the doctrines is to acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human.

311⁶. Such a belief (has arisen) from some passages in the Word . . . not enlightened and explained by means of genuine doctrine from the Word ; when yet unless genuine doctrine enlightens, the sense of the letter draws away the mind into various things, from which come ignorance, heresies, and errors.

— (g). That the doctrine of the Church must be from the Word. Refs. J.22 (d).

— That the Word without doctrine is not understood. Refs.

— That true doctrine is a lamp to those who read the Word. Refs.

— That genuine doctrine must be from those who are in enlightenment from the Lord. Refs.

— That they who are in the sense of the letter without doctrine come into no understanding concerning truths Divine. Refs.

488³. They who have been in the knowledge of the doctrinal things of their own Church and of other Churches, and have not applied anything to life, choose stony places, and dwell among rocky heaps ; they shun cultivated places, because they feel aversion for them.

489³. They who have at once applied to life the doctrinal things of the Church which are from the Word, are in the Inmost Heaven, and are in the delight of wisdom above all others ; they see Divine things in every object ; they do indeed see the objects, but the Divine things corresponding at once flow into their minds, and fill them with bliss, by which all their sensations are affected ; consequently all things as it were laugh, sport, and live before their eyes.

516. All instruction in (the places of instruction in the World of Spirits) takes place from doctrine which is from the Word, and not from the Word without doctrine. Christians are instructed from the Heavenly doctrine, which entirely agrees with the internal sense of the Word. All others, as Mohammedans and gentiles, are instructed from doctrines adapted to their apprehension, which differ from the Heavenly doctrine only in this respect, that spiritual life is taught by means of moral life which is in agreement with the good dogmas of their religion, and from which they have drawn their life in the world.

N. 1². 'The gold like unto clear glass' of which the city and its street were made =the good of love from which doctrine with its truths is transparent.

4. The reason this new Heaven is distinct from the ancient Heavens, is that in the Ancient Churches there was no other doctrine than the doctrine of love and charity, and at that time they did not know of any doctrine of faith separated.

—². To live the life of faith is to live according to the doctrine of one's own Church.

7. As to the doctrine which now follows, it also is from Heaven, because it is from the spiritual sense of the Word ; and the spiritual sense of the Word is the same thing as the doctrine which is in Heaven ; for in Heaven equally as on earth there is . . . doctrine from the Word. . . Hence it is evident what is meant by 'the Holy City, New Jerusalem, descending from God out of heaven.' But I will come to the doctrine itself which is for the New Church, and which, because it has been revealed to me out of Heaven, is called the Heavenly doctrine ; for to give this is the purpose of this Work.

8. Preface to the doctrine.

9. The doctrine of charity, which is the doctrine of life, was the doctrine itself in the Ancient Churches . . . and this doctrine conjoined all the Churches . . .

107. To these are to be added some things concerning the doctrine of love to the Lord, and concerning the doctrine of charity . . .

—². The doctrine of . . . love to the Lord is contained in the inmost sense of the Word ; but the doctrine of spiritual love in the internal sense.

257. That the Word is not understood except by means of doctrine from the Word. (Refs. to passages.) J.22 (d). W.H.S. S.51, Examps.

—². That the true doctrine of the Church is the doctrine of charity and of faith. Refs.

— . That the doctrine of faith does not make the Church, but the life of faith, which is charity. Refs.

— . That doctrinal things are nothing unless we live according to them. Refs.

— . That at this day there is the doctrine of faith in the Churches, and not that of charity, and that the doctrine of charity is rejected in the science which is called Moral Theology. Ref.

— . How much more powerful is the doctrine of charity than the doctrine of faith separated from charity. Ref.

— . Into what errors they fall who have the doctrine of faith and not at the same time that of charity. Refs.

— . That those who are only in the doctrine of faith, and not in the life of faith . . . were formerly called 'the uncircumcised,' or 'Philistines.' Refs.

— . That with the Ancients there was the doctrine of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour ; and that the doctrine of faith served it. Refs.

—³. That the doctrine made by one who is enlightened can afterwards be confirmed by means of rational things, and that it is thus more fully understood, and that it is strengthened. Refs.

— . That those who are in faith separated from charity want the doctrinal things of the Church to be simply believed without any rational view. Ref.

J. 38. The Divine truths from which are the doctrines of the Churches (at this day) regard faith alone, wherefore they are called the doctrines of faith, and do not regard life ; and the truths which regard only faith and not life, cannot make man spiritual ; and so long as they are outside of the life, they are only natural things, for they are known and thought of only as other things are. Hence it is that at the present day spiritual good does not exist, but only natural good with some.

58^o. In order to obtain (this dominion), the Babylonians constantly excoGITate and hatch new statutes and new doctrinal things . . . I heard some of the chiefs consulting about a doctrine that was to be a rule for the people ; there were many articles, but all tended to their getting command over the Heavens and earth. These doctrinal things were afterwards read before the bystanders, and when they had been read, they heard a voice from Heaven, saying that they had been dictated from the deepest Hell, although they were unaware of it. This was also confirmed in this way : a diabolical crew . . . came up from that Hell, and tore those doctrinal things from them, not with their hands, but with their teeth, and carried them down into their own Hell.

W. H. S. That they who are in enlightenment make their own doctrine from the Word. Refs.

— . That they who are in the affection of truth for the sake of truth, when they become adults, and are able to see from their own understanding, do not remain simply in the doctrinal things of their own Church, but search from the Word as to whether they are true. Refs.

11^o. That the internal sense is the genuine doctrine itself of the Church. Refs.

— . That they who understand the Word according to the internal sense, know the true doctrine itself of the Church, because the internal sense contains it. Refs.

— . That the Word is the doctrine of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour. Refs.

L. Title. The Doctrine of the New Jerusalem concerning the Lord.

63. The Holy City Jerusalem = this New Church as to doctrine, wherefore it was seen coming down from God out of Heaven ; for the doctrine of genuine truth comes from no other source than through Heaven from the Lord.

64. Hence it is that 'Jerusalem' = the Church as to worship, and therefore also the Church as to doctrine ; for the worship is prescribed in the doctrine, and takes place according to it.

—⁷. 'Out of Zion shall go forth the doctrine, and the Word of Jehovah from Jerusalem' (Micah iv. 2).

65. 'I make all things new' = that in the Church now to be established by the Lord there will be a new doctrine, which did not exist in the former Church. . . This same doctrine was indeed given before in the Word, but as, not long after its establishment, the Church was turned into Babylonia . . . this doctrine could not be seen from the Word ; for the Church sees the Word no otherwise than from the starting-point of its own religion and the doctrine thereof.

S. Title. The doctrine of the New Jerusalem concerning the Holy Scripture.

10^o. 'The wall' and its 'foundations' = doctrine from the literal sense of the Word.

25. The reason the spiritual sense of the Word is at this day disclosed, is that the doctrine of genuine truth has now been revealed ; and this doctrine, and no other doctrine, agrees with the spiritual sense of the Word.

43. 'The foundations of the wall' = the external of the Word, which is the sense of its letter ; for it is this from which doctrine comes, and, through doctrine, the Church.

—^o. 'The twelve precious stones' = the truths and goods of the Word in their order, from which comes doctrine, and, through doctrine, the Church.

50. That the doctrine of the Church is to be drawn from the sense of the letter of the Word, and confirmed thereby. Gen.art. T.225.

52. Hence it is evident, that they who read the Word without doctrine, or who do not procure for themselves doctrine from the Word, are in obscurity about every Truth, and their mind is unsettled and uncertain, prone to errors, and ready for heresies . . . For to them the Word is a candlestick without a light, and in the shade they see as it were many things, yet really see scarcely anything ; for doctrine is the only lamp. I have seen such persons examined by the Angels, and they were found to be able to confirm from the Word whatever they wanted . . . and I have seen them stripped of their garments ; a sign that they were devoid of truths.

[S.] 53. The reason why doctrine is to be drawn from and confirmed by the sense of the letter of the Word, is that the Lord is present with man there and nowhere else, and enlightens and teaches him the truths of the Church; and the Lord never operates anything except in what is full . . .

54. The reason the Word is not only understood by means of doctrine, but also as it were shines by means of it, is that the Word without doctrine is not understood, and is like a candlestick without a light . . . Therefore the Word is understood by means of doctrine, and is like a candlestick with a lighted light. Man then sees more things than he had seen before; and also understands those things which before he had not understood; things obscure and discordant he either does not see and passes over, or he sees and explains them so that they may agree with the doctrine. That the Word is seen from doctrine, and is also explained according thereto, is witnessed by experience in the Christian world; for all the Reformed see the Word from their own doctrine, and explain the Word according thereto; in like manner do the Papists from and according to it; and so do the Jews from and according to it; consequently, falsities from false doctrine, and truths from true doctrine. Hence it is evident that true doctrine is like a lamp in the darkness, and a finger-post on the road. Doctrine, however, is not only to be drawn from the sense of the letter of the Word, but is also to be confirmed thereby; for, if it is not confirmed thereby, the truth of doctrine appears as if only the intelligence of man were in it, and not the Divine wisdom of the Lord; and thus doctrine would be like a house in the air . . .

55. The doctrine of genuine truth can be fully drawn also from the literal sense of the Word. For the Word in this sense is like a man clothed, whose face and hands are bare. All the things which belong to the life of man, thus to his salvation, are bare; but the rest are clothed; and in many places where they are clothed they shine through, as the face does through a thin veil. The truths of the Word are also multiplied from the love of them; and as they are set in order by love, they shine through and appear more and more clearly through their garments; but this, too, is effected by means of doctrine.

56. It may be believed that the doctrine of genuine truth can be procured by means of the spiritual sense of the Word which is given by means of a knowledge of correspondences; but doctrine is not procured thereby, but is only enlightened and strengthened; for . . . no one comes into the spiritual sense of the Word by means of correspondences, unless he is first in genuine truths from doctrine . . . It is better, therefore, for a man to study the Word in the sense of the letter; from this only is doctrine given.

57. That the genuine truth, which must be of doctrine, does not appear in the sense of the letter of the Word to any but those who are in enlightenment from the Lord. Gen.art. . . Enlightenment is from the Lord alone, and exists with those who love truths because they are truths, and make them uses of life . . .

59. With these, the first thing is to procure for themselves doctrine from the literal sense of the Word;

thus they light a lamp for their further advancement. After the doctrine has been procured . . . from it they see the Word. But they who do not procure doctrine for themselves, first inquire whether the doctrine given by others . . . agrees with the Word; and to those things which agree they assent, and from those which do not agree, they dissent; thus it becomes to them their own doctrine; and, through doctrine, their own faith. But this takes place only with those who, not being distracted by the business of the world, are able to see. These, if they love truths because they are truths, and make them uses of life, are in enlightenment from the Lord. The rest, who are in some life according to truths, can learn from them.

60. The contrary takes place with those who read the Word from the doctrine of a false religion; and still more with those who confirm that doctrine from the Word, and at the same time regard their own glory or the wealth of the world. With these, the truth of the Word is as in the shade of night, and falsity as in the light of day . . .

F. 39. (The doctrines of the Old Church enum.) 70.

W. 209. The doctrine of degrees.

P. 101^e. In the Spiritual World . . . it is not asked what has been your faith, nor what has been your doctrine, but what has been your life . . . For it is known that as a man's life is, so is his faith, yea, so is his doctrine; for the life makes a doctrine for itself, and it makes a faith for itself.

154. That it is a law of the Divine Providence that man should be led and taught by means of the Word, doctrine, and preachings from it; and this in all appearance as by himself. Gen.art.

171. That man is led by the Lord by means of the Word, doctrines, and preachings from it, and thus immediately from Himself alone. Gen.art.

326^{l2}. 'The new cart' upon which they sent back the ark = a new doctrine, but a natural one.

338^s. That the doctrines of the Churches in the Christian world, when interiorly regarded, are against instantaneous salvation . . . Interiorly regarded, the doctrines of all Churches teach life; for what doctrine of the Church is there which does not teach that man is to examine himself, see and acknowledge his sins, confess them, perform repentance, and afterwards live a new life . . . Of what Church is there a doctrine which is not founded upon the commandments of the decalogue . . . In the Athanasian creed, which is the doctrine received in the whole Christian world, it is said, that the Lord will come to judge the quick and the dead, and then they who have done good things will enter into eternal life, and they who have done evil things, into eternal fire . . .

R. I. The doctrinal things of the Roman Catholic Church and religion in a summary form.

Ia. The doctrinal things of the Church and religion of the Reformed in a summary form.

S. 'Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of the prophecy, and that observe the things which are written therein' = the communion with the

Angels of Heaven of those who live according to the doctrine of the New Jerusalem. . . 'The words of the prophecy'=the doctrine of the New Jerusalem; for 'a prophet'=the doctrine of the Church from the Word, thus, here, the doctrine of the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. (See PROPHECY here.)

52. 'Out of His mouth goeth a sharp two-edged sword'=the dispersion of falsities by means of the Word, and by means of doctrine thence from the Lord. S27.

73. 'To the Angel of the Church in Ephesus write'=to those and concerning those who regard the truths of doctrine as of the greatest importance, and not the goods of life.

82. The goods of life are to be regarded in the first place, that is, as of the greatest importance; for in proportion as a man is in the goods of life, he is really in the truths of doctrine, but not conversely. The reason is, that the goods of life open the interiors of the mind; and when these are opened truths appear in their own light, from which they are not only understood, but are also loved. It is otherwise when doctrinal things are regarded as of the greatest importance; then, indeed, truths can be known, but not interiorly seen, and loved from spiritual affection. Every Church at its beginning regards the goods of life as in the first place, and the truths of doctrine as in the second; but as the Church declines, it begins to regard the truths of doctrine as in the first place, and the goods of life as in the second. . .

97. 'The synagogue of Satan'=because they are in falsities as to doctrine. 'A synagogue'=doctrine. E. 120.

—⁴. Who does not know that the Church is not the Church without doctrine? and doctrine must teach how man is to think about God and from God, and how he is to do from God and with God; wherefore doctrine must be from truths. . .

114. 'Thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam. . .' (Rev.ii.14)=that among them there are those who do hypocritical works.

115. 'So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which I hate' (ver.15)=that among them there are also those who do meritorious works.

136. 'I gave her time to repent of her whoredom, and she repented not'=that those who have confirmed themselves in that doctrine do not recede from it, although they see things contrary in the World.

137. 'I will cast her into a bed, and them that commit adultery with her into great affliction'=that thus they are to be left in their own doctrine with the falsifications, and that they are to be grievously infested by falsities.

— The reason 'a bed'=doctrine, is from the correspondence; for as the body lies in its own bed, so does the mind in its own doctrine: but 'a bed'=the doctrine which a man acquires either from the Word, or from his own intelligence; for in this his mind is at rest, and as it were sleeps. Ill.

142. 'I say unto you; and to the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine' (Rev.ii.24)=to those with whom there is the doctrine of faith separated from charity; and to those with whom there is the doctrine of faith conjoined with charity.

194. 'The name of the city of my God, of the New Jerusalem'=that the doctrine of the New Church shall be inscribed on their hearts. . . When the New Jerusalem is called 'a city' it=the New Church as to doctrine. E. 223.

320. 'A horse'=the understanding of the Word; and 'pale'=no vitality. There is nothing vital in the Word with those who are not in goods of life from truths of doctrine; for the Word in the sense of the letter is not understood without doctrine; and doctrine is not perceived without a life according to the doctrine. The reason is, that a life according to the doctrine which is from the Word opens the spiritual mind, and the light from Heaven inflows into it and enlightens, and gives to perceive. That it is so he does not know who knows truths of doctrine, and yet does not live according to them.

360. 'Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand'=the doctrine of good and truth with those who will be of the Lord's New Heaven and New Church.

—². The reason 'Joseph,' here,=the doctrine of good and truth, is that he is here in the place of Ephraim, by whom is signified the Intellectual of the Church. . . which is entirely from the doctrine of good and truth from the Word.

361. 'Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand'=the life of truth from good according to doctrine with those who will be in the Lord's New Heaven and New Church.

489. By truths of doctrine are meant truths from the Word, because therefrom is the doctrine of the Church and everything belonging to it.

532. 'A great sign seen in heaven'=a revelation from the Lord concerning His New Church. . . and concerning the difficult reception of and assault upon its doctrine.

535. 'Having in her womb she cried, travailling, and tormented to bring forth'=the nascent doctrine of the New Church, and its difficult reception on account of the resistance offered by those who are meant by 'the dragon.'

542. 'The dragon stood before the woman that was about to bring forth, that after she had brought forth, he might devour her child'=that those who are meant by 'the dragon' are eager to extinguish the doctrine of the New Church at its first birth. E. 713. 722.

543. 'And she brought forth a male son'=the doctrine of the New Church. E. 711. 724.

— The doctrine which is here meant is the Doctrine of the New Jerusalem, published in London in 1758; also the Doctrine concerning the Lord, concerning the Holy Scripture, and concerning a Life according to the Commandments of the Decalogue, published at Amsterdam. For by the doctrine are meant all the truths of doctrine, because doctrine is their complex. While these doctrines were being written, the dragonists stood around me, and strove with perfect fury to devour, that is, to extinguish them.

545. 'And her child was caught up to God and to His throne'=the protection of the doctrine by the Lord, because it is for the New Church; and its guardianship by the Angels of Heaven. E.728. (See M.533.)

[R.] 554. 'The accuser of our brethren is cast down, who accuseth before our God days and nights'=that by the Last Judgment they have been removed who had opposed themselves to the doctrine of the New Jerusalem.

571. 'Upon his heads the name of blasphemy'=the denial of the Lord's Divine Human; and a doctrine of the Church hatched from their own intelligence, and not from the Word.

576. 'I saw one of his heads as it were wounded unto death'=that this thing of doctrine, which is the head of all the rest, that man is justified and saved by faith alone without the works of the law, does not agree with the Word, where works are so often commanded. E.785. —^e. Everything of the doctrine of the Church which does not agree with the Word, is not sound, but is sick with a deadly disease; for the doctrine of the Church must be from the Word, and from no other source.

819. 'The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy'=that the acknowledgment that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth, and at the same time a life according to His precepts, in a universal sense, is the whole of the Word and of the doctrine thence derived.

898. 'Having a wall great and high'=the Word in the sense of the letter from which is the doctrine of the New Church.

—^e. The doctrine of the New Church, which is signified by 'the city,' is solely from the sense of the letter of the Word.

902. 'And the wall of the city having twelve foundations'=that the Word in the sense of the letter contains all things of the doctrine of the New Church. T.209^o.

—^e. The Church is founded upon doctrine; for it teaches how we are to believe and how we are to live; and doctrine is to be drawn from no other source than the Word. That it is to be drawn from the sense of the letter of the Word, see S.50-61. As all things of doctrine are signified by the twelve foundations of the wall . . . and the Church is the Church from doctrine, these foundations are specifically treated of below.

—². Doctrinal things from the Word are also signified by 'foundations' in the following places. III.

903. 'And in them the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb'=all things of doctrine from the Word concerning the Lord and concerning a life according to His precepts. . . The reason all things of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem relate to these two things, is that they are the universals of it, upon which all the singulars depend; and they are the essential things from which all the formal things proceed; they are therefore as the life and soul of all things of its doctrine. They are indeed two, but the one cannot be separated from the other; for to separate them would be like separating the Lord from man and man from the Lord; and in this case there is no Church. These two are conjoined together as are the two tables of the Law . . . These things are said in order that it may be known, that all things of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem relate to love to the Lord and to love towards the neighbour . . .

904. 'He that spake with me had a golden reed, to measure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof'=that there is given by the Lord to those who are in the good of love the capacity of understanding and of knowing the quality of the Lord's New Church as to doctrine and its introductory truths, and as to the Word from which they are.

914. 'The foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every precious stone'=that all things of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem taken from the sense of the letter of the Word will appear therein in light according to the reception with those who are therein.

915. (The enumeration of the twelve precious foundation stones)=all the things of that doctrine from the sense of the letter of the Word in their order with those who approach the Lord immediately, and live according to the commandments of the Decalogue by shunning evils as sins; for these and no others are in the doctrine of love to God and of love towards the neighbour, which are the two foundations of religion.

M. 82. A man came running . . . and said, Are you the man . . . who teaches that the Lord will endow with love truly conjugal those who embrace the doctrinal things of this New Church? . . . Tell me in a summary what are the doctrinal things of the New Church . . . I replied, The doctrinal things of the Church which is meant by the New Jerusalem, are these: I. That there is one God, in Whom is the Divine Trinity, and that He is the Lord Jesus Christ. II. That saving faith is to believe in Him. III. That evil things are to be shunned, because they are of the devil, and from the devil. IV. That good things are to be done, because they are of God and from God. V. That these are to be done by man as by himself, but that it is to be believed that they are from the Lord with him and through him. . . Looking at me with a grim expression, he said, Are these five precepts the doctrinal things of faith and charity of the New Church? I replied, They are.

B. Title. A Brief Exposition of the Doctrine of the New Church . . .

1. I have resolved to give to light the doctrine of this Church in its fullness, thus the whole doctrine. But as this will be a work of some years, I have thought it advisable to publish a sort of sketch of it, in order that a general idea of this Church and its doctrine may first be conceived . . .

—^e. But the modern doctrinal things concerning justification are to be given first . . . 2. 9.

53. That the doctrine of the modern Church is interwoven with many paradoxes . . . and therefore its dogmas enter the memory only . . .

56. I will add this arcanum from Heaven: All these paradoxes inhere in human minds made up as it were into one bundle . . . and all enter at once into each individual utterance from the doctrine of the Church . . . The man himself does not see this conglomeration of them, but the Angels with the man see it, and call it Malua, that is, confusion and thick darkness.

T. 177². From the faith of every Church arises . . . everything that is dogmatic ; wherefore it may be said that such as the faith is, such is its doctrine . . . The faith is the principle, and the doctrinal things are the derivatives ; and the derivatives derive their essence from the principle. If anyone submits the several doctrinal things to examination, as that concerning God, the Person of Christ, charity, repentance, regeneration, free-will, election, the use of the sacraments . . . he will clearly see that a trinity of gods is in everyone of them . . .

245. The Church is according to its doctrine . . . but still doctrine does not establish the Church, but the soundness and purity of the doctrine, consequently, the understanding of the Word. But doctrine does not establish and make the special Church which is with the individual man ; but faith and a life according to it.

391². The Angel said . . . What is thy doctrine, and thence religion ? He replied, Faith.

—⁴. The Angel said . . . What is thy doctrine and thence religion ? He replied, Faith and charity.

463. Before . . . delivering what is doctrinal of the New Church concerning free-will . . .

508⁵. In the New Church it is allowable to enter with the understanding . . . into all its secrets, and also to confirm them by the Word. This is because its doctrinal things are continuous truths disclosed by the Lord through the Word . . .

703². The Lord's doctrine concerning His flesh and blood . . .

779. That this Second Advent of the Lord is effected by means of a man . . . whom He has filled with His spirit, to teach the doctrines of the New Church through the Word from Himself. Gen.art.

— . Since the Lord cannot manifest Himself in person . . . it follows that He would do it by means of a man, who is able not only to receive the doctrines of this Church in the understanding, but also to publish them in print.

—^e. From the first day of this call, I have not received anything that concerns the doctrines of this Church from any Angel, but from the Lord alone, while I read the Word.

D. 458². By this (conspiracy to kill me) it seemed to me to be signified that the interior things of the doctrine received at this day thus conspired against the more interior and inmost things, to which they did not want to attach any faith . . .

523³. Thus is doctrine delivered orally among the gentiles, which goes no further than that nation.

739. The doctrine of reflections is an entire doctrine . . .

2946^e. They could not deny it, because they could not do so from doctrine . . . from which it is evident how man is persuaded concerning Truth from doctrine alone.

3442. (Thus) a single expression of the Word . . . can induce a whole false doctrine, or heresy, and thus a false life. Examps.

3784. Whenever they wanted to explore the doctrinal things (of the Quakers), they would turn away . . . For they do not want to speak with others about their own doctrinal things, nor about those of others . . .

4294. That matters of knowledge and doctrinal things are nothing, unless man so does. . . I spoke with the Spirits or Angels, but whenever I advanced anything doctrinal or that was a matter of knowledge, they did not want to admit it, saying that there is no need of such things ; they disturb the quiet, because they are in them . . . Hence . . . I was taught that they who are in Heaven do not admit doctrinal things, except for use ; and that doctrinal things are merely that a man may become such, being of service to men on earth, and to Souls who newly arrive from the world.

4749. (Er. Benz.) was in the doctrine of the Church from memory, and nothing from himself.

4759². On those who do not seek out and make fixed doctrinal things from the Word, but merely remain in the sense of the letter.

4762. No one ought to remain blindly in the literal sense of the Word . . . but he ought to form true doctrine for himself from the Word . . . He who thence forms true doctrine for himself is able to see why the Word so speaks in the letter . . .

4775. (The Angels told them) that they would receive the whole doctrine of the Church from Heaven.

4781. The reason the Lord was born on this Earth, was that in this Earth the doctrine published from Heaven can be propagated through the whole globe, and remain for thousands of years . . . Moreover, when the heavenly doctrine concerning the Lord is known on one Earth, all the others are able to know it when they become Spirits and Angels.

4792². They who say that they have a sensation, were told that this sensation is not the perception of truth, but the sensation of the confirmation of their doctrine, and that it comes from the influx of those who have been in that doctrine in the world . . .

4824. Therefore Paul was not permitted to take a single parable, not even a doctrine, from the Lord . . .

4840. Babel consists in domineering by means of the doctrine of the Church . . .

4853. Such good dogs are the appetites of saying and teaching such things as are of doctrine.

4932². The reason there are such whoredoms and adulteries in these cities, is that . . . they make the whole of the Church to consist in doctrine, and not in life ; and also because they do not care whether their doctrinal things are false or true ; and the falsifications of doctrine are whoredoms.

4937. If anyone from another doctrine comes in, and thinks about the things which are being preached, the preacher is disturbed, and cannot preach . . .

5054. When those who are on the higher mountain think evilly about the doctrine of the Church, those who are below persecute the good, especially virgins and the wives of others. When they say that the doctrine is false and evil, those who are lower down on the mountain want to commit whoredom and adultery with the women of those whom they say are in the falsity or evil of doctrine.

[D.] 5067. There are many who care nothing for the doctrine of the Church, but only for the Word in the letter . . . 5070^d. 5083.

5104. A place for those who are continually wrangling about the doctrinal things of the Church . . .

5107. I felt a pain in the great toe of the left foot ; the reason being that this toe corresponds to those who . . . are continually wrangling about doctrinal things : they induce a pain in this toe.

5152^a. Love towards the neighbour consists in this, that they love to do those things which the doctrine of their Church dictates.

5370. Those are meant by 'the dragon' who want no doctrine, but only the Word in the letter . . . 5422, Des.

5451. They who are in some doctrine, although it is not so very true, and yet are in the good of life, are in Heaven ; for the falsity of doctrine is not falsity when there is good in it : all in Heaven differ as to truths. But they who are in no doctrine are not able to be in Heaven.

5473. (The situation at the Last Judgment of those who had cared nothing for the doctrine of the Church, shown by a diagram.) 5474.

5474. They who do not care for doctrine have not a fixed but a vague faith, therefore they have no Intellectual that can be enlightened in the other life.

5520. The doctrine of the Church passes immediately into the life with those who become celestial ; they live simply according to it when they know it . . . Whereas with the spiritual the doctrine of the Church passes first into the memory, and thence into the understanding and into the life ; and they reason whether it is so.

5589^b. So also do the preachers speak, every one from his own doctrine . . .

5913^e. They who come from the world, and are in a like doctrine, come to those who are in a like one.

5917. With men who teach and who reason about Divine truths, there are two states ; one when they are teaching and thinking from doctrine, the other when they are thinking in themselves outside of doctrine ; when they are in the former state, they are not in a state from themselves, because they are only in thought from doctrine ; and when they are in this state, they know no otherwise than that it is truths they are speaking . . . Whereas, when they are in the second state, they are in themselves, and think from their own will or love, thus from their own life ; and then they do not think anything from what is doctrinal. This state is the proper state of the man . . .

5918. With those who are in doctrinal things concerning faith alone, yet are in some good of life, there are also two states : when they are in doctrinal things they are in their own light . . . whereas when they are by themselves, and are thinking within themselves, as they are in some obscure good of life, their ideas are also in obscurity . . . for they are then thinking outside of what is doctrinal that the good of life saves man. This took place with Luther . . .

5929^e. They who had been in no doctrine, and had merely known something from the sense of the letter of the Word, cast down a sphere of infamous adultery with an aunt or a daughter-in-law ; which adultery is from the lowest Hell, with which they have communication.

D. Min. 4803. On those who are in the principles of their own doctrinal things. (See BEAR=ursus-at this ref.)

E. 10^o. The acknowledgment of the Lord is the very life or soul of all the doctrine in the Church.

19. 'John' = the Lord as to doctrine.

—^e. Hence it is, that the Lord, as He is the Word, is also the doctrine of the Church ; for all doctrine is from the Word. Refs.

45. 'I John' = doctrine concerning the Lord ; (for 'John,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord as to doctrine ; wherefore he = doctrine concerning the Lord ; for to Know the Lord is the principal thing of all things of doctrine, or their first and last.

114^d. Man is in one state when he is thinking and speaking from doctrine, and in another when outside of doctrine. When he is thinking and speaking from doctrine, he is thinking and speaking from the memory of his natural man ; but when outside of doctrine, from his spirit . . . The state of man after death is such as has been the thought and speech of his spirit outside of doctrine, and not such as they have been from doctrine, if the latter has not been one with the former. Ex. J. (Post.) 34.

115. They merely acquiesce in the doctrinal things of their own Church, and do not care whether they are true or false . . .

142. 'Them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which I hate' = those who separate good from truth, or charity from faith.

160. 'Calling herself a prophetess to teach and to seduce My servants' = that thence is the doctrine of all falsities.

—^e. By 'Jezebel' are described those who are in the doctrine of all falsities from the delights of the loves of self and of the world.

170. 'Whosoever hath not this doctrine' = those with whom external delight . . . does not dominate . . . By 'doctrine' is here signified life ; thus 'not to have doctrine' = not to live according to it ; for it is meant to have doctrine in themselves ; and to have doctrine in themselves is to have it in the life. Hence it is evident, that 'the doctrine' of Jezebel = the life of the love of self and the world.

190. 'To observe' = attention, such as exists with those who are in the spiritual affection of truth ; for when these read the Word, they do not see it from the doctrine of the Church where they were born ; but they see it as it were separated therefrom ; for they want to be enlightened, and to see truths within themselves, and not from others. They who are in this state are enlightened by the Lord, and it is given them to make doctrine for themselves from the truths which they themselves see, which doctrine is also implanted in them, and remains in their spirit to eternity. But they who read the Word from the doctrine which is from others, cannot see truths from the light of their own spirit, thus not within themselves, but without themselves; for they think that it is true because others have seen it; and they therefore attend only to things confirmatory; all other things they either pass over as if they did not see them, or draw to the side of the things which the doctrine dictates. Everyone can see that these persons cannot be enlightened. . . Hence it is that they remain natural as before. . . This, therefore, is what is meant by 'Remember how thou hast received and heard, and observe.'

200³. If this is assumed for doctrine . . . that the Lord is one with the Father . . . light will be seen in each thing in the Word; for that which is assumed for doctrine and acknowledged from doctrine is in light when the Word is read. . . On the other hand, if it is assumed for doctrine . . . that the Divine of the Father is different from the Divine of the Lord, nothing in the Word will be seen in light. . .

233. 'Because thou art lukewarm'=those who live from the doctrine concerning faith alone and justification thereby. —², Ex.

— There are two states of faith and thence of life, or of life and thence of the faith of the men who are in the Church; one from doctrine, and the other from the Word or preaching from the Word. Scarcely anyone knows that there are these two states. Ex.

250¹⁰. I foresee that those who have confirmed themselves in the doctrine concerning faith alone . . . will not recede from it, because they connect falsities with truths; for they teach truths when they teach from the Word, and they teach falsities when they teach from doctrine; and thence confound the two together by saying that the goods of life are the fruits of faith. . .

256. All the things of the Church relate to these four general things; to wit, to doctrine, to life according to doctrine, to faith according to life, (and to temptations). Doctrine is treated of in the address to the Churches in Ephesus and Smyrna; life according to doctrine, in that to the Churches in Thyatira and Sardis; faith according to life in the address to the Churches in Philadelphia and Laodicea; and as doctrine cannot be implanted in the life and become a matter of faith, unless the man fights against evils and falsities. . . this is treated of in the address to the Church in Pergamos.

356². That no one can understand the Word without doctrine. . . For . . . there are many things in the sense of the letter which cannot at this day serve for any doctrine of the Church; and also many things which can be applied to various and diverse principles, the source of heresies; but still there are many things intermingled from which doctrine can be collected and formed, especially the doctrine of life, which is the doctrine of charity and thence of faith. Whereas he who reads the Word from doctrine sees all the things there which confirm it, and also many things which lie hidden before the eyes of others; nor does he suffer himself to be drawn away into strange things by those things there which do not appear to agree, and which he does not understand; for all the things of doctrine which he sees there are to him in clearness, and the rest are to him in obscurity; wherefore the doctrine which consists of genuine truths is as a lamp to those who are reading the Word; and on the other hand, to those who read it without doctrine, the Word is like a candlestick set in a dark place without a light. . . 1089².

—³. Secondly: That no one can fight against evils and falsities, and dissipate them, without doctrine from the Word, may be evident from the fact, that from doctrine truths can be seen in their own light and in their own order, but not from the Word without doctrine. . . and if truths cannot be seen, neither can falsities and evils. . . and yet all combat against evils and falsities is from truths, that is, by means of truths from the Lord; wherefore he who reads the Word without doctrine may easily fight for falsity against truth and for evil against good. . . This, therefore, is what is meant by a white horse being seen, and by him that sat upon it having a bow. . .

—⁴. Third: That without doctrine from the Word no one can become spiritual within the Church where the Word is. . . For man becomes spiritual by a life according to Divine truths, which he does not know without doctrine; and by the removal of evils and falsities, which is not effected without doctrine. . . And without these two things man is not reformed, thus does not become spiritual, but remains natural, and confirms his natural life by the sense of the letter of the Word, which is natural; interpreting and applying it in a sinister manner.

—⁵. Fourth: That doctrine cannot be procured from any other source than the Word, and not by any others than those who are in enlightenment from the Lord. . . In each thing of the Word there is a spiritual sense, in which are the Angels; thence it is that through the Word there is conjunction of Heaven with the Church, wherefore they who make doctrine from any other source than the Word, do not make it in conjunction with Heaven, which, however, is the source of enlightenment. 1089².

—⁶. Fifth: That all things of doctrine are to be confirmed by means of the sense of the letter of the Word. (For) Divine truth in the sense of the letter is in its fulness; for this sense is the ultimate one, and in it is the spiritual sense, wherefore when doctrine has been thence confirmed, the doctrine of the Church is also the doctrine of Heaven, and there is conjunction through correspondences. This may be illustrated thus: When a man thinks any truth, and confirms it by means of the sense of the letter, it is perceived in Heaven; but not if he does not confirm it. . . 593⁴.

376²⁷. These things are said (in Is. v. 11, 12, 21, 22) of those who make for themselves doctrinal things from their own intelligence, and not from the Lord, or from the Word by Him; whence come mere falsities.

384. 'There was given them the Power to kill over the fourth part of the earth'=the deprivation of all the good and thence of all the truth from the Word, and thence in the doctrine of their Church from the Word.

386¹. By these words (in Is. xlv. 10-12) there is described the formation of doctrine from proprium in both the understanding and the love. 587⁷.

—⁷. 'Prophets'=those who teach the truths of doctrine; and, in the abstract sense, the doctrinal things of truth. Hence it is evident what is signified by all these things (in Jer.xiv.12-16); namely, that those who teach the doctrine of what is false and evil will perish by those things which are signified by 'the sword' and 'the famine;' and that those also who receive this doctrine from them are separated from all the truth of the Church and condemned, is signified by their being 'cast out into the streets of Jerusalem,' and by there being 'none to bury them.'

[E.] 435⁴. In the inmost sense is the Lord alone . . . But in the internal sense it treats of Heaven and the Church, and doctrine is delivered.

454. 'From every nation and tribe'=all who are in good as to life according to the doctrinal things of their own religion.

455¹². 'Peoples of a deep lip and a heavy tongue, whose words are not heard'=those who are in a doctrine which is not intelligible, and thence in an abstruse religion, the dogmas of which are not perceivable. 'Lip'=doctrine.

518. 'It fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters'=that thence perished all the understanding of truth, and thereby the doctrine of the Church. . . (For) 'a fountain of waters'=the Word, and doctrine from the Word.

520. 'The third part became wormwood'=that all the truth in the understanding and in the doctrine is mingled with the falsity of evil.

537¹³. 'To hew out pits, broken pits that will hold no waters'=to hatch doctrinal things from their own intelligence, which, because they are from proprium, are false . . .

545². By scientifics from the Word are meant all things of the sense of the letter there, in which there does not appear what is doctrinal; but by the Knowledge of truth and good are meant all things of the sense of the letter of the Word, in which and from which there is what is doctrinal.

585⁷. By these words (Is.xvii.7,8) is meant that everything of doctrine must be from the Lord, and not from the proprium of man, which is the case when the man is in the spiritual affection of truth, that is, when he loves truth because it is truth, and not chiefly because it is reputation and a name to him.

587. See IDOL at this ref.

612. The Word is the doctrine of Divine truth.

618². The truth of doctrine which is interiorly collected from the sense of the letter of the Word, and is called its literal sense, becomes undelightful to those who are in the falsities of evil. Sig.

714⁴. They who study the Word without doctrine, form the externals of the dragon. —¹¹.

724. 'The male son'=the genuine truth of the Church, hence also its doctrine; for the truth of the Church from the Word is doctrine; for this contains the truths which are for the Church. But the genuine doctrine of the Church is the doctrine of good, thus the doctrine of life, which is that of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour; but still it is the doctrine of truth; for doctrine teaches life, love, and charity; and in so far as it teaches them it is true . . .

—². This doctrine, which is here signified by 'the male son,' is chiefly the doctrine of love to the Lord, and of charity towards the neighbour, thus the doctrine of the good of life, which nevertheless is the doctrine of truth. Ex.

—³. That this doctrine is for the New Church which is called the New Jerusalem, is because this 'woman' . . . is she who is called 'the bride, the Lamb's wife' . . .

— . The reason 'a male son'=the doctrine of the Church, is also because 'a son'=truth, and the doctrine of the Church is truth in the whole complex. 725, Ex. and III.

725². The reason these two things, to wit, doctrine and life, taken together, and conjoined as it were in marriage, are called 'man,' and also make the Church, is that man is man from the understanding of truth and from the will of good, and therefore from the doctrine of life, because this is of the understanding, and from the life of doctrine, because this is of the will.

—³. It is the same with doctrine and life; these also make one man of the Church when the doctrine of life and the life of doctrine are conjoined together in him; for doctrine teaches how we are to live and act, and life lives and does it. From this also it is evident that 'the male son'=the doctrine of love and charity, thus the doctrine of life.

—⁴. As the truth of doctrine or the doctrine of truth is signified by 'a male,' the law was given 'That every male opening the womb was to be holy to Jehovah.' . . . The truth first born is the doctrine of truth; for this which is the first is everything in the things which follow, thus it is all truth; and all truth is doctrine . . .

730. The Church is called 'a wilderness' when there is no longer what is good, and where there is no good, neither are there truths; and when the Church is of such a character, evils and falsities reign, which prevent the reception of its doctrine, which is the doctrine of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour, together with the truths of this doctrine; and when doctrine is not received, there is no Church, for the Church is from doctrine.

732². The reasons the New Church . . . will at first commence with a few . . . are; first, that its doctrine, which is the doctrine of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour, can only be acknowledged and received by those who are interiorly affected with truths, who are no others than those who are able to see them; and they alone see them who have cultivated their intellectual capacity, and have not destroyed it by the loves of self and of the world. The second reason is that the doctrine of this Church can only be acknowledged and thence received by those who have not confirmed themselves in doctrine, and at the same time in life, in faith alone; if only in doctrine, it does not prevent, but if at the same time in life, it does prevent; for these do not know what love to the Lord is, nor what charity towards the neighbour is, nor do they want to know.

758. 'He persecuted the woman who brought forth the male'=that those who are meant by the dragon would from hatred and enmity reject and calumniate the Church which is the New Jerusalem, because it has the doctrine of life.

778^o. Even in its ultimates the Word is like a man . . . whose face and hands are bare ; wherefore it cannot fail but that the doctrine of genuine good and genuine truth can be seen from the sense of the letter of the Word by those who are enlightened by the Lord, and confirmed by those who are not enlightened. 816^o.

790^o. In this storehouse for the formation of the spiritual man there must be truths which are to be believed, and goods which are to be done, both from the Word, and from doctrine and from preaching from the Word.

794. 'A mouth speaking great things and blasphemies' = doctrine destroying the goods of the Word, and uttering its truths.

796^o. That the doctrine of faith separated from life (destroys the Church), may be evident from the fact, that the doctrine of the Church is the doctrine of faith; and that the doctrine of life, which is called moral theology, is an out-of-doors doctrine, of service to the Church if one likes . . .

797¹⁰. How doctrine closes, and how life opens. Ex.

799. 'And His tabernacle'=all the doctrine of the Church and the worship thence derived. III.

— The Church is the Church from life according to doctrine ; and life according to doctrine is worship.

810^o. That they shut themselves out from all the Divine truths in the Word, may be evident from all things of their doctrine.

811^o. The ultimate of doctrine is the sense of the letter of the Word.

816^o. Hence it is that those who read the Word without doctrine, are carried away into manifold errors.

826^o. From this it is evident, how full is the doctrine of love to the Lord ; for it is the doctrine of all the affections which are of love ; and each affection has truths inscribed on it . . .

834. The Angels of the ultimate Heaven . . . do not see truths in light, as do the Angels of the Second Heaven ; but they receive, acknowledge, and believe them from the doctrine in which they are instructed before they are admitted into Heaven.

844. 'Here is wisdom'=that this is their doctrine in the whole complex ; which is reputed as wisdom, although it is insanity.

850^o. The ark of Jehovah was translated into Zion by David . . . Hence it is that Jerusalem which lay under that mountain = the Church as to doctrine ; for all the doctrine of the Church is from the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord ; consequently, from the Word.

867^o. It is inevitable that man should think what is false and only evil, both because he is born in evils of every kind, and also because the doctrines of the Church at this day are not doctrines of life, but are only doctrines of faith ; and the doctrine of faith separated from life does not teach the truths by means of which a man can be reformed as to the life.

1019. Doctrine treats of the truths which are called of faith, and of the goods which are of love ; hence it is called the doctrine of truth and the doctrine of good.

1045. 'Having a golden cup in her hand full of the abominations and uncleanness of whoredoms' = doctrine from profaned goods and truths. . . All the truth or falsity of the Church is contained in doctrine ; therefore 'a cup' = doctrine.

1088. The Church is from no other source than doctrine ; for such as the doctrine is, such is the Church.

1150. In this verse are enumerated the things which are of worship ; but in the former verse, the things which are of doctrine. . . Doctrine and worship are distinguished by this, that doctrine teaches how God is to be worshipped, and how man is to live in order that he may recede from Hell and approach Heaven ; but worship does these things ; for worship is both oral and actual.

Ath. 16. That the Lord is God and omnipotent, is the fundamental of all things of the doctrine of the Church. 64.

J. (Post.) 23. All are prepared for Heaven or Hell according to the life in agreement with doctrine.

34. See LUTHER at this ref.

186. The son whom the woman was about to bring forth = the doctrine concerning the Lord, and concerning the life of charity ; as was evident from this, that when this doctrine was being described, there were present a number of those who are in faith alone, and they were in such a state of fury that I could scarcely have written unless I had been protected by the Lord through Angels ; and it appeared as if they wanted to tear it to pieces.

De Verbo 5⁴. Everything of the doctrine of the Church is to be drawn out from the sense of the letter of the Word, and confirmed thereby ; and not by the pure spiritual sense ; for by means of this sense alone there does not exist conjunction with Heaven and through Heaven with the Lord ; but by means of the sense of the letter.

9. It was found that (those who have for an end honours, gain, and reputation of learning) knew nothing of genuine truth from the Word, which might serve interiorly for doctrine.

107. There are many things in the sense of the letter which are naked . . . These things of the Word serve for the doctrine of the Church, because in them there are spiritual natural truths.

18⁴. From this it is evident, that unless the doctrine of the Church is collected and confirmed from the sense of the letter, it has no power, because it does not communicate ; but that doctrine has power which is from the sense of the letter and one with it. 20⁵.

21. No one can see the spiritual sense except from the doctrine of genuine truth ; from this he can see the spiritual sense when there is some knowledge of correspondences. But he who is in the doctrine of what is false cannot see anything of the spiritual sense ; he draws the correspondences which he sees to the falsities of his own doctrine. . . This is why it is not allowable for anyone in either the natural or Spiritual World to investigate the spiritual sense of the Word from the sense of its letter, unless he is entirely in the doctrine of Divine truth, and in enlightenment from the Lord; wherefore the spiritual sense can be seen from the doctrine of Divine truth confirmed from the sense of the letter; but doctrine can never be first seen from the spiritual sense. He thinks false things who says to himself, I know a number of correspondences, I am able to know the true doctrine of the Divine Word, the spiritual sense will teach it me. This cannot be done; but . . . he should say to himself, I know the doctrine of Divine truth; now I can see the spiritual sense, provided I know the correspondences.

De Conj. 83. They who read the Word without doctrine . . . produce adultery as of a father with his daughter-in-law.

Scia. 1. The doctrines of the New Church in a summary.

Can. God i. 1. The supreme and inmost thing of all the doctrinal things of the Church, and thence their universal, is the Knowledge and acknowledgment that there is one God.

Inv. ii. The doctrinal things which are contained in the True Christian Religion agree with the doctrinal things of the Roman Catholic Church, and with the doctrinal things of the Protestants, who acknowledge a personal union in Christ, and approach Christ, and take both the elements in the Eucharist.

25. If this Work is not added to the former one, the Church cannot be healed; it would be only like a palliative cure . . . The doctrine of the New Church does indeed apply a remedy, but only outwardly.

Coro. 18. 'The New Jerusalem descending from God out of heaven' = that the true doctrine of the Church is from no other source. The reason the doctrine descended, is that the Church is the Church from doctrine and according to it; without this, the Church is no more the Church than a man is a man without members, viscera, and organs . . .

20. (Before the Last Judgment) not any doctrine of the Church could be brought down from the Lord to the men of the Earth. Ex. . . But . . . after the last Judgment . . . with those who accommodate themselves, and suffer themselves to be led by the Lord, the doctrine of the New Heaven, which is the doctrine of truth and of good, is being distributed and introduced, as the dew of the dawning falls from heaven into the earth . . .

Doctrine of Faith. Doctrina Novae Hierosolymae de Fide.

L. Preface. The Work referred to. L.65°. Life 64°. P.242. R.67°. C.197.

Doctrine of the Holy Scripture. Doctrina Novae Hierosolymae de Scriptura Sacra.

L. Preface. The Work referred to. L.3. 14°. 65°. Life 14. 62, etc. W.208. 249. P.172. R.11, etc. C.41°. 314.

R. 543. This Work, and others, are signified by 'the man child.'

Doctrine of Life. Doctrina Vitae pro Novae Hierosolymae ex Praeceptis Decalogi.

L. Preface. The Work referred to. L.65°. F.12. 16, etc. W.425°. R.892. C.2. 9. 202. 203.

R. 543. This Work, and others, are signified by the 'man child.'

Doctrine of the Lord. Doctrina Novae Hierosolymae de Domino.

L. Preface. The Work referred to. S.2. 10, etc. Life 79°. F.37. W.282. P.172, etc. R.3, etc. B.33. C.201. Can. Redeemer ii., note. Redemption vii.7.

R. 472. 'When He cried, the seven thunders uttered their voices' = that the Lord will disclose through the universal Heaven what is in the little book. . . I will lay open what was in the little book. In the little book were the things which are contained in the Doctrine of the New Jerusalem concerning the Lord, from beginning to end, which are the following:— 479.

543. This Work, and others, are signified by 'the man child.'

Document. Documentum.

A. 1947. Occurs. 7362. H.184. 479°. W.275°. 391°. P.278a°. M.39. 158°. 220. T.459¹³. —¹⁷. 838°. D.820. 977. 1053. 1343. 1719. 1902. 2951. E.911°. 1198°. D.Love ix. D.Wis.x.6°.

Dodanim. Dodanim.

A. 1152. See CHITTIM at this ref.

Doeg. Doeg. E.799¹⁸.

Dog. Canis.

See Cerberus.

A. 45. Beasts are of two kinds; there are evil because hurtful ones, and there are good because gentle ones; the things in man which are evil are signified by such beasts as bears, wolves, dogs.

2125. There appeared a tree . . . into which a great viper was seen to rise up . . . On the tree with the viper vanishing, there appeared a dog. . . I was told, that the tree into which the viper rose up represented the state of the men of the Church such as they are at this day, that in place of love and charity there are deadly hatreds in them, which are also beset round with pretences of what is honourable and with deceits; there are also in them wicked cogitations about the things which are of faith. D.3993.

5566°. (The face of this robber Spirit) was like a rabid dog with gaping jaws.

7784. 'Against any of the sons of Israel shall not a dog move its tongue' (Ex.xi.7) = that with those who are of the Spiritual Church there shall not be the least of damnation and lamentation.

—³. Its being said 'shall not a dog move its tongue' is on account of the signification of a dog. 'A dog' = the lowest, or those who are mean-viles-in the Church; also those who are outside the Church; and also those who babble about such things as are of the Church, and understand but little: and, in the opposite sense, those who are entirely outside the faith of the Church, and who pour out abuse on the things which are of faith. That 'dogs' = those who are outside of the Church, is evident in Matt. xv. 26-28; Mark vii. 27, 28. Here, 'sons' = those who are within the Church; and 'dogs,' those who are outside of it. In like manner, by 'the dogs' which licked the sores of Lazarus' (Luke xvi. 21). By 'the rich man,' here, are meant those who are within the Church . . .

—4. 'Dogs' = those who are in the lowest place within the Church, and who babble much about such things as are of the Church; and, in the opposite sense, those who pour out abuse on the things which are of faith, in Is. lvi. 10; Ps. lix. 7, 15; lxviii. 24; Matt. vii. 6.

—e. Hence that which is the vilest thing of all, which is to be cast forth, is signified by 'a dead dog' (1 Sam. xxiv. 15; 2 Sam. ix. 8; xvi. 9).

9090°. In the Spiritual World, there frequently appear beasts of various kinds . . . Also evil beasts, as tigers, panthers, bears, dogs . . .

9231. 'Ye shall cast it to the dog' (Ex. xxii. 31) = that it is unclean. 'Dogs' = those who render the good of faith unclean by falsifications.

—2. The reason 'dogs' = those who render the good of faith unclean by falsifications, is that dogs eat unclean things, and also bark at and bite men. Hence it is that the gentiles who were outside of the Church in falsities from evil were called 'dogs' by the Jews, and were accounted most vile. That they were called 'dogs' is evident from the Lord's words to the Greek Syrophenician woman . . . That by 'dogs,' here, are signified those who were outside of the Church . . . is evident.

—3. In like manner . . . 'the dogs which licked the sores of Lazarus' = those who, being outside of the Church, are in good, although not in the genuine good of faith . . .

—4. 'Without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers' (Rev. xxii. 15) . . . = those who falsify the good and truth of faith; who are said to be 'without' when they are outside of Heaven or the Church.

—4. That good falsified, and thus made unclean, is signified by 'dogs,' is also evident in Matthew: 'Give not that which is holy to the dogs' (vii. 6). And in Moses: 'Thou shalt not bring . . . the price of a dog into the house of Jehovah . . . because it is an abomination to thy God' (Deut. xxiii. 19).

—5. 'Dogs encompassed me . . . Deliver my only one from the hand of the dog' (Ps. xxii. 16, 20). Here 'dogs' = those who destroy the goods of faith, and who are therefore called 'the assembly of the malignant.'

—6. That 'they were to be delivered up' and 'devoured by dogs' (1 Kings xiv. 11; xvi. 4; xxi. 23, 24; 2 Kings ix. 10, 36; Jer. xv. 3) = that they would perish by means of unclean things.

— That they compared themselves to 'dead dogs' (1 Sam. xxiv. 15; 2 Sam. iii. 8; ix. 8; xvi. 9) = that they were to be accounted as most vile, who were to be cast forth.

10130°. The effluvia about beasts, which is exquisitely scented by a sagacious dog.

H. 579. Genii . . . apperceive affections, and scent them, as dogs do wild animals in forests.

P. 276°. The love of self regards . . . others scarcely as men, whom at heart it holds in less estimation than its horses and dogs.

R. 132°. 'The dogs' which devoured Jezebel = cupidities.

438. Look at a dog, or any other wild beast which has a tail, and coax and caress him, and you will see the crest of the back smooth down, and the tail move correspondingly; and on the contrary, the crest will rise if you irritate him. (See TAIL, here.)

952. 'Without are dogs, etc.' = that no one is received into the New Jerusalem who makes nothing of the commandments of the decalogue . . . 'Dogs' = those who are in concupiscences, which are treated of in the ninth and tenth commandments.

—2. By 'dogs' in general, are signified those who are in concupiscences of every kind, and who indulge them; in special, those who are in merely corporeal pleasures, especially those who are in the pleasure of feasting, in which alone they take delight; wherefore, in the Spiritual World, dogs appear from those who have devoted themselves to their appetite and palate; and who are called there corporeal appetites. Such being of gross mind, make the things of the Church of no account. Therefore it is said that they shall stand without. Ill.

—e. 'Dogs' = the vilest men, in Job xxx. i; 1 Sam. xxiv. 15; 2 Sam. ix. 8; 2 Kings viii. 13; and also those who are unclean; wherefore it is said in Moses, 'Thou shalt not bring . . . the price of a dog into the house of Jehovah . . .'

M. 161°. As when wheat from the garner is cast forth to the dogs.

246°. The marriages of such dissimilarities are not unlike the conjunctions . . . of dogs and cats.

505°. At a distance such (deflowerers) appear like dogs of indulgences.

T. 316°. Adulterers . . . may be compared to . . . dogs, which run about the streets, and look about and smell where there are other dogs, with which they exercise their lasciviousness.

488°. The horrible creed that God predestines men to Hell . . . may be compared to . . . the mad fury of dogs which fly at their own reflections in a mirror.

D. 2209. There is a certain sense which brutes have . . . to know the way home . . . as may be known of horses, dogs, bees . . .

2305°. If all their evil and filthy things were to show themselves . . . they would be as if they were being torn to pieces by swift dogs.

2614. On awaking, I saw a great dog with horrible gaping jaws . . . and was told that such a dog appears, or by such a dog there is represented, when anyone is carried down to a contrary pleasantness. It was that heavenly pleasantness, because that of marriage love, attended with interior heavenly joy, when a man is content with his few things, lives in his little home with the married partner he most tenderly loves, and with his children, content in mind, in the Lord; and when, from the pleasantness of this heavenly love, he passes over to the opposite, in which they who are in the opposite feel as it were a heavenly delight, when yet it is infernal, then such a dog is presented, by which is represented that he keeps guard lest the opposite delights should communicate. Wherefore it may also be evident what was represented by the fabled Cerberus. 2615, Exampl.

[D.] 2974². I saw a bird behind me, which was turned into a dog, and which, the more and more it became a dog, extended its mouth towards me, but so it disappeared. Wherefore the cut-throats are of such a character, that when they cannot use knives, they bite with the teeth; and they are signified by the dogs.

3191. See ADULTERY at this ref.

3339. Brute animals feel from spheres what they would never perceive in any other way; for there are spheres in nature unknown to man, but which reign with beasts; as for instance dogs, which scent where their master has placed things . . . He knows his master among a thousand men; at the same time from the sphere of subordination and of friendship; thus from a sphere of gladness in staying with him he is averse to all others, and does not rest until he stands at his feet. This is attributed to effluvia, but there are no effluvia, except what are a pretext for such a sphere. There is a sphere with animals of knowing the quarters of the world . . . as in thickets and forests; a man constantly goes astray in them; an animal never; it knows its own home, even if it should go by a way it never saw before or trod before. So dogs, which run back by other ways, through many places they have never seen before; horses in like manner; other animals in like manner, as bees to their hives; so with all animals . . . 3340.

3406. (A dream about dogs.)

3679. On a dog. A black dog appeared in my sleep, which was at first admitted as a house dog, and when he saw anything bony in which was the skin of another dog, he loathed it, for which reason he was admitted, and not regarded as evil; but it was afterwards said that he had devoured the bones of another dog, and then he was loathed, although he wanted to approach. On awaking, I asked whether anyone had been turned into a dog . . . and at last it was said that there was such a one . . . and that he was of such a character as freely to suffer the persons of others to be induced upon him, as that of David; and thus he would act not only their persons, but also their shameful deeds . . . These are they who are represented by dogs which devour the bones of other dogs.

3683. When David thought that he whom he evoked ascended, there were dogs and serpents ascending, and unless he had fled they would have torn him . . .

3684. See DAVID at this ref.

3752^e. Afterwards, little dogs were seen running to me.

3769. A man was passing in and out, who, stationing himself near the wall, was as it were turned into a dog . . .

3867. Huge dogs, etc., were let go by them at men . . .

3869^e. She was compelled to seize her (pretended) infant with her mouth, as if it had been a dog . . .

4705. (The state of those who are represented by dogs there).

4729. There appeared on the shoulders of a woman who had been known to me in her bodily life (it is now Polhem) . . . a little dog, which went round from one shoulder to the other, and also licked the cheeks. I was instructed that it signified that (such a person) had made the highest perfection of civil life to consist in the embellishment and decoration of food, so that such a dog appeared from the luxury of the embellishment in the magnificent preparation of the food, and signified it.

4763. See CHARLES XII. at this ref.

4853. On good dogs. During sleep, there was a dog with me, which I seemed to be leading by a cord; it was brisk and active, and sometimes it drank plentifully. After awaking, I was instructed that such dogs are the appetites of saying and teaching such things as are of doctrine. In a word, when the appetites are good, the dogs are good; and when they are evil, so are the dogs.

4920^e. The (robbers) came to me, and thought to do evil to me, and around me there was as it were a dog.

4997. When he spoke, he made a noise like a barking dog . . . He was a hungerer for revenge.

5822. I was brought in spirit to those who in the world had thought nothing about God, and who were said to have lived in a certain island to the west of Africa; but still they had lived a pretty good [moral] life. They did not appear as men, but as apes; some as dogs, but having a face almost human . . .

5995. In sleep . . . I came to a huge dog in bonds which was tearing me . . . Compare J. (Post.) 40.

D. Min. 703. On dumb dogs, etc.

4704. There is another Hell at the right foot in front where there are such as explore . . . but they act slowly, and at the same time inspire a state . . . as it were of tranquil pleasure; and meanwhile they explore . . . in such a manner that I could scarcely be aware that they were doing it. When they are inspiring the tacit pleasure, it is not observed. They have a subject over their heads; and when they act into their subject, as also into another, the subject is erected and stands bent, resisting; thus do they harass each other in Hell. They penetrate rather deeply into the thoughts, and do not appear to be evil, but they are more deceitful than others. They are dumb dogs.

4706. They who are as dumb dogs, appear in the external form as if they were good . . . They also inspire what is good, so that they cannot be known by others to be otherwise; so also do they speak and act, but with a bad end and to do injury so far as they dare; and they do it in proportion as the external bonds are taken away. They do not appear proud in the external form, or to have anything of the love of self externally; for when they are disparaged, and also when they are called dumb dogs, they do not care; but still they have a mind to exercise command; in this they set their delight; so that by deception they are able by means of their externals to bend the souls of others wherever they want; thus the love of self is interior with them.

E. 160². That 'dogs should eat Jezebel'=unclean-ness and profanation.

376³³. They who have no perception of good and no understanding of truth, are called 'dogs hardened in soul, which do not know satiety' (Is. lvi. 11); that is, who are not able to receive good.

455⁹. 'Those who lapped water with their hands as a dog lappeth' (Judg. vii. 5)=those who have an appetite for truths; thus who, from some natural affection, strive to know truths; for 'a dog'=appetite and desire.

1044⁴. 'Thou shalt not give that which is holy to the dogs' (Matt. vii. 6). 'Dogs'=concupiscences and appetites.

1198². With certain animals, there appear the like sagacity and cunning . . . in a word, the like morality as with men. As for example, dogs, from a genius innate in them, as if from their innate quality, know how to act as faithful guards; from the transpiration of the affection of their masters know as it were his pleasure; search him out from perceiving the habit of his footsteps and clothes; know the quarters and thereby run home, even through devious ways and thick forests; with other like things, from which a sensuous man judges that a dog also is knowing, intelligent, and wise; which is not to be wondered at, so long as he ascribes such things in the dog and also in himself to nature. It is otherwise with a spiritual man; he sees that there is something spiritual which leads, and that this is united to what is natural.

1200³. In the Hells are seen dogs, etc., and many other kinds of ungentle and unclean beasts.

Docu. 302. I. par. 9. Those who are like dogs, seent those who are luxurious.

Dogma. Dogma.

Dogmatic. Dogmaticus.

A. 1043². Everyone supposes his own dogma to be true, and thence receives a conscience . . . For many are regenerated by the Lord, from every dogma whatever . . . 2053². 8521².

1798⁴. Besides other things which are dogmatic, and which in like manner are known from charity alone.

2116³. The doctrinal things and dogmas of faith are not faith, but are of faith . . .

2243⁴. The Ancient Church . . . was turned partly into . . . a certain dogmatic affair separate from charity.

2760, Preface. Each confirms his own dogma from the literal sense of the Word. 3427³. 6222². —.

3769⁴. Such do not want to see the truth which is in the Word; but they remain obstinately in their own dogma. 4368².

3993¹³. See DOCTRINE at this ref.

4453. 'Range through it in trading, and possess ye in it'=that the dogmas from a general principle would agree together. 4479².

4689³. That faith is now separated from charity is evident, for Churches separate themselves according to their dogmas, and he who believes otherwise than as dogma teaches is cast out from their communion and defamed . . .

5355². It is believed to be sufficient to know the dogmas of the faith which belong to the Church in which he has been born, and to confirm them in various ways.

5937². As may be evident from the fact, that each remains in the dogma in which he was born.

6222⁵. See CONFIRM at these refs. N. 257⁴.

9688⁴. 'The princes of the sea'=the primary sciences, which are called dogmas.

H. 516². In agreement with the good dogmas of their religion . . .

526³. Such a dogma follows of necessity . . . L. 18².

F. 4. The Angels utterly reject this dogma, that the understanding must be under obedience to faith . . . Thus this dogmatic thing recedes.

9. With these, ignorance is the defence of dogmas.

P. 134². This takes place only when Spirits bring in something dogmatic of religion, which is never done by any good Spirit, still less by any Angel.

R. 421³. They then enter the cells . . . where are those who confirm their dogmatic things from the Word . . .

564². As in the New Church this dogma is rejected, that the understanding is to be kept under obedience to faith . . .

B. 16. The disagreements between the dogmas of the present Church and those of the New Church.

53. Its dogmas only enter the memory . . .

58. The dogmas of the present Church can be learned only with great difficulty . . .

95. The opening and rejection of the dogmas of the faith of the present Church, and the revelation and reception of the dogmas of the faith of the New Church. Sig.

96. The reason the falsities of the dogmas of the faith of the present Church are to be opened, before the Truths of the dogmas of the New Church are revealed and received, is that they do not agree in a single point or particle; for the dogmas of the present Church are founded upon a faith in which it is not known whether there is any essential of the Church or not.

97. Quite the contrary is the case with the dogmas or doctrinal things of the New Church; these are all essential things . . .

T. 154². All Protestants . . . after they have been instructed in dogmatic things by Luther, etc., these dogmatic things do not speak of themselves through them, but they speak of themselves from the dogmatic things: every dogma may also be expounded in a thousand ways . . .

178. The faith of every Church is like a seed from which all its dogmas spring.

194. To confirm some dogma of the Church . . .

336. From the wisdom of the Ancients there flowed forth this dogma, that the universe and everything in it have relation to good and truth . . .

338². It was necessary to proclaim the dogma that the understanding is to be kept under obedience to faith.

[T.] 362^e. It was necessary first to put forth decisions and dogmas concerning God and the Divine Trinity; and afterwards to establish decisions and dogmas concerning faith and charity, etc.

374^e. Afterwards, he draws the doctrinal things of faith and charity from parents, etc.; and, when he becomes capable of judging for himself, from the Word and from dogmatic books . . .

435. This dogmatic tenet is as a door to the doctrine of charity.

459². Is not this according to the dogma of our people?

508³. It is exceedingly dangerous to enter with the understanding into dogmas of faith which have been forged from our own intelligence . . . and still more to confirm them from the Word . . .

645. The dogmatic teachers of the Christian religion have stopped up their ears as with wax . . .

796. From the time Luther first entered the Spiritual World, he was a most vehement propagator and defender of his dogmas . . .

798. Calvin . . . concluded all the dogmas of his faith from his own intelligence, and not from the Word.

D. 5700. On those who are called learned . . . because they can confirm their own dogma.

D. Min. 4646. As to this dogmatic saying that the tree lies where it falls . . .

E. 803². I. Let a man read the Word every day, one chapter or two, and learn from a teacher and from preachings the dogmas of his religion . . .

846³. When any received dogma is assumed as the truth itself . . .

Can. Trinity viii. 2. After confirmation, a man does not see anything but that his dogmas are true, although they are falsities.

Doll. Pupa.

M. 218². The girls sat . . . some dressing dolls.

D. 4598. Occurs. 4599. 5009. 5867. Coro. 43.

Domestic. Domesticus.

A. 2748². They might perhaps be whipped by the domestics . . .

3518. 'Go to the flock'=natural domestic good. . . Whereas the field whence Esau took his venison . . . was good not domestic. . . Natural domestic good is that good which a man derives from his parents, or into which he is born . . .

4843³. 'A man's foes are they of his own house' (Micah vii.6) . . . Temptations or spiritual combats are described by nearly the same words in Matthew . . . 'A man's foes shall be they of his own household' (x.36) . . . As with the man who is in temptation, evils and falsities are within, or belong to him, they are called 'they of his own household.'

10490⁵. As a combat between goods and evils, and between the falsities and truths with a man, is here described, it is said that 'a man's foes shall be they of his own household.' 'They of his own household'=the things which are in man, thus which are his own proper things.

H. 234. Angels converse . . . about various matters, as about household affairs.

388. There are many administrations in Heaven; ecclesiastical, civil, and domestic.

Life 72. His neighbour is his Country, a community, a fellow citizen, and also the members of his own family.

P. 109². If they strip their love of the means . . . of the garments of purple and fine linen . . . and put on it its house gown . . .

M. 91^e. From her application to various duties which are called household, which adjoin themselves to the duties of the men.

169. A wife's thought about her husband is indeed interrupted by the household matters which are under her care . . .

282. He intends accommodations, for the sake of the preservation of order in household affairs. 283.

T. 394^e. The love of Heaven regards spiritual uses; the love of the world, the natural uses which may be called civil; and the love of self, the corporeal uses, which may also be called domestic, done for one's self and one's own.

431. The household obligations of charity. (See OBLIGATION, here.)

508³. The understanding then abides only in political matters . . . in civil ones . . . and in the domestic ones which belong to his own house.

D. 1573. On those who indulge too much in household cares. (See CARE, here.)

3424. On house lice. 4570. 4759.

3679. A house dog.

5791¹. In England, they care for their household and business affairs.

D. Min. 4733. They had been given to no study, not even of a domestic character, but only to pleasure: what domestic employments are, they had not known.

4805^e. The uses (performed by the Angels) are . . . (among others) to have a care for the household matters there; for there are such there as man knows nothing about.

Domestic Servant. See SERVANT - famulus.

Dominion. Dominium.

Dominate, Domineer. Dominari.

Dominator. Dominatio.

Dominator, Ruler. Dominator.

See COMMAND, LOVE OF DOMINION, RULE, and RULING LOVE.

A. 30. Love is the 'great luminary which is to rule by day;' and faith from love is the 'lesser luminary which is to rule by night.'

50². When man is not regenerate, evil Spirits . . . so rule over him . . .

—³. But when he is regenerate, the Angels then rule.

52. So long as the man is spiritual, his dominion proceeds from the external man to the internal, as is here said: 'Let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the bird of the heavens, and over the beast, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.' But when he becomes celestial, and does good from love, the dominion proceeds from the internal man to the external . . . as is described in David: 'Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of Thy hands . . .' (Ps.viii.6-8). Here, 'beasts' are mentioned first . . .

55^e. When man is spiritual . . . he is in combat, wherefore it is said, 'Subdue the earth, and have dominion' (Gen.i.28).

59. At first, cupidities have the dominion . . .

227. When the evil Spirits begin to have the dominion . . .

230. The dominant evil of this posterity was the love of self . . .

257. 'The serpent's head'=the dominion of evil in general, and of the love of self in special; (for) its nature is not only to seek dominion, but even dominion over all things of the earth; (and even) over all things of Heaven, and . . . over the Lord. . . Hence it is evident, how the serpent, or the evil of the love of self, wants to domineer; and how it hates him over whom it cannot domineer. 2219⁴.

261^e. 'The man'=the Rational . . . which will have dominion.

365. 'To thee is his desire, and thou shalt rule over him' (Gen.iv.7)=that charity wants to be with faith, but it cannot, because faith wants to have dominion over it, which is contrary to order. So long as faith wants to have the dominion, it is not faith; but when charity has the dominion, then there is faith.

831. They could insinuate themselves . . . but with the end of having dominion.

905. The influx of Hell . . . is attended with force and the violent impulse of having dominion; they breathe nothing but to subjugate man . . .

952^e. As he wanted to have dominion over others . . . he became blacker than others.

971. The dominion of the internal man, and the compliance of the external. Tr. 986,Sig.

977³. With the regenerate man, the internal man has the dominion . . . Whereas with the unregenerate man the external man has the dominion . . .

987. As to the dominion of the regenerate man over cupidities . . . they are in the greatest possible error who believe that they are able, from themselves, to have dominion over evils . . .

989. As to dominion over falsities, the case is the same as with dominion over evils . . .

1280. They began to domineer by means of Divine worship. Tr.

1307. 'Its head in heaven'=even to their having dominion over the things which are in Heaven.

1308. Man is (then) under the dominion of evil Spirits . . . Their dominion is the greatest with those who have something of conscience . . .

1749². When evil and infernal Spirits are conquered . . . they retain the opinion of their Power and dominion, and suppose that they are able to contribute much to the Power and dominion of the Lord; wherefore, in order that they may reign together with Him, they offer their services to good Spirits.

—³. Dominion from falsity and evil is quite contrary to dominion from good and truth. Dominion from evil and falsity consists in wanting to make all into slaves; dominion from good and truth consists in wanting to make all free. Dominion from evil and falsity consists in destroying all; whereas dominion from good and truth consists in saving all. Hence it is evident, that dominion from evil and falsity is of the devil; and dominion from good and truth is of the Lord. That the dominions are quite contrary, may be evident from the Lord's words in Matt.xii.24-30; and from His declaration that 'no one can serve two lords.'

1755. There are Angels who have dominion over evil and infernal Spirits . . . In itself, the wanting to have dominion is somewhat of human proprium different from the things which are received from the Lord; nevertheless, all the dominion is of love and mercy without wanting to have dominion . . .

3322³. Dominion over the truths there, is meant by 'He shall have dominion over Jacob' (Num.xxiv.19) . . . Dominion is said to be had over these, when they are subordinated and subjected to good.

3325². Which shall have the dominion, good or truth! . . . When they are regenerate, they see and perceive that truth is posterior and lower, and then there is in them the dominion of good over truth. Sig.

3582. 'Be master to thy brethren'=the dominion at first appearing of the affection of natural truth over the affections of natural good.

— On the apparent dominion of truth over good, at first. Refs.

3587^e. How the good of the Natural comes forth—prodit—from the inmost . . . and . . . has the dominion. Tr.

3593. In the state before he is regenerate, truths apparently have the dominion; whereas in the state after he is regenerate, truths give way, and good receives the dominion. Refs. 3597⁴. 8505².

3602. 'It shall be when thou hast the dominion' (Gen.xxvii.40)=that good shall be in the prior place.

3607³. Truth is deprived of life from itself, when good begins to . . . have the dominion.

3637. As then, with man, the lower things began to have dominion over his higher ones . . .

3915^e. Natural affection is that which has dominion over spiritual affection . . .

3927³. In spiritual temptations, the business is about the dominion, as to which shall have the Power, the internal man or the external . . .

4099². See CELESTIAL at this ref.

4250^e. When good has the dominion, it is attended with this effect . . .

[A.] 4251. So long as truth has the dominion in the Natural . . .

4253². 'Judah was His sanctuary, Israel His dominions' (Ps. cxiv. 2) . . . 'Jordan' = the Knowledges of good, which are said 'to turn themselves backward' when the good of love obtains the dominion . . .

4256. When good begins to have dominion over truth, the natural man is in fear . . . and also enters into temptations. The reason is, that when truth . . . seemed to itself to have the dominion, falsities intermingled themselves.

4368³. They are angry because they are deprived of dominion.

4691. 'In reigning shalt thou reign over us? if having dominion shalt [thou have dominion over us?]' (Gen. xxxvii. 8) = were they to be subject as to intellectual and voluntary things. 'To reign' = to be subject as to intellectual things; and 'to have dominion' = to be subject as to voluntary things.

—². 'To reign' regards the truth which is of the understanding; 'dominion,' the good which is of the will; 'kingdom,' also, is predicated of truth; and 'dominion,' of good. Ill. E. 331⁹.

4738². After the Papal chair had grown even to dominion over human souls . . .

—^o. This distinction was invented merely for the sake of domineering.

4797. So that the dominant affection shone forth with all its variations . . .

4802². In the other life, they abuse their capacity of understanding truths in order to domineer. Ex. 7332², Ex.

4973⁹. As 'the Lord—Dominus' = Divine good; and 'King,' Divine truth; where it is said of the Lord, that 'He has dominion and a kingdom,' 'dominion' is predicated of Divine good, and 'kingdom,' of Divine truth.

4977. When it is said of good that it 'sets truth over,' it is not signified that it has yielded up the dominion to it, but that it has applied itself . . . For good always has the dominion . . . Unless, in the prior state, there were given as it were dominion to truth, or unless good so applied itself, truth could never be appropriated to good.

5013. With those (who are in merely natural truth and good) the Natural has the dominion and the Spiritual serves; when yet it is according to order that the Spiritual should have the dominion and the Natural serve . . . Hence it is that those with whom the Spiritual has had the dominion, in the other life appear with their heads upwards towards the Lord . . . Whereas those with whom the Natural has had the dominion, appear . . . with their . . . heads downwards.

5077². When the external sensuous things of man begin to have dominion over the internal sensuous things of man, it is all over with him.

5084. If the external man begins to have dominion over the internal, none of the things of faith are any longer believed.

5120³. Thus having dominion over the souls and bodies of men. (Babel).

5127. Interior things are relatively masters—dominia. —³. So long as his external man is in dominion and reigns, he does not see; but when he is in some grief . . . he is able to see . . . for then the dominion of the external man ceases.

5128⁷. Into such a form are natural and sensuous things disposed when the Rational has the dominion, and sensuous things are subject.

5159^o. With the regenerate, interior things have dominion over exterior ones; but with the unregenerate, exterior things over interior ones. The ends which are in man are the things which have the dominion . . .

5316. 'See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt' = dominion over both Naturals.

5417. 'Joseph is the ruler over the land' = that the Celestial of the Spiritual . . . would reign in the Natural.

5428². Hence the Angels are called 'Powers' and 'dominions—dominatus.'

5786². The external man then has the dominion . . . The internal man being without dominion—dominatu . . .

5904. 'I have dominion in all the land of Egypt' (Gen. xlv. 8) = that he himself disposes the scientifics there.

5968. 'He has dominion in all the land of Egypt' (ver. 26) = that the natural mind is under his Power.

6159. So the dominant affection presents itself conspicuously. . . The Spirits who are evil, or with whom evil is dominant, are evil in each and all things . . . The Angels . . . with whom good is dominant, that is, reigns universally, are good in each and all things . . .

6393². See BLESS—beare—at this ref.

6567. As soon as good has the dominion, the external man submits himself . . .

—². The affection itself, and thence reason, have the dominion . . .

6954. Then the Sensuous has the dominion . . . But when interior things are elevated . . . the lumen of the Sensuous is dimmed; for the light of Heaven is dominant.

7280^o. When the evil come into the other life . . . and are left to their cupidities . . . they desire nothing more than to domineer . . .

7319^o. Falsified truth is falsity . . . having dominion over truth.

7351. Otherwise, falsities would have dominion over truths.

7364. Those in the communities (in Mars) who begin to think wrongly . . . are dissociated . . . Thus do they guard against the creeping in of the cupidity of dominion and the cupidity of gain, that is, against any, from the cupidity of dominion, subjecting to themselves the community in which they are; and then a number of other communities . . .

—². The loves of self and of the world caused communities to be made into empires and kingdoms, within which there are few who do not want to have dominion, and possess all things belonging to others.

7551. They who infest, believe that they have dominion over those who are infested, when they see them in anguish . . .

7673. 'Stretch forth thy hand'=the dominion of power.

7678. 'Moses stretched out his rod over the land of Egypt'=the dominion of the power of truth Divine over the whole Natural of the infesters.

7710. 'Stretch forth thy hand towards heaven'=the dominion of the power of truth Divine in Heaven. Ex.

7713. 'Moses stretched out his hand towards heaven'=the domination of truth Divine in Heaven.

7773. In Hell, as in Heaven, there is a form of government, that is, there are dominations and subordinations; without these, a Society would not hold together . . .

8118². The reason those times were so happy, was that they lived distinguished into nations . . . families . . . and houses . . . and it then never entered anyone's mind to invade the inheritance of another, and thereby acquire for himself wealth and dominion. Far from them at that time were the love of self and the love of the world . . . But this scene was changed and turned into the opposite . . . when the cupidity invaded the mind of having dominion, and of possessing the goods of others. Then, for the sake of protecting themselves, mankind gathered together into kingdoms and empires . . .

8183. 'Stretch out thy hand over the sea'=the dominion of power where there is the Hell of falsity from evil. 8200.

8230^e. The dominions in Hell, which they are continually striving after, alternate by turns . . .

8237^e. This office is given to Angels, and thereby dominion over the Hells.

8305. 'Thou stretchedst out Thy right hand'=that the dominion of power over all things thence appeared.

8313. Despair of enlarging their dominion with those who are in faith separated from good. Sig.

—⁴. 'The Philistines, that is, they who set up salvation by faith alone without the goods of charity, in the other life, are constantly striving after dominion . . . Wherefore, they are those who most assault charity, consequently, who want to have dominion; for they who are in charity are humble . . . but they who are in faith without charity are haughty, and want to be served by all others; wherefore they make Heaven to consist in the glory of domination . . .

8318. Without any hope of domination. Sig. . . For they who are in the evil of the love of self are continually desiring to have dominion; but when the terror of a victorious foe falls upon them, the hope of having dominion falls.

8452². It is called the delight of concupiscence, when the delight of any corporeal or worldly love is dominant.

8462². So long as the delights of the love of self and of the world are dominant . . .

8478². With these, there universally reigns . . . the desire of possessing all things, and of having dominion over all, which is kindled and grows according to its augmentations . . .

8553. The order of life is then inverted: that which ought to have the dominion serves; and that which ought to serve has the dominion.

8678. 'They were proud over them'=the endeavour and force of domineering over those who are of the Church. . . (For) there is such an endeavour and consequent force in all pride. Ex.

853. Every man has proprium, which he loves above all other things; this is called what is dominant; or, if you like, what is universally regnant with him.

856. See CHARITY at this ref.

857. When love to the Lord becomes dominant . . .

858. Man is altogether such as is that which is dominant of his life; by this he is distinguished from others; according to this is his Heaven if he is good, and his Hell if he is evil; for it is the veriest of his will, and thus the being itself of his life, which cannot be changed after death. N.57.

894². When truths are hatched from man's own intelligence, they have dominion over truths from the Divine . . .

8961. In temptations, the business is about the dominion of the evil which is with the man from Hell, and of the good which is with him from the Lord. The evil which wants to have the dominion is in the external man, but the good is in the internal. Hence it is that even in temptations the business is about the dominion of the one over the other. If the evil conquers, the natural man has dominion over the spiritual; if the good conquers, the spiritual man has dominion over the natural. 8967. Can.Redemp.vii.5.

8995². The internal affection of truth must be dominant . . . For it is according to Divine order that the spiritual man should have dominion over the natural; and when the spiritual man has dominion, the man looks upwards . . . and when the natural man has the dominion, he looks downwards. Ex.

9020. They who want to dispense at their own pleasure the things which are the Lord's . . . to the end that they may have dominion over all, and gain the world . . . are thieves in the spiritual sense; for they steal truths from the Word, and apply them to evils. The reason they are evils, is that they have for an end dominion and gain. . . If these same persons had acknowledged truths from the Word before they had dominion and gain for an end, they profane them. . . They talk about these things more than others do, because the ardour of having dominion and gain excites them . . .

9039². (The wisest Angels) do not make anything of glory or of joy to consist in having dominion, but in serving; and, when they are in this state, they are in dominion, and are also in glory and joy above others, but not from the dominion-dominatu-, but from the affection of love and charity, which is that of serving others . . .

9069. The internal man . . . is able to have dominion over the affections of evil in the Natural, and also has dominion when the Natural is subordinate.

9832. That which is universally regnant, is that which is dominant. Refs.

9954¹⁴. 'Kings of the earth' (Ps. ii.2)=falsities; 'rulers'=evils . . . E.375¹⁹. 684¹¹.

10152³. As to his interiors, man is either under the dominion of Spirits from Hell, or he is under the dominion of Angels from Heaven.

[A.] 10173^e. The delight of commanding (in marriages) . . . inroots evils according to the quality of the dominion on the one side, and that of the servitude on the other.

10808^e. They thus exhibited the dominion of good over evil . . .

10813². See COMMAND-imperium-at these refs. H.218.

10814. (I discoursed) with the Angels concerning dominions, that there are two kinds of dominions; one of love towards the neighbour, and the other of the love of self; and that the dominion of love towards the neighbour exists among those who dwell separated into houses, families, and nations; but the dominion of the love of self among those who dwell together in a community. Among (the former) he has the dominion who is the father of the nation; and, under him, the fathers of families; and, under these, the fathers of each house . . . But all these have dominion from love like that of a father towards his children . . . and, as this love increases in descending . . . the father of the nation acts from a more interior love . . . Such, also, is the dominion in the Heavens, since such is the dominion of the Lord, for His dominion is from Divine love towards the universal human race.

—². But the dominion of the love of self, which is opposite to the dominion of love towards the neighbour, began when man estranged himself from the Lord . . . So far as the reins are given to this love, it rushes on, until at last every such person wants to have dominion over all others in the universal world . . . and even wants to have dominion over the universal Heaven . . . This, therefore, is the dominion of the love of self, from which the dominion of love towards the neighbour differs as much as Heaven does from Hell.

—³. But although the dominion of the love of self is of this character in communities, there nevertheless exists the dominion of love towards the neighbour in kingdoms also, with those who are wise from faith and love to God, for these love the neighbour.

H. 6^e. (These Spirits) made the happiness of Heaven to consist in glory and dominion-dominatu-, and as they could not obtain what they desired, . . . they were indignant, and wanted a Heaven in which they could have dominion over others . . .

380². Where there is dominion, one is a slave; and the one who has dominion is also a slave, because he is led as a slave by the cupidity of having dominion. . . In proportion as dominion enters, their minds are not conjoined, but are divided; dominion subjugates, and a subjugated mind either has no will, or else has an opposite will . . .

564. There are two kinds of dominion; one is that of love towards the neighbour, and the other is that of the love of self. In their essence, these two dominions are quite opposite to each other. He who has dominion from love towards the neighbour wills good to all, and loves nothing more than use, thus to serve others . . . Such is dominion in the Heavens. N.72.

—². But he who has dominion from the love of self, wills good to no one but himself . . . When he serves others it is that he himself may be served, honoured, and may have dominion . . .

—³. The love of dominion remains with everyone after the life in the world; but they who have had dominion from love towards the neighbour, are entrusted with domination in the Heavens; but it is not they who have dominion, but the uses they love; and, when uses have dominion, the Lord has dominion. N.73. P.215¹.

—^e. But they who, in the world, have had dominion from the love of self, after the life in the world are in Hell, and are vile slaves there. I have seen the mighty ones who in the world have had dominion from the love of self, cast out among the vilest . . .

J. 54. See BABEL at these refs. 58⁹. R.717, etc.

F. 8. The Papal Dominion.

P. 208. They want to have dominion over all things. . . . They exercise their dominion-dominatum-over the laws.

215³. From the judge, prince, king, and emperor, as from the head into the body, the lust of having dominion invaded many like a contagion . . .

217⁶. They did not want uses to have dominion over them, but themselves over uses . . .

231⁷. When the reins are given to that love, they want to have dominion not only over Heaven, but also over the Lord; and, when they are not able to do this, they deny the Lord and become devils.

251. The life's love of man, since the most ancient people . . . has become such, that he wants to have dominion over others, and at last over all; and that he wants to possess the wealth of the world . . . These two loves cannot be kept in bonds . . .

310⁵. They explore the cupidities and longings of others . . . and so lead them, even until they have dominion over them.

R. 341². (These English clergymen) spoke about . . . sovereignty and dominion . . .

470. 'He set his right foot upon the sea and his left upon the land' = that the Lord has the universal Church under His auspices and dominion, both those who are in its externals and those who are in its internals. E.606.

716^e. It was also disclosed how that (English) hierarchy might advance . . . so far, that dominion is the essential thing, and religion the formal. Their ardour for having dominion was also opened, and viewed by the Angels, and it was seen to surpass the ardour for having dominion of those who are in secular Power.

719². They have applied the truths of the Word to obtain dominion over the holy things of the Church, and over Heaven . . . and to apply the truths of the Word to obtain (this) dominion, is to adulterate them. . . . Read their dogmas and pay attention to the point, and you will see that they have applied all these truths to dominion over the souls of men. . . Hence it is that Babylon is called 'the mother of seortations and of the abominations of the earth.' 753.

745. That they are under the Papal Dominion. . . Sig.

756. 'Has become the habitation of demons' = that their Hells are the Hells of the concupiscences of having dominion from the heat of the love of self . . .

M. 3⁵. (Heavenly joys supposed to consist in super-eminent dominions.) 7, Des.

7⁴. There are in the Heavens, as on earth, super-eminent dominions. Ex.

248. (On the struggle for dominion between married partners.)

262^e. They who, from the love of uses, want to have dominion, do not want to have dominion from themselves, but from the Lord . . .

267³. They who are in the love of self, desire to have dominion over the universe . . .

292². Women deeply store up a knowledge, by which they have the skill, if they will to do so, to subject the men under their yoke. Des. . . The genuine cause of the domination of wives by means of this cunning, is that a man acts from the understanding, but a woman from the will . . . I have been told that the worst of this sort, who are thoroughly addicted to the compassing of domineering, can stick tenaciously to their obstinacies even to the death agony.

T. 596. Combat then arises between the internal and the external man, and then the one that conquers has dominion over the other. Gen. art.

D. 1791. See PHLEGM at this ref.

3618^e. Thus seemed to himself to have dominion-dominatum—over other Spirits . . . There appeared to me dirty water, to which such a self-glorious and thence dominion over others . . . is likened.

3933³. In order that they may have dominion-dominatum—over all on earth and in the Heavens, caring nothing whether they come to dominion by right or wrong. 4551^e. 4740^e.

4745^e. (In infernal marriages) each feels the delight of dominion in the other . . .

4748. See CHARLES XII. at these refs. 4751. 4763. 4764. 5655^e. 5786³.

4835. (Swab) feared that the Lord would drive him out from that dominion; on which account, as a means of exercising command, he assumed the doctrine of charity, and acknowledged the Lord as the only God; thus believing that as he made one with the others who were around me, dominion would be granted to him.

4839^e. They concluded that they would have dominion, and when it was said that the last were first, they concluded that they would sit in the last place while they were commanding . . .

4840. Babel is to have dominion by means of the doctrine of the Church, and to explain these things in favour of having dominion over others, and at last that they may exercise command in the place of God . . . who, however, is deserted, together with doctrine, if it is not granted them to have dominion. 5790³.

5007. See BACK at this ref.

5021. To domineer is implanted in (Dutch women).

5513a²⁹. The Spirits of that Earth asked me what it is to want to have dominion.

5790. They say that having dominion is Heaven.

5791^e. He who wants to have dominion is nothing but a hypocrite, for he cannot at heart acknowledge the Divine.

5792⁴. They almost all had delight in domineering.

6033³. The Archbishop James Benzelius was in the delight of exercising command, and in order to have dominion he stirred up others to go with him, but . . . he became black . . .

E. 355²⁴. 'Kings'=truths; and 'lords' and 'rulers,' goods. 811⁷.

406¹⁶. 'To have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth' (Ps.lxxii.8)=His dominion over all things of Heaven and the Church.

411⁸. His dominion over those who are in good and truth, is signified by 'He that ruleth over a just man; He that ruleth over him that hath the fear of God' (2 Sam.xxiii.3).

433²⁴. As all power is in truths from good . . . it is said that 'Israel was made for His dominions' (Ps. cxiv.2).

448¹⁶. 'King'=Divine truth; and 'Ruler,' Divine good; for, in the Word, the Lord is called 'a King' from Divine truth; and 'a Ruler' from Divine good.

455⁴. His Power from Divine good is meant by 'dominion' (Dan.vii.14); from Divine truth, by 'glory;' and Heaven and the Church, by 'a kingdom.'

513¹⁰. Man 'has dominion' over these things (Gen. i.26), when the Lord has dominion over him; for, from himself, man has no dominion over anything in himself.

569¹¹. 'Dominion from sea to sea'=the extension of natural things; and 'dominion from the river to the ends of the earth'=the extension of rational and spiritual things.

629¹⁰. 'His arm shall rule for Him' (Is.xl.10)=His own power.

650¹³. 'Dominion over the beasts' (Gen.i)=the dominion of the spiritual man over the natural man.

—²¹. On account of dominion over the holy things of Heaven and the Church from the love of self . . . the description of its destruction follows.

685. 'He shall reign for ages of ages'=His dominion through Divine truth to eternity; (for) 'to reign,' when said of the Lord, =to have dominion through Divine truth . . . because 'dominion' is said of good, and 'to reign,' of truth; for the Lord is called 'Dominus' from Divine good, and 'King,' from Divine truth. Hence it is that in the Word passim, both 'dominion' and 'kingdom,' or 'to have dominion,' and 'to reign' are mentioned. 111.

727³. 'There is not in her a rod of strength, a sceptre of them that rule' (Ezek.xix.14)=the desolation of Divine truth as to power and as to dominion.

—¹⁴. 'To break the rod of them that rule' (Is.xiv.5) =to destroy the dominion of falsity.

780⁷. 'A lion out of the forest . . .'=the dominion of infernal falsity; 'a wolf which shall devastate'=the dominion of evil thence . . .

[E.] 803. Domination over all the truths and goods of the Church, and over the doctrine of faith and love. Sig.

850¹³. Dominion over the Hells through Divine truth, is signified by 'to rule in the midst of his enemies' (Ps. cx. 2).

923. Falsifications of the Word even to dominion over the understanding. Sig. —², Ex.

951⁹. In Hell, instead of the dominations which had existed, there are slaveries.

1029. In that zeal there lies hidden the fire of domineering . . . which, as dominion grows, breaks forth; and, in so far as it comes into act, the holy things of the Church become the means, and dominion itself the end; and, when dominion is the end, they apply the holy things of the Church to the end . . . These are Babylonia.

—². In the Spiritual World, there were such as had striven for a like dominion; and as they knew that all Power belonged to the Lord alone, they put on as it were a zeal for Him, and for Heaven and the Church, and laboured with all their might that others should worship the Lord alone, and that they should keep holy all things of the Word; they also ordained that holiness and integrity should reign in all. But it was given to know, that in this zeal there lay hidden an ardent lust of having dominion over all others . . . For verily as soon as they had received dominion, by degrees the end was revealed, which was, not that the Lord but that they themselves should exercise command . . . From this it was given to conclude, that when dominion becomes the end, and the holy things of the Church the means, the worship of God . . . is turned into the worship of men . . .

—³. As dominion by means of the holy things of the Church over the souls of men, over Heaven, and over the Lord Himself, is interiorly profane, it follows that it is infernal; for the devils who are in Hell desire nothing more than to have dominion over Heaven and over the Lord Himself, which they also attempt under various pretences . . . One of the worst devils was once summoned, and he was told that he might receive dominion over many, if he could reverently worship the Lord . . . He immediately disposed his interiors to cunning, and his exteriors to holiness, and worshipped the Lord more reverently than many Angels, being wrathful against all who did not adore Him; but as soon as he observed that dominion was not given him, he raged against the Lord Himself, and denied not only His Divine but that of the Father also.

1038. 'I saw a woman sitting upon a scarlet beast' = the dominion of that religiosity over the holy things of the Word.

1043². The Hells are distinguished into two dominions opposite to (the two Kingdoms of Heaven); the dominion opposite to the Celestial Kingdom is called diabolical, and the dominion opposite to the Spiritual Kingdom is called infernal: in the Word these dominions are distinguished by the names 'the devil,' and 'Satan.'

1053². There is another kind of the profanation of holy things, which exists with those who have domination as an end, and the holy things of the Word, of the Church, and of worship, as means. Ex.

1058³. Such are many of the rulers in modern Babylon . . .

1071. All edicts and statutes which have domination as an end, especially that over the things of Heaven and the Church, have communication and effect conjunction with Hell.

1073. Wherefore, the Third Heaven is called the Lord's dominion, and the Second His Kingdom; and hence the Angels in the Third Heaven are called . . . lords—domini, and those in the Second . . . kings: the former and the latter Angels are meant by 'lords' and 'kings,' when the Lord is called 'the Lord of lords' and 'the King of kings.'

1086. 'Kingdom' in the Word = the Church as to truth; and 'dominion,' the Church as to good.

1089. 'Having a kingdom over the kings of the earth' = its domination over the truths of the Church. Ex.

1108. That they have extended their dominion over the Lord Himself . . .

J. (Post.) 269. (The Londoners there) do not tolerate any ruler who . . . commands them what to do . . .

Door. See under GATE—porta.

Door. Foris.

See ABROAD, and WITHOUT.

A. 4231². It is said 'at the doors' (Matt. xxiv. 33), because the good of the Natural and its truths are the first things which are insinuated into man when he is being regenerated and made the Church.

9277⁵. See CHERUB at this ref.

M. 20. The doorkeeper opened the doors.

E. 277⁵. 'The doors' upon which there were cherubs (1 Kings vi. 32) = approach into Heaven and the Church. 458³.

Door. Janua.

Doorkeeper. Janitor.

A. 364. 'Sin lieth at the door' (Gen. iv. 7). . . When 'sin lieth at the door' = evil at hand and wanting to enter. . . . The only thing that will put to flight the devil and his crew from the door, is love to the Lord and towards the neighbour.

652. 'The door' (of Noah's ark) = hearing. 656.

2130². Still less are the doors of Heaven ever closed.

2145. 'Sitting at the door of the tent' (Gen. xviii. 1) = . . . at the entrance to what is holy. 2152. 2195²

2356. 'Lot went out to them to the door' (Gen. xix. 6) = that he applied himself prudently. . . 'A door,' in the Word, = that which introduces, or intronits, either to truth or to good, or to the Lord. Hence it is that 'a door' also = truth itself, also good itself, and the Lord Himself; for truth leads to good, and good to the Lord. The doors and veils of the Tent represented such things, also those of the Temple.

—². 'He that entereth not in by the door into the sheepfold, but goeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber; but he that entereth in through the door is the shepherd of the sheep; to him the door-keeper openeth. I am the Door of the sheep; by Me if anyone shall enter in he shall be saved' (John x.). Here 'the door'=truth and good, thus the Lord, who is truth itself and good itself. Hence it is evident what is signified by being let into Heaven by a door . . . 8906. P.230^e. T.174.

—³. But, in the present case, by 'the door' is signified something good, adapted to the genius of those who beset the house; for 'the door' is here distinguished from the inner door-ostium, and it was before the house, as is evident from the fact, that Lot went out, and that he shut the inner door after him. And that this good was the happiness of life, appears from . . . his endeavour to persuade those who were in falsity and evil; for such do not allow themselves to be persuaded by the veriest good, for they reject it.

2382. 'The men who were at the door of the house' (ver.11)=the rational and thence the doctrinal things through which violence is done to the good of charity. . . 'A door'=introduction or approach, which leads either to truth or to good; thus it=what is doctrinal.

2385. 'They laboured to find the door'=they could not see any truth which would lead to good; for 'a door'=introduction and approach, and therefore truth itself, because this introduces to good. But here, 'the door'=the Knowledges which introduce to truth; for the door was before the house . . .

2516². The Lord is doctrine itself, wherefore He is called 'the Door,' etc.

4638⁸. 'And the door was shut' (Matt.xxv.10)=that others could not enter Heaven.

7847. 'The posts of the door'=the truths of the Natural. . . For 'a house'=man himself, or his mind; and the things belonging to the door=the things which serve to introduce; which are the truths and goods of the Natural. Ex.

8989. 'He shall bring him either to the door or to the post' (Ex.xxi.6)=a state of truth confirmed and implanted with spiritual good. 'A door'=the introduction of truth to good; here, of truth confirmed and implanted. . . And as 'a door'=introduction, it also=communication, for one chamber communicates with another through the door.

—³. I have often heard them saying that the doors of their chambers were open when their thoughts were being communicated to me, and that they were shut when they were not being communicated. Hence it is that 'doors' are mentioned in the Word when it treats of communication. III.

—⁴. 'Shut thy door after thee until the anger be overpast' (Is.xxvi.20)=no communication with evils.

— . 'Open thy doors, O Lebanon' (Zech.xi.1)=to give approach or communication.

—⁵. 'I have chosen to stand at the door in the house of my God' (Ps.lxxxiv.10)=to communicate without with good.

9125⁴. When the Angels discourse about truth approaching good and conjoining itself with it, it is represented by an open door, through which there is entrance. Hence (the Lord's words in John x.).

10769. Their houses have a door at each end.

P. 71. This determination may be compared to a door, which is first to be unfastened and opened. Ex.

119. 'Behold I stand at the door . . .' Ex.

233⁴. The door is 'opened' by man removing evil . . .

R. 176. They who do not approach the Lord directly . . . cannot find the door of Heaven, and if perchance they are admitted to it, it is closed, and when they knock, it is not opened.

—². That 'doors,' in the Word, =entrance. III.

217. 'Behold, I stand at the door, and knock' (Rev. iii.20)=that the Lord is present with everyone in the Word, and therein is urgent to be received, and teaches how. . . 'A door'=admission and entrance.

M. 17². The doors are then shut, and the whole city is silent.

20. The doorkeeper opened the doors.

23^e. The door was behind the pulpit, on the left.

78⁵. I therefore rose, and shut the doors.

146. As it were a door with a hinge is interposed by the Lord, which is opened by determination.

T. 366². The evil . . . shut the door lest God should enter into the lower things of their minds, but the good . . . open the door . . .

381⁴. They are like doors hung on a round hinge, which can open either way.

566². Unless man could shut and open the door between his thoughts and speech, and between his intentions and actions, and if prudence or cunning were not the doorkeeper, he would rush into execrable things . . . But this door is opened in everyone after death . . .

D. 697. It is said in the Word that 'the door is shut.' Ex.

3378. In a certain open door I saw a boy in a green garment.

4674. On the celestial Heaven, and the doors there.

4675. When they want to see and have communication with those who were below, they open the doors of the chamber, also those of the house and of the court; and as they open them, so is the communication obtained; and as they shut them, so does the communication cease. Hence it is evident why the Lord said that He is 'the Door,' 'the Doorkeeper,' that is, that mediation is through Him.

4678. The nature of infestations, and the doors in Heaven.

5076. Immediately on his arrival, the Spirit began to act . . . according to correspondences. . . He opened doors for thinking.

5201. There are places for them in the depths . . . The door is opened, and, after they have entered, the door is shut, and then they appear no more.

6110⁴. Determination . . . is like the opening of a door.

E. 208. (Gen.art. on 'doors,' 'doors-ostia,' and 'gates'; and their signification.)

—³. (On the two doors of man's Rational.)

—⁴. As 'doors,' 'doors-ostia,' and 'gates'=intromission into Heaven and into the Church, they also=the truths from good which are from the Lord, because intromission is effected through these. III.

[E.] 298¹⁴. 'To open before him the doors, that the gates shall not be shut' (Is. xlv. 9) = that from omniscience all things are manifested to Him, and that from omnipotence He has the Power of saving.

536². Doors correspond to the communications which exist between the interiors of the mind and animus.

630¹². See COURT—atrium—at this ref.

Door. Ostium.

A. 2356. See Door—janua—at these refs. E. 208. —4.

2357. 'He shut the door after him' (Gen. xix. 6) = lest they should do violence to the good of charity, and deny the Divine Human and the Holy proceeding of the Lord.

—e. For the door was the inner door—janua—through which there was entrance into the house where the Angels were; that is, into the good in which is the Lord.

2376. 'They approached to break down the door' (ver. 9) = that they came even to the endeavour to destroy both. (For) 'the door' = that which introduces to good and to the Lord; also good itself, and the Lord Himself.

2380. 'They shut the door' (id.) = that He closes all approach to them.

2851¹². 'The door of the inner gate that looketh towards the north' (Ezek. viii. 3) = the place where there are interior falsities; 'the door of the gate of the house of Jehovah towards the north' = where there are interior evils.

4861. 'Tamar sat in the door of the fountains which are upon the way to Timnath' (Gen. xxxviii. 14) = an intermediate to the truths of the Church and to falsities. . . 'In the door of them' = in the entrance to them; and as the external truths which are of the sense of the letter of the Word afford an entrance, they are 'the door.'

5653. 'They spake to him at the door of the house' (Gen. xliii. 19) = consultation from doctrinal things about introduction. . . 'The door of the house' = introduction; here, from the external man to the internal. . . As this is signified, in the Original Language, it is not said 'at the door of the house,' but 'the door of the house.'

5694. See BEDCHAMBER at this ref.

7923. 'To go out from the door of the house' (Ex. xii. 22) = to go from good to truth; for good is within and truth without.

8772². When truths are only known, they are as it were in the door; when they are acknowledged, they are in the court. . .

8989⁵. 'Lift up your heads, O ye gates; be ye lift up, ye doors of the world' (Ps. xxiv. 7). 'To lift up the doors of the world' = to open and raise hearts to the Lord. . . and thus give communication, that is, that He may flow in with the good of charity and the truth of faith.

9686. 'Thou shalt make a hanging for the door of the Tent' (Ex. xxvi. 36) = the medium uniting the Second Heaven with the First. . . The entrance from one into the other, is signified by the door where the hanging was.

10001. 'Thou shalt make (Aaron and his sons) approach the door of the Tent of the Assembly' (Ex. xxix. 4) = the conjunction of both in Heaven. . . 'The door' = introduction. . . For the place where was the door of the Tent of the Assembly represented the marriage of Divine good with Divine truth. Ex. 10025.

10022. The place before the Tent, which is called its 'door,' = the conjunction of truth and good, which is called the heavenly marriage.

10108. 'At the door of the Tent of the Assembly' (ver. 32) = in order to enter into Heaven. 'A door' = entrance, and also introduction. Refs.

10549. 'All the people arose, and stood at the door of the Tent' (Ex. xxxiii. 8) = that that nation was not in the external of the Word, of the Church, and of worship, but outside of it. . . For 'a door' = entrance, introduction, and communication; hence to stand before it = not to enter, be introduced, and be communicated. 10553.

H. 428⁸. These outlets and entrances are what are called in the Word 'the gates' and 'the doors' of Hell and of Heaven.

S. 17³. 'The door' (Matt. xxv) = entrance into Heaven.

R. 153¹⁰. When they arrive at the cavern, a door is opened, and they enter. . . and the door is shut behind them.

176. 'Behold, I have set before thee an open door' (Rev. iii. 8) = that Heaven is open to those who are in truths from good from the Lord. 'An open door' = intromission. E. 208.

—c. 'Doors,' etc., in the Word, = entrance. Ill.

218. 'To open the door' = to live according to the Word. (= reception in the heart and life. E. 250.)

225. 'Behold, a door open in Heaven' (Rev. iv. 1) = manifestation concerning the ordination of the Heavens for the Last Judgment by the Lord. 'An open door,' when said of Heaven, = intromission; here, manifestation.

T. 482. There is the door through which the Lord enters to man. . .

501. Everything compulsory in such things. . . shuts up the spiritual man as with a door. . .

E. 179⁵. 'The eastern door of the gate of the house' (Ezek. x. 19) = approach (to Heaven and the Church).

208². There appears a gate with a door at the side where there are guards.

—'. 'A door,' etc. to Heaven and the Church, in the supreme sense, means the Lord. . . 'I am the Door of the sheep; by Me if anyone shall enter in, he shall be saved. . . ' (John x. 9). 'To enter by the Door,' here, = to enter by the Lord. Ex. . . He, therefore, who approaches the Lord, acknowledges Him, and believes in Him, is said 'to open the door to the Lord,' in, 'Behold, I stand at the door, and knock. . . ' Something shall here be said about the doors or gates to man, because it is said 'I stand at the door, and knock.'

239⁵. 'To open the door' = reception on the part of man.

248. 'Behold, I stand at the door and knock' = the Lord's perpetual presence. (For) 'a door' or 'door-janua, 'in the supreme sense, = the Lord as to intromission into Heaven or into the Church; and, in the internal sense, the truth from good which is from Him, because man is intromitted thereby.

—². If he thinks well, the door is opened; if evilly, it is shut.

250. 'And shall open the door' = life, or reception in the heart.

260a. 'Behold, a door open in Heaven' = the arcana of Heaven revealed. 'A door' = intromission; here, introspection, which is the intromission of the sight . . .

540^o. 'The door of Pharaoh's house' (Jer. xliii. 9) = the sensuous scientific, through which there is entrance into the natural man . . .

Dormouse. Glis. R. 566³. D. 377. 386. 6106³.

Dort. Dordracena.

B. 38. (The Synod of Dort quoted.) 66.

T. 487. (Some of the members of the Synod of Dort were sent to me. Conversation with them.)

634^o. What confidence can be placed in councils, when that of Dort, by a unanimous vote, decreed predestination . . . 759². 798³. 803.

Dothan. Dothan.

A. 4720. 'I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan' (Gen. xxxvii. 17) = that they betook themselves from the general to the special things of doctrine. . . That 'Dothan' has this signification, cannot be so well confirmed from other passages in the Word, because it is mentioned only in 2 Kings vi. 13. . . 'Dothan,' here, = doctrinal things from the Word. . . Dothan where Elisha was, = the doctrinal things of good and truth from the Word; here, in like manner; for the special things of doctrine are nothing else. But here, it = the special things of false principles . . .

4721. 'And Joseph went to his brethren and found them in Dothan' = that they were in the special things of false principles.

Double. Duplicare, Duplus.

Doubled. Duplicatus.

Duplicature. Duplicatura.

Twofold. Duplex, Duplicitas.

See under TWIN.

A. 1629. Long arched courts, sometimes doubled, where they walk.

2173^o. In the Prophets, everything is expressed in a twofold manner, especially in Isaiah . . .

2228³. Life is twofold, infernal and heavenly.

4677^o. Their 'coats,' etc., were not to be twofold, but single-unica.

5291. A half, and the double of a number, have a like signification.

5291². The number five has a twofold signification . . .

5623. 'Double silver' (Gen. xliiii. 12) = successively another. Ex.

8423. 'To be double' (Ex. vi. 5) = to be conjoined. 8489.

9137. 'He shall restore double' (Ex. xxii. 4) = restitution to the full. 9152. 9161.

9622. 'Thou shalt double the sixth curtain over against the faces of the Tent' (Ex. xxvi. 9) = the communication of all things of that Heaven with the extremes there, and influx thence into the ultimate Heaven. Ex.

9741³. There was a twofold court about the temple . . .

9861. 'The square shall be doubled' (Ex. xxviii. 16) = just and perfect. 'Square' = just; and the reason it = perfect, is that it was doubled; for 'doubled' involves all things of good and all things of truth; that which is on the right hand, involves good from which is truth; and that which is on the left hand, truth from good; thus, also, a perfect conjunction of both.

R. 294. In the natural world, man has a twofold speech, because he has a twofold thought, exterior and interior . . . But in the Spiritual World, man has not a twofold speech, but a single one . . .

762. 'Double to her double-dupla—according to her works; in the cup which she hath mixed mix to her double' (Rev. xviii. 6) . . . = that the evils by which they have seduced and destroyed others will return upon them according to their quantity and quality . . . and that the falsities will return in like manner. E. 1115.

M. 477⁷. I perceive that in the world you have been twofold, one thing in internals and another in externals . . .

482. Duplicate adultery . . .

T. 147. They are wiser than those who are twofold.

—². That there is twofoldness and threefoldness in every created thing . . .

443². Hypocrites possess a twofold mind . . .

493. The will of man is twofold, interior and exterior.

568². So he becomes a twofold man; a sheep in externals, and a wolf in internals.

628. (Modern) imputation is twofold . . . 629.

629. One twofoldness is extended and undivided, and the other is restricted and separated; the latter is duplicity, but the former unity.

D. 353. That man possesses a twofold memory . . .

993. In the duplicatures of the peritoneum. 995.

3616. Man thus appears twofold . . .

E. 1042³. Goods and truths are from a twofold origin . . .

1115². That 'double' is said of retribution and of reward. III.

—³. That 'she has received double for all her sins' = that they have endured much in temptation.

Can. Redemption iii. 2. In proportion as the man of the Church becomes external, he becomes twofold, that is, evil in internals, and appearing good in externals.

Double-dyed. Dibaphus.

A. 4922. 'She tied what was double-dyed upon his hand' (Gen. xxxviii. 28) . . . 'Double-dyed' = good, and in fact, spiritual good. The reason 'double-dyed' = spiritual good, is that it is of a scarlet colour, and when a scarlet colour appears in the other life, it = spiritual good, that is, the good of charity towards the neighbour. 4926. 4929.

[A.4922]². That 'double-dyed'=spiritual good. III.

—⁵. 'Double-dyed of erimson' (Num.xix.6).

9468. See SCARLET at these refs. —^e.

—⁴. 'To clothe in double-dyed' (2 Sam.i.24)=to instruct concerning the truths which are of the good of mutual love, thus concerning truths from a celestial origin. 10540⁸.

—⁵. 'If thou puttess on thee what is double-dyed' (Jer.iv.30)=to teach the truths of doctrine from a celestial origin . . .

E. 67^e. 'Though your sins were as things double-dyed' . . . (Is.i). . . The reason 'snow' is said of the sins which were as 'things double-dyed' . . . is that 'things double-dyed'=truth from good; and, in the opposite sense, falsity from evil. Refs.

Doubt. Ambigere.

See AMBIGUOUS.

D. 5551. I doubt.

Doubt. Dubitare, Dubitatio.

Doubtful, Doubtfulness. Dubitativus.

Doubtfully. Dubitative.

Dubious, Dubiousness. Dubius.

A. 194. That they doubted for the first time. Sig. . . It here treats of the third posterity of the Most Ancient Church. . . Their first state is described in this and the following verse, as a doubtful one.

233³. See BELIEVE at this ref.

1072². As soon as anything obscure intervenes . . . they never suffer it to lead them into doubt . . . These are they who are in charity. But they who are not in the faith of charity . . . are in no faith, a sign of which is, that they not only doubt about all things, but in their hearts deny . . .

1630^e. See APPREHEND at this ref.

1820. The doubt expressed in these words (3560). . . He who is in temptation is in doubtfulness about the end . . .

2334. 'They said, Nay'=the doubt which is wont to be of temptation. . . In all temptation there is what is doubtful concerning the presence and mercy of the Lord, and concerning salvation, and the like. 2338.

2338. Good Spirits and Angels from the Lord dispel this doubtfulness in every way . . . He who yields, remains in doubtfulness . . . Whereas, he who conquers is indeed in doubtfulness, but still suffers himself to be cheered with hope . . .

2425. Doubt that he could have the good of charity. Sig.

—². As to doubt, the case is this. Ex.

2568⁶. See AFFIRM at these refs. 2689³. 3913⁵. 4096⁵. 4097. 4638. 7313. D.Min.4580.

2689⁴. The real cause why they admit doubtfulnesses, and afterwards negative things, derives the whole of its origin from a life of evil. They who are in a life of evil can never do otherwise. Ex.

2718². The spiritual cannot be admitted into wisdom until they are devoid of dubiousness . . .

2720³. 'If thou hast lied unto me'=devoid of doubtfulness.

2935². Nay, they cherish dubiousnesses . . .

3174. The doubt of the natural man. Sig.

3175³. Truth can only with difficulty be separated from the natural man and raised into the Rational . . . The reason is, that he places truth in dubiousness, and reasons about whether it is so. But as soon as cupidities . . . persuasions . . . and fallacies are separated, and the man begins to . . . laugh at dubiousnesses, then truth is in a state to be . . . raised into the Rational . . . Sig. 3182^e.

3833. When good is conjoined with truth . . . he is no longer in dubiousness . . .

—². Whereas, with those who are in dubiousness . . . these innumerable things do not appear . . .

4099^e. Worldly things put heavenly ones in dubiousness; but when heavenly things have the dominion . . . they take away dubiousnesses.

4489⁴. They see scarcely anything without dubiousness . . .

4503⁷. See DENY at these refs. D.2663^e. 3493.

5036⁵. See DESPAIR at this ref.

5044. With all who are in temptations, truth flows in from the Lord, which rules and governs the thoughts, and cheers them whenever they fall into doubts.

5135². He then takes up . . . the things he had previously learned, and either confirms them, or doubts about them, or denies them . . . If he doubts about them, it is a sign that in the succeeding age he will accede to either an affirmative or a negative.

5613. 'Unless we had lingered'=delay in a state of doubt.

5657^e. The reason as it were given gratis is here signified, is that they were in a doubtful state as to whether they wanted to be conjoined with the internal, and become nothing; and, when anyone is in a doubtful state, he feels doubtfully about the truths which confirm.

6469^e. Once, when I was turning over some dubiousnesses in my mind, there flowed in from Heaven that no objection should be paid to a thousand objections and reasonings from fallacies.

6479. Spirits . . . continually injected dubiousnesses from the fallacies of the senses . . . But they were told that so many dubiousnesses cannot be removed within a short time, on account of the fallacies of the senses, which must first be dispelled; also on account of the innumerable things which must first be known; nay, that with those who are in the negative . . . dubiousnesses cannot possibly be removed at all; for with them one scruple avails more than a thousand confirmations.

7289. If they have dubiousness concerning the Divine. Sig.

7298². No one ought to be so persuaded about truth in a moment . . . that there is no doubt left, because the truth so impressed becomes persuasive truth, and is devoid of extension; and is also devoid of what is yielding . . . Hence it is that as soon as any truth is presented . . . before good Spirits by, manifest experience, there is presently afterwards presented something opposite, which causes dubiousness. Thus it is given them to think and consider whether it is so, and to collect reasons, and so bring that truth rationally into their minds. . . This is why the magicians were allowed to do the same as Aaron; for thus dubiousness was excited in the Sons of Israel as to whether the miracle was Divine. . . D.468.

8567. In temptations . . . at last there is doubt almost negative of the Divine presence and aid.

9025^e. Spiritual truths . . . are weakened when the thought comes into dubiousness from passages in the Word which are in opposition to each other.

N. 27^e. Man begins to be wise when he begins to be averse to reasonings against truths, and to reject dubiousnesses. Refs.

H. 215^e. In dubious things, the governors are enlightened by the Lord.

S. 18. The holiness of the Word does not appear from the letter alone; therefore he who once doubts its holiness on that account, afterwards confirms himself by many things therein.

Ad. Jer.xxiii.17. When knowledges and the things of the memory . . . wanted to intrude themselves into spiritual things, and as it were to build or fashion them, I at once fell into doubts; and unless they had been taken away by God Messiah . . . I should have sunk down into doubts and negations; for particulars can never enter into universals.

D. 660. A certain Spirit . . . was with me . . . so that the life of his faith flowed in, as I could manifestly perceive from the fact that I began to doubt or to feel cold about the Lord's government in singulars.

2544^e. It was given to say to them that the experience is constant and certain, and is not to be doubted.

2546. We are not to doubt concerning the things of faith . . . because we do not apprehend the causes, and because they are not according to the appearance; when yet they are truths, because the Lord, the Truth itself, has said it.

3304. It is the nature of these Spirits still to be raising dubiousnesses, when the Knowledges of Truth are told them . . . At last it was given to say to them, that there are Truths which do not admit of dubiousnesses.

3533. Such (as the common people), and little children, are those who in the other life abide firmly in faith, without doubt . . .

4872^e. In his sphere I at once began to doubt concerning the Divine . . .

5574. They at last become such, that they think what they do think, whatever anybody says, nor do they fall by any means into dubiousnesses . . . They become Genii . . .

E. 739^a. See DEGREE at this ref.

—^b. Reasoning involves doubt whether it is so . . .

Dough. Massa.

A. 7966. 'The people carried their dough before it was leavened' (EX.xii.34)=the first state of truth from good, in which there was nothing false. 'Dough'=truth from good; for 'flour'=truth; 'the dough' therefrom, the good of truth; and 'the bread' which is from the dough, the good of love. When 'bread'=the good of love, the other things, namely, the dough and the flour=goods and truths in their order.

7978. See CAKE at this ref.

I. 16². Large or small masses of wood, stone, or metal.

D. 4722². By the formation of some mass . . .

5202. The whole mass so to speak began to ferment . . .

E. 403¹⁷. 'A lump of figs' (2 Kings xx.7).

540⁴. 'The raiser ceaseth from kneading the dough until it be leavened' (Hos.vii.4) . . . =that the falsities which favour their loves they compact together as it were into a mass.

555¹⁷. They are said 'to knead their dough' (Jer.vii.18)=when they forge doctrine from these cupidities, and according to them.

Dove. Columba.

See JONA, TURTLE-DOVE.

A. 870. 'A dove'=the truths and goods of faith with one who is to be regenerated. III.

—². 'The dove' which came upon Jesus when He was baptized=the Holy of faith; and the baptism itself, regeneration; hence with the new Church which was rising up, the truth and good of faith, which they receive by regeneration from the Lord.

—². The like was represented by 'the young pigeons—pulli columbarum—or 'turtle-doves' which they offered in sacrifice. III.

—³. That 'a dove,' in general,=the intellectual things of faith. III.

871. 'He sent forth a dove from himself to see' (Gen.viii.8)=a state of receiving the truths and goods of faith. 890.

875. 'The dove did not rest for the sole of her foot' (ver.9)=that nothing of the good and truth of faith could as yet take root. 'A dove'=the truth of faith.

876. 'She returned to him to the ark'=that the good and truth meant by 'the dove' returned to him again. Whatever good a man supposes he does of himself, returns to him . . .

878. 'To put forth his hand, take the dove, and pull her in to himself'=to apply and attribute to himself the truth which is meant by 'the dove.'

891. 'The dove did not return to him any more'=a free state; (for) the dove, or the truth of faith . . . was no longer kept in the ark on account of the waters of the Flood.

1186⁶. 'As a dove out of the land of Asshur' (Hos.xi.11) . . . 'A dove'=rational good. E.601⁷.

1361². 'Doves' and 'turtle-doves' (in the sacrifices) represented spiritual things.

1821. 'A turtle-dove and a young pigeon' (Gen.xv.9) =the things which are representative of the spiritual things of the Church; 'a turtle-dove,' those which are exterior; and 'a young pigeon,' those which are interior. Compare 1823. 1826. 1827.

[A.] 8764⁷. 'The wings of a dove covered with silver' (Ps.lxviii.13). 'The wings of a dove'=the truth of faith. That 'a dove'=faith, see 870.

10132⁹. 'The son of a dove,' and 'a turtle-dove' (Lev. xii.6)=innocence. E.314^e. (=the good of innocence. 10210^e.)

L. 51a^e. 'He saw the Holy Spirit descending like a dove;' a dove is the representative of purification and regeneration through Divine truth.

P. 338⁹. A reformed man may be compared to a dove as to the understanding, and to a sheep as to the will.

M. 1554⁴. They looked to the window in the southern quarter, and lo, there appeared a bright white dove with wings glistening like silver, and its head made conspicuous by a crown as of gold; it was standing on a branch out of which came forth an olive; and when it was in the effort to expand its wings, the wives said, We will open something. While that dove appears it is a sign to us that it is allowable. 208. —⁴.

—⁵. We do not want to say more, and therefore we cannot, because the dove of our window . . . has flown away. I waited its return, but in vain.

208⁵. There was a sound as of the dove moaning; and then the wives said, This is a sign to us that we earnestly desire to divulge still more secret things, but that it is not allowable.

293⁶. There appeared afar as it were a flying dove with the leaf of a tree in its mouth; but as it approached, in place of the dove there appeared a little boy with a paper in his hand.

—^e. He was again seen afar as a dove flying, but with a coronet on its head.

T. 72^e. He saw at his right hand . . . a flying dove, and at his left . . . a vulture; and he said . . . Your faith has seduced you. Is it not in your hands as a snare for catching doves? Hearing this, a certain magician formed as it were a snare from that faith, and hung it on a tree, saying, You will see that I shall catch that dove. Just then a hawk flew up . . . and was caught; and the dove, seeing the hawk, flew by.

144. John saw the Holy Spirit descending like a dove. This took place because baptism=regeneration and purification; in like manner a dove. Who cannot perceive that the dove was not the Holy Spirit, and that the Holy Spirit was not in the dove? Doves often appear in Heaven; and whenever they appear, the Angels know that they are correspondences of the affections and thence the thoughts in relation to regeneration and purification, with those who are standing by . . .

147⁹. Saying at heart, that theological matters are specious snares for catching doves.

D. 3858. The things I ate . . . as pigeons . . .

4142. I have sometimes observed in sleep that in my garden at Stockholm there were various abodes of doves . . .

E. 275¹⁹. 'A dove out of the land of Assyria'=the Rational. 1100²⁰.

282⁵. 'As doves to the windows' (Is.lx.8). . . 'Doves'=the spiritual affection of truth.

—⁶. 'Who will give me the wing as of a dove? I will fly away to where I dwell' (Ps.lv.6). . . 'The wing of a dove'=the spiritual affection of truth.

283⁴. 'The wings of a dove covered with silver'=spiritual truths . . . (for) 'a wing'=what is spiritual; a 'dove,' truth from good; and 'silver,' truth itself.

406¹⁰. 'As doves to their windows' . . . 'Doves'=the goods in the sense of the letter of the Word.

411¹⁴. 'A dove,' which is meant by 'Jona'=spiritual good. Refs.

—²³. 'Be ye like the dove that maketh her nest in the sides of the pit's mouth' (Jer.xlviii.28) . . . =a view of truth from without and not from within . . .

633⁴. 'The dove' which Noah sent forth=the good of charity, which was the essential of that Church.

638¹⁵. 'The dove' sent forth anew=the second successive state, which exists when spiritual good begins to come forth through truths, after falsities have been removed.

654²². It is said 'as a dove out of the land of Assyria,' because 'a dove'=rational good from what is spiritual.

—⁵⁵. 'Ephraim is like a silly dove, without heart' (Hos.vi.11)=that now there is no Intellectual, because no truth, nor affection of truth and good.

781¹⁸. See BEAR=ursus—at this ref.

840⁴. 'The seats of those that sold doves' (Matt.xxi.12)=(those who make gain) from holy goods.

1200³. In the Heavens there are turtle-doves, doves, etc.

Coro. 30². The natural man separated from the spiritual is like a hawk pursuing a dove.

Downwards. Deorsum.

A. 5116³. They appear head downwards . . . 9128^e.

5356^e. Evils and falsities then hang flaccidly downwards.

5433². If the internal man looks downwards, namely, to earthly things . . . he cannot possibly look upwards . . .

6402. They look downwards or outwards, for they are not yet in good; but they who are in good . . . look upwards or inwards. —.

6468³. They who are in Heaven look upwards to Him, and they who are in Hell look downwards from Him . . .

6952. He who is in falsity . . . looks entirely downwards or outwards, that is, to the world and the earth; but not upwards or inwards, that is, into Heaven and to the Lord. —⁵. —⁶.

—⁶. For wild beasts look downwards, or only to those things which are upon the earth. He who looks downwards, wills evil and thinks falsity; but he who is raised upwards by the Lord, wills good and thinks truth. . . Thus the Angels look upwards, and the infernals downwards.

6954. Of himself, man looks only downwards, that is, into the world and to the earth, because of himself he is in evil and falsity . . . Still, man, not from himself, but from the Lord, looks upwards, that is, to Heaven and to the Lord. This is effected by means of elevation . . .

6971². When once the avenue has been opened for the influx of the light of Heaven, and is afterwards closed, the man is compelled to look downwards and not upwards; and this from Divine order . . .

7424. The internal which beasts have . . . looks downwards or towards the earth, without any elevation towards interior things. 7604^e.

7604. See BARLEY at this ref.

—². All evils and falsities look downwards, that is, outwards to the earth and to the world; hence the goods and truths adjoined to them do the same. . . These goods and truths are devastated with the evil, (otherwise) the goods and truths . . . in the interior Natural . . . would be bent downwards.

7693². The reason he does not know that there is an internal man, is that his interiors look downwards to those things which are of the world, the body, and the Earth . . .

7778³. The things of genuine faith look upwards to Heaven and the Lord; whereas the things of faith separated from charity look downwards, and, when they confirm evils and falsities, to Hell.

8372. (The inhabitants of Jupiter) never look downwards or to the earth; to look downwards they called condemned . . .

8505². In the former state, man looks downwards or backwards; in the latter, upwards or forwards.

8606. 'When (Moses) let down his hand' = when the faith in them looked downwards, or from the Lord to self and the world.

9730. 'Thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar downwards' (Ex.xxvii.5) = this in ultimates. . . 'Downwards' = outwards.

10330². Man . . . can look downwards, and he can look upwards; to look downwards is to look outwards into the world and to self; and to look upwards is to look inwards to Heaven and to God. From himself, man looks outwards, which is called looking downwards; because when he looks from himself, he looks to Hell. But man looks inwards, not from himself, but from the Lord; which is called looking upwards . . .

W. 206^e. The like is signified by upwards and downwards . . .

E. 559⁶. See UPWARDS at this ref.

Dowry. See ENDOW or GIFT.

Doze. See under SLEEP—sopor.

Drachma. Drachma.

E. 675¹⁰. 'A drachma' (Luke xv.8) = truth. 'To lose a drachma' = to lose one of the truths or of the Knowledges of truth.

Drag. See DRAW—trahere.

Dragon. Draco.

Dragonist. Draconicus.

Draconic. Draconicus.

A. 257. So is described the serpent, or dragon which is called 'Lucifer,' in Is.xiv.

828². The harlot is then changed into a great dragon; and there the (seducers) remain covered over with torment.

950². Their abode is near Gehenna, where there are flying dragons which are not poisonous; whence this is called the abode of dragons.

1326³. 'Dragons in their edifices of pleasure' (Is.xiii.22). . . 'Dragons,' etc. = the interior things of their worship.

6952⁴. 'The tail of the dragon' (Rev.xii) = reasonings from falsities. . . 'The dragon' is the serpent, which seduces by reasonings from falsities, and which seduced . . . Eve . . . as is evident from, 'The great dragon was cast out, the ancient serpent . . .'

7293⁵. 'Serpents,' in these places, = the falsities from which are reasonings. The same are also signified by 'dragons;' but 'dragons' = reasonings from the loves of self and of the world, thus from the cupidities of evil, which pervert not only truths, but also goods; and which reasonings come forth from those who at heart deny the truths and goods of faith, but confess them orally for the sake of the lust of command and gain, thus also from those who profane truths and goods. The latter and the former are meant by 'the dragon, the ancient serpent . . .'

10071⁶. 'The tail of the dragon' = truths falsified, especially by application to evils.

10249⁷. By 'the dragon' are meant those who will endeavour to destroy the Lord's Church after it has been established.

10400². Such are they who are meant by 'the dragon' . . . in the Revelation.

J. 61³. At last there appeared as it were a blackness flying over the whole of that tract (where the Babylonians were), which on being examined appeared like a dragon; a sign that a desert had been made of the whole of that city and tract. The reason it appeared, was that 'dragons' = the falsities of such a religion; and 'their abode' = the desert after the overthrow. III. D.5303.

C. J. 16. The Last Judgment was executed upon those only of the Reformed, who . . . had professed God, read the Word, heard preachings, approached the sacrament of the Supper . . . and yet had accounted allowable adulteries, various kinds of theft, lying, revenge, hatred, and the like . . . Thus in externals they had lived as if from religion, and yet in internals they had had no religion. These are they who are meant by 'the dragon' in the Revelation; for it is said of the dragon that he was seen in Heaven, and that he fought with Michael in Heaven, and that he drew down from Heaven the third part of the stars; which things are said, because such had communicated with Heaven by the profession of God, the reading of the Word, and external worship.

[C. J.] 28. Then all who were about to perish, were seen together as a great dragon, with its tail extended in a curve, and raised towards Heaven, bending itself about on high, as though it wanted to destroy Heaven and drag it down; but the attempt was in vain, for the tail was cast down, and the dragon which also then appeared raised up, sank down. It was granted me to see this representation, in order that I might know and make known who are meant by the dragon in the Revelation; namely, that by the dragon are meant all who read the Word, hear preachings, and observe the holy things of the Church, and make no account of the concupiscences of evil to which they are addicted . . . and who thus live like devils in spirit, and like Angels in body. These were they who constituted the dragon itself; but the tail was composed of those who in the world had been in faith separated from charity, and were like the former as to thoughts and intentions.

F. 55. That those who are in faith separated from charity are meant by the dragon in the Revelation. Gen.art.

—2. The religiosity which is meant by Philistia is described in Rev.xii. and xiii. by the dragon and his two beasts.

56. That the religiosity of faith separated from charity is described in the Revelation by the dragon and his two beasts, has not only been told me from Heaven, but has also been shown in the World of Spirits . . . They who were in faith separated were seen by me in a congregation as a great dragon with its tail extended towards Heaven; and others of the same character have been seen, separately, in appearance as dragons . . . Wherefore they are called dragonists by the Angels of Heaven. But there are many kinds of them: some constitute the head of the dragon; some its body; and some its tail. They who constitute its tail, are they who have falsified all the truths of the Word . . .

58. The following things are said about the dragon in Rev.xii. Ennm. 59,Ex.

R. 473. Until after those who are meant by the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet, have been cast out of the World of Spirits. Sig.

479. How the doctrine concerning the Lord would be received in the Church, before they who were meant by the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet, were removed. Sig.

535. See DOCTRINE at these refs. 543.

537. 'Behold, a great red dragon' (Rev.xii.3)=those in the Church of the Reformed who make God three and the Lord two, and who separate charity from faith, and make the latter saving, and not at the same time the former. Ex.

—3. The dragon is called 'great,' because all the Churches of the Reformed distinguish God into three persons, and make faith alone saving; except some here and there . . .

—4. The dragon is said to be red, because 'red'=falsity from the evils of concupiscences, which is infernal falsity.

— . As these two essentials of doctrine in the Churches of the Reformed are false, and falsities devastate the Church . . . they are represented by 'a dragon.' The reason is, that the devastation of the Church is signified in the Word by 'a dragon.' Ill.

—5. That 'the dragon' here means those who are in faith alone, and reject the works of the Law as not saving, has been sometimes attested to me by living experience in the Spiritual World. I have seen many thousands of them gathered into a company, and at a distance they appeared like a dragon with a long tail, which appeared to be set with spines like a brier, which signified falsities. Once also a still larger dragon was seen, which, raising his back, erected his tail towards Heaven in the endeavour to drag down the stars therefrom. B.90.

542. 'The dragon stood before the woman . . . that he might devour her child'=that those who are meant by the dragon busy themselves to extinguish the doctrine of the New Church at its birth.

548. This Heaven passed away in consequence of the Last Judgment upon the dragon and his Angels; which is also signified by the dragon being cast down, and his place no longer found in Heaven . . . What falsities are meant by the dragon, which are to fight against the truths of the New Church, see 537.

550. 'The great dragon was cast out, that ancient serpent, called the devil and satan' (ver.9)=that those who are meant by the dragon were turned away from the Lord to themselves, and from Heaven to the world, and thence from corporeal became sensuous, who cannot do otherwise than be in the evils of their concupiscences, and thence in falsities, and by separation from the Lord and Heaven become devils and satans.

558². The dragon is here called 'the devil' (ver.12), because those are meant who from that heresy are in evils of life . . .

560. 'When the dragon saw that he was cast into the earth, he persecuted the woman who brought forth the son' (ver.13)=that, after being cast down, the dragonists in the World of Spirits immediately began to infest the New Church on account of its doctrine. 'When the dragon saw that he was cast out into the earth'=when the dragonists saw that they were separated from Heaven, and in conjunction with men on earth. D.6101².

563. 'The serpent,' here, =the seducing dragon.

— . The reasonings of those who are meant by the dragon, are all from fallacies and appearances; which, if confirmed, appear outwardly as truths, but inwardly store up falsities in abundance.

— . Those in the Church who hereafter confirm themselves in faith alone, cannot recede from it except by serious repentance, because they conjoin themselves with the dragonists who are now in the World of Spirits, and who are greatly excited, and from hatred against the New Church are infesting all there whom they meet: and because they are conjoined with men on earth . . . they do not suffer those to recede from them who have once been caught by their reasonings; for they hold them as if they were bound with chains, and then shut their eyes, so that they can no longer see any truth in light.

564. 'The earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth' (ver. 16)=that the reasonings from falsities in abundance, which the dragonists put forth, fall to nothing before the truths rationally understood, which the Michaels, of whom the New Church consists, bring forward.

565. 'And the dragon was angry against the woman, and went away to make war with the rest of her seed, who keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ' (ver. 17)=the hatred kindled with those who believe themselves wise on account of confirmations in favour of the mystical union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord, and in favour of justification by faith alone, against those who acknowledge the Lord alone as the God of Heaven and earth, and that the Decalogue is the law of life; accosting novitiates with the design of seducing them.

567. See BEAST at these refs. 579. 594. 596. 701. 789. 998.

655. I spoke with certain who are meant by the dragon in the Revelation; and one of them said to me, Come with me, and I will show you the delights of our eyes and hearts. He led me . . . to a hill, from which I could behold the delights of the dragons. I saw an amphitheatre . . . Those on the lowest benches appeared to me at a distance like satyrs and priapi, some with a covering round the loins, and some naked without it. On the benches above these sat whoremongers and harlots . . . The dragon then said, Now you shall see our sport. And I saw let into the area . . . as it were bullocks, rams, sheep, kids, and lambs; and . . . a gate was opened, and there rushed in as it were young lions, panthers, leopards, and wolves; and they attacked the flock with fury, and tore and slaughtered them . . . Then said the dragon to me, These are our sports, which delight our minds . . . Afterwards, I was thinking with myself why such things are permitted by the Lord; and I received the answer in my heart, that they are permitted so long as they are in the World of Spirits; but after their time in that World is expired, such theatrical scenes are turned into such as are direful and infernal. All these things were induced by the dragonists by means of phantasies: so that they were not bullocks, etc., but the genuine goods and truths of the Church, which they hated . . . The young lions, etc., were appearances of the cupidities of those who seemed like satyrs and priapi. Those without a covering round the loins, were those who had believed that evils do not appear before God; and those with a covering, were those who had believed that they appear, but do not condemn, provided they are in faith. The whoremongers and harlots were falsifiers of the truth of the Word.

—⁴. I afterwards saw them going out of the forest, the dragon in the midst of the satyrs and priapi; and their servants and scullions, who were the whoremongers and harlots, after them. The company increased on the way. . . They said they saw a flock of sheep . . . and that this was a sign that one of the Jerusalemite cities, where charity was the primary, was near; and they said, Let us go and take the city, and cast out the inhabitants, and plunder their goods. . . But there was a wall round it, and Angel guards on the wall. Then they said, Let us take it by stratagem, let us send some one who is skilled in the artifice of muttering. (Continued under CHARITY at this ref.)

—⁸. Then they said, Let us . . . besiege this city . . . and cast out those charities. But when they attempted this, there appeared as it were fire from Heaven which consumed them, which was the appearance of their anger from hatred against the others . . . The reason they appeared to be consumed by fire, was that Hell opened under their feet, and swallowed them up. Things like this happened in many places at the time of the Last Judgment, and this is what is meant by . . . 'The dragon shall go forth to seduce the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, to gather them together to war: and they went up on the plain of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city; but fire came down from God out of Heaven, and consumed them' (Rev.xx.8,9). T.388.

701. 'The dragon'=the acknowledgment of three gods, and of justification by faith alone, and the consequent devastation of the Church.

840. Preface. The removal of those who are meant by the dragon. Tr.

—¹. The damnation of the dragon. Tr.

841. 'He laid hold on the dragon, the ancient serpent, which is the devil and satan' (Rev.xx.1)=that those who are meant by the dragon were withheld; who are called 'the ancient serpent' because they think sensuously and not spiritually about the things of faith; 'the devil,' because they are in evils as to life; and 'satan,' because they are in falsities as to doctrine.

842. 'And bound him a thousand years' (ver.2)=that those who are meant by the dragon were withdrawn and forcibly separated from the rest in the World of Spirits, that there should be no communication with them for some time.

843. 'And cast him into the abyss, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should seduce the nations no more' (ver.3)=that the Lord completely removed those who were in faith alone, and took away all their communication with the rest, lest they should inspire something of their heresy into those who were being elevated into Heaven.

—². The reason the dragon was for a time completely removed, was that those who had been hidden by the Lord might be elevated . . . and to prevent them from being seduced by the dragonists while being elevated: wherefore it is said, that 'he should seduce the nations no more,' by which is signified that he should not inspire into them anything of his heresy. This was done in the World of Spirits . . . because there the evil communicate with the good.

844. 'Until the thousand years be ended, and after that he must be loosed for a little time' (id.)=that this is for some time, until those who were in truths from good have been taken up into Heaven . . . after which those who are meant by the dragon are to be loosed for a short time, and communication with the rest is to be opened to them. 845. 856.

858. 'And he shall go forth to seduce the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to war' (ver.8)=that those who are here meant by the dragon would draw to their party all from the whole earth in the entire World of Spirits, who lived there in external natural worship only . . . and would stir them up against those who have worshipped the Lord, and have lived according to His precepts in the Word. 861.

[R. 858]². Those in Hell could not come into the sight of the dragon, nor those in the Heavens.

—^e. The evil act as one with the dragon or dragonists.

864. 'The devil that seduced them' means the dragon . . . and those in general are meant by the dragon who are in evils as to life and in falsities as to doctrine.

878. The reason (the internal of the Heaven from Christians) was not formed sooner, was that the dragon and his two beasts had dominion in the World of Spirits, and burned with the cupidity of seducing whomsoever they could . . . The separation of the good from the dragonists, and the damnation of the latter . . . are treated of in many places; and at last in Rev.xix.20; xx.10.

884. No more grief . . . fear of damnation, of evils and falsities from Hell, and of temptations from them . . . because the dragon, who caused them, is cast out. Sig.

M. 79². We entered the western tract of this region, and saw dragons and leopards, such as are described in the Revelation . . . Their falsities and depraved inclinations as to the things of worship were represented by the dragons and leopards.

B. 87. That those who have confirmed themselves in modern justifying faith are meant in the Revelation by the dragon, his two beasts, and the locusts. Gen.art.

89. That dragonic faith . . .

94. The great arcanum, why, unless a New Church is established by the Lord, no flesh can be saved, is this: that so long as the dragon with his crew stays in the World of Spirits, into which he was cast from Heaven, so long no Divine truth united to Divine good can pass from the Lord to men on earth, but it is either annihilated or perverted, whence there is no salvation. This is what is meant by Rev.xii.9,12,13. But, after the dragon was cast into Hell (Rev.xx.10), then John saw the New Heaven and the new earth, and the Holy New Jerusalem descending from God out of Heaven. T.182.

T. 41². In proportion as (good and truth) are divided by a man, he becomes an image of Lucifer and the dragon.

95. His acts of Redemption were, that He . . . expelled from Heaven those who made one with the beasts of the dragon . . .

108. (All such) are turned towards the Lower Earth; whither he also goes, and conjoins himself with those there who are meant in the Revelation by the dragon and the false prophet.

110. It was a meteor, which the common people call a dragon.

— He said that he had been cast down as an Angel of the dragon, by the Angels of Michael . . .

—7. The abyss, where the Angels of the dragon discuss the mysteries of their faith.

—8. Then a voice was heard from a certain dragonist . . .

182^e. By the dragon are meant those who are in the faith of the present Church.

207^e. That for a long time (the spiritual sense) would not be acknowledged, is meant by . . . the dragon, that he persecuted the woman . . .

312². There came into my sight as it were dragons standing near women who had infants with them, which they were endeavouring as it were to devour, according to the things related in Rev.xii.; which are nothing but representations of hatred against the Lord and His New Church.

477. All who are in this great interspace are, as to their interiors, conjoined . . . at this day either with the Angels of Michael or with the Angels of the dragon.

536². They who have not exercised charity from religion . . . discard all the goods and truths of the New Church, and presently join the Spirits of the dragon, and with them are driven away into deserts, or into caverns on the furthest borders of what is called the Christian world . . .

619⁵. The Angels complain greatly of these spheres . . . but they cannot be dissipated so long as the dragon is on the earth, since this sphere is from the dragonists; for it is said of the dragon, that 'he was cast into the earth' . . . These three spheres are like tempest-driven atmospheres proceeding from the breathing-holes of dragons.

649. This would be like escaping from five horns of the dragon, and getting entangled in his other five.

D. 245^e. Like the dragon . . .

253^e. I have this day learned that the dragon was accustoming himself to wiles which he had not previously practised . . .

441. The representation was then turned into a whale, or into a dragon . . .

463. On those who are called the stars of the dragon. 640^e.

487. On the dragon, who has assumed a seat in the zenith of Heaven.

501. That the dragon, together with the stars, was cast down from Heaven towards Hell; and what he attempted there.

502. On the dragon. . . This day the dragon was again sent into a place of torment . . . where there are dragons and serpents. Being taken out, he flew as usual to supplication . . . For a minute he was sent under the veil, as he had sent innumerable others.

503. It was said about the dragon, that he persecuted Jesus when He was in the world, and that it was he who chiefly tempted Him; and by dreams stirred up the chief priests and elders . . . For he was the head of those who are in Hell, and who love themselves.

504. He said also that he persecutes the Church, or those who have faith, according to Rev.xii.

505. He is extremely slippery ; when in punishments and terror he promises all things, and confesses the truth . . . so much so that he cannot conceive otherwise than that it is from the heart . . .

507. On the nature of the dragon. 3074. 3075.

—^e. This dragon is the leader and god of the Jews in the life after death . . . 522.

509. (The dragon mentioned.) —^e. 510. 602. 639. 750. 746. 936. 1005. 2525. 3093. 3133. 3851. 4055.

526. On the dragon. 538. 2017. 2363. 3042. 3409. 4265.

634. On the wiles of the dragon.

732^e. From both dragons . . .

1497. There appear such serpents as are called dragons.

2967. On the dragon changed into the form of an interior Spirit.

3746. Their abode is near Gehenna, where there are dragons. . . They ascribe everything to their own prudence, which is properly signified by dragons.

3747. To dwell with dragons, which are flying serpents.

4111. With the dragon. with David . . .

4198. The dragons mentioned. 5748. 5829. J.(Post.) 168.

4760. On the dragon in the Revelation. . . It has been disclosed to me that they who are meant by the dragon in the Revelation are they who reason about Divine truths from knowledges, thus from such things as are in nature, and take the literal sense of the Word for confirmation, which they twist to agreement ; thus who want to be wise concerning Divine things from natural theology, and who are chiefly naturalists, and in their hearts deny the Divine ; for they reason more than others, and deduce all things to a negative.

4761. These two things together make the dragon as to one way . . .

4872. On the dragon and his crew. 4902.

4877. Such as thus believe, and are in persuasive faith, and still live evilly ; and also who teach and believe that deeds effect nothing ; but that they are in Christian liberty . . . because the Lord has fulfilled the law . . . these are they who are dragons.

4886^e. This appeared like the dragon in the Revelation . . .

5083. They who are the dragons treated of in the Revelation, are they who study the Word, but do not care for any doctrine thence, and who remain strictly in the sense of the letter. They also read the Word merely in order to become great in the world. They who do this are the dragon, because the sense of the letter is the ultimate, and corresponds to the Sensuous in man . . . 5370. 5422.

5089. They who are dragons are able to defend any dogma they want ; they fluctuate among all ; they can be Catholics, Reformed, Lutherans, Quakers ; in a word, they are of uncertain faith. The reason is, that they do not think at all beyond external sensuous things . . .

5100. There are those who relate to the head of the dragon, to its body, and its tail. Ex. 5542 $\frac{1}{2}$.

5376. Dragons are all those who have the Word and doctrine from the Word, and only talk about them, and do not do, thus, also, those who are in faith alone . . .

5426. The dragons conspired . . . against the heavenly doctrine . . .

5428. When the dragons looked towards those who were in the heavenly doctrine, they fell into direful torments . . .

5470. On the dragonists.

5498. In the Hell of assassins and poisoners, there appear . . . as it were dragons . . .

5532. The priests in various places in the Christendom of Protestants were visited, and those who may be called dragonists were separated from those who were not ; and the dragonists were found in many thousands . . .

5542 $\frac{1}{2}$. The dragonists are against Heaven, because they are against the heavenly doctrine.

5722. On the dragonists. Gen.art.

5722 $\frac{1}{2}$. Those constitute the head of the dragon, who believe the Word only as to the letter, and do not care for doctrine, and love themselves and the world above all things . . . Those constitute its tail to whom the Word serves only for preaching, and not at all for life . . . And they who cogitate cunning things and arts in the world, constitute its life or poison.

5736. These are they who are called 'the goats' . . . These, too, are in the dragon, and have constituted something in it.

5742. There then began that combat which is described in the Revelation between Michael and the dragon. Des.

5751. The abyss treated of in the Revelation, into which the dragon was at length cast, is completely and directly under the genitals . . . Into it was cast the dragon himself (Bishop Benzelius), and many who adhered to him . . .

5879. Who, finally, are dragons. . . By the dragon are meant all those who are in the knowledge of doctrinal things and of the Word, and not in the life of charity.

5929. On the influx of those who are in evil, who are on high, into the lower dragons.

5961. On the dragon. . . All are dragons who confirm falsities by the Word ; those constitute its head who are in external piety and in no internal . . . those its body who say that charity is the chief of salvation, and do not live the life of charity ; those its posterior parts who set up faith as the one only means of salvation ; those its tail who merely read the Word, and make salvation to consist in it, and are in no doctrine, saying that the Word in the letter is doctrine, but are able thus to defend whatever they want . . .

—^e. All such as are dragons correspond to the filthy adulteries treated of in Moses.

D. Min. 4700. On an infernal who appeared as a dragon serpent.

E. 433³⁰. 'Their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruel gall of asps' (Deut.xxxii.33). . . 'The poison of dragons, and the gall of asps'=the enormous falsity which comes forth from the falsified truths of the Word.

[E.] 519⁷. See ASP at these refs. 714²⁷.

650³⁵. 'Dragons' (Is.xliiii.20)=natural ideas.

711². The dragons then stood round, and vehemently withstood, and this even to the torment of those who were for that doctrine.

713. They who will assault the doctrine are meant by 'the great red dragon' . . . Those who are meant by the dragon . . . are those who have communication with the Angels, but only by externals . . . For it is said that the dragon was seen in Heaven . . . Those are meant by the dragon, who, during their life in the world, have an external communication with Heaven . . . from the reading of the Word, from preaching . . . and from external worship . . . but are not in any life according to the precepts of the Lord.

714. 'Behold a great red dragon'=all who are merely natural and sensuous from the love of self, yet who know more or less things from the Word, doctrine thence, or preaching, and think to be saved by knowledge alone without life; (for) 'a dragon'=the merely natural and sensuous man, who yet is in the knowledge of things which in themselves are spiritual.

—³. A dragon is a kind of serpent, which not only creeps on the ground, but also flies, and thus appears in Heaven; and it is from this flight and this appearance that those who are in the knowledge of Truths from the Word, and not in a life according to them, are meant by the dragon . . .

—⁴. In general, (by the dragon) are signified those who are more or less natural, and yet are in the knowledge of spiritual things from the Word; but in special, those are signified who in doctrine and in life have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity. These constitute the head of the dragon. But those who from their own intelligence have hatched for themselves dogmas from the Word, constitute its body. And those who study the Word without doctrine, constitute the external parts of the dragon. (All these points explained at great length.)

—¹³. The tail of the dragon means the falsification and adulteration of the Word from those who constitute its head, body, and extreme parts . . . and as all those who constitute the dragon, since they are natural and sensuous from the love of self, and are thence in the conceit of their own intelligence, falsify and adulterate the Word, it is said that the dragon drew down the third part of the stars of heaven with its tail . . .

—¹⁴. That those mentioned above constitute the dragon, and that the adulteration and destruction of the truths of the Word is meant by its tail, has been granted me to see two or three times in the Spiritual World. . . When such have been seen in the light of Heaven, they have been seen as dragons with a long tail; and when a number of such are seen, the tail is seen extended from the south through the west into the north; and the tail has also been seen to drag as it were stars from Heaven, and cast them into the earth.

—¹⁵. As the above-mentioned are meant by the dragon . . . 'the habitation' and 'couching-place of dragons' in the Word=where there is mere falsity and evil. III.

—¹⁹. 'Ijim' (Is.xiii.22)=adulterated and profaned truths; and 'dragons,' adulterated and profaned goods. —²².

—²⁰. Lamentation over devastated goods is signified by 'to make a wailing as dragons' (Micah i.8).

—²³. 'The place of dragons' (Ps.xliv.19)=the place in Hell where they are who are dragons, namely, they who have destroyed all good in themselves.

—²⁴. 'To trample on the lion and the dragon' (Ps. xci.13)=to destroy the interior and exterior falsities which vastate the goods of the Church.

—²⁶. '(Pharaoh) the great dragon,' or 'whale' (Ezek. xxix.3; xxxii.2)=(the natural man) as to the scientifics which are false or falsified from the conceit of man's own intelligence.

—²⁸. From all which it may appear that 'a dragon' means those who do not possess any good of charity and of love, from their not having acknowledged it as any means of salvation, but only something scientific which from persuasion they call faith; and when the good of love and of charity is not implanted in man's life, evil is in its place, and where there is evil there is falsity. . .

—²⁹. As 'serpents'=sensuous things . . . and these are not evil except with those who are evil; and as, in the Hebrew language, dragons are expressed by the same word as serpents which are not poisonous, 'dragons,' when such serpents are meant, in the Word=sensuous things which are not evil, or . . . sensuous men who are not evil. III.

715³. See CUNNING at this rei.

—^e. 'The serpent' (in Genesis)=has a like signification to 'the dragon,' wherefore the latter is called 'the ancient serpent that seduceth the whole world.'

716². The reason the dragon had such power, was that by him are meant those who have separated faith from the goods of charity, which are works, and have confirmed it by the sense of the letter of the Word . . . and because, at the end of the Church . . . there is no charity. This is the source of the power of the dragon; for at the end of the Church everyone wants to live for himself, the world, and enjoyment . . .

—^e. The same as are here meant by the dragon are meant by 'the he-goat' which fought with the ram.

717¹⁸. (But) by 'the dragon' (as distinguished from the he-goat) are properly meant the learned who in doctrine and in life have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity; for these have poison like dragons, which murders charity.

718². By 'the dragon' in general are meant all who acknowledge the Word, and read it, and still do not live according to it; and this because they separate the life which is charity from faith, and believe that it is sufficient to think those things which are in the Word, and persuade themselves that they will be saved if they think and say something therefrom with trust and confidence, and that faith alone justifies and saves, and not anything of life or of work . . .

721. 'The dragon'=those who are in the knowledge of the Knowledges of truth from the sense of the letter of the Word, and not in a life according to it.

730^a. 'The dragons of the wilderness' (Mal.i.3)=mere falsifications.

735. 'Michael and his Angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his Angels'=combat between those who are for the life of love and of charity, and for the Divine of the Lord in His human, against those who are for faith alone and separated, and who are against the Divine of the Lord in His Human.

737. How could the dragon be in Heaven? . . . By the dragon are not meant those who have denied God and the Lord, and who have rejected the Word, and have made the Church and its doctrine of no account; for such are cast into Hell immediately after death, and never appear in Heaven . . . But by the dragon and his Angels are meant those who Know God and the Lord, and say that the Word is holy, and also stand for the Church and its doctrine, but only with the mouth and not with the heart . . . because they make life of no account. These are inwardly devils, however much, outwardly, they may appear to be Angels. (Thus) they were outwardly conjoined with Heaven . . . and inwardly with Hell . . . 739. 740, Ex. 775.

739. 'And that great dragon was cast forth, that ancient serpent'=that those were separated from Heaven and cast down into Hell who were in evils of life, and had thus become sensuous; and by whom all things of the Word and of the Church had been perverted.

740^b. 'I saw Satan falling from heaven like a thunderbolt.' 'Satan,' here, has a like signification to the dragon . . . But the dragon is he who is properly meant by 'the devil'; and his Angels, by 'Satan.' 'The Angels of the dragon'=the falsities of evil.

744. When the ultimates of Heaven are connected with . . . those who are here signified by the dragon and his Angels . . . the light and intelligence of the Angels is diminished. Ex.

757. 'When the dragon saw that he was cast forth into the earth'=when the religion of faith alone separated from charity was not acknowledged, but was accounted as vile. . . 'The dragon'=those in the Church who make no account of the life; and as those chiefly do this who have the doctrine that faith alone justifies . . . by 'the dragon' is here signified the religion of faith alone separated from the life of charity.

